
Inter-American system

United States domination at end?

Geoffrey S. Smith, Associate Professor of History, has written on the War on the Pacific and the recent phenomenon of terrorist kidnapping. His book, To Save a Nation, was nominated for a Pulitzer Prize in History.

by Geoffrey S. Smith
Established in 1948, the Organization of American States remains the major institutional bulwark of the inter-American system. Comprising several organizational and juridical units to facilitate social, political, and economic progress and settle hemispheric disputes, the OAS has not succeeded, however, in transforming the historic one-sided relationship between the United States and Latin America.

Confusion between unequals

Despite myriad policies, studies, and programmes—ranging from James Monroe's Doctrine to James G. Blaine's Pan Americanism, from Franklin D. Roosevelt's Good Neighbor to Richard Nixon's Good Partner—Washington has yet to forge a constructive relationship with its southern neighbours.

In fact, United States concern with Latin America has flourished only during periods of international crisis. Washington policy-makers traditionally have envisaged the area either as a "safe backyard" (in Tad Szulc's phrase), ripe for political and economic expansion, or a "soft underbelly" to be protected against enemies—the Holy Alliance after the Napoleonic Wars, Nazism during World War II, and communism in more recent years. Perennial features of U.S. policy have included holding the continent within Washington's sphere of influence, challenging leftist political movements, defending private investment while developing export markets, and maintaining the region as a source of raw materials.

Since 1948, belying the fictional equality of members of the inter-American systems, Washington has utilized its overwhelming power to define and employ the OAS in several ways. During the late 1940s the organization functioned mainly as a collective security organization to counter external threats to the stability of Latin America. In the middle 1950s, as Secretary of State John Foster Dulles wrestled with the devil of communism, the OAS became an anti-communist alliance during the first year or so of the Kennedy administration, the organization became what many Latin reformers and U.S. liberals felt it should be all along—an anti-conservative force moving in the direction of evolutionary reform. But the latter function did not last. By 1963, the grandiose promises of The Alliance for Progress notwithstanding, Washington again placed its highest priority upon upholding the status quo.

Population estimates, projections

Towards an ideal

Washington's retreat from idealism to "realism"—from social change to stability as a policy objective—accelerated with the accession of Lyndon Johnson. Kennedy idealists like Teodoro Moscoso, Richard Goodwin, and Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr., departed Washington, replaced by career diplomats, conservative men loyal to the State Department, sceptical of long-term undertakings, men who considered themselves "crisis managers" and felt that United States interests could best be served by protecting the status quo. Johnson concerned himself primarily with checking the spread of communism; again Washington co-operated with anti-communist regimes insensitive to social problems.

In 1965, to provide protection for Americans' lives and property (actually, to prevent "another Cuba"), forty thousand marines landed in the Dominican Republic. This intervention, which dissipated what good the Alliance for Progress had accomplished and earned for Washington an image of "cops of the world," demonstrated how easily a multilateral organization could become unilateral. And in perhaps the most sordid example of continuing hemispheric meddling, the Central Intelligence Agency (with the knowledge, and perhaps direction of Secretary Kissinger since 1969), poured more than eight million dollars into a programme to "destabilize" the regime of the first popularly elected Marxist in the Western Hemisphere, Salvador Allende.

Attempts at understanding

Ironically (perhaps not in view of his subsequent record of deception and "tricks"), Nixon had attempted in 1969 to repair the neglected state into which U.S. Latin American relations had fallen. The President dispatched Nelson Rockefeller (together with 23 other Latin American experts) on a fact-finding tour during the spring and summer. In September, Rockefeller filed his report, a critique of the Alliance for Progress, and of U.S. policy.

The Rockefeller report demonstrated an awareness of the complex problems of social change, but despite its denigration of Washington's "negligent paternalism," it too was a paternalistic document. Thoroughly anti-communist, it emphasized the need to maintain U.S. political, economic, and military primacy in the hemisphere. Toward this end the report called for increased grants for the training of security forces, augmented sales of military equipment to bolster the military, and the establishment of a civilian-directed Western Hemisphere Security Council to battle subversion. To secure the allegiance of Latin businessmen, Rockefeller recommended that Washington offer access to markets on reasonable terms to countries not receiving special treatment from other industrial nations. Finally, Rockefeller suggested creation of a new position within the State Department, a secretary of Western Hemisphere Affairs who would be directly responsible to the President and the Secretary of State.

The President neither adopted Rockefeller's recommendations for government reorganization, nor did he echo the report's hard-line anti-communist rhetoric. On October 31, 1969, Nixon interred the Alliance for Progress, replacing it with a policy of "Good Partnership," a more mature relationship based on trade, not aid. At the same time he called for the necessity of dealing realistically with governments in the inter-American system "as they are," although his political tolerance obviously did not extend to Allende's Chile or to Castro's Cuba.

Commodity politics

More recently the Nixon Administration wrestled with Watergate and energy crises, and Washington again sought to woo Latin America. At a Mexico City Foreign Ministers' meeting in February, Kissinger sought to protect a major source of raw materials against the possibility that Latin America might resort to a cartel policy similar to other third world areas. He emphasized the need for a Western Hemisphere Community, based on mutual obligation and understanding. Peru, Venezuela, and Allende's Chile have already realized the measure of diplomatic power conferred by mineral and petroleum wealth. Kissinger's approach to the problem, therefore, includes a laissez-faire policy toward right-wing dictatorships, thus insuring that some governments at least, despite securing higher prices for natural resources, will not trouble themselves with social and economic reform. But U.S. policy is now headed firmly in the direction of nineteenth century British foreign policy—no permanent friends or enemies—only permanent interests. And the permanent interest now is economic, not ideological.

It comes as no surprise that Latin America's negative feelings about the United States and the inter-American system have deepened in the last decade. The Latin commitment to transforming social and political frameworks includes various methods—one need only compare the governments of Cuba, Brazil, and Peru. But one thing is certain: more nations are moving toward authoritarian solutions of their complex problems. The desire for self-determination and economic independence, which unites Latin Americans of all political persuasions, has been manifested in the nationalization of United States industry, demands for higher prices and local controls, and calls for a greater share in profits.

On the international level, more Latin Americans than ever exhibit concern with foreign affairs, demanding independent policies, even pushing in the direction of Pan-Latin Americanism. This approach would supersede the inter-American system and allow Latin Americans, as part of a third world interest block to meet the United States as an equal.

If the "special relationship" between the United States and Latin America is to continue—and Latin Americans' reluctance to employ the OAS makes this point moot—Washington must develop a new spirit and approach to deal with the new Latin assertiveness. A start in the right direction would be to recognize Fidel Castro. With friendship for China, continued isolation of Cuba makes no sense. In any event, time is running against the United States. As of this writing, Mexico (the only country in the Western Hemisphere not to break relations in 1964), Peru, Argentina, Panama, and the Caribbean nations of Barbados, Guyana, Jamaica, and Trinidad and Tobago had renewed relations, with recognition pending by Ecuador, Venezuela, and Costa Rica.

Who's Who in the lecture series

Pierre Charpentier, Director of the Latin American Division of the Department of External Affairs. He is a graduate of the University of Montreal and Oxford University. Before taking up his diplomatic career, he worked in journalism. He served as Ambassador in Peru for three years, with accreditation also to Bolivia.

Paul Gerin-Lajole, President of the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA) since November 1970. He represents Canada at the Inter-American Development Bank and the Caribbean Development Bank, as well as at other international organizations. He has had considerable experience in public affairs, both in Quebec and in Ottawa, since receiving his degrees from the University of Montreal and Oxford University. He has travelled extensively in Latin America as well as in Europe.

John W. Graham, Director of the Academic Relations Division of the Department of External Affairs. He is a graduate of Queen's University and Cambridge. His postings in Latin America have been Santo Domingo and Havana. The purpose of the Academic Relations Division is to increase understanding and cooperation with the academic community and to encourage the participation of scholars in the analysis and long-term formulation of Canadian foreign policy.

Michael R. Lubbock, Executive Director of the Canadian Association for Latin America (CALA) since its formation in 1969. He received his M.A. from Trinity College, Oxford, in 1926. He has been actively involved in Latin America since assuming the position of full-time Director of the Bank of London and South America (1948-57).

The Canadian Association for Latin America (CALA) is a consortium of investment firms and manufacturers based in Canada, which encourages private enterprise in Latin America. Annual conferences have increased mutual understanding among Canadian and Latin American business and manufacturing interests.

Alfred Pick, Canadian Ambassador to the Organization of American States (OAS) since 1972. He was admitted to the Quebec Bar in 1949 and entered the Department of External Affairs that same year. He has held a great many posts abroad and has been Director of the Commonwealth Division, the European Division, and the Latin American Division. He was named ambassador to Peru in 1958. He has represented Canada at the Organization of American States ever since this country assumed the status of Permanent Observer at that institution, in August 1972.

Allan B. Roger, Director of the Information Division of the Department of External Affairs. He is a graduate of the University of Toronto. In the past his Latin American postings have included Santo Domingo and Rio de Janeiro.

Pierre Tanguay, Director of Latin America in the Bilateral Branch of the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA). In addition to living and travelling extensively in Latin America, he has been engaged particularly in development sociology in Brazil. He was Director of the Centre d'Etude et d'Action Sociale in Salvador, Brazil; he also held administrative posts in the Catholic University of Recife.

Paul Gerin-Lajole will speak to students on "The development crises and the Canadian dilemma".

Beaux Arts Trio

A tour of chamber music

by Hugh Agnew

That the Beaux Arts Trio deserves every word of its extremely high reputation was proven without a doubt by the concert given by the group in Dunning Hall on Tuesday evening. Exciting, soothing, cajoling, and stirring by turns, the Trio conducted its highly appreciative audience on a delightful tour of chamber music "as it should be performed." The group displayed an incredible cohesiveness and unity, the three instruments supporting, complementing, and relieving each other without any one dominating.

The Haydn trio which opened the program immediately set the tone for the entire evening, bubbling with excitement and verve. It was obvious that Haydn enjoyed himself when he composed this work; it was also obvious that the Beaux Arts Trio enjoyed performing it.

The second work, the Ravel Trio in A minor, composed in 1914, is probably not one of his greatest works. It is, however, not without its moments, and the performance of the Trio was clear and sensitive. There were a very few times early in the work when the tuning between the harmonies in violin and cello seemed to suffer, but aside from the fear that the energetic pianist would actually fly off his bench, this was the only problem noticeable in the whole concert.

Following intermission, the Beaux Arts Trio performed Schubert's Trio in B-flat major, Op. 99, a longer and more complex work than the Haydn. Like the Haydn, however, this composition had elements of movement and drive which made for an exciting listening experience. The Trio displayed a powerful, full sound in this work, which filled the hall and drew the audience into the intimacy of a chamber performance. After the final flamboyant chords, they rose in a spontaneous standing ovation which was well-deserved in this case.

As an encore, the Trio performed one movement of a trio by Dvorak, in which the artists showed a transparency of sound which had not been called for in the other pieces. With the Dvorak, the works performed by the Trio spanned most of two centuries, and the group was definitely the master of all the idioms represented.

It is a truism that reviews of good concerts are harder to write than reviews of bad concerts. Perhaps the simplest and most satisfactory review of this one would be: "On Tuesday evening the Beaux Arts Trio performed."

The Beaux Arts Trio of New York

Why not.

If you want your motivation to infect others, then there's no reason why not. Think about us and yourself, then think about what we can accomplish together.

For more information on the diocesan or religious priesthood, contact Priests of the Sacred Heart, Delaware, Ontario, NOL 1E0.

Londry's Drugs Special Student rates

464-471 University Ave.

Delivery Available

546-3696

Open 7 am to 11 pm daily

PIZZA PIZZA PIZZA PIZZA

BROADWAY PIZZA
548-4216

ENGINEERS:

... looking for a job with a difference?

You are invited to arrange interviews on November 26th & 27th for permanent employment as Field Engineers in the petroleum exploration areas of Canada. Check with your Student Placement Centre for full details.

SCHLUMBERGER OF CANADA

OUR WITHIN-YOUR-REACH DIAMONDS ARE OUT-OF-THIS WORLD

Ready to be shipped on your finger. All in our wide selection of heavenly diamonds in glorious mountings. At down-to-earth prices. We'll show you many different shapes... many different sizes. Come choose your dazzler that puts heaven close at hand brilliantly.

KINNEAR d'ESTERRE
JEWELLERS
168 PRINCESS STREET
KINGSTON, ONTARIO

Prominent international star, Igor Oistrakh will appear at Queen's next Monday.

Division of Concerts

Virtuoso at Grant Hall

This Monday, Division of Concerts presents one of the highlights of this season with violinist Igor Oistrakh. Oistrakh is an international figure, having performed throughout the world and making many famous recordings.

Oistrakh was born in 1931 in the city of Odessa in the Ukraine. The son of the outstanding violinist, the late David Oistrakh, he began to study the violin at the age of six. However, his musical development took a very individual course. At one point, he gave up the violin, and later restarted his studies under Petr Stetsky. After graduating from the Moscow State Conservatory, he received his further training from his father.

Oistrakh is a genuine virtuoso. He has inherited from his father a high degree of artistry, the freedom of which he masters his instrument, the lightness of technique and his graceful bowing. His playing is characterized by a warm and expressive tone, a careful finishing of his phrasing, great musicality, and nobility of style. Oistrakh has been concerting with great success in cities across the world.

Monday's concert starts at 8:30 p.m. in Grant Hall.

DEPT. of ART HISTORY
AND AGNES ETHERINGTON ART CENTER
CO-SPONSOR A GUEST LECTURE BY
CHARLES HILL
Canadian Painting in the 1930's
FRIDAY, NOV. 22, 1974, 8 PM DUPUIS HALL

- GREB-KODIAK BOOTS-

Waterproof, Insulated, Plain or Steel Toe.
Sizes 4 to 13
Always Your Size in Stock at the Best Price

LARRY'S Men's Wear at 354 King St., East
Just 3 Doors from Princess St.

STUDENT HEALTH SERVICE

MEDICAL CLINIC — 547-6106 — 24 hours daily
(Answering service contacts a duty physician when the Health Service is closed.)

CLINIC HOURS — 9:00 am - 11:30 am
1:00 pm - 4:00 pm
Monday to Friday inclusive

PSYCHIATRY & COUNSELLING — By appointment
9:00 am - 5:00 pm phone 547-2889 or come to Health Service to make an appointment.

AMHERST ISLAND FARM 16" x 24"

Keirstead

Are the IN Posters beginning to bore you? Consider a reproduction Canadiana at a price you can afford.

Now available an excellent selection of high quality reproductions of works by

JAMES LORIMER KEIRSTEAD

This Kingston-based artist has achieved international recognition. Next time you are in Douglas ask for the book entitled Keirstead.

Come and explore our new fall exhibition of Keirstead originals & Reproductions.

UP & DOWN ART GALLERIES LTD.
813 PRINCESS ST.

Open only Saturday & Monday

No hope of Eden

J.G. Ballard
The Terminal Beach and The Drowned World
Penguin Books

by Tony Davis

These two reprints represent a good collection of the works of John Ballard, a British science fiction writer. One work, The Drowned World, is a complete novel, the other: The Terminal Beach, is a collection of twelve short stories Ballard writes in a very lucid style, and suspense keeps the reader moving from cover to cover.

Ballard is continually caught up in man's compulsive desire to destroy himself. And yet, when confronted by obstacles, his characters struggled on, unwilling to submit to the inevitable. The earth, or nature, serves as man's mother, but when he breaks his link with nature—frees himself from the womb—he is threatened by the hostile outside world. And once in this hostile environment, man seeks to return to the womb.

In The Drowned World, a man and a woman are pitted against a world which is slowly returning to a prehistoric past. Ballard handles this science fiction admirably. The two people are trying to survive in a land where the jungle and sea are slowly encroaching. They "find" themselves when they lose the trappings of civilization—they escape into their own pasts. "Adam and Eve had found a new Eden."

Their Eden is shattered by a gang of future pirates (the basic elements of adventure stories are always found in science fiction) who destroy the jungle paradise. But they are rescued by the authorities who have come to take them back to civilization. The man, though, escapes, and flies deeper into the jungle and water, back to the womb, "a second Adam searching for the forgotten paradise of the reborn sun."

The Terminal Beach is a superb collection of short stories which further explore Ballard's concept of man's suicidal tendencies. There is a future Oedipus, the problem of an overpopulated world. There is a Kafkaesque short, a tale of a land destroyed by atomic warfare "cosmic guilt"—man, the destroyer. In The Reptile Enclosure, man, like the lemmings, runs headlong to the sea, creating his own doom.

Far from being totally pessimistic, these works are truly enjoyable, due to Ballard's style and frequent use of imagery. His science fiction is not made up of robots, or of space travel, but of speculative fiction placed in a world we know, yet cannot change.

Many thanks to Smith-Hill bookstore, 193 Princess St., for their generous donation of this book for review.

Questionnaire

Help choose your entertainment

For next term A.M.S. Concerts has looked into as many agencies as possible in order to see what entertainers are touring. Of course in some instances our availability for the arena and Grant Hall will conflict with the planned tours. In any event, we would like feedback from the students on which entertainer or group of those listed they would pay to see. We have put the act and the corresponding probabileticket price. Please regard this price carefully. We cannot guarantee these acts but if response is good for any act we will go out of our way to get them. These performers will be coming to Canada next term.

Humble Pie ($5)—	Moe Koffman ($3-$4)—
Sirawbs ($3-$5)—	Lynard Skynard ($5)—
Todd Rundgren ($4-$6)—	John Mayall ($4)—
Santana ($5)—	Roxy Music-Little Feat ($4)—
Van Morrison ($4)—	Murray McLauchlin ($3)—
Gentle Giant ($3)—	The Guess Who ($4-$6)—
Soft Machine ($3)—	Chilliwack ($2-$3)—
John Lee Hooker ($3)—	Richie Havens ($3-$4)—
Shana-na ($4)—	Cheech & Ching ($3)—

I would like to see more emphasis placed on:

classical	_____ rock	_____ progressive rock—	_____
folk—	_____ blue grass—	_____
other	_____

Please fill this out and mail it (free by campus mail) to A.M.S. Concerts, Student Union, Queen's.

POSITION VACANCY

Applications are invited for the position of Public Relations assistant in the department of Queen's University Women's and Men's Athletics. Duties are mainly the release to the news media of athletic event results and advance information for coming events. Salary is negotiable. Interviews are by appointment with either of the undersigned in the Physical Education Centre.

Prof. Anne Turnbull
Director, Women's Athletics
Prof. J. F. Edwards
Director, Men's Athletics

Morio's Pizzorio and Spaghetti House
Pizza · Spaghetti · Lasagna · Ravioli
637 Princess Free delivery 549-4222

All Candidates Night

McNeill House Common Room

Tues. Nov. 26th at 8.00 p.m.

SHAKE HANDS WITH THE

Aldermanic Candidates
FOR
Sydenham Ward

Don't Miss!
THE KING'S SINGERS
vocal sextet
"nothing less than a band of super virtuosos!"
—San Francisco

Friday, 29 November

St. George's Cathedral
8:30 p.m.

Tickets: $4 general,

$3 discount

Box Office: 547-6194

A Division of
Concerts Event

Philosophy Department investigates Transcendental Meditation

Mr. Charles Donahue, past Harvard lecturer on T.M. and Western Philosophy
Dr. Bond and Dr. Fox - Queen's Philosophy Dept.

Dr. Kracier - Queen's Physiology Dept.

Tuesday, November 26
8.00 pm Dupuis Auditorium

277 Bath Rd.
Kingston

Tired of the routine. Take a break at McDonald's.

The Padre

by Azim Mohamed

I had the opportunity to interview Padre Lavery some time ago. I had heard a lot about him and heard him speak during trush week. During the interview we discussed many aspects of his life and work and the history of the University, since he has been here for over 27 years. I was fascinated by the broad range of activities that he follows, for he is far more involved in University and community affairs than one might expect, let alone what he does outside this field.

I told him that I had heard a lot of people talk about what he was involved in and quite bluntly asked him what his job was at Queen's. Half expecting him to grab the phone and throw it at me, I peered over my clipboard to see the Padre contemplating the question. He remarked, "The most important things I do people should know least about and there are a lot of things that people shouldn't know."

This job that he talks about is the fundamental aspects of his life at Queen's, that of individual advisor and counsellor to students. Having been here for over two and a half decades one wonders how thin his patience is wearing. Fear not, he assured me that he is trying to be as patient as ever. He believes that a person has to be heard before he is prepared to hear. Countless numbers of students come to see him with a variety of problems. He was not inclined to reveal the kind of problems, but one can imagine that the Padre bats out a lot of people from depression, related neuroses and financial and academic problems.

A quote from a speech delivered during the presentation of the Montreal Medal to Padre Lavery puts it well. "He has been doing his job best when his efforts are least apparent, such as springing a hung-over lad on a cold, grey cheerless Sunday morning, helping a distraught maiden who loved wisely, but too well, soothing and comforting a student on the verge of a break down, and bringing everything into proper perspective and focus."

"On a less dramatic plane, but nonetheless important, are the incidents such as slipping a student a few dollars to meet some crisis, perhaps an empty cupboard or a depleted gas tank, the never-ending campaign to persuade the lilies of the campus field, who tell not, that they adopt a different philosophy, or just taking him or her for the morale-building benefits of good food, good companionship and good conversation."

This brings into perspective the realm in which the Padre functions at Queen's. He has his own strategy for helping the students who come to see him, in that he tends to explore the dimensions of the problem. Confidentiality is of the utmost importance to him. He keeps no files or records of the people who visit him. He will almost invariably talk to you if he has no other firm commitments.

One of his thriving ventures is the invitation to his home to a few students every Sunday evening totalling nearly 500 students a year. I was invited to one such evening at 200 Albert St. and immediately felt completely at home. It was also then that I met Mrs. Lavery, the back up crew for the Padre's impulsive and generous invitations. It has been noted that for the university, it has been the bargain of the ages: two Laverys for the price of one. The evening usually consists of a few friendly games and ends in a light discussion over Mrs. Lavery's delicious lemon cake and tea.

Since the Padre has been at Queen's for such a long time, I asked him what changes he had seen in this span of time. Padre took the initiative and responsibility for organizing the first day care centre at Queen's, at a time when it was most needed - when war veterans flooded the University. He has seen the expansion of the university in the late forties to the fifties, when the emphasis was on providing men's residences. He recalls that when Mr. Leonard donated the land now known as Leonard Field, he wanted a compulsory Canadian Armed Forces Training course at Queen's and was even prepared to finance the building of the residence if his wish was granted. However the city block remained empty because the university would not agree to Leonard's demands and the land was used to grow flowers and vegetables by members of the faculty.

Other than increased enrolment Padre Lavery has seen increases in the field of post graduate work which have been made possible by the high number of gifts and fellowships such as those donated by Col. Sam McLaughlin. He has seen the increase in the number of women in the Engineering faculty recalling the first woman in 1949. He notes the change in student politics.

In the 60's Queen's saw a change in the AMS government in the overhaul of the constitution. According to the Padre, there has been a decline in student interest and the awareness is now directed more towards a disenchantment with individual faculties with respect to how courses are evaluated and weighed. The Padre was quick to add that this did not mean that the students are vegetating in apathy: there is a surge in civic consciousness, as displayed by the involvement in activities such as United Way. This was displayed a few years ago when students led a campaign to collect food for Biafra. The seventies have been a period of student activism which is aimed basically at bringing equity and balance between students and administration. It is the Padre's feeling that student government at Queen's is a tough job because it entails a lot of involvement. Despite this fact, he feels that student government here is doing well, especially student senators and rector.

The Padre has a philosophy about the time spent at university and its importance. "All universities offer a multiplicity of clubs and activities. These have, in varying degrees, the interest and support of students. Some make heavier demands upon your time and energy than others and some are strictly seasonal. Some widen the range of your acquaintances and some simply multiply the number of times you see and hear familiar faces and voices."

difference you begin to get something out of university. For university is not a safe place for you if your dominant desire is simply to rearrange your prejudices. You may choose your rut but you will be reminded that, pretty often, a rut is only a little longer than a grave."

Good citizen

The Padre has more than one string to his bow. Believing that a responsible citizen must work in his community, he turned to the public sector, namely education. He has been a trustee for the Board of Education for the last 22 years and is running again. His involvement in education at the community level earned him the "Lump of Learning" award which is presented by the OSSTF and is the highest award made to a non-teacher for his services to education. He is a member of the board of governors at the Kingston General Hospital and the Children's Hospital Committee. The Padre was actively involved in the collection of money for building the Children's Hospital, when he was its charter member.

Long before the existence of Liaison Officers at universities, the Padre was being invited (and still is) to speak at schools all over the country. He usually speaks about universities and its demands. He has also been invited to speak at many American universities such as Yale, Stanford and Cornell to name a few. Peeping into the Padre's life history before the war, he led an almost pioneer-like life when he was posted to the "semi-primitive hinterland" of Manitoulin Island, where on a salary of less than $1,000 and a car allowance, he made the round of 5 churches, 4 on Sunday and one during the week. Here, the Laverys had no electricity or inside plumbing. He fondly remembers that "come winter, the neighbours saw that we had half a dozen turkeys hanging in the woodshed." After this he served in the army and was then appointed to Queen's.

The Padre was instrumental in organizing a canoe-tripping program for the underprivileged children in the community. To date he has been able to collect $35,000 since its initiation. This year alone, he collected $7,000 from local people by personal solicitations.

The Padre has a remarkable gift: he never forgets a face or the name that goes with it. I asked him if he really had a formula to remember names and faces, but he calmly replied that it was a gift.

Padre Lavery comes across as a man who had dedicated himself to guiding the moral and religious orientation of the community and by setting an example with his virtues, has achieved more through this example of his own life than formal education has done.

"Take time"

Some stretch your mind and some even have results! But all take time and not withstanding the first impressions your time is limited. Take time to decide what clubs and activities attract you most and confine yourself to them. Spreading yourself all over will likely result in your first year being the last.

You will discover that university is different from high school. To the degree that you discover the significance of the

unclassifieds

More on Page 19

LOST — A sterling silver 10 bracelet engraved Susan in script. A reward is offered to the finder, as the bracelet is of great sentimental value. Call Sue, 544-6512. Thanks!

SINCE ITS BORING READING THE SAME UNCLASSIFIED 3 times in the same issue and since its even more boring typing the same ad out 3 times we have changed our policy. NO AD WILL BE RUN MORE THAN ONCE IN THE SAME ISSUE! That also includes any ad that says the same thing in a different way. (after today)

GREG, GREY and Maddy. Here's to Cardinal Puff for the first time and we're hoping he can do it twice more. Thanks for a great evening. Mary Jane, Marian and Pictor.

LAKEHAED, BEEFLASH AND NEIL. Sorry to hear that your nose rings are feeling tight. We've found the latest grappling books to reel you in with. Hope you're wide awake in the morning, those bear traps outside your door will catch you but good. Norm's lying abilities won't help you, we'll head off at the other side. Though your swimming may be last, remember, we can walk on water. The MRS always get their man. Love from the HUNTERS. PS watch for further developments.

WANTED: Free bodies to resolve forces with. Will be studying normal and attractive forces, conservation of energy and momentum in relativistic collisions, rigid body dynamics and projectile motion. Contact "Columbo".

TIERED OF THE PUB LINE UP? Clark Hall's open on Tuesday, Nov. 26th from 8:30 for the Queen's Ski Club pre-season. Smoker admission only 25c with your Ski Club card. 50c without for an evening of cut rate beer and good music.

ROOM IN HOUSE: Furnished room in house with 4 upper year girls. Close to campus and downtown. 60 dollars per month available immediately. Please call 549-1774.

EXHIBITIONISTS EXPOSE YOURSELVES!! Anyone having the urge to express themselves musically, humorously, obnoxiously, or otherwise, do it a "Stage Fright". We need figure skaters, guitarists, singers, dancers, jokers, and village idiots. Get yourself together and launch your career. Auditions 544-1623.

APRES SKI can start before the snow! Queen's Ski Club Smoker is Tuesday, Nov. 26, 8 to 11 at Clark Hall. Beer is 5 for $2. Admission 25c with your membership card and 50c if you haven't joined the largest club on campus yet.

V.H.S. SNOWDOWN, Virgo, Tiny: Yahoo it's your first. Happy Birthday Love Ayn Loosely Clark, J.B. Brucie, Helen, Turd James, Snake, Button, M.A. ME, Curry Man, Bean Bag, and Friends.

LOST: One opal ring in Phys-Ed Centre last Friday (Nov. 15th) night. It is of infinite sentimental value so please return it to the Phys-Ed desk lost and found.

WIN $50.525 or $10: Enter a film of your making in the Arts Festival '75 Film Contest. Jan. 28th Feb. 1st. Entries accepted by: Beth Brown 549-1053 or Mike MacMillan 544-7098. Max length 30 minutes.

TO K.C.K. Beauties: Make it's Tobby's in the Big Smoker or Resh's if you're a Bloody Wharfie. Fosters-worse than an ABO's armpit in Alice. Oingo and Wombal.

ANNOUNCING THE FOUNDING OF THE QUEEN'S NO MIND SOCIETY: Pres. John Corro, V.P. Dix, Sec. Pea-head. Dedicated to unclassified degeneracy. Honorary members 75 Victoria interested? Call Dix 544-5099. Church you're out.

CHANGE FOR FRIDAY'S EDITION. Instead of Saturday Bike Mike make it a Sunday Bike Mike. HAPPY BIRTHDAY STEVETTE: May we all be your trues from afar. Love Luncheffe, Lushette, Covette and Miltette.

NEED A PLACE TO LIVE? Try

Elrond College. Places still available. Phone Susan 544-1842. WANT TO TRADE OR SEEL one Dramatic D-2 full Scientific Calculator for one equipped with percentage function only.

HOUSE OR APARTMENT NEEDED. 4 bedrooms and relatively close to campus for the '75-'76 season. Please call Sue 544-8077, Barb 544-8787 or Shawn 544-8047.

LOST GLASSES: 1 pr. gold wire frame glasses in blue and red case lost Monday in Dunning or Macintosh. Please call Sue: 544-2219.

FOR SALE: Leather Applied Science Jacket. Size 42. $45.00 or best offer. Phone 544-0550.

OUTING CLUB SPORTS LOTTERY. This is your last week to buy tickets for the draw on Nov. 28th. Tickets are only 25c each and you can win a $100 cash voucher good at Hugh Findlay's Sport Store.

FOR SALE: One Queen's Ring (man's) size 8 1/2 sterling silver. WANTED: Girl to share a 2 bedroom apartment after Christmas One mile from campus. Phone Sandy 542-6535 after 7 pm.

FOUND: One gold chain and medallion in Men's Locker Room in Phys. Ed. Centre on Friday Nov. 14th. Call Tim at 549-2517.

OO YOU WANT TO LIVE ON CAMPUS NEXT TERM? We will trade two positions (one single and part of double) in Brockington House for Two bedroom apartment, preferably furnished. Call Barry 544-7436 or Richard 544-7414.

HAVE SMALL FEMALE CAT, while in colour and friendly in disposition. Needs good home (room-mate hates cats) Call 544-6671.

MESSRS. BONNELL AND COLLINS wish to announce the formation of the B.U.V.G.'S DETAILS TO FOLLOW.

KEITH NORTON (Queen's Law '69) a member of Queen's Legal Aid and the Queen's Kingston Liaison Committee is seeking re-election in the predominantly student ward of Sydenham. He needs our support. Vote to re-elect Keith Norton Alderman in Sydenham ward.

CREATIVE POETS! Participate in the poetry readings during Arts Festival '75. Jan. 28th to Feb. 1st. Contact Sharon and Jim Smith 544-4974.

DRAMA BUFFS! Participate in street theatre, playlets, drama workshops during the Arts Festival '75. January 28th to February 1st. Contact Margi Muir at 544-7042.

INTERESTED IN THE MUSIC OF the '30's and '40's in the big band sound for your dance? If so contact WH Babe (542-1920) or DG Hallam (542-9740) for bookings. Also more modern stylings, Latin, etc. available.

MAKE SCIENCE '44 your castle. We have a vacant double for males and/or females. This vacant empire is at 15 Sydenham. Call Al Evans 542-1009.

BALLROOM OANCE club Dance every Sat. 8:30 Dance studio membership ($5) available at door, only qualification necessary at least some beginners instruction. 542-3995.

HOUSE OR APARTMENT NEEDED. 4 bedrooms and relatively close to campus for the '75-'76 season. Please call Sue 544-8077, Barb 544-8787 or Shawn 544-8047. Thanks.

SKIERS! You could have the use of a ski chalet in the Laurentians for the entire winter season for only $50. For more info call Graham Mullington at 544-0949 or 547-5748.

TYPISTS AND WRITERS: We have over 20 members, all ages, all Depts. Your affiliation with the group is kept strictly confidential with no chance of exposure. Come and meet us at the next private party or press note. Call 547-5540 or write Queen's Journal c/o Sarah E.

NOVEMBER BLAHS? A perennial problem. Well, we understand you've finished midterms, but Xmas exams seem too far away to start studying for. And it looks like it's going to rain (what a surprise) NEVER FEAR! Because the Aesculapian (ie Meds) and Commerce (ie Meds) Societies are jointly sponsoring SMOKER DANCE for the WHOLE UNIVERSITY. See that great band "Cravings", and drink the cold beer at 5 for 32. I My God! That's even cheaper than the pub!!! Admission is the paltry sum of $1.25 with any year card. This extravaganza takes place Sat Nov 23, 8:30pm. 1am 17) in spacious Grand Hall. And everyone had better be there or we might think you were studying or something.

Christmas Shopping?
why not give your favorite people a bit of yourself in a colour portrait from us?
Call Today.

18 market street, kingston, ontario, k7l1w8
THE MARKET STUDIO
bill milliken photographer telephone 542 5790 area code 613

unclassifieds

More on Page 20

TRAIL RIDING with the Queen's Riding Club will be discontinued this term due to poor trail conditions.

SINGLE ROOM available in Elfrond College, 12 man house, $50.00 down payment paid for you. Contact Linda 544-6567.

FOUR BEDROOM house wanted for next year for a 3rd year to be for not to be... female students. One Arts, one Commerce, one Rehab, one Science. a cause for any faculty to aid. If you can help please phone 544-8351 or 2 or 3 or 4. Thanks

HAPPY 21st BIRTHDAY Stevie! If you survive this one, you deserve many more. Surf's up on eighty-thirty sharp in the pub on Monday. Be there!

IF ANYONE KNOWS the whereabouts of AEK and LH, you are requested to attend a Bash and a Half BYOB (HINT: They might be found at 218 Union).

ATTENTION all rich and famous people: LH and AEK present a bash and a half on Saturday night. BYOB.

BASH AND A HALF: at 218 Union Saturday night, home of LH and AEK. Peter's dumb when he wakes up, so this was written by news.

ANYONE INTERESTED in living in a single room in Brockington please phone 544-7228. URGENT.

10 per BEDROOM reward for your four or five bedroom house for the 1975-76 year. If you have a place, call us at 549-1935 or 548-7355.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY 'T. Tough luck Rich, we called your parents and found out about your birthday. It's bubbling time. Watch out for Liz, but way to go Star!

WOULD THE GIRL who phoned on Monday night about seeing a small German shepherd please phone 544-6497.

THE CURATA: Would like to announce the opening of the Elfrond Zoo. More than a Place To Live. Wombat (warm out man because of Active Thursday) Dingo (wild Australian dog) Booboo (rare Redheaded Albanian Dwarf) African Gorilla (brought in at great expense by Klotte Enterprises) Wolverine (MS, and don't forget it). Fred (Big Mac) Russian Spy (Transylvanian) Lupus Major (freak) Beaver (Yogi) Boarocratic Rat (Elfrond Peak) No Exhibit CKWS (Ision Cub Reporter, 1.5 pounder 15kg, 9.48 ft. sec2) Chemicus invisibilis and the stud station on loan from Chem Dept. Many thanks to JF for cage cleaning efforts. We realize the Australian exhibits are too much to handle.

HOLO IMAGE now offers a completed custom photofinishing service for professional and advanced amateurs. Services include 24 hour black and white processing and Ektachrome slide developing, custom colour printing and the new Cibachrome process. For more information, call us at 544-7770 or drop by our studio at 33 Brock Street.

CIRCLE K IS FIGHTING MS and we need your help! Buy our candles in the Union and use them for gifts in the holidays. Use them now; use them later, but USE them people! We can use your help in defeating the Mean Scene. Multiple Sclerosis.

THE DEPT. OF ART HISTORY and Agnes Etherington Art Gallery co-sponsor a guest lecture by Charles Hill, "Canadian Painting in the 1930's" Friday, November 22, 1974, 8pm in Dupuis Hall.

BEDROOM available immediately in house with 3 third year male students, near university and William, $75 plus utilities. 544-5861.

THE CARPENTERS INN Cottage house, featuring Andy Balarine with Christian Shuttle Sat. Nov. 23 from 8:11pm. Games Room E Wing Vic Hall. Admission $75.

COMMUNICATE EFFECTIVELY If your efforts are hindered by a language barrier, please let us help. Creative Language Communications offers translations and interpretations, tutorials, typing, other services in 39 languages. 545-3780.

IT'S ALMOST TOO LATE to give a photographic portrait for Christmas. Whether your taste runs from the traditional to the exotic, we at Photo Image can accommodate you. Call us at 544-

7770 or drop by our studio at 33 Brock Street and see the portraits we have done for others.

TRAIL RIDING with the Queen's Riding Club will be discontinued this term due to poor trail conditions.

COLOURED CANDLES! All shapes and sizes are on sale in the John Orr Room from 10:30-2:00 every day. Prices run from $3.00 to $3.75.

BEWARE ALL MALES, especially 4th Leonard... Commies and Engineers! The girls of IE are going on a manhunt Saturday night.

CIBACHROMES—Permanent, fade free colour prints from your colour slides are now available through Photo Image. Drop by our gallery at 33 Brock St. and see a display of these fine prints by photographer Ted Zuber.

MULTIPLE SCLEROSIS is a creeping deadly killer. Every candle you buy from Circle K means a large cheque we'll be able to give to M.S. The candles are colorful, scented, cheap and they make great gifts. Come take a look at them in the John Orr Room every day. We'll be selling them till Christmas.

OUTING CLUB MEMBERS—Interested in going on a one day hike on the weekend of Dec 17. Attend meeting Monday night at 7:30pm in the Mary 101.

WE'LL MAKE YOU AN OFFER YOU CAN'T REFUSE: 1 sister floor, slightly used, destructive tendencies, for sale or rent. Going cheap. Apply 4th Leonard c/o Chuck Wood 437/5.

THANKS—to the girl who found and turned in my gold Timex electric at the PHS ed centre on Monday. It is of great personal value.

SINGLE ROOM AVAILABLE IN ELFROND COLLEGE, 12 man house, $50. down payment paid for you. Contact Linda 544-6567.

DEAR ANDY, Happy 21st on the 23rd. Wish I could be here. Kid.

FOR SALE: Pair 14 inch snow tires one year old. Phone 542-4779 (after 5:45).

POSITION AVAILABLE in Co-op apartment. Downtown location approximately fifteen minutes from campus. Students only. Female preferred. Rent $40 per month, utilities included. Please call 544-7242.

WANTED: Male student to share 2 bedroom, fully furnished apartment, near campus, with 1 other student starting Jan 1st. $80. per month includes utilities. Call Bruce at 542-1382 after 6pm.

575 REWARD IF you plan on leaving your five or six man house in May or Sept. 75, please contact Bob, 544-7620 or Louis, 544-7619.

LOST: Sterling silver charm bracelet double-linked, with small hearts set into links; no charms on bracelet. If found, please call Jan: 549-2988.

ANY GIRLS HAVING A DULL TIME? Second floor Curran, West Campus is interested in exchanging their sister floor for 12 compatible, young ladies who would care to grace our halls. To apply, phone Mike 549-1372.

NEEDED IMMEDIATELY: Single room in apt. or house with other girls close to campus. If you can help please phone Pat, 542-6825.

FOR SALE: Pioneer electric head-phones original cost $125, sell for $99, or best offer. Also Sony microphones $5 each A-1 condition and records - all kinds $2. each. Phone 544-4489.

JOGGER—if there is anyone who would like to join me jogging North of Vic week nights at 9:30pm, I would greatly appreciate the company. I now jog 12 laps and hope to jog 20. I don't care if you jog only a couple of laps or if you are slower or faster than me. 544-7184.

AVOID HEADACHES! I need a one bedroom apartment or house close to campus starting May 1 (not to subtle). Take one worry off your mind. Call Jim 549-5755, between 4-7pm.

TIO, from now on 19 is your lucky number. If the machine breaks again I may just book the HIDS. Love Mash.

TICKET SELLERS—Those Outing Club Members with sports lottery tickets and money, please attend meeting on Monday night at 7:30 in Jettory 101. Bring tickets and money.

HAVE YOU ALWAYS WANTED TO MEET REAL LIVE members of Science '84 Co-op? Now is your chance to see and talk to us in the Queen's Pub: Friday Nov. 22.

SCIENCE 44 CO-OP involves more than easy living: it's living in a cooperative manner, pulling your weight and maybe more, sharing a unique living experience with other people. We have openings. Call Al Evans 542-1009.

Hoechst thinks ahead

Helping Build Canada

Products and ideas from Hoechst have touched and improved the quality of people's lives in every area around the world. In a hundred countries on six continents. As an affiliate of the worldwide Hoechst organizations Canadian Hoechst Limited has a full century of research and achievement to draw upon. In Canada Hoechst is an autonomous company employing Canadians to serve Canadian needs.

Hoechst in Canada concerns itself with supplying both the present and future needs of Canadians. The range of products and services covers the spectrum through industrial chemicals, dyestuffs, plastics, printing plates, human and veterinary medicines, pharmaceuticals, and textile fibres. Hoechst products and services, Hoechst techniques and know-how in these fields, combined with a large international fund of experience, have given the company a reputation for expertise which takes constant striving to live up to. Hoechst thinks ahead.

HOECHST

Canadian Hoechst Limited
4045 Côte Verre
Montreal 383, Quebec
40 Lesmill Road
Don Mills, Ontario

Ideas: The spark we run on

Hoechst develops a constant stream of new ideas to keep its research pointed in the right directions. Ideas about what is needed, ideas about what is wanted, ideas about what is possible, ideas about what is probable in the light of a constantly changing ever-increasing body of basic knowledge.

Imagination steers the ship

Imagination is a prime source of the new ideas Hoechst uses constantly in order to keep developing better products — more effective medicines, better chemical and industrial materials. Imagination is only half the battle, but when good ideas are properly teamed with the discipline of applied research, they constitute a formidable force in the search for improved products in every area of modern life.

From the Sports desk ...

Queen's University is hosting the fifth Waterpolo Round Robin, OUA Eastern Division. The schedule of the games is as follows:

12:30	Queen's vs RMC
1:30	Ottawa U. vs U. of T.
2:30	Ottawa U. vs U. of T.
3:30	RMC vs Ottawa
4:30	York U. vs U. of T.
5:30	Queen's vs Ottawa

OUAA WATERPOLO - LEAGUE STANDINGS

Eastern Division		GP	W	L	T	F	A	Pt
Toronto	10	9	0	1	119	64	19
Queen's	9	6	2	1	81	70	13
Ottawa	9	3	5	1	58	68	7
RMC	10	2	7	1	63	84	5
York	10	1	7	2	47	82	4

OUAA HOCKEY - LEAGUE STANDINGS (as of Nov. 16)

Western Division		GP	W	L	T	F	A	Pt
Western	2	1	0	1	9	6	3
Waterloo	1	1	0	0	6	2	2
McMaster	3	1	2	0	17	17	2
Laurier	2	0	1	1	8	10	1
Windsor	1	0	1	0	5	7	0
Guelph	1	0	1	0	3	5	0
Brack	2	0	2	0	5	16	0

Eastern Division		GP	W	L	T	F	A	Pt
Toronto	3	3	0	0	21	9	6
Ottawa	4	2	1	1	20	18	5
Laurentian	2	1	0	1	12	12	4
York	2	1	0	1	15	6	3
Queen's	1	1	0	0	12	4
RMC	2	1	1	0	9	9	2
Ryerson	3	0	3	0	5	26	0

Note: Carleton is not participating in OUA Hockey Competition. A shortage of funds forced their withdrawal from the league.

OUAA BASKETBALL - LEAGUE STANDINGS

Eastern Division		GP	W	L	F	A	Pt
Laurentian	3	3	0	0	288	213	6
Toronto	1	1	0	0	93	55	2
York	1	1	0	0	85	62	2
Queen's	2	1	1	0	132	166	2
Laurentian	1	0	1	0	103	0
Ryerson	2	0	2	0	154	168	0
RMC	2	0	2	0	114	179	0

OUAA BASKETBALL - LEAGUE SCORERS

Eastern Division		GP	FIELD	FOUL	Tp
McL Bishop, Lauren	3	20-35	6-6	46
Jeff Bennet, Laur	3	19-30	6-8	44
Mike Visser, Laur	3	14-23	12-13	40
Way Tasker, RMC	2	19-35	1-3	39
John Keek, Queen's	2	16-27	4-8	36
Mike Heale, Laur	3	13-22	8-9	34

OUAA VOLLEYBALL - LEAGUE STANDINGS

Eastern Division		MP	W	L	Tp
Laurentian	3	3	0	0
Queen's	4	3	1	0
Toronto	3	2	1	0
York	4	2	2	0
Ryerson	3	1	2	0
RMC	4	0	4	0

CANADIAN COLLEGE BOWL

The University of Toronto Blues, the undefeated winners of the Eastern Division in the O-QIFC will meet the University of Western Ontario Mustangs, the winners of the Western Division of the O-QIFC this coming Friday night (NOV 22) in the Canadian College Bowl.

Toronto advanced to the College Bowl after defeating the St. Mary's University Huskies 45-1 in the Atlantic Bowl. The Western Mustangs made it to the College Bowl game by defeating the University of Saskatchewan Huskies, 41-17 in the Central Bowl. The Mustangs have only one defeat this season, a 28-6 loss to the Toronto Blues on Oct. 26 in Toronto. It was the last scheduled game of the season for both.

The Toronto Blues defeated the Carleton University Ravens 30-0 in the Divisional Semi-Final before beating the University of Ottawa Gee-Gees 24-21 to take the Division Championship.

The Western Mustangs defeated the University of Guelph Gryphons 37-13 in the Western Divisional Semi-Final and then took the Wilfred Laurier Golden Hawks 19-8 in the Championship game.

The College Bowl will be played at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto. Game time is 8:00 pm.

Hockey Gaels choke

by Peter Watts
Journal Sports Writer

A couple of bad goals and a team letdown in the final period enabled the University of Ottawa Gaels attack with two goals; singles going to Bon Shepherd and Frank Coffey. The goals by Shepherd and Coffey were scored while Bill Van Camp was in the penalty box. Shepherds coming on a breakaway and Coffey's on a long shot from just outside the hurline. But it wasn't enough! If anything was learned on Tuesday night it was that hockey games are 60 minutes long and teams that only put out for 40 minutes are doomed to extinction. In a 15 game schedule, one cannot afford to decline offers of two points.

Let's hope that the lesson has sunk in sufficiently deep to permit the Gaels to take care of setting up some good chances, but continually being frustrated by netminder Bruce Reid.

Centre John Cerre led the Gaels attack with two goals; singles going to Bon Shepherd and Frank Coffey. The goals by Shepherd and Coffey were scored while Bill Van Camp was in the penalty box. Shepherds coming on a breakaway and Coffey's on a long shot from just outside the hurline. But it wasn't enough! If anything was learned on Tuesday night it was that hockey games are 60 minutes long and teams that only put out for 40 minutes are doomed to extinction. In a 15 game schedule, one cannot afford to decline offers of two points.

Let's hope that the lesson has sunk in sufficiently deep to permit the Gaels to take care of Windsor at the Harty Arena this evening at 8pm. Little is known about the Lancers, they lost 7-5 to McMaster last week and McMaster lost 6-3 to Toronto if that means anything. None of their players are in the top ten in the most recent scoring statistics released by the OUA office this week. Then again, none of ours are either. Look for a possible change in goal tonight as well, both coaches have sufficient confidence in backup netminder Steve Kidd to start him against the Lancers (Clyde Harris, who did not play much hockey during his year away from school last season, has gotten off to a slow start this year. A change in goal might shake up the rest of the squad).

The game will be carried on CFRC, 1490 at 8pm.

JOCK TOCK

by Nancy Henderson

Letter from the editors

Do you like sports? Do you hate sports? Do you like to write? Do you like to draw? Do you like to take photos? Do you like to see your name in print? Do you want to see sports in the Queen's Journal? Did you know there was a Women's waterpolo team?

If the answer to any of the above is "yes", come to the sports desk in the Journal office on press nights (Wednesday and Sunday) and send in any relevant material. Jock Tock, as a column, will provide you with an opportunity to sound off intelligently or humorously (both if possible). This endeavour will quickly die, however, if the response is not overwhelming. Rally to the call Queen's!

Last Tuesday night Jack Donohue, Mens and Womens national coach, spoke about fundamental coaching techniques in the Bartlett's gymnasium. The normal three minute attention span was extended for three full hours as Donohue provided, basic, precise information using colourful analogies. The talk was aided by demonstrations provided by the Queen's Women's Basketball team. Donohue emphasized the teaching of good basic skills, especially in the defensive area of the game. The role of the coach-coach player relationship and the responsibilities of these individuals were outlined. These ideas were received with great impact owing to the fact that they were supported with examples which were learned through past coaching experiences. Basically, the National Coach feels that it is the responsibility of the coach to motivate the player. It is the player's responsibility to set and strive for a goal to become a better player. Donohue feels that everyone has a pound of talent. If this same individual has one pound run it is worth $3.50. They can make it into horseshoes, which have a value of $12.00. Or they can make it into needles worth $25.00! Or they can make it into pin heads for watches worth $45.00! What one does with their pound of talent depends on their goals.

Donohue feels that basketball in Canada will succeed only when we recognize that anything a player does with the ball has some value. Therefore, encourage it and let these individuals do what they want on their own time. Use the coaching hour as an instruction period.

A hard fight to the bitter end. An Arts '76 hockey star flips in the 16th goal in a 16-0 win over Commerce.

Hockey Gals see action at Western and McMaster this weekend.

Waterpolo here Saturday

by Peter Watts
Journal Sports Writer
Queen's Golden Gaels will play host to the fifth round robin waterpolo tournament getting underway tomorrow afternoon at 12:30 in the Queen's pool. Teams from Toronto, Ottawa, and RMC, as well as Queen's, will take part in the tournament, the final one in the east division this year. The top two teams from the east will move on to Ottawa next weekend for the OUA championship.

Queen's needs only a tie in one of its three games tomorrow to qualify for the finals.

In an interview this week, coach Simon Beittler told the Journal that the University of Toronto will be the team to beat in the east division this year. The Blues have improved considerably over last year, adding George Gross and Alex Fedko to their roster. Gross, who is the leading scorer in the east division, played for several years at Yale and has proved to be a valuable addition to the Blues. The Toronto squad has nine wins and a tie in ten games. Queen's are second with six wins and a tie in nine games.

The Gaels have been plagued this year by a couple of injuries to key personnel. Goalender Dave Kay has a leg injury that has hampered his play in the last few weeks and Beittler may elect to start Mike Fox in goal this weekend. Fox, however, is the second leading scorer on the team and to put him in goal might sacrifice some offensive power. The pressure would be on leading scorer Chris Whately and newcomer Paul Noland to keep the offense alive.

Six games will be played tomorrow. Queen's will meet RMC in the opening match at 12:30. They'll meet York at 2:30 and Ottawa in the final game of the day at 5:30. A tie in any one of the games would put them into the playoffs. However, by finishing second in the east division they would have to meet McMaster in the opening round of the finals next weekend in Ottawa. McMaster, who have several players on the national team, have dominated OUA and CIAU play in the last few years and are the defending champions.

The pressure would be on leading

WIC-ly News

by Barb McDermott
Journal Sports Writer

The Synchro clinic and meet (convenors Kathy Coyle and Anne Galbraith) was held last week and the results are: 1st place, Ann Oldfield; 2nd place, Bev Watson; 3rd place, Deb Stretton.

Thanks to everyone who came out to help make this a success. Keep your eye out for the next Swim Nite held in early January.

The Skating Dance and Party (convenor Betty Dickie) was also a big success. This being the first time that the Women's Intramurals has held this event and so 53 participants is a good turnout.

Arts '78
Arts '77
Rehab
PHE
Arts '76
Arts '75
Commerce
Engineering

Grads
Nursing
Co-ed bowling is also finished and results will be in the next Friday's Journal.

Next week is the last week for WIC Intramural Activities. Also the last week of classes (YEA!).

CO-ED volleyball will be held on Thurs. nite, 7:15 to 9:15pm for the last time.

Ringette will be played in the Arena Wed. Nov. 27, 7:00 to 8:20pm. Bring your skates and join the fun! Believe it or not the WIC Tennis enthusiasts have continued the Tennis Tournament past our first snow storm. Will they still be going in December?

The Paddleball Tourney is still running strong. When was the last time you played?

Watch for WIC T-shirts coming soon.

Remember Winning is great, but WICing is fun!

editor's note: The quick brown fox jumped over the Queen's volleyball team.

Bews News

by Carl Fitzpatrick
Journal Sports Writer

This year's Flag Football championship was probably the best series seen and played in recent years. Both teams (Arts '76 and Arts '77) were very evenly matched. Both had good outside speed, good line play and excellent quarterbacking. However the 3 games played were defensive games, both squads boasting some fine ball players. Arts '76 won 13-8, 8-7, and 7-6.

Thursday night's final game was played in adverse weather conditions. The field was slippery and the final outcome of the game was not decided until the last minute of the second overtime period. After regulation time had run out, the score was tied 6-6. However, Corky McLeary was able to punt for a single point to give Arts '76 the lead. Peter McLandish intercepted the ball for Arts '76 in the last two plays of the game and so iced the victory for Arts '76. Congratulations to John "Vince" Wilson who coached the team to victory.

Wed. Nov. 13th saw Arts '77 defeat Commerce '77 5-2 in intertube waterpolo. Business Grads were able to down Meds 6-2. First year teams which default are hurting league play. It is imperative that men who have signed up show up.

Wednesday night in Volleyball P.H.E. was able to blank Mechanical 2-0; Arts '76 was eliminated from playoff hopes by Mining 2-1. Arts '77 who have been fighting all year for top spot in Bews Championship beat out Com '78 with a score of 2-1. Bus. Grads defeated Com '76 2-0.

Semi-finals are scheduled to begin Wed. Nov. 20th in Bartlett Gym at 9:00pm between P.H.E. and Bus. Grads in game 1. In game 2, Mining faces Arts '77. Best of five finals will be played at 10:00pm.

This year interfaculty Bews sports were moved from league play to tournament style. The first of three tournaments (softball, basketball and ice hockey) was played Saturday, Nov. 16. The Engineering Society became the first Champions of the new format of Bews Interfaculty Softball Tournament. The roundup of the tournament was as follows.

Game No. 1 Bus. Grads (won) — Meds (default)
Game No. 2 Law 7 — Com 0
Game No. 3 Eng (won) — Edu (default)

Game No. 4 Eng 8 — Grads 2
Game No. 5 Arts 7 — P.H.E. 0
Game No. 6 Arts 3 — Com 2
Game No. 7 Com 13 — Law 4
Semi-Final Eng 2 — Arts 1
Final Eng 2 — Com 1

Upcoming Events—Softball Playoffs start Mon. Nov. 25th
Horseshoe Finals
Tennis Singles and Doubles

Watch the Bews Bulletin Board for more details.

Queen's Basketball Gals looking for double win in league play at Ottawa U. and Carlton this weekend.

Track team - indoor '75

The 74 outdoor University track season drew to a close last month with Queen's in the runner up position. The cross country season ended with Queen's hosting the OUA event November 2nd. The Gaels finished sixth, the best finish in recent years.

The Gaels now look forward to an interesting and challenging indoor season which starts in January. These meets will see the team travelling to Cornell and Cortland in New York, Toronto and perhaps Michigan. The season for some, will end at the National Championships which will be held in Edmonton or Quebec City this March. The highlight of the season for Queen's athletes will be the indoor championships on March 2, 1975.

Those returning from last year's team are going to miss performances from some of Queen's and Canada's top track athletes. Dave Jarvis and George Neeland (both Canadian Team members) are both gone this year, as are Don Price and Rod Walter (Ontario Team members). Others like Brian Akinhead to retire early because of the 5 year eligibility rule; and still others had the misfortune(?) of having to go to work for a living.

This year's team has its work cut out for it if it wants to pick up the slack created there. However, in this year's OUA, Queen's will be fielding a young and talented team lacking the depth in track events, but exhibiting considerably more balance with a strong showing from the field.

Heading up the sprinting group are Mary Anne Drinkwater and Vic Gooding. Both are strong 100 m and 200 m runners; Gooding is the current OUA outdoors champ in both events. The return of Cal Cochrane, Stan Woodman and John Rucdan will provide the men with experience in the sprints. Rookie Betsy Carey is expected to turn out top performances as well.

Team Captain Marc McCauley is well on his way to replacing the gap left by Dave Jarvis in the 400 m hurdles. Jarvis is the Canadian co-record holder in this event.

In the middle and long distance events look for the cross country runners to fit in here. Dave Landault, Bob McCormack and rookie Mike Deguida have all run strongly for the cross country team. Support will also come from marathoner Frank Okoh and 800 m runners Scott Ogilvie and Jeff Giles. In the women's middle distance events, Jan Pipe, Sue Plummer, Patti Neelands and Lynn Andrews are steadily improving; Andrews is expected to have her best year yet, this season.

In the field events the Gael team is its strongest ever. With Drinkwater (OUAA outdoor long jump champ), Marge Bousfield in the high jump, plus Pam Scothorn in the shot; the women should do well here.

Returning Gaels for the indoor season are veteran John Ongarato and OUA outdoor champ Kevin Thomson in the shot put, Mike Forsyth in the high jump and Gary Tetlaff in the Pole vault. Joining Tetlaff is Don Kramer from the University of Alberta. Kramer was WCIAA pole vault champion and also made the Canadian indoor team last spring. In the long and triple jumps, Queens is relying on John Darlington and rookie Dave Bronson from Brantford. Bronson was injured this fall, but should turn in some lengthy performances this winter.

Backing up the team are five talented coaches lead by Rolf Lund. Coach Lund was a coach with the Canadian Team at the World Student Games in Moscow last year. He will be working primarily with the field events and sprinters.

The women's coach is Sue Bolton (who incidentally has her husband Curt helping too). She will be working with the women's sprints and middle distances. Dr. Mike Baird will work with middle distance runners and hurdlers until he leaves for Europe this December.

Walter Eddie will be coaching the talented Queen's distance runners making the transition from the outdoor 10,000m races to the indoor 1500m and 3000m races.

The managers are Louise Bathurst (women) and "Tass" Eracles (men). They are always looking for talented people to help them.

So if you are interested in track but not sure you have the talent, the best way to get involved or find out is to come to the workouts. Besides, the parties and trips are worth the effort. Workouts originate from the Phys. Ed. Centre on campus and run from 4:30 to no later than 6:00, Monday to Friday.

The Gaels first big meet is the Cornell Invitational Jan. 18 1975. For further information contact Rolf Lund, 547-3027-Room 221 Phys. Ed. Centre or Sue Bolton 547-6804-Room 102A Phys. Ed. Centre.

The College Skier

by Howie Goldford

If you're standing over a smouldering cauldron at the moment and want to make yourself a college skier, may I suggest the following ingredients...one pair of wooden boards attached to a youthful looking body, a bottle of well chilled beer, and a spirit of love for the great outdoors and the opposite sex. What you get may not shock you, but try repeating the process again and again until you end up with a whole bus load, then send them off to the nearest ski hill and take another look...instant blowout, as a bus full of hot dogs and cute little bunnies explodes into a Halloween on the hill. Clark Kent turns into Superman, the quiet, studious engineer turns into Evil Kneivel and the shy, unassuming freshette turns into a hungry, aggressive Annette Funicello. Not a place for the weak at heart or the pure of soul.

A college skier is an adolescent to the world of skiing. Sure enough of himself (herself) to challenge the most damaging of slopes, but with no respect for equipment or bodily preservation and lacking in the wisdom that comes with adult sanity. Who else could come in from a day's skiing and claim to have run over six pairs of skis, wipes out an entire ski school class on the hill and cleared a half forest of pine trees...even when sober! Obviously metal tops on skis were invented to protect the innocent from the college skier and pine trees were invented to protect the college skier from himself.

But the real show begins when the tows close and the strained egos are rolled up with the torn warm-up pants. And this is where this story ends...to be continued, hopefully, with some real, live ski adventures in the coming year. Your Ski Club invites you to join along and, express yourself!

The Ski Club, under the new directorship, will be announcing the beginning of a new season at Clark Hall on Tuesday, November 26. A new crest will be unveiled and christened to add even more significance to the event. Plans are underway for a Christmas trip to Sutton in the Townships this Christmas vacation and for a costume party and beach blanket bingo at Dry Hill (near Watertown) during the equipment of the second term, so don't throw away your Halloween garb, just add some insulation...or a bottle of liquid antifreeze.

Murphy's Sea Food
Restaurant

Lobster
Shrimp
Oysters

Clam Chowder
Fish and Chips

to Brock St.
548-7753

It's not how long you wear it.
It's how you wear it long.

Barbering & Hair Styling
Services
82 Brock Street
549-1666

Queen's University

Music Department

ORGAN RECITAL

BY BERNARD LAGACE

PROFESSOR OF ORGAN AT

MONTREAL CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

GRANT HALL 3.00 SUNDAY

24 NOV. 74

ADMISSION FREE

GSS Club
presents

WOODY ALLEN

'Take the Money and Run'

Friday, 8.00 P.M.

Ellis Hall $1.00 or

Series ticket

What's wrong with the A.M.S.?

We want to know.

Help us turn it around.

Send your ideas on the question by mail, or drop it in at the

AMS office.

C/O Education Commission

A brief look

OTTAWA — A new welfare system will be planned for Canada. The federal and provincial welfare ministers are presently evaluating three possible schemes. The most popular proposal includes a guaranteed annual income plan. The others are believed to involve a system of income supplement for the working poor plus a guarantee for those unable to work or a tax credit system for the needy.

TORONTO — The Toronto Star survey has shown that the Ontario Progressive Conservatives have lost two-thirds of popular support given to them by Metro in 1971. The Liberals are now twice as popular as the Conservatives. In the 1971 survey the Liberals had placed third.

ROME (CP-UPI) — At the World Food Conference, 130 countries have approved a resolution to build up grain stock piles against future food shortages and another to exchange crop and supply information as an early warning system against famine. The conference has agreed to increase early food-aid flows to 10 million tons. The conference calls on the UN Food and Agriculture Organization to develop a system of establishing areas where food shortages and malnutrition appear imminent and to monitor world supply and demand conditions which the governments had agreed to meet.

BELFAST — Glen Bar, representative of the Vanguard party in Northern Ireland, has stated that he has led a team of negotiators to Libya in an attempt to persuade Libya to give financial aid to the protestant movement for an independent Northern Ireland. The Libyan government has given support to Catholic Irish Republicans up to now and Bar hoped to sway the Libyan government to at least stop supplying the Catholics with arms. Bar reported that the talks went well and that "the Libyans were very interested in our proposals for an independent Northern Ireland."

ROTTERDAM, Holland (UPI) — The city budget for 1975 includes $58 for the purchase of sex magazines. "Our offices should be able to see what they are supposed to fight," a city spokesman said.

TOKYO (UPI) — President Gerald Ford will meet with the Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev in Vladivostok this weekend. Communists diplomats have stated that the Soviet Union views the summit talks as the means to determine the "future of Russo-American relations and the survival of the policy of detente." Moscow wants to be certain that Ford will follow the former President Nixon's policy of cooperation.

The meetings between Ford and the Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka have proved to be productive. The leaders have come to a mutual agreement that there is a need to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons. Ford and Tanaka have also stated that their two governments recognize "the importance of protecting non-nuclear weapon states against nuclear threats." The latter statement is assumed to have been made to appease the protests from residents about U.S. vessels containing nuclear arms staying in their port.

NAIROBI (AP) — Nearly 100 persons were killed in the first fatal crash of a Boeing 747. The airliner crashed and exploded as it was taking off. It was on route to Lohanburg, South Africa. The winds on the field made it necessary for the pilot to take the plane over Nairobi rather than out over the plain area. The plane lost power as it was getting off the ground and the tail section struck an embankment of the runway.

BIRMINGHAM, England (UPI) — A physician told a court yesterday blue films could do viewers some good. "These films can be instructional," Dr. Christine Pickard said. "Sex is an area of human experience where most people have a feeling of inadequacy even though they would never admit it to anyone." Dr. Pickard, who has written two books on birth control and sexuality, said pornographic films helped to reduce some people's sexual guilt and feelings of fear about sex.

Turner churns out new budget

OTTAWA — Finance Minister John Turner has presented his newly revised budget.

Turner has instituted several measures, such as federal income tax cuts for personal and corporate incomes, in an attempt to moderate the current wage pressure. The income tax paid will be reduced by 8 per cent with a minimum of $200 and a maximum of $750. In addition income tax was indexed in January to take inflation into account. The tax brackets were revised upwards 6.6 per cent. Consequently people will be paying much lower taxes in the coming year. Pensioners will also benefit by receiving the first $1,000 of any private income, registered retirement savings plans or deferred profit sharing plan tax free.

In an attempt to cure the slump in housing construction Turner has cut the 11 per cent and 12 per cent tax on construction materials back to 5 per cent. There will also be tax write offs for expenditures on new machinery and equipment.

However all is not rosy, the old favourites liquor and cigarettes will be taxed even more. Excise duty on liquor will be increased 24c on a 25 ounce bottle and on wine 6.5c on a 25 ounce bottle. The consumer price of cigarettes will increase 3c for a package of 20 and 4c on a package of 25. The budget also outlined tax increase on high-energy consuming automobiles, motorcycles, and private airplanes.

In the business world - a 10 per cent surtax will be placed on corporate profits. Manufacturing and processing profits and profits earned by Canadian - controlled small businesses are excluded from the surcharge. Income tax on mortgage investments and other investments will also be exempted.

The forecast for 1975 is one of gloom; slow growth rate and higher unemployment rates. Turner has predicted the rate of growth to 4.4-5 per cent. In 1973 it was 6.8 per cent. The unemployment rate is expected to fluctuate between 6 per cent and 8 per cent with only 250,000 new jobs being created.

All sales could be final...

by Jerry Malloy

At a time when governments are becoming increasingly aware of the effects of inflation and resource depletion upon political stability Canada is considering selling her CANDU reactor to South Korea and Argentina. The lesson of our similar sale of a reactor to India seems not to have been salutary. Korea and Argentina would doubtless be as capable as India in using the reactor in the development of nuclear weapons. The present harsh political oppression towards President Park's opponents is an indication of how the Sth. Korean Regime would use any opportunity of developing nuclear weapons against any perceived external threat. Argentina, in the turbulent wake of Peron's death, is another country that is unlikely to live up to the paper promises of using CANDU for only peaceful purposes.

Senior officials of the Canadian Atomic Energy Board agree that nuclear safeguards are dangerously inadequate. John McManis assistant director of AECB said recently (McManis Magazine Nov.) "Unless there is strong pressure from Canadian public opinion we're going to sell Argentina a reactor under circumstances that are completely unsafe". Perhaps, all things considered, there is a certain irony in that the West's avaricious sale of atomic reactors may become a factor in foreseeable nuclear blackmail by starving countries desperate for a better share of the World's resources.

If people wish to write personally to the Prime Minister or sign a letter protesting the proposed sale, please do so at the S.C.M. office as soon as rumour has it that an "ultimate decision is to be made soon."

Cypriot refugees

A few weeks ago, the international community was shocked and dismayed by the military attack against the small Cypriot state. Some people, however, tend now to forget that the victims of this attack exceed 5,000 dead, 15,000 wounded and thousands of tortured and humiliated. This very moment, 225,000 Cypriot civilians, who fled their homes before the invading army, face a hard long winter without (or with no acceptable) shelter. They need it desperately. They also need urgently food and medical supplies.

According to UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, $22-million must be provided before the end of this year only. Beginning next Monday, the Queen's group of the Cyprus Relief Fund of Ontario will ask students and staff to respond and show concern for 225,000 innocent war victims.

b a c k
p a g e

Queen's
Journal
Volume 102 Number 23
Tuesday, November 26, 1974

The owner of this bicycle obviously didn't take this NO PARKING sign very seriously. He or she probably thought that it referred to cars! But if it was meant for cars, then why was it on the sidewalk?

Pub may move to Wallace in 1975

by Sarah Yarnell

"Queen's won't be a dry campus," even if the House of Lords is not granted a liquor licence for 1975, promised Peter Druxerman, AMS Vice-President (Operations).

"There's a good chance" that the university will use Wallace Hall as a pub starting in the new year. Wallace already has a liquor licence and would only have to undergo minor alterations, such as the installation of pushbar emergency doors, before it could serve drinks.

The sound system, which features eight stereo speakers, will be moved out of the House of Lords and into Wallace Hall if it becomes a pub in the evenings. There will be no live entertainment in this room, however, stated Druxerman, as it is a "losing proposition." "There won't be any entertainment as long as I'm around," he asserted.

Druxerman is not sure that the House of Lords can't be altered to qualify for a permanent licence. He has drawn up five plans for fire exits in the House of Lords, which he will present to the LLBO for inspection. One of these plans calls for an escape route out a window and along the Union roof into Grad residence. Another suggests that the wall separating the Crown room (red room) from the House of Lords, be knocked down and an opening for a door be made in the wall between the Crown room and the stairwell.

Should the pub be extended to Wallace Hall, the House of Lords might be turned into a coffee house, thereby serving a very vital function on campus, said Druxerman.

Before Wallace can be used as a pub, Union policy has to be looked into. Druxerman remarked that Robert Webb, Purchasing Director for the University and the man in charge of liquor licences on campus, is following up the Wallace idea.

Since he is sure that the number of pub seats will not diminish even if the House of Lords does not receive a licence, Druxerman asserted that the staff currently working at the Pub will not have to worry about losing their jobs or having their hours reduced. There had been some concern over this by staff members when it first became apparent that the pub's capacity might be drastically cut.

Up until now the Pub has run on special occasion liquor licences, which had to be obtained every day. The LLBO recently made a ruling that all student pubs must have permanent licences and must be taken over and operated by their university administrations on January 1, 1975.

Meds students mad

Meds proposes to up enrolment

by Ian Jarvis

The financial squeeze which is confronting the university as a whole is being no less felt by the individual faculties. It is for this reason that the faculty of Medicine is proposing to increase its enrolment by five, a move which would add roughly $57,000 to the faculty coffers next year and $230,000 per year within four years.

The medical faculty presently admits 73 people per year, each of whom is worth $11,500 in terms of government B.U.'s. Need for more financing is not the only reason for the increase. Dr. Waugh, Dean of Medicine, explains that "we have a responsibility to the people of Ontario to provide more Canadian-trained doctors. The government has set a goal of 670 graduates a year by 1980 and at present the province has about 560."

The proposal has been sharply criticized, however, by the students, primarily on the basis that clinical training facilities are already being overloaded and that an increase in enrolment would only compound the problem. This is well acknowledged by Waugh who concedes that "we are critically thin in this area although we do use what clinical resources we have to a more efficient extent than other medical schools. For example we graduate 75 students while U of T graduates 230 though they have over 6,000 patients to work with."

Waugh admits that the medical school will suffer to some extent but the only alternative he sees to increased enrolment would be to cut back on staff.

This recommended increase is in fact an amendment of an earlier proposal for an increase of 10 students. It was decided, however, at a faculty committee meeting this Saturday that 10 would pose too high a risk to the quality of education and therefore the smaller figure was chosen.

Greg Thompson, Pres. of the Aesculapian Society maintained that the overburdening of clinical space is the primary worry of the students but said he was also concerned that it would have an adverse affect upon labs and seminars which rely on a small staff to student ratio for effectiveness.

Thompson says he will fight the increase in enrolment when it comes up before the Faculty Board and the University Senate.

Fare to station now stands at $2

by Ian Jarvis

A reduced taxi fare, for persons to and from the new train station, is to be implemented on a temporary basis until a permanent adjustment of the present rates can be agreed upon by the taxi companies and the Police Board whose job it is to regulate fares.

As explained by External Affairs Commissioner Al Huchin the temporary scheme allows for a fare of $2.00 for one or two people going to the station with each additional person paying $1.00. Conversely people leaving the station will only be charged $1.00 provided they all get out at the same point. If the passengers are going to different locations then each individual will pay $2.00 as they are let off.

According to the old fare scheme each person had to pay between $2.00 and $2.50 whether coming from or going to the station.

Huchin emphasized that this was only a temporary scheme and that he is "not satisfied yet by any means." He realizes the difficulty in finding a mutual destination point particularly when people are laden down with suitcases.

The temporary rates came out of a meeting of the Kingston Police Board, at which the taxi companies were to have provided reports containing their evaluation of present fares. The reports, according to Huchin who attended the meeting, were considered totally illogical by the board members and were sent to the taxi companies to be rewritten.

Tricolor squads supreme!!!

see sports pages 16-19

wat's hapnin'?

Tuesday, November 26

7:00 pm - Auditions for Medea by Euripides will be held in Convocation Hall. If prior commitments make it impossible to attend see Prof. Burkom. Rehearsals will run over part of the Christmas break, the exact dates to be worked out by mutual consent at our first meeting, which will be on Saturday, November 30 at 1:00 pm. Some short roles will not require Christmas rehearsals. Cast requirements: 6 women, 5 men, 2 supers (men). Crew requirements: ASM, lighting, costume, props, and construction personnel are needed. If you are interested see the stage manager. Dave Fanstone Scripts will be available for your perusal at the Drama Desk in the basement of Convocation Hall from 5:00 pm on Wednesday, November 20. Please be prepared to read a short (no more than 2 minutes) speech from the play. If you have a preference re role, pick one of that character's speeches. This is the second major production of the Queen's Department of Drama this year.

7:30 pm - Ukrainian Club meeting will be held in the lower meeting room of the International Centre.

7:30 pm - Department of Drama presents Chronicles XXV... The Police directed by Russ Waller in the Studio theatre room 102. Tickets are free and can be obtained at the Drama Desk (547-6291).

8:00 pm - Dunning Trust Lectures: Canada's Involvement in Latin America: The Roles of Business, Church and State will present Free Enterprise Responsibility in Latin America with Michael Lubbock, Canadian Association for Latin America.

8:00 pm - All Candidates Night at McNeil House, Common Room. Come out and meet the alderman candidates for Sydenham ward.

8:00 pm - Department of Philosophy will investigate Transcendental Meditation in a lecture featuring Mr. Charley Donahue, past Harvard lecturer on Transcendental Meditation and Philosophy. Dr. Bond, Dr. Fox from Queen's Philosophy Department will form a panel commenting on Mr. Donahue's paper.

8:15 pm - Queen's Basketball Team vs. Ottawa at Queen's.

9:00 pm - Department of Film Studies presents High School directed by Frederick Wiseman at Ellis Auditorium with $1.00 admission at the door.

Wednesday, November 27

9 - 11 am - Every Wednesday the Rev. Erie Howes, Anglican Chaplain on Campus will be present for conversation and counselling at the Ray House 51 Queen's Crescent, the student affairs centre.

11 am - 2 pm - Every Wednesday the Rev. Bill Dykstra, Christian Reformed Chaplain on campus will be present (as above).

2 - 4 pm - Every Wednesday the Rev. Ed Shea Roman Catholic Chaplain on campus will be present (as above).

6:30 - 8:30 pm - Every Wednesday Mr. Ken Gies Lutheran Chaplain on campus will be present (as above).

6:30 - 10:30 pm - Recreational Badminton every Wednesday and Thursday at West Campus (McArthur).

7:30 pm - Department of Drama presents Chronicles XXV... The Police. See Tuesday for details.

7:30 pm - Queen's Debating Union will hold its weekly general meeting in the upper lounge of the International Centre. Tonight's topic: Be it resolved that revolution is the only effective means of political change.

7:30 pm - McLaren Film Festival: Ten short films by the distinguished Canadian film-maker will be shown at the Lower Lounge of the International Centre. There is no admission charge and everyone is welcome. Voluntary contributions to the Cyprus Relief Fund of Ontario will be accepted.

7:30 pm - P.C. Club general meeting will be held in the third floor common room of the Student's Union, with Syl Apps MPP as guest speaker. All welcome.

8:00 pm - Der Freischütz, a filmed version, in colour, of the opera by Carl Maria von Weber, sung in German with Leopold Ludwig conducting and starring by Arlene Saunders, Ernest Kozub, Gottlob Frick and Edith Mathis. The film will be shown in room 128 Jeffery Hall and there is no admission.

8:30 pm - Toronto Workshop Productions presents Ten Lost Years. The Dirty 30's, the Depression in Canada, can now be re-experienced in a theatrical adaptation of Barry Broadfoot's best selling book, Ten Lost Years. For additional information call the Division of Concerts Box Office Agnes Etherington Art Centre 547-6194. The performance will be held in the Grand Theatre.

8:30 pm - The Development Crisis and the Canadian Dilemma by Paul Gerin-Lajoie, Canadian International Development Agency. In Dunning Hall and admission is free.

8:30 pm - McArthur Dramatic Arts presents The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man in the Moon Marigolds by Paul Zindel with Lorna Wilson directed by Larry O'Farrell. At McArthur Theatre Sir John A. MacDonald Blvd and Union Street. Tickets are available at Agnes Etherington Art Centre and the show will be on November 29 and November 30.

8:30 pm - Classics Department will present a lecture by Dr. M. Reesor on the Orestes of Euripides in Watson 517.

Thursday, November 28

12:30 pm - Agnes Etherington Art Centre - Brown Bag Lunch with Katharine Jordan, Assistant Curator Art Gallery of Ontario, with the exhibition French Nineteenth Century Printmakers, which she organized. Bring your lunch; coffee will be provided. There will also be a lecture in Stirling Hall D at 8:00 pm.

7 & 9:30 pm - Dunning Hall Movies - Play it Again Sam by Woody Allen featuring Bogle. Admission $1.00.

7:30 pm - Stirling Hall A - Bethune, a film biography of Dr. Norman Bethune, Canadian hero of the Chinese Revolution. Admission Free.

7:30 & 9:00 pm - Convocation Hall - Department of Drama presents Chronicles XXV... The Police.

8:00 pm - Dunning Hall - Lecture on "The Development Crisis and the Canadian Dilemma" - Paul Gerin - Lajoie, Canadian International Development Agency.

8:00 pm - Spanish Club film and BYOB Party. All welcome, and the place is Madrid!

7:30 - 9:30 pm - Nursing Science Cider Social, Conference Room A, Vic Hall. For all years Nursing Science.

Pubs and Theatres

Townhouse - The Graduates
101 Inn - Bond
Frontenac - Finnegan's - Liam McGuire
Frontenac - Muldoon's - Alan Rody
Commodore - Lyle
Capitol 1 - Cabaret
Capitol 2 - Herrod Summer
Odeon - Airport 75
Hyland - Harry and Tonto

Upcoming Events

Friday, November 29 - 7:30 and 9:00 pm - The Department of Drama presents Chronicles XXV... The Police directed by Russ Waller in the Studio Theatre Room 102. Tickets are free and can be obtained at the drama desk (547-6291).

Friday, November 29 - 8:30 pm - St. George's Cathedral - The King's Singers - all former choral scholars of King's College, Cambridge. Tickets available at Agnes Etherington Division of Concerts Box Office. General audience $3.00; students, senior citizens: $2.00.

The Department of Film Studies presents - A Bogart Film Festival in Ellis Hall, November 29 and 30: Friday, November 29 - 8:00 pm - High Sierra (1941, Raoul Walsh) Admission $1.00.

Saturday, November 30 - 3:00 pm - Maltese Falcon (1941, John Huston) Admission $1.00.

Saturday, November 30 - 8:00 pm - Key Largo (1948, John Huston) Admission $1.00.

VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S
VAN'S GIFTS and BOOKS LTD.
282 Princess St.
KINGSTON 542-6676

Huge selection of Adult Pocket Books Magazines - cards - films - credit cards Boxed jokes and gifts for Broad-minded souls. You name the type of party, Van's supplies from "tea" party to a bash! Plus a lot of genuine Christmas specials.

STORE HOURS OPEN Mon.-Fri. 9:30 a.m. - 10 pm Saturday 9:30 a.m. - 9 pm Sunday 12:00 noon - 9 pm

SKI SADDLEBACK MOUNTAIN, MAINE

JAN 1-5, 5 DAYS UNLIMITED USE OF LIFTS
—FREE LESSONS
—5 NIGHTS ACCOMMODATION
—TRANSPORTATION INCLUDED
—ALL FOR $86.00

Contact JIM DOWNEY (544-7703) or STEVE GAREAU (549-0797) Evenings $25.00 REQUIRED BY DEC. 2

SCM presents BETHUNE

A film biography of DR. NORMAN BETHUNE

Thursday, 28 Nov. 1974

7.30 p.m.
Stirling Hall, Theatre 'A'

Saturday, November 30 - 8:00 pm - The India Association is showing an Indian movie, Mera Naam Joker in Dunning Hall. Admission $2.00.

Saturday, November 30 - Bitter Grounds and AMS concerts presents "Beverly Glenn Copeland and her Percussionist Dido". Sat. N. Clark Hall. Tickets: Wed-Fri, 10:30-4:30 - John Orr Room

Saturday, November 30 - 8:30 pm - Grant Hall - Concert: Queen's Collegium Musicum, Director, W. Maust.

Sunday, December 1 - The Twenty-ninth Annual University Carol Service sponsored by the Engineering Society, takes place in Grant Hall at 8:30 pm. The ten Lessons will be read by members of the Alma Mater Society Executive. The Queen's Oral Choral Ensemble under the direction of Professor Denise Narcisse-Mair will sing four carols.

Wednesday, December 4 - 8:00 pm - For all those who enjoy singing or listening to ballads, songs and snatches from Gilbert and Sullivan, there will be a gathering in room C115 at McArthur. Everyone most welcome.

Christmas Blizzard '74 - a semi-formal for Christmas Jean-Royce Hall (West Campus) featuring Tree from Ottawa. Dancing from 8:30 to 1:00 in the residence dining hall. Tickets are $4.50 a couple and $2.50 stag. Available from floor reps and in the student street at Jean Royce Hall and also in the John Orr Room. (Date? Please notify us!)

December 25 - Christmas.

Poor turnout at Rector candidate meeting

by Paul Steep

A Meet the Candidates for Rector night was held last Thursday in the lower lounge of Victoria Hall. At most 60 students turned out to meet the candidates. This amounts to approximately .65 per cent of those eligible to vote next Tuesday. It was an apt setting for the candidates who all expressed in one form or another, a desire to inject a little controversy into campus life and to provoke the lethargic Queen's student body into displaying some interest in student affairs. This along with different formulas for dealing with student opinion whenever it might surface were the main themes of the evening.

Alex Faseruk was the first to speak. He pointed out that the Rector as a student position was still in the formative stages. This will only be the third time that a student has held the position. Faseruk felt that the new Rector will exercise a lot of influence in determining what directions the position will take in the future. The new Rector, according to Faseruk, will have to develop a balanced program of policy and idealism.

Faseruk described the Rector as a representative of all student opinion and not just those ideas he personally finds important. He pledged that as the new Rector he would be an impartial representative of all viewpoints and all faculties.

Dave Gordon saw the main work of the Rector as his position on the Board of Trustees. He said that the thirty-eight businessmen who make up the Board make the big decisions that affect the university. Gordon felt that these men have been removed from the student perspective of university too long and therefore need a strong Rector to remind them of student demands.

He stressed that universities are a main source of input into society. Therefore it is important that the universities produce motivated graduates. He hoped that he could aid in this motivation process by helping students get involved in the institution that they attend. He proposed to do this by helping to remove the red tape which separates them from the administration and also to work back again between the administration and the students.

Expanding on the Rector's role on the Board of Trustees, Jim Henderson felt that the key to an effective Rector lay in his credibility. "It doesn't matter what you've done or say you will do unless you prove to the Trustees that you know the facts," Henderson said that credibility must also be maintained with the students by keeping them informed of the Rector's position.

He did not feel that the Rector could be labelled "the voice of the students". However he hoped to keep the lines of communication open through the Journal, Golden Words, and CIRC. Henderson felt that he had the organizational ability to maintain this dialogue with the students as well as being able to do the in depth research required for sitting on the Board of Trustees.

Doug Hutchinson wanted to take issue with the Golden Words editorial which stated that a student affairs was needed for the Rector. Hutchinson said what was much more important was that the Rector make an effort to meet people on a one to one basis.

In accordance with this objective Hutchinson had put up posters with times when students could meet with him. He felt that this was far more important than any speech or press coverage explaining his views. Hutchinson also hoped that he could carry over this orientation of working on a one to one level with the Board of Trustees. According to Hutchinson this is the best way to stress the honesty and importance of student issues.

Stephen Ross felt that the Rector must have a "feel" for the students as a whole. A Rector could achieve this "feel" only if he worked outside fixed channels and acted as an ombudsman.

As Rector Ross hoped that he could act as a stimulus to make students realize that here at university they can taste all aspects of life if they will only take the time to try. He described the present attitudes of Queen's students towards university as uninvolved and stifling. Ross went on to explain that part of this stimulus might come from his celebrated "Rector Vectors", which he compared to Nader's Raiders.

Bruce Trotter opened his speech by stating that he didn't see much difference between any of the candidates. Therefore he recommended that since everyone's views on the position of Rector were so closely allied that we vote instead for "what the person is".

With this in mind Trotter gave some of his own interpretations of what the university is. He felt that Queen's has degenerated into a job training centre. A diversified education is no longer available to its students. Presently the university is fragmented into its various departments with a minimum of interaction between them. Trotter felt that all these factors were contributing to a graduate that had lost his ability to think critically.

Trotter hoped that this orientation was one that students would like to see reflected in their Rector.

A question to Trotter provoked some extensive debate on whether the new Rector would be given a mandate for his particular views if elected. Nearly all the candidates concurred that constant communication between students and Rector would be necessary and that no vote could be accepted as a mandate. If the vote on Tuesday is as light as the turnout for this meeting then the candidates position on a mandate is certainly a prudent one to say the least.

Project Green

Buttons boom; more to come

by Nancy Flood, esq.

Have you got your "Queen's Forever Green" button yet? Project Green has already sold almost 1,000 of them, the first batch of 500 having gone in less than 10 hours. A new model comes out on Monday and with a greater quantity available to sell, Project Green stations will be set up in prominent places around campus. Next week posters will be on sale to add a new dimension to the campaign. On Thursday, Project Green will be sponsoring a pub in Clark Hall for which the Engineering Society has waived the usual rental fee.

Dave Gordon, President of Project Green describes all this however as preliminary publicity. The object is to stimulate interest in the cause of campus landscaping before it is too late. It is hoped that by awakening people to the need to provide trees, the challenge will be taken up by clubs, faculties, D.S.C.s etc. who will initiate their own programs as a contribution.

With $250 in already from the sale of buttons, a $100 contribution for D Wing, Vic Hall, Two trees from Arts '45 and one from the Alumni Association, Gordon sees the project as well underway. Yet he stressed the fact that this is all a drop in the bucket. Each tree costs from $125 to $250 and the total cost of adequate campus-wide planting is reckoned to be in the neighbourhood of $300,000 to $400,000. It is up to the students, Gordon asserts, to buy buttons, participate in club, department or year efforts, and to show some interest. He sees the campaign primarily as an effort to demonstrate student concern; that this demonstration may spur those with the real money power the Alumni, the Corporate Friends of Queen's and others to add their funds to the cause. The winning of this support he sees as the ultimate goal but the path to gaining it lies in the evidence we can supply of our concern. For as Gordon suggests, "we are the ones who live here and if we aren't interested, why should we expect any one else to be?"

* Graduate Queen's (Law '69)

* Director of Queen's Legal Aid

* Has advised numerous student projects

* Chairman of Council Committee working to improve your housing—already working with Queen's on solutions to student housing crisis.

Re-elect Keith Norton "Your Alderman in Sydenham Ward"

At the
GRAND THEATRE
TEN LOST YEARS
Toronto Workshop Productions
WEDNESDAY 27 NOVEMBER
8:30 p.m.
Ticket Information
547-6194
546-1756
A Division of
Concerts Event

ALFIE SEZ:
Rogo, your Bands Manager would like to thank all you hard working members of the Queen's Bands for the fantastic season of half-time shows.
Your enthusiasm, showmanship and determination was unforgettable. It will go down in the history of the Queen's Bands as the hallmark of the 1974-75 season.
Special thanks goes out to the Bands executive who helped keep things from falling into chaos.
SEE YOU JAN. 17/75!!! RR / NKS

York students vote yes on OFS fee increase

TORONTO (CUP)— Day students at York University last week voted to accept a proposed fee increase for the Ontario Federation of Students (OFS) by a decisive margin of 314 for with 123 against.

York was the third campus this term to approve the increase which will enable OFS to hire additional researchers and fieldworkers, following similar successes at Guelph and Queen's.

Chris Harris, information officer for the OFS was delighted at the victory and disappointed at the low turnout which amounted to only 4.5 percent of York's day students. He said, "perhaps an overconfidence on the part of the students that OFS would be voted in" as a possible explanation for the low turnout.

This result means that the York Board of Governors will be asked to approve a 1.50 increase in tuition fees starting September 1975. This amount will be set aside and given directly to the OFS.

If approved, this would be a move uncharacteristic of York's Board of Governors, who until now have preferred to turn money over to federations, the Central Student Council, on the basis of an unwritten "understanding."

In response to concern

Temporary lighting now brightens up campus

by Kenneth Dewar
In response to student concern over inadequate campus lighting this fall, the Queen's Physical Plant is working to alleviate the problem.

G.R. McCall of Physical Plant reports that four new Mercury Vapour fixtures have been installed in the vicinity of John Watson Hall. Similar measures are now being taken to lighten up the campus around St. Lawrence and Rideau Halls between Queen's Cres. and Stuart St. Furthermore, the university has talked to the Kingston P.U.C. about increasing the lighting facilities along Queen's Crescent between Ban Righ and Victoria Hall.

The work done so far has incurred only minimal expense because the light fixtures had already been purchased and needed only be installed. McCall stresses that these measures are temporary, meant only to relieve the situation until plans for adequate, permanent lighting are complete.

Locals sign petition

Tennis lovers seek night play

by Dan Fruhling
Kingston tennis lovers are grateful to the university for having opened the West campus tennis courts for public use but they feel the university should finish the job and install lights for night play. The majority of serious players attend to business during the day leaving only evenings free for play; however play is impossible then since the tennis school occupies the majority of courts for most of the evening.

These poor athletes want some action and Mr. George Cristoveanu is trying to gather names for a "Let's get some lights" petition. Mr. Cristoveanu, himself an avid player, hopes that the petition can sway the administration.

In the days of wine and roses, fulfilling the request would have been child's play but due to the present tight economic situation the administration is less than ready to unload capital without careful consideration and with no guarantee of profit. Dr. F. Macintosh spoke indirectly for the administration and indicated that all isn't bleak and that the university council would listen and consider the situation.

However, if installed, the lights would be operated on a pay basis, likely a coin operated venture. The revenue would defray the electric bill as well as costs of a court supervisor.

Before giving the OK they would like to see that the people really want the lights. Dr. Macintosh thinks that the more requests and letters received, the higher the chance of victory.

Student sues over a "waste of time"

BRIDGEPORT, CONN. (CUP- ZNS)— A former student at the University of Bridgeport in Connecticut has filed suit against the university alleging that one of the courses she took was an utter waste of time.

Ilene Iannelli, now 33 and the working mother of three, states that she took an education course in which she learned nothing. She says she complained about the class when she took it, but that school officials did nothing to improve the course.

She has asked a circuit court to refund her tuition costs, plus wages she lost when she could have been working instead. Even though she got an "A" in the course, Iannelli wants a $450 refund, and vows she will take the case to a jury if necessary.

Journal needs writers

QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY
DUNNING TRUST LECTURES
NOV. 26 - 28

*****
Canada's Involvement
In Latin America
THE ROLES OF BUSINESS, CHURCH AND STATE
*****

TUESDAY, NOV. 26, DUNNING HALL 8.00 PM

"FREE ENTERPRISE RESPONSIBILITY
IN LATIN AMERICA

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 27, DUNNING HALL
8.00 PM

PANEL: INSTITUTIONAL COOPERATION BETWEEN CANADA AND LATIN AMERICA
GOVERNMENT AND CHURCH

THURSDAY, NOV 28, GRANT HALL 8.00 PM

THE DEVELOPMENT CRISIS AND CANADIAN DILEMMA

ADMISSION IS FREE TO ALL

SR-50
Slide Rule Calculator
by TEXAS INSTRUMENTS
INCORPORATED
Now available at
GRAND & TOY

This is the one you've heard about... performs logarithmic and trigonometric functions.

- Performs all classical slide rule functions — simple arithmetic, reciprocals, factorials, exponentiation, roots, trigonometric and logarithmic functions, all in free floating decimal point or in scientific notation.
- Computes and displays numbers as large as  $\pm 9.99999999 \times 10^{99}$  and as small as  $\pm 1.000000000 \times 10^{-99}$ .
- Full memory system: stores and recalls numbers.

SR-10
• Full mathematics plus square roots, squares, reciprocals, change sign, scientific notation.
• Automatic conversion to scientific notation.
• Includes rechargeable batteries, AC adapter/charger, and carrying case.

$94.95
NET

SR-11
• Full mathematics plus Pi, scientific notation, squares
• Chain or constant operation.
• Automatic conversion to scientific notation.
• Includes AC adapter/charger, rechargeable batteries, and carrying case.

$109.95
NET

Available at all

GRAND & TOY

branches in

Toronto • Brampton • Hamilton • St. Catharines • Ottawa
Kingston • Calgary • Edmonton • Vancouver

ASUS executive

Course evaluation...a big joke?

by Karen Allison

Course evaluation at Queen's has been treated by most students with amusement, if not contempt. Thus concluded Sue Harper, Ian Grant and other ASUS executive members at their meeting Wednesday.

Course seems to have been particularly justifiable this year, as the evaluation Guide came out so late that it was of little use to anyone. In the past, even when the Guide arrived on time, students and DSC's complained of insufficient and inappropriate information, and the booklet was found to be generally wanting. As well, the questionnaires provided by the ASUS proved to be irrelevant in some departments, and in others, were just not taken seriously. This created problems, both in the correlation of results, and in obtaining some kind of constructive feedback which could be presented in the Guide as useful information.

Why bother to continue with course evaluation at all then? Again, it is the method not the concept which requires improvement. Course evaluation was never intended merely to be a means of course counselling for first year students. Obviously it is needed to provide some sort of perception into course material and merit, which normally wouldn't be found in the calendar. More importantly, course evaluation is necessary as a means of providing feedback from students to professors, or, as the ASUS Course Evaluation Proposal points out "to allow students to have a voice in their education. The right and need for students to have such a voice is indisputable."

One of the major problems with course evaluation at the present, is the relatively low credibility of the DSC's, who generally do not represent the link between students and faculty that they should. This situation demands increased cooperation and support from both sides, and it is hoped by the ASUS that greater responsibility will strengthen and perhaps animate the DSC's. To this end, the ASUS executive passed the Course Evaluation Proposal which in effect, removes the onus for course evaluation from the ASUS and transfers it to the DSC's. The ASUS will continue to produce a course Guide, and to provide a voice for the DSC's at Faculty Board meetings, however it will be up to the DSC's to decide when, if and how course evaluation is to be run.

While recognizing that because of the weak structure of several DSC's, there exists the risk that in some departments course evaluation will not survive, the ASUS plans to remain in the background, supplying resources, information and support. One member of the ASUS executive felt that negligence on the part of the DSC's might prove to have positive results in stimulating students to demand course evaluation for subjects lacking it. At the same time, the DSC's could potentially be instrumental in getting professors and department heads to respond to course evaluation.

Dr. Sinclair, dean of Arts and Science, sees course evaluation as definitely worthwhile, however he recognizes lack of objectivity as a problem: is the student evaluating the course or the professor? He suggests a radical overhaul of the whole system of evaluation in such a way as to preserve the impartiality of all those collecting and correlating results for the Guide. Dr. Sinclair feels the Guide could be useful as an aid to professors in understanding how students view courses and teaching techniques. He doesn't

Res. boards may need restructuring

by Virginia Kelly

Next year may see some changes in the structure of the university residence boards, according to Brian Copeland, President of the Inter-Residence Council.

At present there are only two boards which are responsible for residences on campus. The Residence Board, which is a committee of Senate, includes the Ban Righ Board and the Men's Residence Board. The Ban Righ Board is responsible for the women's residences: Adelaide, Ban Righ, Chown and Victoria Halls, while the Men's Residence Board looks after the interests of Leonard, Gordon, Brockington and McNeill Houses.

Because of expansion and experimentation in residences within recent years, the existing structure has become inadequate and certain interests have been left out. Morris Hall, because of its status as a co-ed residence does not belong to either of the residence boards. The residences of West Campus, the John Orr Tower, Harkness Hall, and the Graduate Residence are all without residence boards.

In order to remedy this situation, Professor Dick Brown, of mechanical engineering, was appointed by the Senate Committee to investigate the structure of the Residence Board. Professor Brown has finished his investigation and made some constructive suggestions which will go to the Senate in the spring for approval. The suggestions entail three basic changes in the structure of the residence boards.

If approved the Graduate Residence and Harkness Hall will join the Ban Righ Board. The Men's Residence Board will be renamed Leonard Field Board and Morris Hall will become a member of that board. West campus and John Orr Tower residents will form their own board - The Jean Royce Board. These three boards will be responsible to the Residence Board, a committee of the Senate which is the co-ordinating and policy making body for the residences.

COMMODORE HOTEL

840 PRINCESS ST.

The Commodore Hotel at 840 Princess St. is pleased to offer all Students of Queen's, St. Lawrence and MacArthur College a preferred rate for room accommodation for their Parents or friends during the 74-75 term when they have occasion to visit Kingston.

NIGHTLY ENTERTAINMENT
in our Lounge

THIS WEEK: Lisle

Amateur Night every Wednesday

Queen's Students Welcome
In Our Lounge

Bitter Grounds
and
A.M.S. Concerts are proud to present

Beverly Glenn Copeland
With Odo her percussionist

SAT., NOV. 30,
CLARK HALL

ADMISSION $2.50

TICKETS AVAILABLE
WED., THURS., FRIDAY
JOHN ORR ROOM
10:30 - 4:30

ALDERMAN
SYDENHAM WARD

THE MAN
President and Managing Director Radio Station CKIC AM FM

- EXPERIENCE:
- Chairman Property Committee Board of Education (1972-1974)
  - Chairman Board of Education (1967-68)
  - Chairman Frontenac County Board of Education (1969-71)
  - Member Kingston General Hospital School of Nursing Committee
  - Member Board of Trustees Queen's University
  - Past President Cataraqui Golf & Country Club
  - Past Chairman Angada Children's Hospital Committee Kingston General Hospital
  - Governor, Kingston General Hospital
  - Co-chairman for Kingston in the Queen's University Capital Appeal Committee
  - Fund Raising Chairman, Kingston's Home for the Handicapped, Inc.

For information call
546-3411

ELECT FRENCH, Terry D. X

HE HAS DONE MUCH — HELP HIM DO MORE

A.M.S. PAGE

PHILOSOPHY DEPARTMENT INVESTIGATES TRANSCENDENTAL MEDITATION

Mr. Charles Donahue
- past Harvard lecturer on T.M. and Western philosophy

Dr. Bond and Dr. Fox
- Queen's Philosophy Dept.
Dr. Kracier
- Queen's Physiology Dept.

Tuesday, Nov. 26

8:00 p.m. - Dupuis Auditorium

Applications for Tricolor Awards Committee Chairman

will be accepted in the A.M.S. Office in the bosement of the Students' Union until 5:00 p.m.
Thursday, November 28.

All Candidates Night

McNeill House Common Room

Tues. Nov. 26th at 8.00 p.m.

SHAKE HANDS WITH THE

Aldermanic Candidates FOR Sydenham Ward

Bus Tickets

If you have a bus ticket from a cancelled Excursion Club bus trip, give your name and address to the secretary in the A.M.S.
Office

ESSAYS DUE?

A.M.S. Outer Council Meeting Thursday, Nov. 28

7:30 p.m. McLaughlin Room

"Come One, Come All"

A.M.S. Speakers Committee Meeting Tonight - Tuesday Nov. 26

19:00 (7:00 p.m.)

Meditation Room - 2nd Floor, Students' Union

The people who brought you Morton Shulman and Aurelio Peccei are planning for the future.
We need your help.

A.M.S. BUS SERVICE

NOW OPERATING TO TORONTO OTTAWA

Tickets on Sale in The John Orr Room

WED. 11:30 - 2:30

THURS. 11:30 - 2:30

FRI. 11:00 - 4:30

BUSES LEAVE FRIDAY AT 4:30 p.m.
FROM THE STUDENTS' UNION

TORONTO - $10 RETURN
OTTAWA - $ 8 RETURN

Project Green Smoker

"A Night of Jiving"

Thurs., Nov. 28 -

8 p.m. - 1 a.m.

Clark Hall

Beer 50¢

Remember the A.M.S. Typing Service
Bosement - Students' Union 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.

unclassifieds

More on Page 12

SKI MT. SUTTON with the Queen's Ski Club this Christmas. There are still a few tickets available. For $95, you get 4 nights accommodation, 2 meals per day, and 5 days skiing from Dec. 29-Jan. 4. $40 deposit is needed on Thursday Nov. 28 at 7pm in the John Orr Room. Phone Joanne 549-4118 for more info.

CHRIS, Get better real quick. You've got me worried.

MARIGOLDS AND GAMMA RAYS: Thursday, Friday, Saturday. McArthur Theatre 8:30. Tickets $1.50 (15). Students) McArthur and Agnes Etherington. Friday 26, 29, 30 November.

FURNISHED BEDROOM available in an apartment with two upper year girls. Close to campus and downtown. Rent $66 per month. Please phone 544-4486.

QUEEN'S IN THE COMMUNITY... a major concern of Terry French, your candidate for Alderman Sydenham Ward.

FOR SALE: 1 pair of unused Fischer Imperators. I never even put bindings on them. Retail price $270. Will consider any reasonable offer. Phone 549-3967 ask for Dave.

LOST: somewhere between Cotes Bookstore and Ban Righ I lost one black billfold with all of my ID. If found please call Lyn 544-6480.

B.U.J.G.S. Oo the world a favour.

AS THE Cockade Rises, we regretfully announce the postponement of the Pajama Party until Jan. 195. Hosted by the Clee Hunter Joynst (Joint) for a Grey Cup feast. Coke is on a hot streak and Hurty is placing his bets! Cock-a-doddle-doo!

ELAINE, CHRISTIE: The Snow Queen forecasts a blizzard next week. Sit tight until then. Put on your woolies and watch out for further clues. 'cause it takes Artscies forever.

ANYONE leaving at the end of this term and willing to part with their bachelor apartment, with kitchen and washroom, please telephone 544-7096 between 6 and 7 pm. All applications treated with the strictest confidentiality.

530 CAN BE YOURS. 2nd year male student will pay $30. for your single bedroom apartment for '75-'76. Must be close to campus. Call Hugh at 389-0869.

NEUCHÂTEL REUNION? pour ceux qui aiment manger la london. Le 30 Novembre, Samedi RSVP Dave 544-7340, Sandy 549-5846.

MULTIPLE SCLEROSIS is a creeping deadly killer. Every candle you buy from Circle K means a large cheque we'll be able to give to M.S. The candles are colorful, scented, cheap and they make great gifts. Come take a look at them in the John Orr Room every day. We'll be selling them till Christmas.

I know a girl, who's really nifty Sweet 'n charming, and oh so pretty And on this day

I'd like to say HAPPY BIRTHDAY to you, dear: BB!

IS IT ANIMAL cruelty? What is Beatrice doing to our white rabbit. Beatrice killed Peter the White Rabbit. What has that got to do with Marigolds and Gamma Rays.

TAKE A PACKET OF MAN in the Moon marigolds expose to gamma rays, add peler the white rabbit three crazy ladies and nanny the hall corpse equals McArthur Theatre production 26, 29, 30, $1.00.

DOES HOUSING CONCERN YOU: it concerns Terry French... Elect Terry French Alderman Sydenham Ward.

WANNA HAVE A GOOD TIME? Ski Saddleback Mountain, Maine. Jan. 1-5, $86, for 5 days skiing, lessons, accommodations and transportation. See block ad elsewhere in issue for more details.

THE SCIENCE FORMAL COMMITTEE is looking for a theme for next year's formal. If you have an idea which seems feasible, phone Doug at 544-5749 and let him know, or contact the Engineering Society at 547-3099.

CAMERA CLUB SLIDE Competition Entrants can pick up their slides at the Camera Club Office opposite the coffee shop entrance in the union this Wednesday, Thursday or Friday between 12:30 and 2:00.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY KITCH! BB.

DOES LIGHTING CONCERN YOU: it concerns Terry French... elect Terry French, Alderman Sydenham Ward.

GAIL GROUP 991 Remember—that's Wayne, Sue, Owen et c... REUNION WEDNESDAY Jan. 6, 1975 at 6pm in the pub. Watch for Further news. Love Carol, Rex and Eva.

WHAT ARE YOU DOING NEW YEAR'S EVE? Party 'til dawn and ski for 5 days at Saddleback Mountain, Maine for only $86. See block ad elsewhere in issue for details.

KEITH NORTON, 33, understands the problems of students and he's been working at solving them for two years. RE-ELECT A QUEENSMAN and transfer your concerns into action.

THE "ATTILA the Hun Memorial all Hot Dog Band" would like to thank Science '77 and the McNeill House Boys for their continued support at the Golden Gaels' Hockey Games. "Keep on Coming".

ZIGGA ZAGGA ZIGGA ZAGGA, OII OII OII The Artscie '78 booster buttons are on the way! Watch for them!

THANKS TO YOU, The English Smoker was a roaring success. You are the Big Five, Dave Brown, Leslie Timmins, Phil Pasco, Steve Jones, Raymond Villeneuve, Susak Campbell, Francois, the rots, students, CFRC folk, and beer drinkers who came. See you Again Next Smoker.

"J" is for journal
hustling and bustling
We work 'til
Christmas break!
If you are hired you will not get fired
Come join us
and give it a shake!

We need writers (but no poets of above quality!)

Something to "cheers" about:

Now the glorious beer of Copenhagen is brewed right here in Canada. It comes to you fresh from the brewery. So it tastes even better than ever. And Carlsberg is sold at regular prices.

So let's hear it, Carlsberg lovers. "One, two, three... Cheers!"

SUZIE Q MEETING

Wednesday, Nov. 27th
2nd Floor Common Room

ALL ORGANIZERS PLEASE ATTEND
INTERESTED PEOPLE ARE VERY WELCOME

CHUNG WAH CHOP SUEY

SPECIALIZING IN
CHINESE & CANADIAN FOOD
TAKE OUT AND DELIVERY OIAL 544-6128
217 UNIVERSITY (CORNER OF WILLIAMS)
OPEN 8 AM TO MIDNIGHT
SUNDAY 10 AM TO 8 PM

McArthur Dramatic Arts presents

Lorna Wilson
THE EFFECT OF GAMMA RAYS
ON MAN IN THE MOON
in

MARIGOLDS
PAUL ZINDEL
NOV. 28,
29, 30

Production directed by Larry O'Farrell; November 28, 29, 30, 8:30 p.m.; McArthur Theatre, Queen's West Campus; Tickets
$1.50 ($1.00 students). Available at Division of Concerts Box Office, Agnes Etherington Art Centre.

WUSC

(World University Service of Canada)

SUMMER SEMINAR '75

two month travel-study for Canadian university students in a developing country.
this summer (1975) in EGYPT.

Call the International Centre for more information and applications

547-2807

ENGINEERS:

... looking
for a job with a difference?

You are invited to arrange interviews on November 26th & 27th for permanent employment as Field Engineers in the petroleum exploration areas of Canada. Check with your Student Placement Centre for full details.

SCHLUMBERGER OF CANADA

• letters • letters

Journal causes disillusionment

Dear Editor,

I am becoming more and more disillusioned with the ability of the editor of the Journal to communicate a logical and literate argument on any subject. The "Rector" editorial (Journal, vol.
102, no. 22) is no exception, and, indeed, is the immediate cause of this polemic.

To be specific, what prevents our viewing the Rector, who is a person, not a "position", as the holder of what is actually, not "potentially" one of the most important positions on campus? And how does one utilize anything "to its extent", or its full extent? meant, and, if so, what is its full extent?
Examples of this nature are without limit. But what of the corpus of the editorial?

The editor makes the valid observation that the Rectorship, like so many University political posts,
"has grown to be an obscure, almost elitist campus concern". As we saw just recently, election tends to mean reshuffling. I agree, this is not a desirable situation. And the only way to avoid its perpetuation is to encourage students to use initiative, and to reject the self-regenerative Queen's political clique, the "if we like you you can join us" set.

But is this the advice the editor gives us? No, of course not. We are advised to "consider the candidates in the light of their experience", and, furthermore, intra-University experience only is emphasised. In other words, true to form, the Journal (insofar as the editor expresses its opinion) diagnoses the malady, but fails utterly to apply the cure.

Yours etc.,
Jamie Scott

A fun campaign?

Dear Editor,

I was interested to note, this Thursday past, the appearance on University Avenue of a banner announcing Mr. Gordon's candidacy for the position of Rector.

On the strength of this precedent-setting move perhaps we may look forward in the future to the heartening sight of similar banners declaring the candidates for the Principalship.

An even more imaginative campaign manager might arrange an introductory give-away offer to announce a prospective Chancellor.

The transformation from an air of responsible choice to an air of a carnival side-show which has occurred in this campaign has certainly been exciting, even if we had to sacrifice the dignity of the office of the Rector to the fun.

Sincerely,
Craig Brown

Kimosabi unmasked

Dear Editor,

Although it was nice to see a picture of myself (Steve of comedy team 'Steve and the Impotents' - sorry the impotents couldn't come for the picture), in last week's Journal, people still don't know what Kimosabi is or why it was held.

For the record, Kimosabi Coffee House, held in Morris Hall, Thursday, November 14, was an evening of fine entertainment provided by folk-singers: Chris George, Jim Gillis, Pat Jackman and a 15 minute stand-up comedy act put in for comic relief. We feel people are really ready to laugh after some times heavy folk.

It was held mainly for the fun of it (everyone was asking why it was being put on, as if somebody has to die or be inaugurated for something to happen in residence) and is unique for its entertainment and low price.

There will be more of them held next term and we'd like to see a larger response in the ways of auditions and especially it would be nice if a few more people came. About five friends came with each performer (plus 60 odd from around Morris) and either we get more people or we get folk-singers with more friends.

Everyone was quite pleased with the way it turned out. We only lost $18.67 but we hope to lose more in the future.

Thank you,
Steve Fromstein

Who serves the student's interests?

Dear Editor,

Being a totally ineffective member of Outer Council according to Doug Bonnell, I would like to take a look at how he came to this conclusion.

Mr. Bonnell supported his claim by saying that my "attack on Honoraria was totally arbitrary." Of all the statements he made regarding my role on Outer Council this is the one that incenses me most.

When I was elected to the Outer Council early this year, I told my constituents that I would do my best to represent their interests. When the question of increased Honoraria arose, it was my opinion that it was not in their best interest for me to support the proposal. The former scale of Honoraria gave what I felt was ample remunerations and an increase in these circumstances would, in my mind, be irresponsible.

The Honoraria petition held the signatures of over 400 students who were of a like mind, and chose this means of expressing their dissatisfaction with the representation they had on the Outer Council.
This is one compelling reason for my opposing the increase. Is it arbitrary? Does Doug Bonnell feel that the student's interests are of such little importance that a member of Outer Council, who acts in response to these interests, is acting arbitrarily?

If Mr. Bonnell intends to compile a list of ineffective Outer Council members in the future, he should point to the student members who do not question, who do not participate, and who do not represent their constituents.

Bart Bull
rd. note: Mr. Bonnell will be compiling a list of ineffective Council members in the future with statistics not only on participation, but attitudes and issue orientation, in order for the student body to objectively discern the quality of their representation.

Deletion rectorified

Dear Editor,

The deletion of a paragraph, describing my efforts to establish CFRC as a full-time radio station, from my Rector article, was grossly unfair.
This was done with no forewarning whatsoever.
Had I been informed that the article was too long, I could have reduced its length, yet have included all the basic ideas. The editor-in-chief approved the article when I gave it to her. Why did she later change her mind?

Stephen Ross.

ed. note: I apologize for the error and have included the deletion.

"Full-time CFRC
I've spoken with Steve Cutway (CFRA) and Bernard Trotter (Academic Planning). It is possible to have CFRC operating full-time next fall - on FM stereo, with CBC-Z affiliation. I believe this is feasible, and will work to see its implementation."

Another man's politics

a whimsical satire

by John Bottomley

Perhaps one of the most useless inventions ever dreamed up is the perfidious umbrella.
Everybody knows that it is unseless. In a wind it only serves to push its owner into puddles, and turn inside out, at which point it is discarded, amid much swearing.
It certainly doesn't keep you dry. A plastic bag tied over your head would do better, especially here at Queen's. Besides, an umbrella could get stuck in someone's eye.

And anyway, what harm is there in getting wet? You're uncomfortable? When you were small, before you got civilized, that never used to bother you.

Maybe the process of civilization is at fault. But I doubt it. It has been here too long, and therefore it must be alright. "It has stood the test of time", and heaped many benefits on our undeserving heads.

Like the Spanish Inquisition and syphilis.

But I stray. This was to be an essay on the relative merits of an umbrella and a plastic bag.

Umbrellas are hard to manage, especially if one wants to carry books and hold hands while using it. A Plastic bag has no such drawbacks.

Umbrellas are hard to store, especially in a crowded classroom. A plastic bag could be easily stuffed in a pocket or a mouth.

Umbrellas cost approximately 500 times what a plastic bag does; money which could be better and more wisely spent on beer.

In addition, a Queen's student could see through a plastic bag, which is a great improvement over the present situation.

With these considerations in mind, it is my humble advice that: when it next rains probably today or this weekend, those Queen's students now using umbrellas instead tie a plastic bag tightly around their heads. The general benefit achieved would be immeasurable.

Winnipeg gays attacked at U of Manitoba centre

WINNIPEG (CUP)—Gay Pride
Week ended in violence last Saturday (Nov. 16) when organizers of the evening social were attacked outside the University of Manitoba University Centre.

The organizers were leaving the building after the social when they were assaulted by eight to 10 men. Two University of Manitoba
Students' Union night managers heard the ruckus and tried to intervene but were unsuccessful in stopping the fight.

After several minutes of fighting the night managers and a student union official, Bob Raterson, who had walked into the fray, locked the attackers out of the building and they dispersed.

Fort Garry police arrived on the scene minutes later and after apologizing for their lateness said the matter was really a university one and security should be enforced by the campus police.

The organizers of the social,
Gays for Equality, are now seeking the identity of the attackers and intend to press charges if their names can be found.

Scientist advises eating brown, not white bread

LONDON (CUP-ENS)—A prominent scientist with the Medical Research Council in London has published a study suggesting that white bread may be one of the leading causes of non-infective disease in the world.

Dr. Denis Burkitt, writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association, says that the western habit of eating lots of refined carbohydrates, particularly white bread, is a major cause of heart disease, intestinal malfunctions, and cancer of the colon.

Dr. Burkitt compared diseases characteristic of the affluent western nations with diseases common in underdeveloped African nations and found that the differences are mostly explained by diets.

The under-developed world eats more cereal fiber than the affluent world. The fiber, he contends, is extremely important to the bacteriological and chemical processes in the intestine.

The solution for the eastern world, says Dr. Burkitt, is to switch from white bread to the real thing—whole wheat.

Don't Miss!

THE KING'S SINGERS

-vocal sextet
"nothing less than a band of super virtuosos" - San Francisco

Friday 29 November

St. George's Cathedral 8:30 p.m.
Tickets: $4 general, $3 discount
Box Office: 547-6194
A Division of
Concerts Event

ABRAMSKY'S MEN'S WEAR

Has Winter outerwear to keep you warm.

259 Princess Street.

STUDENT HEALTH SERVICE

MEDICAL CLINIC — 547-6106 24 hours daily
(Answering service contacts a duty physician when the Health Service is closed.)

CLINIC HOURS — 9:00 am - 11:30 am
1:00 pm - 4:00 pm
Monday to Friday inclusive

PSYCHIATRY & COUNSELLING — By appointment
9:00 am - 5:00 pm phone 547-2889 or come to Health Service to make an appointment.

THE OLD WAY IS STILL THE BEST

For years, the traditional way to seal your engagement was with a diamond ring...
a tradition that is more relevant today than ever before. We'll help you seal your troth with a dazzler that suits your budget. A brilliant promise of tomorrow

KINNEAR D'ESTERRE

JEWELLERS

168 PRINCESS STREET

KINGSTON, ONTARIO

Queens Journal

Vol. 102, No. 22
Tues., Nov. 26, 1974
Queen's University
at Kingston, Ont.

Comment: How the hell do they expect to put out a paper when they don't show up until 8:00. And then they wonder when they take until 3:30 in the morning to get it out. I am not staying until then, so if they want any pictures then, that's tough. I can't believe they run a paper like that. John Bottomley wrote this and is not ashamed to let it be known that this is his opinion, as well as that of many others.

Additional Comment: What is a special consultant and who the hell is John Bottomley?

P.S. John is running for Rector! (Bottomley's reply: I wanna be one with hemorrhoids)

Founded in 1873 and published on Tuesdays and Fridays during the academic year by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University, Incorporated, Kingston, Ontario. Founding member of Canadian University Press. Editorial opinions expressed are those of the editor and not necessarily those of the AMS nor the University. Telephone (413)
547-2606. Printed by gnomes at the St. Lawrence Printing Co. Ltd., Prescott, Ontario. Lithographed in USA on Canadian newsprint.

They saw the Sasquatch and lived to tell all

by Paul Mitchell

A warm October day in 1967 found two men, Roger Patterson and Bob Gimlin, riding along the dusty creek bed of Bluff Creek, in Northern California, searching for what they thought might be a Sasquatch, judging by the 18½ inch footprints left all over the soft sand of the creek.

The Sasquatch was to get the biggest boost to its claim of reality yet by these two men. They would be the first to ever capture the creature live on film.

They were enjoying their ride when Patterson's horse spooked, throwing him to the ground. Then casually strolling out of the bush, came an eight foot 400 pound, hairy, creature.

Patterson grabbed a small, 16 millimetre movie camera and on 25 feet of breathtaking film, caught the creature. It strolled past the men, turned and looked at them once, then disappeared into the bush.

"We just happened to see it coming out of the bush about 90 feet from us walking past us as if we were part of the scenery. It was big, eight feet or so high and weighing about 400 pounds. It ambled along at a slow pace and had reddish brown hair covering most of its body except for its large swinging breasts and face. It was obviously a female and as it walked along it took one good long look at us then disappeared into the bush," said Gimlin, an Oregon rancher.

The men steadied themselves after their experience, walked over to look at the creature's footprints and relieved Patterson's horse.

"By that time it had gotten away from us. We didn't chase it immediately because Roger didn't want to be left alone without his horse and by the time we started to trail it, it had gone," said Gimlin.

While Patterson was filming the creature from a distance of about 90 feet, Gimlin got close, so close he says he could see its eyes.

Most of the footage is jerky and out of focus except for 30 seconds of film which show the Sasquatch in full view.

Gimlin and Patterson made a set of plaster casts of the footprints the Sasquatch had made. Fully 18½ inches long and eight inches wide with five toes, the footprints are big and bulbous, much the same as a normal homo sapien foot except for the fallen arches.

The two men had been in the Bluff Creek area for close to 10 days after loggers had reported the presence of hundreds of Big-Foot (the American name given to the Sasquatch) tracks. It was on the tenth day they shot the film.

The film, however, did not make instant converts of the world's scientists or laymen. Instead, it brewed up more controversy than any of the other previous sightings and footprints.

The creature in the film is not a modern phenomenon brought out by men with nothing better to talk about. It is part of a larger story as old as the Indian settlers of the region which stretches from Alaska to Mexico between the Rocky Mountains and the coast.

Together with the Indians roam a dedicated bunch of Sasquatch hunters. Some like Gimlin are weekend hunters. Others like Swiss born Rene Dahinden have made the sighting and proof of the Sasquatch's existence a life long ambition.

Dahinden has never seen a Sasquatch but has spent most of his life recording tales of the creature, hecking on reported sightings and making plaster casts.

He has pestered scientists around the world with his files and the Patterson film, trying to get them to at least analyze the film but has been constantly rebuffed, the attitudes of the scientists being "It cannot exist so therefore it doesn't".

Indians say the Sasquatch lives in the woods and mountains, far from civilization. They describe the creature as being big and hairy with deep set eyes and attribute them with stories of cannibalism and kidnapping.

The Indians gave the creature its name: Sasquatch, a distillation of Squawiam, Sashkewis, Seashik Wauk Wauk, all meaning "hairy mountain men".

Early explorers to the coast of British Columbia mention the creature in their journals. David Thompson crossing the Rockies in 1811 notes in the publication of his "Narrative" finding strange tracks in the winter snow.

"January 7: Continuing our journey in the afternoon we came upon the tracks of a large animal, the snow was about six inches deep on the ice. I measured it, four large toes each of four inches in length to each short claw. The ball of the foot sank three inches lower than the toes, the hinder part of the foot did not mark well. It was fourteen inches in length and eight in breadth, walking from North to South and having passed about six hours. We were in no humour to follow him: the men and the Indians would have it to be a young Mammoth and I held it to be the track of a large old grizzly bear; yet the shortness of the nails, the ball of the foot and its great size was not that of a bear, his claws worn away; but this the Indians would not allow."

One report, in the Victoria Colonist of July 4, 1884, reports on the only capture of a Sasquatch. The report tells of a train crew which captured a half-man, half-beast creature that was something like a gorilla standing four feet seven inches high and weighing 127 pounds. It had long black straight hair and resembled a human being except that its entire body was covered in inch long glossy hair.

The newspaper account said the creature had arms longer than a man's and possessed enormous strength. The creature was kept by the train crew and later shipped East where it was to go on display, only it died in transit.

All subsequent records of the captured creature, nicknamed Jocko, have disappeared.

One of the more recent sightings of a Sasquatch occurred on July 23, 1969, in Gray's Harbor County in Washington State.

Verlin Herrington, a deputy sheriff, was driving home from work about 2:35 in the morning when:

"As I came around a slight curve I spotted a large hairy creature standing in the middle of the road. I thought at first it was a bear looking for its cubs. As I drew nearer - my lights must have been blinding - I realized it wasn't going to move. I put on my brakes and came to a halt, then coasted up to about 85 to 90 feet from her. The thing was standing in a kind of stooped position, startled, watching my vehicle as I came to a complete stop, got my flashlight out and turned it on the animal, at which point it walked to the side of the road, still in a stooped position and stood there for a minute.

Takes one to know one

I noticed that its eyes had glowed yellow in the spotlight. I rolled my car window down, drew my pistol and got out of the vehicle. I realized it was something other than a bear and I decided I would shoot it and then have a trail to follow. I hoped to get in one shot, maybe in the leg, then get out of there and come back in the morning to track it. But as I cocked my pistol it went out of the spotlight and into the woods. I got into my car and left."

The deputy sheriff explains the physical characteristics of the animal in greater detail.

"I would estimate its height at seven to eight feet and its weight at something over three hundred pounds. It had hair all over it of a dark brown colour, but the hair on its head was longer than that on the rest of its body - between five and seven inches long. The first thing that startled me was it had breasts on it like those of a woman. They had hair on them also, except for the nipples which were black like the thing's face. While it was standing I could see the back of one hand and the palm of another and I could distinguish fingers. It had legs like a human and buttocks like a human."

Although Indian tales tell of the fierce cannibalism of the Sasquatch, there is no evidence to bear this out.

In the cases of the Sasquatch spotted while eating, claims are made to its preoccupation with roots and berries and balsam buds. However, there are some stories of the Sasquatch eating rodents and field rabbits.

One is told by Glenn Thomas of a meeting with some Sasquatch near Estacada, in the Northern United States.

Thomas was walking alone in the woods when he came across a rock slide where he was stopped by three large hairy creatures, two adults and a young one who were busily moving rocks around apparently looking for marmots or rock rabbits, and eating them as soon as they were uncovered.

"They didn't skin them or anything, just crammed the heads in their mouths. Maybe they bit them in two. The little one didn't get any help from the adults, but had to fend for itself."

The Sasquatch, through the hundreds of sightings Dahinden has on file, has acted in a violent and aggressive manner only once and that was during July 1924, in a canyon near Mt. St. Helens since named Ape Canyon.

Fred Beck, still alive and living in Kelso, Washington State, was travelling with three companions prospecting the area. They hadn't been in the area for six years and had noticed several sets of large footprints on this trip.

Oh, you hairy beast

"It was just after sunrise when we went to get water from a spring and we saw the first one; a big hairy face bearded three shots at it. It was an automatic Remington. We figured the three had been hit in the head as the bullets creased the skin. When we got to the spot it had gone and we were firing about a quarter of a mile down the canyon. I don't know if we got it or not.

"My father-in-law loosed three shots at it. It was an automatic Remington. We figured the three had been hit in the head as the bullets creased the skin. When we got to the spot it had gone and we were firing about a quarter of a mile down the canyon. I don't know if we got it or not.

"Next we had things running around outside like a bunch of horses and then rocks were thrown over the walls. Something tried to break the door that it held. We fired shots through the walls and heard the things. The horses went on to the river and we never saw anything because there being no windows, just heard them."

The next morning prospectors left early only to return later to find the shack destroyed and tools spread around. They took two Oregon detectives with them who found tracks 19 inches long with four toes. The tracks were from bears but none of them returned to the canyon again.

One of the legends to the existence of the Sasquatch where to find any of its remains.

Dahinden said this is reasonable because if the creature is as man-like in appearance and intelligent as it appears to be then it no doubt could have hidden the remains of its companions where they wouldn't be found.

Another explanation is that the remoteness and the extent of the Sasquatch habitat are such that man has never explored much of it. The last explanation is that nature takes care of the bones of dead animals on its own.

"As to the thing about bones I tell you I have been in some areas looking for the Sasquatch where there have been hundreds of mountain goats but after hours of poking around everyone, we didn't find one bone of any kind," explains Dahinden.

He feels that the only way bones will be found is if one of the creatures is captured or killed and brought out of the dense forests immediately.

Throughout the years, of the stories told about the Sasquatch the most convincing and shattering piece of evidence proving the existence of the Sasquatch is still Patterson's film. Its authenticity has been doubted but not through sound, reasoned arguments, only emotional guesses by scientists.

After processing the film and showing it a few times, Patterson took his footage to the Universal studios in California so that special effects masters could test it for authenticity. Their results showed according to Gimlin:

"That the film was either real or cost a small fortune to make. They said they could not recreate such a creature with all their knowledge and even if they tried it, it would cost thousands of dollars."

One of the experts shown the film was Don Grieve, a Reader in biomechanics at London's Royal Free Hospital of Medicine. After viewing the film in 1971, he concluded:

"My subjective impressions have oscillated between total acceptance of the Sasquatch on the grounds that the films would be difficult to fake to irrational rejection based on an emotional response to the possibility that the Sasquatch actually exists. This seems worth stating because others have reacted similarly to the film.

"The possibility of a very clever fake cannot be ruled out on the evidence of the film. A man would have sufficient height and suitable proportions to mimic the longitudinal dimensions of the Sasquatch. The shoulder breadth however, would be difficult to achieve without getting unnatural appearance to the arm's swing and shoulder contours. The possibility of fakery is ruled out if the speed of the film was 16 to 18 feet per second (the normal speed of movie cameras such as Patterson's). In these conditions a normal human being could not duplicate the observed pattern, which would suggest that the Sasquatch must possess a very different locomotor system to that of a man."

From viewing the film, one can see the almost total impossibility of a fakery. The creature walks from the knees and when she steps, bulges of thigh muscle pop out while at the same time the arms and body movements are rhythmic. When it turns to the camera it turns the upper portion of its body unlike a man who turns his neck, indeed the creature has almost no discernible neck.

"All the while it is walking it moves at a steady pace and never falters even when viewing the film makers. As it turns back into the forest, it encounters no obstacles and rapidly strides away."

Another expert in anthropology, Professor Grover Krantz of Washington State University, explains the mechanics of the Sasquatch foot from the study of plaster casts made of tracks and the Patterson film.

In his conclusions of a paper (Anatomy of the Sasquatch Foot, North West Anthropological Research Notes, Vol. 6 No. 1, 1972) he notes:

Slightly bent over

"One gets the impression that the creature walks on slightly bent legs. If that is the case the impact on the heels should be less manifest than in a man's walk, and in the humanoids tracks, usually rather even in depth, seem to corroborate this conclusion. While walking the creature swings its arms intensely, using them as walking beams as it were.

The foot of the creature is flat, its width is greater than its length in proportion and it is generally bigger than man's. It has enlarged heels and ankle joints set relatively farther back forward along the length of the foot."

The scientist concludes that the foot is highly similar to that of Neanderthal man, which is what most scientists have classified the Sasquatch. They feel it is some isolated strain that never fully developed to the stage of modern day man. There is some concern that the Sasquatch may also be Pithecanthropus (Java Man) or some mutation of the Neanderthal and Pithecanthropus man.

This could explain why some sightings of the Sasquatch differ in size, bulky compared to slim and in their hair colouring. However, skeletal remains of both these ancient men are too scarce to make any firm conclusions.

For Rene Dahinden the evidence was now conclusive that the Patterson film was not a fake and it was quite a shock.

"It was a hell of a shock when I first saw the film. After all this time I knew what the creature would look like but it still surprised me when I saw it," he said.

Dahinden's 20 year quest for the Sasquatch has cost him over $20,000 so far he figures, as well as costing him his marriage. It was a case of either his family or the Sasquatch and he chose the Sasquatch.

"I don't know why I started looking for the creature, maybe it was just for the hell of it. But now this is my life, everything I have is in the search for this thing," he said.

Dahinden has no scientific background and doesn't feel one is necessary because there are no pre-conceived ideas of what to look for.

"I just want to find this creature, not find out where it is or where it comes from, just find him," he said.

"There are a number of reasons to believe at least certain Sasquatch tracks could not be made by hoaxes. Their obscure locations would mean that perhaps a hundred times as many tracks were laid as have been discovered.

Lengths of stride and obstacles stepped over surpass anything a man could do. Depths of the imprints would require a hoaxter to carry many hundreds of pounds of extra weight, thus making the walking accomplishments even more impossible. Independent toe movements as noticed in several of the tracks would require a special device to accomplish.

To all these must be added the fact that our supposed hoaxter is an expert on human anatomy with a very inventive mind. He was able to create from nothing all the details of how a foot might be redesigned to support a body weight several times that of a man and has continued to plant these tracks over more than a lifetime, always showing only vague hints of these anatomical peculiarities."

No matter how incredible it may seem that the Sasquatch exists and has remained uncaught it is even more incredible to believe in all the attributes of all the hypothetical human track makers. As Sherlock Holmes put it "When you have eliminated the impossible whatever remains, however improbable, must be the truth."

"Even if none of the hundreds of sightings had ever occurred, we would still be forced to conclude that a giant bipedal primate does indeed exist and inhabit the forests of the Pacific Northwest."

Dahinden, not satisfied at American efforts to analyse the Patterson film, took it to Russia with him where two scientists, Igor Bourstev and Dimitri Bayanov examined his evidence.

The two men have been heavily involved in the search and analysis of the Almas, better known as the Abominable Snowman.

The report only recently published reveals some very significant facts.

"The general description of the creature, hairy, man like, walking erect and having well developed buttocks and thighs places it in the Homoid line of evolution of higher primates."

"Judging by the well developed breasts the creature is a female. However, the muscles of the back, arms and legs are so much in relief that they will call for comparisons with those of a heavy weightlifter."

"One is struck by the great flexibility of the spine which is surprising in so bulky a body. This quality may be of an adaptive nature: picking berries, digging roots and rodents' holes, the erect hominoid must be an habitual stooper. One of the reasons for the creature's large thigh muscles as seen in the film may well be the necessity for the hominoid to squat frequently and move in that position while feeding, as attested to by some sightings."

Rene's great disappointment is with the people of science to whom he has shown his evidence. He wants them to just analyze the film and footprints but they will not even attempt this.

"The problem is the interpretation of the film. It must be analyzed over and over again. If this creature does exist the implications are staggering. The whole theory of evolution will have to be re-written," he said.

He says if there is another man-like creature alive and roaming the Earth it would mean we wouldn't be the only ones to survive evolution and it would, in his words, "blow our minds."

He plans to keep on looking for a Sasquatch until he finds one and drags it before the scientific authorities. Though totally convinced of the existence of the creature his mind is troubled.

"Something out there must be making those footprints and I won't rest until I find out what it is," he said.

unclassifieds

More on Page 7

THE WINNER: Crest number two has won the Article '78 crest contest. The coloured crests will be available soon.

COLOURED CANOLES! All shapes and sizes are on sale in the John Orr Room from 10:30-2:00 every day. Prices run from $2.00 to $2.75. Help Circle K FIGHT M.S.

SINCE ITS BORING READING THE SAME UNCLASSIFIED 3 times in the same issue and since its even more boring typing the same ad out 3 times we have changed our policy. NO AD WILL BE RUN MORE THAN ONCE IN THE SAME ISSUE! That also includes any ad that says the same thing in a different way.

WE ALL KNOW THAT YOU need the Queen's Journal, but now the tables are turned. The Queen's Journal needs you to type, write, drink beer and shoot pool (Wed. only). Be able to boast to your friends that you work for the Journal, which is something like talking to God. So, basement of the Union, any time.

PHOTO IMAGE now offers a completed custom photofinishing service for professional and advanced amateurs. Services include 24 hour black and white processing and Ektachrome slide developing, custom colour printing and the new Cibachrome process. For more information, call us at 546-7770 or drop by our studio at 22 Brock Street.

CIRCLE K IS FIGHTING M.S. and we need your help! Buy our candles in the Union and use them for gifts in the holidays. Use them now; use them later; but USE them people! We can use your help in defeating the Mean Scene — Multiple Sclerosis.

TIRE OF THE PUB LINE UP? Clark Hall's open on Tuesday, Nov. 26th from 8-11 for the Queen's Ski Club pre-season smoker. Admission only 25c with your Ski Club card. 50c without for an evening of cut rate beer and good music.

ROOM IN HOUSE: Furnished room in house with 4 upper year girls. Close to campus and downtown. 40 dollars per month available immediately. Please call 549-1714.

EXHIBITIONISTS EXPOSE YOURSELVES! Anyone having the urge to express themselves musically, humorously, obscenely, or otherwise, do it a

"Stage Fright". We need figure skaters, guitarists, singers, dancers, lovers, and village idiots. Get yourself together and launch your career. Auditions 546-1623. APRES SKI can start before the snow. Queen's Ski Club Smoker is Tuesday, Nov. 26, 8 to 11 at Clark Hall. Beer is 5 for $2. Admission 25c with your membership card and 50c if you haven't joined the largest club on campus yet. CIBACHROMES—Permanent, fade free colour prints from your colour slides are now available through Photo Image. Drop by our gallery at 22 Brock St. and see a display of these fine prints by photographer Ted Zuber.

QUEEN'S HOMOPHILE: We have over 50 members, all ages, all Depts. Your affiliation with the group is kept strictly confidential with no chance of exposure. Come and meet us at the next private meeting or party. Call 547-2826 Tues. Thursday, 8-9 or write Student Affairs Centre c Terry Watson.

IT'S ALMOST TOO LATE to give a photographic portrait for Christmas. Whether your taste runs from the traditional to exotic, we at Photo Image can accommodate you. Call us at 546-7770 or drop by our studio at 22 Brock Street.

SINGLE ROOM AVAILABLE IN ELRONO COLLEGE 12 man house, $50 down payment paid for you. Contact Linda 546-6547.

INTERESTED IN THE MUSIC of the '30's and '40's in the big band sound for your dance? If so contact WH Babe (542-9700) or OG Hallam (542-9740) for bookings. Also more modern styles, Latin, etc., available.

INTERESTED IN W.U.S.C.'S SUMMER SEMINAR 75 in Egypt, come hear — see the impressions of J. Clayton. A participant on last year's tour to the West Indies. Wednesday 7:30 pm in Macintosh C-216. See you there. TO WOMBAT OR OINGO: What do you think Captain Cook drank when he hit the Botany Bay Bar? POSTERS: Everything else is CHUNGER. The Kines Cross Kid. AUCTIONS... AUCTIONS: Dept of Drama will be holding auditions, tonight, Tues Nov. 26 in for European. MEOSA in Convention Hall at 7pm. INTERESTED IN AN EVENING AT THE PUB WITH THE MEMBERS

OF your house, all alcoholic beverages paid for? Are you in 3rd or 4th year and planning on abandoning your 4-man castle next year? If we decide to take your house, you will be escorted to the pub and allowed to imbibe the whole evening away free of charge. Call Bob 544-8140, Karen, 544-8067 or Kathy 544-8017.

Gael Applications can be picked up in the AMS Office, Lower Students Union. All applications must be returned to the AMS Office by Wednesday, December 4 at 5:00 pm. SPECIAL ASSIGNMENT writers for the sports dept. of Journal — NOT sports assignments — NOT time consuming. PLEASE phone sports ed. or come to Journal Office Sunday or Wed night.

SONY TC-630 reel to reel tape recorder, amp and speakers included. Less than 1 1/2 years use. List price $600. Asking $425.00. Phone 544-5117. CAMERA CLUB MEMBERS interested in learning colour printing are asked to come to our meeting on Thursday 26 at 7 pm in the third floor common room of the Union.

LOST: Blue binder containing Biology 101 notes of labs and lectures. If found contact Carolyn Dool 544-7178 or room 122. OESPERATE — EXAM SOON.

I BROUGHT MY COPY OF PETIT LAROUSSE ILLUSTRÉ to room 308 Kingston Hall to HELP my students. It was taken. Please return it to French Department Office. If need it.

LOST STUDENT CARD: 107-9023 around noon, Nov. 13 in Student Union. If you have it please phone me at 544-7551 and tell me where I can pick it up. LOST in Ouelgas Library on Fri. Nov. 22: a book called The North American City. If found please call Alex at 546-4559 — needed for exams — small reward offered. TIM AND GREG: Thanks for all your help last Wednesday and also for just being there. Love Carolyn. FOUND 1 pair girls mittens behind Jellery. You will have to identify colours and pattern. Peter 542-8725. HELP ME SEE. I lost my gold wire rimmed glasses last weekend. In brown hard covered case. If found please return to Peggy 4118 Vic Hall, 544-8507.

MINI CALCULATOR FOUND. Claim at Circulation desk Ouelgas Library.

THE RAT IS DIFFERENT FROM THE CAT. A nameless phantom on a mat. He sees with witty eyes the feline, and for the Journal makes a bee-line. Gael Group 40 extends belated Happy Birthday greetings to her prized and cherished member Kathryn Frise. P.S. Better late than never.

To Cline M. - Tiger and Bear, Ooh what a pair. Come to their fair, if you dare. From the Zookeepers. HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO BIRD, happy birthday to Bird, happy birthday to Birdie, she is an old toad!! All friends of Wendy the bird, Reynolds are cordially invited to 160 Johnson on Friday for a grand time, signed the Bonanzas. Watch for further notice.

More than an Engineer.

Our Military Engineers are very specialised people. They design and build bridges, airstrips, base facilities, supervise and maintain all kinds of equipment on our bases around the world. It's a very special job. One that involves working with men. Guiding them. Training them. A job where you can apply your knowledge in all kinds of challenging situations.

If you're into engineering, we can get you into something more than just an office job. An Officer's job, where you can develop your full potential. Give it some thought. We can give you plenty of opportunities to use your specialised knowledge in some very unusual ways.

Send this coupon for more information.

GET INVOLVED WITH THE CANADIAN ARMED FORCES.

Directorate of Recruiting & Selection, National Defence Headquarters, Box 8989, Ottawa, Ontario K1A 0K2 Please send me more information about opportunities in the Canadian Forces for Military Engineers.

Name _____
Address _____
City _____ Prov _____ Postal Code _____
University _____
Course _____ Year _____

Modern day lapine epic

Watership Down
Richard Adams

by Peter Haworth

If you should happen to love rabbits, if you have a taste for allegory, and if you thrill to epic stories of trickery and cunning, then I suggest that you immediately go and buy Watership Down. If not, you should ponder the investment at more length. Richard Adams' first novel, Watership Down is an allegorical epic about rabbits; one cannot deny it and should not apologize for it. The novel follows the adventures of a rabbit called Hazel and his companions in their attempt to establish a new warren (community) in the face of considerable opposition. While the novel is full of suspense, well written, and quite moving at times, it stumbles at the most inopportune moments.

Today we seldom encounter allegory, and in Watership Down, we should not shy away from it nor try to ignore it. Although Adams writes an exciting story, we would cheat ourselves not to examine the allegory. Adams achieves his strongest moments in his allegory when he exhibits the unnaturalness of the political structures of other warrens that Hazel comes upon. In particular, Adams creates an intangible evil air about Cowslip's warren which strikes home hard.

But Adams meets problems immediately. He tries to retain the fascinating nature of his lapine characters, and yet must give them human attributes. We can easily accept talking rabbits and rabbits that can solve subtle problems, but when Adams occasionally sets up a discussion, he tries our imagination. The action is compelling, but the debates drag, and we never escape our tenuous belief.

Adams writes in simple, conservative prose, occasionally slipping into heroic epic language. His characters are lively, but simple, each rabbit contributing his own talents to escape from enemies, and to implement the rabbits' crafty plans. In his only chapter that directly involves a human, Adams reveals an appreciation of the consciousness, perhaps a hint of what to expect in subsequent novels.

Watership Down is good entertaining reading in the exploits of Hazel, Fiver, and Bigwig, but in Adams' attempt to lift his novel out of the juvenile, we find no masterpiece. Adams gives an optimistic perspective to the world, and brings us joy in the rabbits' adventures. Unfortunately, he ruins this effect in the Epilogue, when Hazel dies in a sickly-sweet manner that is phoney and uncalled for. Despite its shortcomings, though, Watership Down promises a future for Adams, and would make a present fitting for Christmas.

Many thanks to Smith-Hill bookstore, 483 Princess St., for the generous donation of this book for review.

A wealth of tidbits to digest

Whole Earth Epilog
Editor - S. Brand Point
by Uthbert Haworth

It is difficult to review adequately such an extensive publication as Epilog and even harder to try to evaluate it. Like the Whole Earth Catalog, Epilog provides a well organized source of rapid access to tools for independent education on almost any topic (eg. basic skills, the community, etc.). Listed beside each item is the pertinent information about author, manufacturer, price and also an address from which it may be ordered.

The bulk of the hundreds of listings are books, but Epilog is more than just a catalogue. Accompanying a picture of the book cover is a short extract, often with an illustration from the text. Brief evaluations and opinions by staff and reviewers on the scope, suitability and general usefulness of each book are also included. Interspersed throughout Epilog are several well written essays and letters by contributors on a variety of topics from food storage to shaving with a cut-throat razor. Thus, Epilog contains a wealth of trivia through which you will want to browse again and again, finding something new each time.

Because the layout of each page is beautifully clear and controlled, the vast amount of information is well organized and easy to absorb. After flipping through the book a couple of times, reading the occasional article, you will soon become familiar with the general content of each section. Although there is an exhaustive cumulative index for both Whole Earth volumes, it is almost unnecessary because topics in every section are cross-referenced.

Epilog is probably more useful, in the long run, as a reference for libraries, schools, and organizations than for the individual reader because of its extensive scope. Also, even though the volumes are being updated continually, the information in each one will rapidly become out of date. However, Epilog offers hours of interest and entertainment as you amble through the many tidbits, and no doubt you will want to read in more detail some of the fascinating books listed.

Orientation '74

Gaels

Gael Group Money

Pick-up: Weds., Thurs., Fri., Nov. 27, 28, 29

A.S.U.S. Office (B105, MacCorry)

10:00 - 12:00 and 2:00 - 4:00

$14 per gael group

1 gael to pick up money and divide it among the other gael in his/her group

SOUTHERN COMFORT IS A NORTHERN DELIGHT.

SOUTHERN COMFORT

A SNEAK PREVIEW OF OUR PROGRAM

What is our program? It's our Sales & Marketing Management Program and it gives you inside information on what it takes to become a successful insurance sales manager. It covers subjects such as selling techniques, law and taxation in relation to insurance and estate planning, to name a few.

The "why" of our program is simple; we need young graduates with management potential. Your own reasons may have to do with ambition and high income potential.

Why not fill in the coupon below and we'll let you look at the whole program.

The Canada Life Assurance Company

330 University Avenue, Toronto, Ontario M5G 1R8

Send me more information about your Sales & Marketing Management Program

NAME _____
ADDRESS _____
COURSE _____
(Include resume if available)

Bite the one you love

STEAK & STUFF
LICENCED DINING ROOM 1399 Princess (near the station)
AUNT LUCY'S RESTAURANTS

Londry's Drugs

Special Student rates

464-471 University Ave.

Delivery Available

546-3696

Open 7 am to 11 pm daily

AMHERST ISLAND FARM 16" x 24"

Keirstead

Are the IN Posters beginning to bore you? Consider a reproduction Canadiana at a price you can afford.

Now available an excellent selection of high quality reproductions of works by

JAMES LORIMER KEIRSTEAD

This Kingston-based artist has achieved International recognition. Next time you are in Douglas ask for the book entitled Keirstead.

Come and explore our new fall exhibition of Keirstead originals & Reproductions.

UP & DOWN ART GALLERIES LTD.
813 PRINCESS ST.

Open only Saturday & Monday

An affectionate look at a belated wanderlust

by Evan Thompson

Director Paul Mazursky has missed a chance at potential comedy and social commentary in his picturesque tale of an independent 72-year-old who runs away from home. The beginning of the film cries out for some action beyond Harry Coombs' (Art Carney) talking to Tonto, his orange cat, in his New York apartment. We are moved when Harry is almost run over and assaulted outside his building, but he disregards our concern; such things are commonplace to him: "I've been mugged four times this year."

Harry is a lonely widower whose life revolves around the reading of Shakespeare and the study of cats. He is carried from his apartment (still sitting in his leather chair) and promptly whisked away by an overly-worried son to the safety of his suburban castle. We sense Harry's disapproval of the situation, and he eventually decides to leave for the west. The snail's pace of Mazursky's directing slowly gains momentum, especially during an abortive bus trip to Chicago. Tonto takes a rest stop, and takes off into a nearby cemetery; we expect the worst as Harry jogs along in pursuit, reeling and puffing through the slabs of granite. The two finally arrive in Chicago, with a two hundred and fifty dollar car and a sixteen year old moppel named Ginger, who instills in Harry a wanderlust which he fought twenty years ago.

Chief Dan George makes an appearance as Harry's cellmate with doctor in a Las Vegas jail. The scene fails to achieve its tremendous potential.

It is Michael Butler's photography and Art Carney's finesse that save the film and make it enjoyable. It is indeed a masterpiece of photographic effects. It is a potpourri of location shots: New York, Chicago, Las Vegas, Los Angeles and Colorado are all brilliantly photographed. It is Butler, not Mazursky or Art Carney, who presents the best scenes of the film.

The scene in a Los Angeles health spa is a very human confrontation between father and son. Eddy has been riding high in this wealthy retreat; his apartment shines with an unreal white light complete with an artificial Christmas tree at the bar. But Eddy breaks down, and Harry ends up lending him a thousand dollars to get started again. Harry isn't dependent on his children nor is he mistreated by them. He is completely his own man and this is a refreshing change from the scheming of children and relatives in a great many films.

Harry and Tonto does not approach the level of Steinbeck's travels with Charlie, but it doesn't try to. It is easy going and brilliantly photographed, and it is a pleasure to see Art Carney again.

Dr. Norman BETHUNE

Hour-long N.F.B. film biography of this great Canadian figure in Revolutionary Spain and China

7.30 p.m., THURS. 28th Nov.
Stirling 'A'

Sponsored by S.C.M. and
A.M.S. Education Commission

JANUARY
8, 9, 10, 11, 12

WINTER FROLIC
WEEK

Drama Previews

A national trauma

The Division of Concert's "Vibrant Stage" series continues this Wednesday evening with the presentation of the Toronto Workshop Productions' Ten Lost Years. This play has been widely praised by critics since it opened this spring. Time magazine has commented: "For any Canadian who lived through the Dirty 30's, the Depression was a central formative experience of life. Yet curiously, there has not been an abundance of popular literature and documentation about that national trauma. Only recently has there been a revival of interest in a novel such as Sinclair Ross' Prairie classic As for Me and My House Younger Canadians often look to the haunting records of the American experience; the photographs of Dorothea Lange and Walker Evans, the writing of James Agee and John Steinbeck. Last year, former Vancouver journalist Harry Broadfoot filled a long felt need when he published his Ten Lost Years, an oral history of the Depression. Now transferred to the stage Ten Lost Years demonstrates that the Dirty 30's in Canada can make for powerful and moving drama.

The adaptation has been skillfully carried out by George Luscombe's Toronto Workshop Productions. The stage version, dramatized by Jack Winter, is a triumphant piece of theatrical quilt making; that is, it achieves startling effects with what are little more than scraps. Using Broadfoot's recorded interviews, historical material and the fine music of Cedric Smith, a former member of the Perth County Conspiracy folk rock group, Luscombe's versatile group manages to create an extraordinary variety of moods. Ten Lost Years is alternately funny, shocking, flippancy, subtle, nostalgic and strident. It appears at first to have as many points of view as it has voices, yet in the end the play shows the residue of bitterness and bewilderment that so many of the survivors of the '30's still feel.

Tickets are available at the Division of Concerts Box Office at the Agnes Etherington Art Centre.

Chronicles XXV

Police problems

What happens to a police force when there's no crime? How can a police state exist when all of the subjects profess to be deliriously happy and steadfastly loyal to the government? Can you throw a bomb at a general, if he insists on hiding in a women's lavatory?

These are just a few of the questions posed this week in the Chronicles XXV production of The Police, a rather fuzzy satire to be presented by the Department of Drama in the Studio Theatre in Theological Hall. Performances are at 7.30 p.m., Tuesday and Wednesday, and at 7.30 and 9.00 p.m. Thursday and Friday.

Free tickets may be obtained at the Drama Desk, and free coffee will be served in the Green Room following Tuesday night's performance.

A scene from Leaving Home, the next production of the Domino Theatre. The play chronicles the difficulties of adjustment faced by a Newfoundland family when they move to Toronto.

'Gamma Rays' at McArthur

McArthur Dramatic Arts has chosen for its fall production The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man in the Moon Marigolds, by Paul Zindel. Varsity has described this Pulitzer prize-winning play as "A masterful, pacesetter drama. It combines moments of pain, poignancy, beauty and hope...the most compelling work of its kind since Tennessee Williams' The Glass Menagerie."

Lorna Wilson, Assistant Professor of Dramatic Arts in the Faculty of Education, interprets the challenging role of Beatrice "The embittered ring-master of the circus Hunsdorfer featuring three generations of crazy ladies living under the sloppiest big top on earth." "Half-life" she complains, "If you want to know what a half-life is, just ask me. You're looking at the original half-life! I got stuck with one daughter with half a mind; another one who's half a test tube; half a husband-a house half full of rabbit crap-and half a corpse!"

Miss Wilson is joined in the cast by Elyn Henderson, Jane Barker, Kathy Gould and Mary Lou Carrier, all students of the Dramatic Arts Programme in the Faculty of Education. The production is directed by Larry O'Farrell. Performance dates are November 28, 29 and 30 at 8.30 p.m. in the McArthur Theatre (Sir John A. Macdonald Blvd and Union Street). Tickets are available at the Division of Concerts Box Office at the Agnes Etherington Art Centre. General, $1.50, student, $1.00.

eastern Canada's snow-cloud scraper

ONLY 20 MINUTES FROM FAMOUS
Mont Sainte-Anne

1006, Boulevard Ste-Anne,
Beauport
Québec G1E 3M3
(418) 667-1633

62 modern units/dining room cocktail lounge/rates for groups
ski-week specials

For more information or reservation
write or phone

HÔTEL-MOTEL RÉGENT
"your place in the winter sun"

- Skiing from November to May.
- 31 miles of superbly groomed trails
- 4 new runs.
- New base chalet.
- 12 lifts.
- Over 8,000 skiers hourly.
- 2050 vertical drop.
- Trails for novice to expert.
- The only gondola lift in Eastern Canada.
- 5-day ski week use of lifts $27.50. lifts & lessons $40.00.

Snow reports:
Toronto (416) 483-4510
Montreal (514) 861-6670
Québec (418) 827-4579

P.O. Box 400, Beauport
Québec G0A 1E0
(418) 827-4561
GOUVERNEMENT DU QUÉBEC
MINISTÈRE DU TOURISME
DE LA CHASSE ET DE LA PÊCHE
DIRECTION GÉNÉRALE DES PARCS

'74-'75 ..... a winning year

Sports Success Continues

Sports Round-Up

HOME ACTION

Women's Squash Tournament: Queen's won against Waterloo, Trent and McMaster.

Men's Ice Hockey: Queen's won; 11-0 against Windsor U. 8-5 over Wilfred Laurier.

Women's Intermediate Basketball: Queen's won Tournament. Teams competing were T.O., Ryerson, Trent and Brock.

AWAY ACTION

Women's Basketball: At Ottawa U. Queen's won 75-62 at Carleton U. Queen's won 63-39. Queen's now tied for first place in the Eastern Division (with Laurentian).

Men's Basketball: At RMC: Queen's won 71-59.

Women's Ice Hockey: At McMaster - Queen's tied 7-7. At Western - Queen's won 6-2.

Women's Volleyball: At Guelph: Queen's defeated Western (National Champions 1971, 1972, and runners up in 1973), however placed second to Waterloo. Queen's now leading Eastern Division.

Queen's Squash

.....everybody

by Willa Henry
Journal Sports Writer
Last weekend, the squash Gals won the Queen's Invitational Tournament, chalking up their second big win of the year. They were competing against Waterloo, Trent and McMaster with the score very close right up until the end of the day. Sylvia Morawetz and Portia Leggot, however, finished off the tournament, beating the top Waterloo girls to "clinch" the tournament. Sylvia and Portia are off to the Ontario "C" Tournament to be held in Toronto at the beginning of December.

The twelve girls playing for Queen's managed to see a total of six hours of squash on Saturday. Queen's second team placed fourth, but the tournament provided introductory experience for new and enthusiastic girls. Coming up in the second term is Waterloo's Invitational being held at the end of January and including seventeen teams.

Portia Leggot of Queen's defeating a Waterloo opponent in Tourney

Ice Hockey Gaels onward and upward

by Jim LeMevrier
Journal Sports Writer

The hockey Golden Gaels parlayed aggressive hitting and precision passing into an 11-0 demolition of the visiting University of Windsor Lancers Friday night. They went on to take advantage of a pathetic Sir Wilfred Laurier University goaltending situation to get by the Golden Hawks 8-5, in an exhibition encounter, Saturday.

From Frank Coffey's opening minute power play goal, Queen's took control of the Windsor game, and continued to press their advantage for the remainder of the contest. First period action was fast and often brutal with Dave Hadden back in the lineup and as intimidating as ever. The "Beast" led a hitting onslaught which obviously rattled the smaller Lancers and helped draw two first period penalties which resulted in Queen's goals. Frank Coffey supplied both these power play conversions and linemate Dave Smith added another for a 3-1 first period lead.

Earl Moulton's hard work set up Bill White's second period goal. It was the only scoring of the period but might not have been but for a couple of sensational stops by Queen's netminder Steve Kidd. Kidd, making his first start of the season, turned away 19 shots for the shutout and received plenty of support up front from his defense.

The final stanza became a goalie's nightmare for Tom Morse who had to contend with an abject Windsor defensive effort. John Cerre and Hadden each potted a pair while Ron Shepherd, Bill van Camp and White brought Queen's output to 11.

The Laurier game could have been a good one but as an exhibition affair it elicited little enthusiasm from either team. The Golden Hawks had just been beaten by the Gee Gees in Ottawa the previous night and gave keeper Ken Scott seemed to have suffered most from a sleepless night in the hotel. The Laurier forwards carried the play to the first period but came away with a 3-1 deficit. The Gaels understandably lacked the crispness and hustle of the Windsor game but beat the helpless Scott on three of seven first period shots. The Golden Hawks forwards, however, had numerous scoring opportunities but failed to show any polish around the Queen's goal. John Cerre's pair and Ron Shepherd's single gave the Gaels a lead they managed to retain through a high scoring second period. Shepherd collected his second goal on a twenty foot backhand which left Scott motionless and brought on veteran Phil McColeman in replacement. McColeman wasn't much better, as Coffey upped the count to 5-3 and Cerre and Shepherd their hat tricks en route to a 7-4 lead. Steve Gross closed the scoring with a third period goal which left Queen's with an easy 8-5 victory, despite being outshot 34-29.

The Gaels meet their crosstown rivals from RMC on Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 at the Constantine Arena. It should be a good game as the Redmen have always shown a particularly determined effort against Queen's. For obvious reasons they generally enter the game in a better frame of mind and will not be a pushover.

Queen's defeated Waterloo Lutheran 8-5. Frank Coffey scores for Gaels.

john bottomley

Basketball Gals-4 and 0

Kathy Keely No. 8 of Queen's team chalks up two points for the Tricolor during fierce game against Ottawa U. Friday night.

by Lyn Atwood
Journal Sports Writer

After completing their second consecutive successful double-header this past weekend, the Queen's Basketball Gals find themselves in contention with Laurentian for first place in the Eastern Division of the OWIAA. Their wins against Ottawa Gee-Gees and Carleton Ravens in two tremendously high-speed games on Friday night and Saturday afternoon respectively result in a four wins and no losses record. Way to play Gals! This is surely a team of which Queen's can be proud.

Spectators in the Ottawa gym on Friday night witnessed a truly excellent display of basketball. Not only was the high calibre of Basketball worth noting (I mention this only because in the past year and a half I have witnessed many ballgames both men's and women's in which the calibre of play was in many instances something worth forgetting) but the showmanship and tactics used in moving the ball to and fro on the court added even more excitement and flair to the game.

Occasional spurts of volleying, spiking, diving, tackling, blocking, and handoffs were used on the groundplay while quite a few rocket-like passes thrown to completion by Carson (which resulted in baskets for Queen's) as well as numerous interceptions kept the ball moving rather vigorously in the air.

Both teams were under pressure the whole game, eventhough Queen's was up at the half with 43-27, and the final score was 75-62. Ottawa's Colleen Dufresne was kept well under control and managed to score only 16 points. Scorers for Queen's were Lancy Marshall 18, Pat Smith 14, Pat Patterson 13, Penny Wedd 10, Pat Quigley 9, Kathy Keely 6, and Jean Crichton 5. Queen's maintained good control of the boards throughout the game through the efforts of Pat Smith, Pat Patterson and Pat Quigley.

The next day in the cold grey dungeon which the Ravens call a gym, the Queen's Gals seemed to have a great deal of trouble breaking through a persistent and surprisingly hard pressing Raven Squad. The Carleton team was finally forced to relinquish the tie which had been rattling back and forth within a point to almost the halftime mark of the game. The score at the half was only 25-21, however, it was the turning point of the game and the Gals never looked back. The final score was 63-39 and it is sufficient to say that it is a true indication of the game. The unquestionable shining player of the game was Pat Quigley, who managed a shooting average of better than 60 percent from the floor and came up with 26 points for Queen's. Boardwork was provided by Patterson, Smith, Quigley, and Crichton. Congrats again Queen's.

Basketball supporters (and others) have a chance to show these Gals recognition worthy of their fine calibre of play by supporting them this coming weekend when Queen's plays host to a number of Canadian and American Basketball teams in an Invitational Tournament Friday and Saturday.

Colleen Dufresne No. 25 of Ottawa U. most feared opponent of that squad-both offensive and defensive, blocks Queen's shot.

Hockey Gals - no losses

by Chris Scott

Journal Sports Writer

The level of hockey displayed by the women's hockey team would impress even the most critical enthusiast this year. Coaches Cookie Cartwright and Annabelle Twiddy have both commented on the strength of the squad, recalling the 1972-73 team which won the OWIAA championships.

On Friday, the ladies travelled to Hamilton where they met a strong McMaster team. Queen's fought to a 2-0 lead in the first period with an unassisted goal by Leslie Ferrari, and a goal from Sue Wright (assisted by Marg Bartlett).

McMaster made it clear in the next period that they were not going to let Queen's walk away with the game. M. Covey netted their first goal half a minute into the second period. Queen's Sue Wright answered back with a perfect slap shot from the point past the Mae Goalie. Queen's responded to two more McMaster goals with goals from centres Rhonda Leeman and Janean Gerow.

McMaster dominated the third period netting four goals to Queen's two. A. Rasmussen popped one in for Mac. Marg Bartlett came back with a goal assisted by left winger Sandy Statten. McMaster's M. Covey got her second and third goals, both from passes by E. Boyles. At this point the game was all tied up, but not for long as Leslie Ferrari scored while short-handed after a perfect pass from Rhonda Leeman. With two minutes remaining, McMaster tied it up with a goal from S. Ducker, ending the game 7-7.

Overall, Queen's controlled the puck for the larger percentage of the game. Strong forechecking by both teams, and a lot of strong skating made the game pretty even. Queen's demonstrated superior stick handling however, especially from defenseman Sue Wright. Goalie Wanda Gyde came up with some incredible saves despite her badly injured hand.

The Gals are looking forward to January when they'll meet

McMaster again on home ice. That will be a game that nobody should miss.

Following the McMaster battle, the team got back on the bus and moved on to London where they met Western that evening. Although tired from the gruelling game and all the travelling, Queen's easily defeated their opposition by a score of 6-2.

Linda McEwen started things off with a well earned goal, demonstrating good team work. Jan Atkinson and Sue Hall both received assists. Veteran winger Leslie Ferrari added a second goal with assists from Rhonda Leeman and Sue Wright.

Western's L. Hargrove netted their first goal while Queen's was short handed, but the Golden Gals came back with two more from Rhonda Leeman (assisted by Leslie Ferrari) and Sue Wright (assisted by Janean Gerow). Western's L. Hargrove got her second goal, and Western's only two, making the score 4-2 at the end of the second period.

Some fancy stick handling by defenseman Carol Petty and a beautiful pass to Sandy Statten resulted in Queen's fifth goal. Janean Gerow put in the sixth and final goal with assist from Sue Wright and Sandy Statten. Marg Booth played an excellent game in goal for Queen's stopping numerous shots that were right on target. Superb defensive play again startled the opposition as well as the speed and confidence of the team as a whole. Good team work and speed seem to be two of the main advantages the Queen's gals have, as well as strong shooting from the point.

Next week the gals meet McGill and Guelph, both games well worth watching. McGill meets Queen's at Jack Hardy on Fri., Nov. 29th at 5:00. On Saturday Guelph arrives, game time being 2:30 p.m.

Which Queen's team

lost its head this year?

see next page....

Intermediate basketball....

Tradition upheld

by Sarah-Jane Hope and Pat Seargeant

We won, we won, we won! Intermediate Basketball Tournament's hosted the first In- nament last weekend and came through victorious. Carrying on last year's tradition Queen's went undefeated.

Crystal Grove of Queen's team on one of many drives to basket which led to Queen's decisive victory in Tourney.

Steve Seabrooke coached the girls to an early win over University of Toronto Friday afternoon, setting the pace for the rest of the tournament. The first twelve minutes of the game belonged to Toronto, but Queen's finally "got on the ball" with three minutes left in the first half. The game opened up considerably, Queen's coming out on top 26-21. Later that night Queen's put on an amazing shooting display as they demolished Trent 51-18. Leading the team was the evening's top scorer, Crystal Grove.

This year's team is comprised of four returning members from last year's OWIAA championship team. They are Crystal Grove, Barb Platt, Sue Sisson, and Captain Joan Dawkins. New faces this year include Jane Bell, Paula Gerunke, Debbie Lidstone, Pat Ransom, Teem Schindt, Anne Sisson, Cathy Shalay, Sherri Smart and rookie coach Steve Seabrooke.

Saturday proved just as rewarding for the team, as they weasled by Ryerson 23-21 and then finished the tournament with a 31-19 win over Brock to give the team a four wins, no loss record.

...but the other Queen's teams are at the "head" of the league.

ASA 70

Bring out the old soft shoes, dust off your jug and washboard, get your act together and come out for

STAGE FRIGHT

Auditions between 7-9 p.m.
Wednesday & Thursday
NOV. 27th and 28th
LOWER VIC HALL

FOR FURTHER INFO, CALL DAVE MAZZEI (546-1623)
OR PETER MEECH (544-7088)

Come in and see the new line of Pedigree and White Stag ski clothing.
Cross country packages from $70.00

★ 10% off to Queen's Students ★

cotton's
sporthouse

399 PRINCESS STREET,
KINGSTON K7L 1B9
TELEPHONE 544-1066

QUEEN'S FILM DEPARTMENT presents a

SMOKER

Thurs. Nov. 28, 8 - 12.00 p.m.
Kingston Hall

Everyone welcome Beer 3/$1.00

Come — See

SYL APPS M.P.P.

P.C. Meeting
7.30 Wed., Nov. 27

Third Floor Common Room
Student's Union

THURSDAY
NOVEMBER 28th

History Department Student Council Lecture Series: Professor George Rawlyk, leading authority on the history of Maritime Canada, will speak on 'The Loyalist-Federalist Alliance in New Brunswick: The Post Revolutionary Years'. Coffee and doughnuts will be served.

ALL ARE WELCOME

Room D214, Main Floor,
Mackintosh-Corry Hall, 8:00 p.m.

TICKETS FOR Wanderlust
V

Go On Sale, Thursday Nov. 28

Available

At The John Orr Room and

the Meal Lines $8.50

V-ball Challenge Cup

Pat Johnson helped to spike Western to ground in weekend Tourney.

by Eleanor Barker
Journal Sports Writer

The Women's Senior Volleyball Team returned from the OWIAA Challenge Cup Tournament at Guelph tied for first place in the Eastern Division and content in the knowledge that they had defeated the best team of the Western Division.

In the two days of the Preliminary matches, Queen's faced the six teams of the Western Division with the following results: (Queen's scores will always be the first number shown).

Western	4-15, 15-12, 10-15
Wilfred Laurier	15-0, 15-2
MacMaster	15-12, 9-15, 15-12
Guelph	15-10, 15-4
Waterloo	8-15, 15-6, 13-15
Windsor	15-2, 15-7

Thus Queen's won a position in the semi-finals—having placed fourth of the 12 teams present, after Western, Waterloo, and York. As well, they had established first place in the point race in the Eastern Division.

The semi-finals, played against first place Western (National Champions 1971-1972 and runners-up in 1973) was the match of the tournament. Queen's went out with hard-hitting and strong service which started the opposition, as well as the handful of observers who were on hand initially. Excitement mounted as Queen's led all the way to their 15-9 win. By the middle of the second game, the crowd which had gathered to watch the York-Waterloo semi-final on Court No. 1 had totally shifted to Court No. 2 where the Tricolour Squad was handing Western a decisive 15-6 defeat. It was a fitting end to the six-year long supremacy of Western over Queen's. The red, gold and blue exhibited concentrated group effort, skill, desire and poise throughout.

The final match between Queen's and Waterloo was rather anti-climatic. Coach Gallagher's fortune cookie prediction fulfilled, (victory over Western), and signs of wear and tear on the players becoming more imminent, the contest degenerated to one of "survival of the fittest". The Match Cup finally fell to Waterloo after a long struggle.

The Queen's team was very pleased to have Alison Woods back in the line-up after an injury almost forced her to call it a season a couple of weeks back. As well, Maureen Lessard, a veteran transfer from Laurentian, made a successful debut in the Queen's colours.

Weekend win; UofO here tonight

By Alps Boniwell

Journal Sports Writer

When the Queen's Golden Gaels Basketball team got together with the boys across the street at RMC, to discuss the sloppier aspects of the sport, nobody expected a titanic struggle, a fact born out by the presence of barely enough spectators to create a traffic jam in a telephone booth. And it's a good thing nobody expected one. The Gaels unimpressive 71-59 victory over the Redmen hardly conjured up the classic image of two finely honed basketball machines slugging it out until the final tick of the clock. In fact the only thing titanic about the game were coaches O'Connor and Tindall's efforts to keep a firm hold of their sanity as the Gaels did their best to wrench it from them.

In the end, it was the kind of game that in theory you learn a lot from because there was more than an adequate supply of mistakes made. It was also the kind of physical game where you start relying on the other team to foul you so you can move the ball down the court. In short the two teams gave the fundamentals of the sport such a terrific beating that the textbook of basketball "do not's" will have to be rewritten.

Nevertheless, there were still some notable points, other than the 28 which John Keck scored, which incidentally preserved for him a place in posterity, if anyone ever wants to know who Max Jackson's "Sports Champ of the Day" was on Nov. 21st 1974. First then, of these notable points is that Queen's was made painfully aware that if they continue to pioneer with new ways not to play basketball, the strong Ottawa Gee-Gees who play here today, will be up for manslaughter after the game. Secondly, the Gaels will have to regain the hustle and aggressiveness that earmarked their earlier successes, to battle Ottawa on even ground. And if one thing's sure about tonight's game, it's that Queen's will have indeed reinstated aggression to their line-up. Thirdly, despite the fact that it almost seems unfair, the Gaels must take credit for the win over RMC thus boosting their record to the lofty percentage of 66.66 percent or two wins in three league games. Now granted Ottawa will hardly be weakened at the knees by Queen's scorecard thus far but given the Gaels unique chameleon-like ability to play like the original denizens of the "St. Joseph's Home for the Old" one night and then come out like proverbial gangbusters the next, I wouldn't be surprised to see a few weakened knees and astonished faces after tonight's contest.

Without being insulting, RMC never really brings out the best in a team. Ottawa can. It's quite possible that as far as the lads from the Capital are concerned Queen's could have a case of grand larceny on their hands. The Gaels are very capable of stealing this one. So pack the books for a couple of hours or five—if you want to go to the pub afterwards and come out with a friend or six to the Bartlett Gym at 7:00 pm tonight for what should be a very exciting game.

AMEY'S
TAXI
546-1111

Queens
University

Music
Department

XVTH - XVIIITH CENTURY CHRISTMAS MUSIC
BY THE
COLLEGIUM MUSICUM

Director: WILBUR MAUST

Spanish & English Carols
German Chorales
Schutz: Christmas Oratorio

GRANT HALL 8:30 SAT. NOV. 30
ADMISSION FREE

Murphy's Sea Food
Restaurant

Lobster Shrimp Oysters
Clam Chowder Fish and Chips

to Brock St.
548-7753

make sisters & brothers, nephews & nieces & everybody happy with a gift from

BOOKS
AND MORE BOOKS

specializing in children's,
young adult,
foreign language
& antiquarian books

68 Princess Street
542-5551

THE ALMOST EVERYTHING STORE

Famous Brand
Names at Discount Prices

THIS WEEK'S SPECIAL

JUNIOR PANT
COATS
FROM "THE MARKET"
IN MONTREAL

TRENOY 40'S
STYLES IN BOLO PLAYS
AND PLAINS
SIZES 7-13
49.95 VALUE
FOR 24.99

Something fishy

Monopoly cause price increase

OTTAWA (CUP)—The price of canned fish, especially salmon and Atlantic sardines has been steadily rising in the past year and the major reason for high price is the George Weston Co. which holds a virtual monopoly on both industries.

Weston owns B.C. Packers which owns Nelson Brothers Fisheries, Rupert Fish Co., Queen Charlotte Co., MacCallum Sales and Nelbro Packing. B.C. Packers has at least three shipyards on the Pacific coast and a fishing fleet estimated at 400 boats. It owns the company that makes the nets, has a printing firm that prints the labels, a refrigerated fleet of trucks and it even owns the firm that sells coffee at "break time" to workers in its fishing empire.

With this dominant position in the industry it makes little difference whether the consumer selects Clover Leaf, Sovereign, Loblaw, Carnation, or any of about 40 other "brand names". The are all caught, processed and packed by B.C. Packers or one of its subsidiaries.

Weston's companies have also resorted to stockpiling.

Company officials stated they couldn't even quote a price on the reserved stock until a world market situation, created by a poor U.S. salmon catch indicated how high a price they could charge.

On Canada's east coast the George Weston Co. own virtually the entire sardine market. Weston's has its own factory, fishing fleet and the related apparatus to control the entire industry.

The profit of the total set-up of Weston's was more than $32 million last year.

briefly..

OTTAWA (CUP)—Energy Minister Donald MacDonald has announced the government will decrease the flow of crude oil exports to the United States in the next year, and will gradually phase out any oil exports by 1982. By 1982, conventional crude oil supplies are expected to fall below domestic demand. MacDonald plans to reduce the export rate from 900,000 barrels a day to 800,000 barrels, in January. If the federal government can reach an agreement with Alberta and Saskatchewan the rate will be further decreased to 650,000 barrels a day in July. The further cut in July is an attempt to start diverting the 250,000 barrels a day which will be needed for the Eastern Pipeline in 1976. The proposed pipeline will be an extension of the existing interprovincial pipeline from Sarnia to Montreal. The extension will be capable of carrying 250,000 barrels of western oil daily.

UNITED NATIONS—The General Assembly of the United Nations has voted 89-8, with 37 abstentions, to endorse the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) claim to statehood. The resolution which past affirms Palestine rights to national independence and sovereignty and to return to homes abandoned after Israel was created in 1948. A second resolution was voted in 95-17, with 19 abstentions, granting the PLO permanent observer status at the General Assembly and other UN meetings.

The Israel and PLO delegates have reaffirmed their positions against each other. No compromise between the two countries is foreseen in the immediate future.

TORONTO—Labour Minister John Munroe has refused to initiate a federal inquiry into the alleged incidents of corruption and violence within the Seneca's International Union (SIU). MPP Morton Schulman made charges against the SIU in the legislature last week. Schulman stated that the SIU has used violence and intimidation in manipulating union members and has bribed federal government officials to comply with their demands.

Munroe challenged

Schulman to produce proof of such incidents and accused him of smearing an entire union. Munroe will consider a federal inquiry only if the Royal Canadian Mounted Police can provide the federal Attorney General with documentation of such actions made by the SIU.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Rules Committee has unanimously recommended that Nelson Rockefeller's nomination to be vice-president be approved. The entire senate will vote on the nomination next month. Although the Senate Rules Committee backed the nomination, Rockefeller still faced persistent questioning by a House committee about possible conflicts of interests. Many members were unsatisfied with Rockefeller's promise to put his funds into a blind trust so that he would be unaware of how they were invested. Barbara Jordan (D. Tex.) stated that such a measure would leave matters essentially unchanged because Rockefeller's interests are presently managed by investment experts without any guidance from him. No alternate method of dealing with the problem was arrived at. Rockefeller expressed puzzlement as to how he could quiet the fears, expressed by some members, of the merger of private economic power with public power.

BEN WICKS.

Is it my fault we get stuck in an unsold car lineup?

Rector Elections

Tuesday, Nov. 26

Polling Stations	Hours
Phys. Ed. Complex	9:30 - 4:30
Student's Union	9:30 - 4:30
Douglas Library	9:30 - 4:30
Residence Meal Lines	4:30 - 6:30
Macdonald	9:30 - 12:15
Kingsdon	9:30 - 12:15
Ellis	9:30 - 12:15
MacInosh-Corry	12:30 - 4:15
Stirling	12:30 - 4:15
McArthur West Campus	10:30 - 1:00
Gordon	12:30 - 4:15
Eltherington Hall	1:30 - 4:30

back page

Bombs boom in British Isles

LONDON (AP)—Gasoline bomb attacks have appeared in the British Isles. Bombs were thrown into two pubs in Birmingham, last Thursday, killing 19 people and injuring some 200. The blasts hit following the government's banning of elaborate funeral ceremonies for James McDaid, an IRA terrorist. McDaid was killed while planning a bomb. Two more bombs have hit since Thursday's incidents. Bombs were thrown into empty bars; one in Birmingham, and one in London. It is presumed that the underground Irish Republican Army is behind the bombing attacks but there is no direct evidence connecting them to the IRA.

The bombing incidents have prompted the British government to promise to institute emergency laws. The new laws will likely include curbs on civil liberties. Two possible measures are a formal ban on the IRA in Britain and an extension of the time that a suspect may be held for questioning by the British police. Other suggestions involve tightening of security at British ports and granting wider powers to deport suspect Irishmen.

Some members of Parliament and concerned citizens have gone as far as requesting the return of the death penalty.

The bomb attacks have also spurred new waves of anti-Irish demonstrations and vigilante attacks.

Alberta vs Ottawa

CALGARY—Premier Peter Lougheed has stated that he no longer feels bound to last spring's oil price agreement with the federal government. Finance Minister John Turner's proposal to stop oil companies from using provincial royalty payments as tax write-offs has spurred Alberta's anger. Lougheed views the federal government's action as an invasion of provincial resource rights. Lougheed has stated that there will be no increase in oil prices until next spring. The four or five months will allow his government to design a constitutionally tight response to Ottawa's budget action. The stand Lougheed has taken is that Alberta needs the money from depleting oil resources to build an industrial base to support future Albertans. The Canadian Petroleum Association President, John Ewen has also warned that the oil industry is "on the verge of economic disaster" and needs the money.

The real battle will begin if Ottawa is successful in instituting the Petroleum Administration Act, which would give it the right to set prices of oil if an agreement with provinces cannot be reached.

Estelle Says:

THE LICITOR
NEEDS INCENSED WRITERS OF ALL LEANINGS
CALL 546-5858

Imm of Shoes
231 Princess St.
544-4993

★ Hand made boots and shoes made to measure
★ All styles of ladies leather handbags - something for everyone

10% off to QUEEN'S STUDENTS

Candidates agree housing a problem

by Sarah Yarnell

All four candidates running for the two positions of Alderman in Sydenham Ward agreed that in order to improve the quality of student accommodation in Kingston, the regulations contained in the new housing by-law must be enforced. Denis Crutchley, Terry French, Lois Miller, and Keith Norton all shared the opinion that student houses and apartments are in slum-like condition but nevertheless are costing students a lot of money to rent.

The candidates were speaking to a small gathering of Queen's students at a "meet the candidates night" held Tuesday evening in the McNeill House common room.

French asserted that students are being "ripped off" by landlords who charge high rents for buildings which are in poor condition. He said he was "concerned" about the problem but felt that a good deal of it would be cleared up if the new housing regulations were enforced.

Miller, while agreeing with French, suggested that City Council recommend to the provincial government that municipalities be allowed to bring in rent controls. She said that in the Province of Quebec, where such measures are in use, landlords have to justify in writing all increases in rent.

Norton, who has been an Alderman on City Council for the past two years and is seeking re-election, was chairman of the committee that drew up the proposals for the housing by-law. He, too, recommends that the regulations be enforced.

Crutchley was also in support of the by-law and felt that it must be followed.

Less concrete solutions to the problem of inadequate supply of student housing were offered, however. The candidates pointed out that Kingston simply cannot accommodate more students in apartments and houses close to campus without displacing the local residents.

Miller emphasized that the "balance" between families and students must be maintained for the general good of the area. She stated that it is the families, with their children running about in the streets and their generally well-kept properties, which made the core area of the city a pleasant place for students to live. Miller vowed that should the encroachment of students on the housing supply ever result in a proposal to freeze the number of buildings being chopped up into student apartments, she would support the proposal.

Construction of a complex similar to the West Campus tower, which would be partially financed by the Ontario Housing Corporation, would probably solve the housing shortage, Miller said.

Alderman candidates' photos and statements, page 3

French promised that he would "look into" the problem of housing supply.

Crutchley, on the other hand, would refer the issue to the Planning committee. Presently the problems with housing are

Trotter

Rector elected

Bruce Trotter was elected to a two year (with optional third year) term as Rector in the student elections held Tuesday. Of approximately 10,000 students eligible to vote for Rector, 2199 cast votes. Here are the results of the election:

Trotter -	850	40.3 p.c.
Gordon -	690	32.7 p.c.
Ross -	223	10.6 p.c.
Hutcheson -	139	6.6 p.c.
Henderson -	123	5.8 p.c.
Faseruk -	84	4.0 p.c.

Bruce Trotter

Queen's
Journal
Volume 102 Number 24
Friday, November 29, 1974

"Will you vote in Monday's city elections?"

Interviews by Marla Fletcher
Photos by Jon Willmer

Monday there will be municipal elections in Kingston.

A spokesman for Mack Healy, chief returning officer for the municipal Monday elections, said the positions of mayor, public utilities commissioners, aldermen for St. Lawrence and Victoria Wards, separate school board members and two separate school board trustees have been won by acclamation. That leaves the representatives from five wards (two from each) and school board members (seven for the Frontenac County Board of Education and nine for the Frontenac-Lennox and Addington County Roman Catholic Separate School Board) to be elected Monday.

Chris Chenoweth (Political Studies, 2nd year) "Is there an election coming up? I don't know much about the issues or the candidates. I'm not voting."

Bill Ehmman (grad student in Political Studies and Science) "This election doesn't affect anything I do. No. I'm not voting. The candidates are insignificant. There hasn't been any attempt to identify themselves with student problems."

Shirley Davis (Artsci, 1st year) "I don't know anything about them [the municipal elections]. I hadn't thought about them at all...but if local government affects Queen's policy then I think students should be involved."

Terry MacLi (Artsci, 4th year) "Of course, yes. The way things are set up now, it is these people [the aldermen] who influence city politics. More students should get out and vote and have some say."

wat's hapnin'?

Douglas Library

In order to provide some extra study time for the exam period, Douglas Library hours will be extended for the Stacks, Circulation Desk, Main Reading and Central Information Services Rooms from November 25 - December 17 as follows:

Monday - Thursday	8:00 am - 1:00 am
Friday	8:00 am - 11:00 pm
Saturday	9:00 am - 11:00 pm
Sunday	12 noon - 1:00 am

Phys. Ed. Centre

The arena will be closed on the following dates and times:

November 29 - 4:30 to 5:20 pm
November 30 - 4:30 to 5:20 pm
The ice will be removed from the Jock Hardy Arena on Tuesday December 3 for Christmas examinations, and will not be available for use until Thursday December 28. All ice activities, including family skating and recreation events will be cancelled during this period.

Pubs and Theatres

101 Inn - Bud
Frontenac-Finnegan's - Liam McGuire
Frontenac-Muldoon's - Alan Rody
Commandor - Lyle

Capitol 1 - Walking Tall
Capitol 2 - The Destructors
Odron - Airport '75
Hyland - Harry and Tonto
Townhouse - The Graduates

Friday, November 29

8:00 pm - Diplomacy Club Meeting in the McLaughlin Room 11st floor of the Student Union behind the coat room. New members welcome. Please bring pencil and paper.
9:30 pm & 9:00 pm - Department of Drama presents Chronicles XXV. The Police directed by Russ Waller in the Studio Theatre Room 102. Tickets are free and can be obtained at the Drama Desk (547-6291).

8:00 pm - Queen's Hockey Girls vs York at Queen's.
8:15 pm - Queen's Basketball Girls vs Carleton at Queen's.

8:00 pm - Department of Film Studies presents A Bogart Film Festival. Tonight High Sierra starring Raoul Walsh. At Ellis Hall and admission is $1.00.

7:30 pm - McArthur Dramatic Arts presents The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man in the Moon Marigolds by Paul Zindel with Lorna Wilson directed by Larry O'Farrell. At McArthur Theatre, Sir John A. Macdonald and Union St. Tickets are available at the Agnes Etherington Art Centre. Also showing Saturday.

8:30 pm - The King's Singers will perform at St. George's Cathedral. This vocal ensemble are all former choral scholars of King's College, Cambridge. Tickets are available at the Agnes Etherington Art Centre Division of Concerts Box Office. General audience $3.00, Students and Senior Citizens: $2.00.

Saturday, November 30

2:00 pm - 5:00 pm - Women's Invitational Gymnastics Meet.

3:00 pm - Bogart Film Festival presents Mattie Faxon starring John Huston, Mary Astor, and Peter Lorre. Admission is $1.00 at the door of Ellis Hall.

8:00 pm - Key Largo, another in the Bogart Film Festival will be shown in Ellis Hall for an admission of $1.00. This film stars John Huston, Edward G. Robinson, and Lauren Bacall.

8:00 pm - India Association is now functioning and all are welcome to join. The association will show an Indian movie Mera Naam Joker in Dunning Hall and admission is $2.00.

8:30 pm - Queen's Music Department presents Queen's Collegium Musicum directed by W. Mausl. The programme will include Christmas music with Heinrich Schütz's Christmas Oratorio. Admission is free in Grant Hall.
8:30 pm - Ballroom Dance Club will continue its weekly dances and dance studio memberships will be available at the door for $1.00. New members (no matter how few lessons) are welcome and encouraged to join.

Sunday, December 1

10:30 am - Morning Worship at Chalmers United Church.
10:30 am - Folk Mass at Dunning Hall, followed by coffee and donuts at Newman House, 164 University Ave.

11:00 am - Service at Morgan Chapel with guest preacher Dr. R. Bates, the principal of Theology College.

2:00 pm - Agnes Etherington Art Centre presents a "Picture of the Month" discussion and a tour of the Art Centre by a gallery guide.

8:30 pm - Twenty-ninth Annual University Carol Service, sponsored by the Engineering Society, will take place in Grant Hall. The ten lessons will be read by members of the Alma Mater Society Executive. The Queen's Choral Ensemble under the direction of Professor Denise Narcisse-Mair will sing four carols. The Queen's Brass, formed of students in the University's Department of Music under the direction of Professor D.C.M. Smith will accompany the singing of the carols along with the organ played by Mark Sirett.

Monday, December 2

8:00 pm - Lecture II in the English Department. Lecture Series will be given by Prof. Robert Chuel of York University under the title: "Pythagoras Summons the Muse: A discussion of the new computerized criticism". in room 517, John Watson Hall.

LET'S WHAT? ONLY TWENTY THREE MORE DAYS TILL CHRISTMAS!

Upcoming Events

Tuesday, December 3 - German Department Annual Christmas Party will be held in Ban High Common Room starting at 7:30 pm. All are welcome but the entertainment will be in German. No admission and free food.

Tuesday, December 3 - 9:00 pm in Ellis Auditorium. Last Year at Marienbad (France-Italy, 1961) Directed by Alain Resnais. Starring: Delphine Seyrig, Sacha Pitoeff. Admission $1.00 at the door.

Wednesday, December 4 - 5:45 pm - The Union Program Committee presents the annual Union Christmas dinner in Wallace Hall. Cash bar, Wine cheap, good food, and carol singing.

Wednesday, December 4 - There will be a gathering at 8:00 pm in room C115 at McArthur for all who enjoy singing or listening to ballads, songs and snatches from Gilbert and Sullivan. Everyone most welcome.

Thursday, December 5 - And Now For Something Completely Different by Monty Python. Dunning Hall Auditorium at 7:00 and 9:30 pm. Admission $1.00.

Thursday, December 5 - Christmas Fireside in the Ban High Common Room - in traditional Christmas splendour. David Kemp reading "A Child's Christmas" by Dylan Thomas. Holiday refreshments at 6:00 pm. All are welcome.

The Drama Department presents Chronicles XXVI - Silver Bird and Scarlet Feather. This is a children's play written and directed by Maurice Brestow with music by Richard Bronskill. Saturday, December 7 at 10 am in Convocation Hall. Sunday, December 8 at 2:00 pm in Convocation Hall. Tickets free at the drama desk.

Christmas Blitz '74 - A semi formal for Christmas at Jean-Royce Hall (West Campus) featuring Tree from Ottawa. Dancing from 8:30 to 1:00 in the residence dining hall. Tickets are $4.50 a couple and $2.50 stag. Available from the floor reps and in the student street at Jean Royce Hall and also in the John Orr Room. (Date - Please notify us!)

Christmas Wassail
at the Galerie Victoria
the baroque trio
PLAYS Bach-Bosmorfer-Galliard: Fred Sallis-flute, accompanied by Ben Potha & Kevin Bailey-bassoon & Michele Busby-harpsichord solo: Michele Busby
9:30 pm - SUNDAY
DECEMBER 8th

Another Smoker!!

Come talk to an honest-to-God Religion Prof.
(or Student - take your pick)

Nov. 29, 1974. 3 - 6 p.m.

Red Room, Kingston Hall

Admission - 25¢ Beer - 40¢

the MARKET
BARBER SHOP
& hairstyling salon

Peter Smits invites you
to his new hair care shop
549-2110
45 BROCK ST., KINGSTON ONT

George Busby
sporting goods
401 Pines Street
Kingston, Ontario
Tel. 613-242-2293

SALE

Ski boots from $45.00
Ski jackets from $20.00

More and more and more
Today and tomorrow

STEVE AMEY'S

Lakeview Manor

PLAYING THIS WEEK IN THE CENTENNIAL ROOM

Charlie Epstein

28 Yonge St., Kingston

The Aldermanic Menu

Keith Norton

Lawyer
Former Teacher
33 years old
Single
Graduate of Queen's Arts '61 and Law '69
Graduate of Ontario College of Education
He is committed to:
1. Preservation: Development of firm policies and stronger legislation to preserve the character of the ward and city.

2. The Environment: Carefully planned and controlled development of waterfront to protect public interest and access; seek viable garbage reclamation and disposal system.

3. Transportation: Support integration of all traffic and transportation related functions within one department to improve service and efficiency.
4. Housing: Review and enforcement of property standards by-law. Measures to insure adequate housing supply; already working at Queen's in seeking solutions to student housing shortage.

5. Senior Citizens: Steps to protect independence of senior citizens; provide adequate supply of housing and services.

6. Youth-Recreation: More comprehensive recreation programs for youth.

7. Taxes-City Hall: Review productivity of all city departments to insure efficiency and economy.

8. By-Law Enforcement: To co-ordinate all by-law enforcement in one department for more efficient enforcement.

9. Public Participation: Encourage greater public participation in decision making process.

Denis Cruchley

10. Former draftsman and now the Regional Indexing Clerk for the Ministry of Transportation and Communications

21. Kingston City Council observer for several years
As I am the only candidate for one of the two aldermanic seats for Sydenham Ward who is not a member of the alumni, Board of Trustees, or faculty, I thank you and welcome this opportunity to address you. My only very real contact with the Queen's undergrads was from 1959-65 when I was a resident in a house at 75 Arch St., now demolished, and later at 166 University Ave., until Queen's took it over for, I do believe, a temporary office of the Department of Psychology. These houses were a delight to view and live in. They were nothing like some of the neglected, dilapidated places I have seen some of our campus students living in, simply to be near the campus. As I walked through the ward, nearest to the University, I realized as housing needs is a primary function of planning, I must support that the housing aspect of the Committee of Fire, Legislation and Housing should be dropped and placed in lieu thereof, under the Planning Board. City Council is now starting to implement recommendations of a special committee, appointed earlier this year to review the structure of committees, authorities and boards of City Council, of which Alderman Keith Norton was an avid member. The housing aspect I have just mentioned is just one of the many recommendations, hopefully, the 14 aldermen will implement for the good of all the citizens of the Kingston city community.

Next Monday, December 2nd, you have a right of franchise to voluntarily exercise in selecting two aldermen from the four duly nominated candidates listed on the ballot. My name, Denis Cruchley, will be first. I respectfully solicit your support. All it takes are two simple X's for the two people of your choice. I hope to be one of them, for it was instinct and the desire to serve with integrity that was the forceful stimulant that decided me to accept the nomination for the position of one of two aldermen for Sydenham Ward. Should you spot me on a street, in a store, or anywhere, say hello and have a chat. Can I offer more in public service. Ladies and Gentlemen, it was the many of campus undergrads who stimulated my thought processes through simple chats during my walks through Sydenham Ward. Had it not been for their personal input, I simply could have not addressed you here.

Lois Miller

Lois Miller, the only woman running for the position of alderman in Sydenham ward, is a Queen's graduate. Ms. Miller received a Master of Arts degree from Queen's in 1970. She also holds bachelor's degrees in arts and education.

Ms. Miller says, "I am running for alderman because I am concerned about the future of our community in this, the older section of Kingston."

She considers waterfront development and preservation of historic buildings to be main issues in the ward.

"I want to see the fine old homes and public buildings preserved as a trust for future generations. On council I would work to encourage the modification of old buildings to meet new requirements, instead of their demolition."

"I want to see the downtown area restored as a centre for shopping and entertainment. Yet new development must be carefully controlled by the citizens through their elected representatives at City Council."

Ms. Miller has been involved in a number of community activities including the Gallery Association, the Kingston Choral Society, and the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation. She has gained political experience at the provincial and federal levels as president of the Kingston Area New Democratic Party.

She has lived in the ward on Maitland Street for seven years.

Ms. Miller reminds students that they are eligible to vote, provided they are Canadian citizens or British subjects. An eligible voter whose name is not on the voters' list can register at City Hall from now until election day, December 2, or he can be sworn in at the polling place on election day.

T. D. French

WHY AM I RUNNING IN SYDENHAM WARD? I am running for several reasons:

(a) I was telephoned by a number of interested taxpayers in Sydenham ward urging me to either run for mayor or alderman. As I began to ponder this issue, I discovered that alderman Nancy Foster was not seeking re-election and that a vacancy did in fact appear in the ward.

(b) Having grown up in Kingston over the past 42 years, I attended KCVI and Queen's University, institutions within the boundaries of Sydenham ward. I have a number of close acquaintances who live in Sydenham ward, with whom I went to school and whose children and mine have graduated from KCVI and are at Queen's.

(c) I think that being an alderman for Sydenham ward presents a number of challenges that encourage me to want to be an alderman in this ward.

(d) Until recently, my place of business was located in the downtown area of Sydenham ward. However, due to boundary changes I no longer enjoy that privilege. These are some of the reasons I have let my name stand for alderman in Sydenham ward.

Several problems are of great importance in Sydenham ward, notably adequate housing and street lighting. I have walked the streets of the entire ward during the past two weeks and have discovered many houses that are occupied by students are not adequately cared for by the landlords. I am encouraged by the By-Law that was passed by city council that demands that living standards be improved by 15 May 1975. This will force the landlord to update the living facilities of students and it is my concern that not all of the improvements be passed on to the tenant. If elected as an alderman of Sydenham ward I will do my utmost to see that this by-law is enforced. It will require that the tenant contact me so that I may help him or her to proceed with the necessary city officials to enforce this By-Law. This will require the services of the fire chief, the building inspector and the medical officer of health.

Concerning lighting: The city officials say the lighting is adequate but the illumination is reduced by the large number of trees in the area which diffuses the street lighting. I am certain that increased street lighting can, in fact, be installed particularly between the east and west campus and the area of city park. I have been called by people that live in the ward who have stated that "if you want your purse snatched, come down in the area of city park."

I know that people have been assaulted in this area and if elected as an alderman in Sydenham ward I intend to do something about it.

Season with a winner!

unclassifieds

KEEP THE $1.50, can I have my wallet back. I need my student card and birth certificate. Peter Wilton, 542-6139, 273 Frontenac St. TO FN "ALQUETTE", and Allen. Although our team lost, the good food and company compensated for it. THANKS Tom: hope the damages are forgivable. Love the Cleo-Hunter-Joynt.

TO MARY, Sue, Doug, Craig, Roy: Remember the last time it was done?

WOULD THE PERSON WHO BORROWED MY OLO purple bike during last Friday's Good Brother Boppe please leave it in front of the Union some day as I live far from campus and really need the old wreck.

APARTMENT, partially furnished, Brock and Victoria Sts. Available Jan 5-30-89.

WANTED-ONE VOTE FOR DENIS CRUCHLEY: First name on your ballot to elect two Aldermen next Monday to represent Queen's Sydenham Ward.

ORAMA PRODUCTIONS, SKITS, workshops, improvisations very much wanted for Festival of the Arts All ideas considered. Call Margi 544-7063.

HONEST TO GOD! It's a Religion Smoker! Red Room, Kingston Hall, Nov 29, 3-6 p.m. Admission 25c. Beer 40c.

WANTED-ONE VOTE FOR DENIS CRUCHLEY: First name on your ballot to elect two Aldermen next Monday to represent Queen's Sydenham Ward.

LOUSPEAKERS: 10" x 2 way Philips DeForest system, 40 watts R.M.S., 35224-6dB tested. Excellent condition, 1 year old, in hand-crafted Teak cabinets. Must be heard to be appreciated $350. Call Steve at 549-0185.

PRINTERS ODELAY HAS postponed the availability of Artsci 78 cress until January 6. Pick yours up in the Union or meal lines.

WANTED-ONE VOTE FOR DENIS CRUCHLEY: First name on your ballot to elect two Aldermen next Monday to represent Queen's Sydenham Ward.

RUB A DUB! PLUMBER TUBBER SERVICE. Fish oil Barrie and West Campus sheltered by Bobsey twins in room of 'car'.

TEQUILA SAUZA

Margarita SAUZA

1 1/2 oz. TEQUILA SAUZA

1/2 oz. Triple Sec

1 oz. lime or lemon juice

Shake with cracked ice

Moisten rim of champagne glass with lemon rind, then dip moistened rim in salt.

Sip cocktail over salted edge.

TEQUILA SAUZA NUMERO UNO in Canada, and Mexico.

TEQUILA SAUZA

use it in a Bloody Mary or use it in a Bloody Maria.

TEQUILA SAUZA

Orange juice never tasted better when your screwdriver contains TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

Straight with salt and lemon and you're drinking a man.

TEQUILA SAUZA

Great party starter. Mixes well. Everyone's instant favorite.

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

TEQUILA SAUZA

Questions yet to answer Red Baron and friend. How did hair get ripped out? Prior to events - find duo in meaningless conversation. Money-maker ignorant to storm, unclear monosyllables. Something turned them on! Further info. NB 546-6523 (if 400 lbs. of plumber capable!) ARTSCI 78: Those people interested in playing water polo or curling for Artsci 78 please contact John 544-7659, or Tom 544-7098.

BALL HOCKEY: All those interested in playing ball hockey for Artsci 78 should contact Tom 544-7098.

GREL GROUP 93 is the best, rah, rah, rah. If you don't love it you can...reunion pub. 8pm Monday. Stay for one, or eleven, but be there.

GARAGE WANTED: I am looking for a home for my car this winter. Right now he is freezing outside. If you have an empty garage and can offer my friend a roof over his head from now until April please phone 544-5179.

TO LUNCHEONETTE: lushette, coxette and millette; you are, thanks Steve.

TURNABLE: Dual 12155 with new M102 cartridge and four pole motor, walnut base and plexiglass dust cover, used very little, $150. FIRM. Call 544-6316 before Saf. or 543-8911 after that.

KEITH NORTON, 33, understands the problems of students...and he's been working at solving them for over two years. RE-ELECT A QUEENSMAN and transfer your concerns into action.

TIERED OF LIVING ALONE AND OF COOKING FOR ONE? So am I. I need someone to move in with me. Rent $40 a month. Call Anne Daily 546-4105.

WANTED TWO BEDROOM APARTMENT, near campus for 75-76. Reward offered. Phone 544-9128 or 546-8522.

CASSETTE tape player for sale. Zenith $70 or highest offer. Call 546-4002. Ask for Beth.

FOR SALE: Downhill skis, owner 5'4", Corlino boots size 7, bindings, poles. $75.00. 547-5978. 9am-5pm, ask for Diane.

ROOM IN HOUSE AVAILABLE Occ. 1. For male. Share house with three other people. Three minutes from campus. Phone 546-4002. Ask for Duncan.

OUTING CLUB: there will be a hike on Sunday December 1 leaving at 10am from Jeffery Hall. Bring your own lunch. Those interested must phone Ian Campbell 546-1346.

ATTENTION WOMEN: Kingston's Women's Centre needs volunteers to help out with answering phones and talking to people visiting the centre. The hours are flexible. If you can help, please contact the SVB.

CIBACHROMES—Permanent, fade free colour prints from your colour slides are now available through Photo Image. Drop by our gallery at 33 Brock St. and see a display of these line prints by photographer Ted Zuber.

INTERESTED IN THE MUSIC of the '30's and '40's in the big band sound for your dances? If so contact WH Babe (542-9202) or DG Hallam (542-9240) for bookings. Also more modern stylings, Latin, etc., available.

CAN BE YOURS: 2nd year male student will pay $30 for your single bedroom apartment for 75-76. Must be close to campus. Call Hugh at 389-9869.

PHOTO IMAGE now offers a completed custom photofinishing service for professional and advanced amateurs. Services include 24 hour black and white processing and Cibachrome slide developing, custom colour printing and the new Cibachrome process. For more information, call us at 546-7770 or drop by our studio at 33 Brock Street.

Surveys out, gestating

Everybody knows that hares multiply faster than foxes. Over a period of time the foxes get hungry and eat the hares and therefore level off the population of hares.

Lets bring the analogy closer to home. The increase in housing for Queen's students has not met the increased student enrolment over the past three years. As a result, prospects for the 75-76 school year look grim.

Recently a survey was circulated to 10 percent of students living off campus by the sub-committee on Student Residence

Planning designed to gather further information, "to improve its knowledge of the housing conditions experienced by students". It is therefore, of the utmost importance that these surveys be completed and returned immediately in order to facilitate planning for next year's student housing.

The survey is designed to determine:

- 1) just how bad the housing crunch is going to be in the coming year
- 2) What student opinion is with regards to the quality of their present accommodation.

3) How students feel about the cost of their accommodation.

4) What their proximity is to the Queen's Campus.

With the help of the survey results, the committee can be instrumental in planning needed housing and evaluating the "Bus-it" system.

There are still 310 of the 750 questionnaires to come in.

Planning for next years housing should start now; the foxes are likely to be even hungrier next year.

Residence Polling Stations

- Poll 10: Victoria upper common room (Victoria residents A to G)
 Poll 11: Victoria upper common room (Victoria residents H to M)
 Poll 12: Victoria upper common room (Victoria residents N to Z)
 Poll 13: Leonard Recreation room (Leonard Hall resident only)
 Poll 14: Gordon-Brockington Main lobby (residents A to K only)
 Poll 15: Gordon-Brockington Main lobby (residents L to Z only)
 Poll 16: McNeil House Main common rm (McNeil residents only)
 Poll 17: Morris Hall north common rm (Morris Hall residents only) Poll 18: Ban Righ Smoker (Adelaide and Ban Righ residents only) Poll 19: Ban Righ Smoker (Chown Hall residents only)

One Man's Politics

by Doug Bonnell

Municipal politics is an important part of all of our lives, whether we realize it or not. And most of us do not. Men and women of a city council are not involved in major social decisions. They do not decide on capital punishment, defence cuts or the use of the official languages throughout Canada, but they are very intimately involved in areas that affect our personal lives, areas like the quality of education, housing, city planning, and in our case, the relation of Queen's to Kingston. As such it is discouraging to know that little more than thirty percent of Kingstonians will vote next Monday and that little more than five percent of the students will do the same.

It is important in a period when Queen's students are becoming more involved in community life, through Job Bank, Legal Aid, or Outlook, that we become more involved in the decision-making process itself. In Sydenham ward, bounded by Johnson and Centre streets, the student population is almost sixty percent of the total vote in the ward, forty-five hundred of a possible seven thousand voters. We should be looking forward to the day when integration with the city is so great that a student could actually run for City Council—and win. But for the present time we must accept the fact that five percent turnouts do not make a viable political force.

There are a number of factors behind this low rate of involvement. First, students are not concerned with local issues. Most people in residence feel a greater bond with that ambiguous place called "back home" than with the place of their learning. And perhaps rightly so. It is not until second year or beyond that conditions like poor housing, inadequate lighting and open resentment from the city people underline the importance that Kingston has on our lives, and even then the available channels are seldom utilized.

Second, despite efforts by the aldermanic candidates in Sydenham ward to talk to Queen's people, to make them aware of the issues and their potential voting force, the powers that be in Kingston have done nothing to stir up interest on campus or pass on information about the municipal elections which would increase student participation. I would hope that their actions are not a sign that they do not want students to maximize their voting power and thus jill the status quo and alter the scope of municipal politics.

Third, and perhaps most importantly, the AMS has done little to alleviate the situation, to take a strong stand on municipal issues and to make their constituents aware of the vital role we could be playing in Kingston politics. The all-candidates meeting in McNeil on Tuesday, where press, potential aldermen and their supporters outnumbered the uncommitted, is a perfect example. The meeting had been formulated by IRC Chairman Brian Copeland before the AMS finally joined in and agreed to pay for the advertising. Only one member of Outer Council besides Copeland showed up—ASUS President Sue Harper—who bopped in at the end of the meeting to shake hands. If the AMS isn't concerned, or the hell do they expect us to be?

I urge you to vote on Monday. Read the article in this Journal on the elections or talk to a friend who has shown interest. Take five minutes to be sworn in at the poll. But please get out and vote. ed: One Man's Politics' will be incorporated into a political forum page, next time, titled "which way Canada".

Queen's Journal needs you!

AMHERST ISLAND FARM 16 x 24

Keirstead

BLUE VALE MILL PRINT 5' x 7"

Are the IN Posters beginning to bore you?

Consider a reproduction Canadiana at a price you can afford. Now available an excellent selection of high quality reproductions of works by

JAMES LORIMER KEIRSTEAD

This Kingston-based artist has achieved international recognition. Next time you are in Douglas ask for the book entitled Keirstead.

Come and explore our new fall exhibition of Keirstead originals & Reproductions.

FRAMED REPRODUCTIONS PRICED FROM $9.00

UP & DOWN
ART GALLERIES LTD.
813 Princess St.

Open only Saturday and Monday

Re-elect Keith Norton

- * Graduate Queen's (Law '69)
- * Director of Queen's Legal Aid
- * Has assisted with numerous student projects
- * Chairman of Council Committee working to improve your housing—already working with Queen's on solutions to student housing crisis.

"Your Alderman in Sydenham Ward"

unclassifieds

AUDITIONS...AUDITIONS...

Dept. of Drama will be holding auditions Tues. Dec. 3 in the Euripides' MEDA in Convocation Hall at 7pm.

IT'S ALMOST TOO LATE to give a photographic portrait for Christmas. Whether your taste runs from the traditional to exotic, we at Photo Image can accommodate you. Call us at 546-7770 or drop by our studio at 33 Brock. WINTER FROLIC IS ON ITS WAY. If you are interested in helping with the dance on January 11, by decorating or just lending a hand, please call Sue at 542-3002.

LARGE ROOM AVAILABLE DECEMBER 12 in quiet apartment house five minutes to campus on Johnson. Call Jim 542-7052 anytime before 11 pm.

MAKE A NOTE OF THIS NUMBER 542-8911 and call Nigel Smith next time you want to move anything quickly and cheaply (trunks to whole apartments). Student service no waiting.

SUFFERING EMBARRASSING MISUNDERSTANDING? Creative Language Communications helps you say it right in 38 languages. Translations, interpretations, tutorials, typing and other services. For more information call 542-3760.

RAIL RIDING WITH THE QUEEN'S RIDING CLUB will be discontinued this term due to poor trail conditions.

KI BOOTY FOR SALE: two pairs to fit women's size 7 shoe. Price to be negotiated. Phone Ann at 546-5873. FDR SALE: One man's Queen's ring, size 8.5 sterling silver.

WANTED: GIRL to share 2 bedroom apartment after Christmas. One mile from campus. Phone Sandy 542-6335 after 7 pm.

ANIMEX PRACTIKA 35 mm CAMERA 135 mm telephoto lens. Vantage 35mm camera, with flashes. All in excellent condition. Will consider selling separately. 542-9994 (evenings).

HERE ONCE WAS A GUY NAMED GUB who frequently went to the pub where he'd sit drinking beer.

his birthday drew near, saying all the girls with a tear.

AVAILABLE FOR SECOND TERM 2 vacancies in a double room 12 Main House, Elmdale College. $375 each for term. Phone 549-5242 and ask for Pat or Anne Louise.

LOST 1 pair brown leather fur lined gloves at C.P.C. in Etherington Amphitheatre on Nov. 23. Please phone 549-3418. Reward offered.

FREE BEER! For anyone with information concerning a cherished blue duffel bag containing rugby shorts, cleats, shirts, socks, and Herbal Essense.

lost on Rugby Championship weekend. Phone Ken, 544-7281.

WANTED one liberal minded female to share apartment with 2 other girls (own bedroom) starting as soon as you'd like. Very close to campus. Phone Wendy 542-5943.

TWIT: Passing out during month to month resuscitation proves your theory correct; you cannot raise the dead. But remember it's best to kind to animals week. F.R.W.D. POTTERY SALE DEC. 4th 7th.

Kingston Potters Guild 376 King Street West. Wed. 3pm - 8pm. Preview only Thurs and Fri. 10am - 8pm. SAT 10am - 5pm.

ARTS FESTIVAL '75 requires involvement and participation in all areas of the arts: poetry, music, photography, art and drama. January 28 - Feb. 1.

WANTED one Vote for Denis Crutchley - first name on your ballot to elect two Aldermen next Monday to represent Queen's Sydenham Ward.

HONEST TO GOD! IT'S A RELIGION SMOKER! Red Room. Kingston Hall. Nov. 29. 8pm. Admission 25c. Beer 40c.

FRIDAY NOV 22 had a great, fantastic, and damn good rant. Thanks everyone. Steve HIC.

TO THE GREATEST GIRL ON THE (Marla, Judy, Nancy, Cher, Mole and Mary) LOVE YOU ALL. V. MUCK! - A Stunned Albertan.

POTTERY SALE DEC 4th - 7th. Kingston Potters Guild 376 King Street West. Wed 3pm - 8pm. Preview only Thurs & Fri 10am - 8pm. SAT 10am - 5pm.

DRAMA PRODUCTIONS: SKITS, workshops. Improvisations very much wanted for Festival of the Arts. All ideas considered. Call Margi 546-7663.

More on Page 4

WANTED - One Vote For Denis Crutchley - first name on your ballot to elect two Aldermen next Monday to represent Queen's Sydenham Ward.

WANTED: DESPERATE DAN NEEDS: Rooms, apartments, house, inside or outside Kingston. If you can oblige, phone 549-0145 after 4pm.

WALLET THIEF: Please return ID cards from wallet stolen at arena Tuesday. You can keep the wallet and the whole dollar. Call me at 549-4250 or return anywhere as lost article.

ARE YOU MUSICALLY TALENTED? The Psychiatric Hospital needs people to form a musical group to entertain some of the patients and also play at dances. Drums and some electric guitars are supplied. There is also a piano for your use.

HEY GRADS: MOVING DUTY? We're looking for a 4 bedroom apartment for lease in May or Sept. Can you help? Please phone Norah 544-8174 or Chris 544-8174. Thanks.

REWARD: For the information leading to the apprehension of a 1-2-3 bedroom apartment. Phone Bruce 545-2242 or John 385-1543.

IN BROCKINGTON 4C says thanks. Anishil you're SCHWARTZED: Sorry about the glasses Wombati Turkey don't forget Funky Chicken's got the rhythm; Doug you quitter; by the way, we'd all like to see more of Wayne.

ELAINE? CHRISTINE: The Snow Queen knows who your friends are. If you value their lives tell them to BUNDLE UP.

STUDENTS CAN VOTE ON THE KINGSTON MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS. If they are over 18, Canadian Citizens, or British subjects and resident of the city at any time from Sept. 3 to Oct. 8th. Vote for Lois Miller.

A MALE COMPANION is being sought for a guy with cerebral palsy. He is 22 years old and would like someone to accompany him to movies, etc., and also socialize a couple of nights per week. Please help. Inquire at Student Volunteer Bureau.

SYDENHAM WARD IS MY HOME TDD. Give me your support on Dec. 2. Vote Lois Miller in Sydenham Ward.

WOULD THE PERSON WHO FOUND A GREY PEAKED CAP, with sentimental value attached, at the Marx Brothers flick two weeks ago, please phone 546-2036 please.

HUNGRY Cheats are on the HUNT for a 4 bedroom house. The ladies are willing to take over the "den" May or Sept. '75. The Bush Telegraph Lines: 544-8637 (anne) or (Janet) 544-8848.

FREE! A cuddly KITTEN complete with litter, food and toys. The "pur-lect" Christmas gift! Please phone 544-9723. Thank you 4pm.

LOIS MILLER will be your voice on Kingston City Council. Give her one of your votes on Dec. 2nd.

WANTED: 5 or 10 speed girl's bicycle, size 20 frame. Other possibilities considered. Call 549-1585, evenings.

I WOULD like to buy second hand SKIS (bindings and poles included). Please call Annette at 544-7810.

SYDENHAM WARD IS MY HOME TDD. Give me your support on Dec. 2nd. Vote for Lois Miller in Sydenham Ward.

FREE GASCAPS - any year, any model. Call Art at 544-7766 after midnight.

ATTENTION former SD "Nite Owl"! The pleasure (?) of your company is requested on Friday Nov. 29th at 8:00 for a "Momsie Spectacular Christmas Party". Gimme a break and be there!

K.C.K. - and what happened to Captain Cook after drinking Foster's? He technicolour yanked over the convicts and not even Bazza McKenzie could save them from the raw prawns of bond. Onno and Wombati.

TO THE GREATEST GIRL ON THE FLDDR Happy Birthday LAURIE from 4th Doug.

WANTED, one vote for DENNIS CRUTCHLEY - first name on your ballot to elect ALDERMEN next Monday to represent Sydenham Ward.

CASE OF MISTAKEN IDENTITY: The red notebook that you took from the Leonard meal time between 1:30 and 2:30 Monday was mine. Please return to 305 Morris or call Jay at 544-7867.

1-BEDROOM APARTMENT

to be occupied by a

STUDENT JANITOR

large apartment with kitchen, living room, and bath available January 1, to a student (or couple) who will do minor maintenance. Rent: $115/month payment: $15/month

Apply to AMS Office by Wednesday December 4, noon, giving name, address, phone and times available for interview Wednesday or Thursday evening.

DEPARTMENT OF FILM STUDIES presents

A BOGART FILM FESTIVAL

HIGH SIERRA
(1941, Raoul Walsh)

Friday, Nov. 29
8:00 P.M.
Admission: $1.00

MALTESE FALCON
(1941, John Huston)

Saturday, Nov. 30
3:00 P.M.
Admission: $1.00

KEY LARGO
(1948, John Huston)

Saturday, Nov. 30
8:00 P.M.
Admission: $1.00

Ellis Hall November 29 & 30

SR-50

Slide Rule Calculator
by TEXAS INSTRUMENTS
INCORPORATED

Now available at
GRAND & TOY

This is the one you've heard about... performs logarithmic and trigonometric functions.

- Performs all classical slide rule functions - simple arithmetic, reciprocals, factorials, exponentiation, roots, trigonometric and logarithmic functions, all in free floating decimal point or in scientific notation.
- Computes and displays numbers as large as  $\pm 9.99999999 \times 10^{99}$  and as small as  $\pm 1.00000000 \times 10^{-99}$ .
- Full memory system - stores and recalls numbers.

SR-10

- Full mathematics plus square roots, squares, reciprocals, change sign, scientific notation.
- Automatic conversion to scientific notation.
- Includes rechargeable batteries, AC adapter/charger, and carrying case.

$94.95
NET

SR-11

- Full mathematics plus Pi, scientific notation, squares, chain of constant operations.
- Automatic conversion to scientific notation.
- Includes AC adapter/charger, rechargeable batteries, and carrying case.

$109.95
NET

Available at all

GRAND & TOY

branches in

Toronto • Brampton • Hamilton • St. Catharines • Ottawa
Kingston • Calgary • Edmonton • Vancouver

Editorial

Do you plan to hide on Monday?

by Sarah Yarnell

In urging you to vote in the municipal elections Monday, I am repeating a plea which has become bothersome and cliché with over use.

It is a plea that asks you to be responsible citizens, of course. More important, though, it asks you merely to be practical.

Although most of your life as a Queen's student is bound up with campus life, classes and exams, a great part of your life is bound up with the whole community of Kingston. It is you who often cannot find a place to park a car in the downtown area; it is you who risk assault on inadequately lit streets; it is you who have to buy from Kingston stores; and it is you who will at one point live in a very old, decaying house or apartment in this city.

So, in trying to elect the people who you feel will solve the problems you encounter, you are simply trying to make your own life more pleasant.

Granted, your one vote out of perhaps 7000 is very small. But at least it's a try - it's probably the easiest way to attempt to change things.

You are a student, but that doesn't licence you to live only in pubs and books, although that might be nice. This city does have a considerable influence over what you do; voting day is your chance to direct that influence.

On Monday, be practical. Pull yourself out of the shelter of the library and go out into the real world - VOTE!

President, Aesculapian Society of Queen's University

Letters

Who says AMS doesn't entertain?

Dear Editor,

In regard to Peter Druxerman's statement, "There won't be any entertainment as long as I'm around," that appeared on the front page of Tuesday's Journal. One could perceive that Mr. Druxerman had delicately placed his foot in his mouth.

However, I maintain quite the opposite: Never before have we been entertained in such a variety of ways. AMS resignations left - right - and centre; interior decorating of the AMS office and tape-recordings of student interviews. This is naming just a few of the acts of our (it appears) talent-packed executives.

Mr. Druxerman, do not belittle yourself, please. For while you and your cohorts are around there is entertainment aplenty.

Sincerely yours,
Jamie Corbett

Medicine: quality vs quantity argued

Dear Editor,

I am writing this letter to highlight a few comments regarding the front page article of the Journal, 26th November, 1974 on the topic of increased undergraduate enrollment in the Faculty of Medicine. Initially, I would like to point out that the proposed increase is to 80 students per year; this is an increase of five students per year over the 1974-75 admission, but an increase of ten students per year over the previous years' admission. Hence the student body size would increase by a total of 35 over the present and 40 students (14.3 per cent) over previous years.

I must agree that Ontario medical schools have a responsibility to the people of Ontario to provide more Canadian trained physicians but most certainly this obligation extends to include high quality Canadian trained physicians. The students feel that increase in present enrollment would cause a decrease in the quality of Ontario medical graduates since we are "critically thin" in the area of clinical resources. Without delving into the various arguments as to whether or not Ontario medical schools produce sufficient numbers of graduates, the students believe that any increases should be borne by other medical schools in Ontario which have better clinical resources.

In conclusion, I would like to emphasize that the students' main worry is that any increase in quantity will ultimately lead to a decrease in quality of graduates. It is all too unfortunate that the financial situation of the Faculty must enter into the picture to such a large extent.

Sincerely yours,
Greg Thomson
President, Aesculapian Society of Queen's University

Parapluie- to you too

Dear Editor,

I was shocked and dismayed to read the libelous editorial calling for an end to umbrellas. Once again we see the evidence of the Journal's basically biased and uninformed reporting. I happen to know that no umbrellas were consulted for their opinion in this extremely controversial question. If such articles continue to appear in the Journal, I shall have but one recourse: I shall cancel my subscription.

Yours shocked and dismayed
Victor L. Brodie
a card carrying umbrella

Monsters Unite!

Dear Editor,

Paul Mitchell's article on the Sasquatch was informative reading and extremely timely. I watched with interest the Robert Wolper special on "Monsters of the Smithsonian" last evening, and while not convinced of the animals' existence I was certainly enlightened. Is there any place in Kingston that rents monkey-suits? A friend and I want to make a film.

Sincerely,
Evan Thompson

Vol. 102, No. 24
Fri., Nov. 29, 1974
Queen's University
Kingston, Ontario

Features Editors: Wendy Reynolds, Laurie Gibson
Arts Editors: Kerry White, Peter Haworth
Sports Editors: Lyn Atwood, S. U. Z. a n h e
Photo Editor: John Cameron
Backpage: Val Colton
Walt's Hapline: Rosemary Knight
Jennifer Hastings
Classifieds: Leslie Gaukrodger, Trish Brooks

Contributors: Anne Milne, Goenna (play out my way in Humphrey), Michael Creagan, O.C. (where is all that free beer?), Donnell (with a O see Oougy, Uncle Oan doesn't forget!) a special note is thrown out to Louisiana, where were you when we needed you in the pub?

Business Manager: Terry Collins
Managing Editor: Dan McClelland
News Editor: Sarah Yarnell
Comment: (compliments of Ms. King Bolimley) Well, it's been one and one-half years, and only one... picture of mine has been printed in that whole time. But my time has spread, and the honour of going a masthead, so, here it is! It's not 3 am and we're not heading for the Astor. I don't know about the other mints here: I'm going to go home and paint my bathroom. Goodnight.
Ed. How come everyone gets to comment? cepi me?

Founded in 1873 and published on Tuesdays and Fridays during the academic year by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University, Incorporated, Kingston, Ontario. Founding member of Canadian University Press. Editorial opinions expressed are those of the editor and not necessarily those of the AMS nor the University. Telephone (413) 547-2666. Printed by photos at the St. Lawrence Printing Co. Ltd., Prescott, Ontario. Lithographed in USA on Canadian newsprint.

He needs help So does the board!

December 2, Vote

Board of Education
Lavery

Information Bank takes a Christmas break!

First term operation finishes
November 29 (today!)

Nate to staff: don't forget to sign up in the appropriate slot far next term.

EATING OUT?

At last, the Buttery at Hotel Frontenac is open for dinner 5:30 P.M. - 10:00 P.M. every evening except Monday. The Buttery is destined to become Kingston's finest Restaurant as you will see on your very first visit!

Our short, delightful menu may appear expensive but we buy and serve only the very best products - cooked to perfection by our European-trained chef. Nonetheless, you can enjoy a superb four-course meal for under $10.00.

For students looking for somewhere really special to enjoy Sunday dinner, you'll find nothing to surpass the Buttery. We offer a 20 PER CENT FOOD DISCOUNT FOR STUDENTS ONLY on Sunday. Student Cards must be shown. We are fully licensed by the L.L.B.O. (Sunday included).

HOTEL FRONTENAC

Home of Finnegan's, Muldoon's and the Buttery
178 - 188 Ontario Street, Kingston
for reservations: 544-6881
Your hosts: Anne and Brendan McConnell

Where have all the green trees gone?

Dead and wilting, even one

by Raj Anand

"In 1911, when I arrived at Queen's, it was a beautiful, shady campus. There were no buildings along University Avenue; just private homes, each with its own garden, trees and shrubbery. I don't quite recall what was on Union Street, but there were no buildings. The campus buildings were spread apart, with wide areas of grass between them."

This description, provided by Ross Dunsmore, a Queen's graduate (Science '15) and a member of the Board of Trustees since 1953, points out the vast changes which the campus has undergone in the past sixty years. The area described by Dunsmore is now virtually treeless, paved over with concrete or lockstone, and thickly populated with campus buildings. The intervening years have been a steady deterioration in the natural setting of the University.

What has caused this deterioration? Certainly, one reason has been the growth of the University enrolment. In 1911, there were about 1900 students, about one-fifth of the present figure. It is unrealistic to expect that without a similar increase in land area, the demands for office and classroom space could be met without sacrificing some of the natural quality of the campus. The result was that the wide green spaces between buildings were replaced by new construction. Grass disappeared in favour of concrete sidewalks and paths. Natural shade provided by trees gave way to the shadows of limestone buildings.

These changes have happened gradually, and this is precisely why they have gone on so long, unchecked and unnoticed by the student body. Individual trees going down have been small cause for alarm; only returning graduates, it appears, have been able to see the difference after being away for several years. It seems never to have occurred to Queen's students over the past fifty years that this process of deterioration could be reversed: that trees and grass could be planted in areas where they have been removed.

Into this void steps Project Green, an organization registered as an AMS club this year. Its primary aim is to establish a continuity of membership which would carry on the task of raising money to buy and plant trees which was begun last year by the Arts 75 Forever Green fund-raising effort. As founder and President, Dave Gordon heads an executive of four people and an overall membership of fifteen.

The immediate concern of Project Green is to replace elm trees which have died of Dutch Elm disease. The last fifteen years have seen virtually all elm trees in Kingston wither and die; in the last five years, most such trees have been cut down.

According to Dr. Alan West of the Biology Department, Dutch Elm Disease is caused by a fungus which grows in the water-conducting parts of the tree. This results in the water vessels losing their function; leaves wilt, curl up and turn a process known as "flagging", brown streaks discolour the outer wood, and the tree ultimately dies.

Dutch Elm disease is spread from tree to tree by two beetles: the native elm bark beetle and a smaller European elm bark beetle. Beetles breed in dead or dying elm material become contaminated by the spores of fungus. When they fly to healthy elms, they introduce the spores into the tree and consequently spread the disease.

The disease never have been introduced in North America had it not been for a particular sort of elm trees which reached the United States about forty years ago. These elms came to New Jersey and Ohio; from there, the disease spread outward. One moved northward from Ohio into Ontario, the Detroit-Windsor area; the other travelled through New England up to Maine and infected the native elm bark which already lived in Quebec. The trees met just about at Kingston; Dutch Elm Disease is now widespread in a stretching eastward from Lake Superior to Nova Scotia.

"To date, there is no commercially available method of an elm tree once it has been attacked by Dutch Elm Disease." With this gloom, a booklet prepared by Forest Canada's Forestry Service goes on to describe some of the measures which are used to prevent the spread of the disease from one healthy tree. One obvious start is on importation of elm and elm products from Europe. A second method is to dig up and destroy a stricken tree by digging between it and its healthy neighbours, thereby severing the root systems through which the disease can spread. Current research is centred on ways of introducing virus into trees to halt the spread of the disease while having no toxic effect on the tree. Canadian Forestry scientists have recently developed an injection system which meets these standards; the problem is, such a strategy can only be effective on individual, high-value elms.

Where does Project Green? For all intents and purposes, elm trees are a lost cause in Kingston. A few elms which are still standing will be cut down in the near future. Plans call for the planting of a wide variety of trees of all sizes and colours. "Green is a but variety helps," said Gordon. "It includes spruces and four types of pines, as well as oak, maple (sugar and red), and willow trees. Between the 'army' and MacIntosh-Corry Hall to Richmond and Dunning Halls, Project Green has evergreen courts, with trees of all heights. Landscaping plans call for planting of small Russian olives and pines. Large trees, however, are a lower priority as far as planting goes. The cost must be for Project Green: get the tree, get the planting mechanism in gear.

Since its inception last month, Project Green has collected a small amount of money, although not nearly enough to implement even its most basic plans. As an AMS club, it was granted $200 along with its constitution; one of the wings in Victoria Hall decided to donate their floor's "party fund" of $100 to Project Green; and two ash trees and one oak were delivered and planted courtesy of Arts '49 and Thelma Boucher, a Queen's graduate.

These amounts however, can be put in their proper perspective by noting that of a $90,000 fund which was to be devoted to landscaping around MacIntosh-Corry Hall, $50,000 was needed for trees; and of this sum, only $20,000 was available. The profits which result from the sale of buttons and posters (the latter to arrive next week) pale in comparison with the cost of this single landscaping scheme. In Gordon's words, "students can only put up a token amount". Fifty cents' donation from each student would buy only fifty trees, but it would be a start. Put into its historical perspective, it would be the first such student attempt in half a century. Project Green aims to publicize itself through its button campaigns simply to get students interested and aware of the problem. Over the winter it plans to go directly to individual classes and the various DSC executives to drum up support. It will then be able to go to the alumni, who are expected to be the major source of funds, and show them that there is a worthwhile cause which needs their support.

Another expected source of money is the Queen's Capital Fund and its associated Rainbow Projects, of which Project Green is one. The Capital Fund aims to raise five million dollars over the next five years to keep the University afloat. Gordon hopes that if its people can be convinced of the urgency of Project Green, a significant sum will be channelled to his group.

Project Green is not restricting itself to the planting of trees; a major concern is the fairly recent encroachment of lockstone and cement in areas previously covered by grass. Gordon traces this problem to the overall diagonal southwest to northeast movement which developed on campus with the construction of the residences on Leonard Field and Queen's Crescent. The thousands of students moving like prevailing winds across campus made their own paths, frequently across areas of grass. A case in point is the tiny path forged across a ten foot diagonal between Ellis and Jeffrey Halls. Even this insignificant reduction in walking distance was taken advantage of; the grass was trampled and a cowpath resulted. When bushes were planted to cover the path, they too were destroyed; the final alternative was to put up a wrought iron fence.

Similar problems occur on University Avenue, where the hourly pilgrimage between classes was forced onto the grass when traffic filled the road. The result, in most areas, was either cement or lockstone. What is Project Green's answer? "Better lockstone than cement," says Gordon. "At least it lets the air and water through. Trees can be planted and lockstone put around its base. Gravel didn't work; people trampled the roots of the trees." As long as grass (even when fenced off) is going to be destroyed, lockstone is the lesser of the two evils. But if Gordon can get any message at all across to the students, it will be: "Keep the grass." A similar situation exists with people chaining their bicycles to trees; the obvious need is more bicycle racks.

This 1964 shot is barely recognizable as the Phys. Ed. centre since it was taken before the addition of the complex, and before the loss of those fine old trees. Is this the price that one must pay for "progress"?

For the time being at least, Project Green's aims are publicity, student awareness and money-raising. Once these goals have been met, its attention will turn to three specific areas for tree-planting: Grant and Kingston Halls, University Avenue and the Miller-Nicol Halls area. Whether in terms of historical perspective or simply to improve the appearance of our campus in 1974 Project Green seems justified in its concern. As Ross Dunsmore, who knew the campus in 1911 as well as today, said: "It delights me that there is some feeling among the student body that something should be done. I think a good start has been made."

In the old days, lining up outside Dunning for the weekly flick was at least more picturesque.

Although you may find it hard to believe, this shot, taken from the stone gate posts on Union St. looking towards Theological Hall, is only ten years old. It really is difficult to recognize this well-traversed route which most of us use every day. Although a few low shrubs have been planted to replace the trees, it is apparent that it's just not the same as all that leafy foliage.

J. L. Murray

a candidate for re-election to

The Frontenac County
Board of Education

- A graduate of Queen's
- Four children are graduates of Queen's
- A member of Queen's Council for fifteen years.
- A member of the Executive Committee of Queen's Council for five years.
- Deputy Chief Examination Proctor at Queen's for eight years.

TICKETS FOR Wanderlust

V Saturday,
January 11

Now on Sale

Available

At The John Orr Room and
the Meal Lines $8.50

THE BIGGER... THE BETTER? A DIAMOND FABLE

The moral of our story is simple... don't judge a diamond by size alone. Quality not quantity decides the value of a diamond. We can show you how cutting, clarity and color determine the worth of a diamond. You'll dazzle with pride knowing you've chosen the best like the experts do... and that's no fable.

KINNEAR D'ESTERRE
JEWELLERS
168 PRINCESS STREET
KINGSTON, ONTARIO

Bogey

Everyone's favourite tough guy

by Mike Cragen
In a day and age which lacks any heroes, the Film Department's Humphrey Bogart Film Festival reminds us that the movies can provide people who are still to be admired. Consisting of High Sierra (1941), The Maltese Falcon (1941), and Key Largo (1948), the Festival will be held tonight and Saturday.

Affectionately called "Bogey", Bogart's appeal lies in the "tough guy" individual image with his cynical attitudes and personal set of values and morals. It is a character that has the audience's fascination; they laugh at his cynical jokes and cheer at his tough heroics, each probably wishing they possess even a few of his qualities.

The tough guy image was created in his gangster films of the 1930's, and between 1936 and 1941, he played a variety of hardened and merciless law breakers. This phase of Bogart's career was brought to an unofficial end with the death of his character in High Sierra by Raoul Walsh. He portrays Roy Earle, an aging gangster who pulls one last job, but unlike the one dimensional mobsters of the past films, Earle is a sympathetic and warm human being. It is one of Bogart's best and most intelligent performances and it cleared the stage for his next character development.

It was The Maltese Falcon that skyrocketed Bogart's popularity. As private detective Samuel Spade, he is in conflict with the underworld, as well as at odds with the law. Bogart allies himself only with those who meet his standards, playing no favourites. John Huston's directorial debut, The Maltese Falcon presented the prototype of the definitive Bogart character, which achieved its fullest realization as Rick in Casablanca Harry Morgan in To Have and Have Not, and Philip Marlowe in The Big Sleep.

Another Huston flick, Key Largo presents a variation on this character; Bogart portrays a disillusioned war hero who becomes stranded on an island with Edward G. Robinson and his mob. Bogart avoids direct confrontation with them repeatedly throughout the film, and only reluctantly thwarts their criminal activities after he decides to stand up for his principles. Although from another era, Bogey's flicks still enjoy the mass popularity they received decades ago, and many a Bogart cultist will boast he stayed up to watch a late movie "because Humphrey was in it." So for them, and the two people on Campus who have never seen his films, the Festival offers the movies this weekend in Ellis Hall.

"See you there, sweetheart!"

book review

Take An Ape To Lunch: A Compendium of Pongid Philosophy
Swamp Books, 1974

by Nina Maendeleo
In view of the recent resurgence of speculation in the mass media dealing with our brethren, the aforementioned author graciously consented to a review of her first book (and hopefully not her last): Take An Ape To Lunch, subtitled: A Compendium of Pongid Philosophy. The pongid for any illiterates is the ape's scientific name; many of us assume the name homo sapiens; well, each to their own.

The author contends that the apes have been given, undeservedly bad reputations. The "Planet of the Apes" movie series has erroneously portrayed various species of ape to be as cruel and calculating as humans - how unfair. It is also to be noted that there are many individuals wandering about the streets today who have not yet come to the realization that they are actually apes. One can be reassured of this by watching the antics of others: climbing trees or eating bananas (an act frequently committed in Leonard Field Cafeteria, although the rubbery texture leaves something to be desired). The engineering bash at Clark Hall at the end of last year, must have reaffirmed many peoples notions that apes have evolved from men, or something like that (see Darwin).

The reader need only remember some of the famous apes of history: the ever-popular Cheetah in the Tarzan films, or King Kong who was done in by a nice pair of legs, Fay Wray's, that is, and a number of apes who were the first astronauts.

This one-page book is filled with incredible, inane trivia, enough to cause heart palpitations. "I never met an ape I didn't like," or "God created the ape in His own image" are some well-known ape sayings. Such quotations have given us some of the ape's perspectives towards life. Did you know that the ape vocabulary has found a prominent place in the English language? You didn't? Well read on: canape, ape-riote, tape - zounds! Apes are everywhere.

When questioning the author as to the relevance of such concepts to our civilization, she proceeded to hunt for nits in her hair, with wild gesticulations and a series of guttural "oo-oo's". Thus it is hoped that the ape will recognize the status of the ape in our society and will allow our simian cousins to find true peace, and, if you see an ape, or hear one coming, take it to lunch (or dial 546-1101 for the Kingston Psychiatric Hospital).

(be reminded that the Monty Python movie will be shown on Thurs. Dec. 5 at Dunning Hall at 8:00 - be there!)

Gaels Orientation '74 GAEL GROUP MONEY

Pick-up: Weds., Thurs., Fri., Nov. 27, 28, 29

A.S.U.S. Office (B105, Mac-Corry)

10:00 - 12:00 and 2:00 - 4:00

$14 per gael group

1 gael to pick up money and divide it among the other gaeles in his/her group

STUDENT HEALTH SERVICE

MEDICAL CLINIC — 547-6104 — 24 hours daily
(Answering service contacts a duty physician when the Health Service is closed.)

CLINIC HOURS — 9:00 am - 11:30 am
1:00 pm - 4:00 pm
Monday to Friday inclusive

PSYCHIATRY & COUNSELLING — By appointment
9:00 am - 5:00 pm phone 547-2889 or come to Health Service to make an appointment.

GREB-KODIAK BOOTS-

Waterproof, Insulated, Plain or Steel Toe.

Sizes 4 to 13

Always Your Size in Stock at the Best Price

LARRY'S

Men's Wear at
354 King St., East

Just 3 Doors from Princess St.

McArthur Dramatic Arts presents
Lorna Wilson in

THE EFFECT OF GAMMA RAYS
ON MAN IN THE MOON

MARIGOLDS

PAUL ZINDEL

NOV. 28,
29
30

Production directed by Larry O'Farrell; November 28, 29, 30, 8:30 p.m.; McArthur Theatre, Queen's West Campus; Tickets $1.50 ($1.00 students). Available at Division of Concerts Box Office, Agnes Etherington Art Centre.

FRIED CHICKEN
★ ★ ★ BURGERS

Monday to Friday 10 a.m. - 10 p.m. Saturday, 10 a.m. - 8 p.m.
Delivery anywhere within City limits 65 extra - and Delivery outside City limits slightly extra.

Denis CRUCHLEY
Respectfully
Solicits
Your Vote
For ALDERMAN in historic SYDENHAM WARD

On MONDAY
DECEMBER 2, 1974

Avid City Council Observer - 16 years
(first name on your ballot for ALDERMAN).

DENIS CRUCHLEY

X

Chronicles XXV

A glimpse of the absurd

by Norman James
Imagine if you will, a police state of the future. Imagine that the police state is on the verge of reaching the long awaited utopia. Crime has ended; the people face extinction, and the task of creating crime to justify their existence. To catch a glimpse of the future, you should see the Drama Department's Chronicle XXV production of The Police, by Mrozek.

Director Russ Waller's production of this satire does not cause the audience to laugh uproariously and to roll about on the floor, and I do not believe that he ever intended such a comedy. Rather he has presented an amusing play that holds us in our seats with large smiles plastered all over our faces. Occasionally an actor tried to play a line for a laugh, but the small audience, perhaps slightly inhibited held to its smile, and still enjoyed the show.

The evident lack of experience in some of the acting also did not detract from the show. We were presented with caricatures of characters, with Glen Piper as the fanatic chief of police, Larry Moore as the nicely enigmatic criminal-turned-police lieutenant, and David Fanstone as just the cowardly General that we had anticipated. Sometimes the acting was forced, but despite this, and the fumbled lines, the acting came off clean.

The play itself gives a frustratingly peaceful look at a brave new world. These characters must try to create some sort of obstacles just to survive, and not to do mankind any good. The dialogue is composed of intricate and tongue-twisting dialogue as everyone declares their allegiance to the state and the infantheking and hisunclethergent. At each mention of the king everyone rises and salutes, including the police constable in the lighting booth.

Friday is the last night to see The Police, but there are two performances. If you can break free for an hour, try and catch the show. It is well worth the free admission, and perhaps it will give you something to ponder, but don't worry if it doesn't.

Oistrakh overwhelming

by Hugh Agnew

Igor Oistrakh is undoubtedly an accomplished, spectacular, and highly polished violinist. The Grant Hall concert on Monday, however, was more like a nineteenth-century touring virtuoso display than a deeply artistic concert performance.

Admittedly, there is quite a bit of room for differences of interpretation in that statement, but it seemed to me that while Oistrakh was at all times technically brilliant and even superb, there was something lacking in a number of the works performed. Was he a good violinist? Of course. Was it an enjoyable, fun concert? Yes! But did he perform some of the great artistic masterpieces of the repertoire?

The first of the program consisted of two sonatas, one by Mozart, the Sonata in D major, K. 306, and the Beethoven Sonata No. 1 in minor, Op. 30, no. 2. The Mozart sonata represented a transition between his earlier works, in which the violin is really secondary to the piano, and his later, mature violin sonatas. Although rather uninspired Mozart, this selection was given a clean and effective performance. The violin and piano traded the prominent position back and forth with a nice play of dominating and supporting parts.

Several loud words of praise should be said of Mr. Oistrakh's accompanist, Igor Tchernichev. He displayed a technical ability to match the violinist's, and surely must be an artist in his own right. The partnership is very effective, and was especially so in the Beethoven which ended the first half.

The Sonata No. 7 was the most serious work of the evening, and judging from the interpretation given it, it is a pity that more works of this calibre were not represented. Here Igor Oistrakh was able to show both his technical and artistic abilities, making the Beethoven the high point of the concert. The work itself is rich and complex, evocative of Beethoven's symphonies, and the two artists were able to create a warm, full tone which suited the "Symphonic" nature of the parts.

The concert's second half was almost entirely given over to virtuosic selections from the last century. The only exception to this were three pieces substituted in the program for a work by a contemporary Russian. These pieces were very interesting, clearer and more transparent than the nineteenth-century works, and I only wish I could tell you who composed them. Unfortunately, the announcement of the program change was effectively swallowed, and I doubt whether more than a third of the audience knew what the works were.

The virtuoso numbers began with Fritz Kreisler's adaptation of Tartin's "Devil's Trills". Sonata Kreisler, a virtuoso violinist himself, must have taken a few liberties with Tartin's score, because the work did not sound like an eighteenth-century sonata at all. It was, however, devilishly hard, and Mr. Oistrakh carried it off with real bravura.

There followed the "anonymous" work, and then three pieces by Nicolo Paganini, probably the greatest of the nineteenth-century virtuosos. These were a Cantabile, the famous Perpetuum Mobile, and the Variazioni on the G String from Rossini's "Moses". The Perpetuum Mobile as the title suggests, was an endless string of extremely fast runs which Igor Oistrakh made look simple.

In general, his show technical strength was staggeringly demonstrated in all these numbers. At all times he was cool and in control, seemingly remaining aloof from the music and yet with all the action in his fingers and bow arm. He was truly excellent, so excellent I only wish I could have heard him tackle the serious works of the repertoire.

Music Dept. presents The Christmas Oratio

On Saturday, 30 November at 8:30 p.m. the Music Department will present an admission free concert in Grant Hall, by the Collegium Musicum, under the direction of Wilbur Maust. The program will feature Christmas music from the 15th to 17th century and will include English and Spanish carols, German chorales, and The Christmas Oratio by Heinrich Schütz.

The Christmas Oratio consists of eight interludes which are framed by polychoral arrangements for voices and instruments at the opening and closing of the work. Each of the interludes depicts one of the scenes from the Biblical account of the Christmas story. One of the remarkable features of this Oratio is the association of the instrumental colours with individual groups of characters.

The scenes are connected by the Evangelist who sings, as described by the composer, "in a new recitative style - never presented in Germany before". For this performance the part of the Evangelist will be sung by a guest artist, Dr. Ira Zook, tenor, who is currently Chairman of the Voice Division at Ohio University in Athens. The part of Herod will be sung by Norman Nurmi, baritone, and the part of the angel by Karen Skidmore, soprano, both of whom are fourth-year students at Queen's.

The performance on November 30 is the first presentation of this delightful oratorio in Kingston.

KELLY'S

STEREO MART

110 PRINCESS ST. KINGSTON 544-4014

ROLLING STONES
"It's Only Rock 'n Roll"
LIST 7.29 SALE 3.97

W
E
A

JETHRO TULL
"War Child"
LIST 7.29 SALE 3.97

W
E
A

AVERAGE WHITE BANO
"Same"
LIST 7.29 SALE 3.97

JOHN LENNON - "Walls and Bridges" - List 7.29 SALE 3.97
LOU REEO - "Sally Can't Dance" - List 7.98 SALE 3.97
HARRY CHAPMAN - "Verities and Balderdash" - List 7.29 SALE 3.97
ELTON JOHN - "Caribou" - List 7.29 SALE 3.97
"Greatest Hits" - List 7.29 SALE 3.97

TRAFFIC - "When The Eagle Flies" - List 7.29 SALE 3.97
JACKSON BROWN - "Late For The Sky" - List 7.29 SALE 3.97
THE WHO - "Odds and Sods" - List 7.29 SALE 3.97
LOU REEO - "Rock 'n Roll Animal" - List 7.29 SALE 3.97
PAUL MCCARTNEY - "Band on the Run" - List 8.29 SALE 3.97

COLUMBIA

LOGGINS & MESSINA
"Motherlode"
LIST 7.29 SALE 3.97

COLUMBIA

BILLY JOEL
"Street Life Serenade"
LIST 7.98 SALE 3.97

COLUMBIA

SANTANA
"Borboletta"
LIST 7.98 SALE 3.97

CAPITOL

RINGO STARR
"Goodnight Vienna"
LIST 7.29 SALE 3.97

DEEP PURPLE
"Storm Bringer"
LIST 7.98 SALE 3.97

JIM CROCE
"Photographs & Memories"
LIST 7.98 SALE 3.97

JIM CROCE
"I Got A Name"
LIST 7.98 SALE 3.97

JIM CROCE
"You Don't Mess Around"
LIST 7.98 SALE 3.97

ZAPPA - MOTHERS
"Roxy and Elsewhere"
LIST 10.58 SALE 6.98

8 - TRACK TAPES - Good Selection - $2.00 OFF SUG. LIST
15 - 20 percent OFF - All Record & Tape - Travelling & Carrying Cases

2nd Floor Clearance Centre

DISCS STARTING AT .93 - ENOING AT 1.99
Country, Classical, Folk, Blues, Jazz, Rock, Soul

CHECK OUR COMPETITION
IT'S OUR MOST EFFECTIVE ADVERTISING people SAVE at KELLY'S

DEREK and the DOMINOS
"Layla"
LIST 10.98 SALE 6.98

From the sports desk... Home Action

Ice Hockey: Queen's hosts both OWIAA and OUA A action this weekend. Saturday afternoon at 2:30 the Gals play the University of Guelph Gryphons. On Saturday at 8:00 the Gals will meet York Yeomen.

Basketball: Gals host an Invitational Tournament which starts 4:30 Friday afternoon and continues on Saturday (all day). Gals meet Carleton at 8:15 on Friday night (that's tonight!).

Gymnastics: Queen's hosts its first Invitational Meet of the year; to run all day in the Bartlett gym.

Away Action

Badminton: at McMaster OWIAA Combined I Ottawa Invitational (mixed)

Synchro Swim: Part I East at McGill

Volleyball: Men see action at RMC

Women at Ottawa in East Section I

Intermediates (W) at Brock

Waterpolo: OUA A Championships at Ottawa

Basketball: Intermediates (W) at Brock

Gymnastics: Men go to York Invitational

Curling: Men go to RMC Invitational

The schedule for the Golden Gals Basketball Tournament this weekend is as follows:
Friday Nov. 29

1) 4:00 Smiths Falls vs Queen's

2) 7:30 Ottawa vs Toronto

Saturday Nov. 30

3) 10:00 Smiths Falls vs Ottawa

4) 11:30 Toronto vs Queen's

5) 3:00 Smiths Falls vs Toronto

6) 5:00 Ottawa vs Queen's

OUAA Hockey-League Standings

(as of Nov. 24)

Eastern Division	GP	W	L	T	F	A	Pt
Ottawa	6	4	1	1	31	25	9
Toronto	4	3	0	1	25	13	7
York	4	3	0	1	34	13	7
Laurentian	5	2	2	1	19	26	5
Queen's	3	2	1	0	27	10	4
RMC	3	1	1	1	12	12	3

OUAA Basketball - League Standings

Eastern Division	GP	W	L	F	A	Pt
Laurentian	5	5	0	426	345	10
Queen's	3	2	1	203	225	4
Ottawa	1	1	0	99	49	2
Toronto	2	1	1	143	107	2
York	2	1	1	167	148	2
Carleton	2	1	1	167	133	2
Ryerson	2	0	2	154	168	0
RMC	5	0	5	272	436	0

OWIAA Badminton - League Standings

The first of four league tournaments began this past weekend. All matches are equally 1 point. All points are cumulative in the entire double round robin schedule

Part I - East	Singles	Doubles	Total
Toronto	21	10	31
Queen's	16	10	26
Ottawa	15	6	21
York	5	3	8
Ryerson	3	1	4

To all members of Queen's-past, present and future... NOW is the time for you to come out and support the team of your choice... Come out this weekend and Rally round the good ole' red, gold and blue! (Queen's is something to shout about !!!)

Gael victory costly

by Peter Watts

Journal Sports Writer
For the first time in about three years the Queen's Golden Gals played a reasonably decent hockey game against the RMC Redmen Tuesday afternoon at the Constantine Arena. The final score was Queen's 4 RMC 1 but had it not been for the fine performance of Redmen netminder Chris Amos, the score would have been considerably greater.

Amos blocked 37 of the 41 shots he faced. Ron Shepherd, who has had a hot hand for the Gals despite playing with a cast on his left wrist, scored twice for the Gals. John Cerre and Ted Grant, with his first of the year, scored as well. Dave Hall was the lone RMC marksman, beating netminder Clyde Harris near the midway mark of the opening period.

The game was a costly one for the Gals, however, as they lost Cerre midway through the second period. The smooth skating centre fell on his shoulder behind the Redmen net. He suffered a dislocated shoulder and will be out of action for at least six weeks. Cerre was the leading goal scorer for the Gals and was centering the club's top line at the time of his injury.

The loss of Cerre couldn't have come at a worse time. Tonight, the Gals face one of the perennial powerhouses of the eastern division: the York

Yeomen. The Yeomen have 3 wins and a tie in four games, and led by a strong group of returning veterans, including Al Avery, Doug Dunsmaur and Tim Appleford, who led the league in goals last year. In addition the Yeomen have added a goaltender who played at the University of Michigan last year and Bob Wasson who toiled last year for the Peterborough Petes of the OHA Jr. A League. This is perhaps the strongest team that will visit the Harty Arena this year and it is hoped that a good crowd will be on hand. Game time is 8 pm, and the game will be carried on CFRG 1490.

Wrestling at large

In the first two tournaments of the year Queen's has produced two champions. Alex Faseruk, 167 lbs., won the Eastern Ontario Junior Championships November 17 at Monpetite Hall, Ottawa University. Also, Danny Plimpton, 118 lbs., won the Ryerson Invitational, Nov. 24 in Toronto and is Queen's best hope for an OUA A champion this year.

Returning veterans who are looking good are Ron Datson (134 lbs.), Randy White (177 lbs.) and Del Delmonte also 177 lbs. Up and coming rookies are Doug Sands (150-165 class) and John Veenstra at 138 lbs.

This team is however suffering from a lack of competitors, which was apparent at the Ryerson Invitational where, out of 180 wrestlers, Western had 30 competitors and Queen's had only 6. There were no wrestlers in the 109 lbs., 126 lbs., 190 lbs., 220 lbs., or HWT Weight classes. Any and all Potential wrestlers are invited to attend practices in the combatives room at the Phys Ed Complex, Mon. Fri., 5:30-7:30.

Also needed are timers and scorers for the wrestling tournaments to be held at Queen's on Dec 7 and January 11. Anyone interested in making a few extra dollars are asked to contact Dr. Albinson at the Phys. Ed Centre.

Crystal Restaurant
TASTY FOODS
COURTEOUS SERVICE
"THE PLACE WHERE ALL GOOD PEOPLE MEET & EAT"
STEAKS - CHOPS - CHICKEN - SEAFOOD
STAGHEIT - SHISH KEBAB
SULJANI - SIBIRIAN
OPEN 7 DAYS
Try our Delicious Shish Kebab
240 PRINCESS
TAKE OUT SERVICE
Free Delivery Over $3.00
KGTN 542-8515

ENGLISH LECTURE SERIES

Professor Robert Cluett of York University will speak on:

"Pythagoras summons the muse": A discussion of the new computerized criticism.

Dec. 2 Watson Hall Rm. 517
8:00 p.m.
No admission fee

Royal Tavern
344 PRINCESS
(Between Barrie and Clarendon)
A fine restaurant since 1951
by Sir John A. Macdonald

It's a bird...it's a plane...it's the Queen's Skydiving Club!!! Shot taken by a daring free falling photog.

WIC-ly News

by Barb McDermott
Journal Sports Writer

Final WIC meeting to be held Wed. Dec. 4 at 5:30 pm in Seminar Rm. A at the P.E.C. All WIC Athletic Convenors and Athletic Sticks ATTEND. Results of the SWIMATHON to date are as follows:

1st - Jill Cooper (311 lengths)
2nd - Cathy Spoel (259 lengths)
Arts is leading with 1,305 lengths, Phys. Ed. is second with 555 lengths totalled. The race for the highest number of laps will be continued next term - watch for the next Swim Nite to be held in January. The second term convenor appointments are as follows:

Snowshoeing - Christa Craig
Cross-Country Skiing - Barbara McDermott
Swim Night - Anne Galbraith
Jogathon - Anne Brown
Curling - Kathy Keely
Volleyball - Kathy Jackson
Squash - Willa Henry
Skating - Debbie Stretton
Archery - Betty Dickie

AUDITIONS

For singers, dancers, jokers, skaters, musicians, M.C.'s, one-man routines, and especially comedy skits are being held in Lower Vic this coming Tuesday, Dec. 3. Lend your talent for:

WINTER FROLIC VARIETY NIGHT

(STAGE FRIGHT)

(sponsored by Artsci 78 and the AMS)

Time for the try-outs is between 7 and 10:30 p.m. or get an audition "time slot" -

Phone: Dave Mazzei: 546-1623
Peter Meech: 544-7088

Ye old sleighe ride DURING Winter Frolic Week

STAGE FRIGHT-VARIETY NIGHT

-ACTIVITY DAY

-UKRAINIAN NIGHT

-THE SNOW SHOE SHUFFLE
AND

A LITTLE SNOW?

January 8th 9th 10th 11th, 1975

FESTIVAL OF THE ARTS

ART EXHIBITION -
PAINTINGS, DRAWINGS, CRAFTS, GRAPHICS,
ART WORKSHOPS:

DEMONSTRATORS NEEDED IN ANY CRAFT

CONTACT INEZ
VERHOVEN
546-5370

January 28-February 1 1975

Don't Miss!

THE KING'S SINGERS

vocal sextet
"nothing less than a band of super virtuosi" - San Francisco

TONIGHT

St. George's Cathedral 8:30 p.m.
Tickets: $4 general, $3 discount
Box Office: 547-6194
A Division of
Concerts Event

Ski Instructors

Applications are now being received for Ski Instructing Positions in this year's SKI SCHOOL sponsored by The School of Physical & Health Education and The Recreation Services Committee. Interested persons should fill out application form in Recreation Office (Room 102A) of Physical Education Centre by December 5th.

JEAN ROYCE HALL
PRESENTS
CHRISTMAS BLIZZARD
SAT. NOV. 30 8:30 TO 1 AM
TICKETS $2.50 STAG 4.50 COUPLE
DRESS-SEMI-FORMAL (OR ANYTHING EXCEPT JEANS!!)
Join Us! MUSIC BY JEAN ROYCE HALL
Dining Room
(WEST CAMPUS!)
TICKETS ON SALE IN JOHN ORR ROOM

Waterpolo 2nd . . . to U. of T.

Queen's Waterpolo Team clinched second place last weekend to earn them a place at the O.U.A.A. playoffs this Saturday at the University of Ottawa. This was accomplished by their three decisive victories - 14-9 over the Royal Military College, 14-7 against York University and 15-9 against the University of Ottawa.

Rookie defenseman Paul Nolan was the top scorer with 13 goals, while veterans Chris Whately, Peter Lapp and Mike Fox had 9, 7, and 6 goals respectively. Team captain Brian Everenden, known for his consistent defensive skill, score his first goal of the season during the game with R.M.C. Gael's coach Simon Beitler was especially pleased with the net-minding of Dave Kay whose leg injury has been causing considerable trouble during the past two weeks. While enthusiastic about the playoffs tomorrow, Coach Beitler admits that the sudden death semi-final against McMaster will present quite an obstacle. This is due to the presence of six members of Canada's National Team on the McMaster squad.

Final OUA (East) Standings

GP	Wins	Losses	Ties	Pts.
University of Toronto	12	11	0	1 23
Queen's University	12	9	2	1 19
Royal Military College	12	3	8	1 7
University of Ottawa	12	3	8	1 7
York University	12	1	9	2 4

Annual Queen's - RMC fencing tournament hosted by Queen's last weekend.

Queen's - a gracious host

by Brian Day
Last weekend the annual Queen's R.M.C. Invitational Fencing Tournament was held at Queen's. This was a team event with competition held in each weapon - foil, epee and sabre. The universities competing were Queen's, R.M.C., York, McMaster, Base Trenton, Toronto, Trent, Brock, Carleton, C.M.R. Medals were given for the top three teams in each event with another trophy going to the best team in overall showings.

In the foil event, York came first, Base Trenton second, Trent third. Some of the top individual fencers in foil were George Lavotto (York), Bruce Peterkin (Queen's), Wayne Hartford (Trent). In the sabre competition, the first three teams were Trent, Carleton, R.M.C. Top sabrists were Marc Lavoi (Carleton), Jean Morin (R.M.C.). In epee Trent took first place followed by R.M.C. and Carleton. As for the overall standings, first was Trent, second R.M.C. and third U. of T. and Base Trenton. The women's foil event was cancelled in the invitational this year. This was because the first part of the WIAC Intercollegiate Competition was held at McGill on the same weekend. The Queen's team unfortunately was defeated by the other teams present. The results were: Ottawa, Carleton, McGill, Queen's.

SLEIGH RIDES

Want to go on a real horse drawn sleigh ride? It's possible at Valhalla!

Make up a party and have some winter fun. You will ride in a 2 horse sleigh around Valhalla's BUFFALO PARK, so you will see the buffalo herd as well. So get together with your friends, phone for reservations, and come on out to Valhalla Riding School Hwy No. 2, Gananoque (on Hwy 2, 13 mi. east of Kingston)

Valhalla Riding School
Hwy No. 2, Gananoque
(on Hwy 2, 13 mi. east of Kingston)

PHONE: 382-3337

Put some better ideas to work

Paul Thompson

X

for Board of Education

Bite the one you love

COMMODORE HOTEL

840 PRINCESS ST.

The Commodore Hotel at 840 Princess St. is pleased to offer all Students of Queen's, St. Lawrence and MacArthur College a preferred rate for room accommodation for their Parents or friends during the 74-75 term when they have occasion to visit Kingston.

NIGHTLY ENTERTAINMENT
in our Lounge

THIS WEEK: Lisle

Amateur Night every Wednesday

Queen's Students Welcome
In Our Lounge

THE LION IN WINTER

1$

SUN. DEC 1ST
MACARTHUR
AUDITORIUM

7:00
and 9:30

TICKETS AVAILABLE:
WILL BE ON SALE AT THE DOOR

A brief look . . .

MOSCOW (AP) - Soviet leader Brezhnev has rejected China's proposal for the withdrawal of troops from the "disputed areas." Brezhnev stated that at "first glance it would seem that the leaders of the People's Republic of China also come out for normalizing relations with the Soviet Union. The trouble however is that their words are divorced from their deeds. China wants withdrawal of Soviet frontier guards from a number of areas of our territory to which the Chinese leaders have now decided to make claims and so started calling them disputed areas. The two countries have been looking for a solution to the long standing border disputes since they flared into open troop clash in 1969.

Brezhnev has put forth a non-aggression agreement to Peking covering "all kinds of weapons, including conventional missile and nuclear weapons."

OTTAWA - The federal government has proposed new legislation that will lessen the penalties for the use of marijuana, although it will still be considered a criminal offense. The new law will mean that persons charged with possession of a small amount of grass will be liable to a fine. Possession in such cases can no longer lead to a jail sentence. Trafficking offenses and charges for the cultivation of marijuana will no longer bring severe jail sentences. The penalties will usually involve a $1,000, 18 months in jail, or both. Restrictions have been placed on police raids, and police will be left open to civil lawsuits if they carry out drug searches without reasonable grounds for suspicion.

MEXICO CITY (UPI) - The Mexican government abruptly severed diplomatic relations with Chile this week. The announcement came during the visit of the Chilean Economy Minister, Fernando Leniz. Diplomatic sources believe the action to be a result of Chile's refusal to permit Laura Allende, sister of the late Chilean president, to go to Mexico after she had been granted asylum by Mexico. Mutual distrust has deepened between the two countries as a consequence of Mexico's willingness to grant political asylum to any Chilean that requests it. It is estimated that 700 Chilean refugees have landed in Mexico.

WASHINGTON - The Soviet Union and the United States have agreed to limit nuclear weapon production. President Gerald Ford and Soviet leader Brezhnev have agreed to a "rigid ceiling" of fewer than 2,500 strategic missiles and bombs under a ten year strategic arms agreement. The agreement will require Moscow to reduce its projected buildup. However, Henry Jackson, Senator D. of

back page

Washington has warned that the Ford-Brezhnev agreement should not lead people to believe that it will bring about an actual reduction. "This will make possible the addition of thousands of nuclear warheads".

ONTARIO - The 8,000 native people living north of the 51st parallel in Ontario will be receiving a new telephone network to begin operating in 1976 and 1977. The project will cost an estimated $18 million. The Ontario government will be paying $9 million. W. A. Rathbun, executive director of the Communications for the ministry has stated the government's involvement in the project stems from provincial recognition of Ontario's responsibility to provide inter communication linkages in remote areas of the province. Presently taxpayers are supporting the communication system used in the area immediately south and southeast of Hudson through the Ontario Northland Telecommunications Service Communication.

TORONTO - A Star survey found that the beer drinkers of Toronto spend $50 million to down 6.5 million gallons a year without any legal guarantees that they get what they pay for? The Liquor License Board of Ontario (LLBO) no longer enforces regulations governing prices, the shape and size of draught glasses, the depth of foam on heads or the minimum serving a customer should get for his money.

It was also found that it is often as cheap or cheaper to buy bottled beer - based on the per ounce price. A keg of draught costs the tavern $24.50 plus $6 deposit on the keg. The tavern owner gets approximately 200 - 10 oz. 12 oz. glasses of beer from the keg. His profit at 50¢ a glass on a keg comes to $75.

CHUNG WAH CHOP SUEY
SPECIALIZING IN
CHINESE & CANADIAN FOOD
TAKE OUT AND DELIVERY DIAL 544-6128
217 UNIVERSITY (CORNER OF WILLIAMS)
OPEN 8 AM TO MIDNIGHT
SUNDAY 10 AM TO 8 PM

Queen's University Music Department
XVTH - XVIII CENTURY CHRISTMAS MUSIC
BY THE
COLLEGIUM MUSICUM
Director: WILBUR MAUST
Spanish & English Carols
German Chorales
Schutz: Christmas Oratorio
GRANT HALL 8:30 SAT. NOV. 30
ADMISSION FREE

LOIS MILLER WILL BE YOUR CHOICE ON KINGSTON CITY COUNCIL. Give her one of your votes on Dec. 2nd.

Get out from under it at McDonald's.

277 Bath Rd.
Kingston

Short of funds, Queen's retains deficit policy

The recent announcement of the Government of Ontario's 1975-76 grant for Universities and community colleges has caused considerable consternation here at Queen's (as elsewhere) and has forced the university to adopt a policy of deficit financing for the third year in a row, a policy which, if followed for several years, would result in bankruptcy.

"The Minister's announcement that the financial support to universities will increase by only 7.4 percent per student, well below current inflationary trends, represents a radical and major reduction in the proportionate level of government support for universities in the province," said Principal Ronald L. Watts. This figure of 7.5 percent is less than half of the 16.8 percent increase per student advocated by the Council of Ontario Universities with the endorsement of Queen's. The problem is compounded by the fact that this is the fourth year running that grant increases have failed to cover inflation costs.

In the face of this inadequate increase in funding, many restrictions on spending are expected. Possible actions the university may be forced to take include limiting the salaries of faculty and staff, or reducing staff by more drastic means than attrition either of which may effect the quality of instruction and the number or size of classes offered. In addition, Queen's has cut back on equipment, supplies and building maintenance for three years in order to salvage some funds.

"In the short run," stated Watts, "our option appears to be to moderate as best we can the disastrous immediate impact of the government's decision and to avoid undue turbulence." The grant will impose severe penalties and stresses in terms of the quality of opportunities we shall be able to provide our students and the services we can provide to society."

Norton wins re-election

Norton
1,271

Miller
839

French
736

Cruchley
263

Gaels and Gals

Finally golden!

Friday nights OUA 71-70 Basketball win against Carleton saw the start of a new era at Queen's. The crowd showed a reversal of the apathetic trend, the team showed a reversal of the losing trend. This past weekend men's and women's basketball triumphed. Queen's also controlled twice. Waterpolo finished 2nd behind a team with National player representation. Wrestling, badminton, and gymnastics all had very strong showings. Mens Volleyball creamed RMC.

read more about our Tricolor teams pgs 15-19.

Keith Bourns

Several pounds of food are sent back by students to residence kitchens after each meal - only to be thrown out.

AMS plans fasting day - campus to eat milk, rice

by Suzanne Sherkin

In an attempt to initiate more international awareness on campus, the AMS council passed a motion at their last meeting to sponsor a 'day of fasting' which, they believe would draw more attention to the world food crises, as well as emphasizing the high level of food wastage.

Occurring early next term, the 'day of fasting' would consist of a stark diet of white rice and milk served in all the food service outlets on campus which are run by Beaver Foods.

"It is the AMS's responsibility to bring these world issues to campus, so far they have been ignored", were the contentions of Lyn Whitman (Internal Affairs Commissioner) who primarily instigated the motion. She believes that for the past two years, the AMS has shown no leadership in the political realm and reasoned that this is one of the major factors for the AMS' Council losing credibility with the students.

John Gray, AMS Vice-President (University Affairs) who is trying to implement the action is seriously concerned with the food wastage on campus. He believes that "the impact of this starvation diet is to educate and humble students into recognizing the great waste that they incur without actually realizing it."

When considering the motion, council indulged in a rather lengthy debate concerning the merits of such a measure. Some members expressed the view that it would simply be a superficial demonstration of momentary concern, and further that the students: being forced to take part, would not be involved wholeheartedly. Those in opposition also questioned the intentions of the AMS and considered that Queen's involvement in the international issue would be insignificant.

However, those in agreement admitted that this was an opportunity to demonstrate their concern for the world food situation. They felt that it was a good method to bring the situation closer to home and one which would certainly promote comment.

Brian Hunt, manager of Beaver Foods, also agreed to promote the 'Day of Fasting'. "We will do everything to assist the AMS in their endeavor", but added that he was unsure as to how much awareness the 'day of fasting' would actually accomplish.

Hunt also commented on the incredible amount of food wastage on campus, especially in the residences where the students are on an unlimited food plan. In instigating this 'fasting day', he hopes that some students will be sufficiently affected to their amount of daily food waste and perhaps become more selective when piling food on their trays.

MANDALAY TEAK
CHEESE BOARDS
CUTTING BOARDS
TRAYS & TRIVETS
SPECIAL 10 PERCENT OFF
SATURDAY ONLY
DOMUS
BROCK ST. BETWEEN
KING & WELLINGTON

Queen's Journal
Volume 102 Number 25
Tuesday, December 3, 1974

Douglas Library

In order to provide some extra study time for the exam period, Douglas Library hours will be extended for the Stacks, Circulation Desk Main Reading and Central Information Services Rooms from November 25 - December 17 as follows:

Monday - Thursday	8:00 am - 1:00 am
Friday	8:00 am - 11:00 pm
Saturday	9:00 am - 11:00 pm
Sunday	12:00 noon - 1:00 am

Phys. Ed. Centre

The ice will be removed from the Jock Hartley Arena on Tuesday, December 3 for the Christmas examinations and will not be available for use until Thursday, December 26. All ice activities, including family skating and recreation events will be cancelled during this period.

The Physical Education Centre will be closed at 4:00 pm on Tuesday, December 24 for the Christmas. New Year holiday period, however it will be open on the following dates and family and staff student swimming and skating periods are arranged as follows:

December 25 and 28 - P.E.C. will be open from 11:30 am to 7:30 pm.
Family swimming and skating: 12:30 to 3:00 pm.
Staff-student recreation swimming and skating: 3:30 to 5:00 pm.

January 2 and 3 - P.E.C. will be open from 8:00 am to 12:00 midnight.
Family swimming and skating: 12:00 to 3:00 pm.
Staff-student recreation swimming and skating: 3:30 to 5:00 pm.

Normal operations will resume on Saturday, January 4.

Tuesday, December 3

7:30 pm - German Department Annual Christmas Party will be held in Ban Righ Common Room. All are welcome but the entertainment will be in German. No admission and free food.

8:00 pm - Queen's Hockey Gaels vs. Ottawa at Queen's.

8:00 pm - Department of Film Studies presents Last Year at Marienbad starring Delphine Seyrig and Sacha Pitoeff. In Ellis Auditorium and admission is $1.00.

Wednesday, December 4

5:45 pm - The Union Program Committee presents the annual Union Christmas dinner in Wallace Hall. Cash bar, wine cheap, good food and carol singing.

6:30 - 10:30 pm - Recreational Badminton every Wednesday and Thursday at West Campus.

8:00 pm - Gilbert and Sullivan: There will be a gathering in room C 115 at McArthur for all who enjoy singing or listening to ballads, songs, and snatches from Gilbert and Sullivan. Everyone most welcome.

Thursday, December 5

5:45 pm - Christmas Fireside with David Kemp reading A Child's Christmas of Wales by Dylan Thomas and others will be held in the Ban Righ Common Room in traditional Christmas splendor. Holiday refreshments will be served at 5:45 and the poetry reading at 6:00 pm. All are most welcome.

7:00 pm - Campus Movies present And Now for Something Completely Different by Monty Python in Dunning Hall Auditorium.

8:30 pm - Queen's Chamber Orchestra and Choral Ensemble present Handel's Messiah part one plus Chassi's Christmas Symphony in Saint Mary's Cathedral. Admission Free.

8:00 pm - Biology Department presents K. J. Davey guest speaker. Topic: Hormones and Reproduction in a Blood Feeding Insect in room 114 Earl Hall.

Pubs and Theatres

Manor - Johnnie Johnson

1st Inn - Morgan

Frontenac - Finnegan's - Michael Myers

Frontenac-Muldoon's - Alan Rody

Comindore - Mango

Townhouse - The Graduates

Capitol 1 - Walking Tall

Capitol 2 - The Destructors

Odeon - Airport '75

Upcoming Events

Friday, December 6 - 8:00 pm - G.S.S. Film Club presents Charly in Ellis Auditorium. Admission $1.00 at the door.

Friday, December 6 - 8:30 pm - Queen's NDP Social at 234 Bicknell Cres. Included will be a showing of the slide presentation, "An NDP Ontario". All are welcome.

The Drama Department presents Chronicles XXVI

- Silver Bird and Scarlet Feather. This is a children's play written and directed by Maurice Brestow with music by Richard Bronskill.

Saturday, December 7 at 10 am in Convocation Hall. Sunday, December 8 at 2 pm in Convocation Hall. Tickets free at the drama desk.

Saturday, December 7 - Christmas at the Art Centre

- a family day: making of decorations by the children, decorating the tree, performance by Theatre Five, Christmas carols, refreshments. In Agnes Etherington Art Centre 1:00 to 5:00 pm.

Sunday, December 8 - The WAFLE will present the film Away With All Pests. In this film Dr.

Joshua Horn, a British surgeon who lived in China from 1954 to 1959, relates his experiences as a doctor there to the issues of politics and health in People's China. Time: 7:30 pm. Place: International Centre. Admission free. All welcome.

Wednesday, December 25 - CHRISTMAS DAY!

AMHERST ISLAND FARM 16 x 24

Keirstead

BLUE VALE MILL PRINT 5" x 7"

Are the IN Posters beginning to bore you?

Consider a reproduction Canadiana at a price you can afford. Now available an excellent selection of high quality reproductions of works by

JAMES LORIMER KEIRSTEAD

This Kingston-based artist has achieved international recognition. Next time you are in Douglas ask for the book entitled Keirstead.

Come and explore our new fall exhibition of Keirstead originals & Reproductions.

FRAMED REPRODUCTIONS PRICED FROM $9.00

UP & DOWN
ART GALLERIES LTD.
813 Princess St.

Open only Saturday and Monday

CHRISTMAS FIRESIDE Thursday, December 5

DAVID KEMP reading

A Child's Christmas of Wales

by Dylan Thomas

- and others

The Ban Righ Common Room - in Traditional Christmas Splendour

Holiday Refreshments at 5:45 p.m.

Poetry Reading at 6 p.m.

All are welcome

Advertisers please note:

Please be advised that no ad, campus or local will receive preferred positioning.

T. Collins, Bus. Mgr.

Law applications go to LSDAS

All applications to Queen's Law School this year will be processed by the Law School Data Assembly Service in Princeton, New Jersey. This decision was made by the Faculty of Law after the start of the present academic year and thus those persons who applied before the plan was instituted now are required to pay an additional unexpected eight dollar fee to complete the process.

Queen's and Osgoode Hall Law School are the only law schools in Ontario presently following this system. The Faculty felt that the move was necessary in order to more effectively assess the increased number of applications. At Queen's the total is projected to be approximately three thousand this year. As part of the Princeton service Queen's will receive a greater amount of data with which to assess the influence of background on the individual's success in law school.

During the considerable debate over the profits of taking part in this system, the question of why Canada did not have its own data assembly service arose. Mary Murray, Secretary of the Faculty of Law, feels that this question should again be reconsidered.

Opinion

by Ted Yao

The decision to go to Law School Data Assembly Service, LSDAS was another example of the Americanization of Canadian Universities. Why should we be sending highly confidential data on some of the brightest students in Ontario to a jurisdiction where we will have no recourse to our elected representatives if the files are tampered with or misused? "The data will be sent back," the Dean said. Yeah, "but the eight dollars won't," groused the opponents.

"When we decided we couldn't afford a Canadian LSAT we missed a great opportunity," said another, voicing the opinion that a joint Canadian effort to pool admissions efforts would be likely to die aborning.

LSDAS will not mean that students will be picked "by the computer". In spite of the pressure of rising numbers of applicants, the Law School prides itself on maintaining a human element throughout; no one is refused an interview and every transcript is examined many times to try to get clues that are just not available just from averages and numbers. LSDAS will not change this; rather it is hoped that it will free time for the staff to concentrate on the process of selection rather than keeping track of the tidal wave of pieces of paper.

LSDAS is supposed to solve a second problem: the lack of good statistics for the admissions process to evaluate itself. The demands of finding the right applications from two or three thousand simply has precluded the possibility of good record keeping. A national admissions process must be able to answer questions such as:

-are women applicants better qualified?

-what is the combined effect of undergraduate school and major on law school performance?

With more and more difficult decisions to be made, sometimes based on differences that seem invisible, and automatic fact finding tool like LSDAS almost cries out to be used. So, it seems like a logical thing to do.

But is it? It has been suggested (by this writer) that Queen's adopt its own computer based system to do what LSDAS could accomplish. "Too costly," they said, "and we're strapped for money as it is."

How much would such a project cost? I asked Warren Taber who supervised the contract programming now being done for the law school and he replied, "Five hundred bucks, or time and materials." When I pointed out that ETS stood to get about $20,000 for the same thing, he hastily amended his estimate to "a thousand, no more than fifteen hundred."

But still, $1500 is a lot of money and maybe it's a Scottish play to save Queen's that sum even if it doesn't look that way to the 3000 applicants. The Law School has currently three thousand dollars in computing funds, most of which is spent on the biannual and bizarre balloting system by which law students choose their year's courses. Last year, says George Taylor, head of computing services, the school had close to $5,000 but they didn't spend it all so it was cut back. "Geeze, that was a bureaucratic error," he chuckled. Taylor, "you should always spend more than you're given. But that $2,000 is just peanuts anyway compared to some of the other budgets."

So why didn't Queen's go with its own system instead of shifting the burden to the faceless army of applicants? Probably in the back of their minds, they think the average applicant could afford it anyway. But why wasn't more of an effort made to involve other law schools and the students? And why so late a decision? What will the thousand or so people who have already applied now feel when they receive the notices that the applicant must now send a transcript and cheque to a profit-making Princeton firm? And what about the Law School

IN AN INFLATION BATTLING GESTURE
THE PRICE OF BEER IN

THE QUEEN'S PUB

WILL BE SLASHED FOR ONE EVENING

FRIDAY DEC. 6

FROM 8 P.M. TO CLOSING, THE PRICE WILL BE

45/ pint (SHADES OF 71-72!)

NOTE: THE PUB WILL CLOSE FOR THE HOLIDAYS
ON DEC. 6th. WE THANK YOU FOR YOUR PATRONAGE & HOPE TO SEE YOU NEXT TERM
MERRY CHRISTMAS AND BEST OF THE SEASON TO ALL

Buddha ties for last

Remember that survey at the end of registration line? The survey was conducted by members of an international, interdenominational Christian group on campus called "The Navigators".

Here are the results:

1. Do you believe there is a God?	Maybe	18.6 p.c.
Yes	More than one God	0.1 p.c.
No	No answer	0.4 p.c.
2. Do you believe that anyone can find God if they sincerely try to?	Maybe	10.8 p.c.
Yes	No answer	3.7 p.c.
No	No answer	3.7 p.c.
3. Which of the following ways do you think would help a person to find God?
Church	Self development	51.3 p.c.
Mohammed	Jesus Christ	10.5 p.c.
Buddha	Others	7.1 p.c.
18 percent answered more than one way
5.2 percent gave no answer
4. Would you be interested in receiving more information concerning the claim that Jesus Christ is the way to find God?
Yes		17.0 p.c.
No		83.0 p.c.

Number of students surveyed was approximately 5400

Anyone wishing further information on the survey or The Navigators please phone 546-3077 or 546-6167.

Something to "cheers" about:

Now the glorious beer of Copenhagen is brewed right here in Canada. It comes to you fresh from the brewery. So it tastes even better than ever.

And Carlsberg is sold at regular prices.

So let's hear it, Carlsberg lovers. "One, two, three... Cheers!"

Dunning panelists consider Canada and Latin America

by Ken Dewar

November 27th saw the second in the three part Chancellor Dunning Trust Series concerning Canada's involvement in Latin America. M. Charpentier (once Canadian Ambassador to Peru) and M. Roger represented Canada's External Affairs Dept. M. Pick is Canada's Ambassador to the Organization of American States (OAS). M. Tanguay director of the Latin American Branch of the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA) and Rev. Wm. Smith, Head of the Latin American Dept. of Canadian Catholic Conference participated in the panel discussion centered on the question of institutional co-operation between Canada and Latin America.

Before a moderately sized crowd (of which few were students) the panelists responded to questioning from their moderator and members of the audience. Pick outlined Canada's role in the OAS as that of a passive observer who has declined offers to become a chartered member on several occasions. He pointed out that Canada's participation in OAS as an active member could damage trade and diplomatic relations with other member nations such as the USA, and for these and other reasons he felt Canada would never become a member of OAS.

Tanguay, under questioning about CIDA's role in Latin America stated that his organization's idea of the best program for development in Latin America was one which allowed Latin American nations gain control of the newly developed industry funded by Canada, in a short period of time, allowing Canada to eventually withdraw her support.

The Church's role in Latin America was summarized by Smith. In the past the Church has been identified with some right wing movements and has sat at decision making tables with the powerful and wealthy (5 per cent elite of Latin America). Smith denied this was true in contemporary Latin America and cited Brazil where church members are being jailed for anti-regime sentiments.

Smith criticized CIDA and the External Affairs Dept. for basing their aid programs on analysis received from Latin American governments. He maintained that the analysts are members of the 5 per cent elite and therefore bias their reports in order to receive aid from Canada.

Roger from Information Division of External Affairs explained his responsibility was not to "publicize and propagandize" Latin American nations but rather to disseminate information from Latin America and supply it to areas of the Canadian Government where it is used to make decisions about Canadian aid.

Education Commission

Last Lectures are first

by Virginia Kelly

Here we are, less than one week from exams and two weeks until the long awaited Christmas break and before you know it, we'll all be back for more essays, more midterms, studying... It's not all that bad. Gave Clemson, head of the Education Commission, has planned a great variety of activities to try to make second term at Queen's a little more enjoyable for all.

One of the first events to take place is the Last Lecture series, probably beginning the first week after the Christmas break. Seven or eight professors have been asked to give a lecture on any subject they choose; however, they will speak as if it were the last lecture they will ever give! Hence the name - Last Lecture series. Some of last year's topics included: Your Education at Queen's As An Investment, and The University's Role In Society. The lectures are to be held every Wednesday evening at 7:15 pm in the common room of McNeil House.

For all you aspiring law students (and anyone else for that matter), the Education Commission will be sponsoring Law Day, sometime in January. Taking the form of an open house, the Law School's doors will be open to all Queen's students for one day. Information on the school itself and various areas of specialization within the law profession will be available. Students may sit in on classes in the school and may attend a "mock" court in session.

The Arts Festival, an annual event at Queen's, will be held during the week of Jan. 28 - Feb. 2. This Festival is meant to provide students with an opportunity to demonstrate their abilities in various aspects of the arts, as well as offer a learning experience for the unartistic types. In essence the Arts Festival is a "student workshop" according to Clemson. There will be film contests, photo displays, craft demonstrations and expositions (macrame, batik) and a display of Chinese art. As well, there will be concerts, a speaker, student folk singers in the coffee house (the pub in disguise!) poetry reading, and screenings of films from the department of Film Studies.

During the third week in January, a Student Christian Movement organized and AMS sponsored seminar on Canada and the World Food Shortage will be held. Various MP's (possibility of Doug Roche and Flora McDonald) and interested students will be participating in small workshops and discussions on this currently controversial problem. Films will also be used during the seminar.

Next term, the Education Commission will involve itself in two studies directed towards preparing reports on the future of university education in Canada, particularly at Queen's. Students selected at last night's Outer Council will prepare a report on a Nova Scotian professor's recent study on university education in Canada. Volume II of his report entitled "The Royal Commission on Education, Public Services and Provincial Ministerial Relations" is concerned with the state of university education in Canada. The Education Commission will prepare a critique on this report, while examining its effect on Queen's University.

The Commission will also look at the future of the quality of education at Queen's and how it might be affected by the current, severe monetary cutbacks. The university felt that in order to break even next year a 16.1 per cent increase in BIU's would be necessary but Queen's only received an increase of approximately 7.8 per cent. The extra money has to come from somewhere and the Commission will try to find the best ways to raise this money.

SLEIGH RIDES

Want to go on a real horse drawn sleigh ride? It's possible at Valhalla!

Make up a party and have some winter fun. You will ride in a 2 horse sleigh around Valhalla's BUFFALO PARK, so you will see the buffalo herd as well. So get together with your friends, phone for reservations, and come on out to Valhalla Riding School Hwy No. 2, Gananoque (on Hwy 2, 13 mi. east of Kingston)

Valhalla Riding School
Hwy No. 2, Gananoque
(on Hwy. 2, 13 mi. east of Kingston)

PHONE: 382-3337

Londry's Drugs

Special Student rates

464-471 University Ave.

Delivery Available

546-3696

Open 7 am to 11 pm daily

Return home ouffitted by

ABRAMSKY'S
MEN'S WEAR

259 Princess St.

10% discount on regular priced merchandise for Queen's students

AN ENGAGEMENT INVESTMENT IN BRILLIANCE

Popping that all important question... leads to her all important diamond. Our staff of experts is ready to help you find the right diamond at the right price. Wisely you'll choose the finest engagement diamond... a dazzling investment that brings huge dividends... "happiness" for all her tomorrows.

KINNEAR D'ESTERRE
JEWELLERS
168 PRINCESS STREET
KINGSTON, ONTARIO

Gerin-Lajoie

Poor nations must get help for self-development

by Ian Jarvis

"After a quarter of a century of foreign aid and development cooperation, and in spite of huge efforts, what is notorious is that the division of the world between developed and developing is still very real and in some ways is worse," spoke Paul Gerin-Lajoie, President of the Canadian International Development Agency. He emphasized that the aim of assistance to poorer nations must be to give support to the self-development efforts of these countries. "Henceforth aid is only viable as a complement to equitable trade and investment policies."

Lajoie was speaking as the final lecturer in the Dunning Trust Series held last week. In his speech he criticized the past practice of developed countries which has been to use third world nations as nothing more than a resource base. He also outlined three trends in the international scenario that we must take account of in designing policies for the future.

The first trend he cited was the recent emergence of the oil-exporting countries "a new economic and political power in the world". The serious impact of this sudden escalation of oil prices is not fully understood by most people, but in fact as Lajoie put it, "The reverberations on the present economic order affect every nation on earth and almost every citizen". What has resulted is a massive flow of funds from the oil consumers to the oil-exporters, primarily those of the middle east. Lajoie pointed out that in order to pay their oil import bill countries such as Britain and Japan are expecting balance of payment deficits of 9.8 billion and 7.8 billion respectively. The situation he says is even more crucial for developing countries who have no oil supplies of their own and who are now being forced to cut back on imports vital to the development such as machinery, trucks, food, and fertilizer in order to pay their oil bill.

The second trend Lajoie mentioned was the growing impatience and assertiveness shown by the third world countries in their demands for a new economic order. The state of affairs, according to Lajoie, "challenges the political will of developed countries to create and accept more equitable international arrangements". He illustrated this by the fact that more and more third world governments are tightening control over their own natural resources. Lajoie recognizes that this attitude, particularly when it involves the nationalization of industry, is bound to disturb what some developed countries view as "their fundamental economic interests" and as such could result in "heightened militancy and stubborn-retrenchment" on the part of these nations.

The last trend which he mentioned concerned the serious economic dilemma of many third world countries which, according to Lajoie, has left some 200 million people on the brink of starvation. Lajoie says that unless a concerted effort is made by the wealthy segment of our global community to rescue these economies their condition can only be expected to deteriorate until at least 1980.

MBA-GSS

Split forms new society

The results of a referendum held on Friday finalized the long awaited separation of the MBA Students from the Graduate Students Society (GSS) for the purpose of forming an MBA Society.

The idea of forming this society was brought up last year when, due to a great increase in enrolment, MBA, for the first time, saw the feasibility of operating their own society. They felt that "the number of MBA students had grown to the point where an MBA Society can be a viable entity." The idea, however, was shelved until the beginning of this year when it again created interest in the MBA Executive.

MBA students also felt that the structure of their course was so designed so as to cause the students to be a unified, cohesive, and unique group with social and political needs that are different from those of other graduate students.

An agreement was drawn up on November 14 which included the terms of reference of the MBA Society as well as their constitution. It was formulated by a team of negotiators consisting of two people from each of the groups involved; MBA I, and II Presidents and both the past and present GSS presidents.

Of 192 registered MBA students, 126 voted. The final count was 103 in favor, 18 against, and 5 spoiled ballots. Of the 18 negative votes, the majority specified on their ballots that they were rejecting only the terms of the Agreement and not the creation of the MBA Society. The GSS Council vote, represented a unanimous endorsement of the Agreement.

Journal needs typists

You're never snowed under

You find crisp temperatures and new-fallen snow invigorating. An invitation to a good old-fashioned snowball fight. And you'd never dream of missing the first snowfall of the season.

That's because you believe in the promise of Tampax tampons. They're worn internally to protect you securely and comfortably. They can't restrict the high-spirited activity that rules your life. And since they're worn internally, they prevent embarrassing odor from forming.

A day in the snow is no day to miss. Protected with Tampax tampons you can promise your friends you'll be right there with them.

Queen's University Music Department

GAEL APPLICATIONS

Available in the ASUS box in the AMS office, Lower Students Union

Applications must be returned by Wednesday, December 4, to the AMS office.

For additional information call 546-0903 or 546-1070

EATING OUT?

At last, the Buttery at Hotel Frontenac is open for dinner 5:30 P.M. - 10:00 P.M. every evening except Monday. The Buttery is destined to become Kingston's finest Restaurant as you will see on your very first visit!

Our short, delightful menu may appear expensive but we buy and serve only the very best products - cooked to perfection by our European-trained chef. Nonetheless, you can enjoy a superb four-course meal for under $10.00.

For students looking for somewhere really special to enjoy Sunday dinner, you'll find nothing to surpass the Buttery. We offer a 20 PER CENT FOOD DISCOUNT FOR STUDENTS ONLY on Sunday. Student Cards must be shown. We are fully licensed by the L.L.B.O. (Sunday included).

HOTEL FRONTENAC

Home of Finnegan's, Muldoons and the Buttery
178 - 188 Ontario Street, Kingston
for reservations: 544-8881
Your hosts: Anne and Brendan McConnell

Murphy's Sea Food Restaurant

Lobster Shrimp Oysters
Clam Chowder Fish and Chips

to Brock St.
548-7753

AMEY'S
TAXI
546-1111

Journal Party Saturday ... 1 Davidson St.

Night
class.

BLACK & WHITE
SPECIAL BLEND OF BUCHANAN'S
CHOICE OLD SCOTCH WHISKY
DISTILLED IN SCOTLAND
40% alc./vol.

Black & White.
Enjoyed in over 168 countries.

VITAEYMO II
WELCOME II (A BIGGER AND BETTER UKRAINIAN BASH!)
THE UKRAINIAN CLUB AND GRANT HALL HOST AN EVENING OF MUSIC, DANCING AND OLD WORLD FESTIVITIES WITH SENY STEPIV (THE SDNS OF THE STEPPS), CDSSACK DANCERS, FREE FOOD AND PLENTY OF LIQUIDS.

JAN. 10
9 PM

ADMISSION
$1.50
BEER
$.50

YOU DON'T HAVE TO BE UKRAINIAN TO BE THERE, BUT CHANCES ARE YOU'LL WANT TO BE DONE BY THE TIME THE EVENING'S OVER.

WINTER FROLIC WEEK
JAN. 8, 9, 10, 11, 12

unclassifieds

More on Page 8

FOR SALE: Lange ski boots. Men's size 9 1/2, good condition - asking $55.00. Also Art's jacket - size 40 worn once. Asking $45.

TO THE FIVE WOMEN IN MY LIFE: Cathy, Vi, Steph, Jennifer, and Ginnie. Have a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. Love and kisses, Lee.

Happy Birthday GJG (alias Munch) I promise you a good time on your coming birthday. A loving remembrance of 1100.

Gael Group 75 is still alive and will be roaring, bustling and alive in '75. Keep Friday, Jan. 10, 1975 open for a reunion. You too Ralph, Bob, and Furd. Merry Xmas, Sue, Cecile and Andy.

$100 REWARD to whoever can find us 4-bedroom accommodation near campus for '75-76. Call 544-8161 or 544-8162.

LEARN ESPERANTO—Classes start Mon. 15, room 202, Kingston Hall, 7-8 p.m.

ARE YOU MUSICALLY TALENTED? The Psychiatric Hospital needs help in forming a musical group to entertain some of the patients and also play at dances. Drums and some electric guitars are supplied. There is also a piano for your use. Please contact the student volunteer office if interested.

SR11 FOR SALE: Including Radical, Squares, and Square Root Functions, also PHI term and Constant with Scientific Notation. Best the

THE ALMOST EVERYTHING STORE

Famous Brand
Names at Discount Prices

Special Group of Ladies Winter Coats and Pant Coats
Famous Canadian Makes
Plaids, Suedine,
Pile, and more
Sizes 10-18
Regular Values to $89 - 95
at $25.00

We have coats to keep you very warm

10% off to Queen's students on regular pricemerchandise

Abramsky's Men's Wear

259 Princess St.

Downtown prices and Whip off those exams. Only $80. Call Pat at 544-2614

GETTING INTO THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT? The Psychiatric Hospital would like volunteers to share "Christmas Spirit" with some of their patients by taking time out to sing Christmas Carols. The time is flexible, please contact the SVB office if interested.

POSITION AVAILABLE in co-op apartment. Downtown, fifteen minutes from campus. Rent $40. month, utilities included. Phone 544-7262 or 544-0079.

HOUSE WANTED. $30. REWARD. May 1st. For 1 1/2 years. 45 bedrooms. Save the summer's rent. Call 544-3963.

HANIMEX PRACTICA 35mm Camera, 135mm telephoto lens, Voigtländer 35mm Camera, with flashes. All in excellent condition. Will consider selling separately $47-3075. (days). 546-9994 (nites).

ROOM FOR RENT: Good house, close to campus. CHEAP!! Call 544-4153.

OTTAWA XMAS REUNION: Chaudier Green Door, (downstairs) Thursday, Dec. 19th.

DICKIE—Happy Birthday. Hope you have as much fun with your new toy as you've had with your old one. Lots of love Fitz and the Boys.

AUDITIONS FOR THE DEPT OF DRAMA'S PRODUCTION 'Medea' are over. Sorry...Maybe next time!!

RIDE WANTED: TO PITTSBURGH PA. or vicinity, anytime after Dec. 13. I will share with gas or driving. If you are going that way call Nancy. 546-2064.

RIDE NEEDED TO SYRACUSE N.Y. on Dec. 14th or 15th. I will share the price of gas, and provide pleasant company. Call 544-8442.

ADDNIS: In celebration of the 19th anniversary of you becoming Go down to the dungeons And you shall see

A gift from Olympus just for thee. 56, 11, 22, Lots of Love later, Venus.

P.D.T.M. AWARD for the November goes to Pete Breese, All-Star Defenceman for the Q.W.P.A. Road Hockey Club. Pet Skates hard, shoots hard and scores hard. In fact, Pete's 'hard' most of the time. He's also 18 tomorrow.

Hardwarks can live in holes in the ground but girls need HOUSES. If you're going to vacate your HOUSE in '75, please call Anne or Jennifer (544-8148) Carolyn (544-8146) Sarah (544-4246). We'd appreciate your HOUSE.

SKIS FOR SALE: 1 pr. Rossignol ST 650's with Salomon S-95 bindings (skied on for one season) asking $75. Phone 549-0686.

WOULD THE FIRST YEAR ENGINEER who recorded strike and dip results with me (I had on a large yellow parka) on Sunday Nov. 17th, please share the crater results with me. Dave. 544-7184

WANTED: One coed house for 5 or 6 peaples. If you are vacating a house next school year, please phone Jen at 544-8085.

ITS ALMOST TOO LATE to give a photographic portrait for Christmas. Whether your taste runs from the traditional to exotic, we at Photo Image can accommodate you. Call us at 546-7779 or drop by our studio at 33 Brock

We Owe This Man A Lot

The students are presenting Dr. Deutsch with a token of our appreciation. Try and be there.

Place: Bortlett Gym - Phys. Ed. Complex
Time: Wednesday December 4.

11:45 - 12:00 noon

See You There Tomorrow

FESTIVAL OF THE ARTS

January 28-February 1 1975

MUSICALLY INCLINED?

We are looking for all levels of talent and all types of music for the ARTS FESTIVAL:

FDLK, BLUES, RAGTIME, TRADITIONAL, CONTEMPORARY, OR CLASSICAL.

AMATEURS — you need the practice!
PROFESSIONALS — you need to be heard!

Contact:

Pat Jackman 544-7872
David Eadie 549-4749
Kathy Jarrett 544-4540

MUSIC

Last Lecture Series Begins January 15, 1975.

A.M.S. PAGE

CHRISTMAS DINNER

Wed. Dec. 4 - 5:45 p.m.
Wallace Hall

Cash bar begins at 5:15 p.m.
(Polson Room)

Enjoy exceptionally good turkey dinner and afterwords
Join in Carol Singing

A Good Time for all!

A Union Program Committee Event

A.M.S. BUS SERVICE

Would you use the A.M.S.
Bus Service to Toronto ($6) or Ottawa ($5) on:

	TORONTO	OTTAWA
Dec. 5
Dec. 6
Dec. 12
Dec. 13
Dec. 14
Other

Would you come back to Kingston on the A.M.S. Bus of either 4:30 p.m. or 8:30 p.m. on Sunday Jan. 5, 1975.

	TORONTO ($6)	OTTAWA ($5)
4:30
8:30

Please fill this out and turn into the John Orr Room

More on Page 4

many thanks for dinner Saturday night. Still doubts in my mind about Gail's and your skill

100

I suppose to his credit, Mr. Austin, the author of the offending article, is somewhat

Well, Mr. Austin, since you have set yourself up as Great White Father of the Irish, you should be aware that your solution (reunification) is unacceptable to Irish moderates. The Republic of Eire, in all

Canadian newspaper

100

10

Page 10

winter sun».

DIRECTION GENERALE DES PARCS

GET INVOLVED WITH THE CANADIAN ARMED FORCES.

ED NOTE: This is a follow-up to a previous article written by Ms. Wattered on the history of parapsychology. This article attempts to examine recent developments in the field.

Many problems are encountered in the study of psychic phenomena. As has been established, parapsychic phenomena are all possessing of one distinctive feature: their very bizarre, fantastic character forces attitudes of mistrust and doubt. Many scientists, rather than stopping to think about the phenomena and possible explanations, prefer to use an escapist approach. The famous physicist and psychologist Herman von Helmholtz once stated emphatically, "Neither the testimony of all the fellows of the Royal Society nor even the evidence of my own senses could lead me to believe in the transmission of thought from one person to another, independently of the recognized channels of sensation. Due to the degree of skepticism associated with this newly formed branch of science, experiments performed must be doubly convincing, and all observations accurate and well validated. There must always be unbiased witnesses. Then, of course, parapsychic phenomena have been and still are fraudulently imitated by stage performers such as the Amazing Kreskin, or by fake mediums or clairvoyants. As a result of all these unfortunate drawbacks, financial support for more innovative, revealing research into the so-called "psi" phenomena has been limited.

Nonetheless, it is gradually being recognized and its cause taken up by many eminent scientists throughout the world. In the Soviet Union in particular, there has been great demand for further research to be performed in this area. The Russian astronomer P. Zigel writes, "In order to make it possible for parapsychology to be put forever into the services of man, a wide-ranged organization of scientific research is necessary... creative working discussions - in short, a whole-sale approach to this important problem."

Unbiased research analysis

What then, are some of the experiments that have been undertaken in the more recent years to help elucidate some of the more aggravating and puzzling aspects of parapsychic phenomena? One of the first tasks to be undertaken was to prove, beyond a doubt, using quantitative statistical analysis, the existence of the ESP phenomenon. Such tests were preferred over qualitative experiments, which involved the danger of over or under-estimating the true extrasensory nature of the experience.

The basic idea behind the majority of these experiments is tasks which can be done either correctly or incorrectly. Statistical analysis is evidently relatively easy. The most popular of this type of experiment involves the use of cards enclosed in individual, sealed opaque covers, and the object is for the identity of each card to be revealed by the subject, supposedly by means of extra-sensory perception channels. Cards come from a deck of 25, and are of 5 different designs (circles, stars, crosses, squares and waves have been used). This means that 20 percent of the cards may be guessed by chance so a higher percentage is required in order to ensure any proof of the existence of ESP. The subject may use either telepathy in which case the experiment is designed such that the experimenter thinks of the symbol in his mind, or clairvoyance in which the subject "reads" directly from the card perhaps by touching or handling them while still in their envelopes.

Existence of ESP ascertained

Results have been amazing and encouraging, and several carefully conducted and analyzed experiments have been undertaken which can be regarded as proof of the existence of ESP. Most of the recognition for the development of such beneficial and revealing quantitative techniques must go to J. B. Rhine, a one-time botanist who began working on problems in parapsychology under the direction of the rather renowned psychologist, W. McDougall. Most of the work in this line was performed in the Parapsychology Laboratory of Duke University (North Carolina), which was opened by Rhine in the 1930's.

Now that the phenomenon's existence has been verified, we shall move on to more enticing areas of research. For one of the disadvantages of card-calling tests lies in their monotony both to the layman who reads the reports, and to the subject, whose performance level may conceivably be lowered due to lack of interest and enthusiasm. Some more recent experimenters have attempted to liven things up a bit through the use of animal pictures and even exotic symbols, in place of those "hum-drum" circles and squares.

In the period between the two world wars, the French Clairvoyant Pascal Fortinay performed numerous psychical experiments before audiences but in this case, the subject, Fortinay, had a good understanding of scientific methods and their importance. He attempted to figure out by introspection, the mechanism behind this telepathic gathering of information. Although difficult to explain, he found that at times he experienced information as visions or as intrusive thoughts and occasionally as heard names spoken as though by an "inner voice" or he would "see" a name only in the form of a letter or symbol. For instance, at one session, he continually apologized to one particular lady whose name was Pardon, and on another occasion he saw a vision of a man in the audience as commander of an army. The man's name, it turned out was Armas.

It has been proposed that the process of ESP be divided into two main phases: first, the retrieval of information surrounding the cognized event, a process which depends on regularities of a purely parapsychologic nature, including the filtering of information into some assumed organ of perception and its transfer to a storage in the subconscious; and second, the manifestation or objectivization in some manner by the information's appearance in the conscious and possible subsequent visible reaction on behalf of the cognizant (individual receiving the information), a process dependent to a considerable degree on the percipient's psychological makeup, personality and past experience. Unfortunately, it is only the second stage, less important from the para-psychological standpoint, which may be observed and hence deductions as to mechanism of ESP must be made being careful to consider the psychological and personality effects thus making progress somewhat slower than desirable. However, from studies made of various spontaneous psychic phenomena, certain regularities have been observed and recorded. The most striking observation is that ESP is not influenced by distance nearly as much as normal perception is. In fact experiments have been performed between New York and Paris over a distance of almost 4,000 miles.

Another question that requires considerable thought and debate is that involving the precise role of the inductor: the object to which are directed the attentions of the ESP-endowed individual. It has been decided that the responsibility of the inductor lies in directing the subject's perceptive abilities toward the event to be under scrutiny. The psychoscopist (one of our subject's new names) first makes contact with the inductor and immediately established its owner and also perceives something of any people who have previously been in contact with the inductor. Having done this, the psychoscopist is then able to sense details of the lives of each of the accessible individuals (those who have made contact with the inductor become "accessible" to the subject). He then zeroes in on one of these persons, at which point the inductor may even be destroyed without harmful effect to the balance of the phenomenon. Now the whole life—past, present and future—of this person is available to his scrutiny (it doesn't matter whether the person is alive or dead). It was also found that although it is true that the longer the person's contact with the inductor, the greater the likelihood of the paragnost finding him; the duration of contact plays only a secondary role and it does not influence the quality nor quantity of information gained about the contact individual.

It has been noted that a characteristic feature of the conscious manifestation of ESP is the slow development of impressions, evident by the length of time it often takes a subject to formulate, and state with certainty that the hazy form developing in the back of his mind as say, scissors, is indeed the object. Another typical feature is the fragmentary character. The clairvoyant generally picks up only partial impressions and often finds it difficult to piece them together in a correct frame of reference. Hence, coalescing impressions may occur in which the clairvoyant sees two similar but different events as one single event and occasionally arrives at mistaken conclusions. Symbolism is also prevalent in qualitative ESP experiments to such an extent that the impressions never entirely depict reality. Here's an interesting typical example. In one case, the paragnost saw six glasses of beer over the head of one of his consultants, and then suddenly the beer changed into rum. He figured the consultant had something to do with a cafe. It turned out however, that the consultant was born in a village called Sexbierum. It should be pointed out that symbolism occurs mainly in those paragnosts who developed their abilities themselves, and that in many experiments,

The Powers of the Mind parapsychic phenomena

hypnotized subjects give very precise pictures of the observed event.

Many parapsychists describe their obtaining of information about people as "feeling themselves in the place of the person." For instance, the experience of a parapsychist B. E. Schwarz who had a sudden headache and visited the dentist who assured his teeth were in perfect health. Later, the story goes, Schwarz discovered that he had the toothache at the same time as he had undergone a very painful tooth extraction.

Such experiences just recounted are obviously of a new nature and another typical feature may be discerned therein - this is termed "telepathic marginal zones of consciousness." It is always true that telepathic transmission occurs only via those thoughts, sensations, emotions on which the sender concentrates, it has been noticed that often these are psychic activity that are a little off the center of attention are transmitted preferred. Experimenters like S. G. Soal have noted that they asked the subject to tell some name, but stated it at moment of the asking, but some later in the session, while thinking of something would tell correctly the name sought after by the experimenter. Indeed, many of us have heard much the same phenomenon. The times have we racked our brains to think of a name answer to an exam question, and then after the exam is over, when least expected, the answer flashes to the front of our minds!

Russians conceive of "psi energy"

As mentioned, considerable interest in parapsychic phenomena has been taken in Russia in recent years and worthy of mention here. Probably the most interesting work being performed is with finger phenomena. A. S. Novemysky, expert in the 1960's with normally-seeing eyes at the Pedagogical College. He trained to discern colored surfaces by touching them blindfolded securely, and even if there were thicknesses of other materials above the surfaces. Apparently he has achieved a 90 per cent success rate in developing this ability. People as long as they were patient enough and lengthy training periods. The impressions obtained are supposedly of a hallucinatory nature and are highly individualized. A case, as to a possible theoretical explanation of ESP and other psychic phenomena was mentioned in the previous article entitled, "Powers of the Mind." It is felt that possibly hereafter, the forms of energy are involved in the transmission of such signals (as from telepathy). This has inspired the postulation of the existence of a hypothetical new energy - "psi" - energy, which may be propagated in its own "psi" field. The Russian parapsychologists conceive this as a whole new physical field, analogous in many ways to the present concept of the electromagnetic field. In a similar fashion, the "psi" field could be viewed as a multidimensional field with the electromagnetic field as one component and the psi-vector as another. This is still, however, merely in the hypothetical, unproven stage but serves as a convenient working theory.

In the book entitled "Psychic Discoveries Behind the Iron Curtain", it is shown that Russian parapsychologists believe they can take "normal" people in "off the street" so to speak, and if the subjects are willing, they may be trained to be psychic. How is this possible? It is believed that the occurrence of ESP is not determined by being an extraordinarily gifted individual but rather by attaining a specific state of mind. Everyone supposedly has the potential to be psychic - the property of ESP may exist in a latent form in all people. It is apparently most important that the subject attains a specific state of mental concentration (or stillness of thought) and of sensory isolation from the world. In this state, when the arrival of usual sensory stimuli into consciousness is blocked, then the door is open for the arrival of extrasensory stimuli.

As stage telepathist, Frederick Marian wrote in his autobiography "anybody can produce psychic phenomena, if he can only lose himself. In other words, the mind, at such times, must strip off the veneer of normal materialistic habits and strive to reach a unity with something beyond time, space and causality. There is no word entirely suitable for describing such a condition of the mind, and for lack of a more accurate term, I must use the word, 'concentration'."

Is it feasible - a world of potential mind readers? What about the "psi" field theory? Is it plausible, and is proof or disproof of its existence foreseeable? A whole multitude of questions have yet to be answered as the experimental research performed thus far has but scratched the surface of the mysteries shrouding psychic phenomena. Naturally, parapsychology as it now stands in its rather poorly defined state, cannot be of much influence or benefit to man's society except to be exploited by those money-hungry charlatans of the entertaining business who feel they can still pull the wool over the public's eyes! However, even a few more years of devoted research of both qualitative and quantitative natures, this field will have a great deal to offer to the scientific world and to man as the individual in the sense that it gives us insights into a totally new cosm of regularities of nature that extend beyond our physical material world. Perhaps man will come to realize more of the laws of the inner self.

Nonetheless, speculation is always fun, and parapsychology lends itself admirably to this pastime. Why don't you agree the possibilities are out of this world.

Leaving Home: Two Opinions

Worthy drama

by Tim Chapman

The warm old rafters of the Domino Theatre must have eared in dumbfounded harmony this past weekend. For beneath their patient timbers was glimpsed more of that intangible yet irrepresible "Canadian identity" than has been witnessed in a long time. (May "The Hanging Rope" ever rest in peace). I refer to the production of "Leaving Home" by David French.

Thunder and jubilation, it was 'sure' good to see a worthy Canadian piece of drama being performed by a Canadian amateur theatre group. Oh, I hear your cries, your dilettantes of artistic excellence. Meet me at the Plaza at noon on Wednesday and allow me to crap on your aesthetic ruffles.

Viable artistic statements such as "Leaving Home" are not new to this country, nor is this play, in any way approaching greatness. What excites me is that it is at the Domino within three years of its original opening. Canadians are beginning to see some of themselves portrayed on the stage, not some half-assed attempt to give life to whatever distant states of consciousness are heaped upon us, admirably embodied in form though they may be. Canadian theatre is just commencing to take off. The present, competent production in Kingston of David French's fine family portrait is but a tiny reflection of this recent cultural upsurge.

The thin Saturday night audience clearly responded with more enthusiasm and a more comfortable grasp than this observer has detected in a while. A bit of what we are was unfolding a few feet away. Our reaction lacked hesitation; the contact was effortless. As good scripts must, "Leaving Home" expressed an instant affinity with the personality of its milieu, its ambience which is broadly speaking, migrant working class urban, specifically Newfie in Toronto. In its language, its rhythm, its images, its humour lie the thread of our heritage. Its themes and concerns are simultaneously ours and mankind's. They revolve around the ever present exploration of human relations (and want of them) be they parent-child, husband-wife or simply man-woman.

The play is not a subtle, eloquent work—our ears do not soar with its richness, our minds are not confronted with its profundity. At times it borders on a soap opera level of awkwardness, and predictability becomes its most persistent failing, stopping us from ever really being swept along.

Essentially it is an actor's play, for if French's finely drawn characters and his largely believable situation are not fully fleshed out, this dramatic vehicle will not go very far. As an ex-Kingstonian now somewhat accustomed to viewing big city professional theatre (no condensation intended), I possessed fears of having to tolerate weak amateurs acting in a play requiring strong performances. To my pleasant surprise the production held my attention from start to finish. The players looked good out there. One could believe this picture. Jill Hodgkinson has brought out generally able and credible performances from a physically well cast company.

The play's moments of emotional power were never side-stepped and were usually given the necessary thrust the writing demanded. The direction went unnoticed, which to me is synonymous with success in any production.

A sound production which deserves this community's support (including Queen's!). I laughed. I was moved. My interest was sustained. Enough said. Go see it and decide for yourself. The play's running time is only an hour and three quarters; surely even you can spare that for a worthy local effort.

Family scene from Domino's Leaving Home

Jon Willmer

Production destroys play

by Sandy Naiman

One of the greatest tragedies of the theatre must surely be when a potentially good play, a poignant play is utterly destroyed in its production. This, unfortunately, is the tragedy of Leaving Home, now playing badly at the Domino Theatre. Because almost everything, from an extremely awkward set, to the cast of players that was stiff and lifeless, did not work, the tragedy of David French's touching and very human study of the complex relationships within a family was blurred beyond recognition.

The play is not an easy one to pull off well, but it seems to me that it must have been even more difficult for director Jill Hodgkinson to deface it so completely.

The actors were poorly cast to begin. Shelley Ledger as Marry Mercer, the quiet but iron strong matriarch, could barely utter a line without garbling her words or stumbling awkwardly over them. David Nelson, as her loud and hot tempered husband, overplayed mercilessly. He reacted too much, too fast and the result was a feeling of superficiality. I never believed in Jacob Mercer's furies or his infrequent joys.

The two sons Ben and Bill, played by Stephen Caldwell and Leonard Judge, were so stiff that the ultimate climax of the play fell flat because they were so unable to project any emotion at all. Judge in particular, did not even move during one of the most crucial interplays between his fiancée and himself. She was telling him on the eve of their wedding that the pregnancy which was the reason for their marrying had ended that morning in a miscarriage. Judge just stood staring very blankly at her when the situation cried out for some sign, some physical reaction.

Whether this was a case of bad blocking, bad acting or a misinterpretation of the gravity of this event upon the play's entire structure, it is hard to tell. Such direction might have worked if the entire play was conceived in a very subtle and subdued way. But, when some scenes were loud and raucous and overdone, and then others were so underplayed, the effect was one of incongruity and imbalance.

This imbalance carried over into the secondary characters as well. There was the bride's vulgar mother, Minnie, seriously overdone by Banuta Rubess. This role has tremendous comic potential which was squelched by an actress who seemed totally insensitive to her predicament. She shone when in centre stage but seem bored when she had no lines to play. Even Tom Wakeham as the silent undertaker, Harold was too lifeless. Only Kathryn Bronskill, as the little forlorn bride, was able to bring a sense of sincerity and true commitment to her role. She never fell out of character and she seemed to have found the true level of tension that French must have intended.

Unfortunately Miss Bronskill's delicate and rather touching performance was not nearly enough to save the production. We lost so much of the meat of the play, the tension between Ben and Jacob, the anguish of the mother watching her family disintegrate, the fears of Bill, all the struggle, all the loving, all the tenderness that might have come through was lost because the players simply couldn't handle the material and the director couldn't handle her players.

It's even more than that. David French's play is about a Newfoundland family of Irish origin moving to Toronto. It has in it political, religious and social underpinnings which, if not even mildly understood, become on the stage, with inexperienced actors, strange and foreign ideas which are played at rather than played.

Leaving Home, is about two boys who are leaving their parents and about a complex multitude of people who, no matter what their origin must experience broken dreams when they leave their homeland. It's a strangely universal play even though it is very particular in its boundaries.

And, it's a shame that the Domino couldn't even begin to grasp its broad and beautiful meaning and bring it to us.

Leonard Judge and Kathryn Bronskill

Jon Willmer

Happy Birthday RICO

G.S.S. Film Club
Friday Film Series
presents

Charly

With Cliff Robertson

Ellis Auditorium

Friday Dec. 6 8:00 p.m.
Series Ticket or $1.00 at door

TICKETS FOR
Wanderlust
Saturday,
January 11
Now on Sale

Available
At The John Orr Room
2:00 to 4: 4:30 and
the Meal Lines $8.50

Actor's Workshop Presents

Waiting For Godot

Convocation Hall
Queen's University

Dec. 5, 6, 7
8:30 p.m.

Tickets $1.00 at the door
Phone 546-9726

Have a few laughs before exam week as Campus Movies
presents

And Now For Something Completely Different by
Monty Python

Thursday
Dunning Hall

7 and 9:30
$1.00

Waiting for.....

Actors' Workshop is a small company formed by several members of the 1974 Stratford Festival Company. Three of these members have come together to perform Waiting for Godot at Queen's University.

Serge Marquis, Douglas Grass and Daniel Buccos have had considerable experience, both amateur and professional. As members, we must emphasise that Actors' Workshop is not to be identified directly with the Festival Theatre, but rather as an independent organisation drawing actors not only from professional ranks but from local personalities as well. We feel that the combination of varied experience creates a reciprocal learning atmosphere for our productions.

Waiting for Godot brought overnight fame to its Irish author. It has been translated into Japanese, Swedish, Yugoslavian and many other languages, and has been produced throughout the world.

Beckett was born in Dublin and lives now in Paris, where he writes mostly in French, and prepares the English versions of his works. The Saturday Review has called him "the most remarkable writer to emerge since World War II" and has ranked him with Kafka and Joyce.

"...one of the most noble and moving plays of our generation, a threnody of hope deceived and deferred but never extinguished; a play suffused with tenderness for the whole human perplexity; with phrases that come like a sharp stab of beauty and pain." - The London Times.

"One of the most fascinating plays of the postwar theater... grotesquely beautiful and utterly absorbing." - New York Post.

The cast includes Serge Marquis, John Frizzell, Gordon Robertson, Jamie Robertson and Daniel Buccos. The play is directed by Daniel Buccos, set design is by Gavin Semple, costumes created by Douglas Grass, and the lighting is designed by Conrad Hazen and Mr. Semple.

The production runs for three nights only, December 5, 6, and 7 at 8:30 pm in Convocation Hall. Admission is $1.00 and tickets will be sold at the door. For reservations and further enquiries please phone Sarah Semple 546-9726.

Cronicles XXVI

Prof's play for children

The Queen's Department of Drama will present the children's play Silver Bird and Scarlet Feather as a special Christmas Production in its popular Chronicles series.

The action of the play, which takes place in Alberta in the 1870's, tells the story of Sarah Fleming, an eleven year-old girl who is kidnapped by Indians. Renamed Scarlet Feather by her Indian captors, she becomes a daughter to the Chief, and sister to his own daughter, Silver Bird. She lives happily with the Indians for four years, at which time her real father finally tracks her down, and arrives to take her home. Sarah, or Scarlet Feather, must now decide which is her real home - her father's ranch or the Indian Village - which are her own people - the Albertans she grew up with or the Indians she has come to know and love. After much trouble, including a last minute rescue, she makes her decision.

The play is written and directed by Maurice Brewslow, with original music by Richard Bronskill. In addition to dialogue, the production makes great use of pantomime, music, movement, and dance as it tells its story of the two sisters.

Performances are on Saturday, 7 December at 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. and Sunday 8 December at 2:00 p.m. in Convocation Hall in Theological Hall. Admission is free; tickets are available at the Drama desk.

Bitter Grounds enjoys continued success

by Chris Davies

The high note of the Bitter Grounds season was struck Saturday night by Beverly Glenn Copeland and her percussionist, Dido. Her repertoire of songs, ranging from rock and jazz to spontaneous primal chants was played to a most enthralled audience.

This vital young black artist started with two emotionally charged love songs which contrasted her foxy guitar work against the percussionist's refined beat on the bongo drums. The twelve-string guitar was used as a more powerful way of developing moving crescendos in her work, as in "Love Lost". She played three songs on the piano which, though interesting lyrically, clashed with the rest of the show because of their commercial flavour. With versatility, she stroked a wooden xylophone and drums during the concert, relying solely on their inspirational and original tendencies. Copeland and Dido brought home all the colour and genuine nature of soulful variations, starting from obscure upbeats, building to a forte and bringing it down to its anti-climax. Singing of heaven, stars, clouds, God and love as in "Heaven's Sun" left one with a feeling of personal involvement.

The best response though was reserved for Dido when he brought in a memorable second set with a twenty-five minute drum and percussion solo. In it, he incorporated every style which had gone before and was to come. He manipulated the drums so masterfully making them scream, cry, and lament. His quiet confidence and powerful stage presence lent him a mesmerizing image.

This mixture of two exceptional talents enhancing each other's styles was like the music itself, spiritually uplifting.

King's Singers

Two separate concerts

by Hugh Agnew
The King's Singers in concert Friday night proved themselves to be a talented, highly polished, and professional group of singers. They were also astonishingly versatile, their concert ranging from the 16th to the 20th centuries and from the sublime to the schmalzy. It was almost as if two concerts by two different groups were given; one was a fabulous recital of Renaissance and contemporary vocal works by a tremendous madrigal ensemble, the other was an equally well-done rendition of popular music by a barbershop group.

These "two concerts" corresponded roughly to the first and second halves of the concert. In the sixteenth century Christmas music which began the program the King's Singers immediately established themselves as masters of the vocal style of the period, which is what one would expect from men who had trained at King's College, Cambridge. Richard Pygott's Quid peis o fili was especially moving, the counter-tenors soaring to truly amazing heights with effortless ease, and all the moving parts exactly together.

This ease, simplicity, and unity was continued in the set of English madrigals and ballets which followed. These works were much more light-hearted than the Christmas music, and were given a polished and sophisticated performance. Two numbers were particularly excellent: Thomas Weelkes' humorous "Come sirrah Jack ho!", the first recorded tobacco commercial, and the ballet

"Hark all ye lovely saints above", which is also by Weelkes and not by Thomas Morley.

Following this look at the lighter secular works of the Renaissance, the King's Singers presented three of the serious sacred motets of the same period. These works are very different in feeling from the secular ones, and the group showed themselves capable of an appropriate change in their treatment of them. Two motets by Tomas Luis de Vittoria and one by William Byrd took the audience back to what it must have sounded like in the great cathedrals of the time. Here again the remarkable togetherness of the group was very evident, complicated moving lines in different voices being exactly together. This is no mean feat for a group with a conductor, and becomes even more commendable in a group which sings without any conductor whatsoever.

The last work on the first half of the program was perhaps the most interesting one of the evening. This was a vocal work by the contemporary composer Richard Rodney Bennett commissioned by the group in 1972. Titled The House of Sleep, it was a setting of a section from a 16th century translation of Ovid's Metamorphoses. The demands made on the singers by this work were exacting, with part writing often semi-tones apart in the different voices.

Unfortunately, as far as I was concerned, there was a steady decline in the quality of the second half of the concert. It began auspiciously enough with seven works by the French composer Francis Poulenc (1899-1963), four Petites prières de Saint Francois d'Assise and three very funny and -boisterous chansons. Following these works, which, while light enough, were still quite enjoyable and worthwhile, the King's Singers presented a selection of close-harmony arrangements of spirituals.

It may be a prejudice of my deep-south childhood, but it seems to me that public-school Englishmen should not sing Negro spirituals. Their performance was, as we had begun to expect, very good technically; but these were spirituals with all the sweat, persecution, and faith in the face of hopelessness taken out of them. Still, they were well-done, and the audience rightly appreciated the group's whole presentation enough to beg for an encore.

Have you ever eaten an entire saccharine tablet? Then perhaps you can imagine the taste left in our mouths as we left following the encore tune, certainly one of the most sickly-sentimental songs I have heard, "The Three Bells". The King's Singers are such great artists that it seems incredible that they could end on such a note. Surely by attempting to appeal to every taste, they run the danger of ending up with no taste at all.

Handel's Messiah

Part one of Handel's Messiah is to be featured in a Christmas concert in St. Mary's Cathedral on Thursday, December 5th at 8:30 p.m. Two of Queen's Music Department ensembles, Queen's Choral Ensemble, under the direction of Denise Naricisse-Mair, and Queen's Chamber Orchestra, under the direction of David Keane, will participate in the admission free event.

Appropriate to the season, the Queen's Choral Ensemble of over 100 voices will sing the first part of the Messiah, which is concerned with the mysteries of Advent and Christmas. Soloists are: Anna Lynn Walker, soprano; Margaret Cheeseman, alto; Wilbur Maust, tenor; and Robert Hanks, bass. Continuo will be provided by Clifford Crawley at the harpsichord, Christopher Hunt at the organ, and Myles Jordan on the cello. Orchestral accompaniment will be provided by the Chamber Orchestra, who will also perform the Christmas Symphony, composed in the seventeenth century by Gaetano Maria Sclavi, and Sir Edward Elgar's Elegy - op 58.

Following this concert on the 5th, the Choral Ensemble will travel to Toronto where, by invitation of St. George's United Church, they will sing on Sunday December 8th. This is the second such invitation in Toronto that the Choral Ensemble has accepted. Denise Naricisse-Mair, a member of the staff of the Music Department, has directed the Choral Ensemble for the past three years.

A light white wine in a classic black bottle.
Imported from Germany.

Quite affordable.
Quite unforgettable.

A light white wine comes from sun-drenched vineyards and the quality is guaranteed by Hermann Kendermann, Black Tower. BLACK TOWER can be enjoyed as an aperitif or as the ideal accompaniment to your meals. It has been made in Germany since Roman times; this bottle design is from the traditional stone cross of centuries ago. BLACK TOWER should be chilled to be at its best. Serve at 55° F. Two hours in a refrigerator or twenty minutes in an ice-bath will do the trick.

On court and ice.....

Queen's - a victor!

Sports Round-Up

Men beat Carleton 71-70
Ice Hockey: Women tied Guelph 3-3, tied for 1st place in league
Men defeated York 4-1
Gymnastics (W): Queen's placed 1st in Sr. Womens division.
Vivian Steacy placed 1st overall in Sr. "A". Debbie Rand placed 1st in Sr. "B" division category. Intermediates placed 3rd
Away: Badminton: Women placed second to TO (of 11 teams) on weekend-overall 3rd in Ontario (total points)
Basketball: Intermediates defeated Brock
Gymnastics: Men placed second to strong York team (of seven competing teams)
Synchronic Swim:
Volleyball: Gals placed 3rd in Part I OWIAA Tournament Intermediates lost to Brock Men cleaned up in RMC Tournament
Waterpolo: Queen's finished 2nd in league
Wrestling: Defeated RMC squad Thursday 30-12
OWIAA Volleyball - League Standings
Eastern Division

	Wins	Losses
York	5	0
Ottawa	4	1
Queen's	3	2
Toronto	2	3
Carleton	1	4
Laurentian	0	5

OWIAA Squash - (as of Nov. 23)
1st Queen's
2nd Waterloo
3rd McMaster
4th Queen's II
5th Trent

OWIAA Basketball - Intermediate Division

1st Queen's
2nd Toronto
3rd Ryerson
4th Trent
5th Brock

OWIAA Volleyball - Intermediate Division

Ryerson
Queen's
Brock
Toronto
McMaster
Trent

	GP	PTS
Ryerson	7	14
Queen's	5	8
Brock	6	8
Toronto	6	4
McMaster	6	2
Trent	6	0

Ed. Note: This year Queen's is in the winners circle Our teams are strong...stronger...and strongest in the OUAA and OWIAA leagues. Tricolor squads are fighting for top spot and getting it but they want support: vocal support-moral support-fan support-YOUR support! Extend the Christmas cheer for a little while after Christmas and come out to cheer our teams on... Queen's, sports and winning - traditions to be proud of. Merry Christmas!

RMC Tournery Champs

by Peter Xhignesse
Journal Sports Writer

On Saturday afternoon, the volleyball Gals finished their pre-Christmas season play. After mediocre play in the pre-season tournaments and a very upsetting loss to Laurentian in the last tournament, the team finally put everything together and dominated play winning six straight games.

In the first match against R.M.C., play started off a bit cold but the guys proceeded to take the last three out of five series with scores of 15-8, 15-5, and 15-4. In the third game against R.M.C. one of Queen's star spikers, Joe Austin, was injured, but nevertheless stepped out on the floor to face Ottawa and proceeded to hammer the ball as usual.

It was against Ottawa U. that Queen's really displayed their power. All six members on the floor played like a precision machine together and easily handed Ottawa with scores of 15-2, 15-7 and 15-4. During this fine performance, Al Scott played an excellent game as he spiked home virtually every ball. Peter Wood, the 6' 4" rookie, played his best game of the year as he slammed the ball down for a good many points against R.M.C.

The team has a break now until the beginning of January when they will continue intercollegiate play and start their Senior "A" season. Coach Vlacav Spolac feels that if play continues to live up to last weekend's standards, our Volleyball Gals could be in store for a very successful season. Let's hope he is right!

Gaels Christmas gift

by Mps Boniwell
Journal Sports Writer

It was as if Dec 25th had come early to Carleton gym Friday night as the members of the Queen's basketball team centre whose name defies spelling without a program. At the line he shot two missing the first and making the second to bring the score to 67-66 for Queen's, at which it stayed for a good 2 or maybe 3 tenths of a second when Paul Armstrong, easily the best player on the court, intercepted an errant Gaels pass and waltzed in for points 67 and 68. This lead too endured only long enough to be flashed on the scoreboard as did the one following it. Rob Smart hit two free throws, succeeded immediately by a Raven hoop bringing the score and the spectators to near bursting point. The stage was set for Norni Haggerty, the exuberant one from the Sault. As Haggerty dove for the basket Armstrong dove for the basket Armstrong was whistled down by the referee for his overzealous attempts to basket and he barked it in off the glass to put the Gaels ahead by two. Apparently not satisfied with that ample contribution Beck then fouled Carleton's big centre whose name defies spelling without a program. At the line he shot two missing the first and making the second to bring the score to 67-66 for Queen's, at which it stayed for a good 2 or maybe 3 tenths of a second when Paul Armstrong, easily the best player on the court, intercepted an errant Gaels pass and waltzed in for points 67 and 68. This lead too endured only long enough to be flashed on the scoreboard as did the one following it. Rob Smart hit two free throws, succeeded immediately by a Raven hoop bringing the score and the spectators to near bursting point. The stage was set for Norni Haggerty, the exuberant one from the Sault. As Haggerty dove for the basket Armstrong dove for the basket Armstrong was whistled down by the referee for his overzealous attempts to detach the ball from Haggerty's person. Showing his obvious pleasure with the call Armstrong proceeded to punt the basketball to the rafters for which he received many oohs and aahs from the crowd and a technical foul from the ref. Now Haggerty was shot three with Carleton up by one, 70-69. Silence spread in blanket over the stands. Nor walked slowly to the line and accepted the ball. Displaying a steady hand Haggerty swished two, and after each demonstrate his more than indifferent delight by running to centre, with arms raised. The fans loved it, the Gaels loved it, Carleton was stunned. Truly a remarkable performance on both counts, and Queen's had won their third game in 5 outings. As the Gaels said - "Merry Christmas."

High Scorer in the game was Armstrong with 27 but Queen's showed a little more balance by placing four players - Keek Haggerty, Garrod and Christie in double figures.

Another surprise from the sports eds.

Verse...reprinted from a 1930 Journal from the sports page - back in the good old' days when poems went in the sports page - or the Journal at all for that matter

A Healt to Queen's
Bring the flowing bowl,
Raise your voices high,
Praise the one we love,
Drain your glasses dry
Let the war cry ring,
Tho' we win or fail,
Sing O! Thigh, na Banrighinn,
Shout Cha gheil! Cha gheil!
S.D.S.

Wes Garrod of Queen's lets one go during the dramatic second half of the Carleton game Friday night.

Rendezvous with Rama
by Arthur C. Clarke

by John Gibson
Arthur C. Clarke's latest novel, Rendezvous with Rama, is an acceptable science fiction adventure story, but not much more. The dialogue is natural; the story is based solidly on current scientific capabilities and political concepts - all is technically correct. Lacking is the imaginative ingredient necessary to transform what is a good piece of craftsmanship into the art form that s.f. can be at its best because of this weakness, Clarke's attempt to revive the old "Man meets the aliens" concept fails to rise above the level of good storytelling.

The action of the book begins with the discovery of a giant cylindrical object, designated "Rama", rushing through the solar system. An exploration team finds that the object is not only hollow, but that its inner surface is a self-contained world, seemingly dead. It soon becomes apparent, though, that the controlling force of the huge spacecraft is only asleep. Warned as it nears the Sun, Rama wakes to reveal its mission, in which there are no place for human interference.

For those who ask only entertainment of science fiction, this book is worth its $1.75 price. But those who ask more will finish Rendezvous with Rama (if they bother reading it through) knowing that they could have better spent their time re-reading one of Mr. Clarke's earlier and better works. The book is fine but stop reading, easy to put aside when the bus arrives.

Many thanks to Smith-Hill books store, 193 Princess St., for their generous donation of this book for review.

Bite the one you love

STEAK & STUFF
LICENCED DINING ROOM 1399 Princess (near the station)
AUNT LUCY'S RESTAURANTS

Brigham Pipes
for an ideal gift for Dad or boyfriend
Lou Williams Gift Shop
213 Princess St. 546-1616
Your headquarters for pipes and sundries

TEQUILA SAUZA

Margarita SAUZA
1 1/2 oz. TEQUILA SAUZA
1/2 oz. Triple Sec
1 oz. lime or lemon juice
Shake with cracked ice
Moisten rim of champagne glass with lemon rind, then dip moistened rim
in salt.
Sip
cocktail over salted edge.

TEQUILA
SAUZA
NUMERO
UNO
in Canada and Mexico

TEQUILA
SAUZA
use it in a Bloody Mary and you've got a Bloody Maria

Orange juice never tasted better when you're driving contains TEQUILA
SAUZA

TEQUILA
SAUZA
Straight with salt and lemon and you're drinking tequila like a man.

TEQUILA
SAUZA
Great party starter. Mixes well. Everyone's favourite.

Medal winners at home

by Lyn Atwood
Journal Sports Writer
Over the weekend the Queen's Golden Gals Basketball squad rendered a decisive victory over all opponents in the first Invitational Basketball Tournament hosted by the Sr. Gals this season. The teams which accepted the invitation and participated were Smiths Falls-EOSSA Champions, Toronto City League York Raiders, and Ottawa City League Ottawa Rookies. Unfortunately for Smiths Falls, they were easily outclassed by all teams and severely beaten (however, experience can be counted as a gain). Queen's started off their weekend by defeating Smiths Falls in what was generally a slow moving and unfulfilling (both watching and playing) game. What else can be said—the final score was 75-50. Leading scorers were Pat Patterson, Pat Giggley, Pat Smith, Laney Marshall and Kathy Keely.

The next day found a brighter and cheerier looking team facing the York Raiders from Toronto. This game too lacked the flair which we are accustomed to seeing in a Gals game. The final score of this one was 67-38. Leading point grabbers in this game were Keely, Marshall Smith, Patterson and Carson.

In a game later on the Ottawa Rookies managed to down the York Raiders by a 12 point stretch.

At 5:00 the Queen's Gals faced their major challenge in the form of the Ottawa team. This squad proved to be very rough competition (physically speaking) and the Queen's team seemed to have problems holding their own in the first half where they were down by more than 10 points for a while. They bounced back under the superb coaching of Maureen Bouris, coming out of the half with a tie (30-30) and finishing the game with an impressive lead of 67-38. It turned out to be a rather exciting game when players started hitting the floor and the coach from the opposition insisted on interrupting the game continuously to shout commands at both the referees and his team. The one advantage that the Gals have over any of the opponents which they have thus far played is the TEAM work, and the impressive depth which coach Bouris draws on in every game.

Pat Patterson breaks into clear for 2 points. Queen's won Tourney.

The Queen's Golden Gals will meet their prime contender for the Ontario Championship after Christmas in a double header against Laurentian (weekend of the 17-18th) here on home courts. Come out and Root!

Gymnastics first meet

The Queen's gymnastics women hosted their first meet of the year this past Saturday, with teams from York U of T, Ottawa and MacMaster, taking part. Competitors took their turns dazzling the crowd in Bartlett gym with their different tricks on the uneven bars, the balance beam, vaulting and the floor exercise. Although the strong York team managed to win the overall meet, Queen's participants took their share of the glory. In the Senior women's division, the combined points of the Queen's Gals gave them an overall placing of first. Vivian Steacy placed first overall in the Senior A category, with individual placings of first on the uneven bars, and second place on beam vaulting and floor exercise. In the Senior B division Debbie Rand of Queen's wiped up with first place finishings on floor, beam and vaulting, while fellow teammate Christa Craig placed third on both bars and beam. In the intermediate division the Queen's contingent placed a solid third.

Robin Willinston, a rookie on the Queen's team placed second on the uneven bars with a good solid routine. For their first meet of the Year the Queen's team shows the great potential they have for their team.

Debbie Rand placed 1st in Sr. "B" division this past weekend.

Skating to another win

by Peter Watts
Journal Sports Writer
Queen's Golden Gals came up with a big effort on Friday night upsetting the York Yeomen 4-1 in OUA hockey action at the Jock Hartly Arena. Bill Van Camp led the Gals' attack with a pair of goals while Bill White and Dave Smith added single markers. Tim Ampleford had opened the scoring with a goal at the 1:22 mark of the opening period but the Gals came back to take a 3-1 lead before the period ended.

The Gals appeared to catch the Yeomen a bit flat although this should not be interpreted as meaning that the tricolour played poorly. In fact, the defense came up with its best game of the year and the play of Ron Swan in particular was extremely good. Netminder Clyde Harris also played one of his better games of the season, holding the Yeomen at bay on the few occasions when the Yeomen could get something started.

For the Yeomen it was a particularly frustrating weekend for a team that appeared to have at least three points coming to them in their two games. On Saturday they were fortunate to beat RMC 5-3 although the Redmen's incompetence was a bigger factor in the Yeomen victory than anything else. The Yeomen have to play Toronto Varsity Blues tonight at Varsity Arena - not an enviable assignment at all.

The Gals will now take a 4-1 won-loss record into the final game of the first half - that's tonight at 8 pm when they meet the University of Ottawa GeeGees at the Jock Hartly Arena. The Tricolour's poorest showing this year was a 6-4 loss to the GeeGees in Ottawa two weeks ago. Neither the players nor the coaching staff was at all pleased with the final result of that game and all concerned are looking for a substantial improvement this evening. Game time is 8 pm and a good crowd would be in order.

Gals pop in one more for another win, giving them a 4 win - 1 loss record.

Wrestling up a win

On Thursday the Queen's Wrestling team easily defeated the R.M.C. squad 30-12 to earn its first dual meet victory of the season.

The team was led by Ed David, 190 lbs. who convincingly defeated David Long, 194 2nd. place Ontario champion, by a 6-1 margin. Other victories for Queen's were earned by Danny Plimpton, 118 lbs., Ron Dadson, 134 lbs., Al Stewart, 142 lbs., Del Delmonts, 117 lbs. and Larry Duchene, hwt.

Although losing efforts were put in by Doug Swerbrick 158 lbs., and Hugh Johnston, 167 lbs., they nevertheless fought well and the experience will help them in any case. Johnston, in his match, was in control of it until late in the third round having built up a 13-1 lead. However, he has only been practicing for a week since he has been recovering from a rugger injury. With more practice Johnson should do very well in the season.

The Wrestling team still needs competitors in the 109 lbs., 126 lbs., 220 lbs., and hwt. classes to give Queen's a full team.

"Decent" B-ball play

by Sara-Jane Hope
and Pat Sargeant
Journal Sports Writers
Saturday afternoon, the Women's Intermediate Basketball team competed against Brock in St. Catharines, and won 51-29.

Anne Sisson, a rookie team member, played an outstanding game for Queen's. She was the afternoon's leading scorer, accumulating 17 points with Barb Platt scoring 8 points.

After last week's tournament the players have been working more as a team. Their set 1-3-1 offense was very successful as the score indicates. The 2-2-1 zone press was also very effective in disrupting Brock's offensive endeavours, forcing them to lose the ball at centre court numerous times during the game. Queen's had full control throughout as Brock posed little or no threat.

Coach Steve Seabrooke thought the girls played their best game of the season and summed up their efforts in one word - "decent".

IT'S A LIQUOR! IT'S A LIQUEUR!

Try Southern Comfort and find out who's right. But you'll enjoy it so much you won't really care. Southern Comfort. Smooth, sweet satisfaction from the South. Y'all love it.

The grand old drink of the South.

SOUTHERN COMFORT

AUDITIONS

For singers, dancers, jokers, skaters, musicians, M.C.'s, one-man routines, and especially comedy skits are being held in Lower Vic tonight

Lend your talent for:

WINTER FROLIC VARIETY NIGHT

(STAGE FRIGHT)

(sponsored by Artsci 78 and the AMS)

Time for the try-outs is between 7 and 10:30 p.m. or get an audition "time slot"

Phone: Rory Campbell: 549-4798

Dave Mazzei : 546-1623

Peter Meech : 544-7088

A fury of water and speed and another goal is scored ## change of course?

We've got a program for you that could change the course of your whole future—successfully.

It's called our Sales & Marketing Management Program, and it's for graduates who want the most out of their career and have the drive to earn it.

To find out more fill in the coupon below or talk to your Campus Recruitment Officer about an interview.

The Canada Life Assurance Company

The Canada Life Assurance Company
330 University Avenue, Toronto, Ontario M5G 1R8

Send me more information about your Sales & Marketing Management Program.

NAME _____

ADDRESS _____

COURSE _____

(Include resume if available.)

WE FILL STOMACHS
WITHOUT EMPTYING
WALLETS.

277 Bath Rd.
Kingston

Season end - another 2nd

Last weekend the Queen's men's water polo team took part in the OUAA championship held in Ottawa. First and second place teams from both the east and the west came to decide an Ontario Intercollegiate Championship team.

The first game that Queen's team played was against a strong McMaster contingent. Mac is fortunate to have on their team six members of the National Water polo team, and as a result, their experience and skill edged out the Queen's team with a score of 20-7. Scorers for Queen's were defenceman Paul Nolan, with two goals, Chris Whately, with 2, Mike Fox, 2 and Peter Lapp, with a single. Coach Simon Beitler was quite pleased with his teams performance, saying that all players did their best, especially goalie Dave Kay.

Their second game against U of T saw the team fall apart a bit, perhaps because of the exhausting first game against McMaster. Toronto won, with a score of 13-5, with Mike Fox netting 3 goals, and Whately with 2. McMaster finished in the tournament.

This was the last game of the season for the Gals, and for some, the last of their Queen's career. Veterans Dave Kay, Chris Whately, Peter Lapp, Brian Evernden and Tom Kewen all played their last game. Queen's finished 2nd in league standings.

FOR THOSE OF US IN KINGSTON ON NEW YEAR'S EVE

THERE WILL BE A

NEWYEAR'S EVE PARTY

IN

THE QUEEN'S PUB

(HOUSE OF LORDS ONLY)

LIVE ENTERTAINMENT (9 P.M. to ?)

DOORS OPEN AT 8PM (AS USUAL)

COVER CHARGE: $3.00/COUPLE WITH STUDENT I.D.
$2.00/SINGLE

FESTIVAL OF THE ARTS

Meeting tonight for everyone involved in the Festival
7 p.m. 3rd floor common room
students union

january 28-february 1 1975

yes...more sports

OWIAA Volleyball - Part I

The Women's Volleyball team had a very trying weekend at Ottawa University, finishing the first half of the season in third place in the Eastern Section. In the first match of the tournament Queen's faced their perennial rivals Ottawa U. Although the Gals clearly outplayed their opponents, lack of serving combined with troublesome refereeing to hand the match to Ottawa 17-15, 8-15, 15-8.

Queen's then faced

Laurentian, a spirited team that is always potentially dangerous. The Sudbury team never really had a chance, however, as Queen's pulled out their hand hitting and service to win 15-10, 15-8.

It was one of the saving graces of the weekend that the Tricolor squad conquered Toronto, after six winless years against them. In spite of the fact that the Blues have lost much of the talent that they had during their championship years, it was a great moral victory. Queen's took the match 11-15, 15-8, 15-10.

The match against Carleton was initially troublesome, but finally Queen's handed them a 15-10, 15-3 defeat.

The York match was the crucial one. If Queen's won, then there would be a three way tie for first place. With York's victory however (15-9, 15-4) Queen's was jolted into third position.

The first half of the season has been a long, and, on the whole successful one. It was unfortunate that the Divisionals occurred, at the teams weakest point. Although Queen's was plagued with injury and fatigue and was not up to its championship form, Kathy Jeffries and Pat Johnson played well throughout the weekend. As well it must be noted that the three rookies Anita Stankas, Cathy Sproule, and Barb Morrison have adjusted well to the pressures and demands of the intercollegiate league. Their addition to the strength and depth of 9 intercollegiate veterans points to a bright and successful season for the Gals.

Gymnastics strong

On Saturday the men's gym team travelled to the York gymnasium for their first competition of the season. Here the Gals skills were pitted against the teams from U of T, York, Ottawa, Western, Eastern Michigan and a team from Nova Scotia. The men managed to secure a team standing of second over all behind the York team.

Six of the eight members of the Queen's team took part in the day's activities, and despite the fact that none of the team managed to take a spot in the top three rankings of each event, individual performances by each team member showed personal improvement and potential. Queen's Barry Brooker, Oon Masse, and Jamie Archibald obtained the highest scores for their team, while the other team members of Glen Kosherba, Roy Nakashema, and Glen Laworth scored respectable marks in their events.

Editors' Note: Jackson and Atwood would like to thank r.l.d. of the teams for their response to our plea for writers. Our apologies go to those whose articles don't appear immediately - space is always at a premium.

Badminton 2nd (oh no) to TO.

What the Gals Badminton team lacks in experience they make up for in skill, as was shown this past weekend at the OWIAA combined tournament of Eastern and Western teams. The Queen's team has six very able players, of which only two are veterans in the intercollegiate field. Despite this lack of experience, Queen's placed second of eleven teams who took their turns in both singles and doubles games at McMaster. Teams from the east played only teams from the western league - McMaster, Guelph, Western, Waterloo, Wilfrid Laurier and Brock.

In singles play the team played a total of 36 games, coming out champions in 26 of them. Doubles was also impressive - 14 of 18 games were taken by the Gals. Oaphne Meredith was the shining star of the Gals, winning all her singles and doubles games to rank 1st overall in the first category. Teammate Dianna Edwards also dazzled her opponents with straight wins in double competition and only two losses in singles.

Other Queen's players of Betsy Carey, Sandra Coemer, Sandra McFarlane and Laurie Preston turned in excellent performances, as each only lost three games in singles at the most. Queen's now stands third in the league, behind Toronto and Western. But don't let this ranking fool you - Queen's and Toronto are in a league with only five teams, while the western league has six. Therefore by simple calculations we can see that Western has had the opportunity to play a larger number of games, thus compiling more points. Queen's has the skill to go higher and probably will in their next sectional tournament, which takes place after Christmas.

Gals 1st

by Chris Scott

On Saturday the women's hockey team completely outplayed the defending OWIAA champions from Guelph, but could only manage a 3-3 tie. The shots on goal, being 30-15, are a fair indication of how one-sided the game was, but the ladies could not put the puck past the Guelph goalie.

In the first period, Leslie Ferrari scored for Queen's with assists from Rhonda Leeman and Sue Wright. It was a well deserved goal; the line having missed several golden opportunities earlier in the period.

In the second period, play opened up considerably with a goal from Guelph followed by two from Queen's. Ann Westell netted her first goal quite early in the period tying the game up, but a sharp pass from Marg Bartlett to Janean Gerow put the golden gals back in the lead. Sue Wright made the game 3-1 with the assist going to Janean Gerow.

The third period saw Guelph come back to tie the game up with goals from Ann Westell and Holly Law. Queen's coach, Cookie Cartwright commented that the defense played too far forward, leaving goalie Wanda Gyde to face two and three-man breakaways on her own.

The gals don't play again until the new year, when they look forward to continuing their impressive play. Queen's stands at the top of the league along with McMaster, both teams having three wins two ties and no losses. Guelph too has no losses as yet, but they have not played as many games.

NOBODY EVER RETURNED A BOOK
BECAUSE IT DIDN'T FIT

Campus Bookstore

CHUNG WAH CHOP SUEY

SPECIALIZING IN
CHINESE & CANADIAN FOOD

TAKE OUT AND DELIVERY DIAL 544-6128
217 UNIVERSITY (CORNER OF WILLIAMS)

OPEN 8 AM TO MIDNIGHT
SUNDAY 10 AM TO 8 PM

COMMODORE HOTEL

840 PRINCESS ST.

The Commodore Hotel at 840 Princess St. is pleased to offer all Students of Queen's, St. Lawrence and MacArthur College a preferred rate for room accommodation for their Parents or friends during the 74-75 term when they have occasion to visit Kingston.

NIGHTLY ENTERTAINMENT
in our Lounge

THIS WEEK : Mango

Amateur Night every Wednesday

Queen's Students Welcome
In Our Lounge

The Division of Concerts
thanks all of its patrons of the fall season and wishes all a very happy holiday

"And if you go first class, they leave the sugar bowl on the table."

briefly..

OTTAWA — Statistics Canada has brought forth figures which may indicate that Canada is on the edge of a recession. The most widely accepted definition of a recession is two straight quarters of declining economic output. The figures released Friday by Statistics Canada show zero growth over the six-month period. Statisticians will have to wait another three months to determine if we are officially experiencing a recession.

The US economy to which the Canadian is so closely connected is in a recession, recording minus growth rates in each of the first three quarters of 1974.

EDMONTON (CP) — Naim Djemal, 30, a Winnipegger born in Cyprus attempted to hijack a Boeing 737 on route from Montreal to Vancouver. Djemal, armed with a dinner knife, held a stewardess on the floor with the knife to her throat and demanded that the airplane be flown to Cyprus. The whole incident lasted only fifteen minutes. The pilot was able to convince the man that flying to Cyprus would be impossible without stopping to refuel and then persuaded Djemal to give himself up.

CALGARY — Justice Minister Olo Lang has announced that legislation will be introduced by the federal government that will establish a guaranteed annual income for prairie grain farmers. The plan would protect the income of 150,000 grain farmers of the prairies when market prices plunge. The farmers would contribute two per cent of their revenue from grain sales to a central fund. The government would add $2 for every dollar put in by the farmers. When the farmer's net income falls below the average income for the preceding five years the fund will pay the farmer the difference. The annual cost to the federal government is estimated to be $100 million.

NEW YORK — Former Secretary General of the United Nations, U Thant died of cancer at the age of 63. U Thant's body has been flown to his native land of Burma, where he will be buried.

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The UN Security Council has voted to extend its peace keeping operation on the Israeli-Syrian frontier for another six months. The Security Council has left the 1,224 man peace patrol on Israel's border due to the distinct possibility of new conflicts arising if no progress is made towards a political settlement. Syrian Ambassador Haissam Kelani stated that Syria had accepted the renewal "to provide a fresh opportunity for the establishment of a just and lasting peace, on the condition that a serious effort is made" to implement UN resolutions on the subject.

However while talk of peace settlements was taking place at the UN the Lebanese and Israeli forces were exchanging sporadic fire across the Lebanon's southern border.

CAIRO (AP) — Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev is scheduled to tour the middle east in January. Brezhnev will visit Egypt, Syria, and Iraq in an attempt to restore Soviet influence where American diplomacy made inroads earlier this year and possibly to outline Soviet terms for a peace agreement.

Yasser Arafat, leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization, stated that he expected Brezhnev's visit to be a landmark in the move to force Israeli withdrawal from Arab lands. It would also have a major impact on the move to establish Palestine statehood. Israeli Premier Yithah Rabin suspects that the Soviet Union and the more extreme Arab leaders, opposed to bilateral negotiations, will wish to see a complete Israeli withdrawal from all Egyptian, Syrian and Jordanian territory captured in the June 1967 war.

ETHIOPIA — Two former premiers, the head of the ruling military council and a grandson of former Emperor Haile Selassie were among the 60 aristocrats and former officials whose execution was announced by the military government in Ethiopia. Li-Gen Aman Micheal Andom, chairman of the 120-man military council, was also killed.

The Ten O'Clock Gnus: Don't you believe a word of it

Good Christian Men Rejoice! The oil and sugar companies are doing absolutely everything within their power to hold down the prices of oil and sugar. Now they've even decided to spend vast sums of money (our money) to convince us of their virtuous endeavours. What fine fellows they must be!

Last spring and as recently as just last week, we have been made aware of a massive campaign from both of these industries to convince the public at large that Christian devotion to one's fellow man is the guiding force in the supplying of oil and sugar. No mention is made of profits, let alone excess profits! Instead, we hear some well known voice mouthing banalities:

We here at Conglomerated Gas are doing everything we can to keep this country supplied with oil and gas that it needs - the lifeblood of industry. Lord knows, it isn't easy. But rest easy Canada, no matter what the cost, Conglom. Gas will be in there pitching for you. And the benefits will ripple through the economy.

Most of those executed had been arrested during the seven-month anti-corruption drive by the military officers that culminated in the deposition of Selassie on Sept. 12. It has been reported that Selassie's life had been spared after he agreed to turn his vast fortune over to the military rulers.

The Secretary-general of the Organization of African Unity (OAU) has backed appeals from the top United Nations officials to stop further summary execution in Ethiopia. This is the first time that the OAU has openly criticized the present regime in Ethiopia.

UGANDA — President Idi Amin of Uganda has dismissed his foreign minister, former model, lawyer, and actress Elizabeth Bagaya. Amin claimed that she had "made love to an unknown European in a toilet" at Paris Orly Airport and had contacts with British and American intelligence.

The officials of the Orly Airport refuted Amin's claims declaring that the VIP toilets, even though comfortable and refined, are ill-adapted to "sentimental demonstrations".

JAPAN — Prime Minister Kakui Tanaka has resigned from his position. Tanaka announced he was resigning in shame and embarrassment over misunderstandings about the sources of his private fortune. There had been requests for the Prime Minister to resign since the publication of a magazine article which accused him of amassing a vast fortune during the 28 years he had been a politician.

any businessman who would stay in business purely as a service to humanity if he weren't making a profit. Yet there is no mention of profit motive in these public relations efforts and therefore no honesty. What we've been hearing from the gas and oil people for the last six months, and will shortly begin to hear from the sugar people sounds like thinly disguised guilt.

I must confess that I personally have a somewhat sceptical nature and am inclined to querulousness. So when I hear someone telling me what a good job he is doing, I naturally am inclined to doubt his word and conclude that the person telling me these things is trying to cover up the fact that he is, in reality, been doing a lousy job. There is no apparent reason to change my philosophy now.

The incredible profits reported by oil and gas concerns in the past year or so are totally unconscionable in view of the prices paid by consumers. A similar situation has already started to develop in the sugar business. If you haven't checked recently (and I wouldn't blame you if you haven't) a ten pound bag of sugar costs in excess of SEVEN DOLLARS, compared to a price roughly one third of that, not even two years ago. Please don't try to tell me that it's just Arab sheiks and foreign sugar holders who are doing very well in the present circumstances.

I never thought I'd live to see the day when I advocated an excess profits tax, but that day has arrived. These industries, and others too, are profiting enormously in situations where there is a wide fluctuation of price with virtually no change in the demand. The firms simply add on to their existing stockpiles of the product, the increased mark-up and sell the whole lot at the increased price.

Obviously, this is a gross oversimplification of the problem, or one aspect of it. But any situation in which industries can continue to make excess profits by passing along its excess costs to the consumer will aggravate an inflationary condition. One of the teachings of conventional economics is that excess profits in an industry will attract other firms into that industry to share in those excess profits. In the oil or sugar industries which are essentially oligopolistic and where so much capital, in terms of hundreds of millions of dollars, is required to start up, other firms are prevented from entering the market.

An excess profits tax would probably save the consumers' pocketbooks a great deal. It would simply ensure that firms paid for the increased costs of supplying a given product by reducing their excess profits instead of passing along the costs to the consumer by maintaining the level of excess profit.

Perhaps then we might do something constructive about ending the present inflationary circumstances and reap, as a side benefit, an end to these pitiful, "hat in hand" ads.

QUEENSNAPS '74

10,000 STUDENTS READ THE JOURNAL TWICE WEEKLY ADVERTISE IN THE

Queens Journal

Gov't responds to pub uproar

In response to the uproar over Bill 146 by several student groups across the province, including the Ontario Federation of Students, (OFS) the government has issued a statement in an attempt to clarify the intent of the bill and to explain its requirements.

Hon John Clement, Minister of Consumer and Commercial Affairs, cabled a letter to student presidents, Wednesday. In doing so, he by-passed OFS which as part of their protest against the bill had run headlines proclaiming "NO MORE PUBS" on the front page of the OFS publication, The Ontario Student.

Printed here is Clement's letter.

"As a result of what we feel are deliberate attempts to mislead students I thought I should clarify the intent of Bill

146 passed in June, 1973. The purpose of the bill was to eliminate the hassle, delay and expense involved in obtaining numerous special occasion permits. Other issues that should be clarified are as follows:

"A canteen licence covers the entire campus and does not restrict in anyway the number of individual rooms or pubs.

"Special occasion permits for student events will no longer be necessary since a simple letter to the board requesting an extension of the existing licence to other areas without the payment of a fee will receive prompt attention.

"The Chief Administrator can delegate authority to operate the pub to any student or student body and can earmark profit to any group.

"Special occasion permits will still be available to outside groups using University facilities.

"No facility currently in operation will be refused special occasion permits after January 1 but it is hoped that all student bodies will take advantage of the new licence.

"Canteen licences are a convenience plus they will save considerable time and funds. Current regulations preclude a profit being made from a special occasion permit and require food to be served.

"Most facilities can meet the boards policy as to physical requirements with little or no expense. The fallacy that substantial funds must be spent is inaccurate.

"Over 23 of all past secondary applied for a licence and over half have already been issued. Many resulting in from 10 to 15 licensed facilities on a campus but legislation was proposed to assist students in maintaining facilities where the lowest prices could prevail. If any student body is still having difficulty we would be pleased to meet with both the students and the administration to facilitate an early solution.

Entire pub to stay open

Students at Queen's will probably be allowed to drink in the House of Lords next term, according to both Peter Druxerman (V.P. Operations) and Brian Sterling (Pub Manager).

In an earlier statement published in the Journal, Druxerman forecast that Wallace Hall would be turned into a pub in the New Year. At that time, however, he did not completely rule out the chances of keeping the House of Lords open.

Plans and discussions concerning the Pub's destiny next term have moved quickly and have produced several alternative ways to keep Queen's a well-watered campus.

The solution currently being proposed by Sterling is to continue to operate the House of Lords after Jan. 1, 1975 under the same basis as now - by applying daily for special occasion permits, however.

The government, in requiring that student pubs be administered by the universities, not the student governments, has suggested that permanent "canteen" licences be obtained for locations on campuses where liquor is served on a regular basis. The bill will not prevent student pubs from continuing to obtain the special occasion permits, however.

The House of Lords will not qualify for a permanent licence due to inadequate exits.

Ottawa U. protests $32 OSAP

OTTAWA (CUP) — Close to 600 students staged a class boycott Thursday, Nov. 28 afternoon at the University of Ottawa to discuss complaints about the government's student aid program.

Students say the aid they are receiving isn't enough to keep up with inflation and have scheduled a "study session" for Monday (Dec. 2).

They say the $32 a week grant for food and lodging is insufficient and they complain that student loans have been late in reaching them.

A recent study at the University of Toronto also says the $32 a week allotment is insufficient and Ontario's minister of Colleges and Universities, James Auld, has also said the money isn't enough.

About 4,500 of the University of Ottawa's 10,000 students are receiving financial assistance of some kind from either Ontario or Quebec.

"a Bieler oil"

Students offer gift to Deutsch

Past principal John J. Deutsch received a painting from the students of Queen's during a short ceremony held at noon Wednesday. Given to Deutsch as a token of appreciation for his years as principal of Queen's, the painting is an oil of a Quebec scene done by Canadian artist Andre Bieler.

The painting was also partly a gift from Bieler, who was awarded an honorary degree by Deutsch several years ago. Bieler worked with Deutsch to develop the Agnes Etherington Art Centre during 1959 and 1960. Deutsch commented after the ceremony that the painting "was a splendid memento" of his "happy association with Queen's students."

The painting was selected by the AMS Principal's Gift Committee struck in June 1974. The committee chose Bieler's painting as a gift for the past principal as they believed it to be "unique, of a personal nature, pleasing, of aesthetic value, and timeless," according to their report presented to Outer Council in September.

For a picture of the presentation, see page six.

Wallace Hall in its festive splendor. You may even be pubbing here next year!

QEC refunds available

Students who purchased tickets for trips on Excursion Club buses which did not leave Queen's on Fri. Oct. 25 are being asked to come to the AMS office to pick up cheques of refund.

On Oct. 25, the AMS revoked the Excursion Club's charter by executive prerogative. At that time, several people in the AMS had been questioning the amount of insurance the club's managing director, Don McVie, had bought to cover the bus and its passengers.

The QEC has recently been replaced by the new AMS bus service, which operates, utility buses to Toronto and Ottawa on a cut-rate fare basis for Queen's students.

Journal closes doors 'til Jan. 5

all staff and advertisers take note.

Queen's
Journal
Volume 102 Number 26
Friday, December 6, 1974

Pubs and Theatres

401 Inn - Morgan
Frontenac - Finnegan's - Michael Myers
Frontenac - Muldoon's - Alan Rody
Manor - Johnnie Johnson
Commodore - Mongo

Capitol 1 - double feature: Paul and Michele; Bang the Drum Slowly
Capitol 2 - Walking Tall may be held over, otherwise? - better phone!
Hyland - Harry and Tonto
Odeon - Airport '75

Friday, December 6

6:30 pm - 2:00 am - CFRC broadcasts at 1490
8:00 pm - G.S.S. Film Club presents Charly in Ellis Auditorium. Admission is $1.00 at the door.
8:30 pm - Queen's NDP Social at 234 Bicknell Cres. Included will be a showing of the slide presentation, An NDP Ontario. All are welcome.

Saturday, December 7

10:30 am - Silver Bird and Scarlet Feather, a children's play, written and directed by Maurice Breslow with music by Richard Bronskill will be opening at Convocation Hall. Tickets are free and are available at the Drama Desk or at the door. The play is being put on by the Queen's Drama Department.
12:00 noon - 5:00 am - CFRC is on the air.
1:00 pm - 5:00 pm - Christmas at the Art Centre: a family day: making of decorations by the children, decorating the tree, performance by Theatre Five, Christmas carols, refreshments. At Agnes Etherington Art Centre.
8:30 pm - Ballroom Dance Club meets as usual. New members welcome.

Sunday, December 8

10:30 am - Morning Worship at Chalmers United Church.
10:30 am - Folk Mass, Dunning Hall, followed by coffee and donuts at Newman House, 164 University Ave.
8:00 am - 2:00 am - Good music of all kinds on CFRC.
2:00 pm - Silver Bird and Scarlet Feather in convocation Hall. See Saturday 10:30 am for details.
7:30 pm - The Waffle will present the film Away With All Pests. In the film Dr. Joshua Horn, a British surgeon who lived in China from 1964 - 1969, relates his experiences as a doctor there to the issues of politics and health in People's China. At the International Centre. Admission is free and all are welcome.

Upcoming Events

Wednesday, December 11 - 8:30 pm - Pro Arte Singers under a concert of Sacred and Secular Music from the Renaissance to the Twentieth Century at St. Paul's Church, Montreal St. and Queen. Tickets are $3.00 and $2.00 for students. Tickets are available at the following locations: Mahood's Drugstore, Flowers and Things, and at Vern Napier's Cameras.
Thursday, December 12 - 1:00 - 8:00 pm - Picture Rental Day at the Calvin Park Public Library situated on Wright's Cres.
Saturday, December 14 - 8:00 pm - The Ottawa Disciples of Sri Chinmoy will present The Son a play on the life of Christ. In the Drama Room 102 in Theology Hall. There will be no admission charge.

Sunday, December 15 - 3:00 pm - Kingston Artists: the opening of a selected exhibition of paintings and sculpture, recent work by Kingston and area artists. This show in Agnes Etherington Art Centre will continue until February 2, 1975.

Thursday, December 19 - 7:30 pm - Prints and People Series V: Doris Pascal of Gallery Pascal, Toronto will be at the Art Centre: The Dealer's Point of View.

Tuesday, December 31 - Last Day for French Nineteenth Century Printmakers in Agnes Etherington.

Phys. Ed. Centre

The Physical Education Centre, including the Jock Hart Arena will be open in accordance with the following schedule during the Christmas Holiday period. Family as well as Staff-Student Recreational Swims will be held as indicated.

Hours of Operating:

December 24 - All activity areas and the laundry issue service will be closed at 2:30 pm. The building will be closed at 3:00 pm.

December 27, 28, 30 - The P.E. Centre and Arena will be open at 11:30 pm. The activity areas and the laundry issue service will be closed at 5:00 pm. The building will be closed at 6:30 pm.

Court Bookings:

Booking may be made as follows:

Dec. 24 for Dec. 27
Dec. 27 for Dec. 28
Dec. 28 for Dec. 30
Dec. 30 for Jan. 2

Recreational Swimming and Skating:

Dec. 27, 28 and 30:

Staff-Student Swimming and Skating: 12-1:30 pm.

Family Swimming and Skating: 2-5:00 pm. Normal hours of operating and scheduling will be resumed on Thursday, Jan. 2; however special Family Skating Periods are scheduled from 2 to 4 pm on Jan. 2 and 3. Staff, Student and Family Skating will be held as normally scheduled on Sat. Jan. 4.

Douglas Library

In order to provide some extra study time for the exam period, Douglas Library hours will be extended for the Stacks, Circulation Desk, Main Reading and Central Information Services Rooms from November 25 through December 17 as follows:
Monday - Thursday: 8:00 am - 1:00 am
Friday: 8:00 am - 11:00 pm
Saturday: 9:00 am - 11:00 pm
Sunday: 12 noon - 1:00 am
The library schedule over Christmas and New Year's will be:

+ - Limited service only after 5 pm
++ - Limited service only.

Limited service means that only Circulation Desk, Stacks, Main Reading Room and Central Information Services Room will be open. N.B.: Documents Unit, Periodicals Room, Reserve Room, Archives, and Special Collections Unit will not be open during periods of limited service. Normal weekend service will resume Sunday, Jan. 5.

Regular hours will resume Monday, Jan. 6. Interlibrary Loan: ALL mail service will be suspended between December 13 and January 2. This does not affect service via IUTS or QUILL from other Ontario and Quebec Universities.

Christmas and New Year's Douglas Library Schedule

SUN	MON	TUES	WED	THUR	FRI	SAT
15 REGULAR HOURS	16	17	18 9 AM - 10 PM *	19 9 AM - 10 PM *	20 9 AM - 5 PM	21 CLOSED
22 CLOSED	23 9 AM - 5 PM	24 9 AM - 3 PM	25 CLOSED	26 CLOSED	27 9 AM - 5 PM 	28 CLOSED
29 CLOSED	30 CLOSED	31 CLOSED	1 CLOSED	2 9 AM - 5 PM	3 9 AM - 5 PM	4 9 AM - 5 PM **
5 Noon - 10 PM	6	7	8 REGULAR HOURS	9	10	11

Break-ins highlight theft problems on campus

by Paul Steep

A recent rash of break-ins has highlighted the problem of theft on Queen's campus. In the past term break-ins have occurred at the Journal, Lictor and A.M.S. offices, the International Centre, the Physical Education Centre and most recently in the Leonard Hall and Union offices of Beaver Foods. The bulk of this theft has occurred in the past month.

Why all the break-ins right now? R.W. Allan, the Administrators of the Phys. Ed. Centre claimed that there is a definite pattern to theft. It is always heaviest just before Christmas and final exams, he maintained.

Most of the theft in the Phys. Ed. Centre involves wallets which are left in unlocked lockers. They attribute very little of this to Queen's students. Most of the theft is carried out by groups of high school and public school children. There have been instances where those apprehended were as young as nine years old. The circumstances of the Journal break-in would seem to confirm that the culprits are young - the window used to gain access to the offices was just too small for anyone of University age to have come through.

The Phys. Ed. Centre employs Commissionaires, who are retired Armed Forces personnel, to act as security for the building. However, there are twenty-eight separate entrances and exits to the complex and it is not easy to patrol all of them at once. In the Student Union the problem is the odd hours kept by the groups who use the building.

The pub, Journal and A.M.S. offices all operate late. As a result, the front doors to the Union are nearly always open. And, unlike the Phys. Ed. Centre, there are no security people in the building. The only people present in the Union at night are caretakers and they are charged with no security responsibilities. The Hawthorne Security Agency supplies a walking patrol of the campus but this does not involve any inspection of the interior of the building. The lack of security has prompted serious consideration of installing a burglar alarm system in the Union.

At present most of the theft is petty theft. For example the Journal break-in only amounted to a loss of twenty-five dollars.

But sometimes the thieves are more ambitious. At any rate they can be down right annoying.

At the beginning of the term furniture was being stolen regularly from the Union. The director of the Union, Mr. Doug Saunders said that this is one of the few instances where he wouldn't blame people from off-campus. He suspects that a lot of this furniture is furnishing student houses and apartments.

A brighter note to all this talk about theft is that the situation seems to be getting better, not worse.

Mr. Allen, the administrator of the Phys. Ed. Centre said that the instance of break-ins and theft is lower now than at any other time.

Lalonde:

Pot laws to ease with new legislation

OTTAWA (CUP)---The federal government introduced legislation in the Senate Tuesday (Nov. 26) that will make sweeping changes in the country's "soft drug", marijuana and hashish, laws.

Under the changes proposed by Health Minister Marc Lalonde, the law on cannabis, (marijuana and hashish) would be more flexible and the sentences lighter.

Penalties for other offences connected with cannabis, such as trafficking, importing or exporting, or cultivation, would also be lightened.

Cannabis would fall under the Food and Drugs Act instead of the Narcotics Control Act which controls hard drugs such as heroin.

Lalonde said the present law is too harsh, inconsistent and unfair, "the law is an ass."

The proposed new law is the first legislation to result directly from the LeDain Commission on the Non-Medical Use of Drugs. The Commission recommended that possession of marijuana not be a criminal offence and suggested other penalties much lighter than those proposed by Lalonde.

The government introduced the legislation in the Senate first, instead of the House of Commons, so it could test its controversiality. Many Liberal MPs are opposed to the new legislation and may ask for a free vote on the legislation when it reaches the House.

The main point of the new legislation is that it gives prosecutors handling drug cases a choice.

For all offences except simple possession, prosecutors will be able to initiate court action either by summary conviction or by the more serious indictment.

For simple possession, the law would permit only summary conviction.

Lalonde said the flexibility would allow penalties to reflect seriousness of offences.

The more severe penalties were included primarily for use against organized crime in the cannabis field, he said.

Law grading:

Addition of C+

by Paul Bennett

At the Senate meeting of Thursday November 28, Dean Soberman of the Faculty of Law confirmed the addition of the C+ grade to the Law marking system. (In the Faculty of Law there are no percentages, only letter grades: A, B+, B, C+, C, D, F.) Soberman explained that the Faculty Board felt the addition was necessary because many professors were running into the problem of marking papers which do not merit a B and yet deserve a better grade than C. As well, it had been until this time, difficult to establish exactly what the academic norm of the students was. The addition of C+ was geared to cope with these problems.

Bob Stead, student Law Senator, does not feel the move was significant. If any changes are to be made, he said, they should be of a more comprehensive nature - more than the simple addition of a C+.

Stead was of the opinion that those students who were aware of the change would have preferred the addition of a B- more than a C+.

Bill Walker, President of Law '76, had mixed reactions. While it is a good idea to determine the average level of competence of students (C+), Walker remarked the grade of C+ had a negative connotation.

Gael Applications Get them in NOW

Last Day of the Great M.S. CANDLE SALE:

Queen's Circle K is selling all of it's candles TODAY at the main entrance to West Campus, in MacIntosh-Corry near the machines, and in the John Orr Rm. Thanks for your support people! (And don't let the candles burn your Christmas trees or your Hannukah bushes!)

TICKETS FOR Wanderlust V Saturday, January 11 Now on Sale

Available
At The John Orr Room
2:00 to 4: 4:30 and
the Meal Lines $8.50

STUDENT SPECIALS

All dynaco Speakers
All marantz Receivers
All SHERWOOD Receivers
1229 Turntable
1216 Turntable

25% OFF while quantities last

HOUSE OF SOUNDS

277 PRINCESS STREET — DIAL 544-3981 KINGSTON, ONTARIO

G.A.S.P.!

Arise, oppressed Non-smokers!

Now exists. At our first two meetings we decided upon several principal objectives, as

Non-Smokers

Bill of Rights

Non-Smokers help protect the health, comfort and safety of everyone by insisting on the following rights:

The Right to Breathe Clean Air - Non-Smokers have the right to breathe clean air, free from harmful and irritating tobacco smoke. This right supersedes the right to smoke when the two conflict.

The Right to Speak Out -

Non-Smokers have the right to express firmly but politely - their discomfort and adverse reactions to tobacco smoke. They have the right to voice their objections when smokers light up without asking permission. The Right to Act - Non-Smokers have the right to take action through legislative channels, social pressures or any other legitimate means - as individuals or in groups - to prevent or discourage smokers from polluting the atmosphere and to seek the restriction of smoking in public places.

We want your spare Time in the
New Year!

- the
Journal

VANDERMEERS MEAT MARKET
Custom Cut Meats
Freezer Orders
Groceries
171
WELLINGTON ST.
542-1134

described below.

Firstly, we want to get smokers to realize that they do not have a divine right to pursue their habit in public when the byproducts thereof make other people uncomfortable and/or sick.

Secondly, we resolve to defend the rights of the MAJORITY - 70 per cent of the population of Canada DO NOT SMOKE. We know that there are hoards of smokers who are being walked on right now because they are not vocal enough. We intend to draw these people out of the woodwork and get their support, in the form of an AMS referendum.

Thirdly, we will make every effort to get non-smoking material on campus, where it is needed desperately. An experimental campaign has met with limited success due to the removal of several signs. We decline to comment on the kind of pre-Cambrian mentality that the ripping down of these signs reflects, nor on the sad fact that there are confirmed non-smokers in the vicinity. In putting up the signs, we presume that the majority of smokers are literate. For those who can't read, we thank the Administration for providing ash trays.

Fourthly, we wish to further advance the cause of non-smokers by having a "Non-Smoker", at which we will have various speakers from the university community, and from the Respiratory Association. Look for announcements in the New Year.

Awards of teaching

Recognition to Profs

It is often felt by students that they are not being treated justly in their lecture halls; having to face oversized classes, vague professors and uninspiring lectures. However, there are those among us who feel quite the contrary.

According to a report on Student-Alumni Relations, prepared for the Alumni Board of Directors, "Students often express a desire to be able to reward members of staff who are excellent teachers. Outstanding scholars are almost always recognized, as are Principals, Deans and the like. Yet all too often the good teacher is forgotten in the classroom."

In light of this expression, an Alumni Award for Excellence in Teaching has been initiated and will be presented on a three year term beginning in 1975. The Award will consist of certificate and a sum of one thousand dollars.

All those full-time teaching staff members are eligible for nomination provided they have completed three years of full-time teaching duties and have been nominated for the Award.

Nominations must be signed by five students, staff members or alumni and submitted before Dec. 31. The Award winner will be named in April and the presentation will take place at the appropriate Spring Convocation.

CHUNG WAH CHOP SUEY
SPECIALIZING IN
CHINESE & CANADIAN FOOD
TAKE OUT AND DELIVERY DIAL 544-6128
217 UNIVERSITY (CORNER OF WILLIAMS)
OPEN 8 AM TO MIDNIGHT
SUNDAY 10 AM TO 8 PM

SKIERS!

$73.00 to Saddleback, Maine
Verticle drop is 1750 ft.
price includes tows, accommodations, and lessons. Formerly $86.00, we are now organizing car pools, instead of buses

Deposit required Dec. 10.

Contact: Jim Downey (544-7703)
or Steve Gareau (544-0797)

FRIED CHICKEN ★ ★ ★ BURGERS

Monday to Friday 10 a.m. - 10 p.m. Saturday, 10 am - 8 p.m.
Delivery anywhere within City limits .45 extra - and -
Delivery outside City limits slightly extra.

Unwanted hair
removed from any part of the body

All work done by skilled well-trained graduate electrologists. Eyebrow arching done with guaranteed artistic perfection.

Graduate Electrolysis Salon
183 Princess St.
544-6905

We're damn sick of Apathy!!

Have a ...
Ho, Ho Hum
Holiday

- Queen's
Journal

COMMODORE HOTEL

840 PRINCESS ST.

The Commodore Hotel at 840 Princess St. is pleased to offer all Students of Queen's, St. Lawrence and MacArthur College a preferred rate for room accommodation for their Parents or friends during the 74-75 term when they have occasion to visit Kingston.

NIGHTLY ENTERTAINMENT
in our Lounge

THIS WEEK : Lisle

Amateur Night every Wednesday

Queen's Students Welcome
In Our Lounge

Those secret papers:

Goodies galore at Frolic

by Martyn Wolfman
In case you'd forgotten, after our hard-earned Christmas has ended, we're going to be coming back here to face another barrage of tests, essays, and all-nighters. However, every vision of hell carries a few sparks of light. Such a spark is Winter Frolic Week, which will be held Jan. 8-11.

Details are sketchy right now, however there is enough information to indicate that it will be a huge success. The first day, Wednesday, will feature mostly "low-key" activities such as sleigh-rides, bonfires, and a ski club trip to Watertown, New York. Thursday night is Variety

Night which will be held in the Jock Hartly Arena. This doesn't mean that you have to be able to skate if you want to perform in the show. By the way, if you can do ANYTHING, and would like to be in Variety Night, auditions will be held in Lower Vic tonight from 7 until 10:30.

Friday will give us Ukrainian Night in Grant Hall. So far all that's known is there'll be a Ukrainian-style pub. However, more will follow on that.

On Saturday, while the Wanderlust extravaganza is going on in the residences, there will be a dress-up semi-formal in Grant Hall. The comedy team of McLean & McLean, and Audio-

Master (who have been Chicago's warm-up group) will provide the entertainment. The theme of the dance will be Winter Frolic and so will the decor. Liquor and beer will be sold in Kingston Hall. Tickets for this event will cost $2.75 apiece and will go on sale at the end of this week.

And the grand finale of the whole thing will be a concert Sunday night with somebody big, so the organizers say.

The cost to students for all events will be par with all other happenings on campus. And as far as having snow goes, if you can't have it guaranteed in early January, then when can you?

US law opens personal files

MONTREAL (CUP)—Colleges and universities throughout the United States are adopting strategies ranging from the destruction of documents to Congressional lobbying in order to escape the consequences of legislation that would give students complete access to their personal files.

The law, which became effective last week, denies federal funds to any school that refuses to allow parents or students over 18, to examine their file. It also requires the schools to correct errors found in the file, and prevents the dissemination of the information in the file without the permission of the individual.

Most Canadian universities do not allow students access to personal files. For example, students at Loyola campus of Concordia University do not have the right to examine their complete file to check its accuracy, as certain parts of it are classed as confidential by the records office.

Loyola's records office claim that this is necessary because some of the material, such as letters of recommendation, was intended to be confidential when it was put in the file.

American universities are also using this defense, and claiming that people will no longer be willing to write candid letters of recommendation. Some officials say this will lead to a greater reliance upon quantitative data, such as test scores and high school marks, as the criteria for admission to university.

Colleges and universities in America are working to have the implementation of the legislation postponed to give them time to lobby for changes in the bill.

Many have publicly expressed their dissatisfaction, and others are working more actively for a delay. The University of Chicago has sent two faculty members to Washington to lobby against the bill.

Most institutions seem to be working on the assumption that they will win a postponement, but contingency plans have been prepared by some colleges.

"If postponement doesn't work out, then we will immediately turn to legal counsel," said Kelsey Murdoch, assistant to the president at Brown University.

University officials are claiming that the bill was aimed at lower levels of education, where abuses of the individual's right to privacy have been more frequent. Elementary and high schools have been known to make files containing unsubstantiated allegations about the student and his family available to outside agencies, while keeping the information secret from the student and his parents.

However, a spokesman for James Buckley, the Conservative-Republican senator who sponsored the law has denied this.

"It was our initial thought that all educational institutions receiving federal funds should have this condition for receiving aid," he said.

Student groups in the U.S. have supported the move to open files. The Student American Medical Association "has complained bitterly about the excessive power that the professors in medical school have. The professors can make unfavourable comments in the students records, but the students don't know it and don't know what they are doing wrong," the spokesman said.

One man's politics

by Doug Bonnell

"One Man's Politics" will return after Christmas in an expanded format. Twice a month the Queen's Journal will be devoting an entire page to articles and commentary on political issues on all levels. If you would like to be involved in writing for the page, to be entitled "Which Way, Canada" let Doug know by phone or by writing or by sending suggestions and articles to The Editor, Queen's Journal. "Which Way, Canada".

DANCETHON IS COMING

Jan. 17 in Grant Hall 8 pm - 8 am.

Prizes - Games - Bands

Admission: 25¢ ½ hr. in pledges.

Pledge cards available in John Orr room.

Proceeds go to Camp Outlook.
Sponsored by Outlook & Arts 77.

Students from Ottawa Hull Area interested in Summer Employment should register at

The Canada Manpower Centre
557 MacKenzie Ave. Ottawa during the Christmas Holidays

SLEIGH RIDES

Want to go on a real horse drawn sleigh ride? It's possible at Valhalla!

Make up a party and have some winter fun. You will ride in a 2 horse sleigh around Valhalla's BUFFALO PARK, so you will see the buffalo herd as well. So get together with your friends, phone for reservations, and come on out to Valhalla Riding School Hwy No. 2, Gananoque (on Hwy 2, 13 mi. east of Kingston)

Valhalla Riding School
Hwy No. 2, Gananoque
(on Hwy. 2, 13 mi. east of Kingston)

PHONE: 382-3337

VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S

VAN'S GIFTS and BOOKS
282 Princess St.
KINGSTON 542-6676

MORE CHRISTMAS GIFT IDEAS
HUGE SELECTION OF FINE VELVET CHINESE SCENES - ANIMAL - SHIP - & PERSONAL SCROLLS. BEAUTIFUL COLOURS WHICH GO IN TO ANY ROOM. AT THE OLD PRICE $3.98 ONLY. AT VAN'S FANTASTIC ASSORTMENT OF GLASS - WOODEN - STAINLESS STEEL - ACRYLIC - AND BRASS PIPES AT LOW PRICES YOU CAN AFFORD, AT VAN'S OF COURSE!

STORE HOURS OPEN	Mon.-Fri. 9:30 am - 10 pm Saturday 9:30 am - 9 pm Sunday 12:00 noon - 9 pm
------------------	--

VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S

THIS COUPON IS VALID AT VAN'S ONLY

10%
DISCOUNT

ON ALL: ADULT-BUSINESS-WAR- SCIENCE AND DRINKING GAMES!

MERRY CHRISTMAS
TO ALL PEOPLE!

Come in and see the new Lange boots and skis
also

The full line of Obin skis, Pedigree clothing, and the new Solomon no. 555 10% off to Queen's students

cotton's
sportshouse

399 PRINCESS STREET,
KINGSTON K7L 1B9
TELEPHONE 544-1066

Letters: Rice is nice

F Concerning the day of Fasting, I doubt it will have too much of a lasting effect, particularly if "seconds" are served, although the thought behind it is certainly commendable. Perhaps the most effective demonstration for the majority of people at Queen's would not be a day of fasting; rather, a short walk in certain portions of larger cities in our country where one may see people suffering from malnutrition, a form of starvation, just as effective as going without any at all.

Dear Editor,

Food waste by students in residence is a serious problem, though a friend told me that if they made it taste better he would not throw it away. That really surprises me is that Beaver Foods themselves, according to your photo caption, throw this waste food away when it could still be put to use. The Kingston area is dotted with small farms, usually of dairy cattle. Considering the cost of cattle feed is rising, would not waste food make a cheap, and equally nutritious substitute? Even if it could not be used as silage, why not as a compost for market gardens, various nurseries or even the city parks? Such a use of waste will provide a supplementary income for Beaver Foods with which this service may be improved upon. Under present conditions students will waste food no matter what happens - the solution for the problem lies in what is done with the waste itself.

David Raymont

A There was an article in Tuesday's Journal about a Day of Fasting which stated that "only a diet of white rice and milk will be served in all the food service outlets on campus which are run by Beaver Foods." This is pure discrimination (intended or not) by the AMS towards the students living in residence who have already paid for that meal. While people living off campus can join or ignore the fast, depending on how they feel, the people in residence must join it because you give them no choice.

Dear Editor,

I agree that there is far too much wasted food and people should be made aware of the food crisis, but this definitely is the wrong way to do it. A better approach would be to hold seminars or write articles in the Journal and hold the fast on a voluntary basis instead of forcing it on a minority of Queen's students.

If you go through with this scheme, all you will achieve is a few people more aware of the food crisis, a lot of people mad at Beaver Foods and the AMS for a day. But the next day everything will be back to normal with very little accomplished.

Yours sincerely,
William Kirkpatrick

S

Dear Editor,

The AMS plan to serve milk and rice one day next term at Beaver Food outlets is an arrogant, unjust move made for political purposes only and certainly destined to incite student outrage against the present council.

It is arrogant because it does not affect the members of the council, who made the motion. How many of them live in residence and/or rely on Beaver for all their meals? Not very many, I'll bet. This action will only affect those who had no part in its undertaking.

It is unjust because the students living in residence paid for three meals a day, not rice and milk. If you went to a restaurant, ordered and paid for meat and potatoes, you would tend to be a little upset. Exactly the same situation exists here.

It is stated in the Journal article that the move was made in order to revive flagging student interest in AMS activities. It will not make any impact on famines which exist in the Third World today. University students, especially those paying expensive residence rates, can barely afford to pay their own living expenses, let alone contribute any significant amount to easing of famine.

So please AMS, stop making potty political manoeuvres and start doing your job of governing the students at this university!

Yours truly,
Peter Doody

T

Dear Editor,

Since recent reports have been published by Time Magazine concerning the world shortage crisis facing the food, Lyn Whitman has taken it upon herself to make the students aware of this problem. Her method of doing so, backed by AMS approval, is to feed the students while rice and milk for one day "to illustrate the amount of food waste and how one-third of the world's populace eats day to day." What right, Miss Whitman, do you have to take our money in order to illustrate your point? Not only that, but what is to be done with this money? Will it be used to fatten the wallets of the AMS or Mr. Hunt, or will it be sent to those people in the world who need it? And while we eat rice, Miss Whitman, what will you eat on that day, living in a house off campus where no one tells you what to eat?

Your idea has some merit, AMS, but not in the way, it is presented in the article. Is it poor journalism or lack of AMS communication that prevents the students from hearing the benefits from your actions? All benefits, from the lesson to be shown to the money going to the countries in need (or does it?).

Mark Gabinet

I

Dear Editor,

We feel that The AMS idea of generating more awareness on campus of the international hunger situation is a valid one. However, the means by which they intend to accomplish this seem totally misdirected.

By depriving Queen's students in residence of proper nutrition for a day, they are not contributing at all to the improvement of the world food situation. Rather, they are contributing to the profits of Beaver Foods and the alienation of the AMS from the students.

Furthermore, as students who have already paid for our meals we feel that it would be more appropriate that our money be contributed to an organization directly involved in the alleviation of the suffering incurred by starvation. This contribution would come in the form of the difference in cost between three regular meals and three of rice milk. This may not represent a large donation but it would accomplish something, which is more than their proposal will do.

The fact that their money is being donated to a worthy cause would make it easier for students to accept the meals they suggest. Of course we would expect to have John Gray and Lyn Whitman join us for all our meals on the Day of Fasting.

Humbly yours
Colin Nickerson
Glen Farley
Leonard Hall

N

Dear Sir,

The term "bored democracy" is a colloquial phrase. It is used to refer to those ridiculous actions of elected officials who, realising that they have nothing positive to contribute, decide that they had still better do something to justify their election, and hence embark on absolutely ludicrous plans.

Tuesdays edition of the Journal contains an account of a remarkably clear example of this. I refer of course to the article headlined, "AMS plans fasting day-campus to eat milk, rice."

The report states that one Lyn Whitman, AMS Internal Affairs Commissioner, believes that "...the AMS has shown no leadership in the political realm and... reasons ... that this is one of the factors for the AMS council losing credibility with the students."

So in the interest of the world's starving masses (and their own confessed waning credibility) the AMS has decided to make the poor unfortunate who are dependent on Beaver Foods for sustenance do public penance for the wealthiest student body in Canada.

If this preposterous plan goes through, what can be the positive results?

1) The revenue of the surrounding restaurants will be greatly increased for the day.

2) The revenue of Beaver Foods will be greatly increased for the day (rice is cheaper than the stuff they, Beaver Foods, call meat).

3) Student awareness for the world's starving masses will be greatly increased. FOR THE DAY.

Obviously this plan of Miss Whitman and her cronies is as insincere as it would be ineffective. If our incredible (not to mention incredible) AMS really wants to increase student awareness for the world's starving masses (and increase their credibility) why not, in the name of the world's starving masses, close the pub for a week?

Yours 'til the AMS smartens up
George Gregory, Arts 77

Come sit on my knee!

Dear Kiddies:

This is your old friend Santa writing, all the way from the North Pole. For years now children, like you, have been writing to me, and telling me what you'd like for Christmas. Over the centuries things have changed greatly. I started off small but now I have a very large business. Children, too, started off not expecting much, but now they want more than I can carry. My operation has changed from a small cottage industry to a large factory (even the elves are unionized). Why, last year, while on a practise run, an elf with a black moustache jumped out of my sack and pointed a Johnny 7 Commando Rifle at me and demanded to be taken to the Antarctic. Fortunately for Christmas, Rudolf had been on one of his binges again so when his nose started flashing the elf thought it was the police, took a parachute and jumped out over Fort MacMurray.

But I have strayed, I'm trying to tell you that I have changed too. For years I've just quietly left or not left your gifts without a word of explanation why you were or were not getting your wish. Summarized below several of you will find a brief explanation of why it will be impossible for good old Santa to fulfill your wish. Please don't be disappointed if your name appears on the list, I know that with the proper guidance and help you all could qualify for a present next year.

Principal Watts: a new sailboat: I like the cut of the job of your present one.

Sue Harper: A Better Journal: I'm sorry I'm only human, I can't improve on the near perfect.

Ralph Clench: a toy streetcar: Ralph you've got to stop embarrassing the staff at the computing centre.

John Gray: a new act: I like the one you've got-how about a dog named spot.

Suzanne: what you're asking for is impossible! they don't come that large- you mustn't be so greedy.

Bill Horricks: Good News: I can help you- you're enrolled in Remedial English 901- it's slot one, don't be late.

Well That's all for now there's a funny looking man outside looking for an Inn - Season's Greetings- Love

Kris Kringle

G

Dear Editor,

I read in the Journal that the AMS is proposing a day of fasting to draw more attention to the world food crisis. I also understand from a member of the AMS that the money saved by Beaver Foods will be sent in the form of food-aid to some hard hit area.

I fully agree with the need to initiate awareness on this campus to world problems but I am completely opposed to the manner in which it is being stimulated and the purpose to which the money will be used.

The situation in which the Third World nations find themselves is not so simply described as a food crisis. It is a complex many-sided problem involving: education, the emigration of the Third World elite to the West, industrial development, the reduction of population to the natural carrying capacity of the land, and the political stability, strength and honesty of Third World nations to deal with their population problems.

As such, the AMS proposal is not only futile but harmful to a dangerous degree, for the following reasons. Firstly, it promotes the erroneous notion that a multi-faceted problem can be dealt with piece-meal.

Continued on Page 9

but only at weddings

Continued from Page 8

Secondly, it is a cheap way of appeasing the Western guilt-complex, and so will merely achieve a false sense of security in the mind of the Queen's student, who will lapse back into apathy after doing his good deed for the day. Thirdly, but surely not lastly (who knows the consequences of the simple acts of moral since the feeding of 10 illiterate starving people will result in 30 illiterate starving people tomorrow. That's a cold calculating statement, but unfortunately it is also true. The assumption that doing something is better than doing nothing is false in this case, for the reasons I have outlined above. What is needed is the total commitment of developed nations to tackle all angles of the problem at the same time and soon. It is a measure of the ignorance and political lack of guts of all nations that it is not approached in this manner.

The AMS is collectively out of lunch on this issue and if anyone needs their awareness of world problems stimulated it is the simple-minded members of the AMS council

Sincerely,
Peter Strahlendorf

but....

Dear Editor,

The short time I have been at Queen's, I felt it was quite an apathetic and indifferent campus, especially with regard to what is happening in those far off lands where people are not only ill, but hungry. Even with regard to Canadian politics, the students here are not very much interested in what the government is doing. The majority work at a mad pace for that piece of paper which shall entitle them to earn a degree.

It is interesting to see some Queen's students trying to generate awareness to the problem of food shortage which other people in this world have, by holding a fasting day. It seems interesting to me possibly because I come from a land where many go to bed hungry and fasting consists of not having any food or drink between dawn and dusk. But as the cliché goes, "Something is better than nothing."

Queen's is just the beginning of this awareness in this land of plenty, where even dogs and cats cat better and more than the people of my land

Shankar Lakavani

Used books and magazines needed

Dear Editor,

I am involved in a volunteer programme at Kingston Psychiatric Hospital, where I take a book and magazine cart around to different wards and lend them to the patients who want them. If they like and if I can, I discuss the books and events with them.

My problem is that there is a deplorable selection of books and a very out-dated magazine section provided me.

Well, knowing the generosity and general well-being of Queen's students, I have decided to present my problem to you and ask for your help. If anyone receives a periodical or has any paperbacks be doesn't want, could you please cart them over to the SVB office in the Student Union or the TV lounge on West Campus and leave them in the boxes marked K.P.H., it would be very much appreciated.

Thank you,
Mandy Kay

Candles burn for Multiple Sclerosis

Dear Editor,

We would like to take this opportunity to thank the people of Queen's for their interest and help in fighting Multiple Sclerosis through the Candle Sales. This has been a project undertaken by several Circle K Clubs at universities and colleges across the Eastern Canada and Caribbean district.

Queen's Circle K has sold over 500 candles and will give our profits of $1.00 per candle to fight Multiple Sclerosis. Your support has made this effort a great success. Thanks to everyone.

Harry S Binks
Jim McKendry
D. Joe Irvine

We hate Beaver with a fever

Dear Editor,

This letter refers to the "Grub Stake" article we received on Dec 2nd, 1974. Their article was entitled "Ban Righ and Leonard. . . From the Professional Point of View."

In this article we were told by two nutritionists that the food we, the students in residence, eat is very nutritious. I am not a nutritionist but I am a student who has paid money to eat three good meals a day.

It was stated that the nutritionists looked at the quality of the food the taste, texture, temperature and appearance. They were very right in saying that if these criteria are not met it doesn't matter if the food is nutritious. The question is, are these criteria actually met from day to day?

These nutritionists ate one meal on one day. I am sure that one day out of the whole school year the food is very good. They mentioned the menu of the day. It does sound like a very well balanced meal; they all are well balanced meals with meat, vegetables and potatoes, but it is really meat and potatoes? Thursday Nov. 28 I had steak at Leonard. First of all it didn't taste or look like any steak I had ever eaten. One girl couldn't even get her knife through it. Can you really see yourself eating something like that?

Queens
Journal
Vol. 107, No. 34
Fri., Dec. 6, 1974
Queen's University
at Kingston, Ontario.

Director of Asylum - Sue Sherkin
Santa Claus - Terry Collins
Running-around-Manager Ed
Dan McClelland
Storm News Ed Sarah Yarnell
Features Preps Wandy and Laurie
Arts Booze Drinkers Kerry
Wille, Peter Haworth

Picture Takers - Fud, John C.
Keith, P.C., Jon W., and last, John B.

Jack Eds Lyn and Sue
Layout People Anne and Meg
Classified Nuts Trish & Les
Immates Nancy, Gloria, Dave,
Bogey, Sue and countless others whom we can't find anymore
Another J. Douglas Bonnell III and his search for inner meaning

Comment: "This place is a Mad House." Last issue of the paper for the term and this office is going nuts. Nobody was here at 7 but when Santa Claus showed up, the worms crawled out of the woodwork to get their presents and goodies. Kerry got a helicopter (which didn't work). Peter got his gun: Nancy has a Santa statuette while I didn't get none, the layout girls have lightbulbs now (because they're so bright); and you should see Sarah's doll: it's quite the sight. And the Peeps go on making all kinds of weird noises with whistles and horns. They never quit. If this issue looks a little trashed, blame it on the jovial spirits brought about by the bottle of 93 cent wine (courtesy of "Skid Row" Pete) and the overall happy feeling of an upcoming vacation. Other highlights of this crazy night included a debate on the AMS food last among David (who was constantly taking breaks), Rosemary (who tried to do Walt's hairpin at the same time), Bogey (who patiently listened most of the time); as well the back on to some soul: it was quiet for a while. And speaking of the Journal office, I have never seen such a messy place in my life and that includes my room. There is more yellow paper strewn all over the place and old Journals, garbage, more paper, books, broken down typewriters, and nobody cares except me. Well, that's about all the weird things that have happened tonight. The peeps at the Journal would like to wish everyone good luck on their exams and especially to those in Film who have a hell of a time remembering all those crazy Wellesian camera angles left alone pondering the inner meaning of a Bergman film. If you need expert analysis on Innamorati, just drop by the Journal office sometime and talk to Suzanne, who just loves all his movies. That's probably why she got nothing from Santa when he was in the office, he doesn't like Bergman either! So I hope everybody has a good time at the Journal party this Saturday! A good time at a Journal party is getting an advance copy of the next issue to drool over; and that all students have fun at home seeing old friends and of course, mommy Merry Christmas and Happy New Year to all, and remember, no matter how rough things get, "The problems of three people don't amount to a hill of beans in this crazy world."

P.S. The above is a result of a month of working in the Journal office!

P.P.S. If you think the Journal office was a mess, you should have seen what the poor printer received via the Tim Horton express. The results are wrapped around this page, 19 times! Chief Gnome.

Founded in 1973 and published on Tuesdays and Fridays during the academic year by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University, Incorporated, Kingston, Ontario. Founding member of Canadian University Press. Editorial opinions expressed are those of the editor and not necessarily those of the AMS nor the University. Telephone (413) 547-2404. Printed by gnomes at the St. Lawrence Printing Co., Ltd., Prescott, Ontario. Lithographed in USA on Canadian newsprint.

When the going gets tough

Beat it, then eat it

Bake your aggression away

There's a song that goes "Ever since my masochistic baby left, I've got nothing to beat but the eggs." Well, around this time of year, it could seem appropriate to supply a few sources of relieving frustration. The scene is a familiar one. It's 2:00 am, you have a seminar to give tomorrow, an exam tomorrow night and your housemate is playing guitar in the living room. Instead of wrestling the guitar from his grip to beat your prof over the head with, may we suggest an alternative. March resolutely to the kitchen and kill two birds with one stone, since it seems to be a general rule that late night studying goes arm-in-arm with the munchies. To give you renewed energy to tackle the books once more, and at the same time giving you an outlet for your tension, consider these battle-tested recipes.

All provide immediate physical activity. Each will allow you to vent your emotions on an inanimate rather than an animate object, like your prof's head. Emotional repression leads to anti-social deeds, after all. They're all easy. Even men can make them. For the most part, ingredients can be found in the kitchen of any starving, struggling student. If you want to, and since exam-time frustration is a foregone conclusion, read them over now and go shopping for the ingredients on the weekend.

Instructions may at first glance seem lengthy in some cases. Not so. We've intentionally been specific in giving detailed steps so as to ensure that maximum satisfaction is derived, in terms of gustatory pleasure and maintenance of sanity.

Banana Bread

3 ripe or over-ripe bananas (4 if small)
1 cup white sugar (if you can still afford it)

1 egg
1½ cup flour
¼ cup melted butter or margarine
1 tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. salt

Wielding a fork, mash the peeled bananas in a large bowl. Look at the back of your pantry for the bananas that you bought November 2nd and they'll be perfect. The yuckier the better. Mash, beat, pulverize and generally decompose. Add other ingredients and beat like hell until smooth. Pour into a greased loaf pan, and bake one hour at 325 degrees. Divide by number of people present and gorge.

Aggression Cookies

+added bonus: develops arm muscles
1½ cup brown sugar
1½ cups softened margarine
3 cups oatmeal
1½ cups flour
½ tablespoon baking soda
1 teaspoon vanilla (maybe more if it's too dry)

Dump all ingredients into a big bowl. Roll up your sleeves, remove all rings and watches and with one or both hands, mash, knead, squeeze until combined. It's great to feel the mush squish through your fingers, and although it sounds unsanitary, the more you do it, the better the cookies will taste. Form into small balls on ungreased cookie sheet. Butter the bottom of a small glass, dip it in white sugar and mash each ball flat. You only need re-butter the glass once or twice but dip it in sugar for each ball. You can add raisins, nuts coconut etc. depending on what's on the shelf and how aggressive you feel. Bake at 350 degrees for about 12 minutes. This makes an enormous batch so don't be dismayed at the large amount of batter you have in front of you and all over your hands. Instead, invite over several frustrated friends to crunch and munch with you.

Bake at 350 degrees for half an hour. This can be iced or not, but what the hell, go ahead. You don't have to worry about calories at exam time on top of all your other probs.

Whipped Omelette

So you've pulled another all-nighter and the rosy-fingered dawn is quickly illuminating the shadowy corners of your lair, making you realize that: a) the exam is only three hours away, and b) you're hungry for some breakfast. No better way to start the day (or continue the one left over from the day before) than with the following.

a bunch of eggs
1 tablespoon of milk per egg
a pinch of salt and a dash of pepper

Beat the eggs a lot, until their beady little eyes no longer stare up at you from the bottom of the bowl. Add the milk, S and P and whip some more. While the frying pan is heating search around for any or all of the following: grated cheese (any flavour), mushrooms, green pepper, onions, cooked and crumbled bacon. Melt some butter in the pan, coating the top and sides (especially) very well. Over medium heat, pour the glop in and let it set. Lift up the sides of the egg mixture with a spatula so that the runny part slides to the bottom of the pan. The main idea is to get it all cooked. When the top seems reasonably set, add the cheese, etc., and flop the top over the bottom half. If the whole operation fails, as omelettes are wont to do, don't sweat it. Scramble the whole mess and who's to say that's not what you were making in the first place.

It's now the middle of the afternoon, and God knows you don't feel like studying anyway. Put the thought of all that disruptive guitar-playing and all those middle-of-the-night parties out of your mind and prepare your work-worn roomies a meal to remember. Of course, the entree, in keeping with our preoccupation with violence, is something that can be beaten to a pulp.

Cockeyed Cake

(alias the Eggless Wonder)

1½ cups flour
3 tablespoon cocoa
1 tablespoon baking soda
1 cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
5 tablespoons corn oil or something
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup cold water

Sift ingredients together into a large bowl. Add oil, vinegar, vanilla then pour water all over. Beat until smooth. You will feel like you are making mudpies but this will taste even better. Pour into a greased 8" square pan.

1 split chicken breast per person flour butter salt pepper thyme

1 can drained mushroom slices sliced mozzarella cheese bone the chicken. This is easy if they're men and as they're thawing, remove the bones. Use a sharp paring knife to do so. Start remove meat at the pointed piece of white fat. The chicken should come off the bone in a flat slab.

Place slab between two pieces of waxed paper and pound the living daylight out of it with a rolling pin, wooden spoon, mallet or similar object. Pound each piece to one-eighth inch thickness. Mix the flour with the S and P, spices. Put this mixture in a shallow dish. Dip each chicken piece and coat with mixture. Fry about ten minutes in butter until tender. Place chicken on a broiling pan and sprinkle mushrooms on top. Add a slice of mozzarella. Put under broiler until the cheese melts. Serve at once.

This sounds complicated, but is really very easy. The deboning and pounding can be done at a midnight study break and dinner for the day is begun. Try marinating the deboned chicken in Italian salad dressing overnight, for extra zip at dinner time.

The pleasure one can derive from ripping apart a head of lettuce and chopping celery into bits is immeasurable. It also gives you a good go with your hammered chicken. Now the dressing.

Salad Dressing

Into a jar with a tight-fitting lid put:

½ cup of oil
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons of sugar
½ teaspoon salt
dried parsley
1 teaspoon of each of garlic salt, basil, celery seed, marjoram and pepper
the lid back on, then shake, rattle and roll all combined. Shake before each use.

Seriously, these are recipes which really turn out well. So put your aggressive tendencies to work for you in a constructive manner this exam season. You might find that results are so tasty you'll want to make them in less pressured time. Merry Christmas from the kitchens of The Queen's Journal.

KELLY'S

SALE 3.97
List 7.29
DARYL HALL-JOHN OATES
War Babies

SALE 3.97
List 7.29
SANTANA
"Borboletta"

SALE 3.97
List 7.29
JO JO GUNNE
Same

SALE 3.97
List 7.29
TOOO RUNOGENS
Utopia

SALE 3.97
List 7.29
MARIA MULDOON
Waitress in a Donut Shop

SALE 3.97
List 7.29
TOM RUSH
Ladies Love Outlaws

SALE 3.97
List 7.98
JIM CROCE
"Photographs & Memories"

SALE 3.97
List 7.29
ELTON JOHN
Greatest Hits

Check These Great Christmas Bargains -- How Can You Lose?

ROLLING STONES - It's Only Rock 'n Roll - List 7.29 - SALE 3.97
JETHRO TULL - War Child - List 7.29 - SALE 3.97
VAN MORRISON - Voodoo Fleece - List 7.29 - SALE 3.97
SHAWN PHILLIPS - Furthermore - List 7.29 - SALE 3.97
BRUCE COCKBURN - Salt, Sun & Time - List 7.29 - SALE 3.97
LOGGINS & MESSINA - Motherlode - List 7.98 - SALE 3.97
LOU REED - Sally Can't Dance - List 7.98 - SALE 3.97
PAUL MCCARTNEY - Band on the Run - List 8.29 - SALE 3.97

ELTON JOHN - Carribou - List 7.29 - SALE 3.97
JIM CROCE - I Got a Name - List 7.98 - SALE 3.97
You Don't Mess Around With Jim - List 7.98 - SALE 3.97
BILLY JOEL - Street Life Serenade - List 7.29 - SALE 3.97
RINGO STAR - Goodnight Vienna - List 7.29 - SALE 3.97
AVERAGE WHITE BANO - List 7.29 - SALE 3.97
FOGHAT - Rock 'n Roll Outlaw - List 7.29 - SALE 3.97
BTO - Not Fragile - List 7.98 - SALE 3.97

SALE 3.97
List 7.98
JOHN DENVER
Back Home Again

SALE 8.88
List 13.98
ELTON JOHN
Goodbye Yellow Brick Road

SALE 7.98
List 11.98
DAVID BOWIE
David Live

SALE 8.88
List 13.98
MOODY BLUES
This Is The Moody Blues

SAVE

$2.00 off list - All 8-Track and Cassettes - Good Selection For Right Price.
15%-20% OFF - All Cartridge & Disc Travelling and Storage Cabinets and Cases

REMEMBER!

If you are a STUOENT and are thinking of PURCHASING ALBUMS or TAPES for Christmas gifts, Our prices are better than theirs - NO MATTER WHERE THEY LIVE!

STEREO MART

110 PRINCESS ST.
KINGSTON
544-4014

Save on this Fantastic

AKAI

Reel-to-Reel

DECK

Automatic Reverse Playback
Three Motors
LIFETIME GUARANTEED
GX HEADS
Tape Selector Switch
Automatic Stop
Pause Switch
Large Easy to Read Meters Wide Frequency Response

$559

Memorex
8-Track Cartridges

BUY
ONE GET SECOND
8 TRACK
1/2 PRICE
2/5-98

SPEAKERS

Sansui SF1 Omni Directional Speaker

Previously Marked 239.95	$179
Deluxe Sansui SF2 Speakers
Previously Marked 279.95	$209
AKAI ST400 Speaker
Previously Marked 299.	$229
Sentry 100 Speaker
Previously Marked 599.95	$479

Memorex
Cassette Tapes

Buy 2
Get 3rd Cassette FREE

CR2 C-90 CASSETTES 3 for 11.98
MR2 OXIDE C-90 Cassettes 3 for 11.98

Drop In And See
Our Christmas
SPECIALS
ON

✓ Turntables
✓ Tape Recorders
✓ Receivers

Akai's
best Cassette is back!
$397

Wide 20 to 18000 Hz frequency response
Longlife GX glass & crystal ferrite heads
Wow and flutter of less than 0.12 percent
Dolby noise reduction system for low noise
OLS and ADR systems for best sound
Tape selector, auto stop, pause
Rugged reliable AKAI mechanism

Arts Festival

Plans are underway

Preparations for this year's Arts Festival are shifting into high gear as the organizers finalize needs for equipment and staff for the many events involved in the festival. Different areas of the arts to be explored during the five days of the festival include crafts, painting, sculpture, drama, photography, film and music.

Crafts to be displayed include macrame, batik, silk-screening, weaving and quilting. There will also be demonstrations held in most of these crafts. There will be numerous presentations and demonstrations in the area of drama. Ridger Griffiths, a clown, will present a two hour performance and a two hour workshop. Kingston's own Theatre Five will present a two hour improvisation session. Russ Waller of the Drama Department will present a two hour make-up workshop. Students will be presenting skits and one has volunteered to hold a juggling demonstration.

There will be exhibitions of photography and contests for both slides and printed photography. The festival will include a lot of film-screenings. There will be a student film contest - the entries will be judged early in the week and the winners rerun for the public later in the week. There will be N.F.B. films screened in the pub on two afternoons, and W.C. Fields film will be shown Friday night.

There will be a number of musical events included in the festival. In the planning stages are two large concerts, one in Grant Hall and one in the arena. Also planned are noon-hour recitals of contemporary folk, and informal concerts by students in the pub in the evenings. Some workshops will be offered - some of the musicians from Renaissance Music have offered to conduct sessions in fiddle, autoharp, guitar, banjo, and dulcimer.

Arts Festival will run from January 28 until February 1, and promises to make that week an interesting one around campus. Contributors to the festival are still welcome, and advertisements will be placed for staff required for the week.

Kingston music: new choral group

by Richard Bronskill

A new choral group has been added to the musical resources of the Kingston community.

In a city already well served by a wide selection of choirs both at Queen's University and within the community at large, the newly-formed Pro Arte Singers of Kingston will offer something new.

They will be the city's first semi-professional choral ensemble, a group of 16 singers good enough to be paid for their work, and though smaller in scope, essentially similar in makeup to Toronto's famed Festival Singers.

Director David Cameron has created the Pro Arte Singers in the belief that this group of highly-trained men and women, who come from a variety of different backgrounds, will be able to scan the entire range of choral music and offer performances ranging from tightly-knit madrigals to works of a much larger scale.

Mr. Cameron is well known in Kingston and elsewhere for his work during the past eight years as director of music at Chalmers Church, and as founder of the Chalmers Singers, a widely-travelled local singing group which gave the inspiration for the more ambitious Pro Arte Singers.

The repertoire of the new group will range from Palestrina to 20th Century, and from Bach to folk songs. A concert to be heard later in the winter will feature P.D.Q. Bach, the whimsical invention of American prodigy Peter Schickele.

The Pro Arte Singers will make their concert debut next Wednesday, Dec. 11, at 8:30 pm in St. Paul's Church, Queen and Montreal streets. The program will include works by Gibbons, Vivaldi, Blow, Britten and others. It will be the first of four concerts presented this season.

Tickets are on sale at Flowers 'n Things, Mahoods Drug Store, Vern Napier Camera Store, and at the door, at a cost of $3 for adults and $2 for students.

Jon Wiltmer

Lorraine Forbes in rehearsal for the Drama Department's production of Silver Bird and Scarlet Feather. This children's play is written by Maurice Breslow, a Drama professor, and will be presented on Saturday and Sunday in the morning and afternoon. Admission is free, and tickets are available at the Drama Desk in Theological Hall.

FOR THOSE OF US IN KINGSTON ON NEW YEAR'S EVE
THERE WILL BE A

NEW YEAR'S EVE PARTY

IN

THE QUEEN'S PUB

(HOUSE OF LORDS ONLY)

DOORS OPEN AT 8PM (AS USUAL)

COVER CHARGE:

$3.00/COUPLE

$2.00/SINGLE

WITH STUDENT I.D.

Questionnaire

based on roughly 300 replies.

Guess Who 45 p.c.
Santana 43 p.c.
Sha-na-na 28 p.c.
Todd Rundgren 27 p.c.
Van Morrison 26 p.c.

in the 10 p.c.-20p.c. bracket

Straws
John Lee Hooker
Moe Koffman

John Mayall 25 p.c.
Cheech & Chong 25 p.c.
Murray McLaughlin 21 p.c.
Chiliwack 21 p.c.

Roxy Music
Humble Pie
Gentle Giant

the percentages of people who would like to see more music of a certain type:

classical 4 p.c.
bluegrass 10 p.c.
rock 29 p.c.
progressive rock 33 p.c.
blues 23 p.c.
rock 'n' roll 15 p.c.

jazz 16 p.c.
folk 4 p.c.
heavy rock 5 p.c.
glitter rock 5 p.c.
(Genesis 3 p.c.)

These survey results reveal the problem associated with planning entertainment at Queen's. People have a wide diversity of tastes, with no performer having even 50 per cent acceptance with the student populations. This situation makes planning and evaluation of acts very difficult in this era of high priced, "hard-to-get" entertainers. One solution seems to be to obtain medium priced artists in order to please the large variety of tastes. This philosophy is drawn from the fact that the university is split in its musical tastes. I will do my best to obtain those entertainers that those people who answered the questionnaire wished to see, and any other interesting performers who become available. I thank those people who filled out the survey; it helped us and I hope it will help you to have better entertainment.

Dave Finlay

Please do not read this writing. Stop here. What you read here will amount to absolutely nothing; this writer has absolutely nothing to say. The editor had a space to fill, and forced this writer to compose something. It doesn't work; his imagination is dead and if he doesn't think of something good, he may develop a frightful inferiority complex. Besides the only reason this space must be filled is to make you notice the goddamned Carlsberg ad, and we need copy beside it. Otherwise the cheap bastards won't pay us for the ad.

- GREB-KODIAK BOOTS-

Waterproof, Insulated, Plain or Steel Toe.

Sizes 4 to 13

Always Your Size in Stock at the Best Price

LARRY'S

Men's Wear at
354 King St., East

Just 3 Doors from Princess St.

WIND-UP

at Clark Hall

This afternoon and tonite:

2 pm - 1 am

with

HAPPY HOUR

8 pm - 9 pm.

Beer

3/$1.00

during Happy Hour

Something to "cheers" about:

Now the glorious beer of Copenhagen is brewed right here in Canada. It comes to you fresh from the brewery. So it tastes even better than ever. And Carlsberg is sold at regular prices. So let's hear it, Carlsberg lovers. "One, two, three... Cheers!"

Annual Carol Service

featuring
MARION CRAWLEY NEWBY, guest soloist
The Praise Group
singing of traditional carols

Sunday, December 8th, 9:00 p.m.

at

St. James Anglican Church

sponsored by
The Christian Youth Centre and Camp Iawah

Internal Affairs

All motions must be submitted by January 6, noon, for Outer Council Meeting January 9, 1975.

Crystal Restaurant
TASTY FOODS
COURTEOUS SERVICE
"THE PLACE WHERE ALL GOOD PEOPLE MEET & EAT"
STEAKS - CHOPS - CHICKEN - SEAFOOD
PASTA - PIZZA - SANDWICHES
SALADS - KROKANTOFF
OPEN 7 DAYS
Try our Delicious Shish Kebob
240 PRINCESS
TAKE OUT SERVICE
Free Delivery Over $3.00
KGTV 542-8515

THE ARTS FESTIVAL OF THE ARTS FESTIVAL OF THE ARTS FESTIVAL OF THE ARTS

Festival of the Arts

January 28 - February 1 1975

MUSIC

FOLK, BLUES, RAGTIME, TRADITIONAL, CLASSICAL, CONTEMPORARY
Noon hour rentals, evening concerts and afternoon workshops are being planned. For more info call KATHY, 544-4540; PAT, 544-7872; OAVIO, 549-4749

Contribute into the exhibition. All paintings, drawings, sculptures, crafts etc., will be accepted. Participate in workshops and demonstrations. Silkscreening, batik, silver-smithing, macramé & more

CALL
INEZ VERHOVEN 546-5370

ARTS

FESTIVAL OF THE ARTS FESTIVAL OF THE ARTS FESTIVAL OF THE ARTS FESTIVAL

The College Skier

by Howie Goldford
Skiing over the last ten years has undergone a rapid evolution. Equipment has changed, techniques have diversified, even the operation of a ski area is different so as to accommodate the growing numbers and new desires of the contemporary skier. Into the sport have flooded the children of the baby boom; the so called "self-centered" generation, a generation of individuals all seeking to identify with the jet-setting, affluent past of the ski world. Some are in it as a form of self-expression, a feeling of freedom and release from everyday pressures, others purely for the recreation and the close-knit brotherhood that one feels for others with the same interests. Fewer still see skiing through the eyes of a competitor, a challenge to their ability to perform and succeed in a fast paced, technical, high performance sport. But the social status of skiing and being a skier has always been there and is evidenced by the profusion of fancy, high-priced equipment and the catering of ski areas to the weakness for luxury and entertainment (partying) inherent in every full fledged skier. Skiing is very commercial; brand names are emblazoned on every piece of equipment, almost every skier has a sponsor, and their friends what types of skis to buy, inevitably the names center around the popular few. Advertising is in, consumerism is out! Name your weapon and you'll have something to identify with.

What's the matter with all this? Nothing... if you can afford it. There's no harm in dressing brightly and racing around seeking out new trails, new views or new experiences. There isn't even anything wrong with getting hung up on style or technique, trying so damned hard to keep those knees and ankles locked together until you look like the Queen of England, in all her elegance, pouring down from the head of the stairs in the ballroom of Buckingham Palace. Or bounding from bump to bump, from near disaster to near disaster like Charlie Chaplin in a silent movie chase scene. Why is there nothing wrong with this? Because you're being yourself, skiing is a sport for the individual... no two skiers are ever alike. Good skiing during the Christmas holidays... don't forget to let it all hang out!

ED. NOTE: SORRY HOWIE, MERRY CHRISTMAS!

A bird in the hand...

"The Ontario Badminton Association is attempting this year to promote Badminton on a larger scale. "Remember Badminton is!... Fast Moving!... Exciting!... Enjoyable!... Economical!... A Good Way to Stay Fit!... A Lifetime Sport!... A Sport For Everyone!... A Way To Make Friends!"

Bulletin: Whitby Badminton Club To Host Central Ontario 'B' closed Tournament, Dec. 7-8 1974. The tournament will be played at Henry St. High School, Whitby Ont. Mens and Womens Singles start Friday night at 7:00 pm, followed by Mens and Womens Doubles and Mixed Doubles on Saturday morning at 9:00 am. There is free admittance to the tournament and all are welcome. Also some Central Ontario Badminton Association players who will highlight this event, will in turn be going to Thunder Bay, the site of this years Ontario Winter Games.

WIC-ly News

Co-ed Volleyball (convenor Sheila Anthony) is now over. Despite the threat of exams, the turnout was good. Thanks to everyone who came out! WIC wishes you a very Merry Christmas. Watch for new WIC Activities in the New Year!

-----

PHOTOGRAPHY

participate in workshops and demonstrations stage short productions or revues.
anything and everything will be considered.

DRAMA

MARGI MUIR 546-7063.

read your own poetry at an informal reading listen to well-known poets speak and recite

POETRY

CONTACT
JIM OR SHARON SMITH
544-4976

5 days

From the Sports desk

Home, Queen's - RMC Wrestling Invitational (High School) Sat. Dec. 7

Away: Gymnastics - Western Invitational Tournament Sat. Dec. 7

T.B.A. X-Country Ski-Ottawa Zone Championships Fri. Jan. 3.

Mens Hockey Tournament at Ottawa Fri. Jan. 3

Eastern Division	GP	W	L	T	F	A	TP
Ottawa	7	5	1	1	36	28	11
York	6	4	1	1	40	20	9
Queen's	5	4	1	0	35	12	8
Toronto	4	3	0	1	25	13	7
Laurentian	6	3	2	1	23	29	7
RMC	6	1	4	1	19	26	3

OUAA Basketball-League Standings	GP	W	L	F	A	TP
Laurentian	5	5	0	426	345	10
Ottawa	4	4	0	371	228	8
Queen's	5	3	2	329	286	6
Toronto	3	2	1	252	176	4
Carleton	4	2	2	305	275	4
York	3	1	2	228	229	2
Ryerson	4	0	4	286	377	0
RMC	6	0	6	323	504	0

John Keck of Queen's University who is averaging just under 21 points per game has taken over the scoring leadership in the Eastern Division of the OUAA. Rick Kazanowski, of the Carleton University Ravens, who is averaging 20 points per game has moved into the number two spot behind Keck. Merry Christmas from Sports!
Special wishes to Joe, Jim, Alps, Rosemary, Carl, Barb, Mary-Ann, Chris, Eleanor, Sara-Jane and Pat, Peter, all our faithful phots and to Sherk and Dan!... We would be nowhere without you... Thanks...

Sports Ed. S.J. and L.A. and Q.B.F.

John Bottomley

Queen's Golden Gaels goalie Clyde Harris saving another one as the Ottawa Gee-Gee's pressed to widen the 2-1 final score.

Bus Tickets

If you have a bus ticket from a cancelled Excursion Club bus trip, give your name and address to the secretary in the A.M.S. Office

Harris -hero in net

by Peter Watts
Journal Sports Writer

Someone forgot to remind the Queen's hockey Gaels about what happened to them three weeks ago, the last time they tangled with the University of Ottawa Gee-Gees. On that memorable occasion, the Gee-Gees played about twenty minutes of hockey and came away with a 6-4 victory. It would seem that only Clyde Harris leaped anything from that performance if Tuesday night's return encounter can be used as a measuring stick. Had it not been for Harris' outstanding display the score would have been much worse than 2-1 in favour of Ottawa. The veteran netminder faced 17 shots in the second period and stopped all but one of them. At the other end of the Harty Arena, Ottawa goalie Bruce Reid had to handle but 4 chances. The same was true of the game as a whole. Harris stopped 35 shots altogether while Reid had to make 26 saves, many of them on long shots. Only Frank Coffey was able to beat Reid, getting the opening goal of the game in the first period. After that, the Gaels' forwards went into a shell from which they only rarely emerged.

For the record, Gerard Duhamel and Bernard Gouin got the Ottawa goals: Gouin's being the winner, coming midway through the third period. It was a particularly frustrating evening for the Gaels who could have climbed even closer to first place with a victory over Ottawa. The loss left them in fourth spot, a point behind Toronto and York and five points back of the division-leading Gee-Gees. Ottawa, however, has played one more game than have the Gaels.

Laurentian is another point back of Queen's and so it looks like we'll have the same dogfight that we have been accustomed to seeing in the east division in the last few years. While the Gaels don't have to face Ottawa any more during the regular schedule (fortunately), they still have a return encounter against York along with home-and-home series against Toronto and Laurentian coming up in the second half of the schedule. In addition they have single games against Western and Guelph two of the stronger teams in the west division. So things will not get any easier for the Tricolor and Tuesday's loss to Ottawa underscored that fact very clearly. In the meantime, the Gaels will now have a month off before getting back into competition at the University of Ottawa Invitational hockey tournament to be played the first weekend in January. Queen's will join the Gee-Gees, Loyola Warriors, and Sir George Williams Georgians in the tournament which will be played at Sandy Hill Arena in Ottawa on Friday and Saturday, January 3rd and 4th. For those Queen's supporters who will be in Ottawa during the holidays, the Gaels would appreciate some support.

John Bottomley

PIZZA PIZZA PIZZA PIZZA

BROADWAY

PIZZA

548-4216

HOUSE OF SOUNDS

277 Princess St.

PRESENTS -

WRAP AROUND JOY -

THIS WEEK'S SPECIALS

Stevie Wonder

Innervisions
Talking Book
Fulfillingness
First Finale

Doobie Bros.

1st LP
Toulouse St.
Captain & Me
Vices & Habits

Jim Croce

Don't Mess Around
Life and Times
I Got a Name
Greatest Hits

ELTON JOHN GREATEST HITS
JOHN OENVER'S GREATEST HITS
ALICE COOPER'S GREATEST HITS
MCCARTNEY - Band on the Run
RDY WOOD - Eddy and Falcons
ELO ELDDRAOD

JACKSON BROWNE

Late for the Sky
CARDLE KING
Wrap Around Joy
DEEP PURPLE

LDGGINS & MESSINA

Motherlode
SANTANA-Borbole Ha
RINGO

Goodnight Vienna

BEACH BOYS
Endless Summer
APRIL WINE-Live

CHEECH & CHONG

Wedding Up
CLAPTON
461 Ocean Blvd.
BADCD - 1st LP

NEIL DIAMOND - SERENADE
JOHN LENNON - Walks & Bridges
JETHRO TULL - WAR CHILD

Bews News - 1st term round-up

Volleyball: The Volleyball Championship was taken by Mining who beat Business Grads 3 games to 2 in the final. On the way to the final series, Bus. Grads had to beat P.H.E. 2 games to 1, while Mining had blanked Arts 77, 2-0.

Softball: This year's Softball Championship was taken very convincingly by Arts 76 who beat Arts 77, 12-4 in the final game. However, the victory for 76 was not as easy as the score might indicate. Arts 77 showed a lot of determination after being down 3-0. They pulled ahead 4-3 going into the fifth inning. Fortunately for 76 and coach John Paul, the third year team hit for 9 runs in the final three innings and clinched the title.

Congratulations are in order to both teams for another well fought final.

Broomball: The first half of the Broomball season has been completed with Commerce 76 and Electrical tied for 1st place in Division I, each with a win and a tie. Law 77, in third place with a record of one and one, is followed by Arts 75 who have yet to win a game. In Division II, Arts 76 leads the group with 2 wins and no losses. P.H.E. and Mining are tied for second, each with a one and one record. Science 78 has also yet to win a game. Division III looks like a close battle as Commerce 77 leads Business Grads by one point, although Commerce has played one more game. Mechanical holds third spot with 2 ties, while Chemical and Law 76 share the cellar with no wins in their games so far. Civil Math also has played an extra game and leads Division IV with a 2-0 record. Commerce 75 has posted a win and a tie for second place, and Arts 77 is right behind with 2 ties in as many games. Commerce 78 has managed only one tie in their games, while the Meds team unfortunately has yet to record a win. The schedule continues through the second term beginning January 6th.

Innertube Waterpolo: The Innertube Waterpolo season boiled down to the finals between P.H.E. and Business Grads.

P.H.E. had a relatively easy time making the final, playing only four games and winning them all. Business Grads, on the other hand, have really had to work to make the finals, after losing their first game they came back to win the next five games. In their last two games on Wed. Nov. 27 they squeaked by Arts 77 5-4, and Mechanical 4-3, both games going right down to the final whistle. The hard luck team for the 3rd successive year, Mechanical, just fell inches short of making the finals; they have had a consistently good team since the sport started three years ago.

In the final, Business Grads must beat P.H.E. twice to win the tournament, while P.H.E. must win one to become the champions. It should prove to be a very close game. Business Grads playing very well of late, and P.H.E. having a seasoned crew. Congratulations are in order to Meds, Electrical, Commerce 76, Civil Math, Arts 76, Arts 77, and Mechanical who all participated well and helped make this tournament a success. (BULLETIN . . . P.H.E. 5 - BUS GRADS 2)

Tennis: In singles Tennis Alan Mackie (Mech) will face G. Grotz (Civil) in finals. At press time the outcome of the match was not known. However, good luck to both players. Doubles play T. Chrowes and D. Bruce (Arts 77) faced J. Earle and I. Rawes (P.H.E.). In a best of 5 match Earle and Rawes (P.H.E.) came out on top with sets of 6-3, 6-3, 6-3. Congratulations to both teams. Ice Hockey: This week's Hockey results which have closed the first half of the season saw Civil Math clobber Chemical Engineering 8-1. Draper registered a hat-trick and Hallet collected two goals to pace Civil Math. The shut-out was spoiled by Anderson of Chemical Engineering. Business Grads, who have surprised everyone this year in all Bews sports, continue their winning ways but shutting out Science 78 3-0. Arts and Sci Grads chalked up their first win of the season by downing Chemical Engineering 3-2. Casey with 2 and Russell with the other goal paced the Grads to their win. Answering for Chemical Engineering were Peritt and Scott. Business Grads not surprising anyone any longer whipped Mechanical 8-5, O'Neil with three goals and Humphries with two connected for the M.B.A.'s. Marshall also got three but in a losing cause. Arts 78 blanked Education 5-0 and Commerce 76 connected for 4 to beat Science 78 4-0. Mid-Season Standings: Arts 76 leads the entire Bews Hockey league this season with five wins in 5 games. They are protecting a 17 game unbeaten streak going back to last season. Arts 78 in second spot with a 4-1-1 record followed closely by P.H.E. with a 3-1-2 record. In Division II Commerce 77 leads with a 5-1 record followed by Civil-Math 4-2. In Division III, Commerce 75 and Commerce 76 both tied for first place with a 4-2 record. However Arts 77 are close behind with a 3-1-1 record. Division IV, the tight race of the league show that Mechanical leads with 7 points, Business Grads and Science 78 sharing second with 6 points. Law 77 has third with 5 and Meds 4. BULLETIN: Doubles Squash: Pennington and Howard (Mech.). Doubles Paddleball: Kerr and Dixon (Arts 76).

Rec News

Monday, January 13, 1975, is the start of the third session in The Sports Skills Instruction Program. If you're interested in swimming then Session III and IV will give you a chance to improve in one or the other of: Learn to Swim, Junior Red Cross thru to Senior Red Cross, Bronze, Leader, Award, Distinction or Diving. If swimming is not your forte, then maybe, Badminton, Squash, Paddleball, Modern Dance, Ballroom Dancing, Archery, Jogging, Skating, Figure Skating, Gymnastics, Trampoline or Golf . . . There's something for everyone, including more evening classes! For further information, drop into the Recreation Office (102A) and pick up Session III and Session IV timetables. Don't wait to decide what you're going to do in January. Registration for both sessions is January 6th to 9th between 1:00 pm and 4:00 pm in the arena area.

Enjoy the Homey Atmosphere of Mother's Pizza Parlour

Her dining room features the warm comfortable atmosphere of the roaring 20's with fast, courteous service.

Our fully dressed pizza includes no less than 8 items

DELIVERY TO CAMPUS
549-0006

455 PRINCESS

"MORE THAN JUST A PLACE TO EAT"

JUICE n SET

TRANSLUCENT AMBER PLASTIC JUG & 4 GLASSES
A STEAL AT $2.95
DOMUS
BROCK ST. BETWEEN KING & WELLINGTON

Tickets for the WINTER FROLIC SLEIGHRIDE go on sale Jan 6-8
in the John Orr Room
Tickets: $1.50
(includes Gluehwein)

Also
Watch out for the
JOHN LEE HOOKER concert
on Sunday, January 12.

OWIAA champs

Sync. swim finishes first

On November 29-30, the Queen's Synchro Team did it again! For the past two years, they have cleaned up - winning the OWIAA championships. In Montreal last weekend, they proved that the loss of their former coach, Norm Douglas did not affect their scores for Queen's came out on top, with MacMaster following in second place, and in third place McGill.

Friday evening, Marion Malone and Anne Morawetz entered a solo each, then swam together in the duet competition. Marion's solo, to the music of "Slaughterhouse Five" placed second and Anne's solo, to the overture of "Anne of the Thousand Days," placed third. Manwaring was captured by Joan Duncan for McMaster. The two strong Queen's swimmers Marion and Anne, won the duet competition for the second year in a row.

The next morning Queen's clinched first place when Marion Malone won the figures competition, Anne Morawetz placing third and Heather Demeza placing fourth. The final competition in the meet was the "team" effort. Six girls put on a fine show. Sue Hill, Heather Demeza, Judy Spence, Lindsay Coates, Janet Schultze and Cathy Solonine. They substantially beat second place U. of T. and third place McGill.

Thanks must be extended to Katie Thompson our faithful manager and to Elaine Prosenyak and Mary Jean Duncan who helped the team through the Friday night practices (10:00 - 11:30 pm!).

As well, thanks and sympathy to the coach, Anne Malone, who was with the team all the way in spirit if not in body. Anne has been in the hospital recovering from a knee operation but will be back on her feet and ready to coach again in the new year.

The finals this year will be held in Toronto, on Feb. 14-15 and the team hopes to put on a show here at Queen's before that time to show off their extremely fine form!

Queen's Inter. V-Ball Gal serving to Brock

It's been a long first half of the season for the Women's Intermediate Volleyball team. Practices began way back when (Sept. 16), and wound up this weekend. The girls first start came October 26 in a tournament against senior varsity and senior "A" club teams from Ottawa. The team lost every match but did manage to win several games, surprisingly enough from the first and second place finishers. The work had just begun!

The team this year is much stronger due to improvements of returning veterans and the addition of some hard hitting rookies - Sue Taylor, Carol Wallingford, and Carrie Dustin. The defense was also given a boost with added height and aggressiveness of both the new players and the old.

Finally, it was time to play league games, which for Queen's began in St. Catharines on the November 22-23 weekend. The first match was against an old enemy, McMaster, the only team that Queen's had not beaten the season before. The girls got off to a slow start, losing the first game 15-2. The next three, however, were Queen's all the way with scores of 15-7, 15-12, and 15-12.

Elation soon grew to quiet contemplation as the next match saw Tricolor go against the host team, Brock U. Brock had been champions of an invitational tournament earlier in the year, and to this point had been undefeated. Tension mounted till the first serve, when Queen's came out fighting and put Brock away in three straight games. Rookies Sue Taylor, and Carol Wallingford blasted Brock off the court, as did Karen Hanke who played the best game of her Queen's career.

Saturday morning the tables turned, as Queen's lost to Ryerson in three straight. The last two games of the set were very close and could have gone either way. The squad picked up the pieces and reorganized to defeat Trent and the University of Toronto, again in three straight games.

This weekend wound up the first half schedule with Queen's going back to St. Catharines for a single match against Brock U. Queen's played poorly in the first games but came back to win the third 15-13. The fourth game was exciting, seeing Queen's fight back from the position of losing 8-1 to tie the game 13-13. Service was exchanged several times, but with the momentum of the first two games and some lucky breaks Brock finished with a 16-14 score.

The Intermediates are still soundly entrenched in second place, and will be playing each team in the league twice in the second half with the exception of Brock.

The second half will be tough, but with the caliber of ball Queen's is capable of playing it will certainly be exciting and successful.

Mario's Pizzeria and Spaghetti House
Pizza · Spaghetti · Lasagna · Ravioli
637 Princess Free delivery 549-4222

CHORAL SERVICE

Sydenham St. United Church

For Us a Child is Born (Contata 142)

J. S. Bach

The Mystery of Bethlehem
Healey Willan

Presented by the Senior Choir and soloist of Sydenham St. United Church.

Welcome to S. S. United Church

TEQUILA SAUZA

Margarita SAUZA
1 1/2 oz. TEQUILA SAUZA
3/4 oz. Triple Sec
Shake with cracked ice
Moisten rim of champagne glass with lemon rind, then dip moistened rim
in salt.
Sip
cocktail over salted
edge.

In an inflation battling gesture the price of beer in

THE QUEEN'S PUB

Will be slashed for one evening

FRIDAY DEC. 6

From 8 p.m. to closing, the price will be

45¢ pint (Shades of 71-72!)

NOTE: The Pub will close for the holidays on Dec. 6th. We thank you for your patronage & hope to see you next term.

Merry Christmas and best of the season to all.

WHO the hell plugged up the chimney?
Anybody know where I can rent a good reindeer?

Quality of education may suffer, Watts tells OCUA

by Sarah Yarnell

The quality of education offered at Queen's will be severely damaged unless the Ontario government's system of funding universities undergoes substantial revision immediately, Principal Ronald Watts told the Ontario Council on University Affairs, in December.

Failure of grants to match inflationary costs is the most threatening problem posed by the current formula financing system, said Watts. He told the OCUA that the 7.4 percent increase in the Basic Income Unit for 1975-6 had fallen dangerously short of being adequate and had forced Queen's to continue a deficit budget policy for the third year in a row and to operate next year at a $1.1 million deficit.

(The OCUA was set up by the Ontario government last fall, and given the broad responsibilities of studying all aspects of current university affairs and then advising the government. The Council's 19 members, although diverse, are not representative of any particular sectors of the community.)

When the 31 members of the Queen's delegation, primarily deans and members of the Senate Committee on Academic Development, were bussed to Carleton University, they presented Queen's case and then underwent what resembled cross-examination by the OCUA.

PRINCIPAL WATTS

Watts, responsible for most of the talking throughout the session, repeatedly emphasized that Queen's would slide downhill from lack of sufficient support, and listed his version of the problems which obstruct effectiveness of the current financing system.

Unfortunately, Watts pointed out, the system in its present form puts on emphasis on growth, thus presenting problems for steady enrolment universities such as Queen's. (Within the next few years, Queen's enrolment will level off at 10,000 students. In keeping Queen's at a modest size, an attempt is being made to maintain the university on a human scale. There is a priority for quality rather than numbers, explained Watts, to keep Queen's from becoming merely a "degree factory.")

Each university's different character is not accounted for under the present financing program. Instead, there is pressure towards "homogeneity and mediocre uniformity", commented Watts. There is no allowance, therefore, for the greater cost involved in operating a small scale professional program, where economies of scale are out of reach.

Similarly, the geographical location of each institution is overlooked, he said. At Queen's, where 90 percent of the student body comes from outside Frontenac County, money is necessary to build accommodation.

Watts expressed his concern over the current situation where fees next year have been frozen by government decision, yet the unit value of financing was not hiked sufficiently.

He called the inadequate grants the "first step in long run major reduction of public funding

continued on page 3

"Here's lookin' at ya!"

The Queen's Journal

Queen's
Journal
Volume 102 Number 27
Tuesday, January 7th, 1975

Wat's
hapnin'?

Pubs and Theatres

Frontenac-Finnegan's - Bob Short
Frontenac-Muldoon's - The Cobblers Awt
Manor - Johnnie Guy
Townhouse - London

Odeon - Man With the Golden Gun
Hyland - That's Entertainment
Capitol 1 - Godfather II
Capitol 2 - Towering Inferno

Tuesday, January 7

8:00 p.m. - The Grand Tour and The Rule of Taste.
Free public illustrated lecture by Professor Joseph Burke in Stirling Hall D. This is the first of a series of six lectures on "Some Aspects of English Art in the Eighteenth Century" to be given on Tuesday evenings by Professor Burke. Admission to all lectures is free.
9:00 p.m. - Going Down the Road (Canada, 1970) presented by the Department of Film Studies in Ellis Auditorium. Directed by Don Shebib. Starring: Doug McGrath, Paul Bradley, Jane Eastwood. Admission $1.00 at the door.

Wednesday, January 8

9:00 a.m. - 11:00 a.m. - The Rev. Eric Howes, Anglican Chaplain on campus will be present at the Student Affairs Centre 51 Queen's Crescent for conversation or counselling, every Wednesday.
2:00 p.m. - 4:00 p.m. - The Rev. Ed Shea, Roman Catholic Chaplain on campus will be present at the Student Affairs Centre for conversation or counselling every Wednesday at this time.

6:30 p.m. - 8:30 p.m. - Mr. Ken Gies, the Lutheran Chaplain on campus will be present at the Student Affairs Centre for conversation or counselling, every Wednesday at this time.
6:30 p.m. - 10:30 p.m. - Recreation badminton at McArthur.

6:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. - O Lucky Man with Malcolm McDowell will be shown in Dunning Hall. Admission $1.
8:00 p.m. - The Sri Chinmoy meditation group meets every Wednesday evening at 138 King St. E. apt. 2. There is no fee and all are welcome. If you are interested please call 544-1361.
8:00 p.m. - Introductory lectures on Transcendental Meditation in Stirling Hall, Room 412 A. Transcendental Meditation is a major scientific discovery. The practice is unique and its effects are unprecedented in their range and profundity. Admission is free.
8:00 p.m. - Smoker sponsored by Nursing, Clark Hall

Upcoming Events

Friday, January 10 - Women and Film - A Liberation Film Festival in Ellis Hall at 7:30 p.m. Panel discussion at 9:30 p.m. Admission is free.
Saturday, January 10 - Women and Film - A Liberation Film Festival in Ellis Hall from 2 to 5 p.m.; 7:30 p.m. Free day care - 1 to 5 p.m.; 544-4875. Admission free.

Alfie Sez -
it's election time!

Nominations are now being accepted for the following positions of the Queen's

University Bands Executive, 1975-76.

1. Bands Manager
2. Ass't Bands Manager
3. Quartermaster
4. Publicity Director
5. Concessions Manager
6. Brass Band Director
7. Pipe Major
8. Head Highland Dancer
9. Head Majorette
10. Head Cheerleader

Nominations should be submitted in writing to:

Rick Rogozinski, Bands Manager

c/o AMS Office

by 5:00 P.M. Wed. January 15, 1975.

Elections will be held at the annual banquet, at the Frontenac Hotel, Friday, Jan. 17 1975, at 8:00 P.M.

At Agnes - New Exhibitions

Kingston Artists. New prints from the Screen Shop, Winnipeg.

John Eaton - Painting & drawings
Elias Brettler - Photographs

Gallery open Mon - Fri., 9 to 5.
Sat. and Sun., 1 to 5, Tues. and Thurs. evenings 7 to 9.

Campus Movies

presents

Carnal Knowledge

plus: Part 1 of 12 part serial,
The Indians are coming
with Buffalo Bill Cody

Thursday January 9

Dunning Hall Auditorium
7:00 and 9:30 pm
Admission: $1.00 per person

STUDENT HEALTH SERVICE

MEDICAL CLINIC - 547-6106 - 24 hours daily
(Answering service contacts a duty physician when the Health Service is closed.)

CLINIC HOURS - 9:00 am - 11:30 am
1:00 pm - 4:00 pm
Monday to Friday inclusive

PSYCHIATRY & COUNSELLING - By appointment
9:00 am - 5:00 pm phone 547-2889 or come to Health Service to make an appointment.

VARIETY IS THE SPICE OF LIFESTYLE DIAMONDS HERE

So stunning is our grand selection of diamonds... you'll find it hard to make up your mind. All shapes, all sizes, there's one to suit your lifestyle. Take your time... we'll even help. Once you have found your own true diamond you'll never let it go... it happens every time.

KINNEAR d'ESTERRE
JEWELLERS
163 PRINCESS STREET
KINGSTON, ONTARIO

Dunning Trust: Human dignity and the experience of women

"Human Dignity and the Experience of Woman" is the theme of the Chancellor Dunning Trust presentation at Queen's University from January 10 to 15, 1975, marking the beginning of International Women's Year.

A film festival will open the five-day event, and will include films directed by women, such as "A Very Curious Girl" and "Sambizanga", a story of female consciousness in an African setting. These will be shown, along with others by and about women, January 10 and 11 on campus.

The lecture series begins January 13, with Juliet Mitchell, an internationally known scholar and feminist and author of Women's Estate and Feminism. Her topic will be "Femininity and Feminism".

Elizabeth Hardwick, writer and outstanding literary critic, will speak on "Fame, Romance, and Money: Thoughts on Women Writers" on January 14. "Woman's Role: A Time of Redefinition" is the title of the third lecture, January 15, by Doris Anderson, editor of Chatelaine Canada's largest circulation magazine.

All three lecturers will remain on campus during the three days of lectures, in order to participate in discussion groups and to hear each other speak.

Quality may suffer

continued from page 1

Watts listed alternative routes of escape open to Queen's. Growth in enrolment is a possibility but would mean abandoning the steady state pressure on the housing market in Kingston, said Watts.

Keeping salary increases lower than in the rest of the community appeared to be an illogical step, he said, as staff are highly mobile.

Attrition that is cutting back on hiring, would harm morale, and good quality made possible by a low student-staff ratio, he maintained.

Adopting a deficit policy is the route Queen's has chosen, but it is by no means ideal in the short run it discourages benefactions to the university, stated Watts, and in the long run it leads to bankruptcy. A Senate committee, on financial constraint has been struck at Queen's to consider the situation and to suggest the adjustments necessary to retain academic goals within the tight financial conditions.

Several protests were made concerning large student-staff ratios, which the administration claims it has tried above all to protect. Dean D. Waugh of the Faculty of Medicine asserted that a student is now an observer not a participant, and Student Senator Peter Lane pointed out that TV lectures in Biology courses, which may cut back on staff, certainly do not help the student to gain the necessary understanding and knowledge.

Lottery?

Queen's University's solution to its expected $1.1 million deficit for 1975-76 may be found at the Quebec City Winter Carnival in February. That is where the fourth Olympic Lottery draw is taking place, on February 16, and Queen's has a ticket.

The ticket, with number 1777940, is the gift of ten professors in the Department of Chemistry who have each donated a dollar to help ease the university's current financial constraint.

"We have resolved to relieve the University of its financial debt," the professors said in a letter to the Principal, "or at least all but $100,000 of it."

The ticket, sent to the principal, has been locked away safely to await the draw. If the ticket wins, the university will have the following professors to thank: W.G. Breck, R.J.C. Brown, R.D. Heyding, B.K. Hunter, J.D. McCowan, J.A. Page, K.E. Russell, W. MacF. Smith, J.K.S. Wan and R.C. Wheeler.

Auld announces new funding for CAAT's

Funding arrangements for colleges of applied arts and technology in 1975-76 have been announced by the Hon. James A.C. Auld, Minister of Colleges and Universities.

On November 18 Mr. Auld stated that the 22 colleges will receive a 15.4 percent increase in operating support from $173 million to $200 million. At that time, he asked the Ontario Council of Regents, which advises him on matters relating to the colleges, to recommend how the funds should be distributed among the institutions. The Council has recommended that each college receive an increase of 11 percent over its 1974-75 operating grant to compensate for the impact of inflation and that the remaining funds be distributed among the colleges according to their enrolment growth between 1973-74 and 1974-75.

Mr. Auld has accepted the recommendations of the Council and Ministry representatives will meet with senior officials of the colleges to discuss details of how the Council's recommendations will be implemented.

The method of distributing funds in Ontario universities will be decided when Mr. Auld has received the recommendations of the Ontario Council on University Affairs. The OCUA advises him on matters affecting universities.

unclassifieds

SKI SNOW RIDGE, New York, with the Queen's Ski Club this Saturday, Jan. 11th. Tows and transportation included for $11. Tickets on sale this Thursday, Jan. 9, 7 pm in the John Orr Room.
HALLOWEEN ON THE HILL: Join the Queen's Ski Club and go to Ory Hill this Wednesday, Jan. 8, from 5 pm till whenever. Tickets only $6.50, on sale 9 to 5 until Wednesday in the John Orr Room.
JANUARY 8-12:75
WINTER FROLIC
WINTER FROLIC
WINTER FROLIC
WINTER FROLIC
WINTER FROLIC
Stereo for sale: Elgin AM-FM Multiplex stereo with track tape deck, $300 or reasonable offer. Phone 544-5360.
ANYONE WHO WOULD LIKE TO SELL WUNDERLUST TICKET for Climax Jazz Band Leonard Calender please call Joe 546-1394
YES JOE, WE DO WANT YOUR MONEY
ROOMS IN RESIDENCE Shared rooms for women are available in the Women's Residences and Morris Hall. Single rooms for women are available in Jean Royce Hall and there are single rooms available for up-perclassmen in Harkness Hall. Please contact the Residence Admissions Office in Victoria Hall, 547-2772.
SSS JOB: Be a psychology research asst., have fun (!) earn $1111. Evening work, 1-2 weeks, 3-4 hr. evenings. Applicants must be male and at least 21 years old for look r! Call Oon Rayko at 546-1974, or visit him at Humphrey Hall, Room 308.
URGENTLY REQUIRED: A single room for a desperate 2nd year student. I have to relocate as soon as possible. If you can help, please phone 544-4259 and ask for Gord. Thanks
FUN, laughter, excitement all week long during WINTER FROLIC

WEEK, Jan. 8-12: Sleighride and Gluehwein Party, "Stage Fright", Ukranian Night, "Snowshoe Shuffle", and a concert.
ANOREA: Is that beautiful, sexy CERCHOCKY girl. We love you but why don't you smile. All your fans wish you luck broadcasting the next game.
YOU DON'T KNOW WHAT WINTER FROLIC IS? YOU'LL SURE AS HELL FIND OUT WHEN IT ALL BEGINS. Jan. 8 to Jan. 12, 1975. HAPPY BIRTHDAY MICHEL - from all of us, including 1514, and those therabouts Dave and the Fearsome Foursome and of course Laura (we love you!), the 919's, at 301 and 74 everyone else in general, but especially Susan. Please spell Michel as it is written, not Mitchell, Michelle or any other misnomers.
BRING IN THE NEW YEAR! Nursing Science has their first SMOKER this Wed Jan. 8, 1975. Everyone welcome at CLARK HALL, 8 p.m.

Wednesday, January 8
6:30 and 9:30 pm

Lindsay Anderson's

O Lucky Man!

with Malcolm McDowell

Dunning Hall, Queen's
Admission $1.00

A.M.S. Meeting Outer Council

Thursday, January 9, 1975

McLaughlin Room.
7:30 p.m.

DIVISION OF CONCERTS

Tickets on sale now at
Box Office in
Agnes Etherington
Art Centre
547-6194

- Jan. 18 Paul Gaulin
Mime Company - Grand Theatre
- Jan. 22 Camerata - Dunning Hall
- Jan. 26 Canadian Opera Company in Concert
2:30 p.m. Grant Hall
- Feb. 6 Chhau, Masked Dance of Bengal Grant Hall

"Snowshoe Shuffle"

Dance

Saturday,
Jan. 11th

This event will be held in GRANT HALL
-a very good alternate to Wanderlust
-event begins at 9:00 PM; doors open at 8:30 PM
-admission: $2.75 advance
3.00 at the door
-cost of beer and liquor: .60c
-featuring music by "Audiomaster" and fun and laughter by the comedians "McLean & McLean"
-dress is casual, not semi-formal: no jeans allowed

Wed.
Jan. 8th

Cost of sleighride and Gluhwein Party: $1.50 with ticket
" " Gluhwein Party only : .50c at the door
" " Gluhwein per glass : .25c

Gluhwein Party will be held in WALLACE HALL beginning at 8:00 PM and a maximum of 150 people will be admitted to allow space for the sleighride ticket holders.

For sleighride: buses leave Victoria Hall at 7:00 PM
Ferry leaves for Wolfe Island at 7:20 PM
" " Wolfe Island at 9:20 PM
buses leave ferry dock for Queen's at 9:45

Sunday, Jan. 12th CONCERT

Concert will be held in GRANT HALL featuring John Lee Hooker

-admission: $3.50
3.00 with student card
-concert will begin at 8:00 PM.

NOTE: TICKETS FOR WINTER FOLK EVENTS WILL BE ON SALE IN THE JOHN R ROOM

QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

WINTER FOLK WEEK

JAN. 8, 9, 11, 12

SNOWSCULPTURES TO!

INFORMATION AVAILABLE

JOHN R ROOM

"Stage Fright" Variety Show

Thursday, Jan. 9th

This event will be held in the arena
-cost of admission: .75c
-maximum of 1500 people will be admitted to the event
-show begins at 9:00 PM - lasts for 2 hours.
-includes skating, musical performances, skits, and other talent.
-admission will be on a cash-at-the-door basis.

Ukrainian Night VITAEYMO II

Friday, Jan. 10th

Event will be held in GRANT HALL
-doors open at 8:00 PM and event begins at 9:00 PM
-admission: $1.50 at the door
: .50c
-no liquor will be sold
-featuring Ukrainian band and dancers
-prize to the best amateur dancers

The Male Caucus salutes International Women's Year

One family's fight to save the starving

When the news of the proposed AMS food fast first hit the campus, the reaction was immediate and negative. For the most part, criticism was valid. There were complaints that no choice was offered, the students weren't consulted, and that the idea smacked of tokenism.

About the same time that the AMS was formulating its plan, a Kingston couple had the same idea. Just as complaints were being levelled at the student government, Pat and Terry Leonard were faced with similar criticism and cries that a Kingston-wide fast from food on December 23 would never work. To date, their endeavours have raised almost twenty thousand dollars for the starving millions in Bangladesh.

Terry and Pat got the idea from reading an article by Whig-Standard columnist, Cliff Bowering, which said that if millions were starving, and Canadians had a surplus of food, it should be given to the hungry. Perhaps the idea had always been brewing in the back of Terry's mind. He has worked in the food business since he was 11, as a cook on freight ships and then with the Navy. Currently, he is the regional manager of Beaver Foods, but he has never been involved with Queen's which is Brian Hunt's sole and exclusive territory. Mr. Leonard has been shocked at the amount of institutional food wastage that he has seen, and he has now had his chance to do something about it.

The Leonards have a philosophy on Canadian food consumption in relation to food shortages elsewhere. They were influenced by an article they read by plant geneticist Norman E. Borlaug who was awarded the 1970 Nobel Peace Prize. Terry quoted from Borlaug, who was asked what the role of food was in the outlook for world peace. "You can't have tranquility with hunger and poverty. You can't apply new technology to improve the standard of living if there is unrest and political instability. It should be obvious that the first step toward providing a decent standard of living to all who are born into this world is to slow the increase in human numbers to manageable levels and stabilize population as soon as feasible. To do nothing and to rely upon the Malthusian principle to stabilize numbers through starvation is immoral."

Many don't agree with the idea that this is immoral. In fact, the Leonards have found that the opposite idea is common among some people. Terry pointed to a letter to the editor of the Journal which said, "... it is inhumane and immoral since the feeding of 10 illiterate starving people will result in 30 illiterate starving people tomorrow."

form of food to the Bengalis. To their horror, they discovered that some reputable agencies take up to 40 percent of the money collected. They finally settled on the Organization for Development and Peace (ODP) which has no administrative charge and will send out tax receipts to the thousands of donors who responded to their plea to "refrain from serving at least one meal-lunch or supper. At the end of the day, let someone sit down and write a cheque for $4, to an organization that will send every penny for distribution to people who are hungry."

Obviously, the idea caught on quickly among the citizens of Kingston and area. Pledges and cheques came in from as far away as Ottawa in the east, London in the west, Pembroke in the north and Watertown, New York in the south. Letters often accompanied each. "Here's a donation of $5 from my husband and myself," read one such letter. "We hope this small amount will help at least one child in Bangladesh. Your appeal has made us realize how lucky we are to live in Canada."

An inmate at Millhaven Institution said he had arranged for $8 to be sent out of his prison earnings. He said he has been in several prisons and has seen "half of nearly all prison meals thrown into the garbage can because the food wasn't to the inmates' liking - it was a little too cold or the men were just not hungry enough to eat it all."

The local media responded quickly to the appeal as well, with extensive coverage in the Whig and air time given to recorded promotional messages, open line shows and televised broadcasts.

The most amazing part of this idea which started as one family's contribution to ease the world hunger situation is that a Canadian Armed Forces airlift is currently being organized by the Leonards and local Member of Parliament, Flora Macdonald, to take the food directly to Bangladesh. They have been troubled by reports of aid profiteering and black-marketing and hopefully this way that problem will be avoided. If the airlift becomes a reality, reports and effects of the Kingston fast will go national. "And they said it couldn't be done," say the elated Leonards.

Instead of sending the regular fare of wheat or rice, Terry and Pat hope to have a more nourishing mixture of corn meal, soya flour and milk powder sent. This can be made into a thin gruel by the Bengalis. They hope that they can get co-operation from food manufacturers and buy the necessary ingredients at cost price directly from them.

Should the airlift not be realized, and word will come from Ottawa early this week, the money will probably be sent to the Christian Organization for Relief Rehabilitation (CORR) which operates in Bangladesh. The reputation of CORR is currently being investigated to guard against rip-offs as much as possible.

Part of the promise made by the Leonards was that all of the money collected would be used to buy food. With an airlift, there will be transportation costs to the airlift point, probably Trenton, and then from the planes to the people once in Bangladesh. It is indicative of the support this venture has received that one man has stepped forward, having previously made a considerable cash donation, and offered to pay all transportation costs in addition to his former pledge.

To keep faith with the people who have contributed generously to the food fund, the Leonards are checking with people who can advise on precisely what types of food would be appropriate for the people of Bangladesh.

In addition, through the efforts of Prof. John Coleman, Dean of the mathematics department at Queen's, further up-to-date information is being sought on the political and economic situation of the Bengalis.

The organizer of the food fund is anxious to involve more than the Kingston area in the aid project. He has asked Syl Apps, MLA for Kingston and the Islands, to request that the province match Kingston area gifts dollar for dollar.

Mr. Leonard has cited the action of the Saskatchewan government in providing dollar-for-dollar grants to match money raised within the province by international voluntary agencies.

The Bayridge organizer is also approaching the Canadian International Development Agency, a non-governmental agency funded by the federal government, to ask CIDA, in turn to match the grant, if any, from the province.

Individuals have power

"Think of what this would mean to the people of Bangladesh, $18,000 from the Kingston area, raised to $36,000 by the province and to $72,000 by CIDA," Mr. Leonard said.

He said he is not being a "starry-eyed idealist or a dreamer" but is simply taking Prime Minister Trudeau at his own word.

In his New Year's Day address Mr. Trudeau said, "The difficulties of our times cannot be said to be unbearable in Canada and the other industrialized countries; but in the Third World millions of men, women and children face the grim spectre of hunger and starvation."

"Individually, we cannot do much, perhaps, but personal contributions, however small, are valuable. Yet the real power to help is in the hands of governments and international agencies. Let us not forget that they act on our behalf and each one of us has both the right and the duty to exert pressure on them."

Mr. Leonard says his proposal is not "pressure" but "we are demonstrating to him that we are prepared to share ... and we are respectfully requesting that the government co-operate with us."

They haven't intended this venture to detract from the problems which face this community. "We don't want money earmarked for our own community needs, but only any extra money over and above this." When asked why he felt the response was so overwhelming, Terry replied that it is largely due to "the ability to identify with a person, not an organization. But this is just a one-time occurrence for us. I realize that these organizations are needed for 365 days of the year."

If nothing else, the Leonards would seem to have shown us that a fund-raising fast can work. The idea which two people had to raise five thousand dollars worth of aid to Bengalis, The Kingston Food Fund, Box 97, Kingston will be open until Jan. 15. The proposed airlift will take place on Jan. 30, the planned date for the AMS fast. The choice to send money is up to the individual, but perhaps the success of the Leonards' programme will convince some that it will not be merely a token effort.

Estimate quadrupled

In the face of such skepticism and criticism, this Bayridge couple didn't expect to raise very much money. They estimated that if they collected five thousand dollars they would be surprised. And now they are just a thousand dollars short of quadrupling that figure.

They checked into every relief agency in the country to find the one which charged the lowest administration fee for distributing the money in the

It's going to be a busy term

The magic of film

The American Film Theatre is soon to begin its second season, and if last season's films are any indication, this series is something no one should miss. There are five films in the series—Brecht's Galileo, with Topol and Sir John Gielgud; David Storey's In Celebration, with Alan Bates and the original London cast; The Man in the Glass Booth, with Maximilian Schell; Genet's The Maids, with Glenda Jackson, Susannah York and Vivien Merchant; and Jacques Brel's Alive and Well and Living in Paris.

The American Film Theatre began last year. President Ely Landau explains its purpose: "...The American Film Theatre created a new genre—Legitimate Film. Great movies from great plays. Not mirror images of the plays; but film with all the technical qualities and all the magic that only film can create." The films will be shown in some 500 theatres throughout Canada and the United States; they are to be shown in Kingston at the Capitol Theatre on Thursday afternoons and evenings from February until June. Information concerning subscription tickets is available at the theatre box office.

Talks at Agnes

A series of six public illustrated lectures will be given by Professor Joseph Burke on Tuesday evenings, January 7th to February 11th at 8:00 p.m. in Stirling Hall D. The lectures are open to the public and admission is free. The themes of individual lectures are as follows:

- Jan. 7: The Grand Tour and the rule of taste
- Jan. 14: The creation of the landscape garden
- Jan. 21: The English conversation piece and Joseph Hume's illustration to Pamela

Jan. 28: William Hogarth and the Party of Humanity

Feb. 4: The revival of history painting

Feb. 11: New-classicism and the picturesque.

Professor Burke has been Professor of Fine Art at the University of Melbourne since 1947. He is a Commonwealth visiting Fellow at Queen's University this academic year. A graduate in the disciplines of both Art History and English Language and Literature from the Courtauld Institute of Art of the University of London and from Yale University, he has lectured extensively in England, Australia, and the U.S.A. on varied aspects of eighteenth century art and humanism.

Professor Burke comments that, in these lectures, he has "chosen to discuss those aspects which he believes to be most original and innovative in the art of the period."

Break to musical comedy

The Board of Directors of the Kingston Meistersingers have announced the selection of Gilbert and Sullivan's The Gondoliers as the production for Spring 1975. This will be presented in the Grand Theatre, May 16th to 18th, and will be directed by Jill Hodgkinson, who directed the Queen's productions of Wonderful Town and Cabaret. Musical Director Ernest Whyman directed the Meistersingers' Showboat.

Auditions have been planned for February 6th, 7th and 8th, and a cast of about 55 is envisaged, complemented by a large orchestra. In complete contrast to most musicals, in this show there are nine equally important principal parts, as well as eight minor leads.

The Kingston Meistersingers enjoys the unique distinction of being the only independent musical theatre company in this area, and its aim is to foster a community awareness of the musical play tradition. Encouragement is given to local talent to participate in all the productions, and pre-audition workshops have been arranged to provide instruction and advice to interested persons new to the theatre. These will take place during the month of January. Telephone enquiries are welcome. Margaret Nash 389-3003, Brian Newell 389-5210.

Boogie and blues

In keeping with its policy of variety, A.M.S. concerts presents John Lee Hooker and his band John Lee, who is mainly a blues artist, is sure to appeal to all music lovers.

There is hardly a music enthusiast alive who has not heard of John Lee Hooker. This summer he captured the audiences of both the Toronto and Windsor Blues Festivals with his judicious mixing of slow, medium and fast tunes. Each of Hooker's musicians—John Lee Hooker Jr. (vocals), Robert Hooker (piano and organ), Ken Swank (drums), Lex Silver (bass), and Charlie Grimms (guitar), fill every song with a heart-felt blues aimed at producing maximum boogie.

Anyway, here he is: John Lee Hooker, whose style of music has not changed over the years. His music is like an ale or a good joint: its always the same but its always fun.

JOHN LEE HOOKER AND HIS BAND
SATURDAY, JAN. 12
GRANT HALL
8:00 P.M.

TICKETS 3.50
3.00 (with student's card)
in The John Orr Room

Guess who is looking for you...

Hollywood at its best (and worst)

by Sandra Bernstein
There is something vaguely annoying about a film like "That's Entertainment", which is currently playing at the Hyland.

It lies not in the sheer delight of seeing Astaire or Gene Kelly dance, or admiring Esther Williams' wonder-woman-like aquatic feats.

Perhaps it is in the rancidly sentimental narration (by gracelessly aging stars) which spoils the picture by drawing attention to its essential falseness. We are obliged to sit through overstated, insincere-sounding panegyrics to a studio and system the drawbacks of which are conspicuously ignored. The ebullient narrators forget that they are addressing a generation weaned on Watergate, which cannot help but look with cynicism on the operations of giant cinema corporations.

The film makes a big fuss about its alleged honesty, freely admitting the obvious: that the musicals were an escapist fantasy trip for audiences; that the plots of all those Rooney-Garland shows were the same. The editing employs some deliberate archaisms, and shots of the narrators are done in small ratio, to give the feeling that we are watching an MGM family home movie.

Yet all this cannot give credence to the film's basic lie: that it is not as blatantly commercial as all those musicals were. As ever, the studio is only secondarily interested in promoting talent, and primarily watching the profit graphs. With the current trend towards re-issuing old films in first-run theatres, this sampler will not only be virtually free money for the company, but will promote re-issues of the sampled films.

The studio seems proud of the "MGM look", which they do not mention, was created by eliminating individual artistic expression. Directors who didn't fit the mold were either cut to fit the procrustean bed or asked to leave, they are noticeable in this film by their absence. Dramatic actors survived only by doing as they were told: they learned to sing and dance as witness a humiliated Joan Crawford in this film, trying vainly not to look like National Velvet in tap shoes. Any advance in film art was achieved in spite of the system and was limited by it.

The real talent was essentially non-cinematic: the singers, dancers and swimmers, the descendants of Vaudeville imported for the "sound stage", that hybrid phenomenon of the forties.

There are a few touching moments in the film, such as the clip of Judy Garland's last footage which shows her gaily singing, "Get Ready for the Judgement Day". Liza Minnelli, in introducing the Garland montage, observes that film at least gave stage performers access to the relative immortality attained by artists in other media.

At the same time, this immortality was open, judging by this film, primarily to whites, the technical credits at the end list mainly males, the scenes show mainly the lives of the rich.

If the inventiveness of the spectacular designs makes these carefully selected extracts more worthwhile than the brand of escapism found in television sitcoms, however, both lack substance. Style in the forties was made to gloss over lack of insight and depth, and mass produced fantasy replaced art.

Liza's presence too, reminds us of the message of "Cabaret" the dangers of this lovely escapism, and how a generation can sing and dance its way into fascism.

All this is maybe a bit heavy for those who are looking for "entertainment". It is a movie, which certainly can be enjoyed, particularly if you are willing to let yourself be sucked in by it.

Murphy's Sea Food Restaurant

Clam Chowder
Fish and Chips

70 Brock St.
548-7753

"Odysseus, master mariner and soldier,
Remain with me, and share my meat and wine,
..... your cruel wandering is all you think of ..."

Odysseus would have felt right at home this weekend at Wanderlust. He'd probably begin with a feast at The Buttery.

The Buttery offers the finest food in Kingston: charcoal broiled steak, surf 'n' turf, flambe dishes, great roast beef... This Saturday night begin your wandering at the Buttery.

The Buttery

(20 per cent reduction for Queen's wanderers.)

178-188 Ontario Street, in the Hotel Frontenac

For reservations phone 544-6881

Yours hosts: Anne and Brendan McConnell

To gather the material for The Longest Mile Gazaway lived in a hollow called Duddie's Branch for more than a year. She came to know the hollowers well, both as individuals and as a group. The time spent is evident in her intimate knowledge of the speech patterns, the psychology, the way of life of these people. She gained a deep sympathy for these hollowers who are caught in a numbing cycle which renders progress impossible, and time, planning and leadership irrelevant. She sees the incredible complexity of family relationships and family loyalties in the hollow, and states that while these deep loyalties are one of the strongest elements of hollow society, they are also a part of the forces that retard its progress.

The recounting of encounters with many hollowers and hard-won friendships with a few are ample illustration for her knowledge of these people. Perhaps acting against her own better judgement she makes an attempt to help one of the brighter children of the hamlet—she takes the young teenager to her home in the city, sends him to school and attempts to educate him in the ways of our world. All Gazaway's observations of the hollow society are substantiated by this boy's reaction to his new surroundings. The change is too great for him—he misses the closeness of family ties and does not wish to risk the rejection of his family by remaining away for any length of time, or by changing to any great extent. And so he returns to the hollow.

Gazaway balances her sympathetic tales of individuals in the hollow with an objective

Harris spectacular as Gaels finish 2nd

by Peter Watts
Journal Sports Writer

Upset was the key word at the first annual Ottawa U. invitational hockey tournament held on the weekend in the nation's capital. The fun started on Friday night with Queen's knocking off fifth-ranked Loyola Warriors 4-3 in the opening contest. Later that evening McMaster Marlins upset host Ottawa GeeGees 9-3 in a game which featured a bench-clearing brawl six minutes into the third period. On Saturday, Ottawa rebounded from a three-goal deficit in the last five minutes of the game to beat Loyola 6-5. In the afternoon, the Gaels took a 4-2 lead into the third period but lost 6-4 to the Marlins in the championship final.

Friday night's performance against Loyola was the best effort that this reporter has seen out of a tricolour hockey club in the last four years. The Gaels won the game on guts and the standout goaltending of netminder Clyde Harris who stopped 39 of the 42 shots he faced. The Gaels had only 17 shots at the other end of the rink but 4 of them - two by rookie Doug Carty and one each by Dave Hadden and Craig Shannon - found the mark. They won the game with only 14 men and they lost Earl Moulton before the contest was over. Moulton was thrown out of the game in the second period for second-guessing the referee.

On Saturday though it was a different story as a lack of bodies took their toll. The Gaels and the Marlins were tied 1-1 at the end of the first period and led 4-2 at the end of the second. But in the third period, the Marlins came on strong, erupting for 3 unanswered goals to win the championship. Bill Van Camp and Frank Coffey counted two goals apiece in the second game. Both of Van Camp's goals and one of Coffey's came while the Gaels were playing shorthanded.

Three of the Gaels - netminder Harris, centre Van Camp and defenseman Ron Swan who was a standout in both games, were selected to the tournament all-star team. Other members were defenseman Paul Clemmy of McMaster, right-winger Murray Mark of the Marlins and left-winger Bill Fox of Ottawa. Mark was also selected as the outstanding player in the tournament.

While the loss in the second game was a disappointment, on the whole Dave Field and Bob Carnegie were more than satisfied with the Gaels' performance. It was an inspired performance against Loyola on Friday night and a respectable effort on Saturday against McMaster. But more important, it was a chance to get a couple of games in before Friday night's encounter against the Varsity Blues. And speaking of the Blues, get to the Harty Arena early on Friday night. It should be a heckuva game.

"SIS-BOOM OUR TEAMS ARE RED-HOT!!"

so put on your old Queen's sweater and come out to support our Gals and Gaels in '75.

(Sports Editors Note) The quick brown fox reminds sports writers that shop is open—hope you survived New Years and see you Wednesday night.

Wat's
hapnin'?

Friday, January 10

- 7:00 p.m. - Diplomacy and Wargames Club - A war game on the Roman Civil War will be played for up to eight Romans. Also other wargames. New players are welcome. This will be held in the McLaughlin Room of the Student Union. (first floor).
- 7:30 p.m. - Women and Film - A Liberation Film Festival - The film "A Very Curious Girl" will be shown in Ellis Hall. A panel discussion will follow at 9:30 p.m. After this short film "The Bridal Shower" will be shown. Admission is free.
- 8:00 p.m. - Gaelic Hockey Team faces U. of T.
- 9:00 p.m. - Vitaeemo II - Ukrainian Night in Grant Hall Doors open at 8:00 p.m. Featuring Ukrainian band and dancers. Prize to the best amateur dancers. Admission $1.50 at the door. Beer - 50c.

Saturday, January 11

- 8:00 a.m. - The Queen's Skydiving Club will be meeting in front of Gordon Brockington to go jumping. Bring your coats and woollies.
- 2:00 p.m. - Women and Film - A Liberation Film Festival - A festival of short films will be shown in Ellis Hall: "After the Vote", "The Stripper", "Joyce at 34", "2 Right, 2 Left, Drop One", "How The Hell Are You?", "Anything You Want To Be", "Marguerite", "Standing Buffalo", "2 Working Mothers Films". Admission free. Free day care 1 to 5 p.m.; $4-4875.
- 7:30 p.m. - Women and Film - presents "Sambizanga" in Ellis Hall. Admission free.
- 8:00 p.m. - Coffee House and Good Times Emporium presents Tony Kosinec. Tickets available Thursday and Friday 10:30-4:30 for $2 in the John Orr Room and at the door.
- 8:15 p.m. - Basketball: St. Lawrence College at Queen's.
- 9:00 p.m. - Snowshoe Shuffle - Dance in Grant Hall featuring music by "Audiomaster" and fun and laughter by the comedians "McLean and McLean". Doors open at 8:30 p.m. Admission $2.75 advance, $3.00 at the door.

Sunday, January 12

- 10:30 a.m. - Morning Worship at Chalmers United Church.
- 10:30 a.m. - Folk Mass at Dunning Hall, followed by coffee and donuts at Newman House, 164 University Ave.
- 11:00 a.m. - University Service at Morgan Memorial Chapel conducted by the Padre. "What Was It All About?"
- 8:00 p.m. - Concert in Grant Hall featuring John Lee Hooker. Admission $3.50, $3.00 with student card.

Monday, January 13

- 1:00 p.m. - Informal discussion with Doris Anderson in the Ban Righ Common Room. "How women hold themselves back."
- 7:30 p.m. - Pre-audition workshops conducted by Jill Hodgkinson in preparation for the forthcoming Kingston Meistersingers production of the "The Gondoliers" to be held in the Gordon Sinclair School, Crerar Blvd., Reddenale. This is the first of a series of workshops and is open to all interested persons. For further information call 389-3003.

- 8:00 p.m. - First of this term's Third World Films "Calcutta" in Dunning Auditorium. Free admission. Coffee and donuts. All welcome.

Pubs and Theatres

- Hyland - Law and Disorder
Odeon - Man With the Golden Gun
Capitol I - Godfather II
Capitol II - Towering Inferno
- 101 Inn - The Dick Malony Quartet
Frontenac-Finnegan's - Bob Short
Frontenac - Muldoon's - The Cobbers Awi
Commodore - Chateaux
Townhouse - London
Manor - Johnnie Guy

Upcoming Events

- Tuesday, January 14 - Brown Bag Lunch will be held at Agnes Etherington Art Centre at 12:30 p.m. and Kay Kritzwiser, Art Critic for the Globe and Mail, will discuss the Kingston Artists exhibition. Bring your own sandwich; coffee will be provided.
- Tuesday, January 14 - Creation of the Landscape Garden: Free Public Illustrated Lecture by Professor Burke (2nd of a series) will be held at Stirling Hall D at 8:00 p.m. Admission is free. Professor Burke has been Professor of Fine Art in the University of Melbourne since 1947.
- Thursday, January 16 - Ban Righ Fireside will feature the Vaghy String Quartet from 5:45-6:30. Coffee and dessert will be served and everyone is welcome.
- Thursday, January 16 - Agnes Etherington Art Centre presents Prints and People Series VI: Natalie Luckyj at 7:30 p.m. The History of Prints Part 2 - Goya to the 20th Century.
- Saturday, January 18 - Paul Gaultin Mime Company - "Mime - an exciting art that requires the talents of both dancer and actor but with an even more precise control of the body - comes alive with Paul Gaultin. This young Canadian artist with years of training with Marceau and Decroux is now carving a major career in North America." The performance begins at 8:30 p.m. in the Grand Theatre, 218 Princess Street. For additional information phone the Division of Concerts Box Office at 547-6194. Tickets are $2.50, $3.50, and $4.50 general and $1.50, $2.50, $3.50 for students.
- Sunday, January 19 - Organ Recital: David Cameron, Director of Music at Chalmers United Church will play at Grant Hall at 3:00 p.m. and admission is free.
- Tuesday, January 21 - Rape Symposium in Lower Vio Common Room at 8:00 p.m.

Phys. Ed. Centre

Court Reservations - The book for the reservation of squash, handball-paddleball and tennis courts is available for bookings daily starting at the times listed.

Mon., Wed., Fri. - 7:45 a.m.
Tues., Thurs., Sat. - 8:00 a.m.
Sun. - 2:00 p.m.

VAN'S GIFTS and BOOKS

282 Princess St.
KINGSTON 542-6676

Welcome to all students and staff for 1975. Reach for the highest goal with the best of success for improvement for the rest of your life.

Try Van's first Briar Quality pipe or select a nylon or leather covered latest styles. Van's has hand covered rustic or Plain finish also in "Meerchaum" pipes. 400 different kinds to choose. Priced from $1.98 to $50.00.

STORE HOURS OPEN	Mon.-Fri.	9:30 am - 10 pm
	Saturday	9:30 am - 9 pm
	Sunday	12:00 noon - 9 pm

WINTER FROLIC '75

presents

DEVOTION and AUDIOMASTER

at the
"Snowshoe Shuffle"

Sat. Jan. 11,	9 pm	Grant Hall
Admission: $2.75 advance	Beer: 65¢
$3.00 at door	Liquor:

SCIENCE '44 CO-OP

SMOKER!!

Tuesday Jan. 14

Clark Hall; 9 PM

COMMODORE HOTEL

840 PRINCESS ST.

The Commodore Hotel at 840 Princess St. is pleased to offer all Students of Queen's, St. Lawrence and MacArthur College a preferred rate for room accommodation for their Parents or friends during the 74-75 term when they have occasion to visit Kingston.

NIGHTLY ENTERTAINMENT
in our Lounge

THIS WEEK: Chateau

Amateur Night every Wednesday

Queen's Students Welcome
In Our Lounge

Heave-ho all House Wanted

by Seagull Flood

A liberal dose of "House Wanted" Ads has already been seen in the Journal unclassified section as the season for lining up next year's home - away - from - home rolls around. Every year it seems the housing crunch gets tougher and with this in mind, the Senate Committee on Student Affairs (SCOSA) has been reviewing available information on short term housing.

In a report made to the Senate the Committee headed by Bill Fallis, made clear several pertinent points. Firstly, that there is a holding municipal bylaw restricting the density of Kingston development to 28 dwelling units per acre, making construction less profitable for developers. Secondly, that the Kingston population increases approximately 2.5 per cent per annum, a figure which does not include the increase in student enrollment. Finally SCOSA reported that a survey of major rental companies handling approximately 1200 units in large apartment blocks disclosed a vacancy rate of 1 per cent or less. In view of this information, the committee considered and proposed several ways of easing the problem of housing for August and September of 1975.

Making recommendations in several general areas, SCOSA first concentrated on suggestions for increasing student awareness of the potential housing shortage. In this vein, they advised that students should not wait until August and September to find accommodation, but should secure residence earlier in the year and that they should accept accommodation that is perhaps not exactly what they want if that is all that is available.

Following this, the committee sought ways to provide students with the necessary knowledge of the laws that relate to housing. In cooperation with SCOSA, the Legal Aid Society will be providing articles to appear in the Journal at various times during the term.

With regards to aiding students in obtaining the housing itself, SCOSA had several proposals which focus on the idea that an attempt should be made to retain present off-campus student residences as future student housing. In consultation with the Director of Housing and Property Management and others, SCOSA supported the establishment under the management of the Queen's Housing Office, of the Students' Advanced Housing List. In order to prepare such a compilation about possible housing, the Committee suggested that the Housing Office be asked to obtain information by a questionnaire applicable to graduating students' present residences, and should supply data on dates of occupancy, rent, and condition of the rented areas. The Committee then advises that this list be publicized and that all prospective off-campus dwellers be encouraged to refer to it directly. The target date for publication of the list will be Friday, February 14, 1975. The IRC, WRC, and the Journal have all indicated their willingness to assist in publicity.

In summary then, stay tuned for articles on housing from the Legal Aid Society. Once the questionnaires are out, SCOSA will want them returned as soon as possible to the Housing Office.

By February 14 or earlier SCOSA will let you know when the Students' Advanced Housing List is operating so that you will be able to find your house for '75-'76.

Spectrum

You and the university focus of lecture series

Spectrum is an alternative lecture series to those given by top scholars from outside the university. It is a lecture series about the University in all its diversity given by top scholars from within Queen's. ASUS and Artsci 78 are co-sponsoring this lecture series which will run in the Ban Righ Common Room for four consecutive Tuesday nights starting January 21.

At this point in the year many students are asking themselves what they are doing at university, as the exam results are discovered and this term's load of essays and assignments are handed out. Most people are here to broaden their horizons professionally, academically or personally. Whatever your particular reason, now is a good time to assess the university and what it can offer you.

Spectrum can help you with that assessment. The speakers are members of Queen's faculty who are concerned with every aspect of Queen's. With the ease of good lecturers, they tackle subjects which range from student activism to the role of research in the university.

On January 21, Dr. Crowder of the History Dept will start the lecture series with a general introduction about what you find at Queen's. On the same night Principal Watts will speak on the effects of government cutbacks on Queen's, and the quality of education at Queen's. What with the present threat of crippling government expenditure cut backs, it is important to see what our principal feels about government control. How badly will the quality of university education be affected by government action?

Following Watts, in the next lecture, are Dr. Sinclair and Dr. Uffen. As the Deans of Arts and Science and Applied Science they will discuss whether or not the education of the professional is merely a process by which slots may be filled in society's work market, or whether it is the education of the professional which is more realistic in providing not only an educated individual but one who serves a valid need in society.

The remaining four lectures provide insight into various aspects of the role of the university. What is the place of the performing arts in the university? Do they in fact have a place here? Dr. Breslow of the Drama Dept. will attempt to answer this question. Keith Norton, Deputy-Mayor and Alderman for Sydenham Ward will examine the relationship between Queen's and Kingston. Is the university as self-sufficient as it seems? Or are we ignoring the need for, and the benefit of, a strong Queen's-Kingston relationship?

On the fourth and last evening of the lecture series, Dr. Taylor of the Mathematics Dept. will evaluate the role of research in the university. Must a good teacher be top in his field of study, or is teaching a skill which hinges more on communication than research ability? Shifting the focus from teacher to student, Dr. Franks of the Politics Dept. will conclude the series by reviewing the student's role in the university. What can the students contribute to the university and society at large? What should they contribute?

Spectrum is a multi-faceted lecture series, which has something to offer to every member of the Queen's community. Don't miss it!

Dance till you drop

Around the clock dance for Outlook

On Friday January 17, Grant Hall will be open for twelve continuous hours giving you the opportunity to Rock Around the Clock to live bands, win numerous prizes and raise money for Camp Outlook. Live entertainment will feature OFTEN from Collins Bay Penitentiary, Easy Company, The Queen's Jazz Ensemble, plus individual performances by Rick LeSeur and Jamie Bastedo, Chris George and Jim Gillis. Included in the festivities there will be free food after 2:00 A.M. and over $400.00 in prizes to be given out including an $85.00 AM-FM Digital Clock Radio, shirts, over 20 LP's, gift certificates, a back pack, pizza certificates, movie passes, twelve pairs of pantyhose, fifty Big Macs and many others. One of the highlights of the evening will be a jiving contest, starting around midnight with prizes going to winners and runners up.

To gain entrance to the dance simply requires you to pick up a pledge card and form and then to get friends to sponsor you for a total of at least 25¢ per half hour. We encourage everybody not only to come but to get as many pledges as possible. All money raised will go towards helping finance the Outlook program.

Camp Outlook is in its sixth year of providing Kingston youths with a unique outdoor experience. The camp, a registered charity, is run entirely by Queen's students, with the aid of Padre Laverly. It concentrates its program on taking Kingston youths between the ages of 13 and 16 on canoe trips to Algonquin Park during the summer.

Campers, recruited with the aid of numerous social agencies, and the Board of Education, hopefully gain an insight and appreciation of the outdoors and develop skills and positive personal qualities. The Outlook experience is offered free of charge to the campers, and consequently all financial support comes from private donations and fund raising campaigns such as the Dance Marathon. Friday night will be a chance to have fun and help Outlook to give Kingston youths an enjoyable and valuable summer.

Pledge cards and forms are available at residence meal lines, the John Orr Room, the Outlook office in the Students' Union, and the main desk in all Women's Residences and Gordon-Brockington House. Doors are open at 7:30 p.m. Friday until 8:00 a.m. Saturday morning.

Remember to bring your pledge card, the white form, student's card, and dancing shoes and let's see how long you can Rock Around The Clock - for Outlook

Thinking of "dancing around the clock" at the Danceathon next Friday? If you plan to tread a measure for Camp Outlook, take some advice from Rector Bruce Trotter - take a date with endurance!

The Christmas Clam

by John Bottomley

There was a meeting of the Heavenly Court recently, to determine the truth of some unusual stories being told by one of the angels. They were stories of an impossibility, a monstrosity which God could never have created.

An account of the trial follows.

"Do you swear to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth?"

"Of course I do."

"Now, you recently visited the planet Threa, did you not?"

"Yup." (nb. The planet Threa is inhabited by clams. Since they have no legs, they sit in carts and push themselves along with their arms.)

"And what were the conditions like there?"

"They were just terrible. Clams were out of work, most of the world was starving, there was ..."

"Enough! We are then to understand that the economic situation was dire indeed?"

"Damn tootin'!"

"And yet, you claim that during your visit, they appeared to be celebrating something?"

"They sure were. They were celebrating the birth of their Saviour."

"And how did they celebrate?"

"Well, they claim that this is a time for giving. They set this one day of the year aside for that purpose."

"Well, charity is certainly a noble sentiment. It would be nice to have this feeling for more than one quarter of one percent of the time, but at least it's a start. It is good to see such nobility in a clam. The hungry ones must certainly be thankful for this holiday."

"They might be, if they benefitted by it, but they don't, so they aren't. The clams only give to friends, and then they only buy silly things. Expensive, useless, silly things, which none of them can afford."

"That seems inconsistent. Surely if they were going to give, they would have the intelligence to give wisely. Even clams were gifted with more brains than that. It certainly damages their noble reputation."

"There's more. I told you that this is a time of giving."

"Yes."

"But if you ask one of these clams 'How was your Lucky day' (that's what they call this festival) they answer 'Great, I got ...'. Even though they claim that it is the season for giving, they measure its success by what they got. 'How they did'."

"You are presuming on the intelligence of this court. Are we to believe that the Omnipotent One would create such irrational and selfish beings?"

"But I tell you, it's all true!"

"This was the end of the debate. The jury retired and soon returned its verdict."

"You are found guilty of all counts of lying, slander, and subversion. The Creator would never be guilty of such an absurdity as that which you profess to have seen. Even if such a place did exist, one cannot imagine that something so base could survive. Even a clam has more pride than that, and would sooner commit suicide than live that way. You are hereby ordered to give up these ridiculous fantasies."

Mario's Pizzeria and Spaghetti House
Pizza · Spaghetti · Lasagna · Ravioli
637 Princess Free delivery

BITTER GROUNDS
presents
TONY KOSINES

Saturday January 11, 1975
Clark Hall 8:00 pm - 1:00 am
Admission: $2.00
Tickets available in the John Orr
Room, Friday till 4:30 and
AT THE DOOR

unclassifieds

More on Page 12

REWARD: For information concerning house capable of accommodating 5 persons for 75-76. Phone 544-7437.

PLEASE HELP US! We need a live man house for next year. Call 544-8043 or 544-8015.

CALCULATOR FOR SALE: Bowmar MX-40 rechargeable electronic calculator. Name your price within reason. Call Pam at 544-3002.

COME and shuffle your shoes in Gran Hall, Saturday Jan. 11, when Wilder Fratic presents "Snowshoe Shuffle". Entertainment is provided by "Devotion" and "Audiomaster". Admission $2.75 advance, $3 at the door.

REWARD OFFERED for the return of two identical wooden cannons missing now for 2 weeks. 4 ft. long, 2 feet high. No questions. Please contact the Queen's Journal, if you know where they are. 547-5340 or call 548-4523 after 6pm. Many thanks.

WANTED TO BUY: P. Strawson's "Introduction to Logical Theory" for Philosophy 259. Please phone 544-8257 and ask for Sue.

SCOTTISH COUNTRY DANCING - (Not Highland) Starts Tues. Jan. 14th. 9:30-11:30pm, Dance Studio. Phys. Ed. Centre. Guys 100. Beginners welcome.

WANTED - a modern 2 bedroom apartment close to campus as of May 1st, 1975. Please call 544-7480 or 544-9364.

THE KINGSTON COMMUNITY BALLET ASSOC. has a limited number of placements in the adult beginner to advanced winter term classes. For information call Mrs. Jarrett at 544-4860.

TIRED OF TAXES? STUMPED BY SCHEDULES? SCREWED BY FORMS? If you need help with your income tax return, call student tax prep-two Queen's students with five years taxation experience. Inexpensive, guaranteed Accurate work. 549-3907.

WANTED: TYPEWRITERS THAT WORK: Contact the Journal Office anytime! Desperate! Will take anything.

PSST - DIVISION ST. 15 HAVING A PARTY on Friday the 17th. Details next week.

BITTER GROUNDS DPENS the new season with Columbia and Smile recording artist Tony Kosinec. Sat. Jan. 11, 8:1. Tickets available 11th 4:30 Friday in the John Orr Room and at the door. Admission $2.00.

GREBS FOR SALE: Somebody with small feet is in luck - size 4 steel toe boots, new at Christmas - $30.00 or best offer. Phone Cathy at 544-9181.

ARE YOU A GREAT GUY? Then we've got the girls for you. Mature, sincere and voluptuous women looking for meaningful relationships. Don't miss this outstanding opportunity for the great girl give-away. Send in your letters to: Heidi Siegel, 17 King St. W., Kingston. Your picture is worth 1,000 words. Baby.

BITTER GROUNDS - COFFEE HOUSE AND GOOD TIMES EMPORIUM will be opening the new term Sat. Jan. 11 with recording artist Tony Kosinec. Tickets available till 4:30 in the John Orr Room and AT THE DOOR. Admission $2.00.

All people interested in taking pictures for the Journal, please call Jon Willmer at 544-4642 or the Journal office. Darkroom experience is an asset but not necessary.

SCIENCE '44 CO-OP
Open House
Saturday Jan. 11
10 am - 4 pm
314 William Street

Human Dignity and the Experience of Woman.

Queen's University

Dunning Trust Lecture

Liberation Film Festival

Friday Jan 10: 7:30 "A Very Curious Girl" and discussion

Saturday Jan 11: 2:00 Festival of Short Films

Saturday Jan 11: 7:30 "Sambizanga" and "Africa Today"

ELLIS HALL

ADMISSION FREE

One Man's Politics

by Doug Bonnell

Before plunging ahead into the politics of the new year, let's look back briefly on 1974 and some of the venerable witicisms and observations of our great political enthusiasts. First turn south:

"I believe Richard Nixon to be totally innocent of any wrongdoing." (Vice-President Gerald Ford, May 9.)

"The time has come for persons in political life to face the truth and speak the truth. The time has come for persons in political life to avoid the pragmatic dodge which seeks to obscure the truth." (Gerald Ford, May 10.)

"When you lose a President that speaks to the American people, and as his eyes shift back and forth across the screen says 'I'm no crook, you know you're going to miss him' (Gore Vidal).

"I think it's great. He already owns America, why not let him run it." (Vidal commenting on the Rockefeller nomination.)

And now come home for, among other events, a general election.

"I think it's going to be such a good budget that nobody is going to be able to vote against it completely." (Pierre Trudeau four days before the defeat of the May budget.)

"David the daisy, plucking his petals one by one, will have an election, will we not have an election." (Pierre Trudeau.) (Lewis went for the election.)

"Wage and price controls are a contingency plan of the government." (Pierre Trudeau, May 4.)

"Wage and price controls haven't worked in the United States and Great Britain, and they won't work here." (Finance Minister John Turner.)

"I think that I can speak to you for him as a person, as a very loving, loving human being who has taught me a lot about loving." (Mrs. Margaret Trudeau, June 5.)

"If my wife could have been here tonight she could have told you how much I've taught her about love." (Robert Stanfield, June 10.)

"You know most provinces I visit I hope to leave with a few seats. I hope to leave Alberta with my skin." (Pierre Trudeau, June 6.)

"Trudeau says the issue is leadership and the problem is inflation. My friends, I say inflation is the issue, and leadership is the problem." (Stanfield.)

"There's a tide going our way. Just give us that one last push." (Stanfield, two days before the election.)

"Son of a bitch, son of a bitch, son of a bitch!" (Pierre Trudeau, October 1974.)

Despite all this, once in a while a few lines of political idealism emerged from the mouths of our leaders. For example:

"We are good for the world, because we are moderates, because we have in us anger about the inequalities and injustices of our society, because we refuse to accept the notion that the poor will always be with us, because we honestly believe that we are our brother's keepers." (David Lewis.)

"There are worse things than losing national elections. I will do what I have to do to protect the integrity and principles of the party." (Robert Stanfield, on rejecting the candidacy of Leonard Jones.)

With political systems in turmoil and leaders being replaced by other leaders every other day it is essential that we look back now and again at the men and women who lead us and realize, that despite the onslaught of the modern age, we're still only human.

Campus Activities line-up '75

Jan. 8 - Jan. 11 Winter Frolic

Jan. 11 - Wanderlust

Jan. 12 - AMS Concerts: John Lee Hooker

Jan. 17 - Camp Outlook Fund-raising danceathon

Jan. 22-25 - Suzi-Q Week

Jan. 26 or 28 - AMS Concert

Jan. 28 - Feb. 1 - Arts Festival

Feb. 1 - AMS Concert

Feb. 7 - 8 - Open House

Feb. 12, 13 - AMS Elections

Feb. 13 - AMS Concert

Feb. 24 - AMS Concert

Feb. 17-22 Reading Week

Feb. 24 - AMS Concert

March 8, 9 - Performance of play written by Collins Bay inmate.

March 16 or 17 - AMS Concert

March 22 - Levana

Get well Suzie ...staff.

Human Dignity and the Experience of Woman

Queen's University

Dunning Trust Lecture

Liberation Film Festival

Friday Jan. 10: 7:30 : A Very Curious Girl and discussion

Saturday Jan. 11: 2:00 : Festival of Short Films

Saturday Jan. 11: 7:30 : "Sambizanga" and "Africa Today"

ELLIS HALL

ADMISSION FREE

STUDENT HEALTH SERVICE

MEDICAL CLINIC — 547-6106 - 24 hours daily
(Answering service contacts a duty physician when the Health Service is closed.)

CLINIC HOURS — 9:00 am - 11:30 am
1:00 pm - 4:00 pm
Monday to Friday inclusive

PSYCHIATRY & COUNSELLING — By appointment
9:00 am - 5:00 pm phone 547-2889 or come to Health Service to make an appointment.

Londry's Drugs

Special Student rates

464-471 University Ave.

Delivery Available

546-3696

Open 7 am to 11 pm daily

A SNEAK PREVIEW OF OUR PROGRAM

What is our program? It's our Sales & Marketing Management Program and it gives you inside information on what it takes to become a successful insurance sales manager. It covers subjects such as selling techniques, law and taxation in relation to insurance and estate planning, to name a few. The "why" of our program is simple; we need young graduates with management potential. Your own reasons may have to do with ambition and high income potential.

Why not fill in the coupon below and we'll let you look at the whole program.

The Canada Life Assurance Company

The Canada Life Assurance Company
330 University Avenue, Toronto, Ontario M5G 1R8

Send me more information about your Sales & Marketing Management Program

NAME

ADDRESS

COURSE

(Include resume if available)

International Women's Year at Queen's and across the country

Lectures on women for I.W.Y.

"Human Dignity and the Experience of Woman" is the theme of this year's Chancellor Dunning Trust Lectures, to take place January 10, 11 and 13-15 inclusive. This series has much more financial backing than previous years and will include both a film festival and three major addresses by visiting speakers.

With the co-operation of the Department of Film Studies at Queen's and the National Film Board, the Dunning Trust Committee will present a weekend of films made by women from a variety of countries and backgrounds. Time has been allotted for talk about feminist issues, in a meeting ground format for issues personal and the political: problems ranging from such personal areas as family relationships, love, sexism in the home and on the job; to larger social issues involving oppression, exploitation, and imperialism. There will be panel discussions after the feature films on Friday and Saturday nights. Saturday afternoon will feature a festival of short films followed by opportunities for small group discussions. Admission to the films is free, as is day care for children. Members of both sexes are welcome.

Three speakers, Juliet Mitchell, Elizabeth Hardwick and Doris Anderson, have been invited to deliver major addresses on the evenings of Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, January 13, 14 and 15. In addition to their major addresses, the three visitors will be in residence for the three-day period and available to visit staff and students of individual departments on an informal basis to speak or take part in seminars.

Juliet Mitchell will speak on "Femininity and Feminism" in the first lecture of the series on Monday night. Ms. Mitchell, originally from New Zealand, was educated in Switzerland and St. Anne's, Oxford. At the age of 21, she was appointed Assistant Lecturer in the Department of English at Juliet Mitchell, internationally-known writer, lecturer, and broadcaster, will open the lecture series with an address, "Femininity and Feminism".

Leeds University. She moved to Reading University as Lecturer in English Literature where she stayed until 1970. At that time, she moved into a career of writing, editing and lecturing, which she is still pursuing. Her extensive lecturing at universities and academic conventions has brought her to the United States, Canada, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, and England. She has written film scripts, documentaries on women, is on several editorial boards, and chaired the first major series of television programs on the position of women in the world. In addition to writing numerous articles, Mitchell is the author of Women's Estate, the just-published psychoanalysis and feminism.

The second address on Tuesday night, by Elizabeth Hardwick, is entitled "Fame, Romance and My Thoughts on Women Writers". Ms. Hardwick was born in Kentucky in 1917 and was educated at the University of Kentucky and Columbia, where she is currently giving lectures on literary and other topics. She has a long career as novelist and story writer, and in recent years has written a number of essays, collected in A View of the World, and this year a book about women writers, Seduction and Betrayal: Women in Literature. She has been a part of the intellectual life of New York for a number of years, contributing to the most important magazines. One of the editors of the New York Review of Books, she holds the position of advisory editor. She held the Christian Gauss lectures in Criticism at Princeton University in 1971. Ms. Hardwick taught at Barnard College, Columbia University, for past ten years and is currently working on a novel.

A lecture by Doris Anderson, "Women's Role: A Time of Redefinition," concludes the series on Wednesday night. Born in Calgary in 1925, Doris Anderson grew up in Alberta, earning her B.A. at the University of Alberta. After university she went to London and was employed in various jobs - copy writer, radio script writing, advertising copy writer. While freelancing in Europe she sold short stories, and in 1951 joined the staff of One magazine as a staff writer and worked her way up to the editorship, which she currently holds. At present she is a director of Maclester Limited and the MacMillan Publishing Company. A board member of the Canadian Film Development Corporation and on the Board of Governors of York University and the Institute for Research in Public Policy, Ms. Anderson is also one of the Canadian members of the international body of the Tri-Lateral Commission. She holds a Ph.D. degree from the University of Alberta.

In addition to the lectures, there will be a bookmobile tour of the Toronto Women's Bookstore in Ellis Hall on Saturday only. Two representatives of the bookmobile will be on sale, along with an extensive selection of reprints. This mobile display has travelled across Canada attending functions such as the Dunning Trust series. At the same time, in the foyer of Ellis Hall, several women's groups such as the Kingston Women's Centre, Montessori Nursery School and others, will have displays, aimed at publicizing their concerns and what their groups do.

Notable guests from various fields will be attending the sessions, among them, Flora MacDonald; Susan Findlay, IWY Secretariat from Ottawa; Moira Armour, editor of Status of Women News who will also premiere a new film; and Dr. Lorna Marsden, chairwoman of the Ontario Action Committee on the Status of women.

Theme of peace and equality

The United Nations has declared 1975 International Women's Year, with the threefold theme of equality, development and peace, in order to raise UN consciousness, as well as that of the world, to recognition of the serious discrimination against women. The General Assembly set three main goals: "to promote equality between man and women; to ensure the full integration of women in the total development effort; and to recognize the importance of women's increasing contribution to the development of friendly relations and cooperation among nations and the strengthening of world peace."

The high point of the commemoration will be a conference in Mexico City, next June. Canada has already had her share of the honours - an international seminar of experts was held in Ottawa in September of last year as part of the United Nations advisory services program in the field of human rights. The experts concentrated on preparing a model for the establishment of permanent national machinery for improving the status of women. The seminar included a workshop for training representatives of countries wishing to establish such national programs.

For Canadian women, as for women throughout the world, IWY provides a focal point for getting things done, for changing legislation - and attitudes. Universal maternity benefit coverage, financial inequity visited upon the woman who chooses to work in her home, equal access to job opportunities are among the things to be examined.

The federal government's proposed programs to mark IWY, 1975, will concentrate on promoting equality for women in all areas of society and on educating the general public concerning changing attitudes towards the role of women.

Among the laws to be amended are acts dealing with the Canada and Quebec Pension Plans, pensions and allowances for veterans, the Citizenship Act, and the Canada Elections Act.

Two million dollars worth of government money is available for worthwhile International Women's Year-related projects. They must aim at promoting the full equality of women in Canadian society. The project should be designed to effect a change (for instance, in the social, economic or political situation of women), try to solve a particular problem, or develop resources, educational or training material.

There will be two types of funding available during IWY: funds created especially for International Women's Year and funds from ongoing major programs in the funding departments. Promotion of the Awareness of the Position of Women is a special fund for IWY, available through the Minister Responsible for the Status of Women, for national women's organizations to help them in creating projects designed to increase public awareness of the position of women, among other things. There are a number of programs in the Citizenship Sector of the Department of Secretary of State which fund projects from voluntary groups as part of their on-going activities. While the Department of Manpower and Immigration is not likely to have specific funds available for International Women's Year, it will be giving special consideration to women's projects within each of its funding programs. The aims and criteria of each program differ, but some of them include Opportunities for Youth and the Local Employment Assistance Program. The Department of National Health and Welfare has grants available for certain types of projects which attempt solutions to those issues which complement the objectives of the department.

"Equality, Development, Peace" - these are the aspirations for International Women's Year, 1975, which the United Nations hopes to achieve by upgrading the status of all women. The United Nations has declared its faith that women, as a global group, might lift the quality of life for the whole world. Equality, Development and Peace, for everyone, is no small objective. Women are to be allowed, even encouraged, to take initiative for the good of all. A cynic might see International Women's Year as a cosmic joke on women - "when the game appears to be lost, give the substitutes a chance to play". But the women themselves are not joking. "Equality" shall be of "opportunity"; "development" shall be, not a matter of choices of soaps and cereals, but of "quality of life"; and "peace" shall be "co-operation", among human beings who accept themselves as equals.

International Women's Year, 1975, will mark the beginning of an era when women will realize that they have not only the right, but the responsibility of making choices. This world will benefit because women will change and will lift the total level of sensitivity to human need. New perspectives will enrich everyday life with clearer thinking, more honest service and a recognition of oneness of all life.

The women of Canada have a clear mandate to show confidence and courage in the new role of women throughout the world. They have the obligation to demonstrate leadership. That Canada hosted the United Nations conference on IWY-75 in Ottawa in September, 1974, was a salute to the progress of her women. It was the Committee for the Equality of Women in Canada which, in 1966, proposed the Royal Commission on the Status of Women. It was this committee which became the National Action Committee on the Status of Women in order "to stand on guard" and demand action on the recommendations of the Royal Commission, report submitted in 1970. It was the National Action Committee which, in 1972, brought together in the "Strategy for Change" Convention in Toronto, five hundred women from all provinces and territories to discuss and choose their new directions as women supporting each other in the common cause of equality and development.

In two years multiplicities of groups have sprung up all over the country. Provincial Councils and the federal Advisory Council on the Status of Women are established channels of communications with governments. Interest groups are almost rife. Now there is need for co-ordination of effort to avoid waste and duplication. This is a task which the National Action Committee is equipped to do since it co-ordinates fifty-two non-governmental national organizations or groups with a major concern for the status of women. NAC's sole purpose is to provide expression to Canadian women of their wishes and will toward "Equality, Development and Peace". An added objective for International Women's Year, 1975 is to give inspiration and assistance to women of developing countries who depend on the agencies of the United Nations and the Commission on the Status of Women to raise their quality of life.

The Government of Canada has assigned a sum of $2,000,000 (two million dollars) to projects for International Women's Year. The National Action Committee has proposed one project, a Women's Resource and Development Centre, which will serve not only the women of Canada, but will provide training and conference opportunities to women of developing countries. All projects for IWY-75 should be submitted to: International Women's Year Secretariat, Privy Council Office, Ottawa, Ontario K1A 0A3.

Although the National Action Committee on the Status of Women (NAC) is essentially a communications hub and reaches the women of Canada and the public through their newspaper, Status of Women News, NAC is an "action" network and every participating organization is invited to name a member to the "Steering Committee" which convenes at least one major conference a year and is itself convened for any major decision by the Board of Management of fifteen persons elected from and by that body. To date two major actions are goals for 1975: to remove abortion laws from the Criminal Code, and to initiate the founding and the funding of a "Women's Resource and Development Centre". But NAC will also assist in bringing about many other changes through legislative and social action. International Women's Year, 1975 is an opportunity provided by the United Nations to focus attention upon the role of women in total society. This year may well mark the most quiet but the most profound revolution of this century, if not of all time. In Canada the National Action Committee is challenged with its most ambitious goal - to reach and to move to action every woman of every province and territory. There is a world to win within every woman - herself.

Helen Tucker, Secretary of NAC Charter Secretary of the Committee for the Equality of Women in Canada

Doris Anderson, CHATELAINE's editor and active in diverse Canadian organizations, will speak on "Woman's Role: A Time for Redefinition."

unclassifieds

(More on Page 4)

ROOM AVAILABLE IN VIC. HALL for the rest of this term. If anyone is even slightly interested please call, I might be able to persuade you. Arlene 544-8415.

Gael Group 75-Friday Jan 10 meet behind Jeffery Hall at 7:30pm. We are right in the pub. See you there. Uncle Andy, Aunt Cee and Aunt Sue. Attendance will be taken!

YOU'VE ALL GOT LOTS OF TIME NOW... so come tell us what you think of this school year so far. Meeting on Tuesday the 14 at 7:30 in the Tricolor office in the basement of the Students Union.

HOUSE FOR 4 men needed for next year. will accept lease beginning in April. Contact Bob at 544-7491.

FRIDAY JANUARY 10 at 8pm in Grant Hall, Winter Frolic presents VITAEKO 11, Ukrainian Night, featuring Ukrainian music and dance. Admission is $1.50 at the door and beer is $3.50.

APARTMENT - want to sublet for second term only - am going west. Furnished, large, fireplace, close to campus. Two women, house share with present occupant. Call Nina 542-9293 or 542-4558.

LOST - 1 light brown soft leather wallet with ID and money. I don't care about the money but I do want my ID back. Please call Robyn 544-4077. It found.

CALCULATOR - All models of quality Texas Instruments for sale. 5R-50% selling for a 10 per cent discount. Phone Duncan at 549-4422 between 5 and 7.

WANTED MALE STUDENT to share 2 bedroom furnished apt. close to campus. $55/month each. Call 546-7196 around 6pm.

FREE ROOM AND BOARD two minutes from campus in exchange for help looking after two children. Call 546-2016.

AMATEUR CAMERA BUFF wants to go pro. Needed one used reflex camera. If you're in the market for something new, I'll buy your old one. Ask for Paul, 542-9121.

LOST - One Levi denim hat in pub in December-much sentimental value. Call Fred Balfour 549-5468.

EXORBITANT RATES GETTING YOU DOWN? Move up to 15 floors of co-ed, co-op living - one room available only. Elrond College - 9-5 call 544-1842.

WANTED URGENT - 1 Wanderlust ticket. Please phone 549-1449.

FEMALE TO SHARE APARTMENT, 2 bedroom, fully furnished, dirt cheap. Phone Jay at 546-9797.

LOST - One pair gold framed glasses at end of exams. If found please James at 544-7744 after 9pm.

RIDE NEEDED from campus along Hwy 15 near army hospital every day around 5:30pm. Anyone doing my way. I'll help pay gas each week. Call Joe 546-1394.

NEEDED FOR NEXT YEAR - four girls need a four bedroom apartment or house preferably within reasonable walking distance to campus. Call us at 544-8161.

HADONNA AT, VERMONT - Home of the skiers. Queen's Ski Club offers you its biggest weekend of the year, Jan 31 to Feb 2. Towels, transportation and luxury accommodations included for only $45. Tickets are on sale this Wednesday Jan 15 ONLY, 7pm in the John Orr Room.

ONE ROOM AVAILABLE in four bedroom house, 150 per month plus utilities, phone 542-1859.

ALL GRADS WHO HAVE had their Tricolor portrait taken should check their listing for spelling errors, etc. The list will be available in the John Orr Room all day Monday through Wednesday of next week.

STEREO FOR SALE: Elgin AM-FM Multiplex stereo with a track tape deck. $200 or reasonable offer. Phone 544-5380.

ROOM AVAILABLE in furnished 3 bedroom house, to share with 2 other girls. Cheap, cozy and close to campus. 544-9490.

Gael Group No 9 The moment you've all been waiting for has arrived at last! Paul and Ellen and Kathy will be in the pub all night on Tues. Jan 14 so drop in sometime and buy us a beer. No excesses, please. We know you don't have too much work to do.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY CATHY Take care of that knee Janey, Pat, Sue, Dorothy.

LOST: on Tuesday, a gold coloured

Caravelle watch with a broken black strap. If found, please phone 544-8421.

SIX BEDROOM HOUSE FOR RENT. Aberdeen 21, 2 1/2 bathrooms, garage. Female students only. Occupancy Feb. 1. Call Brian 544-1729.

IN THE TRADITION OF DILDO'S BIRTHDAY PARTY E.Z. Productions is presenting "Extravaganza" at the Ottawa House, Friday January the seventeenth commencing on the eighth hour pm. Come to our grand Party dedicated to raising the spirits of all returning students who have been shocked by the termination of holidays. You are requested to bring your own spirits (beer or booze). Be easy.

IOA KNAPPERS: My dearest, kindest, most consoling, and thoughtful friends, I gotta dough now you show I want my baby back intact, Her Mother DON'T WORRY IAK. I didn't forget you PAAAAAH.

TO RENT: For month of January to May 1, room very close to campus (behind phys ed centre). Apply in person after 5pm to 81 Clergy St. W. No Pets.

LOST HISTORY 121 note book in the arena lobby. The name on the cover is Craig Chaplin. If found please return to Harvey Jewett 185 University Ave.

HEADPHONES FOR SALE Good quality, stereo, unwanted, unused Christmas gift. Worth approx $50. sell for $20. Also Dual 1215 turntable with new M71EO cartridge needle, disc cover, base $140. 542-8911.

CLIP THIS AD AND KEEP IT HANDY or note the number: 542-8911 for the next time you want efficient, friendly, moving, reasonable rates, no waiting. Student operated service.

REWARD $50 to the person who finds us an acceptable 4 man house close to campus. Call 544-7037 or 549-0484 after 5.

FIVE PIECE SEMI-Professional rock band looking for lead vocalist. Weekend work only. Only males or females need apply. Phone 544-4133 and ask for Paul or Scott.

NEED PASSPORT OR JOB APPLICATION PHOTOGRAPHS? At Photo Image we have a student rate of $4.00 for six prints. For an appointment call us at 546-7770 or drop by our studio at 33 Brock St. PHOTO IMAGE 33 LTD. specialized in 24 hour black and white Elmerich slide film processing. For further information, call 546-7770 or visit our studio at 33 Brock St.

PLANNING A SPRING WEDDING? Photo Image offers complete photographic coverage, tailored to your individual needs, from as little as $90. For further information call us at 546-7770 or visit our studio at 33 Brock St. and see the photographs we have done for others.

LOST - One pair of sheepskin gloves, last Tuesday in John Watson Hall. Reward for return. Phone 544-9133 between 6-7pm.

SOCK HOP SMOKER Come and dance your feet off Monday January 13 at 8:00pm in Clark Hall. Everybody is welcome.

Hi Wolf How the F-- are you? You and other relevant people are invited to tag with the gang at 237 Johnson, Saturday Jan. 11. Mother Ceffon is expecting everyone who did not get to go to Wanderlust.

DANCE TON - Friday Jan. 17 8pm. prizes given contests-admission $2.50+shr. in pledges. Pledge cards available. John Orr Room. Meal lines. Bring pledge card, form, student's card.

LOST ENGINEER'S JACKET (Science '77) end of exams in vicinity of Elrond. If found please call Michael David 549-5762.

ANNOUNCING: Party 1514 Elrond. Ove & Michael invite Fearsome foursome, Laura, and rest of gang, girls at 301 and 76, the unknown telephone singers, all other friends, and especially Susan.

WANTED: 3 or 4 bedroom house for next school year, close to campus. Urgently needed, because we couldn't stand another year in residence 355 reward. Phone 544-7757 or 544-7734.

THANKX to the Western Ottawa Zoo, who will read this sooner or later, for the super New Year's Eve Party! Enjoyed the company, the unicycle, the Scotch, and especially Andy!! sk.

ANY STUDENT who has any artwork he would like to see in Tricolor '75 we welcome the chance to use it. This includes sculpture, drawings or anything else that can be reproduced in black and white.

BITTER GROUNDS PRESENTS Columbia and Smile Recording Artist Tony Kosinec, Sat. Jan. 11, Clark Hall. Tickets available 'till 4:30 Friday in the John Orr Room and at the door.

DOROTHY LEWANSKI ..... WE NEED YOU're phone number. The Journal.

AVAILABLE DOWNTOWN - 2 bedroom apt. 1st May 5125. Call 546-2380.

A.M.: The answer to your request is Jesus is real.

PERSON TO SHARE apt desired. Three bedroom place in new building. Clean, close to campus. Your share of rent $65/month. Call Mike or Chris 542-4567.

CROSS COUNTRY SKI BOOTS FOR SALE - Head boots, made in Norway, will fit all 3 point bindings. Excellent condition, good light touring shoe (size 8) $24 or best offer. Dave 549-0277 after 10:00.

LAZARUS LONG and MICHAEL VALENTINE SMITH send their regards and want to know where all you Science Fiction fans have been hiding. Come to a meeting in Lower Vic common room Sat. Jan. 11, 10am.

FOR SALE: 5 string Pan Banjo one month old. Was $130, will sell for $85.

JUST SITTING AROUND in residence or your house this weekend? Enjoy the fun and entertainment at the Ukrainian Night, Fri. Jan. 10 and the "Snowshoe Shuttle" dance, Sat. Jan. 11. Two Winter Frolic events.

NEEDED: a 3 or 4 bedroom house or apartment for 1975-76. Preferably within walking distance of the university. Call Sue at 544-8275 or Janice and Anne at 544-0746.

Gael Group 75, all year asses and to the reunion in Campus Pub Wednesday January 15 - any time after 8:00pm. NO ands, its - plenty of butts though. John.

LOST: A brown mohair hat, in the student union, outside the A.M.S. office. I'd greatly appreciate its return. Reward offered. Please Call Sharon at 544-9726. Thank you.

50 BUCKS FREE ... for anyone who can find me a 1 or 2 bedroom apt. Sept. (preferably) or June, reasonably close to campus.

Phone Jack, 544-7562 after 6pm.

BITTER GROUNDS PRESENTS an evening of folk with Tony Kosinec. Tony is a Columbia and Smile Recording Artist. Tickets available 'till Friday at 4:30 in the John Orr Room and at the Door.

LOST: RED triangular Mount Trambant Pin on January 4th between William St. and Chown on University Ave. Sentimental value. Reward. Call Deb at 544-8140.

TO THE PERSON(S) who permanently borrowed our knapsacks on Monday night in Ban Righ. Kindly return our books to the A.M.S. office and no questions will be asked.

BEER! The Sixty Annual Engineering Society Beer Brewing Contest will be held on Friday Feb. 7 in Wallace Hall. If you make your own beer, enter it - and see how you compare. More details next week.

WANTED: ONE GIRL to complete a person co-op house. Easy going and fairly quiet. 549-4758.

TOM'S SHOE REPAIR
shoe service
186 Wellington St.
546-5193

Something to "cheers" about:

Now the glorious beer of Copenhagen is brewed right here in Canada. It comes to you fresh from the brewery. So it tastes even better than ever.

And Carlsberg is sold at regular prices. So let's hear it, Carlsberg lovers. "One, two, three... Cheers!"

B-Ball City Wide

As well as a victorious Women's Intercollegiate Basketball team, Queen's has a first place team playing in the Kingston City League. Of the 14 people on the team roster, most played on the championship team of the city league during the past summer.

Familiar to Queen's and presently on the city league courts are Eva Stewart who played Queen's Intercollegiate B-Ball last year and was top scorer on the city summer league; Sue

Bolton who played four years of basketball at University of Waterloo and is Director of Recreation and Men's Intramural, and Maureen Bouris, Queen's own successful basketball coach. The additional 11 players are Kingstonian superstars that have played basketball in the Kingston area and high schools.

Competing at Frontenac High School, this is the first time a Queen's team has been entered into the city league. Defeat over the 6 teams of their division 14 teams in the other) include 37-31 against the O.B.G.'s (Ontario Business Girls); 81-18 over the Kingston "Troublemakers" and also a victory over the "Instructors", which are a team composed of women high school teachers in Kingston.

With regards to next year, if any female is interested in joining this team to enjoy some excellent basketball competition (non-intercollegiate) there will be a meeting in the fall. Just contact one of the previously mentioned people or the sports editor of this paper and they will be glad to put you on the right track.

The girls also welcome support - so some Sunday night when you're wondering what to do - come out to the Frontenac Gym and cheer them on!

From the sports desk...

Home Action

Basketball - (M) St. Lawrence at Queen's Fri. 8:15 Bartlett

(W.I.) Trent at Queen's Sat. 2:30 Ross

Ice Hockey - (M) Toronto at Queen's Fri. 8pm

Volleyball - (W.I.) Trent at Queen's Sat. 12:00 Ross

Wrestling - (M) Queen's Annual Open Sat. 11:00am Bartlett

Away Action

Alpine Skiing - (W&M) McMaster Invitational Fri.

Curling - (M) Brock Invitational Fri. & Sat.

Fencing - (M) York Invitational

Gymnastics - (W) Western Invitational (Queen's, Mac, Mich, Western)

Swimming - (M) Dual at Ottawa Sat.

Volleyball - (M&W) Ottawa Invitational Sat.

WIC-ly News

by Marg Bartlett

Journal Sports Writer

The new year is here and with it come a lot of new and exciting activities. Upcoming events include:

SNOWSHOEING - tentatively scheduled for Monday January 13th and 20th, 7-9 pm (these dates might be changed depending on the amount of snow on the ground. Sign up in the Phys. Ed. Centre or call on the convener, Christa Craig at 549-4649.

Swim Nite - Wednesday, January 15, 8:30-10pm. Sign up at the Phys. Ed. Locker Room or call Anne Galbraith at 546-7553.

Cross Country Skiing - Clinic to be held Thursday January 16, 7-9pm, with the actual ski outing to be held Thursday Jan. 23 7-9pm. For more information phone Barb McDermott at 542-8080.

Jogathon - begins Thursday Jan. 16 and continues until Wed. Feb. 5. For more information, call Anne Brown at 549-2614.

Volleyball - is scheduled for each Tuesday and Thursday night from 7:15-9:15pm in Bews gym. The first games will be played Tuesday Jan. 21 and the deadline for entries is Fri. Jan. 17. Submit your name to your Athletic Stick or place your name in the green Wic box just inside the Women's Locker room. For more information call Kathy Jackson at 542-4363.

Curling - will take place on 3 consecutive Sundays starting Sun. Jan. 19 from 12-2pm. Sign up as soon as possible in the Phys. Ed. Centre. The Convener is Kathy Keely at 544-0785.

Squash - A clinic will be held Wed. Jan. 22 from 7:30-9:30pm. The tournament will follow on Monday Jan. 22 and Tuesdays Jan. 28 and Feb. 4. Sign-up sheets will soon be posted in the Locker room. The convener is Willa Henry who can be reached at 549-5174.

If you don't play a sport, get WIC it!

Province of Saskatchewan Career Opportunities

Department of Finance Policy Analysis and Program Evaluation

The Budget Bureau (Treasury Board Secretariat) of the Province of Saskatchewan is interested in interviewing graduates in all disciplines who might be seeking a career in Public Administration.

The Positions.

The program evaluation analyst is involved in the review of public expenditure programs on behalf of the financial committee of the Cabinet - the Treasury Board.

The work focuses on the evaluation of new and existing programs which are proposed and undertaken by a variety of departments and agencies. The evaluation concerns the current policy thrusts of the government, the costs and benefits of programs, the social and political aspects of programs, and the relative merits of proposals in the context of competing claims or resources.

These positions will be of interest to those who are interested in questions of public policy and the solution of problems facing government.

Salary:

$10,000 - $26,000 depending on qualifications and experience.

The Applicants:

Applications are invited from graduates (Baccalaureate honours Masters or Doctoral) from all disciplines although some preference is given to those graduating in Commerce, Administration, Economics or Political Science. Preference should not deter top graduates from other disciplines from applying. Baccalaureate graduates must have an average of at least 70%.

Please forward applications or resumes as quickly as possible to:

Mr. O. M. Wallace, Director
Budget Bureau (Dept. of Finance)
Legislative Building
Regina, Saskatchewan S4S 0B3
Closing date: January 16, 1975

Things to say when offered a Golden:

- Don't mind if I do.
- Sure. Why not?
- Well, if you insist.
- As long as you're having one.
- Yes, please.
- Get me a cold one.
- No, thanks. I've got one.
- I thought you'd never ask.

Molson Golden
A good smooth ale
Do you know what you're missing?

Allmark - player, coach, manager, trainer

by Peter Watts
Journal Sports Writer

It's very easy to spend three or four years at this university and not realize that people are its most important component. We can walk right by people every day, not knowing anything at all about them, and not realizing that they may be very special or important for one reason or another. One of the most interesting personalities that I have met in some time is Al Allmark, trainer of this year's edition of the ice hockey Gaels. He is an interesting sort to talk to because he has been associated with sports for most of his life and has met and worked with some of the great sports people in this country. Al's association with sports goes back a long way (he was born in 1906); as a player, coach, manager, and trainer. He started out as a trainer at the age of 16, working with a hockey team in the Toronto Industrial League. Some of those hockey players weren't bad either; two of the team's stars went on to become NHL greats: Joe Primeau and Lionel Conacher. From there, Al worked for the old New York Americans of the NHL and moved on to the Philadelphia Quakers of the NHL for the 1930 season. The Quakers were that era's version of the Kansas City Scouts; they finished that year with 4 wins and 4 ties in 48 games. They lasted for just a single season and Al wound up back in Toronto, arriving just in time for the Depression. He managed to get a job with the Toronto Fire Department and moved up to be a captain before retiring in 1970 with 40 years service. And he continued his interest in sports throughout the period. In 1931, Al went to work for Toronto Balmy Beach, a senior football team in the old Ontario Rugby Football Union. His association with that outfit lasted until 1947. He also worked as an assistant trainer for the Toronto Maple Leafs of the NHL during the war. Then, from 1948-53, Al worked for the Argos as an assistant trainer. He left there in 1954 to go in with his friend, Ted Reeve, in setting up the minor hockey association that bears Reeve's name. His association with that group lasted until 1967 when Al finally retired. After his retirement from the Toronto Fire Department in 1970, Al and his wife moved to Kingston. Early this fall he was asked to take on the job of helping train the hockey Gaels. In talking to Al, I discovered that this was not his first association with Queen's; it turns out that he worked here as an assistant trainer to the legendary Senator

Powell back in the late 1920's. Ted Reeve was the football coach then. Anyway, Al agreed to take on the job and for both him and the Gaels it has been a very pleasant job. For the players there is a great deal of security knowing that there is someone around to look after the aches and bruises. And Al has had a good workout so far this year! In addition his never ending supply of stories and anecdotes have kept alive more than one party in the last few months. And for Al, it has allowed him to keep up his interest in sports, renew old friendships (road trips give him a chance to see people in other cities whom he has not seen in a while), and make new friends as well. His association with the hockey Gaels will be a pleasant memory in the years ahead.

Wrestling-Queen's Open

On Saturday January 11, beginning at 11:00 in Bartlett gym Queen's will host its sixth annual wrestling tournament. The calibre of competition will be extremely high. Favoured to win the team title will be the Western Mustangs, whose team includes Egon Beiler, 142 lbs and Elvin Martin 190 lbs both of whom won gold medals at the 1974 British Commonwealth Games. Their squad is rounded off by Steve Martin 158 lbs who won a bronze medal at the 1974 Commonwealth Games and by Clive Llewellyn 150 lbs and Guy Zink 118 lbs. Both these wrestlers have won three Canadian University Championships.

Also competing for team honours will be the Guelph Gryphons who are defending O.U.A.A. champions. Their team will be lead by Richard Deschateles 177 lbs and Bobby Price 118 lbs. The Waterloo Warriors are another team to watch since they are perennial runners-up at the O.U.A.A. Championships and always have a strong team.

Other Ontario Universities which are competing include Ryerson, Toronto, McMaster, Ottawa, R.M.C. and York. There will also be three teams from New York: St. Lawrence, St. John Fisher and Potsdam.

The Queen's team will be lead by Danny Plumpton 118 lbs, who earlier this season won the Ryerson Invitational, and by returning veterans Del Delmonte 177 lbs, Ron Dudson 142 lbs, Randy White 177 lbs, Ed David 190 lbs and Al Stewart 134 lbs. Rookies to watch will be Hugh Johnston 167 lbs and Don Johnston 158 lbs.

Friday Film Series 75.

Presented by G.S.S. Film Club
tonight

Fellini's 8 1/2

Series ticket and single admission available
at the door

8:00 P.M. Everyone Welcome

Tonight's films at Dunning, not Ellis Hall.

Alfie Sez -

it's election time!
Nominations are now being accepted for the following positions of the Queen's

University Bands Executive, 1975-76.

- |                        |                         |
|------------------------|-------------------------|
| 1. Bands Manager       | 6. Brass Band Director  |
| 2. Ass't Bands Manager | 7. Pipe Major           |
| 3. Quartermaster       | 8. Head Highland Dancer |
| 4. Publicity Director  | 9. Head Majorette       |
| 5. Concessions Manager | 10. Head Cheerleader    |

Nominations should be submitted in writing to:

Rick Rogozinski, Bands Manager

c/o AMS Office

by 5:00 P.M. Wed. January 15, 1975.

Elections will be held at the annual banquet, at the Frontenac Hotel, Friday, Jan. 17 1975, at 8:00 P.M.

Interfaculty Hockey Tournament

The Commerce Cup will be the objective of eight inter-faculty hockey teams who will open competition for it today. Games have been going on all morning in the Hartly Arena and will continue this afternoon and on Saturday and Sunday. Teams involved are PHE, Meds, Commerce, Engineering, Law, Arts, Grads, and Education. Each team must have participating members from each Bews unit in the faculty. By the time you read this, the first round will have been completed. Round 2 starts at 11:30 and action continues during the afternoon. On Saturday there are 3 games starting at 6:30 p.m. The championship game will be played on Sunday at 5:30 p.m.

All games will be played according to the same rules and time system used in Bews games. The exception will be the championship final on Sunday which will be a full game - 3 20-minute periods, stop time.

It will be a very competitive tournament and there is no charge for admission, so drop up and cheer for your favourite team.

(Sports Ed. Note:)

Special Front Page Sports Collage was designed and assembled by Peter Case and John Wilmer. Photographic contributions courtesy of Chris Wood, John Bottomley, Lyn Atwood, and Peter Case. John Bottomley is responsible for the cartoon.

Grant Hall
CONCERT OF CANADIAN OPERA COMPANY
SUNDAY 26 JAN. 2:30 p.m.
-operatic favourites
from past productions
-39 musicians
Tickets at Box Office
in Agnes Etherington Art Centre
547-6194
A Division of Concerts
Event

WE APOLOGIZE . . .
to those we disappointed
Wednesday due to the weather cancellation of the Winter Frolic Sleigh ride.
-Winter Frolic Committee

Bite the one you love
STEAK & STUFF
LICENCED DINING ROOM 1399 Princess (near the station)
AUNT LUCY'S RESTAURANTS

THE OLD WAY IS STILL THE BEST

For years, the traditional way to seal your engagement was with a diamond ring... a tradition that is more relevant today than ever before. We'll help you seal your truth with a dazzler that suits your budget. A brilliant promise of tomorrow.

KINNEAR D'ESTERRE
JEWELLERS
168 PRINCESS STREET
KINGSTON, ONTARIO

A GIANT LEAP FOR ALL MANKIND:
MCDONALD'S
LARGE ORDER OF FRENCH FRIES.

277 Bath Rd.

Crystal Restaurant
TASTY FOODS
COURTEOUS SERVICE
"THE PLACE WHERE ALL GOOD PEOPLE MEET & EAT"
STEAKS - CHOPS - CHICKEN - SEAFOOD
SPAGHETTI - SHISH-KEBAB
SUVLAKI - STROGANOFF
OPEN 7 DAYS
Try our Delicious
Shish Kebab
240 PRINCESS
KGTV 542-8515

WINTER FROLIC '75
VITAYEMO II
UKRAINIAN NIGHT
Friday Jan. 10 - Grant Hall
8:00 pm Free Food
admission: $1.50 at the door
beer: 50¢

Wat's
hapnin'?

Pubs and Theatres

401 Inn - Dick Mahony Quartet
Frontenac-Finnegan's - Bob Short
Frontenac-Muldoon's - The Cobblers Awt
Commodore - Ned Midwin
Townhouse - Nelson

Hyland - Law and Disorder
Odeon - Man With the Golden Gun
Capitol 1 - Godfather II
Capitol 2 - Towering Inferno

Tuesday, January 14

12:30 p.m. - Brown Bag Lunch will be held at Agnes Etherington Art Centre. Kay Krizwiser, Art Critic for the Globe and Mail, will discuss the Kingston Artists exhibition. Bring your own sandwich; coffee will be provided.
3:00 p.m. - The Department of Political Studies' visiting speaker, Professor Guy Lord will speak on "Ideology and Political Activism in France" Room B294, Mackintosh-Cory Hall.
7:30 p.m. - Queen's Bridge Club meeting. Everyone welcome. (place?)
8:00 p.m. - Creation of The Landscape Garden: Free Public Illustrated lecture by Professor Burke (2nd of a series) will be held at Stirling D. Admission is free. Professor Burke has been Professor of Fine Art in the University of Melbourne since 1947.
9:00 p.m. - Department of Film Studies presents Dr. Stangelove, or How I Learned To Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb. Ellis Auditorium. Admission $1.00.

Wednesday, January 15

6:30 - 10:30 p.m. - Recreation Badminton every Wednesday and Thursday at West Campus.
7:00 p.m. - Free Espresso classes start in Room 202, Kingston Hall.
7:00 p.m. - Ski Tickets to Whiteface go on sale in the John Orr Room. $15 per person. One ticket per person.
7:30 p.m. - Biology Careers Planning Night I will be held in Earl Hall, Room 14. Representatives of Agriculture Canada, Environment Canada and National Research Council will be present to discuss opportunities for graduates of biology in their fields. Coffee and donuts served afterwards.
7:30 p.m. - Queen's Debating Union meeting in the upper conference room in the International Centre. All welcome - always interested in newcomers whether experienced or not.
8:00 p.m. - Electrical Engineering Smoker - All are invited to attend our third gala event of the year, in Clark Hall.
Time ??? - Dr. Samuel Escobar will be speaking on "Jesus and Liberation," in Stirling Hall "D". All are welcome. Sponsored by Queen's Christian Fellowship.
8:00 p.m. - Introductory lectures on Transcendental Meditation are given every Wednesday in Stirling Hall Room 412. Admission is free.
8:00 p.m. - The Sri Chinmoy meditation group meets every Wednesday at 138 King St. E., Apt. 2. Admission is free and any interested people should call 544-1361.
9:00 - 10:00 p.m. - The Swimming pool will be closed due to other University requirements.

Thursday, January 16

5:15 - 6:30 p.m. - Ban High Fireside will feature the Vaghy String Quartet. Coffee and dessert will be served. Everyone is welcome.

7:00 p.m. and 9:00 p.m. - Five Easy Pieces (directed by Bob Rafelson with Jack Nicholson and Karen Black). Plus: part 2 of The Indians Are Coming with Buffalo Bill Cody. Dunning Hall Auditorium. Admission $1.00 per person.
7:30 p.m. - Agnes Etherington Art Centre presents Prints and People Series VI: Natalie Luckyj - The History of Prints Part 2, Goya to the Twentieth Century.

Upcoming Events

Saturday, January 18 - Bitter Grounds Coffee House and Good Times Emporium presents Raffi in Clark Hall. Tickets will be available Thursday and Friday in the John Orr Room 10:30 - 4:30. Admission is $1.75 and the doors open around 8:00.
Saturday, January 18 - Ballroom Dance Club resumes in the Dance Studio. New members welcome.

Saturday, January 18 - Paul Gaulin Mime Company - "Mime an exciting art that requires the talents of both dancer and actor but with an even more precise control of the body comes alive with Paul Gaulin. This young Canadian artist with years of training with Marceau and Decroux is now carving a major career in North America." The performance begins at 8:30 p.m. in the Grand Theatre, 218 Princess Street. For additional information phone the Division of Concerts Box Office at 547-6194. Tickets are $2.50, $3.50 and $4.50 general and $1.50, $2.50 and $3.50 for students.

Sunday, January 19 - Organ Recital: David Cameron, Director of Music at Chalmers United Church. The organ in solo and ensemble. Queen's organ with prepared tape. Brass Quintet and singers Sylvia Culham and Randall Marsh. In Grant Hall and admission is free.

Sunday, January 19 - Department of Drama will present its first show of 1975, Euripides' Medea, directed by Bernard Burkom. The show will run through the week of January 20 - 25 at 8:30 p.m. in Convocation Hall, Old Arts Building (Theology Hall). Tickets and information are available at the Drama Desk 547-6291.

Wednesday, January 22 - Queen's University German Department will present König von Bayern - In diesem farbigen Film entwirft der französische Regisseur Frederic Rossif zusammen mit dem Kameramann Jean Bourgeois ein Gemälde von legendenhafter Phantasie, in dessen Mittelpunkt als imaginärer Hauptdarsteller Bayerns Markenkönig Ludwig II steht. In Room 128 Jeffery Hall at 8:00 p.m. and admission is free.

Thursday, January 23 - Domino Theatre presents Lady Audley's Secret directed by Rod Robertson. This play is a mid-Victorian melodrama of passion, mystery, fire and music. Tickets are $2.50 and ($1.75 for students on Thursday) at Mahonds and at the door. Half-price tickets available at the door for members of Domino on opening nights of all plays. Family membership - $3 - may be obtained on all playing nights. The play will also play on the 24 and 25 of January and the two following week-ends. Time 8:30.
Friday, January 31 - Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party of Ontario will be on the Queen's Campus in Room 517 (Fifth floor lounge) John Watson Hall at 11:00 a.m. to talk with students.

Snow Removal

From December 1st to March 31st inclusive, vehicles parked on surface lots between midnight and 8:00 a.m. will be towed away if they impede snow removal operations.

AMEY'S
TAXI
546-1111

THE BOOK BIN
225 Princess
(next to the Capital Theatre)

WE BUY and SELL
Paperbacks, Textbooks
and Antiquarian Books
USED RECORDS
Sold on Consignment

ART REPRODUCTIONS
POSTERS

Please Bring US Your Books and Records

VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S
VAN'S GIFTS and BOOKS
282 Princess St.
KINGSTON 542-6676

"A" Class repairs to all brand name electric shavers. We carry the major parts in stock. When not sure which part bring your electric razor in to Van's for service. January special 2 head deluxe Philips Shaver Regular price: $25.00 at Van's $21.88 Remington Heavy duty quality shaver Regular $25.00 at Van's $21.88 deluxe line only!

STDR Mon.-Fri. 9:30 a.m. - 10 p.m.
HDURS Saturday 9:30 a.m. - 9 p.m.
OPEN Sunday 12:00 noon - 9 p.m.

A SNEAK PREVIEW
OF OUR PROGRAM

What is our program? It's our Sales & Marketing Management Program and it gives you inside information on what it takes to become a successful insurance sales manager. It covers subjects such as selling techniques, law and taxation in relation to insurance and estate planning, to name a few.

The "why" of our program is simple; we need young graduates with management potential. Your own reasons may have to do with ambition and high income potential.

Why not fill in the coupon below and we'll let you look at the whole program.

The Canada Life Assurance Company

The Canada Life Assurance Company
330 University Avenue, Toronto Ontario M5G 1R8

Send me more information about your Sales & Marketing Management Program.

NAME _____

ADDRESS _____

COURSE _____
(include resume if available)

Attempt made to censure Wolman and Druxerman

Continued from Page 1

as "terribly irresponsible." In an attempt to clarify matters, Wolman rebutted the attack, asserting that he had been "quoted in part and not in whole". He felt the government's supplementary grants to Universities, just getting started "encouraged deficit budgeting and wasn't fair to all universities".

Wolman supported the tuition freeze removal and explained that when facing financial bankruptcy, a university "should be allowed to raise its tuition without repercussion of a corresponding BIU decrease". He added that none of his opinions during the meeting with the assistant minister were personal and had been derived from assessing the student body over the last 10 months. In short, Wolman concluded "he was plugging for the student body."

Reactions from Outer Council members were mixed. ASUS representative John Wilson said that the "censure was out of order" as "these people represent us". Graduate student Dana Johnson felt that "Tony's view of reality is not the view of reality of this council". Peter Druxerman, Vice-president (operations) replied to all the controversy, stating that "the point everyone is missing is that the accusations are taken out of context, when something hasn't been expressed by Outer Council, the executive should have the prerogative to state whatever they feel is in the best interest of Queen's."

The motion was defeated soundly.

A - MESS

by Sarah Yarnell

A capsulized account of the sincerity, power-play and blunder which characterize AMS meetings - those smoky sessions which drag long into the night every second Thursday. An opportunity to check on your elected representatives - to determine whether they are acting for or against your interests. Feedback on A-MESS will be appreciated by the Journal, though perhaps not by Council members. Title for the column - A-MESS - courtesy of AMS Vice-President Peter Druxerman. (Is he trying to tell us something?)

ATTEMPTS BY students to understand and to solve Queen's tight financial situation have begun. In November, an Outer Council committee was struck to study the squeeze. On Thursday, A.S.U.S. rep John Wilson moved that the External Affairs Commissioner direct a letter to James Aud, Minister of Colleges and Universities, expressing Outer Council's concern over the university's present financial situation. Several Council members rambled on, displaying their familiarity with the "crunch", until Al Hueha (the commissioner assigned to write the letter) checked the politicians' speeches when he commented dryly: "Statistics I can get. I want the input on justification for university existence." Council members discovered that while it is easy to list the damages done by insufficient funds, it is more vital to prove to the public that higher education deserves their dollars.

OUTER COUNCIL reps will now have to take part in at least one tour through residences during their terms of office. This proposal was passed by a very slim margin; people not favoring the idea felt it was unfair to force the tours (their purpose to introduce new students to AMS politics) down the throats of a "captive audience".

FIERY ACCUSATIONS flew at the meeting when A.S.U.S. President Sue Harper tried to have AMS President Tony Wolman and Vice-President Peter Druxerman censured for making "irresponsible and unrepresentative" remarks on behalf of Queen's when they met with members of the Ministry of Colleges and Universities last week. (SEE STORY PAGE ONE)

HAS ANYONE seen former Queen's Excursion Club manager Don McVie? According to the AMS, the cheque he wrote to the AMS bounced. Druxerman hasn't seen the man in weeks; he pleaded that if someone spots McVie, he should bring him into the AMS office. AMS Vice-President John Gray recommended that direct action be taken against McVie.

PUB PRICES should be kept low, urged Druxerman. Because of the rise in price of both liquor and beer, however, it will not be possible for the Pub to make a great deal of profit. As long as the Pub manages to show a slight profit, its prices should stay where they are now, he stressed to Council members, adding that the prices could be raised if they felt it necessary.

STARVATION DIET day is still planned for Jan. 30, Gray told Council. The exact details of the plan still have to be settled between Gray and Director of residences Gerald McGrath, but it looks now that rice and warm milk will be served for lunch in all campus food outlets with the exception of Leonard cafeteria. Proceeds (all the money that Beaver would have spent on a regular lunch) will go directly to the starving in Bangladesh.

Staffing Bank founded

In hopes of serving both the students and the organizers of events on campus the Campus Activities Commission is in the process of setting up a staffing bank.

A file will be kept with names, special interests, and special abilities of those people who are interested in becoming involved. This bank will serve as a resource for those organizing events on campus when they require more people to help out.

The degree of involvement in events is up to each individual. Interest has already been shown on the part of organizers of several events on campus and job lists are presently being set up.

Financial situation

Continued from Page 1

staff. This would increase class sizes, hurting the quality of education, and have, in Watts' words, "a pretty drastic effect on the morale of both faculty and supporting staff".

The fourth possibility would be to run a deficit - undesirable, but the path which Queen's has decided to follow. A $1.1 million deficit is forecast for 1975-6. Watts stressed that this policy cannot be adopted as a permanent solution to the university's financial problems.

The other panel members echoed the sentiments expressed by Watts. Staff association head Mrs. Jill Harris outlined the important work performed by the support staff which allows professors to attend to their academic duties. She pointed out that some staff members are paid less for doing exactly the same work as some employees of Kingston hospitals, and stated that this inequity must be eliminated. Queen's cannot afford to make cutbacks in the area of support staff, she insisted.

Dr. Chapter, president of the Faculty Association, stated that the possible consequences of the university's financial problems have made faculty members "very concerned, sad, and alarmed". The association has given unequivocal support of the principal in his efforts to make the public aware of the serious situation Queen's faces, he said.

At the
Grand Theatre
PAUL GAULIN MIME CO.
SAT. 18 JAN. 8.30 p.m.

Tickets: $4.50, $3.50, $2.50 general
$3.50, $2.50, $1.50 discount
Box Office in
Agnes Etherington Art Centre
547-6194 and the
Grand Theatre 546-1756

A Division of
Concerts Event

Do You Know
Any Outstanding Teachers???

1975 OCUFA Teaching Awards

Each year the Ontario Confederation of University Faculty Associations identifies a number of outstanding teachers in the universities of Ontario. These teachers are presented with citations at the OCUFA spring conference. If you have had such an outstanding teacher recently, we would like to hear about it! Please note the following guidelines for submission of nominations.

CATEGORIES

Teaching, in the context of the OCUFA Awards, need not be narrowly defined. Proficiency in teaching may extend beyond the lecture hall, the seminar room, the laboratory or the faculty member's office. Activities including a number of those sometimes classified as administrative services - e.g. course design, curriculum development, organization of co-operative teaching programs, thesis supervision - and other significant forms of leadership are often important contributions to the instructional process. Those who excel in any of these are eligible for the OCUFA Teaching Awards.

NOMINATIONS

Are invited from individuals, informal groups of faculty or students, or both, and such organizations as local faculty associations, faculty or college councils, university committees concerned with teaching and learning, local student councils, departments, alumni, etc.

CRITERIA

No standard form of submission is required, but sponsors should provide as much evidence in support of the nomination as will make it clear that outstanding work deserving of recognition has been done.

PROCEDURE

Letters of nomination, with supporting documentation, should be sent to

Dr. S.F. Gallagher
Chairman
OCUFA Committee on Teaching Awards
40 Sussex Avenue
Toronto M5S 1J7

The deadline for receipt of nominations is March 15, 1975.

QUEEN'S SKI CLUB

SKI MADONNA

MOUNTAIN

ONLY

$45

Tickets go on sale TOMORROW
(Wednesday) in the John Orr Room

INCLUDES:
TRANSPORTATION,
LUXURY ACCOMMODATION

unclassifieds

More on Page 12

RECYCLE YOUR BOOKS OR RECORDS. We sell records on consignment, that is, you get $1.50 for every one of your records that sells. Needless to say, good rock, blues, jazz, folk records sell-out quickly. We also have umpteen books for sale. Book Bin, 225 Princess St., 548-4871.

ONE BEDROOM Apartment for rent, available Feb. 1, one block from campus, call 544-9723.

$30 reward for your 2 or 3 bedroom apartment for Sept. (preference) or after April. Phone Harold 544-7105 or Chris 544-7050.

$15 REWARD PER BEDROOM for a five or more bedroom house. If you have one available for next year, please call Louise (544-7865) or Connie (544-8532).

WANTED: House with 5 or more bedrooms. If yours is available and you need $75 NOW, phone Dick 544-7840 or Richard 544-7862.

FOR SALE: 1 pair girls skates, good condition, 1 double bed mattress. Call 542-2488. They are very reasonable prices!

TWO GIRLS INTERESTED IN LIVING CO-ED next year would appreciate contact from other persons with similar intent. Please Call 548-3205.

MAYBE THIS IS A BIT LATE! But, Dear Santa! For Xmas we would like a 4 man house. If you have one for Sept. '75 please phone Anne: 544-8476 or Kathy 544-8396.

SOON 50 DECODER, almost new, asking $100. Call 542-2297.

2-BEDROOM APARTMENT to sublet May through August, new building, balcony, furnished. Phone 549-5246.

$50 REWARD for a house large enough for five or six people. Phone 544-7048 and ask for Olive or Mark, or 544-7094 and ask for Geoff.

FOR SALE: Arts '76 leather jacket, good condition. Price is reasonable and negotiable. Phone 542-8643.

WANTED: A regular ride to London or surrounding area, or a ride on any weekend. Will be happy to help with driving, gas, etc. Call Steve at 549-5027.

COMMERCE '77 girls blazer for sale, size 14, $20, or best offer. Call 544-8874.

SLUM HOUSING got you down? Dump your 4 or 5 bedroom slum on us. Wanted for 75-76. If interested call 544-7446, 544-7441, 544-7440.

York University
Master of Fine Arts Program

Applications are invited to the Master of Fine Arts Program in Dance, Film, Theatre and Visual Arts for the academic year beginning September, 1975.

*Subject to Provincial approval.

For further information and brochure write to Graduate Admissions Officer
Faculty of Graduate Studies
York University

4700 Keele Street
Downsview, Ontario
or call (416) 667-2426

Application deadline is April 1, 1975.

SPECTRUM

The University Lecture Series

Jan. - Feb. 11

COMING SOON

AMATEUR CAMERA BUFF wants to go pro. Needed one used reflex camera. If you're in the market for something new, I'll buy your old one. Ask for Paul, 542-9121.

STEREO FOR SALE. Eisin AM-FM Multiplex stereo with 8 track tape deck. $300 or reasonable offer. Phone 544-5380.

REWARD! For information concerning house capable of accommodating 5 persons for 75-76. Phone 548-7439.

LARGE 4 ROOMER apt., furnished. Sleeps and Refrigerator. Two men. To let immediately.

Please disregard all other notices: If you have a 4, 5, or six room apartment to get off your hands, the ONLY numbers to phone are 544-6056 or 544-7739. A Healthy reward promised.

OUTING CLUB: First nine winter camping trip is being planned for Jan. 25-28th. If interested, come to meeting Wednesday nite, 7:30 pm in Jeffery Hall, Room 101.

FOUND - AT Wanderslust (Brockington): 1 Pierced earring. May be picked up at Brockington desk.

LOST: One pair of brown eyeglasses last Wed. or Thurs. on campus or vicinity of Earl and Clergy. If found, please phone 546-4662.

Murphy's Sea Food Restaurant

Lobster
Shrimp
Oysters
Clam
Chowder
Fish and Chips

70 Brock St.
548-7753

1/2 PRICE . . . . .

and much less, on: Suits,
sweaters, slacks, shirts, ties, and socks.

ABRAMSKY'S

259 Princess St.

546-5555

SINCE 1891 - THERE'S A REASON FOR THAT

Things to say when offered a Golden:

- Don't mind if I do.
- Sure. Why not?
- Well, if you insist.
- As long as you're having one.
- Yes, please.
- Get me a cold one.
- No, thanks. I've got one.
- I thought you'd never ask.

Molson Golden
A good smooth ale
Do you know what you're missing?

Negotiations for Bus-It start up again - Gray

by Paul Bennett

The question of Bus-It's survival in the coming years is still with us, and John Gray, AMS Vice President, University Affairs, is trying to resolve the issue through early negotiations with the Kingston Public Utilities Commission.

Whether or not these negotiations are accepted depends on the results of a referendum to be held in February. In these negotiations the AMS hopes to extend the terms of the contract from 30 to 38 weeks at a rate which will give the PUC only a minimal profit in the scheme. Gray emphasizes that the negotiations are being conducted virtually independent of the University administration. (In the past the AMS received their information second hand from the PUC through the university administration.)

Most people probably remember the difficulties the AMS encountered over the summer and fall in trying to negotiate a favorable contract with the Kingston PUC. The problem arose when a communications breakdown between outgoing AMS Vice President Trotter and his successor John Gray resulted in no one approaching the PUC until too late. As a result the PUC informed the AMS that they wanted $7 per student for the present year in order to continue Bus-It. This represented a jump from $45,000 to $63,000 in total, which the AMS considered excessive. In the end the AMS successfully pressed for a $6 per student settlement. (Of this, $3.60 comes from student fees and the remaining $2.40 from the University.) When Bus-It first began three years ago the PUC was asking the arbitrary sum of $5 per student. ($3 came from student fees and $2 from the University.)

This year's demand by the PUC was based on a survey of student usage taken last year, probably during peak time, according to Gray. The AMS on the other hand, took a separate survey at less peak time and found, naturally, that there were fewer student users.

The AMS has declined to conduct a survey of the number of BUS-It users this year because of the expense of such an undertaking. Gray is confident that a survey taken by the PUC in December is a more accurate record than the last of the number of student users.

Gray believes students have been receptive to Bus-It. The system is particularly valuable to West Campus students during the winter months. If the program continues to be a success it may even be possible to include the faculty in future plans, remarked Gray. This would in many cases eliminate the need for bringing cars and as a result cut down on the need for parking space.

In February a referendum will be held concerning the future of Bus-It, the first in 3 years. By this stage the contracts with the PUC will have been set up. If students indicate a favourable response to Bus-It in the referendum the contract with the PUC will be signed and we will be riding KATY for another year.

Chartered buses

Alternative to Bus-It may be a student club

by Paul Bennett

If the AMS is unable to come to terms with the PUC over the price of Bus-It for next year, or the students vote "no" in the February referendum, a new comprehensive bus system available to Queen's students will have to be devised, according to AMS Vice President John Gray.

It is hoped that the new routes would serve the vast majority of students with little inconvenience. The city has not definitely agreed to such an independent system; however they have suggested the area be explored. Professional drivers would be hired to drive chartered buses. The insurance coverage would be similar to that which we are now enjoying under the Queen's bus services to Ottawa and Toronto. The new system could be run as a club for users only. If run as a club, money would again be allotted from each student and it is hoped that the cost per student would undercut what we are now paying the PUC. If run for users only, students would be required to purchase a season's pass. Because the scheme would not be subsidized by the student body as a whole, the cost of the pass would be considerable, perhaps $25.

Gray himself points out that he has never used Bus-It in its two years, but has been willing to subsidize the scheme for the student body as a whole.

Ban Righ Fireside
THURS. JAN. 16 6 P.M.
THE
Vaghy String Quartet
PLAYING
No. 1 OPUS 50
SERGE PROKOFIEFF

TOM'S SHOE REPAIR
shoe service
186 Wellington St.
546-5193

Any day of the week
Dixie Lee Fried Chicken
& Seafood
Good Food only a Phone Call Away!
Delivery (in Kingston) - 50c charge
Orders $8.00 or Over FREE DELIVERY
Min. Order - $2.00
700 Princess St. 542-4255
WE DELIVER

Graduating this year?
Job hunting?

Canada Manpower Job Information Centre
Now has an office located in Queen's Career Planning and Placement Centre

121 Union St.

547-2992

A Canada manpower representative is available Mon, Wed, and Fri, 9 - 12 noon.
This is a joint project of Canada Manpower and Career, Planning and Placement to provide additional placement and career, counselling services to Queen's students seeking permanent or summer employment

Hours of Career Planning and Placement
Office: 8 am - 6 pm Mon. to Fri.

Logs, roots and trig are your business.

Meet your partner.

$149.<sup>95</sup>DARWAY OFFICE
EQUIPMENT1662 PRINCESS
549-2323

Unicom Systems
Rockwell International add your resources grow your business

A.M.S. PAGE

THE TRICOLOR AWARD

Is the highest non-academic award that can be received by a student at Queen's

It is presented to those individuals who have rendered valuable service in non-athletic, extra-curricular activities.

Names of nominees may be submitted in secret, on a standard form available in the
A.M.S. Office.

All nominations must be received by Feb.
1 1975 in the A.M.S. Office. AMS Constitution
BY-LAW NO. 15

Last Lecture Series

The A.M.S. Education Commission, in conjunction with the I.R.C., is sponsoring "The Last Lecture Series" once again this year. This highly successful series, which was instituted last year,
will run Wednesday nights commencing Jan. 22 at 7.15 p.m. in McNeil House Common Room.

Below is a list of speakers for the series.

- |         |                   |   |
|---------|-------------------|---|
| Jon. 22 | Dr. R. H. Clork   | Dept. of Chemical Engineering               |
| Jon. 29 | Dr. E. Andrews    | Formerly of Theology Dept.                  |
| Feb. 5  | Mr. J. Courtright | Vice-Principal, Information and Development |
| Feb. 12 | Dr. A. M. Taylor  | Political Studies and Geography Depts.      |
| Feb. 26 | Mr. J. Whyte      | Faculty of Law                              |
| Mar. 5  | Dr. T.C. Willett  | Sociology Dept.                             |

Everyone Welcome!
Refreshments Served

Something New

THE A.M.S. IS SETTING UP A STAFFING BANK AND We Need You

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION PLEASE READ
THE ARTICLE IN TODAY'S JOURNAL AND CALL

BETH at 546-2574

JULIA at 544-7207

OR LEAVE YOUR NAME AT THE A.M.S. OFFICE
IN THE BASEMENT OF THE UNION.

Dr. Norman Bethune

Hour-long Film Biography of this Great

Canadian Figure in Revolutionary Spain and China.

7.30 p.m. Fri. Jan 17

Stirling "A"

Sponsored by the S.C.M. and A.M.S.
Education Commission

Alternative Information

On social and political concerns:-

Native Rights; Women's groups;
Socialist Alternatives; China;
Environment, ETC.

S.C.M. Book /Magazine Room

Weekday Afternoons
(Students' Union Basement by University Ave. Entrance)

DEBATING

The Queen's Debating Union will be representing Queen's at the R.M.C. Intercollegiate Tournament on Jan. 17 and 18. Ten Universities are participating. Anyone interested in seeing any debates should contact

Andrew Douglas (542-6227),
George Gregory (548-8878),
or Sheila Patterson (548-3929).

Queens Journal

Vol. 102 No. 29
Tues., Jan. 14, 1975
Queen's University
at Kingston, Ont.

Editor in chief - Suzanne Sherkin
Business Manager - Terry Collins
Managing Editor - Dan McClelland
News Editor - Sarah Yarnell
Arts Editors - Kerry White, Peter Haworth

Features Editors - Wendy Rey
noid, Laurie Gibson
Photo Editor - Jon Willmer
Walt's Haplin - Rosemary Knight,
Jennifer Hastings
Sports Editors - Lyn Atwood,
Suzanne Jackson
The Rest - Janice Wager, John
Belfort, Les Gaukrodger, Meg
Belfort, Anne Robertson, Fred.

Larry Woods, Peter Case, Keith
Burns, Chris Woods, Woody, Paul
Luke, Alan Mann, LARRY ROSS-
IGNOL, Tony Davis, Dave, Doug Bennell, who wears white socks, dropped in, but as usual did no work
Backpage - Val Cotton
Classifieds - Trish Brooks

Comment

There once was a girl named Sherk,
At Banff, her leg gave a jerk.
She said with a grin,
As she looked at her shin,
Now the stall will do all her work!!!
A Speedy recovery babe hurry back

Founded in 1873 and published on Tuesdays and Fridays during the academic year by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University, Incorporated, Kingston, Ontario. Founding member of Canadian University Press. Editorial
opinions expressed are those of the editor and not necessarily those of the AMS nor the University. Telephone (416)
547-2606. Printed by gnomes at the St. Lawrence Printing Co. Ltd., Prescott, Ontario. Lithographed in USA on Canadian newsprint.

letters - letters

IWY not a joke: salute in poor taste

Dear Editor,

We were sorry to learn of your lack of intellectual understanding of the meaning of International Women's Year.

Women's Law Caucus

Dear Editor,

International Women's Year is meant to be a serious effort, and "jokes" such as the Male Caucus' salute in Tuesday's Journal merely belittle this.

Jenny Lowell

Dear Editor,

I would like to thank the Men's Caucus for their tribute to International Women's Year but I must express my disgust at their style of tribute. My immediate reaction was one of anger and insult and also some disbelief. I had so far been pleasantly surprised at the media's serious treatment of IWY which perhaps reflects the seriousness of the body
(the United Nations) which so designated the year. Then I happened on the Journal and I realized how little progress has been made in changing the attitudes towards women and men.

During the past few years of the Women's movement a great deal of time and energy has been put into trying to create some understanding between men and women of the roles we are forced to play and how unnecessary and degrading it all is. Although I have noticed great changes in my personal relationships, we who do want change and freedom for men and women are still ridiculed and therefore easily dismissed. It is a simple thing to run a sarcastic photo spread but it answers none of the issues that have been raised again and again for decades, even centuries.

I recognize and respect your right to disagree with any or all of the goals of the women's movement but I can never accept a dismissal of them. Is respect for half of the human race so much to ask for or is it just that we're so out of practice in giving that respect that we no longer know how?

I have many times laughed at the women's movement and my involvement in that movement but that laughter somehow dies when I see that there are victims of that laughter and that nothing is changing for them. Women are seldom taken seriously and it does become tiring after awhile and very frustrating to those of us who feel we have a right and a responsibility to work with men side by side and equally to make a better world for everyone. It is your very type of "tribute" which so often discourages us from this goal and encourages us to work together and apart from men.

I would never ask any man to stop looking at women nor a woman to stop looking at men and appreciating the physical beauty of that person, nor would I want to. It is the style in which it is done that is offensive to me and the fact that it is used to represent IWY, a year which is set aside to seriously look at the inequalities between men and women and hopefully get rid of as many as possible. This will not be accomplished if the world treats it with the same levity as the Journal seems to.

I ask for respect for women as human beings and appreciation of their worth as part of humanity and a commitment to work together towards equality or at least talk about why we can't.

Alice Mills

Treebeard out on a limb

Dear Editor,

I feel very sorry for our new Treebeard and all the others in this world who see creeping conspiracy at every turn in their lives. The mysterious "they" who are responsible for the majority of trees on the Queen's Campus is Dutch Elm Disease. The only nefarious aspect of the virus is that the effects are gradual and the degreening of the campus may be hidden under a blanket of Queen's apathy. The elms cannot be saved - they are dead.

I find it rather hasty of the new Treebeard to complain of the forty years it takes a tree to mature. We are planting the largest trees we can afford and all the complaints in the world will not speed up the growing process.
However, Treebeard can put his mind at rest about the planners who will let the developers rape the new green areas. I have met the enemy and he is us. Queen's plans and develops itself with students participating in more than a token way. I am happy to report that rape is not imminent.

Project Green offers a real chance for improvement. Not only does the money from the buttons and posters go into trees, but the advertising of the cause will show the wealthier members of the Queen's family that we really care. So make a revolutionary show of concern and get together with your class or floor to raise a few dollars.

Dave Gordon, Chairman Project Green

Unwanted hair
removed from any part
of the body

All work done by skilled well-trained graduate electrologists. Eyebrow arching done with guaranteed artistic perfection.

Graduate Electrolysis Salon
183 Princess St.
544-6905

Rock around the Clock
at the 12 Hour
DANCE MARATHON
starting
Friday, Jan 17, 8:00 PM
Featuring: 'Often' from Collins Bay
'Easy Company',
Queen's Jazz Ensemble,
and more.
Games - over $400 in prizes
- jiving contests.

Admission: At least 25' 1/2 hour in pledges. Pledge cards available in John Orr Room and Meal lines.
Sponsored by Arts '77. Proceeds go to Camp Outlook.

AMS
EDUCATION COMMISSION
PRESENTS

A PUBLIC LECTURE AND PANEL DISCUSSION BY

PROF. W. W. SMALL

BORN AND TRAVELLED IN CHINA
LECTURER IN CHINESE STUDIES AT YORK U.
PRESIDENT OF CANADIAN CHINA SOCIETY

TOPIC: "THE SPIRIT OF CHINA TODAY"

TUESDAY, JANUARY 21st
8.00 P.M.

DUNNING AUDITORIUM

FREE ADMISSION
coffee and donuts

lecture to be followed by small discussion groups

peter case

peter case

Old man still fresh

by Paul Luke

Sunday night's John Lee Hooker's concert was one of those rare evenings when both acts were not only excellent individually but were mutually complimentary, each highlighting the talents of the other. The rock group Phoenix which opened the show boasted a polished, impeccably rendered set of songs which ideally accentuated the simple, deeply felt blues of John Lee Hooker.

Phoenix, a Toronto band which has been together for only four months, no doubt spent much of that time in working out the dazzling arrangements which they unveiled for the first time before the Queen's audience. The band's protean instrumental capabilities were harnessed to a variety of completely mastered styles, from the jazz inflections of "You Don't Mean a Thing" to the pounding calypso rhythms of "Flying to Rio." The group's ensemble playing was consistently smooth and well-oiled and effortlessly stretched to accommodate the driving solos of flautist-saxophonist Bob Reed. The easy exuberance of the "Mr. Skin-1985" medley belied a taut discipline and precision, and although the group relied heavily on renditions of others' material their interpretations were well-considered and always thoroughly impressive.

John Lee Hooker works in an idiom which even in the hands of the earnest and the well-meaning frequently becomes monotonous and unbearably banal. There was no trace of this in Hooker's set. After years of playing the blues Hooker has reduced his art to a few bare essentials and prefers to leave the frills to the younger men. This is not to suggest that there is anything of the antiquated about Hooker's music. Anyone who harboured any suspicions concerning the vitality of the gaunt, grey-haired man who sat stooped over his guitar had only to listen to the difference between his lead guitarist's glib and perfunctory reading of Hendrix's "Red House" and his own sinister, incantatory urgings on such material as "Boom, Boom, Boom."

It was strangely satisfying to hear again those old grief-ridden themes of unfaithful women and errant, desperate men. Hooker's rich, leathery voice seemed to wrench the last drop of bitterness out of every groaned syllable. He sounded more convincing and at home with the traditional blues three chord, three line stanza format than he did with some of the newer material such as the rather thin sounding "Make it Funky." It was temporarily disappointing to see him forsake his guitar with his utterly distinctive trademark signature on that instrument, but he soon redeemed himself with a frantic "Cookin' with the Hook."

John Lee Hooker did a memorable thing on Sunday night when he combined an often-mixed blues authenticity with a delightful vitality. It was the measure of the man that he sounded every bit as fresh as did the opening band, Phoenix, who were years younger than he, and in his hands, the blues remains the vibrant form that it has always been. John Lee Hooker's music was not a resurrection, of that form, but its re-affirmation.

peter case

peter case

Deepest passions in Euripides' Medea

Queen's Department of Drama opens the New Year with Euripides' Medea, the second major production of the 1974-75 season. Directed by Bud Burkom, Medea is a mythical story of sexual antagonism. It depicts the destruction which ensues when men force women to take extreme action in order to assert their deepest desires. Medea strips away all superficial social graces to present a gripping vision of human betrayal and revenge.

To match the economy of Euripides' writing and the extremity of the situation, this production attempts to explore the extremes of sound and movement on stage. David Keane of the Music Department has created an electrifying aural assault of music. Sandra Aiken of the School of Physical Health and Education performs several dances, and has choreographed the chorus's songs. Don McKay, a final year Drama student, has designed a striking raked set which is lit with laser-like intensity to focus all attention on the startling moving world of Medea. The production tries to combine acting, dance, and song in a way which captures the mythical plane on which the battle of the sexes is fought. Adapted by Burkom and Ross Kilpatrick of the Classics Department, Medea is a concise and fast moving evening of theatre which packs many ideas and emotions, many sights and sounds into a short period of time. The production opens on Sunday, 19 January at 3:00 p.m. in Convocation Hall with a special tribute performance for Herman Voaden. It continues Monday through Saturday, 20 January through 25th at 8:30 p.m. Sunday through Thursday, tickets cost $2.00 for students and $2.00 for non-students; on Friday and

alan mann

David Lepp and Shelley Cavalier in Medea

Engaging novel: intricate detail

The Kidnapping of the President
Charles Templeton
McClelland & Stewart, 1974
by Tony Davis

In the midst of a number of fanciful Canadian novels, it is refreshing to find an author like Templeton who can write an engaging novel with a sense of realism and adventure. (as opposed to Richard Rohmer's Exoneration, in which the Canadian armed forces, with some international aid, defeat an invading energy-waving, yes; but highly unrealistic).

The Kidnapping of the President, as the title illustrates, deals with the intrigues of two Latin American revolutionaries who kidnap the President, in New York, and hold him for a fifty million dollar ransom in gold with a safe conduct guaranteed.

or kidnapping. The Vice-President is shown to be man with a "conflict of interests", and his dealings with a wealthy businessman, with underworld bring to mind a modern American parallel. He is just one of many characters whom Templeton so well defines.

The Kidnapping of the President is more than simple adventure and intrigue. The intricate details of the kidnapping itself present a credible picture. (Included with the book is a two-page map which outlines the number of ways to cope with the danger of the president's situation, the dealings of the FBI and the CIA, the "buck-passing" and political and constitutional issues - are all brought out.

References to Watergate appear, and the "El Nino

The president is trapped in an armoured car fitted with a nitro charge. The ransom is to be paid within a specified time, and then the kidnappers, safely out of the country with the gold, would reveal how to free the president without endangering his life.

Throughout the novel, Templeton brings in a wide range of characters, and details the problems they have to face in dealing with the kidnapping. The security agents, whose duty it is to protect the President, find it to be an impossibility. The politicians' willingness to meet the electorate constantly puts them in danger of assassination Verde" (the green hand), which the kidnappers represent, alludes to the Tupamaro guerrillas of Uruguay.

The book is well-written and fast-paced. Templeton's meticulous description somewhat detracts from the text, but doesn't defeat the author's attempt to keep the tension mounting. In all, The Kidnapping of the President is worth reading, and to top it off, it is Canadian.

Many thanks to Smith-Hill bookstore 193 Princess St., for their generous donation of this book for review.

Wilderness Encounter

the Outlook experience

by Robb Fleming

If you have ever wandered through the Student Union either exploring or just trying to find your way out, you may have stumbled upon the Camp Outlook office. The location of the office is certainly remote. Situated on the first floor of the Union, it is only reached either by ascending the steps of the University Ave. entrance to the building, or by following the basement corridor past the Coffee Shop to its western end, and then climbing the stairs to the first floor. The problem is that the general university community's awareness of the camp is as obscure as the office is hard to find.

Basically, Outlook is a wilderness canoe-tripping camp, operated by students of Queen's University on a voluntary basis, which takes both underprivileged and delinquent teenagers from the Kingston community on six, ten and fifteen day canoe trips. The trips are taken in such areas as Algonquin Park. Outlook deals solely with canoe tripping. It is not a residential camp and does not have a large base camp.

The history of Outlook stretches back six years to 1969 and the dream of Ron Kimberly, a Queen's Meds student. Kimberly conceived of the idea while working for the Bethesda Psychiatric Hospital in Vineland, Ontario during the summer of 1969. The plan grew out of a canoeing experience with a youth from the hospital which convinced Kimberly of the value of canoe tripping for adolescents, particularly the youthful offender. Upon finding that such a tripping programme did not exist, he was determined to set one up himself. Through tremendous dedication and an unbelievable expenditure of time and effort, the camp was established.

Outlook's first year of operation (1970) consisted of eight weeks of tripping for boys and two weeks for girls. Money for food, equipment and transportation was raised by donations, while the staff worked on a voluntary basis.

Outlook received an Opportunities for Youth grant for the summer of 1971, enabling the counsellors to be paid. However the staff donated their entire salaries to the camp and this has formed the basis of capital for Outlook's loan fund which allows counsellors to take out an interest-free loan, should working for Outlook on a voluntary basis put them in a tight financial position. That summer the camp expanded to one hundred and fifty-six campers (ninety-six boys and sixty girls) supervised by twenty-five counsellors. In October, 1971, Outlook Services was formed to buy and care for all the food, equipment and transportation. In November of that year, a former counsellor formed a chapter in Hamilton, calling it Outlook Hamilton. The camp has been maintained at this level for the past three years, with both Outlook Kingston and Outlook Hamilton each taking approximately one hundred and fifty campers during the summer.

But why all the fuss about a canoeing camp? After all, there are many of them throughout Ontario. Outlook is not a typical canoe-tripping camp. Its goals and philosophies are quite different. It is seen as having a potentially great "therapeutic" effect, particularly on those inclined towards juvenile delinquency.

"Of probably most importance, is the fact that to every trip there is a destination, and a tremendous sense of accomplishment when that goal is finally reached. Sore muscles and perhaps a little sunburn will leave no doubts in the camper's mind that he/she has contributed to that achievement. They will take pride in their participation.

Success experiences are tremendously important to everyone. Many juvenile or potential juvenile delinquents have never had success experiences because of a number of reasons (ie. broken homes, bad school experiences). This can lead to insecurity, bitterness and resentment as well as a rejection of the morals of society. The Outlook canoe trip is designed as a success experience. It is not however, a success easily attained. One has to strain and, at times, suffer to reach the destination, but this is what makes it worthwhile and gives one that great sense of accomplishment at the end. It will also be an exciting adventure and one which the youths' more successful peers probably haven't accomplished.

The wilderness presents a foreign challenge from which the conquering of fear and the physical environment will build a sense of self-confidence. There will also be the binding together of people that one finds whenever a small group "meets a challenge of survival". Because of the staff's knowledge of how to conquer the environment, they will automatically be respected and a hierarchy of authority will naturally be established. Canoe tripping leaves far behind those things in society which make life so uncomfortable for the juvenile delinquent, because it places him in a new and different environment.

The development of relationships between staff and campers in many cases is the most valuable aspect of the programme. Having one staff member and two campers in each canoe assumes that each camper will receive a large amount of individual attention. Each canoe unit will have to co-operate with itself and with the rest of the tripping party in order to portage, to paddle and to set up camp effectively.

The element of co-operation cannot be overstressed. Many of the social problems of today's teenagers stem from an inability to get along with others. Co-operation and a sense of community are essential in today's urban environment those who find these skills hard to are quickly become alienated. The camp is very successful in instilling a spirit of cooperation. On the trip, it is critical, and this no way to avoid it. You cannot run away hide because of the wilderness surrogates of which you are totally unfamiliar. You can't give up or quit because there is enough food for the ten days. If you don't reach your destination within this time, you will have to do without, and perhaps even starve. Thus co-operation is essential for survival.

The great outdoors

These then are some of the goals and philosophies of Outlook. But it must be understood that they are not the only objectives. Introducing these urban youths to the wilderness and teaching them a respect for and admiration of nature is also important. The opportunity of being relatively independent, of being able to get away from the city and its confines looked forward to by both campers and staff. You can shout, laugh or sing to your heart's content without having someone to tell you "shut up". At the same time one is surrounded by, at times, awe-inspiring stillness, peace, tranquility. In the evenings one has time to slow down, to think and to reflect.

The previously mentioned goals and philosophies, although well thought-out, practical and beneficial to those tripping, do not, by themselves, attract either staff or campers. They must be combined with another element, fun. Put three university students and six teenagers together, give them all the necessary equipment for a canoe trip and put them out in the wilderness for ten days, and just see if they don't have a good time. The philosophy is very meaningful. What attracts campers back year after year is the companionship, good times and experiences of the previous year and a love for both the outdoors and canoe-tripping. It is essential that the counsellors enjoy the trip themselves. If the staff are enjoying the trip, the campers will more easily adapt to their new surroundings and companions, the trip will be loose and a feeling of comradeship will be established.

Bob Marrien

Despite Outlook's large summer programme and the value of the canoe-tripping experience, there has always been the nagging suspicion that one ten-day canoe trip a year is not enough. Can you place a person in a new environment for ten days and, having returned him to his old surroundings for the rest of the year, expect him to retain the benefits derived from the ten-day experience?

Surely the Outlook experience would be more beneficial if contact with the campers was kept up for more than the trip's duration. In order to accomplish this, Outlook has a "follow-up" programme, run throughout the school year. It is designed to help maintain contact with the campers and to strengthen the friendships made during the summer. Outdoor activities are stressed and include, when in season, winter camping, hiking, rock climbing, weekend canoeing and fishing. Although these activities are confined to weekends because of school, they perform a very valuable and essential function in the overall programme.

Although Outlook does specialize in dealing with youths who have delinquency problems, a large number of non-delinquents are taken as well. There are a number of non-delinquent boys and girls taken simply because they would not ordinarily have such an opportunity. Those with other social disadvantages (eg. broken homes) are also taken.

Camp Outlook is staffed and run entirely on a volunteer basis by Queen's students. The role of the university student in this type of work is very important. Students are at the perfect age for reaching adolescents while at the same time creating among them a respect for the basic adult standards. Being only a few years older, the staff are able to understand and communicate with the campers. Friendships with campers are easy to develop and can be sustained throughout one's stay in Kingston.

There obviously are certain disadvantages involved in running a camp on a non-profit and volunteer basis. Because the staff are not paid, many people cannot afford to work for the camp for a summer. One of the ways the camp attempts to avoid the problem, is to allow people to work as staff for one or two trips only. Another solution is the loan fund, interest free, the amount depending

Bob Marrien

unclassifieds

More on Page 4

WANTED Three lovely ladies are looking for a three bedroom apartment or house close to campus for next June or preferably, Sept. Call 544-8442 or 544-8463.

Queen's Bands Banquet! Tickets available Tuesday 1141st and Wed. 1151st from 1:30 to 3:30 pm in the John Orr room. If you can't pick up your tickets call Marg at 542-7207.

Psst! Heard about that bash on DIVISION ST? It'll be at 77, 79, and 85 and possibly more. See You. (PS: It's on Friday Jan. 17th, I think)

WANTED Two rooms in a student type house could be a very rewarding experience for you. Yessir! Phone 544-0716.

If you missed Dido's Birthday Party, you won't want to miss "Extravaganza" Join us for the Three D's (drinking, dancing and Debauchery) at the OTTAWA HOUSE Friday at 8:00, PLEASE COME

Two GIRLS are looking for an apartment, preferably furnished for Sept. 1975. If you know of a place for us to live, please phone 544-8515 or 544-8346.

ARTS FESTIVAL '75: Drama productions, skills, workshops, very much wanted for Festival. All ideas considered. Call Margi 544-7043.

CALCULATORS: for sale. All models of quality Texas Instruments. SR-50's selling at a 10 per cent discount. Get yours while they last. Phone Duncan at 549-4623 between 5 and 7.

ARTS FESTIVAL '75 - for contributions still accepted for film contest - thirty minutes maximum - win $50, $25, or $10 - new films only. Contact Beth 549-1053.

SUMMER SUBLET - rooms available for summer in a very nice large house, 1 1/2 blocks from campus. For information call 549-4623.

PLEASE DISREGARD ALL OTHER NOTICES: If you have a 4.5, or 6 room apartment to get off your hands, the ONLY numbers to phone are 549-8956 or 544-7739. A healthy reward promised.

Well, the ELECTRICAL BOYS are at it again: All are welcome to the third ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING SMOKER, this WEDNESDAY JAN. 15 at CLARK HALL, 8PM.

Rumour has it that the ELECTRICAL ENGINEERS have the best SMOKERS on campus. Everyone is invited to come and see why. This WEDNESDAY JAN. 15 at CLARK HALL, 8PM.

A good time is guaranteed for all who attend the next great ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING SMOKER, this WEDNESDAY JAN. 15 at CLARK HALL, 8PM.

WANTED: HOME FOR LARGE, FRIENDLY, housebroken white cat. Will throw in case of food and 25 lbs. of killy litter. Call 546-9456 after 6PM.

SUMMER SUBLET - Rooms available for summer in a very nice large house, 1 1/2 blocks from campus. For information call 549-4623.

PLEASE DISREGARD ALL OTHER NOTICES: If you have a 4.5, or 6 room apartment to get off your hands, the ONLY numbers to phone are 549-8956 or 544-7739. A healthy reward promised.

Well, the ELECTRICAL BOYS are at it again: All are welcome to the third ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING SMOKER, this WEDNESDAY JAN. 15 at CLARK HALL, 8PM.

Rumour has it that the ELECTRICAL ENGINEERS have the best SMOKERS on campus. Everyone is invited to come and see why. This WEDNESDAY JAN. 15 at CLARK HALL, 8PM.

A good time is guaranteed for all who attend the next great ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING SMOKER, this WEDNESDAY JAN. 15 at CLARK HALL, 8PM.

A good time is guaranteed for all who attend the next great ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING SMOKER, this WEDNESDAY JAN. 15 at CLARK HALL, 8PM.

WINTER CONCERTS 75

AMS CONCERTS
PRESENTS
Moe Kaufman Quintet and David Bradstreet
January 28, 1975

2 shows
7.30 and 10.00
GRANT

AMS CONCERTS AND
MARTIN ONROT PRESENT
STRAWBS AND MAN

February 1, 1975
8.00 pm
ARENA

AMS CONCERTS AND CONCERT PRODUCTIONS
INTERNATIONAL PRESENT

SHA-NA-NA
February 7

Something to "cheers" about:

Now the glorious beer of Copenhagen is brewed right here in Canada. It comes to you fresh from the brewery. So it tastes even better than ever. And Carlsberg is sold at regular prices. So let's hear it, Carlsberg lovers. "One, two, three... Cheers!"

Beer and blarney at the Frontenac Hotel

by Kerry White

The Frontenac Hotel on Ontario Street is one of the oldest hotels in Ontario, and it has seen a lot of changes since the first section was built in 1811. When the second section was completed in 1840, the "Iron Hotel" was one of Kingston's finest hostels. Celebrations after the opening of the City Hall in 1844 were held there, and it maintained its reputation until well into the 1920's. But the newly opened LaSalle Hotel drew away a lot of the Frontenac's old clientele and its reputation began to slide, getting progressively worse until present owner Brendan McConnell bought the hotel in 1972. For a brief period during World War II the Frontenac was used by military personnel and their families, and the hotel enjoyed a brief glimpse of former glories, but for the better part of the last 50 years the Frontenac has been a good place to avoid unless you were fully prepared to defend your right to remain in the men's beverage room by throwing chairs and wielding a knife with the best of them.

The day is gone - Finnegan's and Muldoon's, the pubs at the Frontenac, are now among the most enjoyable places to spend an evening in Kingston. Owner

Brendan McConnell says he has known since he bought the building what he wanted to achieve, and despite innumerable prophecies of bankruptcy, he has succeeded. The reasons for his success are obvious - the almost invariably Irish music, the subdued lighting and the rustic decor combine to produce a relaxed party atmosphere, an atmosphere akin to that of pubs in the United Kingdom. McConnell's special love is history, and he has been very careful to regard the character of the old building in his redecorating. The brick and limestone walls of Muldoon's are part of the original building and the massive limestone fireplace in Finnegan's was constructed of limestone taken from the walls to form the low arches which give the larger pub so much of its charm. The changing of the Frontenac's image has been a tiring and expensive process, says McConnell. One of the earliest tasks was to clear out the low class of clientele. With the help of police, this was soon accomplished, but for a time the hotel's pub had no patrons at all. But folk singer Fred Werthman, playing in what is now Muldoon's, began to attract large numbers of young people. And when students returned in the fall of 1973, and Werthman moved to the newly renovated Finnegan's, the place was an instant success. Muldoon's opened in October of 1973, and enjoyed a similar success. The two pubs are very similar and yet very different in character. Both feature Irish music, but Finnegan's is small and quiet, a good spot for a quiet chat and good folk music; while Muldoon's is larger, with lively Irish bands who usually have everyone singing and clapping hands by mid-evening.

The most striking thing about the pubs at the Frontenac is their atmosphere, and the warmth found there now is even more remarkable when compared to the Frontenac Hotel of days gone by. The renovation of the Frontenac Hotel has not been an easy task for Brendan McConnell and his wife Ann - They had great trouble getting financial backing at first - even organizations set up to fund the restoration of old buildings, such as Heritage Canada, refused to back such a "risky" venture. It is to our great advantage that the McConnells succeeded in their venture. Finnegan's and Muldoon's offer a warm relaxing atmosphere and are among the best places in Kingston to spend an evening. McConnell says financial returns are sketchy as yet, but that he has gained great personal satisfaction from the project, a satisfaction which is evident when he sits in one of his pubs of an evening, watching "so many people having such a good time", and getting up on stage to sing an occasional song.

The Cobblers' Aul, currently playing at Muldoon's in the Frontenac Hotel

UNDER ATTACK PANELISTS WANTED

DO YOU WANT TO BE A PANELIST?

IF SO, SEE ROSS HAMILTON IN THE GREY HOUSE AT 51 QUEEN'S CRESENT BETWEEN 9 AM AND 6 PM.

FRIDAY JANUARY 17th through WEDNESDAY JANUARY 29th
OR LEAVE YOUR NAME AND TELEPHONE NUMBER AT THE STUDENT AFFAIRS OFFICE

SEN. KEITH DAVEY AND REV. KEN CAMPBELL
WILL BE AMONG THE GUESTS

OTHER SPEAKERS OF CONTROVERSY TO BE ANNOUNCED

THERE WILL BE TWO TAPINGS ON JAN. 29th AND 30th

IN GRANT HALL. DOORS WILL BE OPEN AT 6 P.M.

SHOW TIMES ARE AT 7 P.M. AND 8 P.M.

Skiers win at Can-Am

Honeyman takes Combined

by Margie Chaput
Journal Sports Writer

Queen's skiers did very well at the first annual CAN-AM Intercollegiate Ski Series held at Mont Ste. Anne, Quebec last weekend. Twelve universities competed representing schools in the eastern United States and Canada. The level of competition at the meet proved to be very high with six former national team members among the competitors.

This is the first international series of university races which consists of two meets, one hosted by a Canadian university and the other hosted by an American University. The University of Toronto conducted an extremely successful meet in spite of the poor snow conditions. The series will be completed in the States by the University of Connecticut at the end of the Canadian Universities' competitive season. The women's winning team consisted of Margie Chaput, Gini Honeyman, Robin McLeod, Mary Chaput and Stephanie Currie, coached by Judi Cotton. Gini Honeyman, a former member of Canada's National Team won the Giant Slalom, Slalom and Women's combined titles. Marie Chaput placed third in the Giant Slalom, and Robin McLeod placed tenth to give the Queen's team the Giant Slalom team championship well ahead of the other universities. This strong finish along with the girl's Slalom performance led to the capture of the CAN-AM meet championship. Second place went to McGill followed by the University of Massachusetts. In the men's competitions Queen's was represented by the Neilson brothers, Jamie and Ian, Peter Tolnai, Bill Hartman, Marc Knowles, Andy Scott, Bruce Cummings, and Rob Beattie. In the downhill, Ian was fourth, Jamie fifth, Peter fourteenth and Bruce twentieth for a second place team finish. After this strong start the men had a hard time in the Slalom and Giant Slalom putting the four required finishes together. Ian Neilson provided the best showing with a fourth in the Giant Slalom and a third in the Slalom, to give him a third place finish in the Men's combined. The Men's meet was won by the University of Massachusetts, followed by Carleton University and the University of Connecticut. The Canadian Universities enjoyed meeting and competing against the American Universities, as well as discussing their differences between their racing circuits and programs. Queen's looks forward to continued success in the forthcoming season and future CAN-AM competitions.

The members of winning Women's Ski team

Gals mauled by Bobcats

by Lyn Atwood
Journal Sports Writer

Queen's Basketball Gals succeeded in placing a very respectable second of six teams in an Invitational Tournament hosted by the University of Toronto this past weekend. Queen's met University of Waterloo in the opening game of the tournament and the competition turned out to be less than challenging for our Golden Gals. They defeated the Warriors 84-32. Coach Mo Bouris experimented with a new press which turned out to be extremely successful and resulted in numerous turnovers in Queen's favour. Laney Marshall was the top scorer in this game with 21 points. However everyone managed to get on the scoreboard. Jean Crichton is acting assistant stats keeper as she will not be playing for two weeks due to an injury obtained at Phys. Ed. ski school. Most rebounding was done by Patterson, Quigley and Smith. Patterson also scored 10 points and assisted on four more baskets.

The Gals engaged in battle with the York Raiders at 8:00 Friday night and came out on top with a score of 53-42. Top scorers were Marshall, Patterson, and Smith. Queen's got off to a slow start and bad shooting resulted in a tie at the end of the half. They came back into the game fired up and scored almost twice as many points as the York Raiders in the second half. Rebounding was much improved with Pat Smith proving to be an asset in this area.

These two wins moved Queen's into the "A" round playoffs where they met the Hamilton Mercury Bobcats (formerly the Hamilton Barletts Brackets—formerly the Hamilton Athenas) who have Canadian National centre Pat Tatham playing for them.

Queen's went into the game psyched up and gave the Hamilton club quite a run for its money in the first quarter. Then all of a sudden the Gals were stumped. While Queen's could not break the Hamilton defence to go in for a basket the Bobcats kept feeding Pat Tatham the ball and their score mounted to a ridiculous 40 points with Queen's scoring only 2 points in the second quarter to come out of the half at the losing end of a 40-13 score.

Coach Mo Bouris employed a new defensive strategy for the second half of the game and the Hamilton club beat Queen's by only 5 points in the second half. The final score of the game was 72-40 and both clubs fought for every point. It goes without saying that the match would have been quite a bit more even had not Pat Tatham been playing. The 6'2" centre is indeed an asset to any team and Queen's could not keep her down.

Barb Carey, 5'2" and the shortest player on the Gals squad proved to have the "Golden" touch and came up with 9 much needed points. Almost all players contributed to the scoreboard. Offensive rebounding was minimal. Queen's was greatly outclassed as far as the height

Pat Smith—Queen's 5'11" centre, jumping against Waterloo

Laney Marshall deking a Hamilton player in final game

Wrestling

... a Queen's tradition, coming back strong

by Alex Faseruk
Journal Sports Writer

The Queen's Wrestling Team seems to have greatly improved this year. On Saturday, Jan. 11 the Gals put in their best performance ever at the sixth annual Queen's Open Tournament. Usually the team will only have one or two wrestlers reach the finals. This year four wrestlers from Queen's competed in the final round of competition.

The team was led by Danny Plumptre 118 lbs. who finished second to Guy Zink of Western, winner of three Canadian Championships. Plumptre this season has already won the tough Ryerson Invitational Tournament on November 25 in Toronto. He will, however, only be at Queen's for a year as he is now attending MacArthur White at Windsor. Plumptre was a perennial runner-up in O.U.A.A. competition.

Three year Western veteran, Al Stewart, finished in third place at 134 lbs. Stewart won three matches on his way to the finals where he lost close matches to his competitors from St. Lawrence University and Western. In the heavyweight class Larry Duchene also earned a third place. At 142 lbs. Ron Dudson earned a fourth place. Dudson, a two year veteran, has been showing improvement all season. He has also placed in the Eastern Ontario Junior Championships and the Ryerson Invitational Tournament.

At 167 lbs. Hugh Johnston wrestled extremely well for Queen's by winning two matches. In his third match Johnston defeated Mike Dwyer who is a former captain of the Queen's team and was Queen's Outstanding Wrestler in 1974. At 177 lbs. Del Demonte, a four year veteran of the team won a match before his eventual elimination.

Don Johnston 158 lbs., a recent addition to the Queen's team wrestled well. Johnston is an experienced wrestler possessing many fine moves, but at present is not in condition.

Dominic Parcella 177 lbs. had a very tough draw in the tournament since he had to fight Ross Barrable from Guelph, the defending O.U.A.A. Champion. Similarly, Randy White 177 lbs. encountered stiff competition by meeting Al Kalbfleisch of Waterloo who finished second in the O.U.A.A. Championships. Ed David wrestled well, considering he competed at 220 lbs. instead of his usual 190 lbs.

Unfortunately the team has many injuries at present. They include Phil Morrison 158 lbs., who won the 1974 Ontario Novice Championship, Doug Swerback 150 lbs., Doug Sands 134 lbs. and Jim Holden 134 lbs. who was the 1972 Quebec Champion.

Western dominated the tournament by winning six of the twelve weight classes. Albert Vendetti, 134 lbs., was voted by the coaches as the tournament's outstanding wrestler. 1974 British Commonwealth Gold Medalist Elven Martin, from Western, easily won the 220 lbs. weight class. His only competition came from Paul Gibson of Guelph. Besides being an excellent wrestler, Gibson is also an excellent football player and was recently drafted by the Argonauts.

Western is favoured to win this year's O.U.A.A. Championship. The team is coached by Dr. Glynn Leyshon who is recognized as the leading coach in Canada having coached the coaches of six Canadian Universities including Dr. John Albinson of Queen's.

Other schools doing well were Guelph and St. Lawrence University as they both produced two individual champions.

The wrestling team will do better this year than it has done recently. In the last three O.U.A.A. Championships Queen's has finished in 8th or 10th place with one wrestler in the finals. This year the team has more depth and more competitors and should do extremely well. However, the team is still in need of competitors in 109 lbs, 220 lbs and Heavyweight classes so that Queen's will be able to field a full team at the O.U.A.A. Championships at McMaster on Feb. 14 and 15. Anyone with any wrestling experience in these weight classes are asked to join the team which practises 5:30-7:30 Monday to Friday in the Combatives Room of the Phys Ed. Centre.

Hugh Johnston fighting a St. Lawrence wrestler—Hugh won the match by a pin

Del Demonte of the Queen's wrestling team in tournament on weekend.

Upcoming events for the team include:
Jan. 18 R.M.C. Open
Jan. 25 Guelph Open
Jan. 26 Ontario Novice Championships
Feb. 8 St. Lawrence University Triangular Meet
Feb. 14 and 15 O.U.A.A. Championships at McMaster
Feb. 21, 22 Canadian University Championships.

Al Stewart finished third in his class (134 lb.)

Hockey Gals . . on the hustle

by Marg Bartlett
Journal Sports Writer
The Queen's Women's Hockey Team played 2 exciting exhibition matches this past Saturday at the Jock Hartley Arena. Although the team came out on the wrong end of the score both games, all spectators witnessed a hustling and continually improving Queen's team.

The opponents in the first game were the Montreal Cougars - a highly-touted Montreal based team whose claim to fame was that J.C. Tremblay's sister played for them. This minor detail merely served to get the Queen's gals really up for the game.

The tough looking Cougars put on a fine display of well-organized positional play combined with fast skating and sharp crisp passes. Queen's responded by skating with each Cougar and tightening up the defence. The Montreal Cougars won the game 5-4 and the shots on goal (38-13) in favour of Montreal proved that Queen's goalie, Wanda Gyde, came up with many amazing saves (some of them from point blank range).

Queen's opened the scoring with a goal by Jeanne Gerow (assisted by Sue Wright). Montreal evened the count by the end of the first period on a goal by Ruth Rayworth. The second period brought with it a lapse in defensive back-checking and Montreal produced three unanswered goals (Stains, Hatin, Belair). The score at the end of the second period stood as 4-1 for the "Bad Guys".

Coaches Annabelle Twiddy and Cookie Cartwright picked up their team with some wonderful words between periods and the result was a Queen's powerhouse that took to the ice for the third period. Throughout the period, Queen's remained on top of their opponents (not literally, though) with tough forechecking and backchecking. Centre Rhonda Leeman came up with 2 big goals to get the Gals back in contention. The first one was a power play goal (assisted by Jeanne Gerow and Les Ferrari) and the second was assisted by impressive Sue Wright. Centre Jeanne Gerow closed out the Queen's scoring with her second goal of the game assisted by Kathy Wood and Sandy Statten. The game was then tied at 4-4 and the question was going through the minds of all the keen spectators "Can the Gals pull off a big come-from-behind victory?" With 59 seconds left in the game, Sue Villeneuve scored for Montreal and spoiled the hard working Gals' bid for victory.

The game became quite evenly matched and Queen's gained a lot of experience in performing very confidently in all situations - including the potent power play and very successful penalty killing.

Red Barons red hot

A half-hour later, the Queen's team took to the ice again for a match with their cross-town rivals, the hot Kingston Red Barons. This game featured wide-open play with many end-to-end rushes. The final score was 11-7 for the Red Barons.

Goalie Wanda Gyde, former team member Deb McCaw and manager Elva Mills displayed their talents as coaches behind the bench for the game. Mary Booth, the Queen's goalie for this game, came up with some very good saves.

Queen's opened the scoring with a goal by Hot Dog Rhonda Leeman (assisted by Les "Fiat" Ferrari). C. Aylesworth tied the score several minutes later. Queen's ended the first period with a 2-1 lead on a goal off the stick of centreman Jeanne Gerow (assisted by Marg Bartlett and "Tina" Karen Scully).

Queen's continued to press for goals in the second period by outscoring the opponents 4-3. Jeanne Gerow started the scoring spree by potting her second goal (assisted by Marg Bartlett). Goal getters for the Red Barons were Kim Ferguson (2) and Annabelle Twiddy. Towards the end of the period, Queen's turned on the power and put in three more goals. Sue Wright and Rhonda Leeman assisted two goals by Les Ferrari. The final scoring play of the middle stanza was an unassisted goal by speedy Jan Atkinson (alias "Yuk").

The effects of the hard-fought match with the Montreal Cougars began to show and the Gals felt slightly weary and fatigued. Thus, the third period belonged to the Red Barons who outscored Queen's 7-1. Red Baron scorers were Kim Ferguson (3), C. Aylesworth (1), Sue Scherer (2) and Annabelle Twiddy (1). Queen's single tally was an unassisted goal produced by the fine stickhandling efforts of Sue Wright.

All the Queen's players - both defense and forwards - have contributed to the overall improvement in team play. Both games this weekend gave the Gals the game situation practice they needed before continuing their regular season play this coming weekend. The team is tied for first place and from the Gals' ever-improving positional play, chances are, the opponents this weekend (McMaster U.) will have a very difficult time containing them.

B-Ball Intermediates . . .

Chalk up another win

by Sara-Jane Ilpe
and Pat Sargeant
Journal Sports Writers

In Ross gym Saturday afternoon, the Intermediate Women's Basketball Team defeated Trent University in a one sided game which ended in a score of 56-24.

It looked like it was going to be a long afternoon, for early in the game Queen's tried to stymie Trent's offense resulting in a sudden standstill outside the Queen's key. After the first ten minutes a grand total of 6 points had been tallied, Queen's being on the short end of the score. The action couldn't help but pick up and those shots that always seemed to miss were suddenly going in. By the end of the first half Queen's was well out in front and stayed there until the final horn.

Crystal Grove, Pat Ransom and Kathy Shalay picked up 8 points each while Sue Sisson and Teen Schmidt added 6 each for Queen's.

In spite of the rather slow start the game was well played,

BOOKS

We are offering to supply any book printed in English, French, German and all Slavic languages since Gutenberg Bible, with 10-35 per cent discount for books in print. It does not matter if the book was published in Toronto or Moscow. If you supply us with author, title and year when published (if possible) we will supply. Delivery time for books in print from Canada and U.S.A. 2-16 weeks, from western Europe 8-24 weeks, from Czechoslovakia or Russia 6 to 18 months. Send order or write for more detailed information.

ACADEMIC BOOK CLUB, P.O. BOX 1507,
KINGSTON, ONTARIO K7L 5C7.

Canadian Opera Company
presents

La Boheme
in English
with orchestra

Tuesday, January 28
8 pm

Grand Theatre

Tickets: $5.75, $4.75

Limited number of student tickets at $3.50

Tickets at Box office

sponsored by Canadian Federation of University Women

THE CANADIAN MINERAL INDUSTRY EDUCATION FOUNDATION

offers

UNDERGRADUATE SCHOLARSHIPS

in

MINING, MINERAL or EXTRACTIVE and PROCESS METALLURGICAL ENGINEERING

$1,500 - 9 months

to students wishing to enter the first or subsequent professional year of a degree course in Mining, Mineral or Extractive and Process Metallurgical Engineering

For applications contact:

The Secretary,
Canadian Mineral Industry Education Foundation,
P.O. Box 45, Commerce Court West, Toronto, Ont.

or
The Dean of Engineering
Applied Science

CLOSING DATE MARCH 3rd, 1975

ANIMATED FEMALES PRESENT SUZIE-Q-WEEK January 21st - 26th INCLUDING:

a broomball game between hockey gals and gals county fair
stag dance skating party greaser dance
semi-formal

. . . AND MUCH MORE

Sports Round-up

Home Action

Basketball: Women's Intermediate Basketball team won
Ice Hockey: Men lost miserably to Toronto at Jock Hartley Arena in front of a capacity crowd Wrestling: Queen's very successful in sixth Annual Invitational Tournament.

Away Action

Alpine Skiing: Women did tremendously. Gini Honeyman won 1) Slalom 2) Giant Slalom 3) Combined. Men put forth a good effort against heavy odds.
Basketball: Gals runners up to a team with National player representation in Toronto Tournament.
Volleyball: Men opened the 1975 season in Ottawa Invitational.

PICK UP A PIZZA

1/2 PRICE

UPON PRESENTATION OF
STUDENTS CARD

MONDAYS and TUESDAYS

BONNUCCHI'S

PIZZA 546-1444 546-2050

FESTIVAL OF THE ARTS

"FESTIVAL STILL NEEDS YOU!"

FILM CONTEST	549-1053
PHOTO EXHIBITION	549-4038
ART DISPLAY	546-5370
MUSICIANS	544-4540
POETRY READINGS	544-4976
DRAMA	546-7063

JANUARY 28th
FEBRUARY 1st to

Housman

"Shoulder the sky my lad, and drink your ale".

(Last Poems)

Shakespeare

"For a quart of ale is a dish for a king".

(The Winter's Tale)

Borrow

"Good ale, the true and proper drink..."

(Lavengro)

Browning

"There they are, my fifty men and women".

(One Word More)

poetic justice

Gaels no match for Blues

by Jim LeMesurier
Sports writer

The smooth skating University of Toronto Varsity Blues took an easy 6-1 decision from the Golden Gaels Friday night by thoroughly outclassing their injury-ridden opposition.

2,500 Jock Harty Arena fans saw the undefeated Blues dominate as the Gaels seemed surprisingly "flat" against their traditional rivals.

The Blues opened the scoring early on Captain Gord Davie's quick backhand from the slot at 2:57, after Queen's netminder Clyde Harris had already thwarted two excellent scoring opportunities. U of T continued to storm the Queen's end while the Queen's attackers concentrated on hitting in an attempt to slow the faster Blues down and consequently spent little time controlling the puck. Harris' heroics and a breakaway goal by Earl Moulton kept the Gaels alive through the opening 20 minutes but Varsity wasn't to be in-

Dangling feet show capacity crowd at Jock Harty Fri. night.

John Cameron

timidated by the headhunting, and eventually ran away with the contest as a sputtering Queen's attack became increasingly less effective and the three over-worked defensemen started making costly miscues inside the Tricolour blueline.

The middle stanza was so totally controlled by Toronto that the Gaels managed just 2 shots at cage keeper Dave Holme while Varsity put 3 more past Harris to take an insurmountable 4-1 advantage into the final frame. Ron Harris and Kent Runke supplied singles before Davies, who was the most effective Blue, added his second of the night on a superb individual effort.

The third period provided a dull conclusion to this disappointing mismatch as Queen's slumped further and the well-oiled Blue Machine kept taking the play to the disheartened Gaels. The result was 2 more markers by Runke and Harris for a 6-1 final score.

The ease with which U of T disposed of the Gaels has to be somewhat discouraging but should be kept in perspective. Toronto has probably the best collegiate team in the country and belong in a different class than Queen's. The Gaels have been impressive in victories against York and Loyola and should measure future success in their performance against teams of comparable ability and not in their unlikely role as giant killer.

John Bottomley

Gaels Frank Coffey takes shot on U. of T. goal to no avail.

STUDENT HEALTH SERVICE

MEDICAL CLINIC — 547-6106 — 24 hours daily
(Answering service contacts a duty physician when the Health Service is closed.)

CLINIC HOURS — 9:00 am - 11:30 am
1:00 pm - 4:00 pm
Monday to Friday inclusive

PSYCHIATRY & COUNSELLING — By appointment
9:00 am - 5:00 pm phone 547-2889 or come to Health Service to make an appointment.

Londry's Drugs

Special Student rates

464-471 University Ave.

Delivery Available

546-3696

Open 7 am to 11 pm daily

AT McDONALD'S
YOU CAN BE A BIG SPENDER.

277 Bath Rd.

Campus Movies

Thursday 7 and 9.30 pm
Dunning Hall $1.00

- 16 Jan. Five Easy Pieces with Jack Nicholson
- 23 Jan. Murders in the Rue Morgue
plus The Mummy
- 30 Jan. The Bank Dick with W. C. Fields
- 6 Feb. They Shoot Horses Don't They?
- 13 Feb. Reefer Madness
plus Martian Space Party
- 27 Feb. High Plains Drifter with Clint Eastwood
- 6 Mar. Sympathy For the Devil
Rolling Stones
- 13 Mar. Rosemary's Baby
- 20 Mar. Slipstream
- 27 Mar. The Conversation
by Francis Ford Coppola
- 3 Apr. Casablanca with Bogey

Plus: Each week 1 part of the 12 part serial:
The Indians are Coming

V-Ball Gaels start season in Ottawa

by Peter Khignesse

The Volleyball Gaels started the New Year season this week at the Ottawa U. Invitational. Action started Friday night when Queen's met Ottawa. The Gaels handed Ottawa easily taking the best of five with three wins in four games. Rookie Peter Wood played his best game, hitting the ball with great confidence. Saturday saw Queen's roll out some very fine offensive play against Brock and then McMaster in the semi-finals.

Queen's came out the winners of one division in the finals against the Ottawa Onion Patch. The first game revealed Queen's awesome offense, with the incredible power hits of Al Scott and Joe Austin. Beautiful set shots and quick hits were the order of the day for Jon Capek and Vacek Grola. Queen's led the first game 10-0 going on to win 15-8. The second game was much closer however. The Onion Patch came up victorious. In the third and deciding game Queen's to take the series.

Volleyball Gaels were in Ottawa this past weekend. League action continues this coming weekend.

Thus, Queen's came back for the Invitational with silver medals. They start the regular university league next weekend in Ottawa. Wins are starting to mean a great deal for a position in the OUA finals in February, but Queen's powerful offense and quick defense should see the Gaels to the top.

WIC-ly News

Sign-up sheets and details for all upcoming sports announced in Friday's Journal (ie Volleyball, Swim Nite, Curling, Squash, etc.) are posted in the Women's Locker room. Snowshoeing is being postponed until further notice, but don't forget that Jogathon starts Thursday, January 16. The swimathon will be held Wednesday, January 15 from 8:30 p.m. - 10:00 p.m. (along with Swim Nite events). This is the last chance to earn points for your faculty. Currently, Arts is leading, but they aren't the winners yet. Phone Convenor Cathy Coyle at 549-5256.

N.B. WIC T-shirts have arrived and will be on sale in the lobby of the Phys Ed Centre today and tomorrow from 10:30 am until 6 pm. Cost of each T-shirt is $3.

CORRECTION: WIC Cross Country Skiing will be held Mondays and Fridays, starting Monday, January 20 (not on Thursdays as announced in last Friday's Journal). For further information, contact Barb McDermott (convenor) at 542-8080.

COMMODORE HOTEL

840 PRINCESS ST.

The Commodore Hotel at 840 Princess St. is pleased to offer all Students of Queen's, St. Lawrence and MacArthur College a preferred rate for room accommodation for their Parents or friends during the 74-75 term when they have occasion to visit Kingston.

NIGHTLY ENTERTAINMENT
in our Lounge

THIS WEEK: 'Mid Win'

Amateur Night every Wednesday

Queen's Students Welcome
In Our Lounge

Bite the one you love

STEAK & STUFF

LICENCE DINING ROOM 1399 Princess (near the station)

AUNT LUCY'S RESTAURANTS

Winter is just snow fun
without it.

Molson Golden
A good smooth ale
Do you know what you're missing?

briefly..

MONTREAL (CP) An armed robber, George Lebrun, has extended his Christmas leave from Cowansville penitentiary. Lebrun wrote a letter informing his director that he felt fully rehabilitated and was gainfully employed. In the letter he thanked the director for all the attention he had received and signed off the note 'thanks for everything'. Lebrun's seven year sentence was due to end Aug 12, 1978.

SAIGON: President Nguyen Van Thieu will order South Vietnamese troops to recapture the province of Phuoc Lang, Thieu said the North Vietnamese capture of Phuoc Lang last week made it 'publicly known that they never accepted the Paris peace accord but used it as a form of screen to take South Vietnam by arms'.

On the other hand, North

Vietnam charges US reconnaissance planes have guided South Vietnamese aircraft on savage bombing raids of Viet Cong positions since the fall of Phuoc Lang. They said that they sternly condemned these criminal acts of war in brazen sabotage of the Paris agreement by the US and the Thieu regime. TORONTO - The price of a quart of milk is expected to increase by about 6 cents. The government subsidy of milk will be totally withdrawn on Feb. 10. This will cause a two cent increase. However, the Ontario Milk Marketing Board and processors are each seeking further increases of two cents each.

KINGSTON - The Hong Kong flu is not expected to hit Kingston hard until the spring. Presently the flu is sweeping through Toronto and south-western Ontario. In Europe a strain of this flu, which apparently originated in New Zealand, is reaching epidemic proportions. About 6 per cent of Czechoslovakia's population is suffering from the flu. WASHINGTON (AP) - President Ford will present Congress with a proposal to cut income taxes by 15 billion dollars. It is felt that the people will have more money to spend which may help the US out of its recession.

The 16 member Labour-management committee has recommended that the tax cut be gradual extending over the next year to be of maximum benefit to the economy. This policy opposes the alternative of giving either rebate payments or reductions in taxes payable.

TORONTO (CP) The Divisional Court has dismissed a motion submitted by a lawyer representing the Seafarer's International Union (SIU) to review Attorney-General Robert Welch's decision to prosecute Morton Shulman for revealing the existence and contents of a wiretap.

The SIU is contesting Dr. Shulman's right to possession of the wiretap under the protection of Parliamentary privilege.

TORONTO (CP) Charges against the RCMP drug squad in Vancouver were aired nationally on CTV's news program W5 on Sunday. A former drug squad officer, a lawyer, and several addicts have stated that some members of the squad traffic in drugs, beat people, steal, commit perjury, and use entrapment.

New Delhi India has formally recognized the Palestine Liberation Organization as the sole representative of the Palestinian people. India has also authorized the opening of a PLO office in New Delhi.

THE CANADIAN MINERAL INDUSTRY EDUCATION FOUNDATION

offers

POSTGRADUATE SCHOLARSHIPS

in

MINING ENGINEERING

to GRADUATES in any branch of ENGINEERING or APPLIED SCIENCE

$6,300 - 9 months

PLUS Planned Summer Employment

For information contact:

The Secretary,
Canadian Mineral Industry Education Foundation,
P.O. Box 45, Commerce Court West, Toronto, Ont.
CLOSING DATE MARCH 3rd, 1975

PRICELESS... WITHIN REASON

Precious diamonds do not have to cost a fortune. We can help you to select a fine diamond that you can afford. Regardless of your financial status, we can offer a superb diamond that will thrill you... and never leave you flat.

KINNEAR JESTERRE
JEWELLERS
168 PRINCESS STREET
KINGSTON, ONTARIO

backpage

Typewriter Repairpersons

The Journal needs your HELP

Our typewriters refuse to work

Earn our undying gratitude

Save our Types!

Fee to be negotiated

Why not.

If you want your motivation to infect others, then there's no reason why not.

Think about us and yourself, then think about what we can accomplish together.

For more information on the diocesan or religious priesthood, contact Priests of the Sacred Heart Delaware, Ontario NOL 1E0

Queen's Journal

Volume 102 Number 30
Friday, January 17, 1975

1st in a series on the squeeze

Campus Planning dept. cramped by cutbacks

by Paul Steep

There is a character about Queen's University that might be broadly defined as "human and humane". The limestone buildings covered in ivy, the parks of grass, and the small classes have all helped to create a setting in which each student can still retain his own individuality. During the recent period of rapid growth in the university, maintaining the character of Queen's was taken to be the precondition of success in achieving all other aims, according to Principal Ron Watts. No one would argue that the physical setting of the university is not an integral part of that character. But how long will the beautiful campus remain after the financial support has run out?

Developing and maintaining the campus has not been a haphazard affair. Through the Department of Campus Planning careful programs were researched to ensure that Queen's would have the character that it has today. But Campus Planner Eric Thrift has found more and more that the resources for continuing that type of research are not available. For example, he once had an assistant who has since left for a position with a consulting firm. That assistant has not been replaced. The reason is painfully simple: there is not any money. For Eric Thrift the consequences of this are letting some of his own work fall by the wayside as he takes on the responsibilities of others. There is also no money for hiring experts such as landscape architects, and that means either doing without or else assigning that work to staff who aren't specifically qualified in those fields. Consultants are also important to other groups on campus such as "Project Green". They rely on landscape architects for planning the planting of trees where others have been lost to construction and Dutch Elm disease. Project Green receives its funds through donations, and when the university can't supply the services they need it means less for the actual trees.

Apart from the planting of trees, there are less visible roles played by the Department of Campus Planning. A complex relationship exists between the University and the community it serves, maintaining the proper balance between Queen's and Kingston is vital to both parties. Thrift fears that the lack of resources available to Campus Planning will mean that proper studies of housing, for instance, will be done neither soon enough, nor adequately. If enrolment is ever increased to help ease the financial strain, this information will be critical, but it might not be available.

Maintaining the campus is the responsibility of the Department of Physical Plant. They too are caught in the financial squeeze. The price of oil has doubled in the past two years, and over the same period the cost of electricity has increased by 20 per cent. Needless to say their budget has not kept pace with this inflation. To compensate, the use of electricity has been cut substantially. Lighting in corridors has been dimmed and the use of fans restricted to certain hours. Restrictions are also placed on the hours of heating, and cleaning climbing through the stacks of coins Queen's will need to keep the campus in tip-top shape.

were in a crisis situation yet, but then both men declined to say what would qualify as a crisis. They did agree that if new funds aren't found the deficit financing embarked upon by the Administration would be crippling in the long run.

Mr. Thrift summed up by saying that, "The problems facing the University as a whole are much graver than those facing Campus Planning. What doesn't help in a situation like this is to act as if yours is the only problem on campus." Unfortunately he was right. Nearly every university department has financial problems to match those of Campus Planning.

Both McCabill and Thrift stressed that for the present the best solution is to make more efficient use of their limited resources. Neither felt that they

Feminists at Queen's

Mitchell, Hardwick, Anderson lecture on woman's role today

by Ian Jarvis and Barb Nyland

"Government action to end discrimination against women is moving with the speed of the much heralded second ice age." Without pulling any punches, Doris Anderson, editor of Chatelaine magazine, brought the three day symposium on 'Human dignity and the Experience of Woman' to an impressive end, and gave International Women's Year at Queen's a very hopeful beginning.

The series of movies and lectures were organized by the Dunning Trust says co-ordinator Mary Maxwell to be "not only stimulating in themselves, but also to generate continued involvement in the discussion on the status of women, not only inside the University, but in the surrounding community as well."

Monday night lecturer Juliet

Mitchell, author of several books on feminism, centered her speech around the historical roots of the feminist movement. She attempted to bury the idea that feminism is something which arose only with the suffragettes of the nineteenth century. "I suggest examples of the feminist movement are available in almost every society through history."

Mitchell described how sexual attractiveness was seen as the lure of the devil, and she brought a loud chuckle from the audience with the reading of a passage which admonished the female as being "such a 'necessary evil' and a delectable detriment." Mitchell pointed to the lack of meaning in the lives of the nineteenth century as being the start of the serious degeneration in the value of women since the dawn of the industrial revolution reduced the importance of the women as a child bearer and relegated her in the status of an object. Marriage became her only entry into society, and being 'feminine' was meant to compensate women for the lack of meaning in their lives. Unfortunately, Mitchell's lecture often lacked continuity and a sense of direction. As a result, the audience was left feeling betwixt and between.

The same could not be said of the following night's lecturer, Elizabeth Hardwick, who charmed the audience with her freshness and her southern drawl. The subject of her talk as she described it, was "Necessity and the Human Will." She focused this theme around a group of female authors whom she termed the 'Byronic Women', who were spurred by economic necessity into careers as writers. Among them she included the Bronte sisters, George Sand, Margaret Fuller, and George Eliot. These women were all remarkable in her opinion because they had the courage to question the laws of respectable society in which women were expected to spend their time in more feminine pursuits such as painting and needlework.

Hardwick also emphasized that this group was unique among women of their time since they regarded their writing as work. Whether these strong-minded women were conscious of it at the time or not, Hardwick concluded that "the will that created the writing was at the same time creating a great female person."

The final lecture in this series did nothing to disappoint its listeners. For almost an hour, Doris Anderson lashed out at the present status of women, and in an articulate and sophisticated style she managed to criticize government, business, and our society as a whole for their tardiness in changing this situation, while leaving us with hope and a purpose for the future.

Continued on Page 3

Campus Planner Eric Thrift looks over plans for the future shape of Queen's. His department is among the many which have felt the pinch of reduced government grants.

wat's hapnin'?

Pubs and Theatres

Frontenac - Finnegan's - Bob Short
Frontenac - Muldoon's - The Cobblers Awt
1st Inn - Dick Mahony Quartet
Commodore - Ned Madwin
Townhouse - Nelson
Manor - Julie Lynn

Odeon - Man with the Golden Gun
Capitol I - Godfather II
Capitol II - Towering Inferno
Hyland - Law and Disorder

Friday, January 17

Friday, January 17 7:00 p.m. Diplomacy and Wargame Club in the McLaughlin Room, Student Union (1st Floor) behind the coat room. New members welcome.

7:30 p.m. - The film Bethune on the life of the great Canadian Revolutionary figure in Canada, Spain, and China. In Stirling A.

8:00 p.m. - Sock Hop in Clark Hall.

8:00 p.m. - Jive Contest will begin in Grant Hall. Help support Camp Outlook. Doors open at 7:30.

8:15 p.m. - Queen's Basketball Team meets Laurentian.

Saturday, January 18

9:00 a.m. - Queen's Skydiving Club will begin meeting again this term for rides to Gananoque airport every Saturday and Sunday in front of Gordon Brockington residence; weather permitting. If you have a car, please bring it. We need all the transportation we can get.

1:30 p.m. - 5:20 p.m. & 10 - 12 noon - The Arena at Queen's will be closed.

5:00 p.m. - Queen's Hockey Gaels take on Laurentian.

5:00 p.m. - Bitler Grounds Coffee House and Good Times Emporium presents Raffi in Clark Hall. Tickets will be available Thursday and Friday in the John Orr Room from 10:30 - 4:30. Admission is $1.75 and the doors open around 8:00.

8:00 p.m. - Paul Gaudin Mime Company - The performance will be in the Grand Theatre, 218 Princess Street. For additional information phone the Division of Concerts Box Office at 547-6194. Tickets are $2.50, $3.50, and $4.50 general and $1.50, $2.50, and $3.50 for students.

9:30 p.m. - Ballroom Dance Club will resume in the Dance Studio. New members welcome.

Sunday, January 19

10:30 a.m. - Morning Worship at Chalmers United Church.

10:30 a.m. - Folk Mass at Dunning Hall, followed by coffee and donuts at Newman House, 164 University Ave.

1:00 p.m. - Organ Recital: David Cameron, Director of Music at Chalmers United Church. The organ solo and ensemble. Queen's organ prepared tape. Brass Quintet and singers Sylvia Culham and Randall Marsh. In Grant Hall and the admission is free.

3:00 p.m. - Department of Drama will present its first show of 1975, Euripides' Medea, directed by Bernard Burkom. The show will run through the week of January 20 - 25 in Convocation Hall, Old Arts Building (Theological Hall). Tickets and information are available at the Drama Desk 547-6291.

6:00 p.m. - S.A.M. Sunday Supper in the International Centre followed by a talk and discussion on the thought of "Man's Place in Nature" by Dave McLay.

9:30 p.m. - Galerie Victoria will present a Schubert Trio: Alana Depahuk, violin; John Helmers, cello and Margaret McLeellan, piano playing two movements from Opus 99: Allergo moderato and Andante un Poco Mosso. In the Common Room at Victoria Hall.

Monday, January 20

11:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m. - Come and see us at the Kingston's Women Centre. We'll be waiting for you Mondays to Thursdays at 346½ Princess. Go up the stairs. Saturdays please phone ahead 542-5226. If you need child care for meetings, please call up before.

7:30 p.m. - Ukrainian Club Meeting in the International Centre Lower Meeting Room. Contact E. Kuley 549-0797.

7:30 p.m. - Queen's Circle Meeting in Stirling B or C. Many doves of people are needed. This takes precedence over everything else that night. After the meeting we go to the Cancer Lodge and then get into some mischief. Be there!

8:00 p.m. - 3rd World Images Films in Dunning Auditorium. Sambizanga will be shown and coffee and donuts and an informal discussion after. Admission is free and all are welcome.

Upcoming Events

Tuesday, January 21 - 7:30 p.m. - The first two of a series of lectures about the university will be given in the Ban High Common Room. SPECTRUM will commence with a lecture by Dr. Crowder of the Department of History on "What You Find at Queen's". Principal Watts will speak afterwards on "The University and Government Control". Coffee and donuts will be served.

Tuesday, January 21 - 7:30 p.m. - At La Casa, 90 Queen's Crescent, a slide and film presentation by the Spanish Club. Subject: Granada. Refreshments to follow. Free admission and all are welcome to attend.

Tuesday, January 21 - 8:00 p.m. in Dupuis Auditorium - "What should we make of India?" The Donald Mathers Memorial Lectures presented by Professor Ninian Smart, University of Lancaster, U.K.

Tuesday, January 21 - The English Conversation Piece and Joseph Highmore's "Illustrations to Pamela". This is the third in a series of six lectures given by Professor Burke on Tuesday evenings at 8:00 p.m. in Stirling Hall D. The lectures are open to the public and admission is free.

Tuesday, January 21 - The Birds in Ellis Auditorium at 9:00 p.m. Admission $1.00 at the door.

Tuesday, January 21 - The Spirit of China Today - a public lecture and panel discussion by Prof. W.W. Small, lecturer in China Studies at York University. Guest panelists include Dr. J.J. Deutsch and Dean Evelyn Reid. Room 517, Watson Hall. Coffee and donuts. Lecture to be followed by group discussions. (time??)

Wednesday, January 22 - Last Lecture Series begins in McNeil House Common Room at 7:15 p.m. The speaker at this lecture is Dr. R.H. Clark, Department of Chemical Engineering.

Wednesday, January 22 - Painters Painting: a full length film by Emilio de Antonio on American painting, 1940-1970. Ellis Hall at 8:00 p.m.

Wednesday, January 22 - Konig von Bayern - This film will be shown at 8:00 p.m. in Room 128, Jeffrey Hall. Admission is free.

Wednesday, January 22 - The Donald Mathers Memorial Lectures - "What should we make of China and Japan?" 8:00 p.m. in Stirling B.

Wednesday, January 22 - Division of Concerts presents Camerata in Dunning Hall at 8:30 p.m. Tickets now on sale at Agnes Etherington Art Centre.

Thursday, January 23 - The Donald Mathers Memorial Lectures - "What should we make of the neighbours of Christianity?" 8:00 p.m. in Dupuis Auditorium.

Thursday, January 23 - Kinoshiki Aides Again! Another Kinoshiki Coffee House in Morris Hall's south lower common room. With folk singers Pat Jackman and Steve Fromstein plus impressionist John McQuig and featuring from Toronto, Keith and Wayne Fromm. Doors open at 8:00 p.m. Admission 75c. Everyone welcome.

January 23, 24, 25 - Domino Theatre presents Lady Audrey's Secret directed by Rod Robertson. Tickets are $2.50 ($1.75 for students on Thursday) at Mahood's and at the door. Time: 8:30 p.m.

Saturday, January 25 - Summer Job Workshop in Geology and Related Fields - A series of workshops designed to give students interested in field work an idea of what to expect.

WINTER CONCERTS 75

AMS CONCERTS PRESENTS THE MOE KOFFMAN QUINTET AND DAVID BRADSTREET

TUES. JANUARY 28/75
GRANT HALL
2 Shows 7:30-10:00

Tickets
$3.00 Student
(Advance)
$4.00 Regular

AMS CONCERTS AND MARTIN ONROT INC. PRESENT THE STRAWBS AND MAN

SAT. FEB. 1/75
JOCK HARDY
8:00 P.M.

Tickets
$3.00 Student
$4.00 Regular
$5.00 Door

AMS CONCERTS AND CONCERT PRODUCTIONS INTERNATIONAL PRESENT SHA-NA-NA

FRI. FEB. 7/75
MEMORIAL CENTER
8:00 P.M.

Tickets
$4.00 Student
$4.50 Regular
$5.00 Door

TICKETS ON SALE NOW AT
JOHN ORR ROOM (STUDENT PRICES ONLY)
HOUSE OF SOUNDS
VERN NAPIERS (SHOPPING CENTER)
DIVISION OF CONCERTS BOX OFFICE

Feminists talk on Woman

Continued from Page 1

Anderson mentioned at the outset that it was unfortunate that the push for equal pay and opportunities should coincide with an economic recession, since she felt this would be used as an excuse for keeping women in a subordinate position. In response to the government's grant for International Women's Year which is to go largely into the organization of conferences, she said, "We've been conferred to death. We've had enough rhetoric, and now we're looking for some action." Despite the recommendation of numerous reports, including a royal commission on the status of women, Anderson said that almost nothing has been acted upon. "I'd like to be enthusiastic, but it's a little difficult as you can see."

Turning to the topic of equal pay for women, she ridiculed the present legislation for being an old dog, "no teeth and no bite". Even our university was not spared criticism as she commented that she didn't even have to walk off campus to find women paid less for the same job as men. Other legislation reform that she asked for was in the area of marriage, property acts, and in pension plans for women.

By her own admission, Anderson is not a radical feminist, and when she focused upon the topic of motherhood, she was quick to extol the virtues of this institution. The young mother is the most exploited worker in our society, since she may work for over eighty hours a week at what is considered by society as her job without receiving any remuneration. Anderson also pointed out the need for day-care centres across Canada to ease the burden of thousands of women who are left to support their families.

In closing, she pointed her finger at the audience, demanding they change the socialization process which has produced females who are afraid of achieving success for fear they will lose their femininity. Anderson ended with a plea for more honesty, tenderness, imagination, and determination. "And these are not the monopoly of either men or women."

Juliet Mitchell

Elizabeth Hardwick

Doris Anderson

Mario's Pizzeria and Spaghetti House
Pizza • Spaghetti • Lasagna • Ravioli
637 Princess Free delivery 349-4222

DIAMOND CHOP SUEY HOUSE
217 Division (between Queen and Colbourne)
Fine Chinese and Canadian Food
Open daily 11 a.m. - 2 a.m.
Sunday: noon - 12 p.m.
Take Out and Delivery 544-2927

COME SKI THE MAJESTIC WEST

Banff
FROM TORONTO $168-RT
Prices quoted include:
• Accommodation standard @ 126 - based on double occupancy.
• Motorcoach transportation from Calgary Airport to accommodation and return.
• Motorcoach transfers between accommodation and ski areas.
• Ski Lifts: TICKETS 6 night-7 day packages include ski lift tickets for 5 days. Ski lift tickets for Banff, Jasper and Lake Louise are interchangeable.

$294<sup>00</sup>

DAILEY'S TRAVEL 212 Princess St. 544-5755

How a house became a hall in one week.....

The House of Lords has moved

its operations to Wallace Hall

and is now open for business.

A new pub,

but the same good time.

Wallace Hall

The new pub on campus

Special Admission for those not eligible...

under the normal regulations. A maximum of fifty persons, who would not qualify under regular admission criteria, will be admitted as full-time students in the Faculty of Arts and Science, Queen's University, if they show potential for university work.

Application:

Applicants must have reached the age of 18 by September 1, 1975, and have completed a minimum Ontario grade 10 or the equivalent. Persons who are presently registered as full-time high school students are not eligible. Preference will be given to persons under 21 years of age at the end of 1975, and to those who have not previously attended a university. Persons 21 years of age or older, who have not attended a university, and who have been out of school for three years, may apply for admission under the Mature Student Regulation.

Selection:
A variety of tests and other selection procedures will be carried out during March and April, 1975. Successful candidates will be chosen on the basis of ability, achievement and motivation.

Deadline:
Due to the nature of the selection procedure, it is in the best interests of applicants to make enquiries as early in 1975 as possible. All enquiries must be received by March 1, 1975.

For further information and application forms write to:

Special Admissions Project
Assistant Registrar (Admissions)
Queen's University
Kingston, Ontario K7L 3N6

Queens University, Kingston, Ontario

unclassifieds

AM FROM OUT WEST and in desperate of obtaining a 2 or 3 bedroom apt. house before April rolls around. Please help by calling Jan at 544-8228.

575 REWARD for anyone who can find us a house for next year. 4 or more man house. Phone Mark at 544-7154 or Bruce at 544-7483.

MESSRS. BINKS, Stone, and Ratray formally invite all their friends to an informal party time tonight at 8:30 at 360 Nelson. B.Y.O. Body and Bottle. The Grog has spoken.

FOR SALE: 1 pair ski bindings. Tryolla Clix 90 series toes and heels $20. 1 Hitachi car cassette unit, 3 months old $50, new $100. 549-4577.

LOST: 1200 trees on our campus. Believed to be victims of the Dutch Elm Disease. Found 3 Irish young saplings by Victoria Hall D Wing. Adelaide-Ban Righ and Ecology (18-202) class. Help us in our search. Buy a button or a poster for Project Green.

ROOMS AVAILABLE in Elford. Come and see us. You can't miss it. It's that big building on Princess (corner of division) or call us at 544-1842.

ATTENTION POLAR BEARS, seals, walrus. We will have company on Saturday when a homo sapien will splash in the water with you. All interested spectators are cordially invited to join us at Leonard Field at 3:00 to witness the spectacle.

COMMERCE '78 extends its apologies for the cancellation of last Monday's Smoker, and invites you to its bigger and better Smoker. Hop Smoker this Friday night, Jan. 17 at 8:00 p.m. in Clark Hall.

ARTS FESTIVAL '75 is looking for student musicians to conduct workshops or play during the week. Contact Pat, 544-7872.

FESTIVAL '75 still needs demonstrators for their art workshop (silk screening, Batik, ceramics etc.) and exhibitors for the art display. Phone Inez 544-5276.

BEER BREWING CONTEST: Entry forms available in the Engineering Society office in Clark Hall. $1.50 per entry, spectator admission $1.00. Contest will be held Feb. 7, in Wallace Hall 8 p.m.

BEAT THE CROWDS at the union and come on down to the Smoker. Hop Smoker on Friday Jan. 17, at 8:00 p.m. in Clark Hall.

FESTIVAL OF THE ARTS: The annual opportunity to participate in and view the Arts at Queen's. Five days of drama, art, photography, film, music and speakers.

FIRST YEAR ENGINEERING academic orientation - next week: Mon. Jan. 20, Civil, Ellis Auditorium, 7 p.m.; Wed. Jan. 22, Mining, Goodwin Hall, 6:45 p.m.

GOING AWAY? If you are abandoning your apartment for 2, why not call 544-7739 or 7720 for a rewarding experience.

ART SECTION always needs writers. If you are interested in reviewing, interviews or any contributions, call 544-7739 or 544-5358. Otherwise, drop in at the Journal office and/or Sunday night.

NEEDED, ONE PERSON, male or female to lift an apartment of the remaining portion of this term. Please phone 544-5166.

ANY CLUB that wants a grant for this term please submit the following: the expenses and revenues for the term, the club's executive and its objectives and the amount of money requested, to Clubs Manager, A.M.S. Office.

TO TAK: We welcome you back, TAK: We missed you very much, but we hope you had a nice Clarke and Diabla.

HOUSE WANTED & or 7 man house wanted by responsible 3rd and 4th year students for the 75-76 school year. Willing to lease in May or anytime thereafter. Phone 544-7489 or 549-5533.

LOST: Knapsack containing clothes and tape recorder at Julie Lewis' chell's lecture in Grant Hall. Finder please call 547-2918 or 544-3334.

LOST: My favourite cat. He's grey and fuzzy and occasionally answers to the "Wally" and I miss him. He's been seen somewhere in the vicinity of 180 Johnson St. Call Kerry at 544-5358.

FOR SALE: 1 pair 200 c.m. Fisher Imperial Skiis. Brand new, unused $1000 retail price. Phone Dave at 549-3967.

CASH IN on the Holiday rental business! As the economy tightens and inflation continues, families will be taking less expensive vacations. A camping holiday is a low cost holiday, so you can rent them a Century-campor-trailer with accessories an all Canadian product. It's easy to learn this cash business. We'll show you how on a professional basis. High potential returns. Under $20,000 investment. For full details call: Holiday Rental Systems: 544-7243 and ask for Jan.

ONE-BEDROOM Apartment for rent, available Feb. 1; one block from campus. Call 544-9722.

530 REWARD for your 2 or 3 bedroom apartment for Sept (preference) or after April. Phone Harold 544-7155 or Chris 544-7850.

ALL PHOTOGRAPHERS: old and new or interested in working for the Journal, there will be a meeting at 7:00 pm Sunday Jan. 19 in the Journal office.

LOST: light green notebook containing my personal notes. I need it desperately for upcoming exam. If found please call Kathy 544-8792.

FURNISHED 9 bedroom house available for next year. 2 kitchens with refrigerators and 2 stoves. Also 3 bathrooms. Only 10 minute walk from campus. Call 546-6523.

ALL FRIENDS, acquaintances and lovers of Ayn, Mary, Lesley and Chuchie are invited to a party on Sat. the 18th after the hockey game. BYOB.

525 REWARD for person who finds suitable 2-man apartment or house for 75-76 school session. Please contact Terry 544-8165 or Wendy 544-8155.

DYNACO A-25 SPEAKERS 1 pair in excellent condition. Selling because of upgrading my stereo system. $125. Call Bob, between 5-7 weekdays at 544-1740.

TO SUBLET: 2 bedroom apartment, large kitchen, living room, balcony, view, storage closet, same underground parking in Elford, close to campus and downtown. Rent negotiable. Cheap. Available May to August. Phone 544-7426.

EXTRAVAGANZA happens tonight. The habitat of seven Queensmen is invaded by hardies, merry makers who have come looking for a great party. It is BYOB, but we will have a moderate supply.

The dance floor (our dining room) will be kept clear of standees to enable you to trip the light fantastic. It's the Ottawa House at 8:00. 542-2219 for more information.

BARGAIN: 1 pair Rossignol Stratos. Look Nevada bindings - for sale - 202 cm. Asking $50. Call Rob, superstore, 544-6451.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY YA OLD DAWG! Wishing you all the best. Oh, so much love and so little time! But we sure can try. The Badger.

HELP! Need house or apartment for 4 females for Sept '75. Furnished or unfurnished. Phone 544-8814 or 544-8737.

STAMPS FOR COLLECTORS: The Queen's Philatelic Society will meet again this term in the Red Room, Kingston Hall, at 8:00 on Mon. 20th.

MALE GRADUATE STUDENT looking for person of similar description to share 2-bedroom apartment on MacPherson Ave. Rent to be $86.50, including utilities and parking. Phone Andy at 547-6445.

SR50 CALCULATORS by Texas Instruments. Come with full one year warranty from T.I. $165.00 plus tax: this is the best price you will find. I have a stock now. Phone Ian at 548-3355.

WHITEFACE, NEW YORK. This Saturday, Jan. 18 with the Queen's Ski Club. Tows and transportation for $15. Tickets on sale this Wednesday, Jan. 15, 7pm in the John Orr Room.

ARTICLE Entries now needed for these BWS sports table tennis, handball, doubles, badminton, and free throw. Sign up on bulletin board in men's locker room.

SCIENCE JACKET: In the '77 style, very good condition. Phone Peter at 544-9213.

DRIVE TO VANCOUVER: I need a second driver to head westbound to Vancouver around the 25th of Jan. Will be driving a new car. Please ask for Dave. 544-4451.

PLEASE DISREGARD ALL OTHER NOTICES: If you have a 4-bedroom for live or sixt apart-mont to get off your hands, the ONLY numbers to phone are 544-8058 or 544-7339. A healthy reward promised.

WANTED: Home for large, friendly housebroken white cat. Will throw in case of food and 15 lbs. of kitty litter. Call 546-9456 after 4pm.

SUMMER SUBLET: rooms available for summer in a very nice large house, 1 1/2 blocks from campus. For information call 549-4423.

LIS: ...Happy hall and four month anniversaries at the same time. There's no pretzel logic here except that the second hall will be better than the first. Love Stan.

EARN $600 an HOUR. Take 5 minutes out of your time to show us your 2 to 4 bedroom house or apt. If we take it for the 1975-76 school term we will pay $50.00. Contact Joel 544-7414 after 4pm.

WANTED IMMEDIATELY: home for two 2-month cats, both fixed, fully vaccinated, 1/2 persian and very movable. Call 542-9274 after 4pm.

3 GIRLS SEEK RIDE TO FLORIDA for reading week. Phone 542-9739. Will help with driving and gas.

1972 TOYOTA COROLLA 1400. Excellent condition, automatic, radio, four new tires including spare, low mileage. Must sell immediately - leaving city. Price negotiable. Phone 548-4375.

ARTSCL '78: Entries now needed for these BWS Sports: Badminton, doubles, handball, doubles and free throw. Sign up on bulletin board in men's locker room.

LOOKING FOR A PLACE FOR NEXT YEAR? Apt. suitable for 2 available May 1. Close to campus and MacDonald Park. 5125-month. Phone 544-5855.

GOOO CO-OP has cheap room available Feb. 1. Close to campus and downtown. Options for you to keep the 47 bedroom house for next year. 544-5380.

ROOM AND BOARD AVAILABLE AT CRAIG HOUSE, 160m Stuart St. 542-7181.

LOST: 1 pair women's glasses, dark frames, red leather case. Reward, same underground parking in Elford, close to campus and downtown. Rent negotiable. Cheap. Available May to August. Phone 544-7426.

SHADES OF PATTY HEARST: Dear Mommy: Daddy is an imperialist pig. Everyone else a clown. I've decided to stay and fight with da boys. Liberation Now. Love, Ida.

TENDER LOVING CARE available for lonely 48 man dwelling. Call Diane 544-8327, Jill 544-8357 or Jan 544-8329.

TO SUBLET: 23 bedroom apartment, fully furnished, centrally located. May-Sept. '75. Please call 544-9479 for more information.

MEANINGFUL RELATIONSHIP - lookin' for one. I am a fourth year psych major. Call Peter at anytime at 546-7714 (p.s. Newt and Ray are also available.)

SINGLE ROOM AVAILABLE immediately in 1st floor Leonard Hall. Call Norm at 549-5249.

6 BEDROOM HOUSE, 1 block from campus. Willing to trade for a 4-bedroom house for occupancy next year. Must also be close to campus. Phone 544-5191. Ask for Gary DIVISION ST RANT 77, 75, 85, 86, 74, 76.

520 reward for six or four person house. Needed for Sept. but will consider beginning lease earlier. Phone Ziggy 549-4691, Terry 549-4937, Mary 544-8761 or Paul 549-4788. DESPERATE.

LOST: 1 gold birthstone ring with aquamarine stone - of great sentimental value. Lost in girls' locker room at Phys. Ed Centre on Mon. night. If found, please phone 544-8452.

STEREO EQUIPMENT FOR SALE: Electrovoice Royal 100A amp with Shure M75 cartridge, $180; Criterion 25A speakers, $50 for the pair. Everything in perfect condition. Call 544-4197.

KANDALORE REUNION - Gala reunion at John Thomas', 377 Earl, Monday Jan. 20 after 9:00. Beer $3.00. Special invites to Kandalore. $5.00. Sign up on bulletin board in men's locker room.

LOST MY WALLET: on Sat. night in the vicinity of the Jack Hardy Arena. I found please phone Jim Goudette at 542-6968.

APARTMENT TO SUBLET: 1 room for Sept. lease. One b. room in West Campus tower. Ph. 546-3064.

COMING SOON: Jean Royce Hall Arts and Crafts Show. Painting, sculpture, photography and crafts for sale and/or exhibit. Sat. Feb. 8. Watch for more details.

Come in and talk to Chris about a very special price on PIZZA
PARTIES

BONNUCCHI 162 Division St.
546-1444
546-2050 PIZZERIA

the MARKET
BARBER SHOP & hairstyling salon

Peter Smits invites you
to his new hair care shop
43 BROCK ST. 549-2110 KINGSTON ONT

COPING WITH ANXIETY

Most people feel anxious about some aspect of daily living. For college students there may be specific situations that lead to anxiety, such as taking tests, or speaking in front of groups. More generally, people often feel anxious in social situations and so find it difficult to develop satisfactory interpersonal relationships.

The Counselling Service is offering a programme to help people learn to cope more effectively with situations that cause them to become anxious, whatever these may be. If you would like more information please contact the secretary, Student Counselling Service, telephone 547-2893.

At the
Grand Theatre

PAUL GAULIN MIME CO.
SAT. 18 JAN. 8.30 p.m.

Tickets: $4.50, $3.50, $2.50 general
$3.50, $2.50, $1.50 discount

Box Office in
Agnes Etherington Art Centre
547-6194 and the
Grand Theatre 546-1756

A Division of
Concerts Event

Randy Lee's

TAKE HOME STORE
842 PRINCESS ST.
544-9244

FRIED CHICKEN
★ ★ ★ BURGERS

Monday to Friday 10 a.m. - 10 p.m. Saturday, 10 a.m. - 8 p.m.
Delivery anywhere within City limits .65 extra - and -
Delivery outside City limits slightly extra.

Which Way Canada?

Result of the Poll

(Toronto Star)
The question asked by the Gallup poll:
"If an Ontario provincial election were held today which party's candidate do you think you would favour?"
The table below shows the two studies separately, and the combined total along with the results of the last Ontario Provincial election held in October, 1971:

ELECTION (71) COMBINED		NOV. DEC.
WOULD FAVOUR
Liberals	28	41	39	42
Conservatives	45	33	34	33
NDP	27	26	27	25

Davis slumps in latest gallup poll

by Doug Bonnell
The release of last Saturday's provincial Gallup poll may or may not indicate that a major shift in political commitment is afoot among the minds of the Ontario electorate.

According to the polls, taken in early November and December of last year, the Liberal party has moved ahead of the Progressive Conservative party in popularity among Ontario voters. An event unprecedented in the thirty-two years that the Tories have governed the province.

The Gallup finds indicate that the Liberals hold forty-one per cent of the popular vote among decided voters, the Conservatives thirty-three per cent, and the NDP twenty-six per cent. A full twenty-eight per cent of the electorate is undecided. In the 1971 provincial election the PCs took forty-five per cent of the vote and seventy-eight of the 117 seats in the provincial legislature.

The results brought an immediate reaction from Liberal leader Robert Nixon, whose father Harry Nixon was the last Liberal leader of the province, defeated in August, 1943 by Conservative George Drew. Nixon attacked the government and criticized Premier Davis personally by charging that, "the petty corruption, the old-boy network of patronage appointments and the favours to political supporters are from a bygone era. The system itself must be changed", he said. "It must be reviewed and overhauled by new people and new ideas, people who aren't protecting friends in sinecure, who aren't bound up by the dictates of an elaborate patronage system."

The results can only help to buoy the hopes of Nixon, a man who in 1973 barely survived a provincial leadership convention, had over 2.3 of the delegates vote against him on the first ballot, and who has led the party to two successive, crushing defeats at the polls at the hands of Conservative premiers Roberts and

by Ruth Ranson

Leonard Jones, that controversial candidate from Moncton New Brunswick who was elected to Canada's federal Parliament on July 8, 1974, is a symbol of the continuing controversy over language in this country.

During November, 1974, I had the opportunity to interview him in his plush office on Parliament Hill. Mr. Jones, opinionated but friendly, strongly expressed his views on education within Canada.

He believes that children of both French and English backgrounds should be educated together. The two languages would be taught beginning at the primary level, and as done in the Swiss school system, some subjects would be taught in one language and other subjects would be taught in the alternate language. This process of course would involve uniformity of education across Canada, not an immediate prospect.

Mr. Jones' ideas for education have led him to oppose the current enforcement of bilingualism in the federal civil service, and elsewhere, until such time as Canadian schools begin to produce bilingual students. He is against job discrimination on the basis of the lack of fluency in both official languages. This issue is especially acute in Moncton, the Atlantic control centre for the CNR which, with marshalling yards and shops, employs 7,000 men. The CNR advertises in the local papers for employees with bilingual applicants preferred, or alternately an English-speaking applicant will be considered eligible if he is willing to take prescribed lessons in French Government jobs also give priority to bilingual applicants.

To the two-thirds English-speaking population, this is seen as a serious threat. Leonard Jones even claims that the French people are not satisfied with the way bilingualism is being implemented and support him over his education philosophy. Consequently, he has received strong political support from his constituents as well as from many other parts of Canada. In some areas he has become the symbol of the struggle to preserve the British heritage.

Former Mayor Jones argues further that most Francophones in Moncton speak English, subscribe to English newspapers, and listen to English radio. Why

CONTRIBUTIONS
If you would like to contribute articles on any political subject matter please leave your name and number c/o Doug Bonnell at the Journal office

then should French language services have been provided at City Hall, or why should he have tolerated, while mayor, one of his aldermen speaking French at a Council meeting, or what is the point of having bilingual firemen's badges?

As noted in the article "Leonard C. Jones: The People's Choice" which appeared in the August 31, 1974 edition of Weekend Magazine, practically all of the Acadians speak English now, but they think French, and that is what Leonard Jones has never been able to accept. He says that the French culture regardless will be retained in the family unit just as the Jewish culture is. However, the Quiet Revolution in Quebec raised the consciousness of Acadians to the fact that they were being assimilated and they have since begun to agitate for measures they think necessary to preserve their heritage.

Mr. Jones still can't understand why Robert Stanfield rejected him as an official candidate for the Progressive Conservative Party. At the time, the PC Leader stated, "I can't accept Mayor Jones as a Progressive-Conservative candidate because as an officeholder, as mayor of the city of Moncton, he identified himself with efforts to prevent the French-speaking minority in Moncton from achieving equality in terms of language."

Mr. Stanfield must be given credit for having acted on the principle which he supports. Claude Borque, stated in Moncton's French language newspaper, l'Evangeline, "Mr. Stanfield's decision is the right one and must be supported by everyone who does not wish to endanger the national unity of this country."

Thus Leonard Jones currently sits as an independent member in Canada's national Parliament. He says that he isn't hampered by not belonging to a recognized party and in fact gets more questions asked and on the Order Paper than most back benchers. Mr. Jones is free to vote according to his conscience, and as he is not looking for further advancement, he is contented just to represent the people. As I left his office I had the feeling that Canada hasn't heard the last of the man who fought the Official Languages Act to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Food spiral continues

OTTAWA (CP) Food continued to be the main reason for the increase in the cost of living as price rises accelerated through 1974 at the latest rate in 26 years a 12.4 per cent December to December rate. Statistics Canada reported today.

The December report on the consumer price index showed food accounted for about 2.5 of the one per cent gain in the over all index in that month.

People in Power

This is John Gray, VP University Affairs. Believe it or not!

A PUBLIC LECTURE AND PANEL DISCUSSION
ON
"The Spirit Of China Today"
8:00 p.m. - TUES. JAN. 21.
Rm 517 JOHN WATSON HALL

GUEST SPEAKER:

PROF. W. W. SMALL

- BORN AND TRAVELLED IN CHINA
- LECTURER IN CHINESE STUDIES
AT YORK UNIVERSITY

WITH PANELISTS:

DR. J.J. DEUTSCH
DEAN EVELYN REID

EVERYONE WELCOME
COFFEE AND DONUTS SERVED
LECTURE TO BE FOLLOWED BY SMALL DISCUSSION GROUPS

CHUNG WAH CHOP SUEY

CHINESE & CANADIAN FOOD

TAKE OUT AND DELIVERY DIAL 544-6128
217 UNIVERSITY (CORNER OF WILLIAMS)

OPEN 8 AM TO MIDNIGHT
SUNDAY 10 AM TO 8 PM

THE TRICOLOR AWARD

Is the highest non-academic award that can be received
by a student at Queen's

It is presented to those individuals who have rendered valuable service in non-
athletic, extra-curricular activities.

Names of nominees may be submitted in secret, on a standard form available in the
A.M.S. Office.

All nominations must be received by Feb.
1 1975 in the A.M.S. Office. AMS Constitution
BY-LAW NO. 15

UNDER ATTACK
PANELISTS WANTED

DO YOU WANT TO BE A PANELIST?
IF SO, SEE ROSS HAMILTON IN THE GREY HOUSE AT 51 QUEEN'S CRESENT
BETWEEN 9 AM AND 6 PM.

FRIDAY JANUARY 17th through WEDNESDAY JANUARY 29th
OR LEAVE YOUR NAME AND TELEPHONE NUMBER AT THE STUDENT AFFAIRS OFFICE

SEN. KEITH DAVEY AND REV. KEN CAMPBELL
WILL BE AMONG THE GUESTS

OTHER SPEAKERS OF CONTROVERSY TO BE ANNOUNCED
THERE WILL BE TWO TAPINGS ON JAN. 29th AND 30th
IN GRANT HALL. DOORS WILL BE OPEN AT 6 P.M.
SHOW TIMES ARE AT 7 P.M. AND 8 P.M.

editorial

Students!

When cutbacks in university funding are threatening the quality of education, it is the students who are hardest hit. Despite this, the only students reacting to the situation at Queen's are those involved in Senate and the AMS, and by far the greatest effort to increase funding has been shown by administrators and Faculty.

Apathy, the "ostrich syndrome", and primarily ignorance of threats posed by the squeeze account for student non-action. Daily, however, the impact of cutbacks grows harder to ignore - as the number of cancelled periodicals subscriptions mount, as obsolete lab equipment breaks down and is not replaced and as class sizes swell.

If students believe that an excellent education depends on new books, periodicals, modern equipment, well-paid professors and small classes, then they must act now to preserve them.

The possible plans of attack are varied. Students can put ideas and energy into the Senate and AMS committees set up to explore the financial crunch. More important, they can speak to relatives, neighbours and part-time employers, and try to justify the universities' need for more money. Most vital of all, they can put pressure on candidates in the forthcoming provincial election, and then rally together and vote.

Only after understanding is action possible, and understanding must start here: it is the students who are being hit in the gut.

John Bottomley

Pub prices up?

Which do you prefer: low Pub prices for beer and liquor (50c, 60c) or higher prices and new furnishings? A Pub that operates as a service or a Pub that rakes in a large profit?

A policy split between Pub manager Brian Sterling and AMS Vice-President Peter Druxman has proved that now is the time for students to voice preferences.

Druxman, contrary to his sweeping statements made last summer, (that the Pub should make a grand 12 per cent profit,) is now fighting a price rise even though the Pub's profit level is currently very low.

Sterling, objecting to this attitude, has called Druxman "two-faced" and "hypocritical". He wants the Pub to pull in a profit, to "be more like a business".

Druxman has a point. His summer demands for high profit were made to tighten up a loose ship. Now that the Pub is running efficiently, he sees that as long as a slight profit is made, the prices should stay as low as possible.

Sterling claims to see "no reason not to raise prices. There can't be any complaint from the students."

Comments, anyone?

letters to the editor

Winter Frolic that's thaw folks

Dear Editor,

So ends another winter events week, in many ways a disappointing week for participants and organizers alike. In view of the continuing fall in the reputation of Snowball, myself and the rest of the committee decided to rename the week Winter Frolic '75. In addition we decided to run mostly indoor events such as the Stage Fright variety show, the Ukrainian Pub, and Snowshoe Shuffle. However, there were a few snowbound events planned, included were: snowsculptures, a sleigh ride and gluewein party. The sleighride was cancelled the day before because of rain. As snow became replaced with asphalt and grass the snowsculptures were the next things to be cancelled. This left the Winter Frolic committee with only three indoor events: Stage Fright, the Ukrainian Pub, and the Snowshoe Shuffle dance.

I wish to take this opportunity to extend my sincerest congratulations to the Winter Frolic Executive committee, co-ordinators of events, and all those who gave a helping hand. I also wish to extend my apologies to those who attended the Snowshoe Shuffle and found disappointment. Hopefully next year, if Winter Frolic is allowed to run again, everyone will have much better luck with the weather and timing of the events.

Sincerely,
Dave Pepper, Chairman Winter Frolic Committee

Dear Editor,

I'm not one to gripe, but I have to admit that while more fortunate friends were lusting at Wanderlust, I was stranded at the Snowshoe Shuffle, not even shuffling.

The groups: Audiomaster and Devotion, may have designed the music for concert listening.

(although I'm rather dubious about that). But they were sad excuses for an 'alternative to Wanderlust', especially at $2.75 for admission. To those responsible, get your rears in gear, we want dances where you can do more than just shuffle. Sincerely,
A. Simpson

Dear Editor,

I am one of the many who, being an ardent blues fan, attended the John Lee Hooker concert on Sunday under the mistaken impression that I was in for a good hour and a half or so of music that I have come to regard as particular to that man. It came as a shock, therefore, upon the start of the concert, to realize that a group called Phoenix was to play for the first half of the night. Although their music was generally pretty good, it was obvious that no attempt had been made on the part of whoever was hiring the band to obtain one which had any remote resemblance to the attraction of the night in their style of music.

The main objection, however, is the fact that nowhere (and I have a number of ads for the concert) was there any indication that one was to expect anything other than a full night of John Lee Hooker. Phoenix, or any other band besides the one with Hooker, was never mentioned anywhere, or if it was, it must have been in so obscure a place that I missed it totally. I am interested to know why no one thought it necessary to mention that Phoenix would begin the concert and play for an hour while Hooker would simply play for 45 minutes. One would think that some semblance of truth would make itself apparent in these simple matters.

Petter Stoicheff

Editor in chief - Suzanne Sherkin
Managing Editor - Dan McClelland
Business Manager - Terry Collins
News Editor - Sarah Yarnell
Features Editors - Laurie Gibson,
Wendy Reynolds
Arts Editors - Kerry White, Peter
Haworth
Sports Editors - Lyn Alwood,
Suzanne Jackson
Backpage - Val Cotton
Classifieds - Trish Brooks
Photo Editor - Jon Wilmer
Wal's Happin' - Mark Rosemary,
Jennifer
Which Way Canada - Doug 'wrong' way' Bonnell

Essentials - Mike Creagen
Glenda, Nancy Flood, Larry Pick,
Leslie Gaukrodger, Meg Bal,
Temley, Ann Robertson, Jan
Wager, Fud, Peter Case, Ernie
Sparks, Chris Woods, Ben
Gleberman, Dave C. Barb,
Glenn, Larry Woods

Founded in 1972 and published on Tuesdays and Fridays during the academic year by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University, Incorporated, Kingston, Ontario. Founding member of Canadian University Press. Editorial opinions expressed are those of the editor and not necessarily those of the AMS nor the University. Telephone (416) 547-2404. Printed by gnomes at the St. Lawrence Printing Co. Ltd., Prescott, Ontario. Lithographed in USA on Canadian newsprint.

Common law for the common people

by Larry Pick

"Law grind the poor and rich men rule the law". (Oliver Goldsmith)

Just recently in this city a young man of 16 was arrested for joyriding snowmobiles. He was charged with theft and kept in custody until his bail hearing. Under the newly reformed system of bail in Canada, the Crown, if it wishes to keep an accused in jail pending trial, must show that detention is necessary to ensure the accused's attendance at trial or that detention is necessary in the public interest. Since this was the first time the young lad had been charged with an offence as an adult, there was nothing to indicate that he would not show up for his trial after being released and nothing to show that his freedom would be a danger to the public. But on taking the stand at the bail hearing, the young man indicated he had nowhere to go on release and he felt he could not return home. Somewhat puzzled by the problem, the Justice of the Peace decided to deny bail and send the accused to the Quinte Regional Detention Center. At this moment he remains there awaiting trial. Was justice done? Should this sixteen year old be in jail just because he could not think of, or society could not provide, a better alternative?

Another example. Have you ever opened your front door to a high-pressure salesman who proceeded to convince you to buy a subscription to a magazine only to find that it will cost you a king's ransom. What can you do?

There is an Ontario law which gives you the right to cancel within a forty-eight hour period any contract that is not signed at the seller's permanent place of business. This rescission may be for any reason or for no reason at all. In addition, if the two day cooling-off period has already passed you are not necessarily without legal remedy. If for instance, there has been a fraudulent misrepresentation on the part of the salesman, you may still be able to rescind the contract.

The above cases are just two examples of the types of problems which are the concern of the Queen's Law Students' Legal Aid Society. This organization, which has been operating now for five years, is composed of interested students in the Faculty of Law at this university. Members of the Society work on a volunteer basis to provide legal services to people who cannot afford lawyers and who do not qualify for a certificate under the Ontario Legal Aid Plan. The goals of the Society are to provide comprehensive legal help to the poor community and to promote awareness of the law and the legal process. While most of the time and effort of legal aid members is taken up with the actual delivery of legal services, in the long run the task of acquainting people with their rights is no less important. In the few years that Queen's Law Students Legal Aid Society has functioned there has developed a strong dedication among its members towards the interests of people who cannot command the economic resources necessary to hire lawyers.

Perhaps a short account of legal aid in Ontario would be helpful to indicate why and how there has developed a tradition of student legal aid at Queen's. Previous to 1966 there was no organized system of governmental assistance for legal problems. Individuals who needed help or advice but who could not meet legal fees were assisted by those lawyers who were prepared to give their time on a voluntary basis. However, non-paying clients could not expect their cases to receive much priority from a busy lawyer. People appeared in criminal courts and were tried and convicted without legal representation. With the increasing amount of legislation in the post-World War II era, the inadequacies of lawyers' voluntary assistance became apparent. There grew up the philosophy that legal services should not be a preserve of the rich but available to

In 1966 the provincial government set up the Ontario Legal Aid Plan to be administered by the Law Society of Ontario. The province is organized into areas of which has an area director. In Frontenac County the area director is Mr. D. G. Cunningham, 38 Clarence St. The Plan operates more or less in this way: citizens who think they have legal problems make application to the area director. He decides whether or not the problem is one for which assistance is available. Then a means test is applied to the applicant to ensure that his income is above a certain level. If it is not and if there is a substantial legal problem, a legal aid certificate is granted. This entitles the recipient to a lawyer of his choice with the guarantee that the Legal Aid Plan will pay the lawyer's fees (except to a special system of rates set up by the Plan). Lawyers who wish to make their services available to the Plan join a panel that is organized by the area director. Upwards of fifty per cent of Ontario lawyers participate. It is a feature of the Plan that assistance is rendered by independent practising lawyers in the county. The provincial government has rejected alternative approaches of hiring poverty lawyers or setting up a multitude of clinics.

While the Ontario Legal Aid Plan has operated with a moderate degree of success, it has many shortcomings which are soon recognized by students in the Faculty of Law at Queen's. First and foremost, it is that it is only geared to assist the larger civil and criminal cases that arise. Certificates are granted for charges of murder, rape, robbery and theft. In general, for careless driving, intoxication in a public place and possession of marijuana (first offence). The same applies in civil law. You can get a certificate if you are being sued in court but not if you're being sued or with in Small Claims Court. There is therefore a gap between the problems that must be handled by the Ontario Legal Aid Plan. The gap is significant because many of the problems of people in the lower income brackets fall outside the scope of the Plan. Out of half a million dollars are a rarity to the disputes with merchants or landlords in the area of two or three hundred dollars seem to be pending.

Bandaid treatment

A second weakness of the Plan is that it makes no attempt to organize people which it serves. Cases are handled on a one-by-one basis by a large number of lawyers. Cases may be conducted in a professional manner but there is no attempt to consider long term interest of the poor community as a whole. The Plan suffers from problems of continuity. Additionally lawyers have acted to organize this so as to advance and protect their interests. The wealthy use lawyers for estate planning. Labour unions utilize lawyers to protect the rights of organized working men. The poor however, are still without legal representation. The Ontario Legal Aid

Fred Vandriel

Plan could take steps to remedy the shortcomings explained here. It chooses not to. Essentially, it offers band-aid treatment: adhesive for each wound as it appears.

Finally, the Ontario Legal Aid Plan has no ongoing program to educate people on their legal rights. This area of the law is generally known as Preventative Law. It deals with the methods and techniques in promoting awareness of the law so that common people can avoid legal problems before they arise. Or, once a problem has come up, preventative law aims to ensure that this is properly recognized and that the right steps are taken to find a remedy. As of yet the Plan has not entered the field of Preventative Law. Perhaps the government and the profession might still heed the words of the writer of St. Luke: "Woe unto you, lawyers! for ye have taken away the key of knowledge." (x 52).

In recognition of some of the shortcomings of the Ontario Plan a group of students and professors in the Faculty of Law got together in 1969 to organize a student legal aid society. The purpose of the society would be to fill the gap left by the government program, to ensure that nobody with a legal problem in the Kingston area would go unaided due to inability to afford legal counsel. Student legal aid, it was intended, would act, on the one hand, to complement the plan and on the other, to undertake an ongoing program of study into the legal needs of the poor. In February, 1970, the Dean of Law made formal application to the Law Society for acceptance of the proposals. In March 1970, Convocation of the Law Society gave its approval to the Queen's Law Students' Legal Aid Society pursuant to enabling provisions in the Ontario Legal Aid Act.

The first step the Legal Aid Society took was to open up a clinic at 200 Montreal St. This clinic has been in continuous operation ever since. The location chose for the office was important. Since Confederation (and probably before that) North Kingston has been less fortunate in its development than other areas of the city. At present most of the hard core poverty in Kingston lies in the area bounded by Princess, on the south, Division St. on the west and 401 on the north. This is where you find the unemployment, the welfare cases, the long term alcoholics and the substandard housing. Rather than sitting back at the University and waiting for cases to appear at the Law School, the Society decided to get out into the city and leave behind the somewhat imposing atmosphere which the academic community might present to prospective clients.

The decision was a wise one. Cases soon began flowing into the Montreal St. clinic. The Montreal St. clinic has always been and still remains the largest source of demand for the services of law students in the Society. The records show that many of the clients assisted in 1974 had received help in previous years and were returning as new problems arose.

Since 1970 the Queen's Law Students' Legal Aid Society has expanded and developed until today it is an organization of 155 students that offers a variety of services, publications, projects and special advice. The experience has been that the "gap" in the provincial plan perceived in 1970 actually was a vast reservoir of untapped legal need. What follows is a brief summary of the services and activities of the Society. It should be recalled that all advice is provided voluntarily by student members

200 Montreal Street Clinic: Our two offices here are manned every evening from Monday to Thursday, 7 to 9 p.m. and on Friday afternoon from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. Students are available for advice, interviews, to take on cases and to man the telephones.

Diversified services

Macdonald Hall Offices: General administration of the Society is carried out from here. There is a small library for research and an interview room. Clients may speak to Legal Aid members with or without an appointment. Queen's students who wish advice are encouraged to go to 200 Montreal St. because of the regular hours of service. The convenience of the campus office may be a counterbalancing fact however.

Family Court Project: Every day of the week on which Provincial Court Family Division sits there is a student acting as assistant to Duty Counsel in the courthouse on Clarence St. The student has training in Family Law and special training for the project, which operates under the guidance of His Honour Judge Thompson. The student's function is to act for people who arrive at court unrepresented by legal counsel. Students give advice, ask for remands and represent parties in trials and hearings.

Criminal Court Project: Initiated in the summer of 1973, Operating along the same lines as the Family Court Project, it involves a student appearing as assistant to Duty Counsel each day that Provincial Courts Criminal Division sits. Society members give preliminary advice, assist in taking pleas, remands and conducting trial hearings.

Belleville Legal Aid Project: Nineteen society members operate a legal aid clinic in Belleville Ontario open on Tuesday and Thursday evenings of each week. The services offered here are similar to those at the Montreal St. clinic.

Judgment Summons Project: In Small Claims Court on Judgement Summons days, a student appears "as a friend of the court" (by permission of the Judge) to advise debtors who arrive unrepresented by counsel.

Public Information and Speakers Bureau: Students write articles on poverty law and legal aid for the local daily and weekly newspapers. Students give public lectures to high school students, consumer groups, community groups, etc. Anyone who would like a law student to speak on a legal matter of interest may get in touch with the Macdonald Hall office at 547-2684.

Publications: (1) "You and the Law", a 46 page booklet for the layman explaining areas of the law that most closely affect the average citizen. There has been wide distribution to educational institutions and community organizations. Over 12,000 copies were distributed of the 1973 edition alone. The booklet may be obtained in single copies for free at any of the Student Legal Aid Offices. It may be purchased at cost from the A.M.S. office in the Union when a substantial number of copies are needed. (2) "Legal Aid Manual". This is a new publication that has just been printed. It covers the wide area of problems that students encounter: poverty law and continues essays on substantive law and procedure. It is particularly comprehensive in areas such as Landlord-Tenant Act, minor criminal offences and procedure in Provincial Court. Criminal Defence Over 500 pages in length it will be on sale for $5.50 (a steal) next week in Macdonald Hall.

Cable TV Programming: Members of the Belleville Legal Aid Project have produced several programs for viewers in the Belleville area. Short documentaries are now being planned for Kingston Cable TV. It is hoped that The Society can make a greater use of the mass media in the near future.

The above account outlines the services provided by the Society. What type of cases does it handle? What assistance may Queen's students expect? In 1974 over 1200 cases and inquiries were handled in the Legal Aid clinics alone. In 1974 the statistics should show upwards of 1300. Approximately 23 of the cases are civil. Of these a large proportion relate to Landlord and Tenant Law - the drafting of leases, the settlement of disputes, defense of landlord suits in Small Claims Court. Other groups of cases concern Family Law (separation agreements, divorce, child custody, matrimonial disputes), and contracts, school boards, conditional sales agreements, loans, etc. In social security law, Society members have handled problems and appeals on welfare law, unemployment insurance, Unemployment and Workers' Compensation.

In the Criminal area, the Society will defend cases that proceed by way of summary conviction. Law students do not have the right to handle charges that proceed by indictment. Offences that arise from the following sets have been defended: Criminal Code, Highway Traffic Act, Liquor Control Act, Narcotic Control Act and the Municipal Act (city by-laws). Occasionally a private prosecution is undertaken.

Queen's students make up about one quarter of the clientele of the Society. In 1973 about 300 were assisted. Problems ranged from Landlord-Tenant to intoxication in a public place to suits for unpaid wages on summer jobs. Most Queen's students have no problems qualifying for student legal aid. In the sense that they cannot afford lawyers. Occasionally they are refused as was the case when one wished to sue for negligent repairs of his Porsche.

The future of students legal aid in Kingston appears good for the moment, but is unclear in the long run. As long as the Ontario Legal Aid Plan does not come close to fulfilling the demand for legal services there will be law students who will work to aid the underprivileged in this community. There is much work that still remains to be done. Just north of Kingston and in much of Eastern Ontario there are pockets of rural poverty as bad as anywhere in this province. The Ontario Legal Aid Plan has made no attempt to offer its services in rural areas. Some members of Student Legal Aid at Queen's look forward to introducing their services to rectify this glaring inadequacy. Perhaps some day the province will see fit to undertake complete reform of its system so as to provide full legal assistance to all of those in need.

Fred Vandriel

Euripides' Medea

alan mann

Scenes from the Drama
Dept.'s production of Medea, directed by Bernard
Burkom

alan mann

alan mann

alan mann

A performance of Euripides' Medea will highlight a tribute by the Queen's University Department of Drama to honour the work of Herman Voaden, the well-known experimentalist in the Theatre Workshop tradition.

The performance will begin with remarks from the Lieutenant Governor of Ontario, the Honourable Pauline McGibbon. The opening night performance begins at 8:00 p.m. Sunday 19 January in Convocation Hall, the Old Arts Building. After the performance, an exhibition commemorating the work of Voaden will be on display in the foyer of Con Hall.

Voaden is well known for his workshop and experimental theatres and for his work to develop Canadian theatre. He graduated from Queen's with an M.A. in 1926. In 1934 a summer school in drama was established at Queen's, one of the first of such courses in Canada. Voaden directed the course for three years. He is the author of several drama anthologies -- the latest, Look Both Ways: Theatre Experience, will be published by the Macmillan Company this year.

The production of Medea will continue from Sunday till Saturday 20 January. For ticket information, inquire at the Drama Desk, or phone 547-6291.

alan mann

Mime actor Paul Gaulin uses pantomime to imitate a monkey

Paul Gaulin master of mime

The Division of Concerts' Vibrant Stage series continues this Saturday with a presentation by the Paul Gaulin Mime Company. One of Canada's foremost mimes, Gaulin has studied with both Marcel Marceau and Etienne Decroux -- the founder of Modern Mime and Marcel Marceau's teacher. Gaulin founded the first mime school in North America in 1972, offering full courses in Decroux, Marceau, and Gaulin techniques. He has appeared at Toronto Workshop Theatre, Toronto Actors Theatre and the Theatre du Petit Bonheur.

Critics and fellow mimes alike have acclaimed his performances. "A great power of projection, definitely a mime with poetic grace. He is the Busto Keaton of mime." -- David McLaughlin, Toronto Daily Star.

Tickets are available at the Division of Concerts Box Office at the Agnes Etherington Art Centre.

Canadian Opera Company

presents

La Boheme

in English

with orchestra

Tuesday, January 28

8 pm

Grand Theatre

Tickets: $5.75, $4.75

Limited number of student tickets at $3.50

Tickets at Box office

sponsored by Canadian Federation of University Women

COMMODORE HOTEL

840 PRINCESS ST.

The Commodore Hotel at 840 Princess St. is pleased to offer all Students of Queen's, St. Lawrence and MacArthur College a preferred rate for room accommodation for their Parents or friends during the 74-75 term when they have occasion to visit Kingston.

NIGHTLY ENTERTAINMENT
in our Lounge

THIS WEEK: "Mid Win"

Amateur Night every Wednesday

Queen's Students Welcome
In Our Lounge

FESTIVAL 75

January 28 - February 1st

FILM: entries for film contest will be accepted until January 19th. Prizes $50, $25, $10 maximum 30 minutes contact Mike 544-7098

ART: demonstrators for craft. Workshop and art for exhibition still required Inez - 546-5370

PHOTOGRAPHY: Prints to be exhibited will be accepted at Teddy Tin Can. Graphics bottom of student union.

Western Thought
and Eastern Cultures

The Donald Mathers
Memorial Lectures
Presented by Professor Ninian Smart
University of
Lancaster, U.K.

"What should we make of India?"

January 21 Dupuis Auditorium 8:00 pm

"What should We make of China and Japan?"

January 22 Stirling B Auditorium 8:00 pm

"What Should We make of the Neighbours of Christianity?"

January 23 Dupuis Auditorium 8:00 p.m.

From the sports desk ...

Home Action

Friday
Basketball: Queen's plays host to Laurentian this weekend as the Women's teams meet in the Bartlett gym at 6 pm while the men fight for a win at 8:30, also in Bartlett gymnasium.

Saturday
Badminton: A Men's invitational meet is being held here this weekend in the Ross gym, however times are unavailable.

Basketball: 6:15 pm sees the Gaels against Ryerson, followed by the Gaels again taking on the Laurentian team at 8:30. Both these games can be seen in the Bartlett gym.

Fencing: Queen's Dual or Tri meet will be running all day in the Bews-Dance Studio.

Figure Skating: take the opportunity Friday night from 8-11 and Saturday morning from 8-5 to see the Queen's 4th Annual Invitational Figure Skating Competition.

Gymnastics: The largest men's gymnastics meet ever held at Queen's will take place in the Bartlett gymnasium.

Hockey: The Women's Ice Hockey team will tangle with McMaster on the ice at 5:30 p.m., prior to the Men's game against Laurentian at 8:00.

Away Action

Curling: Toronto Men's Invitational, January 18.

Badminton: Ryerson Mixed Invitational, January 19.

Women's Crosscountry Skiing: relays at Huntsville, Jan. 18.

Men's Crosscountry Skiing: Toronto Day Relays, Jan. 18.

Fencing: Part II of the Women's eastern division OWIAA championships at Carleton, January 18.

Speedswimming: Ottawa Invitational.

Track & Field: Co-Ed Cornell Invitational, January 18.

Wrestling: R.M.C. Invitational, January 18.

Squash: York Invitational, January 17 and 18.

Men's Volleyball: Queen's at Ottawa, January 18.

Women's Volleyball: Waterloo Invitational, Jan. 18 and 19.

Sports Editorial

Sports - not just for jocks

by Lyn Atwood Journal Sports Editor

As a person involved in sports (up to my ears) I realize that there are many people on campus who are stolidly anti-jock, anti-athletics, and general non-supporters of anything which could ever have any remote connection with "sports".

Oddly enough, most of the people that I have met, in dealing with fellow students who represent Queen's on various teams are not of the so called 'dumb jock' variety at all.

It's true that athletes have an affinity with one another and often cliques evolve. However, it is not necessarily the "birds of a feather, flock together" concept which the general populous (individuals interested in things other than athletics) would often like to believe.

It seems to me only natural that ones closest friends would be those people with whom one shares the HOURS of excruciatingly painful practises, the agonies and tears of defeat (and believe me there are many tears), and the absolute rush that accompanies the end of a season when it is epitomized with a win.

However, the purpose of this article was not to indulge in an argument discussing the pro's and con's of jocks or non-jocks.

I would like to invite all members of the University at large to come and witness one, or some, or all of the 11 athletic events which are taking place this weekend at Queen's.

It seems to me that the male caucus as well as the female caucus (otherwise known as Women's Lib) would enjoy seeing some excellent hockey and basketball by both the Gaels and Gaels on Friday and Saturday. As well, the events line-up includes gymnastics, fencing, badminton, and figure skating—these latter hold some aesthetic value as well as being classified as 'sports'.

I have been asked in particular to put in a plug for the Hockey Gaels which brings up an interesting point. Crowds attending the home hockey games of our Golden Gaels have risen from about 15 to 50 over the past year—that's people! This is poor (to say the least). Their hockey is excellent. We are not looking for a statistical report on physical equality concerning man and women however there ARE some girls on the Queen's team who would be more than capable of taking on the guys (in hockey.)

League standings indicate what should be common knowledge by now—that our own Golden Gaels are tied for 1st place in the OWIAA hockey standings. The team with which they are presently tied are none other than the team which they are meeting Saturday night in the Jock Harty Arena. The big game is at 5:30 and we hope that the masses will venture forth out of the woodwork (or schoolwork) to cheer the Gaels on as they skate to victory over the Mac Marauders in what will surely be the most exciting game of the year.

Men's Gymnastics

"Outstanding" will be the word of the day on Saturday January 18, when Queen's hosts its biggest gymnastics meet. The competition will not only consist of an outstanding number of entries but also of outstanding gymnastic ability. A total of ten teams are planning to take part in the meet, including entries from Ontario, Quebec and Nova Scotia.

Coach Dan Mene is hopeful his team will do well, forecasting a place in the top three team standings. However, with the high calibre of gymnasts entering the meet, the job of capturing a top place standing will not be an easy one.

Outstanding performances are expected from all of our Queen's competitors including Jamie Archibald, our seasoned veteran, and Grey Leeworthy, Glen Koshurba, and Roy Nakashima, our skilled freshmen performers. It is our hope that everyone will have the opportunity to see what should be a truly "Outstanding" performance.

Hockey Problems; 3rd. loss

by Peter Watts
Journal Sports Writer

What started out two weeks ago as a good year for the Queen's hockey Gaels has turned into something of a disappointment. They have dropped three games in a row, now, the latest a 6-5 loss to visiting St. Lawrence University from Canton, New York. Again it was a case of only playing thirty or forty minutes of hockey instead of a full game that caused the defeat.

It was a typical scramble right from the opening face-off. By the time the Gaels woke up midway through the first period, the Larries had jumped out in front 2-0 on goals by Brian Bennett and Tom Faludi. The Gaels got one of those back when Earl Moulton scored before the end of the first period.

The second period threatened to become a rout as the visitors got four goals from the sticks of Kevin Campbell, Bill Dillabough, Jeff Dillon and Dan Weir. The Gaels, however, fought back on goals by Bill Van Camp, Steve Gross, and Frank Coffey. Coffey got the lone goal of the final period but it wasn't enough. Steve Kidd played the first half but after allowing five goals he was pulled in favour of Clyde Harris who allowed only the final marker.

One does not have to look too far to find reasons for the Gaels' lack of punch. Injuries to Ron Shepherd and John Cerre kept both players out of the lineup on Tuesday. We could see Shepherd tomorrow night when the Gaels meet the Laurentian Voyageurs at 8 p.m. at the Harty Arena in what shapes up as a battle for the fourth and final play-off spot in the east division. But Cerre, who is still recovering from a separated shoulder suffered late in November, will not return until at least next weekend and possibly not even then. Chris Clark played against St. Lawrence but is still carrying some plaster on a chipped bone in his thumb and therefore was not 100 per cent effective. Mark Pentland saw his first action on Tuesday night and looked competent enough to warrant getting another shot.

Beyond the injury situation however, there is something lacking in the Tricolour squad. There doesn't seem to be much drive in the team as a whole, although perhaps that is not a fair assessment; certainly there are several individuals who are making a good effort. But it's not an all-out effort by every player for the full sixty minutes and that is what's needed if the hockey season is to last longer than February 14th.

We'll see tomorrow night if Lady Luck will shine once more on the Gaels' fortunes. The Laurentian Voyageurs and the Gaels have been staging a bitter rivalry the last three or four years. There is no love lost between the two teams, doubtless because one or the other is likely to be eliminated by playoff time. The Voyageurs are coming off a tough 5-4 loss to the GeeGees suffered last weekend in Ottawa so they'll be looking to move into fourth place with a win over the Gaels. At present, the Tricolour is a point ahead. It could be a good game and we hope to see a good crowd on hand. Game time Saturday night is 8 p.m.

Hockey Gaels score the 2nd. in their 6-5 loss to St. Lawrence U. from Canton, N.Y. this week.

SALE
20% OFF

EVERYTHING

DOMUS
BROCK ST. BETWEEN
KING & WELLINGTON

SALE ENDS
TOMORROW

You don't have to dance all night...

Just come to the danceathon sponsored by CAMP OUTLOOK. (You don't even need a date!) Bring a smile and a quarter (per 1/2 hour danced)!

x THIS FRIDAY NIGHT!
in GRANT HALL

Camp Outlook Danceathon

(Free food after 1 a.m. Prizes all night).

Dixie Ice means more than Chicken

Try our:
Seafood
Scallops
Fish N' Chips
Onion Rings
Apple Turnovers
Fresh Salads and more!

Call 542-4755 for delivery (in Kingston)
50¢ charge. Orders $8.00 or Over FREE DELIVERY
Min. Order - $2.00
Dixie Lee Take-Out

700 Princess Street

Queen's University
Music Department

THE ORGAN IN SOLO AND ENSEMBLE

ORGANIST: DAVID CAMERON

ASSISTING ARTISTS: Sylvia Cutham, soprano; Randall Marsh, baritone; John Palmer & Fred Henderson, trumpets; Virginia Munde, Horn; Maria Cooper, trombone; James Hipkin, tuba.

GRANT HALL 3:00 p.m. SUNDAY, JAN. 19
ADMISSION FREE

George Bailey
sporting goods
40 Princess Street, K7L 1A4
Kingston, Ontario
Tel. 612-547-2283

You make the deal -
Volk and Atomic skis
Nordica and Henke Boots
Woods, Topher & Actra clothing
plus accessories
Put together a package for yourself,
we're reasonable people.

ELROND COLLEGE BOARD

Applications are now being received for AMS nominees to the Elrond College Inc. Board of Directors.

Application forms can be picked up in the AMS office and are due by 12:00 on Monday the 27th of February.

Figure Skating - a beautiful sport

by Peter Watts
Journal Sports Writer

Figure skating is one of the most graceful and artistic athletic activities known to man. It combines music and dance with individual ability and interpretation to produce a smooth performance that is very beautiful to watch. It requires tremendous personal dedication and constant practice of routines over and over again. Seldom are there any material awards; yet perhaps that is one of the reasons why applause and the satisfaction of knowing that one has done well still hold great meaning for participants.

Queen's University has had a figure skating team for the past four seasons and in each of the last two years, the team has captured the OWIAA figure skating championship. Most of last year's team has returned and Queen's supporters will get their first opportunity to see this year's team in the annual Queen's Invitational to be held tomorrow starting at 9:30 a.m. in the Harty Arena. Teams from McMaster, Toronto, York and Queen's will take part. This is the first year that York has had a figure skating team. McGill also competes in OWIAA competition; however, they will not be represented at this year's invitational.

Competition tomorrow will begin with the junior ladies dance to be followed by senior ladies, mixed, and open dances. The singles events from novice to senior will be next and the invitational will conclude with the ladies and mixed pairs.

Queen's will have several entries in each of the events as coach Gail Hiron evaluates the team and prepares to make her final selections for the team that will compete in the OWIAA championships next month at McMaster. Only one entry per event per university is allowed in the finals. Headlining this year's team is Marion Spence in the senior ladies singles. Marion finished a very close second in the OWIAA finals last spring and Beth Peters, who won the event last year, is coaching at Toronto this year instead of skating. Other Queen's performers who are expected to do well are Sue Drowley, who has owned the intermediate singles crown for the last two years, Janet Cox and Debbie Milliken in the junior pairs, Sue Drowley and Kathy Martin in the senior ladies pairs, and Mary Bythell in the junior singles. There are several promising new faces as well including Patti Shirokoff and Marilyn Snell, both of whom have skated previously in local competitions.

With choreography being such an important part of figure skating, coach Gail Hiron has been joined by Josef Riha who has had considerable experience in structuring dance programs. It will be interesting to see the results and we hope that a good crowd will be on hand to do just that. The annual Queen's Invitational Figure Skating Meet:

tomorrow morning starting at 9:30 in the Harty Arena.

photos by - Keith Bourns and John Bottomley

WHAT WOULD YOU SAY?

IF IT WERE YOUR LAST OPPORTUNITY TO ADDRESS MANKIND
WHAT WOULD YOU SAY?

"THE LAST LECTURE SERIES"

is a series of informal evenings combining listening and discussion
THIS YEAR'S SPEAKERS ARE

- |           |  |
|-----------|--|
| JAN. 22 - | Dr. R.H. ClarkDept of Chemical Engineering                   |
| JAN. 29 - | Dr. E. AndrewsFormerly of Theology Dept.                     |
| FEB. 5 -  | Mr. J. CourtrightVice principal, Information and Development |
| FEB. 12 - | Dr. A.M. TaylorPolitical Studies and Geography Depts.        |
| FEB. 26 - | Mr. J. WhyteFaculty of Law                                   |
| MAR. 5 -  | Dr. T.C. WillettSociology Dept.                              |

TIME: 7:15 p.m. - McNEIL COMMON HOUSE
CO-SPONSORED BY AMS ED. COMM. AND I.R.C.

Close doesn't count ...

by Alps Boniwell
Journal Sports Writer

Whence last the basketball Gaels enjoyed the luxury of this column they were hanging up their Converse for 1974 after easing out a 71-70 victory over Carleton; a tremendously exciting game that did a lot to bring basketball back to Queen's and Norm Hagarty to the Whig Standard. But that was last year.

Last Tuesday night in Ottawa the Gaels played their first contest of the new year against those same Carleton Ravens, but this time it'll be two Ravens going to press and on to local heroism. Paul Armstrong hit for 25 and Carleton's centre, for convenience sake, known as "Kaz", scored 29 producing a 73-70 win for the home side. It was unfortunate that the Gaels couldn't pull this one out of the old tam (or whatever) because they staged a comeback attempt, which had it succeeded would be comparable to Nixon being re-elected in '76 along with Agnew. What happened was that Carleton held a seemingly commanding 73-54 lead with just over four minutes to play. The game appeared to be ice; but as ABC's portable windbag is often given to say "Not So". The Gaels began to press furiously, sending four men to the boards at every opportunity, stealing back, blocking shots and more importantly scoring. But the rally fell just short to the thunderous applause of the Carleton fans and the Gaels fell to a 3-3 record. For Queen's Christie and Garrod had 16 points, Keck and Hagarty 14. Games this Friday against Ryerson and Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m. against Laurentian are musts. A good turnout would be appreciated and hopefully rewarded.

Wic-ly News

Women's Internurals

Note to all X-Country Skiers and snowshoers: X-country skiing and snowshoeing has been postponed until a little more snow covers the ground. Keep watching for further details on the bulletin board in the Women's locker room.

SQUASH: All those wishing to take part in the self-run squash tournament must come to the Clinic on Wed. Jan. 22 from 7:30 - 9:30 p.m. The Tournament draw will be made at that time. All beginners are welcome to come and learn more about the game and take part in the Tournament if they wish. Further questions can be directed to Willa Henry at 549-5174.

CURLING: Due to unfortunate circumstances beyond our control, curling has to be postponed until Sunday Feb. 2, from 12-2 p.m. As well Feb. 9 & 23 (from 12-2 p.m.) are now reserved at the Kingston Curling Club just behind the Phys Ed Centre. The Curling Convent is Kathy Keely who can be reached at 544-7065. Keep your asses in gear with WIC!

Bews News

Men's Internurals

by Carl Fitzpatrick,
Journal Sports Writer

(Interfaculty News) Special!!!

Last weekend saw the introduction of a new Interfaculty Hockey format. In past years all interfaculty sports have been league play, however this year, M.I.A.C. voted to change the structure of competition from league to tournament play.

This decision has been very well received, and because of the new format, competition between all eight faculties has been condensed to a couple of days instead of stretching it over a few weeks. This procedure has increased the calibre of play and interest in interfaculty sports. The interfaculty Hockey Tournament this year included all eight faculties. Teams were made up of hockey players from every year except in case of P.H.E., grad society and education. These teams, because of their structure included the best players within their faculty.

Arts-Science faculty undefeated in tournament play, were the champions of the tournament, beating Law in a see-saw battle that saw the lead change throughout the game. However, in the late stages of the third period, Artsci outscored the Law team 3-1 and holding on to a 5-3 victory.

Law, the opponents of Artsci in the first round, lost 6-4, but returned to second round play beating the Grads 5-1, and in 3rd round play beating the Commerce team 5-2 assuring a berth in the final game. Final results of the tournament are as follows: Round 1: PHE 3 - Meds 1, Comm 7 - Engineers 3; Artsci 6 - Law 4, Grads 4 - Education 2, Round 11: Comm 7 - Meds 3, Artsci 3 - Education 1, PHE 2 - Engineers 1, Law 5 - Grads 1, Round 111: Artsci 2 - PHE 0, Law 5 - Comm 2, Round IV: Artsci 5 - Law 3.

At this time congratulations are in order for Peter Watts and Jim Henderson who coached the Champions and brought Artsci their first victory in Commerce Cup play. Thanks to all the players, coaches and managers; the arena attendants and a special thanks to Mrs. Sue Bolton and the MIAC members.

REC NEWS

The following programmes are cancelled because of intercollegiate events which will be held during the dates and times shown.

Jack Harty Arena

Friday, January 17 - Recreation Skating

- 10:30 to 11:20 p.m.
Saturday, January 18 - Family Skating

- 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon

Saturday, January 18 - Recreation Skating

- 4:30 p.m. to 5:20 p.m.

Wednesday, January 29 - Recreation Skating

- 8:30 to 9:20 p.m.

Thursday, January 30 - All programmes are cancelled for the cutting Friday, January 31 and fitting of new floorboards for the Arena Saturday, February 1 because of an A.M.S. concert, which is to Sunday, February 2 be held during the evening of Saturday, Monday, February 3 February 1.

Swimming Pool

Saturday, February 1

- Family Swimming
- 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon

- Recreation Swimming
- 4:30 p.m. to 6:00 p.m.

Show Her The Way You Feel

with a Petite Diamond Ring
from

Brock Jewellers

Love diamond ring
Set in 10k yellow gold

$42.00

THE DIAMOND PEOPLE
BROCK
JEWELLERS
161 Princess St.

- GREB-KODIAK BOOTS-

Waterproof, Insulated, Plain or Steel Toe.

Sizes 4 to 13

Always Your Size in Stock at the Best Price

LARRY'S

Men's Wear at
354 King St., East

Just 3 Doors from Princess St.

SCIENCE'44 CO-OP

Open house! 130 Earl St.

Noon - 4 pm

Party! 309 University Ave.

9 pm -

Both: Sat. Jan. 18.

Bite the one you love

STEAK & STUFF

LICENCED DINING ROOM 1399 Princess (near the station)

AUNT LUCY'S RESTAURANTS

SPECTRUM
Lecture Series
Co-sponsored by AMS and Artsci 78

January 21

1. Dr. Crowder, Dept. of History
"Multum in Parvo" or "What you find at Queens"
2. Dr. Watts, Principal
"The University and Government Control"

January 28

1. Dr. Uffen, Dean of Applied Science
"The Education of the Professional"
2. Dr. Sinclair, Dean of Arts and Science
"The Education of the Person" or "We do not fill Slots"

February 4

1. Dr. Breslow, Dept. of Drama
"The Performing Arts in the University: Yes or No?"
2. Keith Norton, Alderman
"Queen's and Kingston"

February 11

1. Dr. Taylor, Dept. of Mathematics
"The Role of Research in the University"
2. Dr. Franks, Dept. of Politics
"Student Activism in the University"

7:30 pm Ban Righ Common Room
Coffee and Donuts to follow

PRICELESS... WITHIN REASON

Precious diamonds do not have to cost a fortune. We can help you to select a fine diamond that you can afford. Regardless of your financial status, we can offer a superb diamond that will thrill you... and never leave you flat.

KINNEAR d'ESTERRE
JEWELLERS

168 PRINCESS STREET
KINGSTON, ONTARIO

BACKPAGE

OTTAWA — Statistics Canada has put forth a new and discouraging list of statistics. Canada approached the new year with inflation running unchecked at 12.4 per cent and food prices 17.1 per cent higher than a year ago. The inflation rate which was calculated on consumer prices in December was 9.5 per cent higher than that for 1973. The unemployment rate of 6.1 per cent is nearly the highest in two years.

The last time Canadians ended a year with such a soaring rate of inflation was in the immediate postwar period. The consumer Price Index was up to 14.6 per cent in December 1947 and at the end of 1949, it was 14.5 per cent.

The rapid increase in food prices accounted for about 40 per cent of the over-all increase in the price index and higher housing costs contributed another 25 per cent.

TORONTO — A report of 40 million surplus eggs prompted a meeting of Canadian Egg Marketing Agency officials on Wednesday. The number of excess eggs is growing by 15 million per week, a rate which will make necessary the destruction of many by the summer. The consumer Price Index was up to situation is expected to be worse than last year, when 28 million eggs went bad in storage. CEMA is reported to be urging Ottawa to ban further imports of eggs from the USA, for these imports are apparently forcing wholesale egg prices below cost.

ELLIOT LAKE — Negligent mining practices and inadequate enforcement of safety standards have been blamed for the high incidence of cancer and silicosis among miners in Elliot Lake. In charges made before the Royal Commission into Mines Health and Safety, miners disabled by cancer have complained of, among other things, the difficulty of obtaining pension. Their claims that mining companies provide insufficient protection were refuted by officials of employers organizations who stated that with improved conditions, today a miner is safer underground than he is during the day. Miners and union officials have attributed 41 cancer deaths and 140 cases of lung disease in the community on the quartz dust and radiation gases in the mine.

TORONTO — Air Canada will cut out 145 flights starting next Wednesday because of economic conditions and light passenger loads in off peak hours. Most of the flights affected are within Ontario and Quebec.

house on Monday night, but they don't think they'll have trouble recognizing him.

He has an arrow in his back. Hillman told police he saw a man attempting to cut through a window of his home. An archery enthusiast, Hillman grabbed his bow and arrow and let fly, lodging an arrow between the burglar's shoulder blades but failing to stop his escape.

TORONTO — If a Metro dentist has his way, there's going to be a long row of smiling teenagers. It's the first Teenage Smile-athon and the teen who smiles the longest receives a month's supply of toothpaste.

"They must keep a constant smile on their faces, showing their upper six teeth. If their top and bottom teeth come together, they're out," says dental director Dr. Sam Green.

Those interested should call the Borough of Etobicoke at 626-4161 for application forms.

Memorabilia

SACRAMENTO — Sex movies are being shown to two reluctant gorillas in the Sacramento Zoo these days and zoo keepers are hoping the pair will ape the screen action. It is not that Chris and Susie do not have the inclination, the officials say, it is just they do not know how to make love.

"Gorillas need to have the experience of observation to learn" zoo director Bill Meeker said. Because they have been in captivity all their lives and have not lived with older gorillas, they have been denied this learning experience.

So far the porno movies have not gotten the gorillas together.

POMPANO BEACH, FLA. — Police don't know who tried to break into James Hillman's

Winter is just snow fun without it.

Molson Golden
A good smooth ale
Do you know what you're missing?

International

LONDON — The British Government has offered to release more political prisoners and to reduce the role of the army in Northern Ireland. These proposals are an attempt to extend the ceasefire of the Irish Republican Army. The IRA halted its campaign of violence on December 22, and had previously extended the ceasefire until January 16. This extension was a result of an announcement that 20 of the 600 prisoners held would be released and 50 more would be allowed.

WASHINGTON — The Soviet Union has rejected a trade agreement with United States. The Russians found unacceptable the demand to allow more Jews and other minorities to emigrate freely. In return, the United States would have extended low tariffs to the Soviet Union as a part of a trade package that involved Soviet repayment of about $700 million in World War II land-lease debts.

PENINA, Portugal (Reuters) — Angola will gain its independence as of Nov. 11, 1975. Angola's three African nationalist movements will take turns heading a presidential council which will rule until independence is gained. In addition there will be a transitional government which will be composed of ministers nominated by the three movements and by Portugal.

Elections for an assembly will be held before independence, and this assembly will choose a president to whom Portugal will formally transfer power.

KARLSRUHE, West Germany — Nine employees of the International Business Machines (IBM) Company have been arrested on suspicion of spying for the Soviet Union. The nine were part of a ring of twelve persons suspected of passing secrets on Western electronic data techniques in exchange for money.

The investigation began last December 22 when two of the men were caught photographing computer maintenance manuals in an industrial concern in Frankfurt. The ring had operated mainly in Frankfurt, Düsseldorf, Solingen, Krefeld, and Stuttgart.

NEW YORK — Ali will defend his heavyweight title against Chuck Wepner on March 24 in Cleveland. Wepner, ranked number 8 contender, will have the dubious honour of attempting to grasp the title from Ali. For this slaughter, Wepner is guaranteed $200,000 to Ali's one and a half million.

Murphy's Sea Food Restaurant

Lobster Clam
Shrimp Chowder
Oysters Fish and Chips

70 Brock St.
548-7753

VANDERMEERS MEAT MARKET

Custom Cut Meats
Freezer Orders
Groceries
171
WELLINGTON ST.
542-1134

3 For 2 Quality Canadian Paperback Sale

Write for a FREE CATALOGUE. Hundreds of titles to choose from including new titles from 1974 and spring 1975. Order as many paperbacks as you want, and we'll invoice you for only two thirds of the books we send you. All orders must be received by March 1, 1975 to qualify for "one free out of three" privilege. Write now for your free catalogue.

ACADEMIC BOOK CLUB,
P.O. BOX 1507,
KINGSTON, ONTARIO K7L 5C7.

2nd in a series

Solution sought by Senate, AMS

by Barb Nyland

Spurred by the realization that universities can no longer rest contentedly on the edge of a wave of public support various organizations have been set up at Queen's to investigate our painful financial situation.

While in the sixties it was generally felt that every young person should have a place in university, the public is now realizing the strain this puts on the individual taxpayer's pocketbook observed Professor L.G. MacPherson, chairman of the Principal's Committee on Financial Constraint. This committee was set up in December of 1974 to take a long term view of the financial situation and to make recommendations to Principal Watts about the most practical ways in which Queen's can maintain its educational quality and not slip further into financial difficulties.

More and more universities are becoming aware that each institution cannot excel in everything and must seek out its own areas of excellence. It was for this reason, MacPherson said that the committee was not chosen as a cross section of the university community. The positions are being held because of the academic interests of the members or because of their experience with working under financial constraint.

Since the committee has not yet had sufficient time to come to grips with the problems which they will be considering, MacPherson declined to give specific examples of the ideas which they will be considering. They hope to be able to submit workable ideas to the Principal by the coming spring, and will, in the near future be inviting the campus community to contribute ideas. These suggestions are extremely important if the best recommendations are to be made.

How financial cutbacks are affecting the students is the specific interest of the AMS Constraints Committee under the chairmanship of Gaye Clemson. Their initial meeting will be held on Tuesday when they hope to outline their method of attacking this gigantic problem.

Either in the second week in February or during the week after Reading Week the student Senators and the A.M.S. will be presenting an open forum to discuss the pros and cons of financial support for universities. It is hoped that there will be representatives of both the government and the university at this discussion. Further information will be available concerning this meeting later this week. If it is to be a success the students and faculty must attend to present their views.

OFS tries to mobilize on crunch

by Scoop Drooper

An attempt "to mobilize student and public opinion" about university financing is the latest objective of the Ontario Federation of Students, according to Queen's chief delegate Terry MacI. Setting a target date of January 29th, MacI plans to organize a "permissible moratorium" in conjunction with the Senate and a student "letter writing campaign" to James Auld, Minister of Colleges and Universities.

The campaign is aimed at both Queen's students and the citizens of Kingston. MacI hopes to "personalize the situation" and make students aware of the consequences of recent university cutbacks. He also hopes to assert to the Kingston public the importance of the "university to the community". If OFS is able to "go to the ministry with press clippings from city papers", it may place weight behind "student opinion", MacI stressed.

Not only weary from jiving and assisting with the dance for Outlook, this strange group of Queen's students were quite obviously affected in some exceedingly strange ways. Note the glassy stares, the disjointed posture and the weird attire.

Dance from 8 till 8

Marathon for Outlook: pledges touch $4,000

by Lois Lorimer

It was 3.30 a.m., January 18th. Outside Grant Hall it was a cold and windy Saturday morning. Inside, OFTEN was playing up a storm for the Camp Outlook Dance Marathon and people were still dancing! Two-steppers, jivers and all sorts of dancers were on hand for one of the longest events of the year. From 8.00 p.m. Friday until 8.00 a.m. Saturday couples and campers rocked to a variety of continuous music provided by OFTEN, Easy Company, The Queen's Jazz Ensemble, plus performances by Rick Le Seur and Jamie Bastedo, Chris George and Jim Gillis, tapes, and an anonymous jammer on the piano.

Highlighting the evening was the jiving contest, won by Sharon Keats and Rob Shock. They were awarded prizes of gift certificates from Slack Shack, House of Hide, plus clothing from Dover's and the Stag Shop. Second place winners were John Lister and Mary Pearson while Steve Bak and Eva Slot claimed third prize. Poster and record prizes were awarded.

If your Dr. Scholl's and cornstarch hadn't run out by 2.00 a.m., there were free sandwiches, donuts, fruitcake and pop downstairs to provide extra energy for your last legs. All dancers could sign in and out at anytime. By 4.00 a.m. old Grant Hall was alive with four heats of wheel barrow races, panthoses, scrambles, door prize draws and spot dances.

Finally, as eight o'clock rocked around, 40 very lively people were still dancing. One Outlook camper, expressed the incredible desire to "keep dancing" till eight tonight! A draw will take place this week to determine which couple of the dancers punched out at 8.00, should be the Marathon grand winner.

Total Marathon pledges amount to $4,000.00. Organizers don't expect a 100 percent return and foresee usual problems of sponsor payup, collecting and return. All pledges collected can be taken to the Outlook Office in the Union. All donations are tax deductible.

Frolic examined

by Dan McClelland

Winter Frolic has fallen under considerable fire since the event was held over a week ago. The five day event began with Glühwein, a Wolfe Island sleigh ride, which was cancelled due to the lack of snow. The variety Stage Frigate and the Ukrainian night highlighted the week and (from an operational viewpoint) were "the most successful", according to Campus Activities Commissioner Robert Wood. Poor attendance plagued the finale dance, the "Snowshoe Shuffle". Wood attributed this to "poor advertising" and the last minute band cancellation and the "declining reputation of Snowball over the past few years." The loss suffered by Winter Frolic was "in the vicinity of $2000," estimated Wood.

Chairman of Winter Frolic, Dave Pepper, explained that "student apathy was a real problem." Pepper recommended in future that there not be "a Winter Frolic at all" and be responsible and deal with the "Wanderlust". He also saw the Christmas break as a promotion obstacle and cited the end of January as an optimum time for the event. Wood also recommended that the "whole concept of Snowball be dropped as it seems that it is very difficult to run a week of activities for the first week back." This, he stressed, was due to organizational problems.

Peter Druxerman, Vice-President Operations, felt one problem with the event was that it "wasn't organized from the start by the same person." This was due to the resignation of Winter Frolic chairman Mike Kidd early in the fall.

Winter frolic and Wanderlust were originally scheduled together and Wanderlust should not have been permitted to pull out, felt Druxerman. The result, he contended, was an attempt to "try to piece back together" the event. Commenting on the financial loss, Druxerman suggested that "now we have to be responsible and deal with the loss."

Queen's

Journal

Volume 102 Number 31

Tuesday, January 21, 1975

Suzie-Q days

Pubs and Theatres

Frontenac - Finnegan's - Henry Hughes
Frontenac - Muldoon's - The Cobbler's Awl
101 Inn - Body and Soul
Commodore - Madwin
Townhouse - Windsor
Manor - Charlie Ecstein

Ideon - Mrs. Barrington
Capitol 1 - Godfather II
Capitol 2 - Towering Inferno
tityland - Law and Disorder

Domino Theatre - Lady Audley's Secret directed by Rod Robertson. Tickets are $2.50 ($1.75 for students on Thursday) at Mahood's Drug Store and at the door. Time 8:30 p.m. The performances will be on the 23rd, 24th, and 25th.
Queen's Department of Drama - Euripides' Medea will run through the week of January 20-25 at 8:30 p.m. in Convocation Hall, Old Arts Building (Theology Hall). Tickets and information are available at the Drama Desk 547-6291.

Tuesday, January 21

7:30 p.m. - Queen's Bridge Club meets in the McLaughlin Room of the Student's Union. Phone 544-7509 for information.

7:30 p.m. - A slide and film presentation by the Spanish Club at La Casa, 90 Queen's Crescent. Subject: Granada. Refreshments to follow. Free admission and all are welcome to attend.

7:30 p.m. - The first two of a series of lectures about the university will be given in the Ban Righ Common Room. Spectrum will commence with a lecture by Dr. Crowder of the Department of History on "What you find at Queen's". Principal Watts will speak afterwards on "The University and Government Control". Coffee and donuts will be served.

8:00 p.m. - The English Conversation Piece and Joseph Highmore's "Illustrations to Pamela". This is the third in a series of six lectures given by Professor Burke on Tuesday evenings in Stirling D. The lectures are open to the public and admission is free.

8:00 p.m. - The Spirit of China Today - a public lecture and panel discussion by Prof. W. W. Small, Lecturer in China Studies at York University and extensive traveller in modern China. Guest panelists include Dr. J. J. Deutsch and Dean Evelyn Reid. The lecture will be followed by small group discussions. Coffee and donuts will be served. Room 517 Watson Hall.

9:00 p.m. - The Birds directed by Alfred Hitchcock will be shown in Ellis Auditorium. Admission $1.00 at the door.

Wednesday, January 22

7:00 p.m. - Tickets go on sale in the John Orr Room for the Queen's Ski Club Trip to Calabogie on January 25. One ticket per person - $11.00.

7:00 - 8:00 p.m. - Free Esperanto classes every Wednesday in Room 202 Kingston Hall.

7:15 p.m. - Last Lecture Series begins in McNeil House. The speaker at this lecture is Dr. R.H. Clark from the Department of Chemical Engineering.

7:30 p.m. - Queen's Debating Union weekly training session with special guest advisor. Pros and all novices are welcome. This is held in the upper lounge of the International Centre.

7:30 p.m. - Biology Careers Planning Night II will be held in Earl Hall Room 114. Representatives from private industry, graduate studies, M.B.A., and teaching will discuss employment opportunities in their areas. Coffee and donuts will be served afterwards.

8:00 p.m. - Painters Painting: a full length film by Emilio de Antonio on American painting, 1940 - 1970 in Ellis Hall.

8:00 p.m. - Introductory lectures on Transcendental Meditation are given every Wednesday evening in Stirling Hall, Room 412. Admission is free.

8:00 p.m. - The Sri Chinmoy meditation group meets every Wednesday evening at 138 King St. E. Apt. 2. There is no fee and all are welcome. If you are interested please call 544-1361.

8:00 p.m. - Konig von Bayern - This film will be shown in room 128 Jeffery Hall. No admission will be charged.

8:00 p.m. - The Donald Mathers Memorial Lectures - "What should we make of China and Japan?" - Stirling B.

8:30 p.m. - Division of Concerts presents Camerata in Dunning Hall. Tickets on sale at Agnes Etherington Art Centre.

Thursday, January 23

12:30 p.m. - Student Recital - Piano trio, piano soloist and Brass Quartet. Harrison Le-Cane Hall, Room 120.

6:00 p.m. - Christian Science Organization at Queen's meets in Room 210 Kingston Hall. All are welcome.

8:00 p.m. - The Donald Mathers Memorial Lectures - "What should we make of the neighbours of Christianity?" Dupuis Auditorium.

7:00 and 9:30 p.m. - Murders in the Rue Morgue and The Mummy will be shown in Dunning Auditorium. Admission $1.00 per person.

8:00 p.m. - Kimosabi Rides Again! Another Kimosabi Coffee House in Morris Hall's south lower common room. With folk singers Pat Jakman and Steve Fromstein plus impressionist John McQuaig and featuring from Toronto, Keith and Wayne Fromm. Admission 75c. Everyone is welcome.

Suzie - Q Events

Tuesday January 21 - 7:30 - 8:20 p.m. in the Jock Hardy Arena. The Hockey Gals vs The Hockey Gaels in Broomhall Hockey. Admission free.

Wednesday January 22 - 8:00 p.m. in Stirling Hall, Rm D The Great Debate. Admission free.

Thursday January 23 - 7 & 9 p.m. in Stirling Hall, Rm D A movie (TBA). Admission is $1.00.

Thursday January 23 - 8:30 - 12:30 a.m. in Grant Hall. The Stag Dance - featuring the Bill Babes Band. Admission is 50c.

Friday January 24 - 2:30 - 4:30 p.m. in the Jock Hardy Arnea Skating Party. Free admission.

Friday January 24 - 8:30 p.m. - 12:30 a.m. "County Fair" Beer and Bingo in Leonard Cafeteria. Silent Movies in Brockington common room and Magic in Gordon's common room. Admission $1.00.

Saturday January 25 - 1:30 - 4:30 p.m. on Leonard Field. The "Q-Bowl" featuring the inter-faculty teams.

Saturday January 25 - 8:30 p.m. - 12:30 a.m. in Leonard Cafeteria. A Greaser Dance featuring "Grease Caprice" - Admission $1.50.

Saturday January 24 - 9:00 p.m. - 1:00 a.m. The Semi-Formal Dance featuring two live bands in Kingston - Grant Hall. Tickets on sale in the John Orr Room for $7.00 per couple.

Upcoming Events

Saturday, January 25 - Summer Job Workshop in Geology and Related Fields - A series of workshops designed to give students interested in field work an idea of what to expect. Included in the program are presentations dealing with reconnaissance and detailed mapping, geochemistry, geophysics, diamond drilling, oil exploration, camp set-up and maintenance, claim staking, etc. Open to all students, not necessarily those in Geology. Sponsored by the Miller Club Workshops Committee. In Miller Hall from 10 to 5.

Saturday, January 25 - Bitter Grounds Coffee House and Good Times. Emporium will present Doug McArthur. Tickets are available Thursday and Friday 10:30 to 4:30 in the John Orr Room and at the door. Admission is $2.00. Doors will open about 8:00.

Monday, January 27 - Life Sciences Night - This night is set up to provide information about all the sciences involved in the course. Displays and participation will be used. This is especially for Life Science Majors but open to everyone Time from 7 - 10.

WINTER CONCERTS 75

AMS CONCERTS PRESENTS THE MOE KOFFMAN QUINTET AND DAVID BRADSTREET

TUES JANUARY 28/75 Tickets
GRANT HALL $3.00 Student
2 Shows 7:30-10:00 (Advance)
$4.00 Regular

AMS CONCERTS AND MARTIN ONROT INC. PRESENT THE STRAWBS AND MAN

SAT. FEB. 1/75 Tickets
JOCK HARDY $3.00 Student
8:00 P.M. $4.00 Regular
$5.00 Door

AMS CONCERTS AND CONCERT PRODUCTIONS INTERNATIONAL PRESENT SHA-NA-NA

FRI FEB 7/75 Tickets
MEMORIAL CENTER $4.00 Student
8:00 P.M. $4.50 Regular
$5.00 Door

TICKETS ON SALE NOW AT
JOHN ORR ROOM (STUDENT PRICES ONLY)
HOUSE OF SOUNDS
VERN NAPIERS (SHOPPING CENTER)
DIVISION OF CONCERTS BOX OFFICE

Suzie-Q: "a chance for girls to get their man"

by Cate Bailey

In a November 1942 copy of the Queen's Journal, a desperate male ran the following ad: "I want a date, I am handsome, a simply superb dancer, an excellent coacher, and I simply Reek with money." He was lamenting the absence of a companion for the activities of Suzie-Q week, and the implied lack of courage of Queen's women.

Long before the existence of Suzie-Q week, all Queen's women were members of a society known as "Levana". This refined group was allowed to invite men for four o'clock tea in Ban Righ and to attend dances on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights. There was an annual tea dance to which men had to be invited, and the Journal advised nervous women to "remember that there are 1300 men on the campus and since only 150 at most can attend the tea dance, most men regard an invitation to a Ban Righ function as a great honour." Perhaps as a result of the enthusiasm shown by women in inviting the men, the idea of Sadie Hawkins started up in 1942. This three day function, described as "a chance for girls to get their man," inspired such despairing ads as the one heading this article, suggesting that women were as diffident as ever about inviting men. Has this changed today? In a 1960 copy of the Journal, there are a few grumbles about Suzie-Q week, perhaps inspired by the influence from afar off of women's liberation. "Seeing girls walking on the outside, holding doors, etc. doesn't add to one's concept of femininity in Queen's women and certainly doesn't lessen the superiority complex under which many Queen's men labour," wrote one irritated female. Aside from this minor complaint, however, there hasn't been much serious flack about Suzie-Q week. For years, women were required to participate in the activities traditionally held in November.

This year, Suzie-Q week has been moved out of its usual November position to a spot right after the "Human Dignity and Experience of Woman" films and lectures. While this strategic positioning may make male chauvinists and cynical females snicker, it will doubtless make no difference to the success of Suzie-Q week. The typical Queen's female will find it enough of a strain to have to invite a man, let alone concern herself with being equal to one.

Fire in Vic 112E

Faulty stereo starts Vic blaze

by our pet Seagull

Shortly after the 10 p.m. newscast last Thursday night, Victoria Hall was the scene of a fortunately minor fire. Started by a faulty stereo resting on a cardboard box in 112E, the fire was discovered by a heat detector in the ceiling of the room. This automatically triggered the buildings alarm and simultaneously alerted the Fire Hall. Emerging from showers, tubs, beds, etc. Vic residents in various states of dress were outside for 20 minutes until they were allowed to re-enter the lower common room of the building.

Alerted by the alarm, Victor Lea, custodian of Victoria Hall, opened the door of the room to find flames licking the ceiling and heavy smoke. With the aid of an emergency hose located in the hall, Lea had most of the fire out by the time firemen arrived on the scene. At that time, a mattress, chair and other articles were ejected from the room and the last traces of fire extinguished.

Both occupants of the room were out at the time: Linda Moelenhaver the owner of the stereo, was in the Mackintosh-Corry reading room and Sherry Tothfaluse was watching television in Lower Vic. Tothfaluse left the building with the alarm, only learning later of the location of the blaze, and Moelenhaver was informed of the event sometime afterward. Clothes, notes and books belonging to both girls survived intact, though some articles were singed and received smoke damage.

Damage to personal and residence property, caused mainly by smoke and water is estimated to be $2,000 - $2,500. The room itself, though blackened at present, is slated for reoccupancy before the end of term.

Both girls went home for the weekend and have returned to be relocated temporarily in other rooms. They are now saddled with the chore of restoring their belongings to order while dealing with an abundance of unwelcome publicity.

Considerable smoke created by the blaze filled corridors leaving soot on walls and ceilings as well as a permeating odour which has by this time dispersed. Further damage was perhaps prevented only due to rapid detection of the fire which was facilitated by the heat detectors found only in the newer D and E wings.

Seek 25% raise

U of T Faculty may unionize

TORONTO (CUP)—Unionization may be the eventual course chosen by the U of T faculty should their attempts to secure a 25 per cent raise continue to be rebuffed, two faculty members have warned.

An eight-member negotiating committee, with equal representation from both faculty and administration, has been meeting twice monthly since October, but so far has been unable to arrive at any salary increase figure mutually acceptable to both sides.

If the dispute isn't settled by February 1, the faculty may be forced to consider other alternatives such as working-to-rule, refusing to do volunteer administrative duties and seeking certification as a collective bargaining unit (unionization), U of T Faculty Association (UTFA) president Bill Nelson said January 9.

Michael Finlayson, a faculty member of the salary negotiating committee, agreed, saying "I believe that's (unionization) what's going to happen in the next 12 months."

Finlayson said unionization may come about "because difficult times will force them to change."

Both Nelson and Finlayson said the possibility of striking had already been discussed by the faculty, but neither seemed to think this tactic would be employed soon.

"All around us, people are getting 25 per cent increases or higher, and that only keeps them about even with inflation," Finlayson said.

"We understand the financial plight of the university and even came down to 18 per cent. But the last administration offer (reported to be around 6 to 8 per cent) was so unreasonable, we didn't even consider it discussable."

"We know the university doesn't have the money, so we're really talking to the provincial government," said Finlayson. "They'll only give us more money if we become more troublesome."

He agreed with the implication that this meant employing more extreme tactics like striking, which the faculty has previously refused to do.

REMINDER

The second installment of fees due by January 31, 1975, can be paid in person at the Accountant's Office, Richardson Hall.

If you find it more convenient to mail your cheque to the Accountants' Office, please record your student number on the face of your cheque.

GRANT HALL
CONCERT OF CANADIAN
OPERA COMPANY
SUN. 26 JAN. 2:30 p.m.
- operatic favourites
from past productions
Tickets: $3.50 general, $2.50 discount
Box Office in Agnes Etherington
Art Centre
547-6194
- a Division of
Concerts event

Campus Movies
Presents
A NITE OF HORROR!!!
Murders In The Rue Morgue
with Bela Lugosi
plus...
Boris Karloff as
THE MUMMY
Thurs. - 7:00 and 9:30 $1.00 Dunning Hall

Admissions to Residences 1975-76
Men only Residences
and
Co-Educational Residences
Application forms and brochures may be obtained at the following locations:
Desk Clerks' Offices:
at Gordon-Brockington Hall
Harkness Hall
Social Centre West Campus
Residence Admissions Office:
Victoria Hall
Business Office:
Brockington House
The closing date for applications is Monday, February 10. Completed applications should be returned to the Residence Admissions Office, Victoria Hall.

unclassifieds

STEREO EQUIPMENT for sale: Electrovoice Royal 100A amp $125, BSR 510 turntable with Shure M75 cartridge $100; Criterion 25A Speakers $50 for the pair. All in perfect condition, call 549-3261.

WANTED: two bedroom apartment near main campus for 75/76. Will take it starting May 1. Phone 549-4333.

ROOM AVAILABLE Feb. May, $50 a month. In really good and quiet Co-op, close to campus and downtown 544-5380.

TO SUBLET: 2 Bedroom furnished Apt. balcony - May through Aug 549-3248.

HEY GIRLS: For Suite-G. Take a guy to Kimosabi Coffee House, Thursday, Jan. 23, Morris Hall, Ad 75C.

NON-SMOKERS CLUB Meeting Tues. Jan. 21st, 7:00 p.m. Red Room, Kingston Hall.

REWARD: Will pay $20 if we decide to rent your 2-man apartment in May or September. Please call 544-8041 or 544-8045.

REWARD $80 for a house near campus, 4-5 rooms. Call Ron Steve 544-7169 or Dave 544-7157.

$45 REWARD if you find us a house or apartment, preferably 3 man but will consider 4 man. Will take over in May 1975. Phone after 6:00 P.M. Dave 544-7087 or 544-7561 or Rob 544-7561.

EASE THE PAIN in your wallet with the great selection of publishers' remainders and sale books at the CAMPUS BOOKSTORE.

HELP: Need a 3 or 4 person house for next Sept. Will take over rent this summer. Reward to the lucky person who gets us one! Call 544-3344.

ONE BEDROOM Apartment to Sublet. Available Married Student's Complex, $12-$15 after 5 P.M.

FOR SALE: 1 Kenwood Amp, 1 Brand New $150, Speakers 12" Woofer, Mid and 2 Tweeters, $199 pair. Also Turn table and Reel to Reel Deck. Phone Mike at 549-1369 after 4 P.M.

LOST: An SR-37 Commodore calculator. Last seen in Stirling A around 11:30 Friday. If found contact Journal or Phone 544-6051 $20 reward.

SUBLET: Modern two bedroom apartment completely furnished, April to Sept., 1 or 2 girls, rent $85 per person per month. Only 10 minutes from campus. Interested persons call 542-4043 after 5pm.

TO SUBLET: 1 bedroom Apt. John Orr Tower, West Campus. Available Feb. 1st - Aug. 31st. Lease can be renewed. Call 549-4722.

WANT TO VISIT an elderly person? You would be much appreciated. Visits are under the auspices of St. Margaret's Church. For more details come to the SVB Office in the Union.

DUE to a Printer's delay in Toronto, Artsci '78 Bews sports newsletter will be available in the evening meal lines.

ARTSCI '78 Bews sports newsletter will be available in the evening meal lines.

SINGLE ROOM: Leonard Hall, Rm 207 Meal Plan. Must vacate by Tuesday, 21st Jan. or Wed. Jan. 22. You pay only from that day on. Phone Ted 549-1304.

3-MAN HOUSE Needed: If anyone has a 3-man house that they aren't using next year and interested in $100 for the favour, Please call Ruth at 544-5807.

WE NEED some ambitious young female for part-time light-housekeeping at our humble but homey two bedroom abode. Wages to be negotiated. Call 544-4844 after 5pm.

2 BEDROOM Apartment available to Sublet. May-August, modern, spacious, furnished. Phone 546-4542.

PHYSIOLOGY, Microbiology, Psychology, Anatomy, Pharmacology, Biochemistry, Immunology. will all be presented and have displays during Life Sciences Night. Mon. Jan. 27, 7-10pm.

LET'S MAKE A DEAL: We'll trade our 2 man luxury apt. for your 4 man house. Phone 549-3965.

NO BANANA BREAD for you Breads.

LOST: Knapsack containing clothes and tape recorder at Juliet Mitchell's Lecture in Grant Hall. Finder Please call 547-2915 or 544-3824.

ROOMS AVAILABLE in Elford. Come and see us. You Can't miss it. It's that big building on Princess (Corner of Division) or call us at 544-1842.

ARTS SECTION always needs writers. If you are interested in reviewing, interviews or any contributions, call 546-5358. Otherwise, drop in at the JOUR NAL office on Wednesday and Sunday Night.

BEAT THE CROWDS at the Union and come on down to the Sock Hop Smoker on Friday, Jan. 17, at 8:00pm in Clark Hall.

AM FROM OUT WEST and in desperate need to obtain a 2 or 3 bedroom apartment before April rolls around. Please help by calling Jan at 544-8278.

ZIGGA ZAGGA ZIGGA ZAGGA: OI OI OI Artsci '78 Booster Buttons will be available in the Banrigh and Leonard meal lines. Price 50C.

WHAT IS HARD and about six inches long? it's yours, if you find us a one-bedroom apartment close to campus, available about June 1st. Yes it's yours - a brand new Bic pen. Please phone 544-8484.

FESTIVAL '75 - The Annual opportunity to participate in and view the Arts at Queen's - live days of Drama, Film, Art, Music, Photographers and Speakers. Jan. 28 Feb. 1st.

DRAWING PRODUCTIONS, Skits workshops, improvisations very much wanted for Festival '75. All ideas considered. Call Margi 546-7863.

FESTIVAL '75 NEED both demonstrators for Artwork shops (silk screening, batik, etc.) and Entries for the Art Exhibit. Contact Inez 546-5370.

RIDE wanted to Montreal either late Thursday or Friday. Please call Carolyn 549-0124.

ROOM & BOARD Available at Craig House, 140 Stuart St. 542-7481.

APARTMENT to sublet with Option for September lease. One bedroom in West Campus Tower. Phone 548-3864.

$20 REWARD for six or four person house. Needed for Sept. but will consider beginning lease earlier. Phone Ziggy - 549-4691, Terry 549-4937 or Paul 549-4798.

DESPERATE TO SUBLET 2 bedroom apartment. Large kitchen, living room, balcony with a view, storage closet, sauna, underground parking, in Elford, close to campus and downtown. Rent negotiable. Call 546-5358.

LOOKING for a place for next year? Apt. suitable for two available May 1. Close to campus and MacDonald Park. $125/month. Phone 544-5855.

ARTSCI '78: Entries now needed for these BEWS Sports: badminton, doubles, handball doubles and free throw. Sign up bulletin board in men's locker room.

1972 TOYOTA COROLLA 1400. Excellent condition, automatic, radio, four new tires including snow tires. Low mileage. Must sell immediately, leaving city. Price negotiable. Phone 548-4375.

3 GIRLS seek ride to Florida for reading week. Phone 542-9739. Will help with driving and gas.

EARN $400 AN HOUR. Take 5 minutes of your time to show us your 2 to 4 bedroom house or apt. If we like it for the 1975-76 school term we will pay $50. Contact Joel 544-7414 after 6:00pm.

SUMMER SUBLET: rooms available for summer in a very nice large house, 1 1/2 blocks from Campus. For information call 549-4623.

IF YOU KNOW of a one-bedroom apartment available for next year, we're probably interested. Call 542-1440 and ask for Mike or Sherry.

$75 reward for anyone who can find us a house for next year. 3 to 4 man house. Phone Mark at 544-7154 or Bruce at 544-7483.

WE REALLY NEED to borrow or rent an electric bass guitar for a folksinging party we're having Feb. 1. If you can help, please phone Bill 549-5241. Thank you.

3 MAN HOUSE NEEDED: If anyone has a 3-man house that they aren't using next year and are interested in $100 for the favour, please call Ruth at 544-5807.

A SPECIAL THANKS to Judy, Nancy,

Cher, Brenda, Wendy, Al, Alison, Sue, Gwen, Marcia, Lynn, Janet, Janet, Clare, and Clare for the nice surprise. You're all super. From Ujli.

MILLS OFFICE SUPPLIES LTD. Quality Calculators for sale. All models for Texas Instruments for sale. SR 50 selling at $145 - a low best price in town as well as backing of the warranty by a local office supply store. Phone Duncan at 549-4623 between 5 and 7.

GUILD D-44 GUITAR with hardshell plush case for sale. $450. Call 549-3261.

INFORMATION BANK ... needs more staff. You can help. Volunteer in John Orr Room, Monday to Friday (9:30-5:30) or call Susan Meech (549-5252) or Kathy Wood (544-7055).

FRANKIE - LOOK AT THIS!!! MEDICINE. Many are not accepted and end up in a major called Life Sciences. Find out exactly what this involves on January 27, at LIFE SCIENCES NIGHT 7 to 10pm.

INFORMATION BANK ... needs more staff. You can help. Volunteer in John Orr Room, Monday to Friday (9:30-5:30) or call Susan Meech (549-5252) or Kathy Wood (544-7055).

ATTENTION DIVERS: For Sale, one nylon lined, quarter inch wet suit, one tank, and one 2 stage regulator. Call Ernie at 544-0401.

PLANNING A SPRING WEDDING? Photo Image offers complete photography coverage, tailored to your individual needs, from as little as $95. For further information, call us at 546-7770 or visit our studio at 33 Brock St. See the photographs we have done for others.

RECYCLE YOUR BOOKS OR RECORDS. We sell records on commitment, that is, you get $1.50 for every one of your records that sell. Needless to say, good rock, blues, jazz, folk records sell out quickly. We also have unmet used books for sale.

OFS proposes common front against government cutbacks

OTTAWA (CUP) - The Ontario Federation of Students (OFS) has proposed a common front of students, faculty, support staff and administrators to attack the Ontario provincial government's latest financing cutbacks to Ontario universities and colleges.

The government's grants for 1975-76 will be a total of 16.5 percent over last year but because of special grants and programs the real increase to post-secondary institutions will only be 7.4 percent. The inflation rate presently running at 10 to 12 percent means that universities will have to cut back on services.

"This cutback is the culmination of three or four years of government financing policies and next year will be worse if this trend continues. We have to get the government to re-evaluate their priorities regarding education," said OFS fieldworker Ben McDonald.

OFS held an emergency meeting December 16 of 25 university and college student presidents to discuss the implications of the funding.

The implications include the possible closing of Lakehead and Laurentian universities, classroom overcrowding, non-replacement of equipment, phasing out of courses due to the lack of facilities and faculty, elimination of experimental programs, underpaid staff, increased student-faculty ratios which will all lead to a general decline in the quality of post-secondary education.

unclassifieds

INFORMATION BANK Needs more staff. You can help. Volunteer in John Orr Room, Monday to Friday (9:30-5:30) or call Susan Meech or Kathy Wood at 549-5252 and 544-7055, respectively.

$15 REWARD PER BEDROOM for a five or more bedroom house. If you have one available for next year, please call Louise (544-7865) or Connie (544-2552).

INFORMATION BANK ... needs more staff. You can help. Volunteer in John Orr Room, Monday to Friday (9:30-5:30) or call Susan Meech (549-5252) or Kathy Wood (544-7055).

WANTED: 1 House live or more bedrooms. If yours is available next year and you need $75 NOW, phone Dick 544-7860 or Richard 544-7862.

PICK UP A PIZZA

1/2 PRICE

UPON PRESENTATION OF STUDENTS CARD

MONDAYS and TUESDAYS
BONNUCCHI'S

PIZZA 546-1444 546-2050

WEEKEND FREE?

IF YOU HAVE ONE
WHY NOT...
YOUR SCENIC KINGSTON, TAKE A TRIP HOME OR
ENJOY A DRIVE IN THE COUNTRY!!

HOST
Rent-A-Car

Free advice regarding car hire for all major destinations in Canada. (416) 840-0022

We rent to Queen's University students under 25 years of age! Special rates available for Conferences, Seminars, Workshops, etc.

AVOID DISAPPOINTMENT!! RE-SERVE NOW!!

CORNER OF QUEEN AND BAGOT
Phone 549-2348

Something to "cheers" about:

Now the glorious beer of Copenhagen is brewed right here in Canada. It comes to you fresh from the brewery. So it tastes even better than ever. And Carlsberg is sold at regular prices.

So let's hear it, Carlsberg lovers. "One, two, three... Cheers!"

Frosh lack good math training

OTTAWA (CUP)—Ottawa's two major universities are considering new basic mathematics courses because of a decline in the mathematical abilities of first year students.

"It's a decline in the ability to handle simple things, reductions of fractions to their lowest common denominator, multiplication of fractions, simple algebra and square root problems," says Rene Vaillancourt, head of the University of Ottawa.

"The saddest part is that they can't grasp the principles of advanced algebra or calculus but can't apply them because they lack these basic skills."

Donald Dawson, the chairman of the Carleton University mathematics department said both universities are finding "a very uneven distribution of mathematical skills," among first year students.

Both of the chairmen say part of the decline is a result of the elimination of province wide departmental examinations.

Vaillancourt said the elimination of the exams has removed a standard on which to base high school marks. Some aspects of the courses taught in high schools were useless.

With this in mind, he said, the University of Ottawa will start courses for high school math teachers as well as basic courses for students.

Saskatoon

All-man council salutes women

SASKATOON (CUP)—The all-man Saskatoon city Council is willing to endorse a project which will suitably recognize International Women's Year, 1975 if the women in Saskatoon can suggest something.

Morris Cherneskey, the councillor who introduced the idea, says he has spoken to the Status of Women Committee and is assured they have ideas for speakers, sites, etc. Maybe even a pavilion at the local summer fair. Another councillor ensured that all women would be listened to before the council made their decision.

The best suggestion is for city fathers to grant women more freedom to control their bodies and ease abortion regulations at City Hospital where Saskatoon city administration has been tightening up policy while interpreting federal legislation.

NUS out for better loans

OTTAWA (CUP)—The National Union of Students (NUS) campaign for a better Canada Student Loan Plan (CSLP) is in full swing in all parts of the country.

The campaign is working on two levels. Nationally it will try to implement changes in the CSLP and provincially it will push for modifications in student funding plans.

While NUS is striving for several main policies, the main purpose of the campaign will be to decrease students' financial liabilities by reducing the loan portion and not the grant portion of student assistance programs," said US National Office staff member, Hilda Creswick.

Gay society "coming out"

SASKATOON (CUP)—A society formed three years ago for Saskatoon's homosexual men and women is "coming out."

Originally named the Zodiac Friendship Society the group is now in the process of officially changing its name to the Gay Community Centre.

The society believes that "coming out" is an indication that society has come to terms with homosexuals and feel that they have a right to be open about their sexuality with others.

As part of the "coming out" program the society has adopted a new logo—a turtle coming out of its shell.

In the past the Society has played an active part in the ongoing struggle to change provincial legislation pertaining to sexual orientation and have set up weekly discussion groups so that people might discuss the various aspects and problems of being homosexual.

FESTIVAL OF THE ARTS

January 28-
February 1 1975

SPEAKERS: ARNOLD EDINBURGH - FORMER EDITOR AND PUBLISHER OF SATURDAY NIGHT

on "THE CANADIAN CULTURAL EXPLOSION"

ROBIN MATHEWS - ENGLISH PROFESSOR AT CARLETON - CO EDITOR OF "STRUGGLE FOR CANADIAN UNIVERSITIES"

on "THE CANADIAN IDENTITY AND CANADIAN FUTURE (LITERARY AND POLITICAL)"

Western Thought and Eastern Cultures

"What should we make of India?"

January 21 Dupuis Auditorium 8:00 pm

"What should We make of China and Japan?"

January 22 Stirling B Auditorium 8:00 pm

"What Should We make of the Neighbours of Christianity?"

January 23 Dupuis Auditorium 8:00 p.m.

The Donald Mathers Memorial Lectures Presented by Professor Ninian Smart University of Lancaster, U.K.

Special Admission for those not eligible...

Under the normal regulations, a maximum of fifty persons, who would not qualify under regular admission criteria, will be admitted as full-time students in the Faculty of Arts and Science, Queen's University, if they show potential for university work.

Application: Applicants must have reached the age of 18 by September 1, 1975, and have completed a minimum Ontario grade 10 or the equivalent. Persons who are presently registered as full-time high school students are not eligible. Preference will be given to persons under 21 years of age at the end of 1975, and to those who have not previously attended a university. Persons 21 years of age or older, who have not attended a university, and who have been out of school for three years, may apply for admission under the Mature Student Regulation.

Selection: A variety of tests and other selection procedures will be carried out during March and April, 1975. Successful candidates will be chosen on the basis of ability, achievement and motivation.

Deadline: Due to the nature of the selection procedure, it is in the best interests of applicants to make enquiries as early in 1975 as possible. All enquiries must be received by March 3, 1975.

For further information and application forms write to:

Special Admissions Project Assistant Registrar (Admissions) Queen's University Kingston, Ontario K7L 3N6

Queens University, Kingston, Ontario

Queens Journal

Vol. 102 No. 31
Tues. Jan. 21, 1975
Queen's University
at Kingston, Ont.

Editor-in-chief: Suzanne Sherkin
Managing Editor: Dan McClelland
Business Manager: Terry Collins
News Editor: Sarah Yarnell
Features Editors: Wendy Reynolds, Laurie Gibson (get well!)
Arts Editor: Peter White
Sports Editor: Lyn Alwood, Suzanne Jackson
Backpage: Val Colton (with a little help from her friends)
Classifieds: Trish Brooks, Cathy Corbett

Photo Editor: Jon Willmer
Walt's Happin': Rosemary Knight, Jennifer Hastings and Mark Useful Peeps: Larry Woods, Janis Wager, Mary Anne Purdy, Trish Hawke, Mike Creagan, Leslie Gawkroger, Meg Bellomley, John Bellomley, Keith Bourne, John Cameron, F.U.O. Anne Robertson, S and W Calburn, and good ole Nancy "Seagull" Flood

Comment: Why should I? I have little or nothing to say. However, at this point in time I would like to take the opportunity to elucidate upon my personal philosophy, a unique blend of neo-Kantian, existentialism and Bird. How come nobody says night to me? MDM

Founded in 1873 and published on Tuesdays and Fridays during the academic year by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University, Incorporated, Kingston, Ontario. Founding member of Canadian University Press. Editorial opinions expressed are those of the editor and not necessarily those of the AMS nor the University. Telephone (613) 547-2606. Printed by gnomes at the St. Lawrence Printing Co. Ltd., Prescott, Ontario. Lithographed in USA on Canadian newsprint.

letters to the editor

Thankyou TAK

Dear Editor,

I'd like to thank the people of TAK for helping me out the other night. It was nothing heavy, I just needed someone to talk to and they were there. I had never phoned TAK before because I thought it was just for people with super heavy problems and emergencies. But it's not. They're just fellow students who listen and do their best to understand. They didn't really give me any solutions to my problems but it made me feel a lot better just to get it out.

Thanks,
Jim

Humour missed

Dear Editor,

I write in response to Chris Buhr, in and to anyone else who grew wildly indignant over your "Salute to Women" page. Mr. Buhr suggests that a university paper, of all things, should refrain from printing such things. The letters which followed his stated in typical fifty-eyed feminist fashion that anyone who dreamed that page up was doing it to spit in the face of womankind. I, on the other hand was delighted to find that you had the guts to print something warm and funny for its own sake without analysing it for its political content. The protests were completely predictable; the women are not only fighting what they consider to be a holy battle, but are outraged, and even surprised when they meet resistance. Everyone is expected to edit his thoughts and words to delete any evidence of Wrong Thinking which might hinder the revolution. The critics are too shallow and single-minded to recognize that every situation, even a tragic or controversial one, has a funny aspect. Anyone with a sense of humour can see this, anyone who does not filter her world through a pair of Gloria Steinem shades. They have no right to expect everyone to clear a path for their match, no right to make editors so constipated that they twitch at the thoughts of feminist wrath and censor their own judgement, creating a spacious, un-critical, year-long vacuum for the ladies to work in. We would be reduced to a steady diet of their endless tracts, and that is more than I could stand. There is no humour in heaven, as Mark Twain wrote, and I think the Journal for offering a mild distraction to the people

Sincerely,
Stephen McNeven.

logan outfield

Painters Painting

A New Yorker Film
(American Painting 1940-1970)

by
Emile de Antonio (of 'Millhouse' fame)

Ellis Hall 8:00 p.m. (116 mins.)

Wednesday January 22

It's Free courtesy of Agnes Art Centre

"Howick's" Just Arrived A-ONE Clothing Store has original Howick's Jeans in Chamberlay and 14 oz. denim Many others.
358 King St., corner at Princess.

THE BOOK BIN

225 Princess
(next to the Capital Theatre)

WE
BUY and SELL
Paperbacks, Textbooks
and Antiquarian Books
USED RECORDS
Sold on Consignment

ART REPRODUCTIONS
POSTERS

Please Bring US Your Books and Records

RESIDENCE APPLICATIONS
1975-76

Women's Residence

Applications for Women's Residences are available at the main desks in: Victoria Hall, Chown Hall, Adelaide Hall, Jean Royce Hall, Gordon Brockington.

Completed applications for Women's Residences will be received in the sitting room beside the Ban Righ Smoker on Tuesday January 28 from 8:00 a.m. until noon, and thereafter in the Residence Admissions Office, Victoria Hall.

BIRTH CONTROL CENTRE

PERSONS INTERESTED IN BEING VOLUNTEER BIRTH CONTROL COUNSELLORS ARE INVITED TO ATTEND A MEETING ON TUESDAY, JANUARY 21, AT THE GREY HOUSE, 51 QUEEN'S CRESCENT

FESTIVAL OF THE ARTS

January 28-February 1 1975

THE ARTS FESTIVAL BEGINS A WEEK TODAY!

An exciting event-packed week is planned and you are invited to experience it.

- Art and photography exhibitions
- Drama workshops - technical and creative
- Arts and crafts demonstrations
- Student film contest - to be screened twice
- Professional and student musicians
- Speakers; Robin Mathews, Arnold
- Poetry Readings

AND MUCH MUCH MORE

Read the Journal and watch for the special
6 page program coming out next week

A.M.S. Bus Service Save$

TORONTO: $6 one way $10 return

Depart Kingston: Friday 4:30 (Students' Union)
Arrive Toronto: 7:30 (Union station)
Depart Toronto: Sunday 8:30 (Union station)
Arrive Kingston: 11:30 (Students' Union)

OTTAWA: $5 one way $8 return

Depart Kingston: Friday 4:30 (Students' Union)
Arrive Ottawa: 7:00 (Westgate Mall)
Depart Ottawa: Sunday 8:30 (Westgate Mall)
Arrive Kingston: 11:00 (Students' Union)

TICKETS:

MEAL LINES - Wednesday and Thursday
JOHN ORR ROOM - Wed. Thur. 11:00 - 1:00
Friday 10:00 - 2:30

WHAT WOULD YOU
SAY?

TIME: 7:15 p.m.

PLACE: McNEIL HOUSE COMMON ROOM

SPEAKER: DR. R.H. CLARK

TOPIC: FROM TRANQUILITY TO TURBULENCE
EVERYONE WELCOME

A.M.S. PAGE

STAFFING BANK

If you are interested in getting involved but do not wish to make any great commitment

COME SEE US

TUES., JAN. 21 at 9 p.m.

Lower Vic Games Room

or sign up on posters or meal lines.

For further information call:
Beth 546-2574 Julio 544-7207

A.M.S. Education Commission Presents
A Public Lecture And Panel Discussion

"The Spirit of China Today"

by Professor W.W. Small

Panelists: Dr. J.J. Deutsch
Dean E. Reid

Tuesday, January 21
8 p.m.

Room 517 Watson Hall

University Centre Management Committee

Students interested in serving on this committee should leave their names at the
A.M.S. Office before 5:00 p.m. Friday,
Jan. 31

3 positions for a 1 year term

3 positions for a 2 year term
(please indicate choice)

Elrond College Directors

The A.M.S. is now accepting applications from persons interested in serving as A.M.S. appointees on the Elrond College Inc. Board of Directors. Applications forms should be picked up in the A.M.S. Office no later than Monday, Jan. 27 at 12 p.m.

REFERENDA

Referenda to be Placed on the February Election Ballot must be in the A.M.S. Office by 5:00 p.m.
Thursday, January 23.

Leonard gets a new lease on life

by Sgt. J. Scott

To any outsider's casual Saturday morning glance, Leonard Hall must have presented the same drab sad grey visage as on any other morning for long mornings past. But no more! For the inmates of the residence were stirring slowly from a night deep with the sleep known only to those who have laboured hard with pen and book, that, on this morning, Saturday, 11th January, 1975, they might rise free to face the challenge of a new era and their Warden Captain Robert Buller: the challenge of "Operation Clean Sweep". This was the chance they had been waiting for, to make Leonard Hall look like home, spic and span, windows sparkling in the bright winter sun; for they remembered their mothers, who saved and laid down hours of their lives in the name of cleanliness.

At ten hundred hours sharp (though different clocks seemed to tell different tens), most of the doors on all four floors burst open. The enthusiasm escapes description: "Great! Nearly everybody turned out!", chirruped Mrs. Lynne Best, wife of Don Don Best. And, armed with master keys, the Bests and other Dons, bravely led by Captain Buller, bore down on the cleaner's cupboards, to plunder the arsenals of the invaluable armaments stockpiled there. Weapons of war - brooms, mops, deadly dust-destroying sprays, and more - were duly distributed among the rebellious inmates, as floor seniors took control of trolleys, and tanked down the narrow corridors, cleaning out centres of resistant dirt.

Mr. Dennis Davidson, a professional cleaner, who had come to the residence that morning beyond the call of normal weekly duty, was amazed by this sudden surge of support for the cause: "I've been fighting this war for years," he said, "and I've never thought I'd see the day when Dirt became a wider issue. It does my heart good to see these lads taking pride in the place". Financial constraint, of course, has left only a handful of full-timers to defend Leonard Hall and the other residences against the ravages of Dirt. "Yes", continued Dennis, "I feared it was fast becoming a losing battle."

For seemingly endless hours, platoons of dedicated inmates scoured old Leonard from end to end, from top to bottom, seeking out every last particle of the filthy intruder. They paused only at midday, for coffee and doughnuts (courtesy of Captain Buller). Then, at last, around fifteen hundred hours, the Operation could be seen to have succeeded. Some small pockets of resistance were still to be mopped up, but, for the most part, Leonard Hall rightly puffed out its chest, the pride of Leonard field.

Yet, as every old soldier well knows, the fighting is only the beginning. This battle won is only an entry into what will now become a new lease on life for Leonard Hall. A New Order has been established, and precautions taken to perpetuate it: "The students will continue to try and keep the place clean", assured Don Don Best, next day, from behind a shower curtain. "Every Sunday morning clean-up will roam the building with magnifying glasses, searching for atoms of dust and slivers of shattered beer-bottles." And Doug Gardner, another Don, disclosed that weekend volunteer cleaners would be treated to a well-deserved home-cooked brunch after the work was done.

For the moment, and, hopefully, for some time to come, Leonard Hall looks as though it is inhabited by human beings. The building feels a little more like home. It is marvellous what a little organization and determined effort can achieve. Indeed, it is safe to say that now everyone who lives in Leonard is glad that he no longer needs to feel embarrassed about introducing parents or visiting girlfriends into the residence at weekends.

marv bloos

marv bloos

Witches, Midwives and Nurses

a feminist view of women healers through the ages

by Barbara Ehrenreich - Deirdre English

Women have always been healers. They were the unlicensed doctors and anatomists of western history. They were abortionists, nurses and counsellors. They were pharmacists, cultivating healing herbs and exchanging the secrets of their uses. They were midwives travelling from home to home and village to village. For centuries women were doctors without degrees, barred from books and lectures, learning from each other, and passing on experience from neighbour to neighbour and mother to daughter. They were called "wise women" by the people, witches or charlatans by the authorities. Medicine is part of our heritage as women, our history, our birthright.

Today, however, medicine is the property of male professionals. Ninety-three per cent of the doctors in the US are men; and almost all of the top directory and administrators of health institutions. Women are still in the overall majority - 70 per cent of health workers are women - but we have been incorporated into an industry where the bosses are men. We are no longer independent practitioners, known by our own names for our own work. We are for the most part, institutional fixtures, filling faceless job slots; clerk, dietary aide, technician, maid.

The suppression of women health workers and the rise to dominance of male professionals was not a "natural" process, resulting automatically from changes in medical science nor was it the result of women's failure to take on healing work. It was an active take over by male professionals. And it was not science that enabled men to win out: the critical battles took place long before the development of modern scientific technology.

Witches lived and were burned long before the development of modern medical technology. The great majority of them were lay healers serving the peasant population and their suppression marks one of the opening struggles in the history of man's suppression of women as healers.

The other side of the suppression of witches as healers was the creation of a new male medical profession under the protection and patronage of the ruling class.

The age of witch-hunting spanned more than four centuries (from the 14th to the 17th century) in its sweep from Germany to England. Witches represented a religious, political and sexual threat to Protestant and Catholic Churches alike, as well as to the state.

But, in fact, the craze was neither a lynching party nor a mass suicide by hysterical women. Rather it followed well-ordered procedures. The witch-hunts were well-organized campaigns, initiated, financed and executed by Church and State.

Commonly, the accused was stripped naked and shaved of all her body hair, then subjected to thumb-screws and the rack, spikes and bone-crushing "boots", starvation and beatings. The point is obvious: The witch craze did not arise spontaneously in the peasantry. It was a calculated ruling class campaign of terrorization.

The most fantastic accusation of all was that witches helped and healed those who had no doctors or hospitals, and who were bitterly afflicted with poverty and disease. The church told these sufferers that their torment was a mark of sin.

The wise woman, or witch, had a host of remedies which had been tested in years of use. Many of the herbal remedies developed by witches still have their place in modern pharmacology. They had pain-killers, digestive aids and anti-inflammatory agents.

Confronted with a sick person, the university-trained physician had little to go on but superstition.

Bleeding was a common practice, especially in the case of wounds. Leeches were applied according to the time, the hour, the air and other similar considerations. Medical theories were often grounded more in "logic" than in observation. Incantations and quasi-religious rituals were thought to be effective. A frequent treatment for leprosy was a broth made of the flesh of the black snake caught in a dry land among stones.

Such was the state of medical "science" at the time when witch-healers were persecuted for being practitioners of "magic". It was witches who developed an extensive understanding of bones and muscles, herbs and drugs, while physicians were still depriving their prognoses from astrology and alchemists were trying to turn lead to gold.

Universities were closed almost without exception to women wishing to study medicine, and licensing laws were established to discredit the better off, more educated women-healers. In trials, they were convicted on the grounds that as women they dare cure at all.

Conspiracy v.s. women

By the 14th century male doctors had won a clear monopoly over the practice of medicine among the upper classes (except for midwifery). They then turned their attack on the great mass of female healers, the witches.

The partnership between Church, State and medical profession reached full bloom in the witch trials. The doctor was held up as the medical "expert" giving an aura of science to the whole proceedings. The Church explicitly legitimized the doctors' professionalism, denouncing non-professional healing as equivalent of heresy: "If a woman dare to cure without having studied she is a witch and must die". (Of course there wasn't any way for a woman to study). Finally, the witch craze provided a handy excuse for the doctor's failings in everyday practice: Anything he couldn't cure was obviously the result of sorcery.

The proliferation and success of the witch-hunts led straight into an assault on the last preserve of women's medicine - midwifery. In the hands of the non-professional barber, surgeons who wielded forceps, obstetrics was transformed into a lucrative business which "real" physicians entered in force in the 18th century.

In the U.S. the male takeover of healing roles started later than in England or France, but ultimately went much further. There is probably no industrialized country with a lower percentage of women doctors than the U.S. today. England has 24 per cent; Russia has 75 per cent; the U.S. has only 7 per cent. By the turn of the century, medicine here was closed to all but a tiny minority of necessarily tough and well-healed women. What was left was nursing, and this was in no way a substitute for the autonomous roles women had enjoyed as midwives and general healers.

In 1800 the U.S. was ripe for the development of a full-fledged "medical profession". The majority of practitioners constituted anyone who could demonstrate healing skills.

But a growing number of formally trained doctors began to take great pains in distinguishing themselves from the host of lay practitioners.

The most important real distinction was the formally trained or "regular" doctors who called themselves, were males, usually of the class and almost always more expensive than lay healers. There is no doubt that the "cures" were often either fatal or more than the original disease.

The lay practitioners were undoubtedly more effective than the "regulars" by preferred mild herb medications, dietary changes and hand-holding to heroic interventions. May they didn't know any more than the "regulars", they were less likely to do the patient harm.

Let alone, they might well have displaced "regulars" with even middle class consumption time. But they didn't know the right people. "Regulars", with their close ties to the upper, had legislative clout. By 1830, 13 states had medical licensing laws outlawing "irregular" practice and establishing the "regulars" as the legal healers. This early grab for medical monopoly inspired mass indignation in the form of a popular health movement which came close to smashing medical elitism in America once and for all.

The Popular Health Movement of the 1830s and 40s is usually dismissed in conventional medical histories as the high-tide of quackery and rationalism. In reality it was the medical front of a general social upheaval stirred up by feminist working class movements.

The Movement was a radical assault on medical elitism and an affirmation of the traditional people's medicine. "Every man his doctor" was the slogan of one wing of the Movement, and they made it very clear they meant every woman too. The "regular" doctors were attacked as members of the "parasitic, non-producing classes", who lived only because of the upper class "lurid tastes, calomel and bleeding".

The peak of the Popular Health Movement coincided with the beginnings of an organized feminist movement, and the two were so tightly linked that it's hard to tell where one began and the other left off. The health movement was connected with women's rights in general, and the women's movement was particularly concerned with health and with women's access to medical training.

At its height in the 1830s and 40s, the Popular Health Movement had the "regular" doctors as professional ancestors of today's physicians running scared. Later in the 19th century, the grassroots energy ebbed and the Movement degenerated into a set of competing sects. "Regulars" went back on the offensive. In 1890, they pulled together their first national organization, pretentiously named the American Medical Association (A.M.A.).

The rare woman who did make it into the "regular" medical school faced one sexist barrier after another. First there was the constant harassment - often lewd - of the male students. There were professors who wouldn't discuss anatomy with a lady present. There were texts like a well-known obstetrical text which said, "She (Woman) has a head almost too small to intellect but just big enough for love."

In the late 19th century, the "woman's health movement" began to dissociate itself from the Popular Health Movement past and to strive for respectability. Members of irregular sects were purged from the faculties of the women's medical colleges. Female medical leaders such as Elizabeth Blackwell joined male "regulars" in demanding an end to lay midwifery and a "complete medical education" for all who practiced obstetrics. All this at a time when the "regulars" still had little or no "scientific" advantage over the sect doctors or lay healers.

Though no longer faced with organized opposition (they could not claim to control any special body of knowledge), the professional victory of the "regulars" was only made tangible through a lucky coincidence. Science and ruling-class support became available about the same time, the turn of the century.

French and especially German scientists brought forth the germ theory of disease which provided, for the first time in human history, a rational basis for disease prevention and therapy.

Meanwhile the U.S. was emerging as the industrial leader of the world. Fortunes were ruthlessly built. The Rockefeller and Carnegie foundations appeared in the first decade of the 20th century. One of the earliest and highest items on their agenda was medical "reform", the creation of a respectable, scientific American medical profession.

Naturally the money to set up such institutions as John Hopkins was firmly behind the scientific elite, of the "regular" doctors, leaving the smaller, poorer schools (often special schools for blacks or women) to close. Medicine was established once and for all as a branch of "higher learning" accessible only through lengthy and expensive university training.

Medicine had become a white, male, middle-class occupation. The doctor had become "the man of science" - beyond criticism, beyond regulation, very nearly beyond competition.

All that was left to drive out the last holdout of the old people's medicine - the midwives. In 1910, about 50 per cent of the babies were delivered by midwives - most were blacks or working class immigrants. Potential profits for "professional" obstetricians were going down the drain.

Publicly, however, the obstetricians launched their attacks on midwives in the name of science and reform. Midwives were ridiculed as "hopelessly dirty, ignorant, and incompetent".

A truly public-spirited profession would have been to make the appropriate preventive techniques known and available to the mass of midwives. This is in fact what happened in England, Germany and most other European countries: midwifery was upgraded through training to become an established, independent occupation.

But the American obstetricians had no real commitment to improved obstetrical care. In fact, a study by a Johns Hopkins professor in 1912 indicated that most American doctors were less competent than midwives.

Midwifery outlawed

Under intense pressure from the medical profession state after state passed laws outlawing midwifery and restricting the practice of obstetrics to doctors. For poor and working class women, this actually meant worse - or no - obstetrical care. For the new, male medical profession, the ban on midwives meant one less source of competition. Women had been routed from their last foothold as independent practitioners.

The only remaining occupation for women in health was nursing. Nursing had not always existed as a paid occupation - it had to be invented. Credit for the invention of nursing goes to a small handful of upper class women reformers whose prime interest was not in improving hospital conditions. In the view of nursing leaders like Florence Nightingale, the filthy and archaic hospitals of the time needed a "woman's touch". "The Nightingale nurse", who set the pattern for nursing education in this country as well as England, was conceived as the embodiment of "femininity" as defined by Victorian society.

For all the glamorous "lady with the lamp" imagery, nursing at the time involved little more than household drudgery, with the patriarchal husband replaced by the lordly doctor. But just as the late 19th century women's movement had not opposed the rise of the medical profession, it did not challenge nursing as an oppressive female role.

Women have not been passive bystanders in the history of medicine. The present system was born in and shaped by the competition between male and female healers. The medical profession in particular is not just another institution which happens to discriminate against women. It is a fortress designed and erected to exclude us. This means to us that the sexism of the health system is not incidental, not just the relaxation of the sexism of society in general or the sexism of incidental doctors. It is historically older than the medical science itself; it is deep-rooted, institutional sexism.

Professionalism in medicine is nothing more than the institutionalization of a male upper class monopoly. We must never confuse professionalism with expertise. Expertise is something to work for and share; professionalism is - by definition - elitist and exclusive, sexist, racist and classist.

Our oppression as women health workers today is inextricably linked to our oppression as women. Nursing our predominant role in the health system, is simply a workplace extension of our roles as wife and mother. The nurse is socialized to believe that rebellion violates not only her professionalism but her very femininity. This means that the male medical elite has a very special stake in the maintenance of sexism in society at large. Doctors are the bosses in an industry where the workers are primarily women. Sexism in the society at large insures that the female majority of health work force are "good" workers - docile and passive. Take away sexism and you take away one of the mainstays of the health hierarchy.

What this means to us is that in the health system there is no way to separate worker organizing from feminist organizing. To reach out to women health workers as women is to reach out to them as women.

excerpted from Witches, Midwives, and Nurses and is available from New Hogtown Press, Toronto

The ineffectual in uniform

by Shawn Thompson

Law and Disorder is advertised as a comedy, but that seems intended to attract audiences rather than to describe the film. The comedy in the plot has serious implications—which are nothing to be ashamed of—sharpening the sense of tragedy which concludes Law and Disorder. Frustration and failure, unconquered by the change in uniform, reach a climax in the death ending the film. Wearing uniforms infects the auxiliary police force with a feeling of power and invulnerability which proves fatal.

Earnest Borgnine plays a hairdresser who cannot even control the insolence of his voluptuous assistant, Karen Black. Teased sexually by her until he explodes, he is then locked in his own back room, and to complete his humiliation, instructed to bark like a dog if he wants out. Naturally he wants out, and his moment of release comes on a children's baseball field. As a hairdresser, his car was stripped at the beginning of the film. Now he has obtained and outfitted unofficially a police car. Enraptured, he drives it in circles around the baseball field with the red light flashing.

The other auxiliary cops watch helplessly, unable to umpire the antics of one of their own. Freedom and power and invulnerability are as much of an illusion as playing with that toy car in the field. In an earlier scene Borgnine was playing catch with Carroll O'Connor along the waterfront. In this atmosphere of recreation Borgnine argued seriously for the organization of their auxiliary police force. O'Connor talked about his desire simply to sail away on a ship. Borgnine, in contrast, apparently more practical, offered a method to fight the problem of crime in their neighbourhood rather than to escape it. In view of the results however, the uniforms, the nightsticks, the police car, and the sense of authority, belonged on the playing field.

Feeling secure because they look like real cops in a real cop car, the auxiliary police force decides to go through a red light. This, they believe, will give them a sense of mastery and power, and relieve the pressure of being ineffectual as citizens. The incident is both comical and pathetic. Instead of racing across the intersection, they violate a minor traffic ordinance at a timid, feeble speed. By the end of Law and Disorder the police car has become just a weak refuge, as fragile as glass, and the auxiliary cops are threatened helplessly with the violence they wanted to stop.

Violence is one element in a larger force which frustrates and deadens the lives of the characters Borgnine and O'Connor play. The change into police uniforms is their last chance to recoup the failures of middle age. They achieve a momentary illusion of freedom and power, some funny episodes, but their only real satisfaction comes from indulging their sense of phantasy. O'Connor, rather than Borgnine, seems to realize that he cannot escape life's capacity to make things go wrong. Crime is just as elusive for the cop as it was for the citizen, and death strikes from an invisible source. Ultimately something larger than the criminal element defeats the auxiliary cops. Comedy, like phantasy, lightens the burden of growing older, of being powerless, but it offers no protection. But in spite of everything O'Connor ends the film with a gesture which proves, that although he may have been unsuccessful in uniform, he still retains a basic human freedom.

Thrills and chills

by Mike Cragen

A night of thrills and chills from Cineguild is in store for the Campus this Thursday night. A double bill of 1932 horror movies will be shown in Dunning Hall, featuring two of the most familiar actors associated with the genre.

Bela Lugosi is featured in Murders in the Rue Morgue as the evil Dr. Mirakle, who attempts to prove a theory of evolution that involves the kidnapping of women for his experiments conducted with a gorilla. One of the many film adaptations of Poe, it bears little resemblance to the original story, and Life Sciences students will scoff at the scientific logic. But the victims are luscious as always, and the striking use of lighting and shadows is most effective during moments of extreme terror and death. Lugosi's accented speech adds a unique dimension to the macabre to his character and his stylized mannerisms are a joy to watch.

So, too, is Boris Karloff's portrayal of The Mummy, a role which resulted from the success of his Frankenstein monster in 1931, and subsequent typecasting in the horror field. Karloff stars as Imhotep who was buried alive for a love of an Egyptian princess. He returns to life when his tomb is discovered by archaeologists, and sets off to find his mate again. Karloff gives a stirring performance in this classic movie, which is marked by some terrifying scenes, most tense is the initial awakening of the Mummy. Karloff never repeated the role but the movie served as a basis for the later ones featuring Lon Chaney Jr.

So far a few hours of hair raising fun, come out and enjoy these movies.

A minor sequel

by Trish Hawke

Godfather II is a melodramatic bore. It sags heavily after three and a half hours, but is held together largely by four main characters: the weak but appealing Vito Andolini, who too easily establishes himself in the U.S., his powerful, ruthless and convincing son Michael; Michael's inscrutable confidante Tom Hager and Hyman Roth, whose shifting character seems to fit his roles as "partner". The women in the film are reduced to type characters. Michael's mother could have been a strong character, but in her most important scene she was ensconced in a coffin, and she was clearly used merely as a means of reconciling Michael and his brother Frederico. Kay, Michael's wife, was inconsistent; she became strong willed, vindictive adversary of the Corleone family ethic. Finally, we see Michael's sister Connie—a flimsy portrayal of vice and penitence.

The movie is a structural nightmare. It opens with a funeral procession bearing the corpse of Vito's father, it goes on to whirl the audience through the murders of his brother Paulo and his mother, and the escape of the younger Vito to the United States. Thereafter, the movie explores the parallel struggles of Vito to build up the family and business connections, and those of his son Michael Andolini (now Michael Corleone). The tie between the two plots is tenuous, and succeeds in weakening the narrative strength. The purpose of the parallel plots seems to be to lighten the already straining family knot.

Costume and setting rivalled The Great Gatsby, in sheer magnitude. Particularly impressive was the lawn party held in celebration of the children's confirmation; it was resplendent with white-frosted waiters and flower-laden tables. This scene was especially reminiscent of the introductory pool-side party of Gatsby. Look also for the New Year's Eve stage show in Cuba, performed by satin-and-sequene bedecked beauties.

As sequels go, Godfather II has achieved very minor success. My main criticism is that it goes for too long and ends too late.

Meditation is perfect concentration on a perfect thing

Guru Maharaj Ji reveals that perfect thing.

A free film and discussion will be held Wed. 22 January, at 7:30 p.m. in room 412B, Stirling Hall. The film 'Who is Guru Maharaj Ji?' will be shown followed by guest speaker Mahatma Rajeshwarja close disciple of Guru Maharaj Ji.

AMEY'S
TAXI
546-1111

COMMODORE HOTEL
840 PRINCESS ST.

The Commodore Hotel at 840 Princess St. is pleased to offer all Students of Queen's, St. Lawrence and MacArthur College a preferred rate for room accommodation for their Parents or friends during the 74-75 term when they have occasion to visit Kingston.

NIGHTLY ENTERTAINMENT
in our Lounge

THIS WEEK: "Chateau"

Amateur Night every Wednesday

Queen's Students Welcome
In Our Lounge

Delicious Delivered Dinners only your Front Door Away!
CALL 542-4255

Dixie Lee

Fried Chicken & Seafood
50¢ charge for orders $2.00 - $8.00
Orders $8.00 or over - FREE DELIVERY
700 Princess Street

An insight into revenge

by Norman James

Euripides, in his Medea, does not present deceiving polished facades that we are accustomed to and feel most comfortable with. In his plays we should not expect the concealing wit and disguised action of the natural world. Euripides forces the starkest embodiments of psychology upon us, exposing the pulsing entrails of our deepest motives and urges. Here is the action stripped naked of attractive embellishments that serve to entertain us. Bernard Burkom's production of Medea succeeded in drawing out the visceral elements of the play, only failing in the untrained techniques of his cast.

Medea describes the last episode of the heroine's turbulent life. Betrayed by her husband's new marriage to the king of Corinth's daughter, Medea seeks revenge in the devastating murders to punish Jason. The action follows the struggle within her as she destroys her husband and by murdering his new bride and her own children. The play deals mainly with her being and perspective; other characters acting only as impediments or comforts to her cause. The egoistic ugliness overwhelms the production as it is presented through sight and sound.

In sight and sound the production realized its most powerful moments. The stark confines of Don McKay's set of a raked platform enclosed the struggles of Medea's agony, suggesting the woman's triumphant later remembrance of her revenge. David Keane's music pretended to no melody, crashing harsh noises over broken rhythms. His most piercing screams were torture to our ears, but coupled with the play. The sudden movement's of modern dance suited the clearly defined motives of the characters. Especially in her last dance under black light, Aitken could show us the most awesome action of the production that Euripides believed could only be imagined.

If anywhere, the audience will attribute the faults of the production to the acting, but these arose from untrained voice and movement from which Burkom demanded so much. In the best performance, Shelley Cavalier as Medea twisted in the torment and conflict that she feels before she decides to carry out her plot. Unfortunately, her costume made her movements awkward, and like Banuta Rubress's description of Medea's treachery, she lacked the vocal skills to sustain the audience's interest through her long speeches. Only Peter Meech and Michael Saver, as Jason and Aegens, seemed more interested in their effect - rather than in the passions that could illicit more convincing performances - reducing their sharp gestures to the absurd.

Despite his innovations, Burkom was true to Euripides' text, and one might suppose that the playwright would have approved of such an interpretation. Burkom revels in baring naked passions, and in Greek drama, he can find a source. Although the blocking was sometimes repetitive, he established symmetrical scenes to emphasize his greater objectives in the chaos of character.

The audience needed the first half of Medea to appreciate the intent, and in the second half, overlooked the short-comings, accepting the ugliness, and surprising itself with its applause that signalled an inner recognition of Euripides' and Burkom's grasp of psychology.

Tom Lukazek and Peggy Haggerty in "Lady Audley's Secret", to open Thursday at the Domino Theatre.

Camerata, a chamber ensemble to perform at Dunning Hall Wednesday evening.

Chamber group to perform an unfamiliar programme

The Dunning Hall series continues this Wednesday evening with a concert by Camerata, a chamber group best known for its performances while in residence at the Shaw Festival at Niagara-on-the-Lake last summer. Camerata is unique, both in choice of instruments (a piano, a violin, a cello, and a clarinet) and in choice of music. Pianist Elyakim Laussig explains the philosophy of the group: "There are groups all over the world that present concerts of varied instrumental groupings in a single evening, but for us this is only one percent of what we stand for. These other groups are still very old-fashioned in their programming and play mainly the standard trios and sonatas. Our repertoire is based on music that is much less familiar, good pieces that for one reason or another are seldom performed or recorded." Critics have found nothing but praise for this chamber group The Globe and Mail has said that they perform "with such infectious and unalloyed zeal that they fairly sweep you off your feet," and that "they left the audience shouting for more."

Four members of the group will perform music by Bach, Beethoven, Barok, Kokai and Papper this Wednesday. Tickets are available at $3.50 general, $2.50 students and senior citizens, at the Performing Arts Box Office in the Agnes Etherington Art Centre.

Domino Theatre to present an engrossing period piece

The Domino Theatre's current production, Lady Audley's Secret, is well worth seeing. The play is one of the most famous of all Victorian melodramas, and is interesting historically as it introduced to British and North American Audiences the first of an impressive list of aristocratic lady villains. The play features an authentic English country dance, the Morris Dance; and is full of melodramatic dialogue and delightful asides to a wise audience who has solved the mystery of Lady Audley long before any of the characters in the play have sensed that there is anything mysterious about her. Lady Audley is played by Peggy Haggerty; the supporting cast includes Alan Anderson, Peter McGowan, Alan Mann, Tom Lukazek, Debbie Poole and Jill Chamberlain.

Lady Audley's Secret is directed by Rod Robertson, who directed the Queen's Drama Department's production of Night of the Iguana earlier this term.

It figures...

Skaters--champs again

by Sue Dowley
Journal Sports Writer

The Queen's Figure Skating Team came out on top again this weekend, winning the Queen's Invitational Meet with a total of 107 points, a solid 30 points ahead of second place finisher, McMaster, Toronto and York followed in close succession.

The dancing events started the day off. Queen's was slow to gather points here but a little more practise before the OWIAA championships should remedy that. Ken Frost and Janet Cox finished fourth in the junior mixed dance, with teammates Larry Benz and Chris Goodbrand placing 5th. Both teams are to be commended. Except for Janet all were new to the team this year and Ken Frost just traded his hockey skates for figure skates two practises before the meet.

Junior ladies dance saw Debbie Johnson and Janet Cox place 4th while in Senior ladies dance 2nd place was taken by Marilyn Snell and Pattie Shirkoff. The Ladies Open Dance title was once again captured by Nancy McLachlin. This was the first win of the day for Queen's and marked the turning point in the competition.

The singles events showed a great improvement in the quality and quantity of skaters from all universities. University of Toronto still holds the Novice Ladies title. Ellen Sawyer has managed to hold onto it for the past three years. Queen's entry for that event was Debbie Johnson who finished 4th and skated very well. Debbie's skating has really improved since the season began in October.

Junior Ladies Singles was won by Johanna Flipsen, of Queen's University, with team mates Mary ByNel and Jeannine Burgon placing 2nd and 4th respectively.

The Intermediate Ladies event was more than dominated by Queen's skaters. Marilyn Snell, a new member to the Queen's team, defeated Sue Dowley in a close competition for 1st place. Betty McQuay also of Queen's skated to a 3rd place finish in this same event.

The most advanced level of skating-the Senior Ladies Singles - was filled with top notch skaters from all universities. Since former Toronto champion, Beth Peters, retired to coach her university team, the event was wide open and each university made a good bid for the title.

However, Toronto managed to snag it again with the win going to Sue Patterson. Kathy Martin of Queen's finished a good second and Marion Spence placed 4th.

An exciting exhibition was put on by York team member Raymond Naismith, a double gold medalist by the Canadian Figure Skating Association standards. His power and skill awed the audience. Double axels and triple salchows - both jumps requiring a high degree of skill - were done with effortless ease. Lucky for Queen's it was only an exhibition!

The competition was ended with the ladies similar pairs. First place in the junior event went to Janet Cox and Debbie Milliken of Queen's for the 3rd year in a row. Sue Dowley and Kathy Martin finished second in the senior division behind McMaster University.

Judges in the days events were Mr. Baker, Mrs. Bulak and Mrs. Branton, all of Kingston. Their time and effort in judging was appreciated by all. Special mention goes to team manager Carol Farquharson, who, with coach Gail Hiron, organized and ran the competition admirably. Next month the team will travel to McMaster, to defend their OWIAA championship.

Queen's Wrestling

by Alex Faseruk
Journal Sports Writer

The Queen's Wrestling Gaels, in their strongest performance of the season captured the team championships at the first annual RMC Invitational Tournament held Saturday, January 18. Queen's won the championship with 41 points closely followed by York with 40 points. University of Toronto was third with 37 points and the host team finished fourth with 27 points, followed by Carleton (23 points) and Algonquin College (20 points).

Individual championships were captured by Doug Sands (142 lbs.) and Ed David (150 lbs.). Sands, a rookie with the team, dominated his weight class by pinning one opponent and defeating his other two opponents by evident superiority. David, a second year veteran with the team, wrestled extremely well defeating Dave Lang of RMC, who finished second, by evident superiority.

Rand White (177 lbs.) earned a second place, pinning all four of his opponents in the finals. Unfortunately, White had to default his championship match since he sustained a shoulder injury in the preliminary rounds of competition.

Third place went to Ron Dadsen (142 lbs.) and Don Johnston (167 lbs.). Dadsen, a second year veteran, has wrestled well all season and added this third place finish to the fourth place finish he earned at the Queen's Open the weekend before. Johnston, a rookie with the team, has been improving all season and could provide some surprises at the OUAA championships.

Ron Bazuk (190 lbs.) and Dominic Parrella-Illaria (177 lbs.) each finished fourth. Bazuk, a three year veteran wrestled well for the team considering that he only attended three practices last week before entering the tournament. Parrella-Illaria should have finished higher in the tournament for he was convincingly defeating his opponent from York by a 12-4 score in his third round match. Unfortunately, however, he was pinned late in the match.

Also competing for Queen's were Al Stewart (134 lbs.) and Del DeMonte (177 lbs.). Both these wrestlers had unfortunate draws and had to wrestle the eventual winners of their weight classes in the first round of competition.

Next weekend the Gaels face the beginning of the toughest half of the schedule. On January 25, the team will compete in the Guelph Open. This is recognized as the toughest tournament in Canada to win, besides the Canadian Open Championships. Competing in it will be the best wrestling clubs from Ontario, Quebec, New York and Pennsylvania. On February 8 the team will travel to Canton, N.Y. to meet St. Lawrence U. and the University of Syracuse in a Tri-meet. St. Lawrence U. is one of the best wrestling schools in New York State and the University of Syracuse is ranked within the top

Bite the one you love

Friday Film Series '75
presented by the GSS Film Club

Night of the Living Dead

horror classic

Series tickets and single admission available at the door. Single - $1.00
Series - $2.50 (reduced price)

8:00 p.m. Ellis Auditorium
Everyone Welcome

ASUS

Nominations are open for the following positions:

• President and Vice President (slate)

- Treasurer of ASUS
- Secretary of ASUS
- 6 one-year ASUS representatives to the AMS
- 1 two-year ASUS representative to the AMS
- 1 one-year Senator
- 1 two-year Senator

All Nominations should include 25 signatures of members of ASUS, position nominated for and the name and telephone number of the nominee. All nominations must be submitted to the ASUS Box in the AMS Office by February 4 at 4:00 p.m.

WHEN YOU BUY A GUITAR AT

REMBLAY'S MUSIC STORE

You get a little extra.
Every conceivable accessory is available.

We try and make sure every instrument is custom suited to each individual's needs.

All guitars (if requested) can be set up, action lowered, for maximum finger ease, intonation properly done. All the little things, sometimes missed at the factory.

We'll leave the playing to you. Let us help you do it better, and easier.

When you're number one, you want to stay there.

Gals B-ball

Game lost in overtime

Laney Marshall striving for points in offensive drive against Laurentian.

by Branstable
Journal Sports Writer

Queen's senior basketball Gals lost a pair of league contests to the first-place Laurentian Voyageurs this weekend, but the only similarity between the games was the outcome. Friday night, the Gals took Laurentian into overtime, before losing a heartbreaking 73-72 decision when a shot by Penny Wedd failed to drop with about five seconds left. Laurentian coach Norm Vickery commented later that "we were lucky to win... we got some good breaks. Queen's really deserved the win."

Despite the presence of national team centre Sheila Strike, who led all players with 27 points, Queen's played the Vees even throughout the game; the teams were tied 31-all at the half, and the Gals actually out-rebounded Laurentian who enjoyed something of a height advantage, 29-24.

Pat Quigley attempts defensive block while Kathy Keely (44) and Pat Patterson await the rebound.

Led by a 22-point performance from Laney Marshall, the perpetually-moving little guard who sparks the Gals at both ends of the court, and strong work under the boards by Pat Smith, who pulled down 7 rebounds while hitting 19 points, Pat Patterson, who tossed in 16 points and grabbed 9 rebounds, and Pat Quigley, with 7 boards and 8 points, the Gals came back from an 8-point deficit late in the third quarter to produce one of the most exciting finishes seen in the Bartlett since Ron Walsh called it a career. As a game, it was easily the best of the year, so much so that one of the referees, talking between halves to his partner, allowed that "this is the hardest game I've had... I thought a women's game should be easy." Easy or not, both officials did an excellent job - for a very pleasant change from the whistle jockeys that usually obstruct the flow of combat for the Gals. However, things were back to normal on Saturday, at least as far as the quality of officiating went.

Unfortunately for the Gals, that was about all that was normal. With guess-work refereeing effectively hamstringing the aggressive, reaching style of defense favoured by coach Mo Bouris, and everybody suffering from a bad case of cold shooting, the Vees rolled up a 70-44 decision that was out of reach from the early stages of the second half.

Trailing 32-15 after the first twenty minutes (and it took four points in the final minute to get that close) Queen's came out running, and managed to cut Laurentian's margin to 10 after about four minutes of play. They had a chance to trim the lead further, but a rather dubious travelling call gave Laurentian a chance to cool things down, and it was really no contest after that.

Laurentian completely dominated the boards in the Saturday contest, with Strike and Belanger having an easy time after Pat Smith got in early foul trouble. Both pulled down 10 boards as the Vees enjoyed a 31-14 advantage. Strike added 18 points, including 14 in a row in the second half, while Belanger had 14. For the Gals, Pat Quigley hooped 12 points, with Laney Marshall adding 11 and Pat Patterson 10. Rookie Sue Gilles, who saw considerable floor time, and played quite well, hit for six more.

Despite these losses, the Gals have proved that they can play Laurentian on even terms on any given day - something no other team in the conference has yet come close to doing this season. The playoffs could be worth a trip to Sudbury.

This weekend, the Gals invade Toronto for their annual road trip to the big city, with games against Varsity Friday night and York on Saturday. Even with the usual level of Toronto refereeing, they should add a couple of wins to their record.

DUNNING HALL
CAMERATA
(violin, piano, cello, clarinet)

WED. 22 JANUARY
8:30 p.m.

Works by Bach, Beethoven, Bartok, Popper, Weiner

Ticket information:
547-6194

a Division of
Concerts event

SLEIGH RIDES

Want to go on a real horse drawn sleigh ride? It's possible at Valhalla!

Make up a party and have some winter fun. You will ride in a 2 horse sleigh around Valhalla's BUFFALO PARK, so you will see the buffalo herd as well. So get together with your friends, phone for reservations, and come on out to Valhalla Riding School Hwy No. 2, Gananoque (on Hwy 2, 13 mi. east of Kingston)

Valhalla Riding School
Hwy No. 2, Gananoque
(on Hwy. 2, 13 mi. east of Kingston)

PHONE: 382-3337

STUDENT HEALTH SERVICE

MEDICAL CLINIC — 547-6106 • 24 hours daily
(Answering service contacts a duty physician when the Health Service is closed.)

CLINIC HOURS — 9:00 am - 11:30 am
1:00 pm - 4:00 pm
Monday to Friday inclusive

PSYCHIATRY & COUNSELLING — By appointment
9:00 am - 5:00 pm phone 547-2889 or come to Health Service to make an appointment.

RICELESS... WITHIN REASON

Precious diamonds do not have to cost a fortune. We can help you to select a fine diamond that you can afford. Regardless of your financial status, we can offer a superb diamond that will thrill you... and never leave you flat.

KINNEAR D'ESTERRE
JEWELLERS
168 PRINCESS STREET
KINGSTON, ONTARIO

Swimming Gals strong

The swimming Gals were in Guelph for the Annual Guelph Invitational Relay Meet this past weekend. This is always a good meet to start the winter term with, as the swimmers often swim in events other than their specialty. This is for experience, and so consequently the pressure is not as heavy as in other meets.

Coach Sheila McKirdy was pleased with the teams' performance after the Christmas layoff.

There was an excellent showing from the team rookies. Cassie Collins really performed well in the second leg of the 3x100 yard breast stroke relay, putting in a time of 1:23.5. Leslie

MacIntyre contributed a super second leg effort in the 4x50 yard freestyle relay, in which the Queen's team placed a narrow second.

The Queen's 'B' team of Cathy Lech, Cassie Collins, Diane Semple and Leslie MacIntyre put together a very strong effort in the 4x50 yard medley relay, placing first in their heat with a time of 2:14.7.

The results of all the team members are encouraging. Coach McKirdy would like to thank all the Gals for a fine effort. The swimming women will be travelling to Waterloo for the Sixth Annual International Invitational next weekend and hopes are high to see even greater improvements in the team.

To all Queen's sports participants--If you are competing in an athletic activity and want team coverage of results, please submit written article to Journal office and it will be published. Deadlines for Tuesday and Friday issues are Sunday and Wednesday, respectively, at 10 p.m.

WIC-ly News

by Marg Bartlett

Cross Country Skiing - is taking place Mondays and Fridays starting last night. Equipment is supplied, so come on out and have some fun. For more details, phone Barb McDermott at 544-8060.

Volleyball - starts tonight in Bews Gym from 7:15-9:15 p.m. Don't forget that Volleyball action continues each Tuesday and Thursday night right up until March 13. Kathy Jackson is the convener and can be reached at 542-4363.

Squash Clinic - is being held tomorrow, Wednesday January 22 from 7:30-9:30 p.m. Sign up sheet is posted in the Women's Locker Room. Come on out Wed. and find out what Squash is all about. For further info, contact Willa Henry at 549-5174.

RESULTS: of last week's SWIMMATHON:

1st-Cathy Spoel Arts '78
2nd-Jill Cooper Arts '77
3rd-Mary Bradford Rehab '77
Winning Faculty: Arts

MORE RESULTS: SWIM NITE

1st-Kathy Coyle
2nd-Anne Galbraith
3rd-Betty Dickie

Thanks to all those that came out to these 2 events.

EVEN MORE RESULTS: SNOWSHOEING

The 1st snowshoe outing took place this past Sat. from 10-12 noon. Fifteen girls came out and according to convener Christa Craig, everything went very well and the 1st outing was a great success. The next snowshoe outing will be held towards the end of January. Keep your eyes and ears open for further notices. If you want to be a sport and play a sport, pic WIC!

Ontario Public Interest Research Group Co-ordinator

to assume primary responsibility for co-ordinating and initiating public interest research in a university environment.

Qualifications should include experience of an interesting nature, research skill, writing and verbal communication ability.

Salary arranged: $130-140 weekly plus benefits

Applications by February 15 to:

OPIRG
University of Waterloo
Waterloo, N2L 3G1

for more information contact:

(519)-885-1121 Ext. 2376

FRUSTRATED BY
UNSUCCESSFUL TRIPS TO BOOKSTORE?

WE CAN ORDER ANY BOOK IN PRINT!

ACADEMIC BOOK CLUB
P.O. BOX 1507, KINGSTON
P.O. Box 1507, Kingston, K7L 5C7

fresh flowers delivered around the corner
and around the world
176 Ontario St.

ANIMATED FEMALES PRESENTS

SUSIE Q WEEK

JAN. 21 - JAN. 26

TUESDAY: BROOMBALL GAME between the Gaels and the Gals Hockey teams - 7:15 - 8:15 in the Arena

WEDNESDAY: THE GREAT DEBATE at 8:00 in Stirling D Resolved that for the Woman, Love is her whole existence - but for a man it's a thing apart!

THURSDAY: MOVIE in Stirling D - at 7:00 - and 9:00 Title to be found in John Orr Room

STAG DANCE with BILLY BATES ORCHESTRA in Grant - from 8:30 - 12:30 - Admission 50¢ Beer 40¢

FRIDAY: SKATING PARTY 2:30 - 4:20 in the Arena COUNTRY FAIR BEER, BINGO and DANCING at Leonard; SILENT MOVIES at Brockington, MAGICIAN FERNANDEZ at Gordon - Admission $1.00 - Beer 40¢

SATURDAY: SUSIE Q BOWL FOOTBALL GAME PENELOPE PIT-STOPS PROM 9:00 - 1:00 GREASE CAPRICE Leonard 8:30 - 12:30

SUNDAY: CONCERT BRIAN CURRIE and the NORTHERN VERMONT RHYTHM BAND - 9:00 p.m. in Grant Admission $2.00

TICKETS ON SALE: JOHN ORR ROOM 10:30 to 2:30 MEAL LINES 4:30 to 6

Gymnastics...

Queen's takes 4th

Queen's gymnast contributing fine performance at weekend meet.

At Queen's Invitational Gymnastics Meet Saturday, some of the best gymnastics exhibited at this University was observed. Top honours went to York University, with a team score of 178.3. Second place was taken by Laval University, third place went to Nova Scotia, and Queen's placed fourth. Other teams competing were the University of Toronto, the University of Western Ontario and R.M.C.

Top all-round honours went to Barry Brooker of Queen's with a score of 46.4. His performance on parallel bars earned him a third place on that apparatus. Other notable Queen's performances came from Janie Archibald with a score of 7.6 on floor (fifth) and an 8.5 on vaulting; Glen Koshurba with a score of 8.2 on rings; Greg Leeworthy with an 8.3 on vaulting and Roy Nakashima with an 8.0 on vaulting also.

Coach Don Masse missed his prediction of placing in the top 3 teams. However, he was pleased with the performances of his gymnasts and expects to do better in the upcoming meets.

Queen's next competition will be at Ottawa University next Saturday.

SportsRound-up

Home Action

Women's Ice Hockey - Queen's won against McMaster, skating into first place.

Women's Figure Skating - Queen's won the Queen's invitational, against Toronto, McMaster, and York.

Women's Basketball - Queen's lost to Laurentian, Friday night, 73-72 Saturday 70-44

Men's Hockey - Queen's won against Laurentian, 2-1.

Men's Basketball - Queen's split - lost 97-78 to Laurentian Friday night won 70-64 over Ryerson on Saturday

Men's Gymnastics - Queen's invitational won by York, Queen's fourth Teams competing - U of T, Laval, Nova Scotia, Western, RMC

Away Action

Men's Squash - Queen's won the consolation round, defeating McMaster and Guelph - U. of T. won tournament at York University.

Men's Volleyball - at Ottawa U., Queen's defeated RMC and Ottawa U.

Men's Wrestling - RMC Invitational Queen's won. Teams competing were York, U of T, Carleton, Algonquin.

Cross Country Skiing - placed well in the National Capital Division held in Ottawa

Men's Track and Field - Invitational at Cornell, New York - Queen's placed in top 5 of twenty universities competing Women's Fencing - at Carleton, Queen's 3rd in Part II of Eastern division.

Women's Speed Swim - at Guelph, Queen's placed 4th - all universities in Ontario competing

Squash squishes slightly better

The Queen's Men's squash team travelled to York this past weekend to take part in an invitational which included players from the schools of Toronto, McMaster, and Guelph. The team is comprised of five seeded players, including Alex Dougall (1), Stu Watt (2), Al Hayes (3), Ian Barnett (4), Bob Moffatt (5), and John Hungerford (who was absent). They were beaten by a slightly better Toronto team. This put Queen's into the consolation round, which they won, soundly defeating both McMaster and Guelph in five straight victories in both competitions. The team has their next tournament at Sir Wilfrid Laurier, before hosting the finals for the OUAA on February 15.

TRICOLOR '75 SUCKS...

Unless YOU care to make it great.
Tell us what you think of this year, good or bad.
Meeting this Thursday, in the Tricolor office, downstairs in the Student's Union, at 7:30 P.M.

GOING HOME?

	Voyageur	AMS	CNR
Toronto
Return	$15.70 plus taxi	$10.00	$19.50 plus taxi
One-way	$8.25 plus taxi	$6.00	$9.75 plus taxi
Ottawa
Return	$11.90 plus taxi	$8.00	$15.00 plus taxi
One-way	$6.25 plus taxi	$5.00	$7.50 plus taxi

TICKETS ON SALE -

Wed. Thurs. Fri.
All meal lines All meal lines
John Orr Room: 11:30-1:00 11:30-1:00 10:00-4:00

Things to say when offered a Golden:

- Don't mind if I do.
- Sure. Why not?
- Well, if you insist.
- As long as you're having one.
- Yes, please.
- Get me a cold one.
- No, thanks. I've got one.
- I thought you'd never ask.

Molson Golden
A good smooth ale
Do you know what you're missing?

International

WASHINGTON (CP) - Finance Ministers from most of the non-communist world agreed in principle to set up a two-billion dollar lending facilities to help countries shaken by soaring prices for oil and other commodities.

Ten of the wealthiest countries, including Canada agreed to set up a two year, $25-billion safety net under their own economies and those of 15 other well-to-do countries.

All 126 member countries of the IMF approved a separate oil fund with up to $7 billion in funds, to be financed largely by the oil exporting countries and loaned to countries having difficulty meeting the cost of their oil imports.

WASHINGTON - A birth control pill that is taken for only one week out of fifty-two is highly effective according to a Tibetan doctor who practises the traditional medicine of her country and is now visiting the United States.

In an interview at the University of Virginia, Dr. Lobsang Dolma said that women wanting contraception take one pill during the fourth day of their menstrual period and one a day thereafter for a week. If they then abstain from intercourse for twelve days after their menstrual period they are protected for a year she said.

Asked about the formula, Dr. Dolma said that one of its main ingredients is derived from the sterile male offspring of the mating of a yak and a cow. Her translator's unfamiliarity with medical terminology prevented reporters from learning what else is in the birth control pill, but Dr. Dolma indicated that she would be willing to share with the West this and her information about Tibetan medicine.

MOSCOW - Australian Prime Minister Gough Whitlam ended a four-day visit to the Soviet Union yesterday with a meeting with Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny. Mr. Whitlam did not see Communist Party leader Leonid Brezhnev who has not met any foreign statesmen since Dec. 29 and whose recent movements have been shrouded in mystery.

BONN - West Germany and Cuba are to resume diplomatic relations, broken in 1963 over Cuba's recognition of East Germany. The last West German ambassador to Havana, Count Carl von Spreti, was killed in 1970 after he was kidnapped by Guatemalan rebels.

4/17/74 K. (Illustration: [unintelligible])

AMS Outer Council Meeting

Thursday January 23
7:30 p.m.

McLaughlin Room
Students Union

SPECTRUM Lecture Series

Co-sponsored by Arts and Sciences '78

January 21

1. Dr. Crowder, Dept. of History
"Multum in Parvo" or "What you find at Queens"
2. Dr. Watts, Principal
"The University and Government Control"

January 28

1. Dr. Uffen, Dean of Applied Science
"The Education of the Professional"
2. Dr. Sinclair, Dean of Arts and Science
"The Education of the Person" or "We do not fill Slots"

February 4

1. Dr. Breslow, Dept. of Drama
"The Performing Arts in the University—Yes or No?"
2. Keith Norton, Alderman
"Queen's and Kingston"

February 11

1. Dr. Taylor, Dept. of Mathematics
"The Role of Research in the University"
2. Dr. Franks, Dept. of Politics
"Student Activism in the University"

7:30 pm Ban Righ Common Room
Coffee and Donuts to follow

OTTAWA—A background paper published last week by the Law Reform Commission says the Canadian public is not greatly concerned over the large number of natives charged with criminal offences.

"The percentages of native offenders in jail and the reasons for committal are shocking statistics and yet the general public has not indicated a great concern," said the paper prepared for the commission.

"This seems paradoxical in a period of emphasis on fundamental and minority rights and on social justice, but part of the explanation seems to be public unawareness of the dimensions of the problem," continued the document.

Using statistics published by the provinces, the paper shows a disproportionate number of Indians, Metis and Eskimos in the prison population.

OTTAWA—While public transportation systems in many Canadian cities are getting the brush-off, Ottawa commuters are giving theirs the rush-on.

Twenty percent more people are using the bus today than a year ago. That's a total of 200,000 passengers daily as compared to 165,000 last year.

Except for Toronto and Montreal, Ottawa has the best per capita use of public transportation per year—114 trips per person.

OTTAWA—Food continued to be the main reason for increases in the cost of living as price rises accelerated through 1974 at the fastest rate in 26 years to a 12.4 percent rate. The last time there was a worse year was 1948, when post-Second World War price controls were being taken off and prices allowed to rise.

OTTAWA—Canadian Egg Marketing Board officials cracked their shell of secrecy and admitted that another large egg surplus is growing—at the rate of 15 million eggs a week.

Murphy's Sea Food Restaurant

Lobster Shrimp Dysters
Clam Chowder Fish and Chips
70 Brock St.
548-7753

I'M JUST NUTS ABOUT GOLDEN WORDS

Our intrepid editor is caught in a secret rendezvous with G.W. representative.

His job was cut from the budget

by Larry Woods

Here is the prime example of how the quality of education at Queen's is suffering due to lack of money.

Dr. D.A. Culver has been a professor in the Queen's Biology Department since the beginning of the 1973-74 school year, but the Faculty of Arts and Science has decided that he will not be rehired when his present two-year contract expires in September, 1975. The reason for this decision is that there is a lack of money, and so Culver's job will be cut from the budget.

A group of concerned students have already convinced the Dean of Arts and Science to reconsider this decision, but the Dean must inevitably take into account the fact that budget cuts must be made somewhere.

Culver has stressed that the university is within its rights in not rehiring him, since he is not tenured. He will likely move to a university outside Ontario, since university budgets are tight all over the province.

There are 75 students enrolled in the limnology course which is being offered for the first time at Queen's this year, but will not be offered next year if Culver leaves (the course is taught by Culver and another professor who is going on sabbatical next year). Limnology is the science which deals with the physical, chemical and biological properties and features of fresh water especially lakes and ponds.

Queen's students have every right to be upset about the non-rehiring of Dr. Culver, since this represents a drop in the quality and variety of education at Queen's. The lack of money in this situation springs from the Ontario government's failure to match operating grants with the rate of inflation, so the financial situation is becoming progressively tighter.

The saddest thing about this story is not that a professor is losing a job (since he will find another one somewhere else), but that Queen's is losing a specialist in ecology, limnology, and invertebrate biology. This loss is in spite of Dr. Culver's recent comment, "I really would like to stay at Queen's".

Third in a series on cutbacks

Arts: most ideal faculty for financial cutbacks?

Mostly by Paul Steep
A student enrolled in a four year Arts programme at Queen's will not be handed a certificate of technical training at his conclusion, nor will he be as qualified for a professional position as would a graduate of Engineering or Commerce. For this reason, university administrators have concluded that the benefits of an Arts education are more difficult to evaluate, making it harder to justify the need for increased grants to universities. Therefore, would the only minimal amount of professional training offered in an Arts programme make the faculty of Arts and Science the most logical place to make cutbacks?

But Dr. Duncan Sinclair, Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Science, and himself a professor of physiology disagrees. He feels that there would be a major impact upon society should students of the Arts be forced to bear the brunt of cuts in spending. He justifies it this way, "The fewer the number of departments that we offer, then the less opportunity there is for the student to come in contact with a person who understands a field in depth. Restricting our knowledge in these fields means that the university and its graduates become less diverse while the world is becoming more diverse every minute." He pointed out that there are new disciplines developing all the time. Sociology, for example has only recently emerged as a separate area of study. Also, it wasn't that long ago that politics and economics were combined within one department. No one can predict what areas will become important in the future. Dr. Sinclair recalled that during the 1930's, even though the entire faculty of music was housed in one room of Douglas Library, it still provided the opportunity for one out of the ordinary engineer to combine music with his studies of physics and math. Today that student is Canada's foremost expert in the field of electronic music.

But no matter how valuable the graduates in the Arts are, the cutbacks in government spending have already started to disrupt the faculty. A few examples: The Department of Physical Plant wants to close Mackintosh-Corry on weekends; extension courses are now only offered if more than

Continued on Page 3

AMS-PUC talks

Bus-It to cost more next year

The Kingston Public Utilities Commission (PUC) has agreed to let Queen's students use Bus-It again next year, which will cost students $4.20 for service extending throughout the entire academic year, AMS President Tony Wolman and Vice-President John Gray revealed Wednesday. This is an increase of $1.20 over what students are presently paying towards the mere six month service.

The PUC will receive a total of $7.00 per student for next year's service, $2.80 (40 per cent of the cost) to be paid by the university and the remainder to be paid by the students as part of the AMS fees.

Bus-It now operates from 6 am to 11 pm Monday to Saturday but, according to Wolman, there is a possibility that a night service from 11 pm to 1 am running between West and main campuses may be arranged. The exact cost of this has yet to be settled, but Wolman estimated that it would require an additional 30c from each student.

The decision to begin this 'after hours' bus services was made in order to accommodate those returning home from late night library studying as well as an attempt at curbing the problem of female assaults.

Final decisions on the proposed schemes hinge on this week's meetings of both the PUC and Outer Council as well as the campus-wide referendum Feb. 12 and 13. At this time students will be able to vote on whether they wish to continue the Bus-It plan.

Under next year's plan, students will be receiving more service for their dollars and will perhaps even be saving a total of 6c per month per student.

Ten chosen to advise Auld on student aid

It was announced Monday that 3 students were among the 10 appointments made by James Auld, Ontario Minister of Colleges and Universities to a committee which will advise the minister on financial assistance to students.

The 3 students named were Paul Axelrod of OFS, Timothy Doyle, President of the Student Council of the University of Windsor, and David Ryan, a student at Centennial College, Toronto.

The committee will have 2 chairmen who will alternate in that role: Stefan Dupre (OCUA) and Norman Sisco, a member of the Ontario College of Regents

Other committee members include Joyce Denver and James Fisher, both Toronto consultants, Frances Flanagan, a Cornwall welfare administrator, Joan Macdonald, Executive Director of the Ontario College of Nurses in Toronto and Patrick Phillips, director of the Student Awards program at U. of T. The committee will function to advise the minister on matters of Student financing.

The AMS of Queen's has appointed a committee to look into these same matters particularly with regard to the Ontario Student Awards Program (OSAP).

Queen's
Journal
Volume 102, Number 32
Friday, January 24, 1975

backpage

wat's hapnin'?

Friday, January 24

2:30 - 4:30 - Susie-Q Skating party in the arena.
8:15 - Basketball game: York at Queen's
8:30 - 12:30 - Country Fair - in Residence - beer and bingo in Leonard Cafeteria; silent movies in Brockington; magician in Gordon. Admission $1.00. Beer 40c.

Saturday, January 25

10 a.m. - 5 p.m. - Summer Job Workshop in Geology and Related Fields - a series of workshops designed to give students interested in field work an idea of what to expect. Included in the program are presentations dealing with reconnaissance mapping, detailed mapping, geochemist geochemistry, geophysics, diamond drilling, oil exploration, camp set-up and maintenance, claim staking, etc. Open to all students, not necessarily those in geology. Sponsored by the Miller Club Workshops Committee.
1:30 - 5:00 p.m. - Susie-Q Bowl - Football game on Leonard Field featuring the inter-faculty teams.
8:30 p.m. - Ballroom Dance Club meets same time, same place (Dance Studio), but with new music! Everything from Strauss to the Beachboys. New members welcome.
8:00 p.m. - Bitter Grounds Coffee House and Good Times Emporium will present Doug McArthur. Tickets are available in the John Orr Room and at the door. Admission $2.00. Tickets available at the door.
8:30 p.m. - 12:30 a.m. - Grease Caprice in Leonard. Admission $1.00. Beer 40c.
9:00 p.m. - 1:00 a.m. - Penelope Pit-Stops Prom in Grant Hall with Bob McBride and Jabberwock.

Sunday, January 26

10:30 a.m. - Morning Worship at Chalmers United Church.
10:30 a.m. - Folk Mass at Dunning Hall, followed by coffee and donuts at Newman House, 164 University Ave.
2:30 p.m. - Cococo (Concert of Canadian Opera Company) - in Grant Hall.
7:30 and 9:30 p.m. - The Garden of the Fintzie Continues presented by McArthur Student Society. Theatre A at McArthur.
9:00 p.m. - Concert - Brian Curry and the Vermont Symphony Orchestra. Admission $2.00.

Monday, January 27

3:15 p.m. - The inaugural W.A. Mackintosh Lecture on The Political Economy of Tariff Structures will be given by Richard E. Caves, Professor of Economics at Harvard University. Dunning Auditorium.
5:45 p.m. - Ban Righ Fireside presents a quintet from the Canadian Opera Company in the Ban Righ Common Room. Coffee and desert first. Music at 6:00 p.m.
7 p.m. - 10 p.m. - Life Sciences Night - to provide information about all the sciences involved in the course with the help of displays and participation. Especially for Life Sciences majors but open to anyone.
7:00 p.m. - Queen's University Amateur Radio Club - important meeting in Goodwin Hall, Room 454. All members please attend.
8:00 p.m. - Third World Films: Burn - starring Marlon Brando. Free admission. Coffee and donuts after. Everyone welcome.
8:30 p.m. - RCMP Band at the Grand Theatre. Tickets $1.00 for all. Tickets available from the Grand theatre and Agnes Etherington Box Office.

Pubs and Theatres

Frontenac-Finnegan's - Henry Hughes
Frontenac - Muldoon's - The Cobblers Awl
101 Inn - Body and Soul

Commodore - Creed
Townhouse - Windsor
Manor - Charlie Erstine
Odeon - Jugernaut
Capitol I - Godfather II
Capitol II - Towering Inferno
Hyland - Animal Crackers and Mixed Company

Domino Theatre - Lady Audley's Secret directed by Rod Robertson. Tickets are $2.50 ($1.75 for students on Thursday) at Mahood's Drug Store and at the door. Time 8:30 p.m. The performance will be on the 24th and 25th.
Queen's Department of Drama - Euripides' Medea will run on January 24th and 25th at 8:30 p.m. in Convocation Hall, Old Arts Building (Theology Hall). Tickets and information are available at the Drama Desk (547-6291).

Upcoming Events

Tuesday, January 28 - 7:30 p.m. in the Ban Righ Common Room. SPECTRUM - guest speakers: Dr. Uffen - "The Education of the Professional". Dr. Sinclair - "The Education of the Person".
Tuesday, January 28 - AMS Concerts presents The More Koffman Quintet and David Bradstreet in Grant Hall. Tickets available in the John Orr Room: $3.00 student (advance); $4.00 regular. Two shows 7:30 and 10:00 p.m.
Tuesday, January 28 - William Elgarth and the Party of Humanity - The fourth in a series of lectures given by Professor Burke on Tuesday evenings in Stirling D. Admission is free.
Tuesday, January 28 - McCabe and Mrs. Miller in Ellis Auditorium at 9:00 p.m. Admission $1.00.
Tuesday, January 28 - FRONTIER COLLEGE INFORMATION NIGHT in the Lower International Common Room (an informal discussion on the work of the College, with slides, see article).

Wednesday, January 29 - The Department of Film Studies and the Agnes Etherington Art Centre are hosting a visit by American Experimental Filmmaker, Stan Brakhage on Wednesday in Ellis Hall. There will be screenings on a number of his recent films and discussion with Brakhage. This event is free.
Thursday, January 30 - At 8:00 p.m. in Stirling D. John Saul, of the Toronto Committee for the Liberation of the Portuguese African Colonies, will speak on Struggles in Portuguese Africa. A short movie "A Nation is Born" concerning independence in Guinea Bissau, will also be shown. Everyone welcome.
Thursday, January 30 - The Program of Latin American Studies and the Board of Management of La Casa will present "Venezuela" with H.E. Ruben Carpio Castillo, Ambassador of Venezuela to Canada. Place: La Casa, 90 Queen's Crescent.
4:00 p.m. - Display of photographs
5:00 p.m. - Reception for the Ambassador
7:00 p.m. - Films
8:00 p.m. - Address by the Ambassador

Friday, January 31 - Stephen Lewis Leader of the New Democratic Party of Ontario will be on the Queen's Campus in Room 517, Watson Hall at 11:00 a.m. to talk to students informally about political issues in education or in any other area of the provincial government scene.
January 31 and February 1 - The Department of Film Studies will present a Sergio Leone Film Festival. Friday at 8:00 p.m., The Good, The Bad and The Ugly starring Clint Eastwood will be screened in Ellis Hall. Admission is $1.00. Saturday afternoon at 3:00 p.m. the film Duck You Sucker will be shown. Admission is one dollar. At 8:00 p.m. in the evening, Once Upon A Time in the West will be screened with admission of $1.00. All movies will be in Ellis Hall.
February 1 - At 10:00 a.m. in the Grad Lounge of Humphrey Hall, A Clinical Psychology Debate will be held featuring 4 Psychology Professors. They will discuss opportunities in their fields of study.
February 3 - "Rape Symposium" - to be held in Lower Vic Common room at 8:00 p.m. with panelists from the Kingston Police Department Kgh, Crown Attorney's Office, and the Toronto Rape Crisis Centre.

Greb Kodiak Boots
Sizes 4 to 13
Lee style stripe Bib Overalls
14 oz. jeans - Bootleg or flares

Your largest selection of denims and casual wear.

Larry's Men's Wear

354 King St. E.
Just three doors from Princess.

STUDENT HEALTH SERVICE

MEDICAL CLINIC - 547-6106 - 24 hours daily (Answering service contacts a duty physician when the Health Service is closed.)

CLINIC HOURS - 9:00 am - 11:30 am
1:00 pm - 4:00 pm
Monday to Friday inclusive

PSYCHIATRY & COUNSELLING - By appointment
9:00 am - 5:00 pm phone 547-2889 or come to Health Service to make an appointment.

GREASER DANCE

Saturday January 25

8:30 pm - 12:30 am

Leonard Cafeteria

Admission $1.50

Beer $.50

featuring:

"GREASE CAPRICE"

come greased and ready to rock and roll!

ANIMATED FEMALES
PRESENTS

Susie-Q Week

Jan. 21 - Jan. 26

FRIDAY - Skating Party 2:30 - 4:30 in the Arena; Country Fair, beer, bingo, and dancing at Leonard; Silent Movies at Brockington; Magician Fernandez at Gordon - Admission $1.00. Beer: 40c

SATURDAY - Susie Q Bowl Football game Penelope Pit - Stops Prom; 9:00 - 1:00 Grease Caprice - Leonard 8:30 - 12:30

SUNDAY - Concert - Brian Currie and the Northern Vermont Rhythm Band - 9:00 p.m. in Grant. Admission $2.00
Tickets on sale: J. Orr Rm. 10:30 - 2:30. Meal lines 4:30 - 6.

Arts cutbacks

Continued from Page 1

twelve students enrol; overseas studies have been suspended. There are more examples. The 1975-76 calendar will also be used for the 1976-77 calendar. Dr. Sinclair is fully aware that this will likely result in a breakdown of communication but he is gambling that this is a better risk than cutting back in some other area. Those professors who go on Sabbatical leave are seldom replaced anymore. This puts an added workload on the professors who remain. It naturally increases the student-staff ratio and lessens the opportunity for interaction between the two groups. Dr. Sinclair commented, "Without this interaction there is less opportunity for criticism. As a consequence the students won't be able to make a wise decision as he would have had this opportunity existed in that sense, today's graduates are going to be handicapped." An economics professor gave specific example of this. Up until this year he offered a project in his course where students tackled real problems in the community using the theory that they learned in their classes. In his opinion, this was the project most helpful to the students in their later years, but he just can't supervise that much individual work anymore. Since 1966 his class size has increased from 19 to 65.

Professors are even taking on workloads outside their own areas of study. The politics courses of a professor on sabbatical are being taught by a philosophy professor. A classics professor is teaching an introductory German course.

The irony of this situation is that the government often offers jobs to university professors at salaries much higher, than the university could ever afford to offer precisely because that same government restricts their access to funds. Sinclair pointed out that with no end to inflation in sight how can we continue to increase the workload of professors without expecting them to look elsewhere for more financially rewarding jobs?

In the final analysis the university is being asked to accept financial constraints that other sectors of the economy are not following asserted Dr. Sinclair. He pointed out that the university exists in a market place with other institutions that do have to restrict themselves in the same manner. The university employs the same labour and uses the same resources as these other enterprises and therefore needs the same financial backing in order to function efficiently. Budget constraints have existed for about four years now and the damage done has not been that great, but in fact, it will become far worse if this situation is allowed to persist much longer.

It is now relatively easy for the university to justify demanding more money to educate Arts students. With reduced financing, and the inevitable decline in quality which follows, Sinclair forecast pessimistically that one can only wonder how soon the time will come when it will be exceedingly hard for anyone to find that justification.

Notice to all 4th year students

PLEASE HELP IMPROVE THE HOUSING SITUATION

Fill out and Return the Housing Questionnaire as soon as possible by folding the Form with the Housing Office Address on the outside and dropping it into

1. Campus Mail
2. any Department Office
3. the A.M.S. Office
4. the John Orr Room
5. or the Housing Office (25 Union St.)

The biggest of these big problems, as Dr. Clark sees it, is nuclear war and its possibilities

The Suzie-Q game

Many Queensmen look forward to Suzie-Q week as the only week in the second term when they have time to get any work done. But if you are one of the few whose social lives prosper during the festivities you might try out doing your rivals according to the Suzie-Q game.

You get picked up at Grant Hall Dance 15
Date for coffee: Union 20
Downtown 25
Her Place 50
Date for movies: Jeffrey 35
Downtown 45
Her Place 75
Invitation to go to the Manor 50 to get drunk 90
Date for semi-formal 150
Other dates not listed above 50
Bonuses
Your have to turn down an offer because you already have a date: 100

Semi-formal 50
Others 75
Two dates with same girl 75
You get laid: 175
Your idea 250
Her idea and she does all the work 350
Penalties
Your forget what week it is and ask a girl out 150
You don't understand the meaning of Suzie-Q week and ask a boy out 150
Your steady girl doesn't ask you out 150
You get a dose 150
You get asked out but you'd rather stay home and study
..... expulsion from Queen's

First-year students lack most basic English skills

by Jennifer Conkie
There is a growing concern at Queen's and across the province for students entering first year of their University who lack basic English skills. It is generally felt that standards have been declining for several years, and that the situation is now becoming critical.

Education Commission series

Clark's "last lecture"

by John Gibson
"What would you say if you had but one chance to speak out on the topic most important to you?" Last Wednesday, about fifty Queen's students heard this question answered by Dr. Reg Clark of the Dept. of Chemical Engineering in the first talk of this year's Last Lecture Series. The title of Dr. Clark's "last lecture" was "From Tranquility to Turbulence".

Beginning with an informal autobiography, he described his early life in England as a time of law, order and morality, using also such terms as serenity and stability. He outlined the unity of feeling present in England during the Second World War, and the joy and hope for the future which existed immediately after the Allies' victory.

But after the War, and the surge in technology and its associated material comforts, the national solidarity and social order began to break down, as people realized that technological and materialistic goals, once achieved, did not equal happiness for all. Awareness of this led to the unrest and protest of the 1960's, which led to the seventies, which in the tone of Dr. Clark's speech might be called the Age of the Big Problems.

The biggest of these big problems, as Dr. Clark sees it, is nuclear war and its possibilities for destruction on a global scale. Related, secondary issues are overpopulation, food scarcity, and resource supply and management. Beside these, inflation and unemployment are "insignificant".

What does the future hold in store? Dr. Clark feels that although "we can destroy ourselves by cynicism and delusion," there is yet cause for optimism. We will require clarity of objectives, patience, and an ability to accept such adverse developments as a large decline in our standard of living, but we can win through.

How? The university as a meeting-ground for the best minds, and a storehouse of knowledge, can through the influence of its grads on society provide the authority and political power necessary to meet the challenges of the immediate future and arrive at a new, stable society in following years.

During the discussion following, it became clear that the lecture was very well received by the audience. It posed a number of vital and thought-provoking questions in a manner at once pleasing and informative.

Next Wednesday, Jan. 29, Dr. E. Andrews, formerly of Theology, will give his "last lectures" at 7:15 p.m. in McNeil Common Room.

Dr. Spettigue, acting head of the English Department, says there are a number of problems to be considered. Is the issue just a result of the pessimism of the "older generation"? On the strength of complaints from other faculties, the Department has decided that standards really are down. But what is to be done? A proposal to put ten per cent of the budget towards a crash programme to raise the literacy level, when there is a million dollar deficit, is impossible. There is no money for remedial English at this time.

The rest of the University looks to the English Department to solve the literacy lag, but the concern of that Department is literature, not language skills. Advanced research and graduate programmes are more important, and there is simply no staff to teach grammar and the construction of essays.

The possibility of an outside granting agent is being considered, to conduct studies and tests to determine the literacy levels of incoming students and see how those results are connected to the media, the home, the schools, and possibly to changes in reading habits.

This information would then lead to a useful remedial programme, possibly compulsory, for students in all fields. Whether he is in the sciences or the humanities, the graduate must know how to use his language to communicate his thoughts. The problem is serious and clearly the University must do something. Now there are only vague plans for a future time, when money will once again be flowing freely.

Library quality may fall if pinch continues

an opinion by Fred Cane, student senator and member of Senate Library Committee.

The Douglas Library is in trouble. Faced with inflation and budgetary restraint, the Queen's Library System is finding it increasingly difficult to meet its commitment to the university. Because of rising costs the library will be unable to provide as many services or acquire as many new books as in the past, unless the library budget is sufficient to offset inflationary pressures. In the past three years the number of new books acquired by the library has dropped dramatically and unless future library budgets are more generous, this trend is likely to continue. The situation is becoming serious and some members of the university feel that if the library budget continues to be restrained, not only will the quality of our library system decline, but the academic standards and prestige of Queen's will suffer as well.

During the past four years the library budget has increased by only a minimal amount, from 2.7 million in 1971-72 to 2.8 million in 1974-75.

As a result the percentage of university revenue allocated for the support of the library has fallen from 7.69 per cent to 7.06 per cent. This policy together with the increasing rate of inflation has left the library with diminishing financial resources.

The major result of this policy is that less money has been available to acquire new library material. Because periodicals and journals become more expensive if not purchased currently, it has been library policy to continue to acquire these as they are published. These factors combined with an average rate of inflation on library acquisitions amounting to 18 per cent (6 per cent above the prevailing rate of inflation), have forced the library to reduce the number to new books purchased each year from 50,271 in 1970-71 to 26,609 in 1973-74, a drop of almost 50 per cent.

Operating expenses have also been affected by inflation and now account for almost 70 per cent of the library budget. Salaries form the major component of these expenses but cutbacks in the number of staff would reduce the ability of the library to process materials and could force a reduction in library hours. The library presently employs 216 people, only 3 more than in 1969. However during this period the total use of library materials has more than doubled. It is clear that if the library budget is not increased, the level of service in the library will deteriorate along with the decline in physical resources.

It is ironic that at a time when the university administration is criticizing the provincial government for not providing enough revenue to mitigate the effects of inflation, that same administration refuses to provide the funds required to alleviate the rising costs faced by the library. The university administrators are not aware of the library's financial difficulties and many are sympathetic to its needs. At the January meeting of the Arts Council, Principal Watts noted the decrease in library acquisitions and reiterated that in spite of financial constraint the quality of education at Queen's must be maintained. However, the past actions of the Senate do not indicate that the quality of our library is amongst their first priorities. And it will become increasingly difficult to maintain a high standard of education at Queen's if the quality of our library, our most important academic resource, is permitted to decline further.

Prospects for the future improvement of our library resources do not appear to be forthcoming. Present indications suggest that the library budget for 1975-76 will essentially equal the dollar amount allotted in 1974-75. With continuing inflation the library will be compelled to operate with fewer real financial resources than this year, and quality will most certainly decline. Since the provincial government has increased the university operating grants by 7.4 per cent it seems justified that a similar increase be made to the library. Such an increase would amount to approximately $200,000, and although this would not cover the costs of inflation, the rate of decline in library resources would be decreased.

Increasing the library budget will mean reallocating money from other sectors of the university. Nevertheless the library is our prime academic resource and as its quality declines both students and faculty are adversely affected. If our library continues to deteriorate Queen's will no longer be able to attract good students and capable professors, making it difficult to maintain a high level of education and research. To finance other priorities at the expense of the library is nothing more than a short run solution to the problem of budgetary constraint. If such a policy is continued its long run effect will be to lower Queen's to the status of a second rate university.

If the library is considered by the students and faculty of Queen's to be a resource whose quality must be maintained, in spite of financial constraint, it is their responsibility to make the administration aware of their feelings. If you feel that the library should receive high priority in the university budget, now is the time to complain, not once the budget has been finalized and the library has no choice but to cutback further on acquisitions and services. Write a letter to D.H. Bonham, Vice Principal (finance), D.T. Canvin, chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, or Principal Watts, for they are in a position to provide the library with the funds it requires. Unless some action is taken the library will no longer be able to adequately fulfill its obligation to the university and as a result all members of Queen's will suffer.

Something to "cheers" about:

Now the glorious beer of Copenhagen is brewed right here in Canada. It comes to you fresh from the brewery. So it tastes even better than ever. And Carlsberg is sold at regular prices.

So let's hear it, Carlsberg lovers. "One, two, three... Cheers!"

"Resolved: that for woman, love is her whole existence"

by Lois Lorimer

Those expecting a typically ordered parliamentary debate leading to inevitable conclusions concerning the sexes were refreshingly surprised by the uproarious debate held in the Debating Union. Speaker Allan Austin opened with an invitation for discussion from the floor following the debate. The resolution proposed was, "that for woman, love is her whole existence - but for man it is a thing apart."

Prime Minister of the debate George Gregory defined the resolution in Government's terms, stating that in modern society the average woman's role revolves around love, while a man's does not. From a quote, "Love is the history of a woman's life", he elaborated upon the usual and inevitable path of the married woman in her "unequal union" coupled with her multitude of housewife chores. Woman in chaos with Mr. Clean was there not out of stupidity - but for love. With references to Susie Q and Golden Words, Gregory enhanced his argument exclaiming that job discrimination etc. fortified the idea that for the average modern woman, love is her whole existence. He did not fail to mention the man's love for his job and their opportunities for quitting the nest. He went on to say the resolution stood as "the way things are, not the way they should be."

Leader of the Opposition, Sheila Patterson vehemently denounced the resolution made as a ridiculous proposition for an all male Government. Stating the point of her discourse to be not on the P.M.'s head, Patterson felt the situation to be analogous to "that of two Peruvian iguanas trying to persuade two Alaskan Kodiak bears to restrict their diet to cottage cheese, indicating also that the iguanas had never been to Alaska. Believing love for woman not her whole existence but a thing apart, she supported her argument by revealing the supposed enslavement of housewives to be a mere delusion explainable by time saving conveniences. Woman as a coy, sweet thing is a self-made facade allowing her to be an object of love thus winning security and livelihood. Men have deluded women into thinking love is their existence. Woman, according to Patterson are "Malicious, cunning, smart."

Second speaker Monte McMurphy, admittedly enchanted by Patterson's "small, flowing words and her eyes" felt the Opposition hadn't come to grips with the argument, her delusions sheer evidence of her desire to be "respected and adored". McMurphy was quite willing to let the other speaker "have her say."

Bringing in aspects of Freudian analysis and love-hate psychology, Ruth Reynolds Campbell felt that love is well integrated into all aspects of women's lives. After all hadn't Romeo died for LOVE of Juliet? The P.M. in his final remarks, believed much of Freud to be "debunked" and reminded us that Juliet too, had died of love for Romeo.

Following discussion relating to male-female relationships and love, the audience fired some criticism to the team regarding ill definitions of the resolution and skirting of issues. Vote declared the Opposition the winner, the resolution was dissolved. On a more serious note, one viewer felt that we are all seeking and needing love, trust and friendship in a whole that cannot be divided by sex.

Invitational tournament

Queen's-RMC debating

by Sheila Patterson of Queen's Debating Union

The Queen's Debating Union participated in the fifth annual R.M.C. Invitational Debating Tournament over the past weekend, and showed that at last the art of debate has been firmly established at Queen's.

Debating societies have never been an especially strong point with Queen's, and in fact it was only last year that the union was formed by an enthusiastic few. This year more devotees have contributed their zeal and great things are in the air - including a tournament at McGill, several public debates, the Andrina McCulloch intermural tournament, and a high school workshop.

The R.M.C. tournament was highly successful as far as gaining experience. What could be more chilling than being told three minutes before the debate is to begin that you are the government, when you spent the past three hours preparing a case for the opposition?

Undaunted, all five teams representing Queen's were slinging the verbiage with the best. Rhetoricians included Andrew Douglas, Sheila Patterson, Monte McMurphy, Ches Crosbie, George Gregory, Jennifer Conkie, Gord Howe, Jim Lamont, Michael Small, and Gary Johnson.

Professor Franks of the Politics Department carried off his duties courageously as a judge.

Frontier College

Frontier College is an agency that has supplied summer employment and fruitful experiences for a number of Queen's students over the years.

The college places field workers in all regions of Canada to take on hard-working jobs alongside fellow-workers in communities whose economic base is logging, fishing, mining and construction or railway repair. Building on the rapport gained through on-the-job contact these labourers-teachers set up educational programs in their free time in response to the needs of the local men and women.

For those interested in Frontier College a meeting will be held in the Lower International Centre Common Room at 7:00 Tuesday, January 28.

AMS NOMINATIONS

Nominations for the positions of AMS President and Vice-President must be submitted (accompanying 25 signatures) by 5:00 PM, January 31, 1975, in the AMS office

Landlord problems?

by Lorry Pick
of Queen's Legal Aid

For most of the students at Queen's living off campus and renting accommodations in which they live, is more than common. The problems which these students encounter with their landlords and leases are as age-old as many of the buildings themselves. This article and the series which will follow is designed to lay out the major principles of landlord and tenant law as it applies to residential tenancies, and to investigate some of the difficulties that students run into.

Before entering into a lease students should take the time to learn what their rights are and what obligations they may be incurring. In the great rush to find apartments and houses, altogether too many Queen's men and women are prepared to sign documents which they have not read or do not understand. This is unwise. Many students have been successfully sued by landlords for failing to live up to the agreements they entered into. On the other hand, few students adequately enforce their rights, in or out of court; as a class of tenants they are easy to exploit.

Leases: Written or Oral: Leases can be either written or oral, except for leases for a term greater than 3 years, which must be in writing, signed and sealed by both parties. There is a popular notion among students that if you don't have a written lease, you don't have a lease at all. This is incorrect. If a tenant has a verbal arrangement with a landlord to rent a certain apartment for a certain period of time, then his tenant has a lease. The main disadvantage of verbal leases lies in the potential for disagreement over terms. Should a dispute arise which ends up in court, the judge will have to decide whose word to believe, the landlord's or the tenant's. On the other hand, most written leases are standard forms, drafted in favour of the landlord and containing many detailed covenants (contractual promises) for the tenant to enter into. The lease that one may purchase at stationary stores is of this variety. A lease may not contain terms inconsistent with Part 4 of the Act. Also a tenant cannot waive his rights under the Act. If there is a lease in writing, the landlord has to give the tenant a duplicate copy within 21 days of signature.

Term of the Tenancy. If the parties agree on a tenancy for a fixed period of time then the tenancy ends on expiration of the period. But if there is a proviso that notice must be given then this must be adhered to, or else the tenancy may continue. If no term is specified then the term is the period of time covered by one rent period. This can be weekly, monthly or yearly and will continue until proper notice has been given by either landlord or tenant. Some Queen's students on monthly tenancies have been faced with landlords who wish to boost their rent mid-way through the school year. On the other hand, the yearly tenancy may bring the student problems regarding summer occupancy and subletting.

To terminate a tenancy the parties can decide on any procedure they deem appropriate. If they do not have a special agreement then the following procedure applies: for a weekly or monthly tenancy, one clear week or month of notice before the beginning of the rent period of the tenancy must be given. For example, if the tenancy is monthly and corresponds with the calendar month, you must give notice by January 31 in order to leave by the beginning of March. In order to terminate a year to year tenancy, you must give notice at least sixty days before the end of the year. Tenants can give their notice verbally but landlords are required to put their notice in writing. The latter has to identify the premises and to state clearly when the tenancy is to terminate.

What are the sources of landlord and tenant law? First, know the Landlord and Tenant Act which is available in the library. Part 4 is the section that deals with residential tenancies.

Next week: the landlord's responsibility to repair.

Vests reg. $22.50 NOW $9.95	Shirts 20% TO 50% OFF	Sweaters 30% OFF	Pants 1/2 price SPECIAL SELECTION
---	-----------------------------	---------------------	--

ABRAMSKY'S

259 Princess St. 546-5555
SINCE 1891 - THERE'S A REASON FOR THAT

NEXT WEEK !!

january 28-february 1 1975

FESTIVAL OF THE ARTS

READ THE SPECIAL TWO PAGE SPREAD IN NEXT TUESDAY'S JOURNAL

ART DISPLAY & WORKSHOPS

SPEAKERS (including Robin Mathews and Arnold Edinborough)

MUSIC - students & pros nightly in House of Lords
- students classical concert
- Guitar/Banjo Workshop
- Moe Koffman Tuesday
- Strawbs Saturday

WATCH FOR THE SPECIAL PROGRAMS
DISTRIBUTED ON CAMPUS NEXT TUESDAY

- POETRY READINGS AND DISCUSSIONS
- FILM CONTEST SCREENINGS,
W.C. FIELDS, NFB SHORTS.
- PHOTOGRAPHIC EXHIBITION
- DRAMA WORKSHOPS
(MAKEUP, CLOWNING)
IMPROVS. AND PERFORMANCES

IN THE SPIRIT OF GENESIS... SATURDAY FEB. 1

FROM GREAT BRITAIN

THE STRAWBS AND MAN

HELP US HAVE MORE SHOWS. SUPPORT QUEEN'S CONCERTS.

QUEEN'S CONCERTS
PRESENTS

JOCK HARDY ARENA

TICKETS $3.00 student
$4.00 regular
$5.00 door

Which Way Canada?

Lois Miller: "Organizer turned Alderman"

interviewed by Michael Boland

At twenty-nine years of age, Lois Miller is the bright and cheerful newly-elected alderman from Sydenham Ward, which includes all of the Queen's main campus. Originally a resident of Halifax, Lois obtained a B.A. in English at the University of King's College, a B.Ed. from Dalhousie and an M.A. from Queen's. Prior to her entry into municipal politics, she was a secondary school teacher, a reporter for the Whig Standard and a political organizer for the Ontario New Democratic Party. As we sat over a cup of coffee, Lois explained why she joined the NDP at the age of seventeen. "The goals of my family were the same as those of the party: a strong inculcated sense of work, the dignity of workers and the importance of collective action. My years at university only reinforced this conviction, resulting in part at least of a teenage idealism in the anti-Viet Nam War movement and Canada's continuing complicity in that war. As a result, I care to believe in the desirability of a classless society, based on equality and not exploitation."

Admitting her unabashed idealism, Lois said that she decided to run for Alderman "so as to see some of these goals realized. Also I think it important that women run. After all this is International Women's Year! However, I would not have run if another progressive candidate had come forward. I think the clincher was the NDP victory in the Stormont by-election—the feeling of victory was contagious."

"Housing is probably the one should have to pay more than 25 per cent of their income for decent housing. If required by the tenant, landlords should justify rent increases on the basis of costs or renovations. Moreover a tenant should be able to seek rent reductions if property deteriorates."

"As far as housing relates to Queen's I would like to see students take on more responsibility in solving the housing crisis. The AMS should get into housing itself. I had a meeting with the AMS Housing sub-committee and they are looking into it. I was really pleased with their attitude."

"But would you believe that during the campaign a number of students seriously suggested to me that families should be removed from the whole area of the university. I am totally opposed to this kind of attitude because part of the real charm of this area of the city is due to the fact that there is a mixed population here. Also we need permanent residents who will take a permanent pride and responsibility in this community of ours."

"Just one last thing—there should be buses to the railway station and it would be fairly simple to arrange a shuttle service of some type from the shopping centre and downtown. Goodbye, I've got to catch a train."

by David Bell

It may have been Voltaire, or Richard Needham possibly, who first defined New Brunswick as 'quelques arpents de welfare lines'. Whoever the author, this perverse image has certainly fixed itself in the Upper Canadian mentality, and is now, I suspect, transmitted from generation to generation as tenaciously as original sin. Personally, it does not offend me to hear from Ontario friends that my countrymen are all unemployed herring-chokers with thirteen children sleeping in the same bed. It tends to confirm the Maritime suspicion that Upper Canadians are as self-centered as Americans and need watching very carefully. But what I have found depressing is the degree to which this caricature of New Brunswick has, at least until recently, been shared by New Brunswickers themselves.

Although this Upper Canadian stereotype of N.B. is largely inaccurate, the present condition of the province is hardly enviable. Politically New Brunswick is still in the 1930's. The only issues are personalities; the only principle is self-advancement. Candidates are various personifications of the same mediocrity. It has never been otherwise.

This absence of substantive issues in N.B. politics is only symptomatic of a more general malaise afflicting the province. There are two obvious reasons for this condition. One is the traditional out-migration of bright young people. The other, and the more important, is the state of newspaper ownership in the province. All six English-language dailies are owned by the notorious K.C. Irving and family. This feat, ignored by the Guinness Book of Records though not by the Combines Investigation Branch, is made even more noteworthy by the fact that Mr. Irving owns almost everything else in the province.

The uncharitably have hinted that this combined domination of industry and media may somehow 'temper' the kind of news fed to the province, especially on pollution and industrial relations. Of course these suspicions are absurd. Nevertheless, it is clearly in Mr. Irving's interest that no substantial change come to New Brunswick. And nothing acts as a more effective sedative on the body politic than Mr. Irving's ineffectually mediocre newspapers. Lulled by a prostitute press, left drifting by her historians, demoralized by the image of the province spread by the central Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, New Brunswick has almost become a ghetto from which the intelligent, the restless, the original flee, and only those who do not care remain.

I say 'almost', for I think some easing of the situation is already perceptible. The courts have struck a blow for liberation by outlawing at least part of the Irving press monopoly. One independent newspaper has already been tried, and another attempt is certain. High school graduates now express a positive determination to remain within the province, even though it means a reduced earning potential. Former residents and Americans, especially young people, are streaming in as settlers and infusing liberal perspectives. Conservation societies, heritage trusts, and consumer groups have sprung up to safeguard the quality of life, and expose the folly of development at any price. Popular bilingualism should be a reality within a generation. In short, there is more reason for optimism in New Brunswick now than at any time since the 1960's.

To an outsider these developments may seem rather petty. But New Brunswick is an old, closely settled province—almost a community—and small challenges to the status quo can have great psychological impact. To a native of the province temporarily residing abroad, they suggest a renaissance sense of positive provincial identity, which may ultimately stimulate a fairer distribution of the province's immense resource wealth. No one, save a few millionaires and their 'kept' politicians and editors, should fear this development. And certainly another province more self-assertive, less like the others, should not be thought the latest blow to 'Canadian unity'. It is rather a fulfillment of our ideology for the 1970's, the federal dream.

CONTRIBUTIONS

"Which Way Canada?" will be appearing bi-monthly in the Queen's Journal. The purpose is to create a forum for political discussion and opinion of all types. Students interested in contributing articles of a political nature be they on municipal, national, or international topics can do so by handing in material at the Journal Offices or contacting Doug Bonnell at 544-6766. Your response to the page would also be appreciated.

People in Power

Peter Druveman (VP-Operations) giving policy to God.

classifieds

Housingwise

TO SUBLET 2 bedroom apartment in Elrond, available immediately. Call 544-9415.

$20 reward for six or four person house. Needed for Sept. but will consider beginning lease earlier. Phone Ziggy - 544-4851, Terry 549-4937 or Paul 549-4798.

DESPERATE HELP: Need a 3 or 4 person house for next Sept. Will take over rent this summer. Reward to the lucky person who gets us one! Call 544-3346.

ONE-BEDROOM Apartment to Sublet. Available. Married Student's Complex. 542-8115 after 5pm.

REWARD 580 for a house near campus. 4-5 rooms. Call Ron-Steve 544-7169 or Dave 544-7157.

SUBLET: Modern two bedroom apartment completely furnished. April to Sept. 1 or 2 girls. rent $85 per person per month. Only 10 minutes from campus. Interested persons call 542-4043 after 5pm.

SUMMER SUBLET: rooms available for summer in a very nice large house. 1 1/2 blocks from Campus. For information call 549-4623.

$75 reward for anyone who can find us a house for next year. 3 to 6 man house. Phone Mark at 544-7154 or Bruce at 544-7483.

5 MAN APT-house wanted for Sept. 75. Will consider taking over in May. Please contact Janice at 544-8226.

LUXURY LIVING AVAILABLE: We have a very large modern three bedroom apartment 15 minutes walk from campus that we will trade for a larger place near

the MARKET BARBER SHOP & hairstyling salon

Peter Smith invites you to his new hair care shop

43 BROCK ST., 549-2110 KINGSTON ONT

presents

MOE KOFFMAN and DAVID BRADSTREET

Grant Hall
Tuesday
January 28

2 shows:
7:30 and 10:00

Tickets: $4.00

with students card: $3.00

at: Vern Napier's, House of Sounds, Division of Concerts (Box Office) and John Orr Room

Otherwise

there. It's cheaper than residence and it's good. Call 548-7439 or come to Elrond House 910.

HELP! RESIDENCE IS getting us down. We want to cook! It's not a 3 man apartment - close to campus. Even willing to take lease in May. How accommodating!!! phone 544-8523 or 35 or 40. ANYTIME BABY!

EARN ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS! - By giving us your six bedroom house on or near University Ave. Lease to start May 1/75. $100 Reward! Call Now! 544-7098 or 544-7088.

2-BEDROOM, MODERN APARTMENT available in May for 75-76! Parking and private entrances. Call 544-4730.

HELP!! We need a house or apartment for 75-76. Residence is driving us crazy! $30 reward for a 4 or 5 man house. Phone 544-7727, 544-7734 or 544-7751.

NEEDED ONE PERSON, male or female to fill an apartment of the remaining portion of this term. Please phone 544-5346.

ONE HUNDRED DOLLAR REWARD: for anyone finding a suitable six-bedroom house on or near University Avenue. Lease to start May 1/75. $100 reward! Call Now! 544-7098 or 544-7088.

LARGE BACHELOR APARTMENT to lease, one block from campus. Available in May with option to lease for next year. Rent negotiable. Phone 549-5168.

REWARD!! $40 offered if you find us a six person house for next year. Please call 544-8704 or 544-8801.

APARTMENTS AVAILABLE FOR NEXT YEAR. MARRIED STUDENTS ONLY. Division at Colborne - 10 minute walk from campus. Two and three bedrooms available. Please phone Mrs. Vadala at 544-5173 for further information.

TRADE 5 bedroom for your 2 or 3 bedroom. Our rent is $300, without utilities. Phone 549-1714.

DOLLARS, DOLLARS, DOLLARS. We'll give you $120.00 for a 6 man house, preferably in a civilized section of the country but will accept one in Kingston. Phone Flip 544-7620 or Brian 544-7644.

3000 REWARD - for the right 4-bedroom pad close (closer it can you help? We need an apartment for 75-76, close to campus and very close to campus. Please call 544-8896.

1500 REWARD - for your two bedroom house or apt. close to campus. Call Paul, Ken 542-3797.

3000 REWARD - for the right 4-bedroom pad close (closer it possible) to campus. Call Paul or Ken 542-3797.

WE'RE EASY - BUT NOT SLEAZY: That's why we'll give you $30 for a 3 man apartment - close to campus. Even willing to take lease in May. How accommodating!!! phone 544-8523 or 35 or 40. ANYTIME BABY!

EARN ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS! - By giving us your six bedroom house on or near University Ave. Lease to start May 1/75. $100 Reward! Call Now! 544-7098 or 544-7088.

2-BEDROOM, MODERN APARTMENT available in May for 75-76! Parking and private entrances. Call 544-4730.

HELP!! We need a house or apartment for 75-76. Residence is driving us crazy! $30 reward for a 4 or 5 man house. Phone 544-7727, 544-7734 or 544-7751.

NEEDED ONE PERSON, male or female to fill an apartment of the remaining portion of this term. Please phone 544-5346.

ONE HUNDRED DOLLAR REWARD: for anyone finding a suitable six-bedroom house on or near University Avenue. Lease to start May 1/75. $100 reward! Call Now! 544-7098 or 544-7088.

LARGE BACHELOR APARTMENT to lease, one block from campus. Available in May with option to lease for next year. Rent negotiable. Phone 549-5168.

REWARD!! $40 offered if you find us a six person house for next year. Please call 544-8704 or 544-8801.

APARTMENTS AVAILABLE FOR NEXT YEAR. MARRIED STUDENTS ONLY. Division at Colborne - 10 minute walk from campus. Two and three bedrooms available. Please phone Mrs. Vadala at 544-5173 for further information.

TRADE 5 bedroom for your 2 or 3 bedroom. Our rent is $300, without utilities. Phone 549-1714.

DOLLARS, DOLLARS, DOLLARS. We'll give you $120.00 for a 6 man house, preferably in a civilized section of the country but will accept one in Kingston. Phone Flip 544-7620 or Brian 544-7644.

3000 REWARD - for the right 4-bedroom pad close (closer it can you help? We need an apartment for 75-76, close to campus and very close to campus. Please call 544-8896.

1500 REWARD - for your two bedroom house or apt. close to campus. Call Paul, Ken 542-3797.

3000 REWARD - for the right 4-bedroom pad close (closer it possible) to campus. Call Paul or Ken 542-3797.

WE'RE EASY - BUT NOT SLEAZY: That's why we'll give you $30 for a 3 man apartment - close to campus. Even willing to take lease in May. How accommodating!!! phone 544-8523 or 35 or 40. ANYTIME BABY!

EARN ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS! - By giving us your six bedroom house on or near University Ave. Lease to start May 1/75. $100 Reward! Call Now! 544-7098 or 544-7088.

2-BEDROOM, MODERN APARTMENT available in May for 75-76! Parking and private entrances. Call 544-4730.

HELP!! We need a house or apartment for 75-76. Residence is driving us crazy! $30 reward for a 4 or 5 man house. Phone 544-7727, 544-7734 or 544-7751.

NEEDED ONE PERSON, male or female to fill an apartment of the remaining portion of this term. Please phone 544-5346.

ONE HUNDRED DOLLAR REWARD: for anyone finding a suitable six-bedroom house on or near University Avenue. Lease to start May 1/75. $100 reward! Call Now! 544-7098 or 544-7088.

LARGE BACHELOR APARTMENT to lease, one block from campus. Available in May with option to lease for next year. Rent negotiable. Phone 549-5168.

REWARD!! $40 offered if you find us a six person house for next year. Please call 544-8704 or 544-8801.

APARTMENTS AVAILABLE FOR NEXT YEAR. MARRIED STUDENTS ONLY. Division at Colborne - 10 minute walk from campus. Two and three bedrooms available. Please phone Mrs. Vadala at 544-5173 for further information.

TRADE 5 bedroom for your 2 or 3 bedroom. Our rent is $300, without utilities. Phone 549-1714.

DOLLARS, DOLLARS, DOLLARS. We'll give you $120.00 for a 6 man house, preferably in a civilized section of the country but will accept one in Kingston. Phone Flip 544-7620 or Brian 544-7644.

3000 REWARD - for the right 4-bedroom pad close (closer it can you help? We need an apartment for 75-76, close to campus and very close to campus. Please call 544-8896.

1500 REWARD - for your two bedroom house or apt. close to campus. Call Paul, Ken 542-3797.

3000 REWARD - for the right 4-bedroom pad close (closer it

Otherwise

MEDICINE, many are not accepted and end up in a major called Life Sciences. Find out exactly what you want to do on January 27 at Life Sciences Night... 7-10.

FOR SALE: Realistic-Clarinet 80 Modular Stereo System - AM-FM radio, turntable, 8 track, two speakers. Only 4 months new. $200. Phone 549-5242. Don't miss this exciting offer!

INFORMATION BANK... needs more staff. You can help. Volunteer in John Orr Room, Monday to Friday (9:30-5:30) or call Susan Meech or Kathy Wood. 549-5252 and 544-2055.

ARTSCI '78 entries needed for BEWS free throw competition. Sign up now on the bulletin board in men's locker room.

THE 3RD BROCKINGTON BURN TREATMENT CENTRE would like to extend thanks to all the girls who came to our party on Saturday night. Due to time limitations we regret that we could not meet you all but we'll certainly do our best on the next occasion. Congratulations go out to Tim for discovering the opposite sex and to Erin for realizing his homosexual tendencies. Homosexuals to the intensive care unit in 31, we hope the burns didn't extend to your private parts. The boys on 3rd Brockington.

MTE STE ANNE FOR READING WEEK Feb. 16-22. Queen's ski Club includes 5 days tows, 5 ski lessons, breakfast and dinner, entrance to bar, 6 nights accommodation, transportation. Tickets on sale Wed Jan. 29 John Orr Room 7:00pm $140.

QUEEN'S BAND: Come to the big skating party at the Arena on Tuesday, Jan. 28 from 8:30 to 9:20. There will be a nominal charge (about $10) to pay for the ice. Bring a friend if you have any.

QUEEN'S BANDS SKI TRIP: There will be a ski trip to Edelweiss Valley on Feb. 1, 1975, for members of the bands and friends. There are 29 seats available. Bus leaves Union at 8:30 am and returns about 8 pm. Cost is $11.50 per person total. Tickets go on sale the week of Jan. 27, in the John Orr Room from 7:30 to 4:30. Monday to Wednesday. Call Don Joseph at 389-1911 for information. Let's have everybody out for a lot of fun.

OFFICIAL BRIEF COMM. PREHENSIVE SUMMARY of Bela Lugosi's classic "Dracula" - commercials included. Last performance Wed Jan. 22. Now locked in the M.G.M. (My Gosh Mygolly) Hall of Fame. Contact Jimmy Douglas No-Mind 549-5349.

QUEEN'S CIRCLE explores all its members to be at the Grey House, 51 Queen's Crescent (right beside Vic) at 7:00 pm. Monday, January 27. Calorie will be served. Please come, people! We need you!

RECORD found in Macintosh Carry. If you can identify it, it's yours. Call 544-8808.

HAVE SOME SPARE TIME and wondering how to fill it? St. Margaret's Church needs volunteers to visit elderly people. If interested please call 544-5766 or phone 547-5766.

BARGAIN! Selling immediately 2 pairs new 210 cm Innsbruck; 3 pairs used boots, size 8, 9, 10, 11; One pair used skis, 2 pairs poles. Phone 549-5577.

FESTIVAL 75 needs both demonstrators for Art Workshops (silkscreening, batik, etc.) and entrées for the Art Exhibition. Contact Inez 544-5370.

LOST: 1 Corvus Calculator, probably on University Ave. on Wed night, Jan. 15. Negotiable ransom, please phone 549-5575.

THE QUEEN'S RACING Ianatics association wishes to expand a membership already including 3 race photographers, a Motorsport announcer and a Formula Ford driver. If you can identify the following names, you belong. David Loring, Bernie Ecclestone, Maurice Phillippe, Maur Forghieri, Peter Brock, Gianclaudio Regazzoni, Carl Haas, Harvey Postlethwaite, Gilles Villeneuve, Don Nichols, Clemen Ferrand, Paul Ricard. Phone 544-7268 (3309).

COLLECTING PLEDGES FOR DANCE MARATHON? Please bring them to the Outlook Office upstairs in the Union, Univ. Ave. (entrance) as soon as possible. Mon-Fri. 9-5 Thanks.

SKI PARTY TO Calabogie on Monday, 29 Jan. $10.00 includes bus, tow and supper after. There will be a bar. Call 544-5588.

SHIRLEY, it's been a year and a half since I've loved every minute of it. I know this is late but... better late than never I always say! Right? Love Turtle.

TURTLE, it's been four and a half and I've loved every minute of it. I know this is late but... better late than never I always say! Right? Love Turtle.

FOUND: Various articles (mitts, gloves, glasses, etc.) Arts and Science Office. F200, Macintosh Carry.

WE CAN GET YOU your refund lasted! Two experienced Queen's students will prepare your income tax return last service guaranteed correct. We charge less than half what it costs anywhere else! For appointment call 549-3907.

WE REALLY NEED to borrow or rent an electric bass guitar for a folksinging party we're having Feb. 1. If you can help, please phone Bill 549-5241. Thank you.

LOST: Black wallet near Phys. Ed. Complex. Initials DCS on front. If found contact Cam at 548-7048.

LET'S MAKE A DEAL: We'll trade our 2 man luxury apt. for your 4 man house. Phone 549-3965.

LIFE SCIENCES NIGHT: Find out what is involved in the upper years of natural science. Demonstrations, displays along with coffee and donuts. Monday, January 27, 7-10. Start in the lobby of Humphrey Hall.

LOST: A brown wallet with important documents inside. If found please call Mike Deitcher at 548-7391. Documents in the wallet have my name on them.

RECYCLE YOUR BOOKS OR RECORDS: We sell records on consignment; that is, you get $1.50 for every one of your records that sell. Needless to say, good rock, blues, jazz, folk records sell out quickly. We also have untempered used books for sale.

NEED PASSPORT OR JOB APPLICATION PHOTOGRAPHS? At Photo Image we have a student rate at $4.00 for six prints. For an appointment call us at 546-7770 or visit our studio at 33 Brock St. PHOTO IMAGE 33 LTD. Specialized in 34 hour black and white Ektachrome slide film processing. For further information, call 546-7770, or visit our studio at 33 Brock St.

PLANNING A SPRING WEDDING? Photo Image offers complete photographic coverage, tailored to your individual needs. From as little as $50. For further information call us at 546-7770 or visit our studio at 33 Brock St. and see the photographs we have done for others.

NOT GOING TO SUZIE-O? Then rock and roll to the sounds of "Grease Caprice" in Leonard Cafeteria. Sat. Jan. 25, from 8:30-12:30. Admission $1.50. Beer .50c.

YOUNG LADY REQUIRES ride from Queen Mary Road to Queen's from 8:30 am and/or return 4:30 pm weekdays. Phone 542-4721.

THE BOYS AT 199 WILLIAM are having a wine and wench-out this Friday night. The world is invited!

WOULD THE 5 girls who agreed to live at 199 William St. next year please phone Bob at 544-6070.

THOMPS!! "A picture is worth a thousand words" I know. I know. But then, seeing is believing and this can't wait 4 months to be said. (A week maybe, but not more!) Happy Birthday, Remember - you are a woman now! Love from that epitome of efficiency who lives on the other side of your room.

TO THE LADIES OF 50: The three whistling nuns, the Mississauga trio and Smeg (Ouite sot) Thank you for a most licentious evening from the boys at Heartbreak House (the Annex of course). We're glad we came FTFITFI. A RECENT SURVEY has shown there are very few Australians in Edmonton. Sounds like a nice place to live. GWAB Enterprises (unlimited). For the elegant source last Sunday (complete with "Arthur") Nancy, Marcia, Margory and Cher extend their thanks. Your culinary skills left us all very impressed and decor (Modern Leonard) was superb.

AT McDONALD'S YOU CAN BE A BIG SPENDER.

277 Bath Rd.

Geography DSC - Career Symposium Friday January 24

2nd Floor Conference Room, Dunning Hall

Afternoon Session

- 2:50 p.m. Welcome and Introduction
- 3:00-3:45 p.m. Mr. Robert Latham - Bell Canada
- 3:45-4:30 p.m. Mr. George Nicholson - Metro Toronto Social Planning Council
- 4:30 - 5:15 p.m. Mr. A.T. Davidson - Ministry of Indian and Northern Affairs

Evening Session

- 7:20 p.m. Introduction
- 7:30-9:00 p.m. Panel Discussion with Mr. T. Daniel Burns - Ontario Welfare Council
- Mr. Douglas Wilkie - Ministry of the Environment
- SUMMATION - Dr. D.G. Sinclair, Dean of Arts and Science

Co-sponsored by Geography DSC and ASUS

Pegasus Ski Travel Club International

presents (to its members)

The Quebec Winter Carnival $39.95

- your choice of two great weekends Feb. 6-9 and Feb. 13-16 includes:
  - return coach fare from Kingston
  - 3 nights accommodation in the dormitory at the Centre Communautaire Limitou - 4th St.
  - Centre has a restaurant, cafeteria, bowling alley and is only a 15-20 minute walk from the old city.

Bus leaves Kingston Thursday evening and returns Sunday afternoon

Ski Weekend from $49.95 (based on triple)

- Mont. Ste. Anne P.Q. Jan. 31-Feb. 2 includes - 2 days skiing (all lifts including aerial gondola)
  - return coach from Kingston
  - 2 nights accommodation at the hotel Laurentide TV private bath etc.
  - breakfast Saturday and Sunday
  - transfers from hotel to slopes

Bus leaves Kingston Friday afternoon and returns Sunday afternoon

Ski Week from $105.00 (based on triple)

- Mont. Ste. Anne P.Q. Feb. 16-21 (reading week) includes - 5 days skiing (all lifts)
  - 5 lessons with the Ste. Anne Ski School
  - 5 nights accommodation at the hotel Laurentide TV, private bath and breakfasts
  - return coach fare from Kingston
  - all transfers (from hotel to slopes)

Membership and ticket sales at Cotton's Sporthouse (399 Princess St. in Elrond College or phone at 549-4975 between 7:30 and 10:30 pm.

HOUSE OF SOUNDS

Kingston's largest selection of Hi-Fi Components

25% OFF All Sherwood, Marantz, Norelco
RECEIVERS

All Blank TAPE

BASF, TDK, AMPEX
SCOTCH

25% OFF

Cassette, 8-Track,
Open Reel

All Stereo Quad Headphones

25% OFF

Pioneer, Senheiser,
Superex Panasonic

DUAL 1229 Turntable

FREE Base, Cover,
SAVE $99<sup>50</sup>

$260

PIONEER SPECIALS

SX424 Receiver - Reg. 259.95
QX446 Quad Receiver
Regular 639.95

FREE PL12 TURNTABLE
A $175.00 VALUE

CASSETTE DECK SPECIALS

TEAC 450 - Reg. 669 SALE $599.00
TEAC 360 - Reg. 599 SALE $499.00
Technics RS276 - Reg. 579 Sale $429.00
Technics RS 263 - Reg. 289 Sale $219.00

Speaker Specials

DYNACO A25 Reg. $219. pr Sale $150
FAIRFAX FX300 Reg. $400 pr. Sale $340
Videotone Ultra 1 Reg. $499 pr. Sale $399

HOUSE OF SOUNDS

277 Princess St. Kingston 544-3981

Joe and Paul's Main Floor

Our complete stock of name-brand shirts
on the main floor!
One fantastic low
price!

$8.88

(S - M - L - XL)

Large selection of Pullovers and sweaters

20% OFF!

Sub-Zero Nylon
Parkas

Navy and Khaki
reg $39.95
sale price

$19.95

Latest style men's dress pants. Checks and Solids

20% OFF!

ALL SALES FINAL!

Joe and Paul's Basement

For this inventory sale all the jeans in the basement. By Lee's -
Levi's - GWG - Howick's -
Landlubber - Wrangler.
In denim corduroy etc.
Will be sold less..

$2<sup>00</sup> a pair

ALL SALES FINAL!

"LEE" Chambray
denim shirts.

reg. $12.95
sale:

$8<sup>88</sup>

sizes s - m - l

Denim or Corduroy
Western jackets.

Also, Lee's Overall's

$2.00 OFF

Great Line of Belts $1<sup>00</sup> off

Joe & Paul's

corner Montreal & Princess Sts.

KINGSTON

letters to the editor

sweven: why a no show?

Dear Editor:

As "H.D." pointed out in the January 22nd issue of Golden Words, Sweven will not be appearing this year.

Sweven falls under your (ie. the Journal's) managerial jurisdiction; student make a $3.00 contribution through Student Fees to the Journal and this money is budgeted by your management in the way it sees fit. Your proposed budget 1974-75 allocated $5,000 to Sweven. That money seems to have been reallocated, as the report from your chartered accountant will reveal in his statement at the end of the year.

Being a 'literary enthusiast' and realizing the value of a campus literary magazine with good editorship, I feel the arbitrary decision not to publish Sweven should be justified by you. Undoubtedly it will all come out in the wash at the end of the year, but with regard to the proposed Honouraria increase (and the inevitable re-allocation of funds within the AMS, and Journal that will be necessary if the increased and retroactive Honouraria becomes a reality) I feel you owe students an explanation NOW.

Why will Sweven not appear this year?

Anna Pelletier

Ed. Note:

Increased publishing and paper costs have forced the production of Sweven beyond practicality. Thus it was decided, by the Journal that a more practical format for the magazine be established which would appear as an insert in the Journal. Internal problems, too have forced the delay of Sweven's appearance. Our decision was unacceptable to its editor. We hope to publish Sweven's contributions upon receipt of these from its editor, Jim Smith, and regret any misunderstanding about its publication.

What's funny?

Dear Editor:

In David Parsons' reaction to the complaints received about the "salute" to IWY, I feel he has missed the point being made in these complaints. Perhaps we do lack a sense of humour and perhaps we are rather thin-skinned, but I think it more of a reaction to the direction of the humour. IWY is a serious effort, which unfortunately, will probably accomplish very little. Jokes such as these only impair it further. Must jokes always be directed at a minority group-be it racist, sexist or ethnic humour?

I suspect that in writing this I may be providing further proof of my "flinty-eyed feminist fashion" and my under-developed sense of humour. But surely you must agree that not all people react to the same joke as being particularly humorous and that all that do not, completely lack a sense of humour. I personally would appreciate a page of male bodies.

Jerry Lowell

No longer do we have to defend our homes from the invasion of ruthless packs of wolves! No longer do we see any of the helpless creatures in our vast bushlands. No longer need we experience the joy of viewing an innocent young fox playing on a roadside.

Thank you for saving our grandchildren from the onslaught of predators. Never will they have to suffer the beauty and purity of nature.

Yes indeed, thank you - all of you for your truly selfless act. It surely comes from the heart - definitely not from the head.

Sincerely,

A Friend of the Fur

Wildlife menaced

Dear Editor:

With the advent of colder weather I have noted a change in fashion around campus. Numerous people have shed their dull, drab cloth and nylon in favour of flashy, enviable fur coats.

I would like to heartily congratulate and thank these people. Due to their unselfish act many of the dangerous original bearers are being destroyed. Yes sir, the vicious rabbit, martin, mink and fox are being eliminated. No longer need we hesitate to send our children into the forest to play for fear of them being ravaged by a blood thirsty muskrat.

Dear Editor:

In spite of persistent rumours to the contrary, I am not now, nor have I ever been a candidate for the position of President of the Alma Mater Society. It nominated, I will not run, and if elected I will not serve. To the best of my knowledge at this point in time it is of my opinion that that is all that I can say now. My family unanimously agrees, as do my running mates.

Looking forward to hearing from you.
I remain,

John L. Bottomley.

Muse visits unknown bard

Dear Editor:

In keeping with the theme of Suzie-Q week, I would like to share with you this anonymous poem:

Definition of a Boy

If you smile at him, he thinks you're flirting
If you don't, he thinks you're an iceberg
If you let him kiss you, he wishes you were more reserved
If you don't he'll seek consolation elsewhere
If you flatter him, he thinks you're simple
If you don't, he thinks you don't appreciate him
If you let him make love to you, he thinks you're cheap
If you don't, he'll go out with someone who will
If you go out with another guy, he thinks you're fickle
If you don't, he thinks it's because no other guy will have you

Boys - God Bless Them - they don't know what they want!!

dedicated to you-know-who
by Sue Rogers Arts '78

Queens
Journal
Vol. 102, No. 32
Fri., Jan. 24, 1975
Queen's University
at Kingston, Ontario.

Editor in Chief - Suzanne Sherkin,
she's back! so's her leg?
Managing editor - Dan McClelland

Business manager - Terry Collins
News editor - Sarah Yarnell
Features editors - Wendy Reynolds, Laurie Gibson
Arts editors - Peter Haworth, Kerry White
Sports editors - Suzanne Jackson,
Lynn Alwood (where are you lyn?) Backpage - Val Collin (I mean VALERIE)

Circulated: Trish Brooks
Photo editor - John Willmer
Wat's happenin' - Rosemary, Mark,
Jennifer
Which Way Canada - J. Douglas Bonnell (I've promised we wouldn't print Doug wrong way Bonnell, so we won't)
Proles and Lackeys - Larry Woods,
Chris Woods, who is not his brother, Seagull, Nancy Bowes, Gienna Mathers, Mike Creagen,
Anne Robertson and Meg Bol-tenley (Business Types) Royal typewriter courtesy of the Big Red Irishman, Hugh Agnew, Peter
White, Nancy Spies, F.U.D. John Bottomley, D.C. who's not S and
W

Comment - Yes ladies and gentlemen, it's so nice to be back working in the bowels. I guess I just couldn't stay away from these 5 a.m. productions...what fun! The proles and lackeys seem to be planning some kind of a revolt but the rest of us are not left defenseless - we have our own AMS candidate J.B. to see us through!

Founded in 1873 and published on Tuesdays and Fridays during the academic year by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University, Incorporated, Kingston, Ontario. Founding member of Canadian University Press. Editorial opinions expressed are those of the editor and not necessarily those of the AMS nor the University. Telephone (416) 592-2606. Printed by gnomes at the St. Lawrence Printing Co. Ltd., Prescott, Ontario. Lithographed in USA on Canadian newspaper.

Molson Export Ale.
Great.
Because it keeps on
tasting great.

Have we come such a long way baby?

by Nancy Bowes

The liberation movements of the sixties have one aspect in common: they all advocate independence from an image - usually the middle-aged North American W.A.S.P. advertising executive with a two-storey home, bridge-playing wife, 3.8 children and other assorted ulcers. International Women's Year designates a propitious time to assess the real and imagined progress of Women's Liberation and the liberation movements in general.

After several years of exposure (on and off since the publication of Mary Wollstonecraft's A Vindication of the Rights of Woman, 1792) the Women's Liberation Movement has recently forged an indelible mark on western society. The electronic media have made Germaine Greer and Gloria Steinem household names. Unfortunately, the same electronic media have distorted the meaning of Women's Lib and no mere adjustment of the vertical hold will correct the picture.

The electronic communicative media - the press, radio and T.V. - have not liberated women from the stifling roles they have been forced to play for centuries. Instead, they have substituted a new, equally stifling role to which the modern woman is expected to conform. Such characters as are portrayed by Mary Tyler Moore and Valerie Harper in their television shows should not be mistaken for pillars of a new liberated society. For just as surely as a woman was doomed to a life as a second-rate citizen without a vote, without her own name after marriage, virtually without a life at all unless she could "catch" a husband, this new woman is doomed to a life playing a role that often ill-suits her - a career woman, uninhibited lover, hip mom and enlightened person about the state of the cosmos.

The title of the movement, Women's Liberation, should be thought through carefully. Liberation from what? From diapers and dishrags? No. Surely the intention is to bring to women the courage to pursue the lifestyle that most fulfills them. Women's Liberation is not asking that women play any role but that to our selves, we be true. It asks that those women who choose to follow a career in any field (no matter how offensive it may seem to the prevailing idea of femininity) will not be stopped by the disapproving looks from men who prefer to see women barefoot and pregnant.

The press releases herald the acceptance of women into previously male-only establishments. Figures are released which show that the percentage of females enrolled in the Engineering program have risen dramatically. Now women are jockeys, construction workers and top executives. The female population is beginning to permeate the professional world. But at what cost?

I am not insinuating that the women cannot handle the jobs that they have taken on. The triumphs of women in the working world have been blazoned abroad without a close examination of the pressures now exerted on young women to enter the marketplace and fight viciously for a place in it. Any girl in an urban area who still wants to terminate her formal education early in order to become a wife and mother is looked down upon. "She is not doing her part to get us out of the kitchen. She is keeping us back." Nonsense. To liberate means to free, not to assimilate. If fulfillment for one individual means charting the Arctic, that individual's chance for fulfillment should not be stymied by sex, race or creed. If fulfillment means living in suburbia with an ulcer-prone husband who goes to work on the 7:09 commuter train, that wish should be respected too.

But just as before, women are not free to mold their lives as they please. Now they are made to feel guilty for getting married and bearing children, despite the fact that they make much better wives and mothers than they do career women. Instead of making an effort to know ourselves and grow in a manner true to ourselves, we are turning out hundreds of thousands of slightly flawed copies of the original - the race, sex or creed may vary slightly, but the disguise on the middle-aged W.A.S.P. copy is transparent.

Do we need a role to play? Or do others feel the need to fit us into their conception of the universe? The phenomenon of stereotyping was examined critically by the late Walter Lippmann. Early in the century, he wrote on the matter in Public Opinion: "We do not see so much the sunset as notice that it is a sunset and then see chiefly what our mind is already full of on sunsets." In a world so full of things to experience, it is understandable that there is not enough time to experience them all in depth. But we rob only ourselves if we unbendingly apply our stereotypes to people. Stereotype the toasters and the typewriters. Save the people from that fate. The revolts of the sixties showed that no group of people can ever fulfill itself if the world refuses to release it from its asphyxiating pre-conceived notions.

Most people are aware that not all women enjoy being housewife. We have learned and are being made more aware of the plight blacks in Western society. Not American natives, homosexuals, members of Third World countries and major minorities. In the seventies, the liberation movements are being toppled from the intellectual ivory towers and forced into mainstream of life. Women, blacks, napeoples, homosexuals and the elderly (the but a few) are being made aware of slaves and their potential.

The effects of liberation are varied. Some of the converts liberationist way of thinking are the men's strongest supporters. But what is to the individual in this liberating process? Should all people be free? Can people need to be free?

Many are mad angry; they want revenge for the years of repression. The meaning of liberation being obscured in the protest marches and burnings. In the rush to get out from under, many of the intent liberationists have become extremely selfish.

During the Durr Trust Lectures, Doris Anderson warned that many of the women would be angry and perhaps selfish in their liberation. Ms. Anderson considered it nothing abnormal, a person merely to be condoned. Selfishness is not to be condoned. Of course it is essential that we do liberate ourselves from the bearing stereotypes, but the sooner we moderate this extreme stage the better thing is being accomplished with a sense of justice - an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth. Justice must be meted with mercy. Few of today's men understand the implications of the roles they play. Few people could found who would disagree with the principle of equal pay for equal work. Rhetoric and preposterous attention collecting payments for injustices merely only serve to alienate women from men. In this mass society where too many people already suffer from anomie and alienation, it is time to find a balance between subservience and selfishness. It is to learn to live, as Walter Trobisch said, "a fulfilled life with unfulfilled desires."

The liberation movements misconstrued. Some men are under the impression that a liberated woman does not want him to be a door open but that a "lady" does expect courtesy. Nonsense. The opening of a door is not courtesy due to a woman but courtesy due to all people. Any woman who takes for granted that her doors will be opened at "thank You", is just old it open. Unless a person who does person is physically incapacitated, there is no reason why he or she can not hold open a door for another person (he or she) close behind.

It is sad to hear the element of shock in a man's voice when he replies with "You're welcome." It is sad that nobody should ever have thanked him, sincerely before. All people should be able to expect courtesy, to extend courtesy and to vocally appreciate courtesy.

Similarly, a man should not feel less virile because a woman opens her own doors and carries her own load. A woman doing so is not threatening man's role but only expanding her own role. A man who sees the versatility of a woman's role will hopefully consider expanding his role from the narrow view of husband, father and provider.

The title of this article may lead some to believe that I am not impressed with the progress made by women. To the contrary, we have come a long way baby, but we have just as far yet to go. Women's Liberation, Gay Liberation, Black Indian, Eskimo Liberation leads to only one thing - Human Liberation.

Obviously there are many people in various parts of the world who are not managing to eke out even a subsistence life. Hunger, starvation, epidemics and natural disasters are a part of daily life for hundreds of thousands of people. It is ludicrous to talk of liberating them from constricting stereotypes when they cannot have the basic needs of life.

But there are also millions of people who have food, clothing and shelter for whom those basic needs do not constitute a fulfilled life. They are trapped in a role. The blame lies not entirely with society for at some point, these same people were complacent enough to accept the roles. But a time comes in their lives when many people want freedom from these roles. It is the privilege of those with basic needs satisfied to further civilize our world. It is our privilege to try on different roles, to expand and include them in our lifestyle.

We have food, clothing and shelter; we have complacency. We feel the want of human dignity. Pride and selfishness, no; dignity, yes. The line between them is precariously thin but strike it we must or fail to make any progress beyond complacency.

All of the liberating movements should heed and learn from the words of Simone de Beauvoir in The Second Sex: "What woman essentially lacks today for doing great things is forgetfulness of herself; but to forget oneself it is first of all necessary to be firmly assured that now and for the future one has found oneself."

All about Oxfam

There's 'development', and development!

From the Light, Powder and Construction Works, 70 Box 10662, GPO Melbourne 5001, Australia.

What Oxfam is

OXFAM-Canada is a voluntary organization dedicated to the world-wide fight against poverty, disease, hunger, illiteracy, injustice and gross inequality of opportunity.

OXFAM-Canada operates under the direction of an independent, all-Canadian board of volunteer directors, but works in close cooperation with sister OXFAM organizations in Britain, Belgium, Australia, the United States and Quebec. It was founded in 1963 as a Canadian charitable agency; OXFAM is registered with the federal government and all donations are tax deductible.

OXFAM derives its name, spirit and beginnings from the Oxford Committee for Famine Relief—originally founded in Britain during World War II to relieve suffering in Greece.

After the war, OXFAM's scope expanded rapidly to encompass disasters anywhere in the developing world. Since 1944 there has hardly been a major disaster anywhere in the poorer half of the world where OXFAM has not helped. In recent years it has been active in drought-stricken Africa, disaster-prone Bangladesh, war-torn Biafra, and many more places.

OXFAM set out to do what it could through literacy, education and vocational training projects; agriculture, water and health programmes; family planning; helping consumer and producer cooperatives; and total community development efforts that combine several of the above.

But more than building physical things like schools or fishing boats, OXFAM has sought to rebuild the spirit of people worn down by generations of despair. All OXFAM projects stress human self-realization, and seek maximum participation by the local population in planning, directing and carrying out their own liberation from poverty.

In the seventies, OXFAM is still raising funds to support its modest programme of direct overseas aid.

The roots of Third World misery lie in a combination of unequal trade relations, international monetary policies and some business malpractices which effectively hold poor nations in poverty and dependence.

They permit a lucky minority of humanity to enjoy an ever increasing standard of living, while the poor of Asia, Africa and Latin America are condemned to nutritional standards and real incomes that have actually declined in the three decades since 1944.

Thus the world-wide battle against poverty must be fought not only in far off nations of the Third World, but here at home in Canada as well. As a relatively wealthy nation, Canada participates in setting international policies that affect the economic well-being and advancement of the developing nations. Its influence can be for good or ill.

Through a programme of development education and political action within Canada, OXFAM is mobilizing Canadians to better support the developing nations in their struggle for justice.

locally

A small Kingston OXFAM group was formed in early 1974. Its first project was an Arts and Crafts Fair held in Kingston City Hall in April. As well as being a fund-raising event it also provided an excellent opportunity for OXFAM to exercise its development education role in increasing local awareness of some of the problems facing the developing countries and the ways in which we in the western world could alleviate or influence such situations through a greater understanding of the underlying causes of food crises, illiteracy and so forth.

The local committee is now planning another Arts and Crafts Fair for April 1975.

In addition, a pilot appeal was recently mounted in Kingston for funds to support the purchase and processing of surplus Canadian eggs to be shipped to Bangladesh. The idea originated in Kingston and an OXFAM group in the West picked it up and was able to make suitable arrangements for purchase and processing

Population myth

Many, especially those in the rich countries, will put the blame for the food crisis on the "population explosion". They will argue that because population growth rates are rising faster than food production rates, a "population - food collision is inevitable". As Robert McNamara, President of the World Bank said, "The greatest single obstacle to the economic and social advancing of the majority of the peoples in the underdeveloped world is rampant population growth." They conclude then that the solution to the food crisis is birth control.

This type of thinking is reflected in the alarming rate of increase in the budgets for population control programmes of the Western aid programmes. In the United States the budget for population control has increased from $2.1 million in 1965 to $45.4 million in 1969, and to $100 million in 1971.

Defining the problem as basically a "population explosion" influences every aspect of foreign assistance policy. For example, in the past the United States has forced family planning aid on India as a condition for continuing wheat supplies.

In a recent CARE report, a U.S. government nutritionist draws a frightening conclusion. "It is a certainty that today in the Third World severe malnutrition is the only remaining brake on the rate of population growth."

The same CARE study states that it is in India's long term interests to discourage infant feeding programmes which do not guarantee concomitant reductions in live births. The report acknowledges that Indian women and girls will suffer first from food shortages as they are considered by the male Indian society as less productive in rural field labours.

Any line of argument that leads to such dehumanizing conclusions must be rejected immediately. In fact, the recent World Population Conference held in Bucharest demonstrated emphatically that the poor nations of the world reject our definition of their problem as a neo-Malthusian numbers game. In fact the majority of the nations represented at Bucharest agreed that the root of the population problem is social injustice that denies people an adequate diet, education and some measure of old-age security that they now seek by having more children in the hope that some will survive. Indeed, a consensus emerged at the World Population Conference that the only real long-term solution is to recognize that historically birth rates do not decline unless certain basic social needs are satisfied - an assured food supply, a reduced infant mortality rate, literacy, and the availability of at least rudimentary health services.

Oxfam continued

The food aid myth

It is widely assumed that it is the generosity of the U.S. and Canada that has staved off mass starvation in developing countries. Before talking about food aid it is important to clarify just who is feeding whom. The rich nations export about 3 million tons of average protein, high-profit grains to the poor nations of the world each year. This does not match the yearly outflow of 4 million tons of high protein foods from the poor nations to the rich. This imbalance exists because the rich have the power to command food from the market which is denied to the poor. Secondly, it is important to note that post war food aid originated primarily as a means of disposing of agricultural surplus. As U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz said recently, "I think the Food for Peace (The U.S. foodaid programme) was started primarily as a means of disposing of our surplus stocks. We called it Food for Peace because that was a convenient way to sell it politically in this country." Thirdly, once grain stocks fell to very low levels and wheat prices tripled over the period of a year and a half, the quantity of food aid began to decrease, even though now the need is greatest. Total food aid in grain fell from an average of 11 million tons a year in 1970-71 to 1972-73, to less than 7 million tons in 1973-74. Fourthly, it is important to realize that the amount that less developed countries receive in food aid is marginal to the amounts they buy commercially. For example, in 1973-74 the less developed countries' commercial cereal imports are estimated at US $11,000 million. In comparison, the U.S. Food for Peace and the UN World Food Programme combined amounted to less than $900 million. Fifthly, much food aid is really not aid at all. In The Myth of Aid, (IDOC Books, 1971) economist Michael Hudson spells out in detail how, under the U.S. Food for Peace Programme, recipients paid for U.S. grain with their own currencies with the result that the nominal cost to the U.S.A. of the programme was overshadowed by benefits to the U.S.A. in terms of savings on foreign currency proceeds used by the U.S. government agencies including the Pentagon and sold to private businessmen, barter programmes; hard-currency sales, and re-loans of local currencies to aid-borrowers. Finally, some food aid has tended to discourage food production in the less developed countries. For example, in Guatemala, Incaparima (a milk substitute made from corn and cottonseed flour with a nutritional value equal to milk at one-sixth the cost) was being produced by a local company from materials locally available. The company pressed the Guatemalan government to buy its product and use it in its school feeding programmes, but U.S. pressure to continue CARE powdered milk programmes stopped the government from doing so.

Although there will always be a need for emergency aid for victims of floods or other disasters, long term food aid on a bilateral basis probably does more harm than good. More important for the Third World are stable prices, concessional financing of commercial purchases and an effective international grain reserve policy to ensure adequate stocks at reasonable prices.

Food crisis

Putting the blame for the food crisis on the "population explosion" is a convenient way of covering over the fact that the growing consumption of meat in the affluent countries is just as important a factor in the pressure on food supplies as is population growth. North Americans consume about one ton of grains per person per year. Only 150 pounds of this is consumed directly, the rest being consumed indirectly in the form of meat. (It takes about 10 lbs. of grain to get one pound of meat.) In contrast, the average grain consumption in the Third World is about 500 pounds, most of it consumed directly. The average North American consumes 5 times the agricultural resources of an average Indian or African. As the rich get richer they eat more meat. The average Canadian now consumes annually 10 pounds more beef, 7 pounds more pork and 5 pounds more poultry than five years ago.

Meat consumption is also rising at a rapid rate in Japan and Europe and was a major factor in the $1 billion grain deal Russia concluded with the United States. When the Russian grain harvest failed, instead of slaughtering their cattle as they had in the past, Mr. Brezhnev personally concluded a grain deal with President Nixon to import grain to feed their animals. Because of the maldistribution of wealth, the rich minority, whether capitalist or communist, can command more than their share from the market while others starve.

We are not saying that the consumption of all meat must be curtailed. Cattle foraging on pasture land that cannot be used for other crops is actually a very efficient use of the earth's resources. The problem is that North American cows are now fattened on grain in feedlots for the meat markets of an affluent society.

"Frankly, I'm getting a bit sick of this 'I'll eat the food and you eat the pill' lecture"

George B. B. sporting goods
40 Prince Street
Kingston, Ontario
Tel. 613-642-2393

You make the deal -
Volk and Atomic skis
Nordica and Henke Boots
Woods, Topher & Actra clothing
plus accessories
Put together a package for yourself,
we're reasonable people.

GRANT HALL
CONCERT OF CANADIAN
OPERA COMPANY
SUN. 26 JAN. 2:30 p.m.

- operatic favourites
from past productions
Tickets: $3.50 general, $2.50 discount
Box Office in Agnes Etherington
Art Centre
547-6194
- a Division of
Concerts event

Bite the one you love
STEAK & STUFF
LICENCED DINING ROOM 1399 Princess (near the station)
AUNT LUCY'S RESTAURANTS

PRICELESS... WITHIN REASON

Precious diamonds do not have to cost a fortune. We can help you to select a fine diamond that you can afford. Regardless of your financial status, we can offer a superb diamond that will thrill you... and never leave you flat.

KINNEAR d'ESTERRE
JEWELLERS
168 PRINCESS STREET
KINGSTON, ONTARIO

KELLY'S

STEREO MART

110 PRINCESS ST. KINGSTON 544-4014

	LIST	SALE		LIST	SALE
YES—Relayer	7.29	3.97	ELTON JOHN—Greatest Hits	7.98	3.97
CARL DUGLAS—Kung Fu Fighting	7.29	3.97	JIM CRDCE—Greatest Hits	7.98	3.97
B.T. EXPRESS—Do It	7.29	3.97	Loggins & Messina—Motherlode	7.98	3.97
PDCO—Cantamos	7.29	3.97	DAVE MASON	7.98	3.97
THREE DOG NIGHT —Joy to the World	7.98	3.97	NEIL DIAMOND—Longfellow Serenade	7.98	3.97
AVERAGE WHITE BAND	7.29	3.97
LINDA RONSTAD—Heart Like a Wheel	7.29	3.97
GEDRGE CARLINE—Toledo Window Box	7.29	3.97
JO-JO GREENE	7.29	3.97
DOGHAT—Rock and Roll Outlaws	7.29	3.97
TIM WEISBURG 4	7.29	3.97

RECORD SAVINGS

Second Floor
'Delete' Sale
.47 to 1.49

All Regular Deletes Now Just .47
All Classical and Budget labels
Now Just 1.49

Our Average Regular Stock
Disc Price is Only $5.19

$3.00 OFF LIST!
All pre-recorded 8 track & cassettes

TURNTABLES

	SUGG. LIST	SALE
BSR C-129 with wooden base and dust cover	$4.95	$4.40
DUAL CS-18 turntable with base, cover, cart	165.00	$145
AKAI AP-D04X with base, cover and cart	288.95	$240
SANSUI 212 turntable with base, cover and cart	199.95	$160

YOU SAVE DOLLARS!

	SUGG. LIST	SALE
ELECTRA RD-2000 with base, cover and cart	179.95	$145
BSR 310AX with base, cover and cart	119.95	$89
CARRARD 0-100 C turntable with base, cover and cart	299.95	$249
CARRARD 82 with base, cover and cart	169.95	$135
CARRARD 9-92 with base, cover and cart	309.95	$239

QUAD RECEIVERS

	SUGG. LIST	SALE
4 Channel SANSUI QR 500 Quad Receiver	349.95	$260
SANSUI QR 1500 Quad Receiver	489.95	$349
AKAI AS 8100 S Quad Receiver	679.95	$499

SHOP HERE — RECORD VALUES

	SUGG. LIST	SALE
SANSUI QRX 2000 Quad Receiver	499.95	$399
SANSUI QRX 300 Quad Receiver	669.95	$519
SANSUI QRX 3500 Quad Receiver	869.95	$669

TAPE DECKS

	SUGG. LIST	SALE
AKAI CS-330 with Dolby Cassette	259.95	$209
AKAI GXC-36 Cassette Deck	319.95	$259
AKAI OXL-380 Cassette Deck with Dolby	389.95	$299
SHARP NT 480 Cassette Deck with Dolby	459.95	$378
SANSUI SC-727 Cassette with Dolby	499.95	$399

COMPARE OUR PRICES NOW!

	SUGG. LIST	SALE
AKAI GXC-75E Auto Reverse with Dolby	599.95	$499
AKAI 1721 with R + Reel with AMP	409.95	$369
SDNY TC 353 DR + Reel Deck	419.95	$360
AKAI GX-2100 — 3 Motors — Auto Reverse	689.95	$559
AKAI 1730 W-SS 4 Channel	599.95	$499
AKAI GX 1900 C Cassette and Reel	679.95	$499

STEREO RECEIVERS

	SUGG. LIST	SALE
SANSUI 1000X Receiver	489.95	$379.95
SANSUI Six Receiver	539.95	$540
SANSUI Seven Receiver	729.95	$559
SANSUI Eight Receiver	859.95	$659
SHERWOOD 7050 Receiver	239.95	$190

$500,000 STOCK REDUCTION

	SUGG. LIST	SALE
AKAI 8030 Receiver	429.95	$349
PROLINEAR Pro-Nine Receiver	199.95	$375
PROLINEAR 417 Receiver	389.95	$309.95
SANSUI 310 Receiver	339.00	$280
ELECTRA 650 Receiver	149.95	$119.95

TUNERS
	SUGG. LIST
AKAI 580 Tuner (1 Only)	389.95
ELECTRA EST 100 Tuner	169.95
PROLINEAR 1ST Tuner	249.95
SANSUI TU-505 Tuner	259.95
SANSUI TU-7500 Tuner	399.95

25% OFF

LIST PRICE ALL MEMOREX TAPE — RAW SPEAKERS — RECORD CARE and MAINTENANCE ITEMS —
ALL REMAINING CAR UNITS —
HEADPHONES —
PATCH CORDS and ACCESSORIES

AMPLIFIERS
	SUGG. LIST
ELECTRA Super 20 Amp.	139.95
ELECTRA Super 30 Amp.	179.95
PRO-LINEAR — 19 Amp.	329.95

Wide range of techniques in Kingston artists' exhibition

by Nancy Splies

Judging from the sampling of works presently on display at Agnes Etherington Art Centre, Kingston has been well endowed with artistic talent in recent years. The exhibition which continues until February 2nd is composed of paintings and sculpture created by twenty area artists who were invited to submit two of their best works for the show.

The majority of the artists were born outside of Canada and have since immigrated from Europe and England. Nevertheless they are all presently living in Kingston and area, and are making notable contributions to the art scene both here, and elsewhere in Canada. Many teach painting, sculpture, etc. in the B.A.E. programme at Queen's or with the Visual and Creative Arts Department of St. Lawrence College. Also on display are works by Ralph Allen, former Director of Agnes Etherington Art Centre and Andre Bieler who has taught and painted in Kingston for almost forty years. Bieler became a resident artist at Queen's in 1936 and his work culminated in the opening of Agnes Etherington Art Centre in 1957. These area artists have also exhibited elsewhere in Canada and many have received notable awards in recognition of their high calibre work.

The exhibit is basically comprised of paintings and sculpture, the former being the more dominant element. The painting styles range from the traditional naturalistic approach, to the more recent Surrealist and Pop art movements.

In marked contrast to this piece are the paintings by Fred Schonberger which are bound to be found quite disturbing. In both of his pieces the subject matter is distorted female bodies, and especially in his "Rubber Lady", the images are quite horrific.

Surrealist tradition

Adrian Dow has two interesting pieces, obviously influenced by the Surrealist tradition of treating subject matter with highly detailed likenesses. What makes these pieces ("Erotic 1" and "Portal") especially fascinating is the original hand-crafted frames which Dow uses for his works.

The recent movement in Pop art is also represented at this exhibition. Irene McKim has done two very interesting wall hangings entitled "Four-mariette" and "Polyhedron". By the order used of simple objects such as egg cartons and strips of wood moulding she has created an intriguing combination of orderliness and change. The pieces are well thought out and organized and yet as one views them, the shapes and colors flux.

David Perkin's "Big Bikini Bird" is also a wall sculpture and with its hard edged color and blown-up proportions, the work is reminiscent of Pop art.

For the most part, the free-standing sculptures in this exhibit all display the Surrealist influence in their use of "found" objects. This is especially true of Tobey Caldwell Anderson's sculpture: "It's Not the Kitchen Floor Anymore". As in Schonberger's work, this sculpture is somewhat disturbing as one observes its patterns in bones, fur and wood. This style is also embodied in the sculptures by Richard Buff and Terry Pfleger. Pfleger has an intriguing tribute to Cezanne — the "Father of Modern Art", entitled "Cezanne's Green Apples" on display.

Henry Saxe has created two free standing sculptures entitled "Three is a Number of One" and "Levels". Constructed from rusted steel, his pieces are much less complicated than those mentioned previously. "Level" for example is a simple study in the balance between a stone, steel and a length of rope. Moving away from found objects are the "manufactured" sculptures by David Pickering who has created a shiny, white, molded sculpture; "Homage to Olivetti".

Even from this brief glimpse at some of the pieces presently on display, it should be evident that the range in style and technique is wide. Thus as a broad survey of what is happening in art in the Kingston area, the show excels.

Poetry reading

D.G. Jones, Canadian poet and critic, will be on campus on Tuesday, January 28th with a double-headed programme under the sponsorship of the English Department.

"In Praise of Folly—My Adventures in Literary Criticism" is the subject of a lecture at 3:00pm in Room 517, John Watson Hall. Mr. Jones will discuss mythopoetic criticism in general, but with particular reference to his own book, Butterfly on Rock.

"The Axeman Cometh" is the title of Mr. Jones' poetry reading in the evening: 8:30pm in the Adelaide Common Room. He will read not only from his published volumes (Frost in the Sun, The Sun is Axeman, and Phrases from Orpheus), but also from his recent, as yet uncollected work.

Relaxation Training

A one-month program in relaxation training is being offered by the Student Counselling Service to aid students in dealing with anxiety and tension.

The program is to begin Friday January 31st. Students participating must have access to a cassette tape recorder at home for the duration of one month.

Please call the Student Counselling Service
at 547-2893.

The Art Centre goes downtown

In 1974 the Ontario Arts Council organized an open juried printmaking competition for Ontario Artists. In order to be eligible for consideration, the submitted prints had to be of an edition of 25 or more and 10 copies were to be supplied to the Ontario Art Council. A prize of 1,000.00 was awarded to each of the 30 winners: Mary Rawlyk and Christopher Woods of Kingston were among the winners.

The Agnes Etherington Art

Centre received one set of prints from the Ontario Arts Council, and the Art Centre with the co-operation of the Kingston Downtown Business Association, is displaying them in the shop windows downtown for the period January 11-February 15, 1975—the Agnes Etherington Art Centre goes downtown. This project is part of Art Alive '75, the January and February programme of the Agnes Etherington Art Centre.

CHUNG WAH CHOP SUEY

CHINESE &amp; CANADIAN FOOD

TAKE OUT AND DELIVERY DIAL 544-6128
217 UNIVERSITY (CORNER OF WILLIAMS)

OPEN 8 AM TO MIDNIGHT
SUNDAY 10 AM TO 8 PM

Londry's Drugs

Special Student rates

464-471 Princess St.

Delivery Available

546-3696

Open 7 am to 11 pm daily

GRADS

Nominations are now open for the following Graduate Student Society Executive positions:

President
Vice-President
Secretary
Treasurer
Members' AMS reps (2)

Nominations may be made at the Annual General Assembly (8 pm, Jan. 30, Grad House), or mailed to Doug Pritchard, Dupuis Hall (547-5579) or 1 Westdale Ave. (544-0641)

Canadian Opera Company production of "La Bohème"

Camerata over-rated

by Hugh Agnew

Variety and an original approach to performance were the keynotes of Wednesday evening's Dunning Hall concert by Camerata, a chamber music group of four members. The works on the programme allowed each individual to perform solo, as well as with other members of the group in different combinations than the standard string or woodwind ensembles. The pieces presented were for the most part lesser-known compositions of well-known composers, a programme choice with its advantages and its drawbacks.

The members of Camerata are Adele Armin, violin; Coenraad Bloemendal, cello; James Campbell, clarinet; Elyakim Tausig, piano, and they appeared in the combinations of clarinet, cello and piano, and violin, clarinet and piano, as well as solo. The first work on the programme was for solo violin, Bach's Chaconne from the Partita No. 2 in D minor. This is an extremely difficult work, and Adele Armin's performance was generally good, although there were some missed notes and unwanted overtones.

The Chaconne was followed by the Clarinet Trio by Beethoven for clarinet, cello, and piano. This work was performed in an appropriately lighthearted manner with some especially fine, smooth work on the clarinet. The work itself, however, is quite tedious in places if rather fun in others, and the performance could only just carry it off.

Following intermission was one of the most interesting works of the evening, from an educational and historical point of view. This was a series of piano improvisations by the Hungarian composer Bela Bartok, which were accompanied by an audio-visual display made up of the original recordings made by Bartok of the Hungarian folk themes on which the work was based, and slides of Hungarian people and scenes.

The entire second half of the concert was Hungarian music, the other composers represented being R. Kokai (1906-1962) and D. Popper (1843-1913). Especially interesting to me was the contrast between the works of Kokai, who wrote after Bartok, and Bartok's own compositions. Bartok's music seemed to be far more "modern" and innovative, only loosely based on the folk melodies which inspired it; while Kokai's Three Hungarian Dances were much more traditional and tonal-sounding.

Kokai's dances were written for clarinet and piano, and Bartok closed the evening with three of his dances in which the violin, clarinet, and piano were featured. In between was a cello solo (with piano accompaniment) Popper's Hungarian Rhapsody. Inspired by gypsy fiddle tunes, this was a flamboyant, virtuosic piece. This type of piece is so out of fashion today that I couldn't help irreverently wondering whether Popper didn't have his tongue in his cheek when he wrote it.

The overall effect of the evening was spotty—very good in places and lacking in others. The concert was, however, interesting, and I feel Camerata has promise.

St. Lawrence Parks Commission
Summer Employment
at

Old Fort Henry
Kingston, Ontario.

as a member of the
Fort Henry Guard

Successful applicants will earn in excess of 4 dollars
per hour!

Application forms available at the placement office, corner of University and Union. Sign-ups for interviews begin on January 20 and campus interviews are being held on February 20 to 14.

Opera in Kingston

As a part of OPERATION ONTARIO, the Canadian Opera Touring Company will visit Kingston, and perform in Grant Hall in one of the bonus concerts presented by the Performing Arts Office and La Bohème in the Grand Theatre. In a new approach to bringing opera to Canadians, The Canadian Opera Company is touring communities to perform, play, and hold workshops.

On Sunday, January 26, the Company will present Gwendolyn Little, Jan Rubes, and soloists in a programme of vocal music with Raffi Armenian conducting the Chamber Orchestra of Canadian Opera Company. Highlights of the Company's past twenty-five years will be presented.

On Tuesday, January 28, the Company will perform La Bohème. La Bohème, Puccini's fourth opera, has become the most popular stage work after Verdi's Aida. The opera is based on Henry Murger's novel Scenes de la Vie de Bohème which was originally serialized in a newspaper. Puccini was not the only one interested in his opera subject, but the light poetic quality made his audience ignore his rivals.

For information about tickets, contact the Agnes Etherington Arts Centre and the Grand Theatre.

Arts section needs writers

Sun Life of Canada

will be conducting interviews on campus

Tuesday, January 28

2 positions are available to successful candidates commencing in June, 1975 in our Kingston sales office

We are interested in talking to people from all disciplines particularly those in commerce and social sciences

For further information

contact:

Peter S. Scharf B.A.
Unit Manager
546-1117

Arts Festival next week

Joanne Malloy and Doug MacLean, the co-ordinators of this year's Arts Festival, say that plans for the festival, which begin Tuesday, January 28th, are reaching the final stages. They are pleased with the effort put forth by the students working on their committee. MacLean terms his co-workers "talented, energetic and creative", and attributes their great involvement to the fact that each was scheduling events in an area of the arts in which he himself had a special interest.

Areas to be represented in anthology" of mime, movement and poetry. Rodger Griffith, resident clown at Carleton University, will present a performance and workshop. Various Drama classes from our own Drama Department will present workshops, as will Theatre Five one of Kingston's amateur theatre groups. Art programming includes displays of sculpture, painting and various crafts, plus demonstrations of crafts such as macramé, and silkscreening. Film programming includes a student film contest, and the screening of N.F.B. films and W.C. Fields' My Little Chickadee. Poetry readings will be given by David McFadden, a Canadian poet and a reporter for the Hamilton Spectator; Stuart McKinnon, a Kingston poet who is involved in several efforts to encourage writing in the Kingston area; Beth Lern, a conceptual poet from Toronto; and Wayne Clifford, a Kingston poet who teaches at St. Lawrence College. Arnold Edinborough, the former editor of Saturday Night and the present editor of Performing Arts in Canada will speak on "The Canadian Cultural Explosion".

In the past, Arts Festival has encountered problems in participation, in terms of both organizers and audiences. MacLean and Malloy became involved in Festival after reading a Journal article that threatened Festival's demise if no organizers were forthcoming, as did most of their co-workers. They believe that part of the problem lies in the fact that Festival appeals to only a limited sector of the student community. But they believe Festival to be an important contribution to the arts at Queen's, and an opportunity for students to participate in a very personal way in events which lie outside their own fields of interest, and so offer a great deal to be learned.

Doug MacLean

the Festival include music, photography, drama, art, film, poetry, and synchronized swimming. Speakers on various subjects are also planned. Music programming includes amateur folk music in the House of Lords and classical music in the McLaughlin Room at lunch-time. A photography exhibit, which will run all week, will be criticized by Neil Arkin of St. Lawrence College. Drama programming includes several presentations by Students of St. Lawrence College: among these, Harold Pinter's The Room, and a "poetic

Joanne Malloy

Night of the Living Dead: a sense of the macabre

by Tony Davis

Four years ago a number of us sat in Toronto's Roxy Theatre absorbed in the Japanese horror masterpiece Onibaba. The second feature no one had heard of: "The Night of the Living Dead". After only five minutes into the film the audience was laughing away at this supposedly camp attempt at horror. As the film developed, everyone quieted down. Argh - what was this!

Living Dead was directed by American part-time film lover George Romero, who, with borrowed funds decided to make what he thought would be a basic horror story. He filmed it in black and white, not for ascetic reasons, but because he couldn't afford colour. Romero hired a number of actors from area theatres and started production. He was provided by a butcher friend of Romero. The result: The Night of the Living Dead, well over an hour's worth of blood, innards, corpses, and other assorted delights.

The plot in its simplicity: some strange radiation from space has resurrected corpses in the central and mid-western United States. A group of people have barricaded themselves in a farmhouse, and are fighting a constant battle to keep the ghouls out. These corpses have the unpleasant diet of flesh. One young couple, in an attempt to escape, are killed when their truck catches fire. What follows is a particularly gruesomely filmed barbecue. One of the besieged persons is a coward who constantly jeopardizes the fate of the survivors. But he meets a just end (and the audience inevitably cheers).

Fortunately, the ghouls can be slain by a bullet in the brain. To the rescue comes a stereotyped southern sheriff, who, with a gang of vigilantes, sets out to rescue those menaced by the living dead. Suffice it to say that there is a particularly bloody basement scene and few other suspenseful items to follow.

Mr. Romero's love for the macabre and copious blood-spilling can be viewed Friday night at 8:00 in Ellis Hall. Arrive suitably prepared.

Mario's Pizzeria and Spaghetti House
Pizza · Spaghetti · Lasagna · Ravioli
637 Princess Free delivery 349-4222

Queen's Musical Theatre presents GYPSY

at the Grand Theatre,
Weds. to Sat. Feb. 5-6 · 7-8

Admission Feb 5,6, rush seats only, $2.50

Feb. 7,8 Reserve seats
only, admission $3.00

Tickets available in the John Orr Room, 11:00 am. to 3:00 pm,
and at the Grand Theatre.

AMS and WRC Present: INFORMATION NIGHT Re: Housing

Members from Elrond College Inc., Science 44 Co-op, Housing Committee, and Legal Aid will be available Thurs. Jan. 30, from 7-9 PM in Lower Vic Common Room, to talk about housing, and where to find it in 1975.

"ESSAY CONTEST"

First Prize: $15.00 cash

Topic: How do we justify a University education
both to ourselves and the University?

Judges: Principal Watts
Dr. Deutsch
AMS President Tony Wolman

Submissions will be received
c/o Education Commission, AMS
Office, until 5:30 PM, Feb. 7, 1975

"Nothing more satisfying than knowing you threw him there"

by Larry Woods
Journal Sports Writer

"There is nothing more satisfying than standing over someone who is lying on the ground, and knowing that you threw them there", according to Mr. Gary Sturgess in a recent Journal interview. Mr. Sturgess is a Kingston business man who has his black belt in judo, and is in charge of coaching the Queen's Judo Club. There are about thirty members in the club, which meets regularly in the combatives room at the Phys. Ed. Centre. (new members are always welcome)

The modern sport of judo was developed from the jujitsu method of unarmed combat which was common in Japan during the feudal period of Japanese history. A man named Kano is said to have developed judo into a sport, he founded a club which then challenged the Japanese police force to a tournament of hand-to-hand combat, and emerged victorious. Since then, judo has spread to the rest of the world, and it became an Olympic sport in 1964.

Judo depends upon a combination of technique, speed, and conditioning, rather than brute strength. Judo exploits a knowledge of anatomy and the principal of leverage, so balance is important.

When people are learning judo, the first aim is to teach them how to fall without being hurt. After this has been accomplished, they hopefully don't seriously object to being thrown, so are not afraid to learn Judo training involves practising (falling and throws, as well as the other "moves" in judo; conditioning is also of major importance. In clubs like the Queen's Judo Club, everybody helps teach each other, so that everybody can be involved most of the time.

The Ontario Judo Black Belt Association (OJBBA) runs four or five judo tournaments per month in Ontario, so there are a lot of opportunities for competition. Achievement in judo is measured by different colours of belts, ranging from white for beginners up through yellow, orange, green, blue, brown, and eventually black. There are nine degrees within the black belt division, and there are only five people in the world with the highest degree.

Judo is a good sport as far as being in shape is concerned, since it utilizes virtually all the muscles in the body. Judo develops a keen sense of balance, which is useful in almost all sports. Mr. Sturgess told of a Kingston hockey team (made up of eleven and twenty year old guys) which took up judo seriously. After a year of training the team is much improved, since the players are not afraid to go into the corners and really hit people; they are better balanced now, and are not afraid of being hit themselves.

Hopefully the judo club will continue to be active at Queen's, since judo is a sport which can be enjoyed at almost any age.

Queen's Engineering Society
Sponsored

BLOOD DONOR CLINIC

Tuesday - Wednesday - Thursday

Feb. 4-5-6

LOWER VICTORIA HALL

11:00-2:00

5:00-8:00

JOB BANK

Applications for Job Bank directors and resumes may be submitted to the AMS OFFICE NOW.

For further details, contact
John Beech: 547-6165

Last Science '44 Co-op

OPEN HOUSE

Saturday January 25
noon to 4 pm at:
320 William St.
310 Bagot St.
13 Sydenham St.
130 Earl St.

FRUSTRATED BY
UNSUCCESSFUL TRIPS TO BOOKSTORE?

WE CAN ORDER ANY BOOK IN PRINT!

ACADEMIC BOOK CLUB
P.O. BOX 1507, KINGSTON
P.O. Box 1507, Kingston, K7L 5C4

Crucial Weekend on Ice

by Peter Watts
Journal Sports Writer

It has been a busy week of workouts for the Queen's hockey Gaels as they prepare for the most important weekend of their season to date. Interrupted only by Tuesday night's broomball game against the Gals hockey squad (won by the Gals, incidentally), the Gaels under the direction of Dave Field and Bob Carnegie have been concentrating on preparations for their weekend jaunt to York tonight and Guelph tomorrow afternoon. It is imperative that the Gaels get at least a pair of points this weekend in order to keep pace in what has turned out to be a very competitive east division race this season.

Of considerable concern to some observers has been the lack of offensive punch to the Gaels attack in recent games. The Gaels lead the east division in allowing the least goals against - 23 in 8 games. But they are well down in terms of goals scored. No doubt injuries to centre John Cerre and left winger Ron Shepherd have cut into the Gaels' offensive output. Hopefully both will be able to take a regular turn this weekend and hopefully they will be able to add some much-needed punch to the tricolour attack.

As this writer has remarked several times this year, it has been a somewhat unusual east division race to this point, the University of Ottawa Gee-Gees continue to lead the east division although they fell victim to a 10-2 pasting at the hands of the York Yeomen in Ottawa last weekend. The Yeomen's poor showing to this point has been the other major surprise but their convincing win over the Gee-Gees coupled with a 3-3 tie against Laurentian in Sudbury on Tuesday night, could spell trouble for a few other teams in the east division. Meantime, the University of Toronto Blues have not owned the east division with the same degree of certainty that they have shown in the past; they dropped their first league game in several years last Sunday, losing 4-3 to Waterloo.

Getting back to the Gaels this weekend, they have got to get at least 2 points on this roadtrip. At present, they have 10 points, 2 back of third place York and 1 ahead of fifth place Laurentian. The Gaels have probably the toughest schedule of any team in the east division; they still have to play Western and RMC at home and Toronto and Laurentian on the road after this weekend. Queen's RMC games are notorious for being scrambles and a tricolour victory should not be taken for granted. Another certainty is that the York Yeomen will be remembering the 4-1 loss to the Gaels suffered in November. The Guelph Gryphons are in fourth spot in the west division but they are invariably a tough team to beat in their own rink.

In short, the Gaels playoff hopes will likely be determined by the results of this weekend's actions. If they fail to get a point, they are in deep trouble. If they can get a minimum of 2, they'll still be in trouble but the situation will be grey instead of jet black. It is the kind of situation where a team really shows just how good it is. The tricolour is coming off a respectable performance against the Voyageurs last weekend - respectable at least in terms of the play of the defense and goaltending. If the forwards can generate some offense, the situation is going to look a lot brighter.

For those who are interested, tonight's game from York will be carried live on 1490, CFRC starting at 8:15pm.

WIC - ly NEWS

by Marg Bartlett
and Kathy Jackson

Cross-Country Skiing: The first meeting was held last Monday, but unfortunately there was not enough snow to go outdoors. Instead, a film on cross-country ski techniques was shown. The next meeting will be Monday, January 27 (no skiing Fridays because it is not possible to get equipment). Come Monday night at 6:45 pm to pick up your skis, boots, and poles. Transportation to West Campus leaves from the Phys. Ed. Centre at 7 pm sharp. Wax, torches and cork are all supplied. For more info, phone Barb McDermott at 542-8080.

SNOWSHOEING: A definite date has not yet been established for the second outing. Watch the Journal and Bulletin Board in the Women's locker room for further details. Direct any questions to Christa Braig at 549-4649.

SQUASH TOURNAMENT: This will begin Monday, January 27 from 7:30 - 9:30 pm. All those interested in playing are invited to come out even if you missed the clinic. The squash convener is Willa Henry at 549-5174.

VOLLEYBALL: Volleyball started this past Tuesday but due to obvious student APATHY, five out of six games were defaulted. The schedule for next week is as follows:

Tuesday, January 28 - 7:15 Engineering vs. P.H.E.
Rehabs vs. Arts '77

8:15 Arts '78 vs. Meds
Commerce Vs. Nursing.

Thursday, January 30 - 7:15 - 9:15 Recreational Volleyball Girls come out and participate for your faculty on Tuesday evenings. If you are interested in playing but have not yet come out, check the schedule above and play when your faculty does. Everyone is welcome to join us in Bews Gym for an evening of volleyball fun. Starting Thursday January 30, there will be recreational volleyball every week from 7:15 - 9:15. This is an opportunity for everyone and anyone to come out and show off their talents. There will be two courts in operation and a referee will be present so that organized games may take place if desired. If you play on a WIC team already come for the practice. If you don't play, come for the fun and exercise. For information or answers, contact Kathy Jackson at 542-4363. Don't forget to keep Wednesday, January 29 open for the big Skating Party. The party will take place from 6-7 pm at the Arena. More details will be supplied in Tuesday Journal - so keep reading.

NHL charter Jan. 29

to California Seals vs. Toronto Maple Leafs on Wednesday, January 29th. Bus leaves Phys. Ed. Centre at 3:00pm, returning immediately after game. The cost is $16.00 per person including transportation. Tickets may be purchased in Recreation office (Rm. 102A) of Phys. Ed. Centre, weekdays from 9am to 4:30pm on a first come, first served basis.

BITTER GROUNDS presents

Singer-Song Writer

Doug McArthur

Saturday, January 25, 1975

Clark Hall 8:00-1:00

Admission - $2.00

TICKETS AVAILABLE AT THE DOOR

ASUS

Nominations are open for the following positions:

President and Vice President
of ASUS (slate)

Treasurer of ASUS

Secretary of ASUS

6 one-year ASUS representatives
to the AMS

1 two-year ASUS representative
to the AMS

1 one-year Senator

1 two-year Senator

All nominations should include 25 signatures of members of ASUS, position nominated for and the name and telephone number of the nominee.

All nominations must be submitted to the ASUS Box in the AMS office
by February 4 at 4:00 pm

ASUS

Notice of election for:

President and Vice-President
of ASUS (slate)

Treasurer of ASUS

Secretary of ASUS

6 one-year Representatives
to the AMS

1 two-year Representative
to the AMS

1 one-year Senator

1 two-year Senator

Advance Poll

Tuesday February 11
Student Union 11 am - 4:00 pm

Election Day

Thursday February 13,
MacIntosh-Corry Hall
10:30am - 3:30pm
at all AMS Poll Stations

John Cameron

Fencing

Individuals advance to finals

by Rosemary Knight
Journal Sports Writer
This past weekend, Part II of the OWIAA fencing competition was held at Carleton University. Fencing for Queen's were Denise Cassidy-Aaguis, Debbie

Christian, Erica Cook, Sue Seto and Rosemary Knight. In their first pool, the Queen's team won their match against Ottawa University with a score of 11 to 5. The match against Carleton University was very close with Queen's unfortunately losing the tie-breaking point in a number of decisive bouts. This finally resulted in a Carleton victory with a score of 9 to 7. In another tight match with McGill, McGill won the final bout bringing the score to 9 to 7 in their favor. When the results from Part I (fenced in November) and Part II were compiled, Carleton and McGill universities were promoted to the Ontario team finals while Queen's and Ottawa Universities were eliminated.

Apart from the team event, individual performance was also judged by tabulating the number of victories gained and hits received and given by each fencer. On this basis eight fencers were chosen to compete in the Ontario individual finals. Two fencers from Queen's, Erica Cook and Rosemary Knight qualified in this top eight. The team and individual finals will be held on January 31 and February 1 at York University.

John Cameron

Determination and ability send Rosemary Knight to the Ontario Individual finals.

Science '44 co-op applications are available at open houses and from:

Al Evans - 314 William St. 542-1009
Neil Ford - 32 Garret St. 544-3778
Pip Cherney - 130 Earl St. 546-4435
Sue Scott - 307 University 542-4011
Lise MacLean - 320 William 549-4087
Dave Moon - 314 William 549-4811
Paul Currie or - 13 Sydenham 549-9289
Hamish McIntosh

Show Her The Way You Feel

with a Petite Diamond Ring from

Brock Jewellers

Love diamond ring Set in 10k yellow gold

$42.00

BROCK
JEWELLERS
161 Princess St.

Crystal Restaurant
TASTY FOODS
COURTEOUS SERVICE
"THE PLACE WHERE ALL GOOD PEOPLE MEET & EAT"
STEAKS - CHOPS - CHICKEN - SEAFOOD
SPAGHETTI - SHISH KEBAB
SUVLAKI - STROGANOFF
OPEN 7 DAYS
Try our Delicious Shish Kebab
240 PRINCESS
TAKE-OUT SERVICE
Free Delivery Over $3.00
KGTV 542-8515

GO SOUTH, YOUNG MAN!

Enjoy Southern Comfort, smooth, sweet satisfaction from the South. Mixes with everything within reason and it's great all on its lonesome. Try some. You'll love it.

The grand old drink of the South.

SOUTHERN COMFORT

convocation hall
January 24-25, 1975 8:30 pm
tickets at drama desk 547-6291

Cornell Invite

Women's track team rewrites our records

Only five events at the Cornell Invitational were open to the women's team and Queen's entered four, breaking the records for Queen's in all four.

Betsy Cary started the day with a 7.6 time and a second place finish overall in the 60 yd. event. Her time lowered the 8.1 record that was held by team-mate Janey O'Rourke. Pam Scothorn finished fifth in the 60.

The next record to fall was the 440 yd. race that saw Marj Bousfield and Jan 'Hot' Pipe record personal bests and left Bousfield with the Queen's record in a 64.8 time. Lynn Andrews and Sue Plummer both smashed the one mile record and Anne Brown came close. Andrews time of 5:45 broke the old record by 31 seconds!

In the 4 x 220 yd relay the women's team reduced the record to 1:55.8. There were eight other teams at the meet but it was unlikely that many came away with as many school records as did the women's team. Overall the team came away with some excellent performances which will hold them in good stead at the University Championships this spring. Coach Sue Bolton encourages any others who wish to run for Queen's to come out to practice at the arena Monday to Friday from 4:30 until 6:00. (the mens team wouldn't mind seeing more females out as well).

High calibre meet against U.S. teams

In a meet that saw more than ten teams from northeastern state colleges, Queen's was the only Canadian team there. However, Queen's made its presence felt. Other than the fact that they bought over twenty monogrammed T-shirts, the mens team turned in performances that would have placed them in the top three in a Canadian meet.

Led by Vic 'Chocolate' Quik Goodings' second place placings in the 60 and 440 yd races the stage was set for some surprising performances by the other team members. Dave Bronsons 21'2.5" jump placed him fourth in a field of 18 other long jumpers. John Darlington picked up a personal best in the triple jump with a leap of 45'5".

In the mens shot 'Jolly' John Ongarato and Kevin Thompson placed seventh and ninth respectively. Mike Forsayeth placed fifth in the high jump with a 6' performance. The mens pole vault saw Gary Tetzlaff equal his old Queen's record and saw Don Kramer raise it a foot. Kramer picked up fourth place for his efforts. The Mens one mile and distance medley relay teams both finished fourth, as well as the two mile team. The two mile team was paced by rookie Paul Spences' 1:58 split, a respectable time for the first meet of the indoor season.

Tomorrow sees the Gaels back on Canadian Soil with a meet at York (York Invitational). Both the mens and womens team will be fielding a full contingent in preparation for the OUAAs in March.

Coach Rolf Lund was pleased with the teams performances this past weekend but expressed some dismay at learning that some members tried to redecorate the washroom on the bus. However he felt that action need not be taken at this time as the next meet in the states won't be for some weeks yet.

Here this Weekend

Friday: Basketball - York at Queen's (Bartlett gym - 8:15pm)
Saturday: Cross-Country Skiing - Queen's Invitational
Inter. Volleyball - McMaster at Queen's (Ross gym - 2pm)
OVAA Volleyball Invit. (mixed) - (all day in Bart. & Ross gyms)

Jan. 26
Brian Currie
and the Northern Vermont Rhythm Band

in concert at
Grant Hall 9:00 - 11:00 PM.
Tickets $2.00 Available
in John Orr Room
"A Loggins and Messina Sound"

Murphy's Sea Food Restaurant

Lobster Shrimp Oysters
Clam Chowder Fish and Chips

70 Brock St.
548-7753

SALE 20% OFF

EVERYTHING

DOMUS
BROCK ST. BETWEEN KING & WELLINGTON

SALE ENDS
TOMORROW

SPECTRUM
Lecture Series

Co-sponsored by ASU and Artsci 78

January 21

1. Dr. Crowder, Dept. of History
"Multum in Parvo" or "What you find at Queens"
2. Dr. Watts, Principal
"The University and Government Control"

January 28

1. Dr. Uffen, Dean of Applied Science
"The Education of the Professional"
2. Dr. Sinclair, Dean of Arts and Science
"The Education of the Person" or "We do not fill Slots"

February 4

1. Dr. Breslow, Dept. of Drama
"The Performing Arts in the University--Yes or No?"
2. Keith Norton, Alderman
"Queen's and Kingston"

February 11

1. Dr. Taylor, Dept. of Mathematics
"The Role of Research in the University"
  2. Dr. Franks, Dept. of Politics
"Student Activism in the University"
- 7:30 pm Ban Righ Common Room
Coffee and Donuts to follow

COME SKI THE MAJESTIC WEST

Banff

FROM TORONTO $168-RT

Prices quoted include:

- Accommodation standard @ 126 - based on double occupancy
- Motorcoach transportation from Calgary Airport to accommodation and return.
- Motorcoach transfers between accommodation and ski areas.
- Ski Lifts: TICKETS & night-7 day packages include ski lift tickets for 5 days. Ski lift tickets for Banff, Jasper and Lake Louise are interchangeable.

$294<sup>00</sup>

DAILEY'S TRAVEL 212 Princess St. 544-5755

GIANT SWEATER PURCHASE

1000's of men's sweaters from a top Canadian maker at savings up to

50% OFF

suggested retail price

Pullovers, cardigans, vests, ski sweaters, Turtlenecks, v-necks, Crewnecks
Bulky knits, plain knits, Fancy knits, Acrylics, wool blends, polyesters
A riot of colours sizes S - M - L - XL

suggested retail price 7.99 to 16.99

3<sup>99</sup> to 9<sup>99</sup>

BEN WICKS

Why don't we let the Arabs buy them, wait five years and then nationalize them?

Even Olympics suffer; deficits rise rapidly

MONTREAL — Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau has continued to insist that the Olympics will be self-financing, however he has projected that there will be a deficit of $200 to $300 million. The cost of the Olympic installations is expected to double from the initial estimates given in 1973. The major part of the cost increases is due to the construction of facilities.

The income has increased and will be between $25 million to $125 million more than originally planned, due to the success of the Olympic lottery and miscellaneous types of programs. The coin program however will be providing $75 million to $150 million less than the $250 million originally projected.

Roger Rousseau, Chairman of the organizing committee for the Olympics, in an attempt to deal with construction costs and delays, ordered a firm of consulting engineers and an architect to suggest an alternative stadium plan. They have put forth a proposal to move the Montreal Autostade and place it on top of the facilities constructed and if necessary covering it with a dome after expanding the capacity to 67,000 seats.

OTTAWA — New optimism has arisen that Canada will reach a nuclear agreement with India. Canada stopped nuclear-related shipments and non-food aid to India, amounting to $130 million, after India used plutonium from a Canadian-supplied reactor to conduct what it called a peaceful nuclear explosion last May.

The break in the long dispute springs from meetings Ivan Head, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's adviser on foreign affairs, held with Indian officials, including Indira Gandhi, two weeks ago. Head is reported to have brought back a proposal for consideration of the cabinet.

WASHINGTON — President Ford has refused to delay imposing tariffs on imported oil. Ford announced that he will sign a presidential proclamation to impose the tariffs on crude oil starting at $1 a barrel on Feb. 1, going to $2 a barrel March 1, and to $3 a barrel April 1. Ford stated at a news conference "I will not sit by and watch the nation continue to talk about an energy crisis and do nothing about it."

In defense of his proposal Ford stated that the revenues raised by the levies will be channeled back into the economy. He feels this move preferable to gasoline rationing which he denounced as inequitable, unfair, and a superficial answer to the energy shortages.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Dean, former White House counsel who was the star witness in the Watergate hearings, has signed a $300,000 book contract for his personal story, a publishing official said yesterday. Simon and Shuster Publishers' Vice President said he expects delivery of the manuscripts within 8 months and publication within 7 months from then. The book will be Dean's personal story of Watergate.

WASHINGTON — President Ford is considering the extension of his clemency program for Vietnam draft evaders and deserters. The program was scheduled to terminate January 31. To date it has not been very successful, only 221 of the thousands of evaders have returned to the United States to perform up to two years of alternative service.

Michigan Democrat Philip Hart in the senate and New York Democrat Bella Abzug in the House of Representatives are preparing to introduce legislation aimed at something approaching unconditional amnesty or

Mao more than ever

Another great leap forward

PEKING — The National People's Congress met secretly for five days last week in Peking's Great Hall of the People. It was the first time that the Congress had convened in a decade. At the meeting the Congress instituted a new state constitution and made several new appointments within the party.

The new constitution has eliminated the position of the head of state and has put the control of the military under the Chairman's jurisdiction, rather than under the President. The people of China were granted the right to strike, the freedom to believe or not to believe in religion, the right to vote and to hold office, freedom of the press and assembly and exemption from arrest "except by decision of a people's court or with the sanction of a public security organ. Women gained equal rights "in all respects". Other changes from the original constitution, adopted in 1954, allow the commune members to farm small plots for their personal needs.

Omitted from the new paper was the law's old freedom to choose or to change a place of residence and the right to engage in scientific research, literary and artistic creation and other cultural activities.

The men who were appointed to the high positions within the Congress are more than representative of the moderate faction of the party. The radical members were virtually excluded from any post. Chairman Mao Tse-tung was not present at the Congress meeting but his philosophy still governed the action taken. Mao has sanctioned that a policy of moderation must prevail amidst their Cultural Revolution.

ago came to an end this week. A series of explosions, apparently sanctioned by the IRA, signalled its end.

The latest bombings have destroyed the wide-spread optimism that a means had been found to extend the ceasefire. The Provisional IRA bitterly rejected the truce terms offered. This refusal exemplifies the unyielding redneck attitude taken by both sides in this conflict.

The Christmas truce came at a time when the British army had stormed the IRA in Northern Ireland. The only chance that the truce would have had for success involved substantial British concessions on withdrawals, which they would not consider.

The IRA's strategy for 1975 involves an intensified campaign of terror in Britain but not in Ulster.

PARIS (UPI) — The French government has put new anti-terrorist measures into effect at airports following the latest Arab guerrilla attack at the Orly airport. The Interior Minister Poniatowski said that the measures include orders to shoot anyone obviously making an attack, surprise searches of airport visitors, specially trained anti-guerrilla commands and x-ray searches of luggage.

JOLO, PHILIPPINES — Moslem rebels have burned the town of Taglibi, nine miles from the capital of the Sulu archipelago, leaving 4,000 residents homeless.

The 28 month old Moslem rebellion has spread to Moslem areas on the islands of Sulu and Mindanao. Peace talks between the Government and the rebels have started in Saudi Arabia.

KINGSTON — Exactly 100 years ago last Wednesday, the first great film director was born. David Wark (D.W.) Griffith was one of the pioneers of film making and first to explore its full potential. He introduced many of the now standard techniques (close-up, crosscut, fade in and fade out) and helped evolve cinema into art.

His films include Birth of a Nation, Broken Blossoms, and Abraham Lincoln.

Make GARBAGE DISPOSAL SERVICE

No, no, damn — just the eggs!

Queen's Journal

Volume 102, Number 33

Tuesday, Jan. 28, 1975

Day of starvation

Campus-wide diet to happen Thurs

by Ian Jarvis

A bowl of rice and a glass of milk are to be the order of the day this Thursday for what has been named "Operation Starvation Diet."

The idea behind the operation sprang from the publicity from the recent World Food Conference and the role Canada played.

Initiator, Lyn Whitham, (AMS External Affairs Commissioner) hopes the operation will serve a dual purpose. She sees it as communicating the plight of Third World nations to Queen's students as well as attempting to involve more people to alleviate the problem. Beaver Foods and Brookside Dairies have already offered to donate the rice and milk used. The 60¢ cost for the meal will go directly to Oxfam.

John Gray, (V.P. University Affairs) stressed that "the whole isn't to annoy people but rather to emphasize how fortunate we are in comparison to others."

In December the Institute of Commonwealth and Comparative Studies at Queen's organized an appeal amongst all the faculty members. They succeeded in raising $1,000 which has been sent to OXFAM as a contribution to their famine relief fund.

Operation Starvation Diet will involve Upper and Lower Ban Righ, the coffee shop between 11:30 and 2:00, Elrond cafeteria and the West Campus dining room. All other eating spots will operate as usual.

To draw attention to the operation leaders of the AMS and most of Outer Council will be gathering at 12:00 in front of the

Continued on Page 3

More scholars for the dollars

May take a century to replace equipment

by Barb Nyland

"At current prices, with our 1974-75 budget, new equipment could only be replaced every 50 to 100 years," stated Dr. H.M. Love, Associate Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Science. When many of the instruments only have a projected lifetime of 10 to 20 years, this puts science departments in a very precarious position.

Cutbacks in the science departments up to now have mainly been in the non-academic areas. "The last thing to go are services to the student," said Dr. G.T. Ewan head of the Physics Department. "But we have made all the cutbacks over the last 5 years which we can without affecting the students." Unless there is a reversal in the financial situation a decrease in the quality of science education is inevitable.

Classes are already increasing in size. Richard Pidutti, a fourth year life science student assessed the changes he has seen in the last four years: "Labs are now becoming more of a demonstration than an experiment; there just aren't enough demonstrators. With increased class sizes, fewer demonstrators and television lectures in the first and second years the students just can't get as enthusiastic and interested."

To have maintained the undergraduate student to professor ratio in the last three years it would have been necessary to add 33 new faculty members to those departments offering BSc programs. The teaching staff was increased by 22.

In most departments the number of technicians has declined. "Each student has less individual attention from professors. Because of a greater variation in background preparation of high school graduates in science individual attention is more necessary."

said Dr. Love, although he optimistically feels that this is offset by a higher average ability of students coming into BSc

Continued on Page 3

Food service boycott planned for 'fasting day'

Students will be strongly urged to eat rice and milk during the day of fasting, Jan. 30, or else possibly endure the repercussions of crossing a picket line. A boycott of Leonard cafeteria, Wallace Hall and the Union Coffee Shop is being planned by the AMS in order that the only food available on campus be the 'starvation food'.

In this way, the AMS hopes to instigate a campus wide effort. Because of the gross number of complaints received by the Inter-Residence Council (IRC) regarding the fasting plan, it was decided that an alternate food service be provided for those who were opposed to participating. But in an attempt to emphasize the importance of the operation the AMS felt that a counter action was in order.

Marv Bloos, the initiator of the boycott stressed that the action was not meant to be a negative one against IRC but rather a positive reinforcement of the spirit behind the operation.

"I don't think anyone's going to like it", Bloos commented. "They probably have to fill up on chocolate bars, but it should make them realize the position of so much of the world population."

He regretted the negative overtones which are so often attached to boycott and implored people to support the action in the positive manner in which it was intended.

John Bottomley

No longer will students be able to participate in experiments to the extent they are used to. With the decreasing amount of equipment available in the labs, students will soon become mere observers.

back page

wat's hapnin'?

Pubs and Theatres

Frontenac - Finnegan's - Henry Hughes
Frontenac - Muldoon's - The Cobblers Awt
1st Inn - Body and Soul
Commodore - Modspop

Capitol I + Godfather II
Capitol II + Towering Inferno
Hyland - Law and Disorder
Odcom - Juganaut

Upcoming Events

Friday January 31 - Stephen Lewis, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party will be on campus. He will speak with students informally in Room 517 John Watson Hall at 11:00 am, luncheon in Leonard Hall at 12:30 pm, and give a lecture on Resource Allocation in Dupuis all at 2:30pm.

Friday, Jan. 31 and Saturday Feb. 1 - The McArthur Theatre Arts students under the auspices of the Education '75 Drama Trust Fund and A.M.S. will present a combined performance of Harold Pinter's The Room and Arthur Kopit's Chamber Music. Working from the theme of confinement, performances of the two one-act plays will be separated by experimental anthologies designed to reinforce the underlying dramatic theme. To be held in the McArthur Theatre, tickets are: Students $1.00, The public $1.50. Tickets are available at McArthur Theatre Box Office and at Agnes Etherington.

Friday Jan. 31 & Saturday Feb. 1 - The Department of Film Studies presents a Sergio Leone Film Festival. Friday at 8:00 p.m. The Good, The Bad, and The Ugly. Saturday at 3:00 pm Duck You Sucker, and at 8:00 pm Once Upon A Time in the West. All these screenings are in Ellis Auditorium and admission to each film is $1.00.

Friday, January 31 - 8:00 p.m. in Stirling B - Robin Mathews, an English Professor at Carleton University and co-editor of "The Struggle for Canadian Universities", will give a lecture on the topic "Canadian Identity and Canadian Future Coffee and doughnuts will be served and admission is free.

Saturday, February 1 - 10:00 am in the Grad Lounge of Humphrey Hall - A Clinical Psychology Debate will be held featuring 4 Psychology professors discussing opportunities in their fields of study.

Saturday, February 1 - 8:00 p.m. in the Bitter Grounds Coffee House and Good Times Emporium - Michael Myers. Tickets are available Thursday and Friday, 10:30 am-4:30 p.m. in the John Orr Room and at the Door. Admission is $1.50.

Monday, February 3 - 8:00 p.m. - Rape Symposium in Lower Vic.

Tuesday, February 4 - Principal Watts will speak to support staff on the financial constraints affecting the university. He will be prepared to answer any questions. In Dunning Hall at 12:15 p.m.

Wednesday, February 26 - 8:00 p.m. - He's Coming Again! - A dramatic film of what could happen when Christ returns. In Dunning Hall and admission $1.00.

Phys. Ed. Centre

The Arena at Queen's will be closed on January 29 from 8:30 - 9:20 p.m. and on January 30 - February 5.

Tuesday, January 28

7:00 p.m. - Seminar on careers in the teaching profession in the McLaughlin Room, Student's Union.

7:30 p.m. - Spectrum in the Ban High Common Room. Guest Speakers: Dr. Uffen - "The Education of the Professional" and Dr. Sinclair - "The Education of the Person".

7:30 p.m. - AMS Concerts presents The Moe Koffman Quintet and David Bradstreet in Grant Hall. Tickets are available in the John Orr Room: $3.00 student advance, $4.00 regular. Two shows 7:30 and 10:00 p.m.

7:30 p.m. - An important meeting of the Queen's P.C. Association will be held in MacIntosh Corry 9204 for the election of delegates to OPCA Convention and election of the treasurer. Mike Forestall M.P. as guest speaker. All welcome.

7:30 p.m. - Queen's Bridge Club Meeting in Upper Meeting Room International Centre (Tonight Only). Phone Pieter Gerkens at 544-7509 for information.

9:00 p.m. - McCabe and Mrs. Miller in Ellis Auditorium and admission is $1.00.

Wednesday, January 29

6:30 p.m. - West Campus, (McArthur) Recreational Badminton every Wednesday and Thursday.

7:00 p.m. - 8:00 p.m. - Free esperanto classes in Room 202 Kingston Hall.

7:15 p.m. - The AMS Education Commission, in conjunction with the IRC. Is sponsoring The Last Lecture Series which was instituted last year - will run Wednesday nights in McNeil House Common Room. Tonight Dr. E. Andrews, formerly of the Theology Department will speak.

7:30 p.m. - Queen's Debating Union General Meeting and Impromptu debate with special guest judge. Practice makes perfect. Upper Conference Room in the International Centre. All welcome.

8:00 p.m. - Queen's Hockey Gaels vs. RMC at Queen's.

8:00 p.m. - Arnold Edinborough, Executive Director, Canadian Business Council for the Arts topic "Canadian Cultural Explosion". Coffee and doughnuts.

8:00 p.m. - Queen's Music Department will present Contemporary Sounds including new student compositions. In Harrison-Le Caine Hall, Room 120. Admission is free.

8:00 p.m. - In Stirling D. John Saul, of the Toronto Committee for the Liberation of the Portuguese African Colonies, will speak on Struggles in Portuguese Africa. A short movie "A Nation is Born" concerning independence in Guinea Bissau, will also be shown. Everyone welcome.

8:15 p.m. - Queen's Basketball Team vs. RMC at Queen's.

Thursday, January 30

4:00 p.m. - Mr. S. Jarislowsky, an Investment Consultant, will be present to speak on the performance of the Queen's Pension Plan, and will answer questions.

7:00 p.m. & 9:30 p.m. - Campus Movies will present The Bank Dick with W.C. Fields plus part 3 of the Indians. In Dunning Hall and admission is $1.00 per person.

7:00 p.m. - Seminar on careers in social work. In the Upper Meeting Room, International Centre.

8:00 p.m. - The Program of Latin American Studies and the Board of Management of La Casa will present "Venezuela" with H.E. Ruben Carpio Castillo, Ambassador of Venezuela to Canada. Place: La Casa 90 Queen's Crescent.

Also are at 4:00 p.m. - Display of photographs Also are at 5:00 p.m. - Reception for the Ambassador.

Also are at 7:00 p.m. - Films

Agnes Etherington Art Centre

Tuesday, January 28 - 8:00 p.m. - William Hogarth and the Party of Humanity: Free Public Illustrated Lecture by Professor Burke. In Stirling D.

Wednesday, January 29 - 7:30 p.m. - A visit by Stan Brakhage, American Experimental Film artist: Screenings and discussion in Ellis Hall. Admission is free.

Thursday, January 30 - 7:30 p.m. - Prints and People Series VII: Peter Johnston in the Art Centre. Screen Printing Demonstration.

A WINNER!
4 CANADIAN FILM AWARDS

Genevieve Bujold

SPECIAL JURY PRIZE
ALL ROUND EXCELLENCE

BEST ACTRESS
GENEVIEVE BUJOLD

BEST SUPPORTING ACTRESS
CAROLLE BERNARD

BEST ART DIRECTION

KAMOURASKA

Every nation has a love story that becomes a Classic!

PLACE: K.C.V.I. Auditorium
DATE: January 31, 1975
TIME: 8 O'clock
TICKETS: ALUMNI OFFICE, QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY
NAPIER'S CAMERAS LTO. SHOPPING CENTRE.
MAHOOO'S DRUG STORES, 156 PRINCESS ST

Available February 1
2 bedroom bungalow
near Victoria Park
$200/month (includes heat)
2 students with references
call Davey Real Estate
546-2256

AMS nominations

Nominations for the positions of AMS President and Vice-Presidents must be submitted (accompanied by 250 signatures) by 5:00 pm.

FRIDAY,
JANUARY 31, 1975

to the AMS office

note: 250 signatures is the correct figure!

A-MESS

A capsulized account of the sincerity, power-play and blunder which characterize AMS meetings - those smoky sessions which drag long into the night every second Thursday. An opportunity to check on your elected representatives - to determine whether they are acting for or against your interests. Feedback on A-MESS will be appreciated by the JOURNAL. This meeting began at 7:30 pm last Thursday, Jan. 23, and finally ended at 12:25 the following morning.

On behalf of students at Queen's, AMS Outer Council decided Thursday to "oppose any increases in tuition fees, and recommend that there be significant improvements in student support levels, and reaffirm its support for policies of the Ontario Federation of Students for the eventual elimination of tuition fees and the institution of a living stipend."

Outer and Inner Council members now have to obtain "a note from mother" before they are allowed to speak with "government officials, business representatives, or officials of Queen's University or sister universities." In proposing that members must report both before and after meetings with these important people, Grad rep. Dana Johnson was trying to rule out further fiascos such as the scene at Council's latest meeting when AMS Pres. Tony Wolman was accused by ASUS Pres. Sue Harper of making "irresponsible and unrepresentative remarks" to government officials.

The issue of whether to raise honoraria paid to students working for the AMS will be put to referendum on Feb. 12 and 13. This question was stopped from going to referendum in the fall because the petition necessary to put a question to referendum was not constitutionally legal. Even on Thursday some of those present at the Council meeting urged that the petition be turned down because of faulty wording: use of the word "volunteer" on the referendum was opposed by AMS Vice-Pres. Peter Druexman who claimed that no-one working for the AMS is a volunteer - they are officers, or hold a particular position, he said. Druexman remarked that the word "volunteer" had been put in the referendum by its originators "in spite and humour". Junior Law rep. Ian Nordheimer (who is also Speaker) had the last word in the debate when he asserted that it was Council's responsibility to put the issue to the students in a referendum; if members believe that officers of the AMS deserve more money, he said then they should be able to prove that to the students.

Also referred to referendum was a raise in the student levy for the Queen's Journal. Business Manager of the Journal, Terry Collins, explained to Council that the Journal's ad rates are comparable to the Whig-Standard's and cannot be raised any higher, so that if the paper is to maintain its constitutional limit of only 40 percent or less ad content, then the student levy must go up, or the paper will go under.

Rice and Milk only

Starvation diet luncheon

Continued from Page 1

Union with any other willing participants and from there will be marching down to Ban High for lunch.

The noon meal will be the most visible evidence of the operation for most of us, but for those interested, the day will start off with Floyd Patterson's Open Line show on CKWS. Patterson's guest will be Globe and Mail writer James Rusk, who was present at the food conference in Rome. That's at 9:00 am.

In the evening, a collection of four men, all very involved with the food problem, will lecture between 7:00 and 11:00 in Dupuis Auditorium. The speakers will include Dr. Frank Philbrook M.P. talking about Canada's Foreign aid Policy. Tony Campbell a member of the Food Prices Review board, speaking on "Excess Food in Canada." Henry Pauls, director of Market development for the Ontario Government and Bob Van der Wijst, an Oxford fieldworker, talking on "Oxford's role and Canada's responsibility."

Finally, to bring the whole operation to a close, NDP leader Stephen Lewis will speak Friday afternoon at 2:30 on "Ontario's responsibility to Foreign Aid."

"The operation is not meant to be directed at any particular portion of the university" says Gray. "We are encouraging the entire Queen's community, faculty as well as students to get involved."

Fourth in a series

More scholars for the dollars

Continued from Page 1

There is already a decrease in the amount of building maintenance and repair which is done and further cutbacks in this area may force the departments to close their libraries on the weekends. On the present budget it is impossible to take into consideration that buildings are depreciating and becoming too small. The Chemistry building has not sufficient lecture space and is required to hold many of its first year classes in other buildings. Thus the equipment for demonstrations is just not available.

With insufficient library funds all the departments in the university are suffering. The Chemistry department was forced to cancel 21 journals and serials. Admittedly this did involve some fat cutting when

The prices of common scientific materials has been increasing in the past two years at a rate greater than that of inflation. The price of some chemicals (eg. acetone) has tripled, nuts and bolts used to make physics equipment now cost 60 per cent more than they did two years ago and the price of basic growing mediums used by biologists to culture bacteria has quadrupled.

subscriptions were held both by Physics and Chemistry. Decreases in library acquisitions mean that both professors and students will be less able to keep up to date on the newest advances in their field.

A new experiment and project course to be offered to fourth year biology students next year will have its content limited because of budget restraints according to Dr. Wyatt head of Biology. It is impossible to purchase equipment for certain projects which they had hoped to use. A number of experiments in the second year course in genetics have been changed this year so that less materials would be used.

Scheme for Vic Hall

Plan for French floors now being reconsidered

by Nancy Flood

The concept of French floors for Women's residence remains an unsettled question. From its inception in the executive committee of the University Council in the fall of 1973, to its most recent consideration at the January 25 meeting of the Ban High Board, the plan has passed through everything from high praise to fire and brimstone.

The foreign language floor idea has had an interesting history dating back to late 1973. Dean of Women, Evelyn Reid, has been the champion of the plan, recognizing its potential worth as an educational experience in bilingualism and biculturalism.

Others have been less than enthusiastic about the concept

however. In October 1974, Reid submitted to the Women's Residence Council an outline of the idea, along with a questionnaire on the subject she planned to present to all women in residence. Even at this early stage, the WRC unanimously rejected the idea. The questionnaire went out however and in late October residents of Victoria Hall, Chown, and Adelaide-Ban High replied to this question: "Consideration is being given to setting aside sections of floors in residence for students who have some background in either French or German and who have an interest in maintaining and improving their skills in the spoken language. If such floors had been available this year would you have applied to live on these floors?" 295 affirmative replies were received and in light of the fact that this number amounted to several times more people than could ever be accommodated on any such proposed floors, plans went ahead.

The idea has been discussed at every WRC meeting since then and the council has, in general, expressed a negative opinion of it.

The major complaint with the plan lies in the financial strain many see it placing on an already overloaded system. The idea calls for 2 new Dons in residence together costing $2,700 (this year's figures) as well as miscellaneous clerical expenditures tentatively coming to $5,000. Included in Reid's projected plan was provision for a coordinator, to publicize the idea, bring the various aspects of it together and gain support for it. Reid spoke of understaffing in her office and of the impossibility of saddling Dons with more responsibility than they already have, as justifications for the creation of such a post. Yet, such a person would have to be paid a salary of at least $10,000 bringing the total projected cost of the plan to $17,700. The residence budget for the 75-76 year included a provision of $9,500 for the project leaving the rest to come from outside sources, particularly government funding.

On January 6, the WRC showed their dislike of the plan, 12 members of the 15 member board voting in favour of a motion to the effect that, "The WRC does not support the idea of French floors of the coordinator." On January 20, they reiterated their position, 7 being totally against the idea of French Floors (voting in favour of a motion expressing such a feeling) and 7 being in favour of the idea in principle but against the presently proposed method of implementation.

Throughout this however, plans were going ahead for the project, little attention being paid to the growing concern felt by many women in residence that they were not being told what was going on and that their complaints were being ignored. Reid speaks of an information bias being a prime cause of this.

Continued on Page 5

Hand in those damn housing
questionnaires!

Londry's Drugs

Special Student rates

464-471 Princess St.

Delivery Available

546-3696

Open 7 am to 11 pm daily

STUDENT HEALTH SERVICE

MEDICAL CLINIC - 547-6106 24 hours daily
(Answering service contacts a duty physician when the Health Service is closed.)

CLINIC HOURS - 9:00 am - 11:30 am
1:00 pm - 4:00 pm
Monday to Friday inclusive

PSYCHIATRY & COUNSELLING - By appointment
9:00 am - 5:00 pm phone 547-2889 or come to Health Service to make an appointment.

A.M.S. PAGE

WHAT WOULD YOU
SAY?

IF IT WERE YOUR LAST OPPORTUNITY TO ADDRESS MANKIND
WHAT WOULD YOU SAY?

"THE LAST LECTURE SERIES"

is a series of informal evenings combining listening and discussion

Tues. Jan. 29

Dr. E. Andrews

Formerly of Theology

TOPIC: You And Your World

Everyone Welcome

TIME: 7:15 p.m. - McNEIL COMMON HOUSE
CO-SPONSORED BY AMS ED. COMM. AND I.R.C.

Interested in the Club of Rome?

S.A.F.E. is a student club linked with the Club of Rome. We are having an open meeting on Wed., January 29th at 8:30 p.m. in the Second Floor Common Room of the Union.

A.M.S. Bus Service Save$

TORONTO: $6 one way $10 return

Depart Kingston: Friday 4:30 (Students' Union)
Arrive Toronto: 7:30 (Union Station)
Depart Toronto: Sunday 8:30 (Union Station)
Arrive Kingston: 11:30 (Students' Union)

OTTAWA: $5 one way $8 return

Depart Kingston: Friday 4:30 (Students' Union)
Arrive Ottawa: 7:00 (Westgate Mall)
Depart Ottawa: Sunday 8:30 (Westgate Mall)
Arrive Kingston: 11:00 (Students' Union)

TICKETS:

MEAL LINES - Wednesday and Thursday
JOHN ORR ROOM - Wed. Thurs. 11:00 - 1:00
Friday 10:00 - 2:30

APPLICATIONS FOR JOB BANK DIRECTORS and/or Co-DIRECTORS WILL BE ACCEPTED UNTIL FEB. 7

Applicants are reminded this is a full time summer job which will also include spring and fall duties. Any interested Queen's student is eligible. Applications should be addressed to the A.M.S. office and should include a resume and some of the applicants' plans for JOB BANK.
For further information call Donna Hackett 549-0190.
Selected applicants will be interviewed at a future date.

Dean of Women's Office and the Women's Legal Caucus present:

A Symposium on Rape MONDAY, FEB. 3 8:30 p.m. LOWER VIC COMMON ROOM

Ponellists include:

Det.-Sergeant Michael Breen of
Kingston Police Force

Mr. J. Bett Assistant Crown
Attorney, Kingston.

Dr. H. Gorwill, Obstetrics and Gynecology, KGH

Ms. Debra Lewis, Toronto Rape
Crisis Centre.

AMS and WRC Present: INFORMATION NIGHT Re: Housing

Members from Elrond College Inc.,
Science 44 Co-op,
Housing Committee, and Legal Aid will be available Thurs. Jan. 30, from 7-9 PM in Lower Vic Common Room, to talk about housing, and where to find it in 1975.

"ESSAY CONTEST"

First Prize: $15.00 cash

Topic: How do we justify
a University education
both to ourselves and
the University?

Judges: Principal Watts
Dr. Deutsch
AMS President Tony Wolman

Submissions will be received
c/o Education Commission, AMS
Office, until 5:30 PM, Feb. 7, 1975

PUC, AMS end talks: Bus-It to cost $4.50

by Larry Woods
Plans for next year's Bus-It service have now been finalized by the A.M.S. Outer Council and the Kingston Public Utilities Commission (PUC). The proposal will be the subject of a campus-wide referendum
February 12 and 13.

Under the proposed scheme,
students will be allowed to ride

Kingston's buses from 6 a.m. to 11 p.m. Monday to Saturday, upon presentation of a Queen's student card. There will also be a special charter service included in the package, which will shuttle students to and from West Campus between 11 p.m. and 1 a.m. Buses on this route will travel via Victoria Hall and the library and will run approximately every 12 minutes.

This added service will enable students in residence on main campus to return home from late nights events at West Campus and will also accommodate those returning home to West Campus from late night studying at the library.

The PUC will receive a total of $7.50 per student, $4.50 to be paid by the students as part of the AMS fees, and the other 40 per cent to be paid for by the University. Next year's service will cost each student $1.50 more than this year but this includes the late night shuttle and also an extension of the period of service from 6 months to the entire school year.

McArthur College has agreed to contribute $500 extra to the cost of Bus-It, and the students at West Campus are voting on a referendum this week to decide whether to contribute another
$1,000 to Bus-It.

AMS President Tony Wolman
points out that the Bus-It system will help to ease the housing squeeze next year as it will allow people to live away from campus.
Council encourages all students to vote in the referendum on February 12 and 13.

Response mixed

French floors plan

Continued from Page 3

discontent - opponents of the idea being vociferous and supporters keeping quiet. She suggests that the WRC itself may have had something to do with the problem, encouraging negative feedback by being openly negative themselves. Ferelyth
Bruce Lockhart, chairman of the WRC, concedes that this may be true in part, but she declines acceptance of the entire blame citing the lack of information provided to women about the project and the subsequent ignoring of student opinion by the administration as important contributors to the ill feeling.

Members of the WRC have been against the plan for various reasons. One of the most important has been their feeling that it is not fair that all those in residence should have to pay for that which benefits only a few.
The cost of the project is expected to be borne by the approximately 3,000 men and women students in residence, and this the council feels is not strictly fair. In addition, the recent resignation of Eleanor Beech, assistant to the Dean of Women, claimed to be because of pressures caused by understaffing confounded the issue as far as the WRC was concerned.
Bruce Lockhart suggests that it was felt that the $10,000 set aside for the coordinator could be better spent on the salary of a general staffer for the Dean's office.

The last action taken on the plan transpired at Saturday's meeting of the Ban Righ Board.
Bruce Lockhart's objections to the plan on financial grounds were supplemented by Linda Laseur's (Victoria Hall A Block Chairman) comments. She stressed the prevalent concern over the potential for segregation problems and the general feeling that the idea as it stood was too grandiose for any chance of success and too structured to be easily accepted. She reiterated the complaints of many that student opinions had been ignored during the planning process and that the administration's actions in this regard were putting a damper on the validity of representative government in residence. In response to prolonged discussion, the Ban Righ Board voted unanimously to: a) "Stand by the principal of establishing the French floors project" and b) Refer the matter back to the Dean of Women's office for consideration by Reid and Dean
Sinclair of the faculty of Arts and Science. It is hoped that they will be able to modify the project so that it will involve a minimum of structure and expense.

So there it sits, "referred back" as are so many proposals and plans. Part of the reason for discontent on both sides of the question lay in the fact that those most concerned with the issue - the students - were not being told enough or were not saying enough (for or against) the issue.
The idea is once again in the formulation stages. Anyone have anything to say?

Notice to all 4th year students

PLEASE HELP IMPROVE THE HOUSING SITUATION
Fill out and Return the Housing Questionnaire as soon as possible by folding the Form with the Housing Office Address on the outside and dropping it into

1. Campus Mail
2. any Department Office
3. the A.M.S. Office
4. the John Orr Room
5. or the Housing Office
(25 Union St.)

The Wallace Hall Pub
resounded with gaiety and good times on Friday night, the second night after its opening. "The place was packed Friday night", according to Pub manager, Brian
Stirling.

Wallace Hall was originally scheduled to open earlier than Thursday, but because of a number of technical stumbling blocks, was delayed.

Stirling cited a number of people problems that he has already encountered. He mentioned that Wallace Hall, because of its Medieval quality cannot be attended with the same rowdy attitude of most pub goers and urges students to keep this in mind when pubbing there.

It has already been suggested that the waiters and waitresses dress in the appropriate period costume to retain the atmosphere to a greater extent.

Stirling made remarks with regards to the marijuana smoking that he has been noticing and stressed that it will no longer be tolerated. Instead of asking people to refrain, he intends to throw the offenders off the premises.

ASUS

Nominations are open for the following positions:

President and Vice President
of ASUS (slate)

Treasurer of ASUS

Secretary of ASUS

6 one-year ASUS representatives
to the AMS

1 two-year ASUS representative
to the AMS

1 one-year Senator

1 two-year Senator

All nominations should include 25 signatures of members of ASUS, position nominated for and the name and telephone number of the nominee.

All nominations must be submitted to the ASUS Box in the AMS office
by February 4 at 4:00 pm

ASUS

Notice of election for:

President and Vice-President
of ASUS (slate)

Treasurer of ASUS

Secretary of ASUS

6 one-year Representatives
to the AMS

1 two-year Representative
to the AMS

1 one-year Senator

1 two-year Senator

Advance Poll

Tuesday February 11

Student Union 11 am - 4:00 pm

Election Day

Thursday February 13,

MacIntosh-Corry Hall

10:30am - 3:30pm

at all AMS Poll Stations

classifieds

Housingwise

REWARD if you find a suitable 3 or 4 bedroom house for next year. Call Doug 546-7018 or Martin 549-0438.

FOUR MINING engineers have just signed the lease on a luxurious 8 man house on Johnson St. and wish to live co-ed. If interested call Steve 544-4215 or Dave 544-5279.

HOUSES AVAILABLE: houses and apartments from one to eight bedrooms will be available to students through the AMS Housing letter on Wed. Feb. 26. Watch future Journals for details.

SEE LAURIE, under Don loves you and always puts your classifieds in. If you would just come (?) home at night we'd love you more.

REWARD for anyone who can find us a 3-4 man house or apt. for next year. Phone Mark 544-7154 or Bruce 544-7483.

TO SUBLET: 4 bedroom apt. with kitchen, 5 minutes from campus. Rent negotiable. If interested call 544-5358 after 6:00 pm.

DESPERATELY NEEDED: three or four bedroom apt. or house close to campus. Reward offered. Call 544-7154, 544-7180 or 544-0785.

WANTED: 2 or 3 bedroom apartment or house, close to campus for 1975-76. Will take over May or Sept. Phone Brian 544-7572 or Gary 544-7574.

ONE BEDROOM apt. to sublet. Available May 1st, in Married Students Complex 542-8115 after 5 pm.

LARGEST ELDRON apartment, six rooms, to sublet May to Aug inclusive. 2 spacious bedrooms, balcony, sauna, underground parking, fully furnished, carpeted, dishwasher, telephone, rent negotiable. Call 544-2029.

WE NEED YOUR 2 bedroom apt. for next year $30 reward. Call Dan at 544-7884, Doug or Bill at 544-7204.

WANTED: 1 or 2 bedroom apartment for 1975-6. Must allow pets. Call Mary at 544-3046 or Mark at 544-9036 after 6 pm.

WANTED: 2 bedroom apt. for May or Sept. Please help! Phone: Gwen 542-3022 or Marilyn 544-8035.

WE WANT YOUR 3 bedroom apt. or house very close to campus. $30 reward if pets are allowed. Will take over lease in April or Sept. Please call 542-3867.

WANTED: 1 or 2 responsible girls to share well kept fully furnished apt. with 3rd girl, May to Sept. (or any part thereof). Location: 10 min. walk from campus on Princess. Rates: very negotiable. Call 549-3576 anytime.

$100 REWARD for your two bedroom house or apt. close to campus. Call Paul, Ken at 542-3797.

ROOM MATE NEEDED to share large two bedroom on campus on or after 25 January 1975. Preferably Graduate Student. Call Michael J. Carney at 542-4403 or see him in Watson 105.

NEED A NEW ROOM and new roommates until the end of the year? One furnished bedroom is available in a "4-woman" house at Division and Earl. Please contact Sue, Shelagh or Jan at 549-4108.

HEY? TIRED OF REZ or your roommate? Live cooperatively in Elrond College. Hall a double room open until Feb. 2 only so hurry. Come with roommate supplied. Its cheaper than residence and its co-ed. Call 548-7439 or come to Elrond House 916.

FOUR DEBONAIRE GENTLEMEN are interested in acquiring your apartment if it has rooms for 4 or 5. We will negotiate a reward of up to $5 million dollars. Phone 544-7739; 381 37.

LARGE LUXURIOUS 3-bedroom apartment available to rent May 1. Close to campus and downtown. $300 per month. Phone 544-0886.

ONE BEDROOM Apartment to sublet. Available. Married Students Complex 542-8115 after 5 pm.

REWARD $80 for a house near campus, 4-5 rooms. Call Ron-Steve 544-7169 or Dave 544-7157.

$45 REWARD if you find a house or apartment, preferably 3 man but will consider 4 man. Will take over in May 1975. Phone after 6:00 p.m. Dave 544-7087 or 544-7561 or Rob 544-7561.

CAMPUS IS NOT OUR BAG! We will give you $80 if we take your 5 man house. It only takes a minute to phone 544-7411 or 544-7427.

REWARD!!! $500 offered if you find us a six person house for next year. Please call 544-8704 or 544-8801.

SUMMER SUBLET: rooms available for summer in a very nice large house, 1 1/2 blocks from campus. For information call 549-4825.

APARTMENTS AVAILABLE FOR NEXT YEAR. MARRIED STUDENTS ONLY. Division at Colborne - 10 minute walk from campus. Two and three bedrooms available. Please phone Mrs. Vadda at 546-5173 for further information.

MAN APT. house wanted for Sept. 75. Will consider taking over in May. Please contact Janice at 544-8228.

Can YOU HELP? We need an apartment in May: 1-bedroom and very close to campus. Please call 544-8894.

HOUSE: Very pleasant house to sublet. May to September: ideal quiet location 4-5 bedrooms 542-4327.

TWO BEDROOM APT. to sublet March to September, option of renewing lease. Large apt. free drapes, and carpeting, parking, bus at door, playground and nursery school in premises, laundry, negotiable rent. Phone 546-4375.

Otherwise

GAEL GROUP 48 finally - by popular demand - a reunion Thursday night in the pub (Wallace Hall) be there early or you won't get in. See you THE ILLUSTRIOUS GENTLEMEN of 14th Brockington and the wild party goes announce invitations to ALL THE WOMEN IN THE WORLD to a party on FRIDAY 31 JANUARY in the Brockington Common Room. We'll pick up the tab for the booze and live entertainment.

SC '75 PRESENTS Rock 'n' Rollin' Thurs. Jan 20 at 8:30 pm featuring the group 'LOG' Admission 50c - Refreshments 5-52. If you liked 'Surfs Up' and 'Rock On' don't miss 'Rock 'n' Rollin'.

S.A.F.E. students association for the environment is having an open meeting Wednesday January 29 at 8:30 in the Union's second floor common room. Our purpose is to act as a catalytic factor in order to stimulate the knowledge that youth can effect positive humanistic values on a global scale. You can help, come out and find out how.

INTERESTED IN THE CLUB OF

ROME? Come to the first open meeting of SAFE on Wed. Jan. 29 in the Union's 2nd floor common room. Among other things SAFE would like to prepare detailed research papers concerning various world problems. If the idea of purposeful research appeals to you, you're sure to make the meeting or contact SAFE through the AMS office.

DEAR FRED, D.T. and Tanner. Thanks for showing up. Good times were had by our hall. It took us a bottle of wine to get the courage. What did take you? Love

Susie O's.

DID YOU BLEED YET? Queen's annual winter Blood Drive is now in progress. Go to Victoria Hall on Tues., Wed., or Thurs., from 11-2 or 5-8 and bring friends. More beds this time. No waiting. Refreshments.

letters to the editor

Boycott Leonard

Dear Editor,

I am concerned that students in residence are not being encouraged to take this Thursday's 'Operation Starvation Diet' seriously. My concern is justified somewhat by the recent IRC decision to serve regular meals in the larger Leonard Hall dining room, and milk and rice in the smaller Ban Rich dining room.

There is often very little that we students can do to help others, but there is no reason why we should refuse to help when the opportunity presents itself.

All the proceeds from this day will be given to Oxfam, and of course the size of our donation will be directly proportional to the amount of participation by Queen's men and women. I would like to urge that all persons in residence give some consideration to the purpose of this day, and if they agree that it is a worthy cause as well as a tangible effort to help others, that they 'boycott' Leonard for the day and eat their meals in Ban Rich.

If everyone participates there probably will be inconvenience and crowding, but hopefully students will bear with the problems in order to make the day a success.

Yours sincerely,
Marvin R. Bloos
Don, Leonard Hall

Calm before storm

Dear Editor,

Last weekend as I compiled the results of a recent D.S.C. course evaluation, one sanction of comments stuck in my mind. These were those of complaint, but their relevance at this point in time reflect upon problems, much greater than those of a single course. Namely, those problems incurred by improper financial support of Universities by the present government.

My major concern lies in the fact that no longer is the idea of decreasing staff, and increasing student instructor ratio a threat. It is a fact.

I wonder how many students recall that the University will no longer grant tenure, thus leaving the option to remove professors from staff when deemed necessary (e.g., Dr. Culver). Also how many are aware that in Biology, that the new microscopes provided do not have phase contrast, thus decreasing some of the clarity obtained normally under high magnification. As in the last instance this is not due to the disregard of instructors for the quality of our education, but the requirement to provide as effective as possible an education with the moneys provided.

Along with these, is the consideration of alternative method of instruction which would be implemented within the budget. Just think campus wide television lectures, or live lectures with four or five hundred students. As far as this may seem from us, it is a probable consideration for the Administration of the University.

Another problem facing us is that of support for both graduate work, and also summer employment. At the moment not only is less money being allotted for equipment used during these important years of education, there is less money provided in grants and scholarships, which are of great importance to most who reach this level of academic study.

Another drawback is that the government no longer provides grants for the employment of summer students as such. Thus to be in a position to provide a salary for a student, a Department must either have a surplus of some sort or another, or have a project underway in which they can justify the employment of extra staff. But at a time when full time vacancies are not being filled with new staff, jobs are a matter of chance or luck.

In closing I might add that what is occurring now is only the calm before the storm. No longer is there the option to decrease expenditures on maintenance, to live within the budget, and no longer can we hope for the future to provide some miracle to alleviate our financial troubles. The future holds for us little more than gloom: larger classes, less diversity, less student staff relationship.

Think about it and do something, because if we don't more threats than these will become fact.
Keith Crawford

Co-ed rip-off

Dear Editor,

I am greatly concerned about the discriminatory fee policy that the Residence Board continues to impose on Morris Hall residents. A great deal of inequality exists and I would like to point out where these discrepancies lie.

When Morris first went Co-ed, it was decided that there would be no difference in the fees paid by Morris residents, but there would be less of the services provided. Specifically, the men would get one day bedmaking per week as opposed to five days bedmaking in the other male residences. The women of Morris Hall would give up two extra meals on Sunday. These measures resulted in a saving of approximately $7200 from the men and $2500 from the women per year. The reason there was a discrepancy in the services was to cover the cost of changing male washrooms to female washrooms. The total cost of this operation was $16,700.

In the first year of operation, this policy saved the Residence Board about $9700. The same amount was saved in the second year, adding up to a total of $19,400, as opposed to the cost of $16,700. Therefore, the cost of renovations was paid off last year, with $2700 left over. We are now in our third year of operation and still the same policy is being followed resulting in a net saving of $12,400 for the Residence Board, at the expense of Morris residents.

Three weeks ago, a questionnaire was handed out in Leonard meal lines proposing that bedmaking in men's residences be reduced from five days a week to one. The reduced labour costs would have resulted in an increase in residence fees of only $109, instead of $159. However, this proposal was not approved by the required 60 per cent majority, and so next year Morris men and women will be paying an extra $50 to subsidize men's residences, although their own bedmaking will stay at one day per week.

Obviously Morris Hall residents are getting ripped-off and the Residence Board should discontinue this discriminatory policy.

Sincerely,
Betsy Greenlees

Fur mass produced

Dear Editor,

Not being critical but "an innocent young fox playing on a roadside" is not being killed to make fur coats. Neither are mink, rabbit, martin, or most other fur bearing "wildlife". The pelts for these coats are produced by animals born and raised in captivity. If the fur market did not exist these animals would not be born.

I agree it is sad that wild animals such as wolves and coyotes are killed for the fur market. Killing domesticated fur bearers is certainly no different than killing domesticated cattle for meat. In both cases if the market didn't exist, neither would the animals.

Ian McLenn

Victor doesn't too!

Dear Editor,

This is just a letter to assure you that I have never intended to run in the upcoming student elections with my running-mate John Bottomley. I have no desire to become a Vice-President of Operations although I realize I shall have to forego any pictures of me in the Journal. I must admit, though, that I am amply qualified for the job, since I have a fanatic belief that I have never made a mistakes in my life.

Much love,
Victor L. Brollie

SPECTRUM

Lecture Series
Co-sponsored by ASUS and Artsci 78

January 28

1. Dr. Uffen, Dean of Applied Science
"The Education of the Professional"
2. Dr. Sinclair, Dean of Arts and Science
"The Education of the Person" or "We do not fill Slots"

February 4

1. Dr. Breslow, Dept. of Drama
"The Performing Arts in the University: Yes or No?"
2. Keith Norton, Alderman
"Queen's and Kingston"

February 11

1. Dr. Taylor, Dept. of Mathematics
"The Role of Research in the University"
2. Dr. Franks, Dept. of Politics
"Student Activism in the University"

7:30 pm Ban Rich Common Room
Coffee and Donuts to follow

Engineering Society

Elections

Nominations will be accepted for the following positions:

- President (from Sc. '76)
- Vice-President
- Treasurer
- Secretary
- Development Committee
Chairman
- Services Commissioner

Nomination lists must be signed by 50 Engineering Students and received in the Eng. Soc. office by 5:00 pm, February 3. A nomination meeting will be held in Clark Hall, 7:00 pm that evening.

Queens Journal

Vol. 102 No. 33
Tues., Jan. 28, 1975
Queen's University
at Kingston, Ont.

Editor in Chief - Suzanne Sherkin
Managing Editor - Dan McCrelland
Business Manager - Terry Collins
News Editor - Sarah Yarnell
Features Editors - Wendy Reynolds, Laurie Gibson
Sports Editors - Lyn Atwood, Suzanne Jackson
Photo Editor - Jon Willmer
Backpage - Valerie Cotton
The sickies and weirdies - Seagull Flood, Jan Winger, Jon Bottomley, F.U.D., Larry Woods, John Cameron, Leslie Gaukrödger, p.s.u., David Colburn, Carmichael the dog, Peter Watts J.G.

Founded in 1873 and published on Tuesdays and Fridays during the academic year by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University, Incorporated, Kingston, Ontario. Founding member of Canadian University Press. Editorial opinions expressed are those of the editor and not necessarily those of the AMS nor the University. Telephone (613) 547-2684. Printed by gnomes at the St. Lawrence Printing Co. Ltd., Prescott, Ontario. Lithographed in USA on Canadian newsprint.

THE BIG ONE
Big taste, big satisfaction

EXPORT A
THE BIG ONE

Canada's most popular cigarette.

Warning: The Department of National Health and Welfare advises that danger to health increases with amount smoked

THE WORLD FOOD CRISIS

Quick Quiz

QUESTION: This child is starving to death in Bangladesh because:

- ( ) Monsoon floods in August wiped out vital rice crops.
- ( ) There are too many people in Bangladesh.
- ( ) We in the affluent nations consume much more than our fair share of the world's food supplies.

ANSWERS: The correct answer is all three. OXFAM is trying to help.

How can you help? Participate in 'Operation Starvation Diet' Thursday, January 30

Proceeds go directly to OXFAM

NOON MEAL

- Rice and Milk served in:
- Ban Righ Upper and Lower Dining Room
- Student Union Coffee Shop
- West Campus Main Dining Room

BOYCOTT -

- Leonard Hall
- Wallace Hall
- West Campus Coffee Shop

Speakers: DuPuis Hall - 7:30 pm

- JAMES RUSK - Globe and Mail reporter who covered the World Food Conference in Rome
  - TONY CAMPBELL - Director of Food Prices Review Board - "Food Wastage in Canada"
  - BOB VANOER WIJST - OXFAM CANADA - "OXFAM's Role - Canada's Responsibility"
  - OR. FRANK PHILBROOK - Liberal MP. "Canada's Foreign Policy"
  - HENRY PAULS - Provincial Director of Market and Food Development - "The Provincial Role in Food Production"
- Friday, January 31 - 2:30 pm - Watson 517
- STEPHEN LEWIS - NOP Leader of Ontario - "The Provincial Commitment"

This page sponsored by the AMS

classifieds

More on page 6

BLOOD WANTED: The Red Cross urgently requires blood. Clinic at Lower Vic Lounge, Tues., Wed., Thurs. Sessions from 11:2 and 5:8. Expanded facilities - no waiting. Refreshments.

INTERNATIONAL WEEK is coming Feb. 5-8. Dances, debates, films. Something for everyone. Put on by the Ethnic Clubs of Queen's.

LOST: one pair of brown rimmed glasses in a blue case at the Suzzie-O Semi or near Grant Hall. Call after 11p.m. Please Help - I'm Blind. 544-8132.

FOR SALE: '64 Volvo B-18, 4 speed, 4 door, radio, must sell, best offer accepted. 548-4858.

ASUS VISITORSHIP COMMITTEE: Interested in bringing famous speakers to Queen's? Know someone who would be a controversial educational speaker? Apply for one of three student positions on the ASUS Visitorship Committee. With a budget of $2000 you can bring almost anyone. For further details contact Nina Mohan at 547-3669, or drop by the ASUS Office B105 MacCory during normal office hours.

FOR SALE: Women's sparkling white figure skates, brand new size 6/12. Women's seashell fur coat, mink collar. Med. size 525. WANTED TO BUY: men's skates size 11. Call 544-1361.

GAEL GROUP 48 THIS THURSDAY AT WALLACE HALL. PLEASE would the person that found the wooden art case that was left

Murphy's Sea Food Restaurant

- Lobster
- Shrimp
- Oysters
- Clam Chowder
- Fish and Chips

70 Brock St.
548-7753

McArthur Theatre in co-operation with Education '75 Drama Trust Fund and the AMS.

Kopit's
CHAMBER MUSIC

Pinter's
THE ROOM

McArthur
Auditorium
Union & Sir John A.
Jan. 30, 31, Feb. 1
8:30 pm.

Tickets $1.50
Students $1.00

Available at McArthur and Agnes Etherington Art Centre 547-6666

at the West Campus bus stop please phone 549-0542. I really need it! Reward offered. Thank you ENGINEERING SOCIETY ELECTIONS: Nominations for President, Vice-President, Treasurer, Secretary, Development committee chairman and Services Commissioner will be accepted until 5:00 pm Feb. 3, in the ENG50C office.

RIO: Needed to London or Toronto Thursday Jan. 30 or Friday the 31st. Will help pay for the 935 call. 549-4126.

NEED TO FIND home immediately for 1 year old pup Golden Lab and toy Collie combination. House trained, gentle, good to children, and loves his mom...jaajir.

BEAUTIFUL BRACELET FOUND at Ottawa House 186 Alfred after our last smashing success of a party on Jan. 17. Looks valuable but isn't my colour. Please recover it 542-2319.

DID YOU LOSE A CHARM at our party? We found one at 205 University. Contact Brian Ross or Pete.

CARTRIDGE FOR SALE shure M7E elliptical magnetic cartridge and diamond stylus. Never been used. Tracks 2, 10 1/2, grams. Hall space 227-50.

CLIP THIS AD AND KEEP IT HANDY or note the number 542-8911 for the next time you want efficient, friendly, moving, reasonable rates, no waiting, student operated service.

STEREO FOR SALE: Electro-voice Royal 100a amp 5125, BSR 310 turntable with Shure M75 cartridge 5100, Criterion-A speakers 550. All in perfect condition call 549-2261.

THANKS for getting up Rod. $300 REWARD for the right four bedroom pad close (closer if possible) to campus. Call Paul or Ken 542-3797.

THREE REALLY NICE guys have a problem. THE THREE NICE girls who now live in our house of six are graduating. Therefore six minus three leaves three vacancies to be filled. Any ladies interested in living co-ed with reasonable rent at the home of the infamous Bonanzas phone 544-5358 at supper time (this is the only time anyone is home - we're busy little bees).

DEAR CONNIE MCL: Thanks, hope you get well soon. John G. NEED PASSPORT OR JOB APPLICATION PHOTOGRAPHS? At Photo Image we have a student rate of $4.00 for six prints. For an appointment call us at 547-7770 or visit our studio at 33 Brock St.

PHOTO IMAGE 33 Ltd. Specialized in 24 hour black and white Ektachrome slide film processing. For further information call 546-7770, or visit our studio at 33 Brock St.

PLANNING A SPRING WEDDING? Photo Image offers complete photographic coverage, tailored to your individual needs, from as little as $90. For further information call us at 546-7770 or visit our studio at 33 Brock St. and see the photographs we have done for others.

RECYCLE YOUR BOOKS OR RECORDS: We sell records on consignment; that is, you get $1.50 for every one of your records that sell. Needless to say, good rock, blues, jazz, folk records sell out quickly. We also have unopened used books for sale.

LOST 1 Corvus Calculator, probably on University Ave. on Wed. night, Jan. 15. Negotiable ransom please phone 549-5075.

FOR SALE: Second hand calculators SR-50, case, adapter, and booklet. One month old. Asking $170, or best offer. Phone Hugh at 548-6205.

BARGAIN! Selling immediately 2 pairs new 210 cm Innsbruck: 3 pairs faced boots, size 8, 9 1/2, 11 1/2. One pair used Skis, 2 pairs poles. Phone 549-5577.

WE REALLY NEED to borrow or rent an electric bass guitar for a folk-singing party we're having Feb. 1. If you can help, please phone Bill, 549-5241. Thank you.

GUYS AND GALS: The association for the mentally retarded needs people to help out with their skating program. The kids skate from 2-4 Wednesday afternoons at Cooke's Centre. If you can help please contact the SVB.

QUEEN'S BAND: Come to the big skating party at the Arena on Tuesday, Jan. 28 from 8:30 to 9:20. There will be a nominal charge (about $5c) to pay for the ice

Bring a friend if you have any QUEEN'S BAND SKI TRIP: There will be a ski trip to Edelweiss Valley on Feb. 1, 1975, for members of the bands and friends. There are 39 seats available. Bus leaves Union at 4:30 am and returns about 8 pm. Cost is $11.50 per person total. Tickets go on sale the week of Jan. 27, in the John Orr Room from 2:30 to 4:30. Monday to Wednesday Call Don Josephs at 389-1911 for information. Let's have everybody out for a lot of fun. ATTENTION DIVERS: For sale one nylon lined, quarter inch wet suit, one tank, and one 2 stage regulator. Call Ernie at 544-8401.

PRICELESS... WITHIN REASON

Precious diamonds do not have to cost a fortune. We can help you to select a fine diamond that you can afford. Regardless of your financial status, we can offer a superb diamond that will thrill you... and never leave you flat.

KINNEAR d'ESTERRE

JEWELLERS
168 PRINCESS STREET
KINGSTON, ONTARIO

marathon dance

if you have money to turn in,
please bring it to the Outlook office,
upstairs in the Union,

University Ave. entrance,

Monday - Friday 9-5

Thanks from Outlook

VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S
VAN'S GIFTS and BOOKS
282 Princess St.
KINGSTON 542-6676

ALL NEW ADULT POCKET BOOKS, MAGAZINES, FILMS AND USEFUL ACCESSORIES, comical adult credit cards, party records, cards and puzzles. Also a large selection of Adult Boxed Jokes for truly adult-minded people! Get your "sex-to-sexy" and super "sex-to-sexy" joke magazines and stories at Van's of course.

STORE HOURS OPEN Mon.-Fri. 9:30 am - 10 pm Saturday 9:30 am - 9 pm Sunday 12:00 noon - 9 pm

GRADS

Nominations are now open for the following Graduate Student Society Executive positions:

- President
- Vice-President
- Secretary
- Treasurer
- Members' AMS reps (2)

Nominations may be made at the Annual General Assembly (8 pm, Jan. 30, Grad House), or mailed to Doug Pritchard, Dupuis Hall (547-5579) or 1 Westdale Ave. (544-0641)

FESTIVAL OF THE ARTS

FOR COMPLETE AND MORE DESCRIPTIVE INFORMATION GRAB YOUR COPY OF THE 1/1X PAGE ORANGE PROGRAM DISTRIBUTED ON CAMPUS

PHOTOGRAPHY

EXHIBITION 2ND FLOOR COMMON ROOM - UNION
TUE/DAY / SATURDAY 11:30 2:30 7-10:30

POETRY

TUE./ 2:30 Jim Smith + David Skeaff 2ND FL. UNION
7 PM Stuart McKinnon + Wayne Clifford 517 WATSON
WED. 2:30 Steve Fromstein + Guy McCallum 2ND FL. UNION
7:30 Beth Learn - ALIVE PRESS 517 WATSON
THUR./ 7 PM David McFadden 5M. GALLERY AGNES ETH.

ART

TUE/DAY - FRIDAY 11:30-2:30 5:30-11 PM
/ SATURDAY 10 AM - 5 PM

EXHIBITION

3RD FLOOR - UNION showing student work

Painting Drawing
Macramé Sculpture

WORKSHOP

POLYON ROOM

Batik Macramé
Weaving Ceramics
Silkscreening

SPEAKERS

8 PM / TIRLING 'B'

TUE/DAY JAN. 29

THUR/DAY JAN 31.

ARNOLD EDINBOROUGH

• former editor + publisher
Saturday Night
• present editor Performing Arts in Canada

TOPIC

THE CANADIAN CULTURAL EXPLOSION

ROBIN MATHEW

• professor of English at Carleton U.
• co-editor of 'The Struggle for Canadian Universities'

TOPIC

THE CANADIAN IDENTITY
AND FUTURE POLITICAL AND LITERARY

DRAMA

WEDNESDAY 2-4 PM MAKEUP DEMONSTRATION - Russ Waller

7:30-9:30 THEATRE FIVE WORKSHOP - 106 & 115 THEO HALL
THUR/DAY - 2:30-4:30 IMPROVIZATION DRAMA 2:30 - 102 THEO HALL

MIME

/UZANNE ATKINSON
PERFORMANCE: FRI 8-9 102 THEO.
WORKSHOP /AT. 2-5 106 THEO.

TUESDAY TILL SATURDAY

JANUARY 28 - FEBRUARY 1 1975

> CLIP THESE PAGE/ OUT < AND KEEP FOR EASY REFERENCE

MUSIC

HOUSE OF LORDS /ET/ BY /STUDENT/ & /PROFESSIONAL/

* THE FOLLOWING LIST/ PROFESSIONAL/ ONLY A COMPLETE LISTING FOR /STUDENT/ IS AVAILABLE IN THE PROGRAM AND THE POSTER
OUTSIDE THE HOUSE OF LORDS

TUE/DAY 7:30 PM - George Kingman

WEDNESDAY 7:30 Tomas Handy, Dave Bradstreet

THUR/DAY - NOON Paul Langel

7:30 Paul Langel, Dave Bradstreet

FRIDAY - NOON Greg Forbes, Ron Baumber

3 PM - A Renaissance Guild Music

Workshop - picking, writing etc

IMPROVISATION WORKSHOP SOUND & MOTION

7 PM TUE/ WED THUR/ BAN RICH COMMON ROOM

Stephen Ross and Andrea + Pierre

CLASSICAL MUSIC CONCERT

DUNNING AUD. TUE/ 28 8:30

BAN RICH FIRE/IDE - FLUTE RECITAL

BAN RICH COMMON RM THUR/DAY 6 PM

FILM

/STUDENT FILM CONTEST

FOR COMPLETE LIST OF FILM/ AND MAKER/ CONSULT THE PROGRAM

2 COMPLETE /SCREENING/

TUE/DAY & THUR/DAY 7:30 DUPUIS AUD.

FEATURE FILM - 'MY LITTLE CHICKADEE'
starring W.C. Fields and Mae West

25¢ FRIDAY JAN. 31 8 PM. DUNNING HALL

N.F.B. FILM/

IN QUEEN'S PUB 2-4 PM WEDNESDAY & THUR/DAY.

MORE DRAMA

CLOWN - ROGER GRIFFITHS

PERFORMANCE 8-9 THUR/ 102 THEO.
WORKSHOP 2-5 FRIDAY 102 THEO

EXTRA

/SYNCHRO SWIM

DEMONSTRATION

WED. JAN 29 8-8:30 PM
QUEEN'S POOL

VERY KIND THANKS TO THE ART/ EDITOR/OF THE JOURNAL FOR
THE USE OF THIS /PAGE

DESIGNED BY LORNAHOL/A. DALYON
TEDDY TIM CAM GRAPHIC/ 1975

If you're looking for Adventure .... a Sword and Sorcery novel is the thing for you

by Tony Davis

The late sixties and early seventies witnessed the return of a literary genre which had flourished in the United States during the 1930's, that of "sword and sorcery" novels and short stories. Publication of many of these works in relatively inexpensive paperback editions gave birth to a large market and a buying public. Names like Robert G. Howard and Edgar Rice Burroughs spring to mind. Later imitators such as Lin Carter, L. Sprague de Camp and John Jakes have profited by writing in this field.

Primarily, what is sword and sorcery? Violence abounds, usually in very lurid detail:

"The enemies rushed upon him with cries of rage. He caught up his sword just in time to parry the thrust of a wavy-headed spear, and a mighty slash smashed the helmet of the pikeman and the skull beneath it." (from R. E. Howard, with deCamp and Carter, Conan of the Isles)

The person who wields this violence on his opponents is usually of superhuman calibre, with a massive battle-scarred torso. Be he a "Conan", a "Thongor" or a "Brack", the hero will fight recklessly against all odds and, in the end, will win over his enemies. Often involved in these epics is the "damsel-in-distress", some ravishing princess or tavern wench who ends up inextricably drawn into the action. Lust is a characteristic of the hero in these works. But more than being a simple "Argosy" pulp magazine male hero of the sword and sorcery novel has some gruff chivalrous code of ethics. Howard employs a female foil in the form of the swashbuckling Red Sonja who matches the mighty Conan in blood lust and ferocity. And these women are anything but weak females:

"The beautiful face in the disk was convulsed with the aspect of a fury; so hellish became its expression that Tamaris, cowering back, half expected to see snakey locks writhe hissing about the ivory brows. The face of this strange wail reflected the opposite of every characteristic the countenance of the queen denoted. Lust and mystery sparkled in her full red lips." (from Howard, A Witch Shall Be Born)

In opposition to the hero comes the malignant wizard and his hell-spawned demons. The wizard has usually purloined some rare treasure, or the hero's girl. The villain employs his black arts to conjure up some nameless terror to defeat the hero, or has in his control some monstrous snake or spider to feed his victims to. Conan, Howard's creation, is always willing to fight something he can destroy but is wary of that which is not real. Nevertheless he will always tangle with the wizard's monster and inevitably destroy them after much blood-letting.

Having won against all odds the hero is reluctant to settle down the spoils of his conquest. A nomadic, brawling existence is his fate. The soft trappings of decadent civilizations are but momentary and fleeting pleasures for the sword and sorcery hero.

Then the hero is set in his distant past, in an era of great civilizations and barbaric jungles, swamps and seas filled with unknown terrors. There are great nations, because of their armed might and there are nations that constantly fall prey to the powerful ones. The hero often appears in the role of a mercenary soldier fighting for one side or the other. When reading these stories one often realizes that it isn't simply the fame or wealth which compels these swordsmen on, but the sheer lust itself.

The hero never respects a commander, being his own leader and often despising the respect of his fellow troops and allies.

So much for the best of the sword and sorcery story - what marks it apart from other adventure novels?

The sword and sorcery is to be distinguished from the fantasy novel such as Tolkien produces. Violence is a central motif to sword and sorcery. Magic is used and punishment all run through this. The fantasy is more concerned with a sense of quest and the question of good and evil. Fantasy is too tame in action for the sword and sorcery works. A fantasy is filled with massive description and detail, the minor characters warrant as much consideration as the central ones. In sword and sorcery, the heroes mold the environment to suit them, or else the land is so harsh that it prompts the swordman to greater violence. The subdued nature of the fantasy with lustrous ladies and mild elfish villains are counter to the insidious wizards and wantons which so greatly in the sword and sorcery novel.

Science Fiction has been a place in the genre. While some sci-fi authors have employed sword and sorcery motifs in their works, such as Perry Rodin, there are no ships ray guns or aliens from other worlds. The sword and sorcery earth. Strange things do arise to challenge the hero, but they are all products of the earth's past.

Unlike adventure novels, sword and sorcery has a more exotic air to it. Simple - hero defeats villain for girl and gold - would be too gross a definition of the epic. These novels, since they are set in an unknown past exude an air of the exotic and mysterious. The unrelenting pace of the novel and pure simplicity of violence and action remove it far from the "Doc Savage" novel or the Matt Helm adventure.

The "unknown" is a part of the sword and sorcery novel which adds to its creativity. The hero is constantly engaged in tasks which press him to inhuman ends against strange and threatening foes. The hero usually ends up in the clutches of the villain, confined and/or tortured by his opponent, adding to the bitter revenge which will inevitably befall the foe of the swordsmen.

Happiness only transpires in sword and sorcery with the destruction of the foe and the never-ending battle against the unknown. There is no respite; the hero's task is unending and relentless. Rewards are few and simple, pain a constant companion.

Most of the works of sword and sorcery are relatively easy to digest and due to the continuous action can be read very rapidly. The writing style itself is simplistic - emotive and descriptive. To a large extent sword and sorcery is presented in short story or novella form; few authors seem to have the capability of sustaining constant action throughout a two-hundred-or-so page plot. Thus anthologies are the usual form in which the sword and sorcery stories are presented.

Robert E. Howard is perhaps the best-known in the genre. His heroes - Conan, Bran Mak Morn, Kull, and Kane are among the most popular. Conan, the barbarian, is undoubtedly the most widely read. The twelve or so books of Conan, edited by L. Sprague deCamp and Lin Carter have gained a cult following. Howard died in 1936, his works finding an outlet in the popular "Weird Tales", a pulp magazine. Howard is cited as a founding father of sword and sorcery in the twentieth century.

Conan is a northern barbarian from Cimmeria who singularly indulges in a series of military adventures throughout a strange continent. His perennial enemies are the evil wizards from Stigia, and their ancient sacrifice-demanding gods. Conan never fails to come up against such supernatural powers and he always at great risk and pain to himself, comes out victorious.

Howard's Solomon Kane is an American puritan who comes across unknown terrors in the African and Asian jungles. Bran Mak Morn is a Pict who fights the Romans in the ancient British Isles.

In some cases Howard and other sword and sorcery authors try to place their heroes in some type of historical framework. Kane fights in Sixteenth Century Africa and Asia, in lands generally unknown then to the Western world. In "Red Nails" Conan and Valeria (a sword-carrying female outlaw) fight a prehistoric dinosaur to add some credence to the tale by implying that these strange demon-controlled monsters are simply creatures of the past.

Lin Carter is best known for his "Thongor of Lemuria" series. Thongor comes from the same mold as Conan, battling evil wizards with mighty thews and sword: "Try again red dog! It takes more than mere spells to halt a warrior!" (Carter "Thongor in the City of Magicians")

Carter has edited many of Robert G. Howard's uncompleted Conan works along with L. Sprague de Camp, and is responsible for the publishing of many Old English fantasy novels, including the more recent late 19th century works of Lord Dunsany. The recent Jandor series published by Ace Books is also enjoying great popularity.

Michael Moorcock, a young British science fiction writer came out in 1967 with "The Jewel in the Skull", the first of the RuneStaff epic, with Dorian Hawkmoon as his new hero. Moorcock's trend of producing a sword and sorcery series with a consecutive theme, or more usually some never-ending quest, launched a similar line with many sword and sorcery authors. And an emphasis on continuing a hero's exploits, becoming a popular trend.

John Jakes' Brak was a new sword and sorcery hero who appeared in mid-1968. He undoubtedly owes much of his style to Howard but this is not unusual as Howard's style and "flavour" is simplistic and engaging.

Fritz Leiber introduced his Fahrd and Gray Mouser five-novel series to the public in 1970. Originally the two heroes had appeared in the early sixties in a number of short stories but Leiber brought the tales together, added a few more and published them in a consecutive manner. With two leading heroes instead of one Weiber is able to adopt a more diverse style from that of other sword and sorcery authors. Fahrd typifies the brutish barbarian hero, but he lacks the wisdom and cunning which other heroes often have. The Gray Mouser, more handy with a knife than a sword and an apprentice wizard, provides Fahrd with direction for his might.

Leiber's "The Swords of Lankmar" represents an excellent example of his flavour for sword and sorcery books. Fahrd and the Gray Mouser battle against mice which adopt the guise of men and women, which threaten to take over the city of Lankmar. While such may appear to be ludicrous on the surface, Leiber's handling of the escapade is superb - a definite "must" for the sword and sorcery reader.

One of the most famous of sword and sorcery novelists and to an extent of many other literary realms, is Edgar Rice Burroughs. His Tarzan series brought him instant fame. Overshadowing his John Carter of Mars his Pellucidar (Inner World) novels and the Napier of Venus works, which exhibit many of the attributes of sword and sorcery.

Te Martians series (eleven books) describes the adventure of an American, John Carter, who has been transported to Mars and fights his way to glory. Although it must be admitted that scientific gadgetry plays a part in Burroughs' Martian books they act a subsidiary role in favour of Carter's fights, especially to protect his beloved, Dejah Thoris. It should be noted that while Burroughs was forever willing to include skyraft and complicated weaponry in his works, his description of such was limited and weak in detail, his speciality being violence.

The popularity of this genre is exhibited in the rash of paperback reprints of the old sword and sorcery works that now flood the market. Stores from Toronto to San Francisco cater to the cult followers. Comic books have picked up Conan (Marvel) and the Fahrd and Gray Mouser (DC) as heroes. While pulp magazines in the 1930's such as "Weird Tales" offered sword and sorcery to the public, the tradition is carried on by pulp mags such as "Fan-tastic" which carry names like Carter, Leiber and de Camp almost constantly.

Artwork found on and within many of the novels have brought a number of artists to new-found glory. Frank Frazetta is renowned for his Conan covers for "Lancer" books and Jones for the Kothar novels by G. F. Fox. Collecting sword and sorcery books has become a hobby popular among the cultists. The "Worlds of Fantasy" (a one work edition published in 1968) soon became a collectors' item. Many of the books contained maps of these ancient realms which detailed the voyages of their heroes in order to add some validity to the sagas. The sales success of the two volume "Flaming Swords" books edited by Lin Carter in 1973, proved that sword and sorcery were here to stay. Why such popularity?

Sword and sorcery books represent part of the nostalgic trend in literary fields. The 1930's has been recently described as the "Golden Age of Science Fiction", and the publication and sales of Roberson's "Doc Savage" witnessed this trend. The novels are also very readable - simple plots, continuous action, the good guys always win in the end and the villain gets his just deserts.

The sword and sorcery book is adventure - escapist literature which always has appeal. To escape into another world in the midst of essays and tests is enjoyable. While it was Fritz Leiber who coined the phrase, "sword and sorcery" it was Robert E. Howard with his "Conan", in particular, that gave birth to this field.

Lin Carter has given a definition which succinctly describes sword and sorcery as "... an action tale, derived from the traditions of the pulp magazine adventure story set in a land or age or world of the authors invention - a milieu in which magic actually works and the gods are real - and a story, moreover, which pits a stalwart warrior in direct conflict with the forces of supernatural evil."

But, best leave it to Conan himself to describe his own nature: "I think of Life!", he roared. "The dead are dead, and what has passed is done! I have a ship and fighting crew and a girl with lips like wine and that's all I've ever asked. Luck your wounds bulges and break out a cask of ale. You're going to work ship as she never was worked before. Dance and sing while you buckle to it, damn you! To the Devil with empty seas. We're bound for waters where the seaports are fat, and the merchant ships are crammed with plunder!" (Howard: "The Pool of the Black One")

Drowning disasters: dull as ditch-water

by Mike MacMillan

Juggernaut, now playing at the Odeon, is one of the latest of a series of "disaster" films which have appeared since the success of the Poseidon Adventure. Juggernaut, however, turns out to be a weak-kneed effort with little imagination or strength. The plot is pathetically straight forward and cliché; the story is so predictable that one can easily sleep through the last hour and miss nothing.

Juggernaut is the name of the demented bomb expert who has planted seven oil drums, each containing half a ton of explosives, on the posh luxury liner "Britannic". Predictably, the evil Juggernaut demands a $500,000 ransom for information on how to defuse the bombs before they are due to explode in twenty-four hours. The lives of 1200 passengers are at stake, and the seas are churning under strong force nine gale winds. The director, Richard Lester, began with this already straightforward script, but simplified it even further as the film went on, ignoring the potential disasters of the gale winds, and virtually forgetting the plight of the passengers. We are told their lives are in imminent danger but never see their reactions in depth.

By the midway mark the film has degenerated into a technical study of how to defuse bombs. Incredibly unimaginative editing and ridiculous dialogue render the defusing of the bombs a silly and boring exercise.

Defusing the bombs might be exciting to bomb experts, but there weren't too many of these in the audience. It seems that everybody was more interested in the fate of the passengers, a much more relevant and captivating subject. Fannon the chief of the technical defusing experts is faced with a final choice: a blue wire and a red wire. One of them, if cut, will destroy the ship and kill the people. The other, if cut, will defuse the bombs. Acting against the advice of the captured Juggernaut, Fannon cuts the red wire and saves the day. This simplistic ending was an insult to the imagination and intelligence of the audience.

Of course, the film had all the spit and polish of a big Hollywood production. The sets were impressive, and the costumes were expensive. But beneath the slick packaging the film had little to offer. None of the characters managed to show great depth of personality. Typical of the cardboard acting and superficial characters was Omar Sharif's portrayal of the ship's captain. His performance failed to convey any of the tenseness and pressure to be expected in a man responsible for 1200 lives.

The bright spot in the film was Roy Kinnear who performed admirably as the ship's social director. He succeeded in evoking some warmth and depth-

-both comic and serious. Perhaps his performance was laudable because he seemed to be able to understand the fate of the passengers. Kinnear was the only really human element in a film essentially plastic and cliché.

How a house became a hall in one week.....

The House of Lords has moved
its operations to Wallace Hall
and is now open for business.

A new pub,
but the same good time.

Wallace Hall

The new pub on campus

Pegasus Ski Travel Club International presents (to its members)

The Quebec Winter Carnival $39.95

your choice of two great weekends Feb. 6-9 and Feb. 13-16 includes:-
- return coach fare from Kingston
- 3 nights accommodation in the dormitory at the Centre Communautaire Limilou - 4th St.
- Centre has a restaurant-cafeteria, bowling alley and is only a 15-20 minute walk from the old city.

Bus leaves Kingston Thursday evening and returns Sunday afternoon

Ski Week from $105.00 (based on triple)
Monte. Ste. Anne P.Q. Feb. 16-21 (reading week)

includes - 5 days skiing (all lifts)
- 5 lessons with the Ste. Anne Ski School
- 5 nights accommodation at the Hotel Laurentide TV, private bath and breakfasts
- return coach fare from Kingston
- all transfers from hotel to slopes

Membership and ticket sales at Cotton's Sporthouse
399 Princess St. in Elfrond College or phone at 549-4975 between 7:30 and 10:30 pm

PICK UP A PIZZA

1/2 PRICE

UPON PRESENTATION OF
STUDENTS CARD

MONDAYS and TUESDAYS
BONNUCCHI'S

PIZZA 546-1444 546-2050

Domino Theatre

Lady A's secret revealed

by Donald Stephen

Lady Audley's Secret is a society melodrama, and director Rod Robertson has taken on a ticklish task in staging it. Tastes have changed since its performance on 25 May, 1863. Witness, the plot:

Having married her former employer, youthful and lovely Lady Audley is the second wife of the amiable septuagenarian country gentleman, Sir Michael Audley. He dotes on her and she appears to dote on him ('Coo! Coo!'), but she is too sweet by half for Alicia (Sir Michael's "horse" daughter by his first wife). Enter Robert Audley (nephew of Sir Michael, cousin and fiancé of Alicia) and his friend, George Talboys, who seeks to find and erect a monument upon the grave of his wife, who died while he had been serving his government, these three years, in the Punjab.

But (Gasp!) George discovers that his wife is not dead (What is this?!?! but lives!!!!) in the person of the present Lady Audley (Gasp, again!!!!) she had deserted him, written her own obituary, changed her name, entered "service" and bigamously remarried for mercenary gain. (Hiss! Hiss!)

To escape exposure Lady Audley lures George to a well (Look out, George!) conks him on the bean, and dumps him in. (O, Perfidy!!!!) But unbeknownst to Lady A. (Aha!) her foul, foul deed has been witnessed by Luke Marks (drunken gamekeeper and cousin and fiancé of Phoebe Marks (maid to Lady A.)). All this in Act One.

The greatest single danger is the temptation to burlesque such a play, but the humour from a parody of what is originally a caricature is too easy and too common to be at all satisfying to an intelligent playgoer. The Charybdis corresponding to this Scylla is the attempt to achieve the original melodramatic aim:

to get one's characters labelled as good and wicked in his audience's mind, and to provide striking situations that will provoke and relieve anxieties on behalf of poetic justice. Modern audiences are not sufficiently unsophisticated to enjoy a play like Lady A. for its cathartic effects.

Robertson has sensibly set his course for a destination between these two hazards: a production with respect for the original spirit of the play, that still recognizes modern sophistication and the resulting possibilities for ironic humour.

With this in mind, Adrian Smith has dressed Lady Audley and company in some gorgeous period finery, and set designer Jennifer McKendry has cleverly framed the small Domino stage with a proscenium arch. Unfortunately Ms. McKendry has also seen fit to establish scene settings by a few sparse and stylized white line drawings on black flats — a discordantly modern note.

Peggy Haggerty's portrayal of the treacherous Lady Audley is a fine example of restraint, flexibility and technical confidence. Although she does edge uncomfortably close to the excessively maudlin in Lady A.'s few, brief moments of inner torment, her performance is a pleasure to watch. As Sir Michael Audley, Alan Anderson has blended an effective mixture of rustic gentility, domestic pusillanimity and Pickwickian Puckishness. Despite the occasional overly shrill and rapid delivery of her lines, Debbie Poole is very credible as the beautiful but head-strong Alicia Audley. And Jill Chamberlain is outstanding as the servant, Phoebe Marks; her voice and movements have been honed to a precise comic edge that makes her minor and easily overlooked role one of the chief delights of the entire production.

Lady Audley's Secret is worth seeing, not for its plot (at least I hope not), but for its style. Be prepared for the occasional unevenness, but also be prepared for a rousing good time.

A scene from Harold Pinter's "The Room"

AMEY'S TAXI 546-1111

Bite the one you love

WEEKEND FREE?

WHY NOT... IF YOU HAVE ONE
TOUR SCENIC KINGSTON, TAKE A TRIP HOME OR
ENJOY A DRIVE IN THE COUNTRY!!

HOST Rent-A-Car

We rent to Queen's University students under 25 years of age!
Special rates available for Conferences, Seminars, Workshops, etc.
AVOID DISAPPOINTMENT!! RE-SERVE NOW!!
CORNER OF QUEEN AND BAGOT
Phone 549-2348

Two one-act plays plus

Peggy Haggerty as Lady Audley in "Lady Audley's Secret," the Domino Theatre's current production.

This Thursday, Friday and Saturday (Jan. 30-Feb. 1st) in the McArthur Theatre, the McArthur Theatre Arts students in co-operation with the Education '75 Drama Trust Fund and the A.M.S. will present two one-act plays, Harold Pinter's The Room and Arthur Kopit's Chamber Music, which are linked by an experimental anthology.

The Room, directed by Joe Harwood, explores the problem of self-imposed confinement. Chamber Music, directed by Gordon Beattie, looks at confinement from inside an insane asylum—the women inmates believe they are historical or famous personalities for example Theda Bara, Joan of Arc, Gertrude Stein, and Mrs. Mozart. The experimental anthology, directed by Bill Murphy seeks to emphasize and underline this theme of confinement through music, poetry, mime, and dance. It should prove to be an exciting performance and has been totally produced by the McArthur Theatre Arts Students.

Performances will be at 8:30 in the McArthur Theatre on Jan. 30-Feb. 1st. Admission: students 1.00, others 1.50. Tickets are available at the Agnes Etherington Arts Centre (Division of Arts) and the McArthur Theatre Box Office.

the tricolor award

is the highest non-academic award that can be received by a student at Queen's.

it is presented to those individuals who have rendered valuable service in non-athletic, extra curricular activities names of nominees must be submitted in secret, on a standard form available in the AMS office.

all nominations will be received by Friday, January 31, 1975 in the AMS Office. AMS Constitution By-law No. 15.

IN THE SPIRIT OF GENESIS... SATURDAY FEB. 1

FROM GREAT BRITAIN
THE STRAWBS AND MAN

HELP US HAVE MORE SHOWS. SUPPORT QUEEN'S CONCERTS.

QUEEN'S CONCERTS
PRESENTS

JOCK HARDY ARENA

TICKETS $3.00 student
$4.00 regular
$5.00 door

Curry: not such hot stuff

by Paul Luke

Brian Curry and the Vermont Rhythmic Band played to a tiny but happy audience on Sunday night at Grant Hall. Their music was crisp and cheerful folk-flavourings, performed by friends from three different Vermont bands, with the songs and vocals by Brian Curry as the focus of attention for the amalgamation. The main body of that material ploughed conventional furrows with occasional sections of bland, leached-out manure-mediocrity which were more yawn inspiring than genuinely offensive.

At their best Curry's songs were pieces of quiet and gentle musing, free from axe-grindings or false pearls of folk wisdom. Curry has a feel for lyrics of wistful inconsequence; trifles that charm but rarely excite. They did not drain the listener with impossible and unprofitable dilemmas as to what he was really trying to say, but Curry should reach for a little more realistic balance between his tendency for homespun simplicity of expression and his familiar, everyday subjects which sometimes had to strain to achieve even the banal.

The band's actual sound is somewhat similar to the kind of progressive folk that Joni Mitchell has been recording lately. That is there were unexpected but engaging dixie-land clarinet solos in songs which had previously proved themselves conversant with and able to integrate differing idioms. The saxophonist Tom Steele, guitarist Rick Price and particularly pianist Doug McLaren handily proved that they could play just about any style as if they'd been doing it all their lives. Their forays into jazz and rock were always competent but were sure to remain within certain conservative limits. The best moments of the evening occurred when they took some risks as in one long introduction which with its soaring soprano saxophone lines was hauntingly reminiscent of avant-garde jazzman Joe Zawinul's "In a Silent Way." The highlights of the evening were "This Time of Year", the delicate "Blue-Eyed Gypsy" and a whimsical bit of fluff with a beautiful title, "Ukelele Lady." The Vermont Rhythmic Band has all the ingredients of a fine band in their individual musicianship and intimacy with a variety of styles. They want only a little more work to ferment into a unit that can integrate its influences into a compact, identifiable sound. They have the raw talent and the material, and the band needs only the time to become truly memorable and not merely pleasant, but largely forgettable.

Brian Curry in concert Sunday evening at Grant Hall

If you are an engineer, this chair could be yours.

This is where you could find yourself if you become a Maritime Engineering Officer in today's Canadian Armed Forces. The Master Engineering Control centre of one of our new DDH 280 Destroyers.

No boilers. No stokers. No sweat!

The power within these beautiful ships comes from jet turbine engines. The machinery that heats, cools, ventilates and provides water throughout these ships is the latest.

Maritime Engineering Officers on these ships work with some of the most sophisticated equipment in the world with expertly trained men who are as proud of their work as they are of their ships.

If you're studying engineering, think about this Officer's job. It's a very special one. It could take you anywhere in the world!

GET INVOLVED WITH THE CANADIAN ARMED FORCES.

Directorate of Recruiting & Selection, National Defence Headquarters, Box 8989, Ottawa, Ontario K1A 0K2

Please send me more information about opportunities in the Canadian Forces of Maritime Engineers.

NAME _____ ADDRESS _____
CITY _____ PROV _____
POSTAL CODE _____ UNIVERSITY _____
COURSE _____ YEAR _____

Queens University at Kingston

Master of Business Administration

Queen's University at Kingston offers a modern, discipline-based approach to the study of management in the complex organizations of today and tomorrow. The learning atmosphere in the School of Business is lively, informal, intimate and flexible. Persons from almost all academic programs will find MBA studies rewarding. Financial assistance is available.

Professor W. E. Miklas,
Chairman, MBA Program,
School of Business, Queen's University
Kingston, Ontario K7L 3N6

Please send information concerning Queen's MBA to Name _____ Graduating Year _____

Street _____
City _____ Province _____
University _____ Program _____

MOE KOFFMAN and DAVID BRADSTREET

Grant Hall
Tuesday
January 28

2 shows:
7:30 and 10:00

Tickets: $4.00

with students card: $3.00

at: Vern Napier's, House of Sounds, Division of Concerts (Box Office) and John Orr Room

UNDER ATTACK

confronting; QUEEN'S

Jan. 29.

ED BROADBENT: Parliamentary Leader of the New Democratic Party in Ottawa. A man of "Waffle" tendencies... will defend the NDP as a viable and necessary Political Party.

LAURENT PICARD: President of the CBC...will defend its policies...its programming and its record.

Jan. 30

REV. KEN CAMPBELL: Evangelist and outspoken president of the Halton Renaissance Committee...advocates that we return back to the basics in Education...Sex Education at home not at school...a return to religious education in the schools..."Stop the Moral Pollution of our Youth".

RICHARD LUBBOCK: Writer, Broadcaster, thinks that the feminist movement is dangerous...and doomed to failure...women are suited to tedious, repetitive jobs...women are not creative, and are not suited to lead.

come to the shows - to be taped at Grant Hall of Queen's University - doors open at 6:30 pm first come - first seated

Golden Gals strike it rich, take Toronto by storm

...on the courts...

by Lyn Atwood
Journal Sports Editor
In the most recent edition of the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Newspaper there was a large article summarizing the OWIAA Basketball and ranking the top ten Canadian Women's Basketball teams as well.

The whole article seemed to be centered around the 'phenomenal' Laurentian Vees while Queen's was relegated to a small paragraph which stated quite succinctly that Queen's might be worth consideration in the League finals if they did not undergo their "usual January slump". The article then proceeded to rank Laurentian first of the top ten in Canada—with Queen's nowhere to be seen in the rankings.

There is no doubt that the Laurentian team is a very respectable team this year with National Player representation and the assistant National coach as their own coach, however looking at the situation objectively - by statistics alone, it is obvious that Queen's is something to be reckoned with.

And good news! Ladies and Gentlemen—Queen's "usual January slump" entailed only one game—that second one in the double header against Laurentian—which turned in a 70-44 loss for us.

This past weekend Queen's Basketball Gals faced both University of Toronto Blues and York Raiders to add two more wins to their successful record (which incidentally is blemished only by those two losses to Laurentian).

On Friday night the scheduled 7:00 game did not commence until nearly 8:00 which could not help but act as a psychological letdown to both teams.

The first half of the game was very scrappy and I'm sure I've seen some high school teams put on a better show. The second half was a different story with Queen's outshooting, outrebounding, and outdoing Toronto generally in every department statistically. There were 45 turnovers—30 of them in Queen's favour.

The points were spread out with Queen's top scorers being Pat Smith 15, Laney Marshall 12, Jean Crichton 8, and Kathy Keely 7. The final score of the game was 62-27—not bad considering Queen's was only shooting just over 30 per cent from the floor.

In the second of two the next day at York Queen's coach Mo Bouris decided the best strategy would be to practise defense so that the game would have some value to it. So for the entire game Queen's worked their man-toman full court and half court defense, alternating these latter with a 2-2-1 zone and a 1-3-1 zone defense.

During the last four minutes of the game York had to play a woman short because they had so many fouls against them. At this time Coach Bouris used a 2-1-2 zone defense. Queen's kept York down to 22 points for the entire game and although the game was played defensively by Queen's the Gals managed to score 50 points. Final score 80-22.

Again the scoring was distributed among three quarters of the team. The top scorers were Pat Smith 16, Penny Wedd 12, Pat Quigley 11, Sue Gillies 11. The Queen's team was scoring only 33 per cent (BOO!) from the floor.

This coming weekend the Gals will be challenged by Ottawa and Carlton on home courts.

The Ottawa game should be a very exciting one. It was Laurentian, Ottawa and Queen's who were tied for first place in the League at this time last year. Ottawa's star centre Colene Dufresne manages to score at least 20 points per game (although Laurentian kept her down to 1 point).

Friday night the Gals play Ottawa. Saturday afternoon it's Carlton. So come out and support the Gals— they're doing great!

lyn atwood
York didn't really have a chance against the Gals defense this past weekend.

... on the ice...

by Journal Sports Writer
Les Ferrari

Last Friday the Queen's Hockey Gals travelled to Toronto, expecting at least one and probably two hard fighting games. As it turned out the Gals walked over both Toronto 9-3 and York 10-1.

Les Ferrari led the Gals with a four goal performance against

U. of T. The other goals were scored by Marg Bartlett (1), Sue Hall (1), J. Gerow (2), and Sue Wright (1).

U of T was no challenge against the tri-colour machine. Although the Gals did not skate as well as they did against McMaster, their positional play was excellent.

Once U of T realised they had no chance of winning or tying the game they became very chippy and the Toronto refs. ignored the whole situation. The Gals rose above the occasion and counter attacked by scoring 4 goals in the final period.

The Gals outshot York 34-6 which indicates more about the game than I could express in 2 hours. The Gals were led in

lyn atwood
The Hockey Gals didn't have much trouble against TO. either. Score 9-3.

scoring by Sue Wright's 4 unassisted goals, followed by J. Gerow's 3, Rhonda Leeman's 1, and Les Ferrari and Sue Hall with one apiece.

In both games the gals played well, but their skating really improved in the second game. This may be due to the fact that if you didn't skate hard on Saturday you would have frostbite by the end of the game. Marg Booth played an excellent game in goal against York, although neither goalie was really tested this weekend by opponents.

Next week the Gals travel to Guelph to decide who really owns first place.

Sports Round-Up

Home Action

Basketball: (M) Gals lose to York 71-61
Int. Volleyball: (W) Gals beat Mac.

Away Action

Alpine Skiing: Men first, women second at Georgian Peaks
Basketball: (W) double win in Toronto
Curling: (W) placed 2nd in Eastern Sectionals
Ice Hockey: (W) defeated Toronto and York
Ice Hockey: (M) tied both games
Gymnastics: (M) participated in meet this weekend
Wrestling: (M) tough meet
Track and Field: (M & W)
Country Skiing: where are you???

Badminton: placed 2nd to TO by one point
Curling: where are you?????
Wrestling: where are you?????

P.S. if you would like articles in the paper - hand them in!!! to the Journal office before Wednesday 5:30 or Sunday 5:30.

Queen's Gaels lack victories

Losses plague league standings

by Alps Boniwell Journal Sports Writer

Disappointing, dispiriting, frustrating, aggravating, horrible, terrible or just plain bad, Rogel's Thesaurus couldn't have said it much better, and yet appropriate as these words might be to the way the basketball Gaels played Friday night in losing 71-61 to York, they all seem to come up, as Queen's did, a little short. Perhaps a more fitting description for the enigmatic Gaels can be found in that great literary crutch, a phrase that while vague and often compromising appears in this case to be amazingly precise: "Words fail to describe." An ambiguous sentence that says nothing, yet applied to the Gaels says a great deal.

An indication of what "words fail to describe" can be given by the fact that Queen's scored a mere 18 points in the first half, followed by 43 in the second and generally proved in times of York's need, to be a friend indeed, although they'll hate themselves for the rest of the season for doing it.

Not surprisingly, the lack of apt adjectives wasn't for want of trying. There were certainly plenty of good attempts in that nightmarish first half when Queen's shot a sizzling 26 per cent. Most of them were very close. Many were impracticable. Conversely the reaction was equally favourable at the start of the second half as it had been adverse in the first. The reason for the switch was that the Gaels charged from their 35-18 deficit to within 8 points of the Yeomen at 39-31. At this stage the Gaels were exhibiting its' best ball of the game, enjoying considerable more success in scoring than previously, fast breaking well, and finally starting to penetrate York's tough match-up zone defence. No doubt now was the time that York was in need, so at the crucial point the Gaels elected to show their generous nature by letting York off the hook—as if the first half wasn't present enough. Regrettable the Yeomen weren't going to be as polite about it. Almost before our basketball Boy Scouts had finished patting themselves on the back, York had opened up a 16 point lead from which the Gaels never recovered. Unfortunately as far as playoffs are concerned the Gaels may not recover at all. With a 4-5 record they are going to require some help of the variety they afforded York to just get past the regular season. High scorers in the game were Ev Spence, Romeo Collegaro and Ted Galka for York with 20, 19, and 17 respectively. For Queen's the Andy Boniwell and John Keck had 15 and 13. Tomorrow the Gaels host RMC. It's time Queen's stopped being friendly and starting helping themselves while there's still a chance.

Basketball drops farther behind in the standings with a loss to York.

Hockey Ties

by Peter Watts Journal Sports Writer

It was a long and eventful weekend for the Queen's Hockey Gaels as they made a roadtrip to York and Guelph on the past weekend. On the way to Toronto on Friday afternoon, the team bus broke down near Brighton. After flagging down another bus they managed to arrive at York just an hour before game time; the trip took nearly four hours instead of the normal two and a half. Saturday, the Gaels arrived in Guelph to find that the game had been changed from the Guelph Gardens to Centennial Arena and the team had to dress at the football stadium and then go by bus to the rink.

Despite the delays and distractions, the Gaels came up with a pair of much needed points as they tied York 3-3 Friday night and deadlocked the Gryphons 2-2 on Saturday afternoon. In both games netminder Clyde Harris was the central figure. On Friday night, the Gaels were outshot 33-23 over the game but the stellar play of Harris kept the tricolor in the game. The Yeomen got 21 of their shots in the last period and Harris robbed Doug Dunsmyr twice to preserve the tie. Al Avery, Tim Ampleford and Dave Wright found the range for the Yeomen while Frank Coffey, Steve Gross and Earl Moulton replied for the Gaels.

It was a tired hockey club that moved on to Guelph that night for Saturday's encounter against the fourth place Gryphons. Several of the Gaels had suffered a variety of cuts and bruises. But the tricolor came out strong and nearly won the game. The Gryphons got the tying goal with just over a minute to play in the final period. Earl Moulton and John Cerre got the Gaels' goals and again Clyde Harris played well to keep the team in the game. Both the players and the coaching staff commented on the size of the Queen's rooting section led by the irrepressible members of the Queen's bands who made the trip up to Guelph on Saturday and who succeeded in drowning out the few Gryphon fans in attendance.

The two points enabled the Gaels to move three points up on the Laurentian Voyageurs in the battle for the fourth and final playoff spot in the east division. The Voyageurs were idle on the weekend. As of yesterday, the Gaels were in fourth spot with 12 points, three back of Toronto and Ottawa who lead the division with 15 points apiece. The Blues defeated the Gee-Gees 4-0 in Ottawa on Saturday. York is in third spot with 13 points but they played in London last night so their standing could be different by the time you read this.

Meantime, the Gaels will see their next action tomorrow night at the Jock Hartly Arena when they host the RMC Redmen in an 8 p.m. start. The Redmen are always tough against the Gaels; for them this is one of their big grudge games of the year and they always manage to get "up" for it. The first game between the two clubs earlier this year led to a 4-1 Gaels victory. It's an important contest for the Gaels who could find themselves in the dizzying heights of second place if they get a win. In any event two points will be sorely needed because the Gaels have to go to Sudbury this weekend to play the Voyageurs. There are no easy points for any team going to that town.

Gaels emerge with two ties, away this past weekend...and the band played on.

Swimmers miss by narrow margin

by Rob Stoddart

The Men's Swimming team travelled to Plattsburgh New York on Saturday where they swam against both Plattsburgh State and McGill.

The extremely close meet went down to the last relay where unfortunately Queen's was touched out by a narrow margin.

However there were several outstanding swims for this time of year. These included wins by John Pearson, Brian Dalziel, Wayne Serebrin, Peter Strahlendorf, and Leo Hwozdyk.

The divers were also well represented by Kerry Powell and Fred Kallin.

This coming Saturday (Feb. 11) Queen's will host a Co-Ed Invitational Swimming Meet. The afternoon events get underway at 1 p.m. See you there.

SYNCHRO-Sport or Art?

photos by peter case

Question:

Question: What has the grace of a ballerina, the endurance of a speed swimmer, and the flexibility of a gymnast?

If you guessed, "a synchronized swimmer"—you are right! If you didn't then you had better get down to the pool to see what we are all about.

The Queen's Champion Synchro team is having a swim show on Wednesday January 29, at 8:00 p.m. Our finals are in Windsor this year and we want to show our fellow students the fruit of our labours. You will see solos, duets and our team routine—all of which were winners at the Invitational Meet this fall.

So come to the pool this Wednesday (tomorrow) and see our fine form!

Queen's Strong ...at Can-Am swim meet

The Women's swimming and diving team were in Waterloo over the weekend for the 6th Annual International Swimming and Diving Meet. Seventeen teams in all were competing, including ten American University teams such as Cornell, Kent State, Ithaca College and Eastern Michigan University. The competition put in the Queen's women, however, put in a very strong showing overall, as well as among the Canadian competitors.

All four swimmers in the 200 yd. freestyle-rookies Laurie Purcell and Leslie MacIntyre, who are new to distance swimming, and veterans Ginny Seath and Diane Semple put in new personal fastest times. Ms. Semple also swam a strong 400 free to bring herself closer to the National Qualifying standard. Diane was the only Canadian swimmer to place in the 50 yd. fly with a time of 31:3—her own personal best.

Cathy Bruce and Liz Saunders both placed in the 100 breaststroke—Ms. Bruce sixth and Ms. Saunders ninth—which places them 1-2 in the province.

Ms. Saunders who graduated from Waterloo last year also swam a spectacular 200 breaststroke to place seventh overall—second in the province—with a time of 2:51:4.

The 200 yd. medley relay team of Cathy Leeh, Liz Saunders, Diane Semple and Cathy Bruce put together a fine effort to place seventh overall—second in the province—(to Ottawa U.). Ms. Bruce put in a superb effort in the last 50 yds with a time of 27 secs. Jane Noakes placed eighth in the 200 Individual Medley, again placing second among the Canadian girls. Ginny Seath was one of three Canadians to place in the 100 and 200 Backstroke with times of 1:14:8 and 2:43:9 respectively.

Rookie diver Laurel Howden, who only began diving in the fall was really pleased with her performance—placing well among the Canadian divers on the 1 metre board. As yet, Ms. Howden has not performed on the 3-metre board.

It is really encouraging for all of us to see how well we stand internationally as well as provincially. The team is now training for the Queen's Invitational to be held in the Phys. Ed Centre on Saturday, Feb. 1st.

All competitors will be Canadians, so we expect to put in a strong showing. Long distance events will be held in the morning with diving and shorter events to be run in the afternoon. Judging from the performance of the girls over the weekend, it will be a really exciting meet.

Important Meeting of Queen's P.C. Association

Election of delegates to OPCCA Convention
Election of Treasurer
Guest Speaker - Mike Forestall M.P.

Party Afterwards

Tuesday January 28 7:30
B204 MacKintosh-Corry

Vests reg. $22.50 now $9.95	Shirts 20% TO 50% OFF	Sweaters 30% OFF	Pants 1/2 price SPECIAL SELECTION
---	-----------------------------	---------------------	--

ABRAMSKY'S

259 Princess St.

546-5555

SINCE 1891 - THERE'S A REASON FOR THAT

Molson Export Ale. Great. Because it keeps on tasting great.

V-ball wins key game

On Saturday, the Intermediate Girls' Volleyball Team fought for a crucial game against the McMaster team. The two teams were fairly evenly matched and the result was good volleyball for the spectator. Queen's started off in strong form, winning the first two games with scores of 15:10 and 15:4. This was definitely in our favour since it usually takes the girls about one full game to really warm up. Then the Mac team, badly wanting to win, came up from behind to win the next two games. The quality of ball played, though still good, just couldn't seem to come out in our favour. This turn of events brought the team to face an emotionally high-pitched fifth game. Scoring crept slowly and evenly, with a good fight by both teams for each point. Queen's determination eventually showed through, and with a score perhaps too close for comfort, won the last game and match, by a score of 16:14.

One noteworthy away-from-home happening is that the second place league team from Brock U. recently took a match from 1st place Ryerson. Combining this turn of events with our win over McMaster, Queen's is still in the race for tops. Teamwork is good, individual skills are good, and we just have to clean up the net play and make service a more reliable thing. A few more coaching ulcers and some hard work still to go, hopes remain high for the Intermediates for their two remaining league games (against Ryerson and Toronto) and the final tournament at Ryerson during Reading Week.

Good luck Girls, and let's show them what we're really made of!!

Alpine men take slopes

by Jamie Neilson

The Intercollegiate Ski season officially began this past weekend with the Waterloo Invitational Giant Slalom held at Georgian Peaks, Collingwood. This was to be the seasons' second meet but McMasters' meet was cancelled last week but will be rescheduled later this winter.

Despite icy conditions, the queen's skiers did very well with the men's team winning the meet ahead of their close rivals Carleton with Toronto placing third, and the women finishing second to Western with Waterloo coming third.

The men placed well individually with Jamie Neilson placing third, Marc Knowles fifth, Ian Neilson sixth, Peter Toluai eighth, Bill Hartman eleventh and Andy Scott in the mid-twenties. The times were very close, with Queen's exhibiting a lot of depth with their strongest team in recent years.

Gini Honeyman won the women's race with Margie Chaput placing sixth. Other Queen's women included Robin McLeod, Mary Chaput, and Marg Bartlett. The women's coach, Judi Cotton is looking forward to a strong season with the girls showing this past weekend and at the pre-season Can-Am which they won.

Track...

Queen's 2nd at York

Queen's has long been known for its power in the sprints, however, the middle distance runners have established their prominence as well. Jeff Giles 2nd place finish was the fastest time recorded for the Canadian field (1:57.9) in the 800m event. Teammate and newest team member Mark Henry turned in a personal best (2:01.5) to finish 5th.

The 1500m race saw The New Captain of Vice (Vice Captain) Bob MacCormack finish with 4:01.0 time.

In the unusual 4x500m relay, the Gaels 'A' team (Giles, Scott Ogilvie, Paul Spence, MacCormack) took the Gold and the 'B' team (Art Stelstra, Big Bird, Henry, Cal Cochrane) took 4th.

As usual Vic Gooding placed high in the sprints (2nd in the 400m and 3rd in the 50m). Stan Woodman pulled out all the stops to make it to the finals in the 50m recording a personal best of 5.8 sec. to place 6th.

In the field events Mike Forsyth tied his own Queen's record in the high jump with a 6' 2" leap and placed second. In the men's long jump Dave Bronson finished 4th and Walt Simbirski 5th.

The Queen's women were equally impressive in breaking two Queen's records. Lynn Andrews, who last week in Cornell broke the mile time by 30 sec., smashed the 1500m mark by the same margin. Sue Plummer also broke the old record and Ann Brown came within seconds of doing the same. In the 400m event Jan Pipe bettered the former mark (64.0) by clocking 63.3 to place well up in the standings.

In the longest event of the day, the 5000m, the Queen's contingent of Mike DeGuda, Ted Metcalfe and Frank Okoh finished 8th, 9th and 19th respectively.

This weeks meet was a bit more toned down according to coaches Sue Bolton and Rolf Lund, probably due to certain team members desires to get home to their 'loved ones'. When asked to comment further the coaches replied that 'loved ones' referred to Suzy-Q.

Other team members hope that Mike, Tass and Ted got theirs despite our late arrival home.

Having difficulty finding books for study or research in local bookshops? Order from us!
ADADEMIC BOOK CLUB, P.O. Box 1507,
Kingston, K7L 5C7.

Campus movies
presents

W. C. Fields 'The Bank Dick'

Thursday 7 and 9:30 Dunning Hall $1.00

Keith Douras

Something to "cheers" about:

Now the glorious beer of Copenhagen is brewed right here in Canada. It comes to you fresh from the brewery. So it tastes even better than ever. And Carlsberg is sold at regular prices.

So let's hear it, Carlsberg lovers. "One, two, three ... Cheers!"

Illustration by The Watsons Press
© 1975, The Watsons Press

b
a c k
p a g
e

'Lost Horizon' in the Andes

Valley of longevity found

VILCABAMBIA, Ecuador—In the remote valley of Vilcabamba, nestled in the Andes mountains in southern Ecuador, the native people commonly live to be well over 100 years of age. The population of the valley is 4,564 mainly "mestizo" (mixed Spanish-Indian ancestry). There are at least 35 persons over 100 years old and more than 50 over the age of 90. It is expected that there are more individuals, especially women, who are over 100 but their birth certificates were never filed making it difficult to determine their age accurately.

For example, Jose David was born on Feb. 12, 1832 and still works his garden at the age of 143. Miguel Carpio, 128 lives with his 96 year old son and 86 year old daughter. Carpio is in fine health and at the last count had some 89 grandchildren.

A team of scientists have been searching for the explanation for this longevity of life but have been unable to find a satisfactory answer. The valley is like an oasis in the mountains with lush vegetation and a constant comfortable temperature of 72 degrees, but this type of climate is found elsewhere. Their life-style is similar to others in that they drink, smoke, and have a normal diet. They are baffled. Carpio finds the answer obvious however; "I think it's the simple food we eat and the tranquility here. We've always been so alone."

MOSCOW—The Soviet Union has called upon the United States to suppress "criminal terrorist acts" against Soviet diplomats in New York by what it called American Zionist extremists. In a note to the United States UN mission it cited an incident last week in which several shots were fired into the Soviet UN mission, as well as recent demonstrations outside the same buildings by the militant Jewish Defence League.

NEW YORK—A group of Puerto Rican Nationalists have been terrorizing New York city. The group has claimed responsibility for a rash of bombings within the last year. The latest bombing occurred last week when a bomb exploded in a crowded Wall St. club. Four people died and forty were injured in the incident.

Major Abraham Beame has condemned the attack as "a senseless act of terror" and has ordered the police force "to hunt down these killers."

Little is known about the nationalists group who calls itself the FALN—the Spanish initials for armed forces of national liberation. The FALN left a note in a phone booth near the site of the bombing stating that it was in retaliation for a bomb allegedly placed by the CIA on Jan. 11 in Mayaguez, Puerto Rico. The blast killed two supporters of the Puerto Rican independence movement and injured 11 bystanders.

BRASIL—The military guard of honor in Southern Brazil hit the wrong note again, this time playing the Czarist national anthem in honor of the Soviet Ambassador. Four months ago the band struck out playing the West German national anthem in honor of the East German ambassador. A member of the Soviet ambassador's entourage interrupted the major conducting to tell him that the Czar was overthrown 57 years ago.

$1.5 million program Publishers to get more support

PETERBOROUGH—Secretary of State Hugh Faulkner has announced that the federal government financial assistance to the Canadian publishing industry will be increased by more than 25 per cent. Faulkner outlined a $1.5 million program to help promote Canadian writers, books and magazines. The program which will come into effect April 1 will include support to book-reviewing and other forms of information about books and support for common distribution and sales services by publishers. Other measures outlined are to establish concessions to sell Canadian books in federally-controlled buildings across the country and to insist upon Canadian authors being adequately represented on airport and railway station newsstands. Faulkner has also expressed concern that only 3.5 per cent of the 38 million paperbacks sold are written by Canadians. It is hoped that over the next five that this proportion can be increased to at least 10 per cent.

The publishers have expressed dismay over the program. Edmonton publisher Mel Hurlig called the program, "a sincere package of Band-aid gestures." The Canadian publishing industry fear for their survival and are reaching out to the government to alleviate their problems. In an interview Faulkner stated that he felt they had exaggerated the situation and that the industry is in no way on the point of collapse but is getting along satisfactorily. Faulkner also pointed out that the government is giving the industry considerable support as it is. The federal aid totals to $5.5 million.

TORONTO—Pop prices are bubbling up again for the fourth increase this year. The newest increase has again been blamed on the price of sugar and the ever rising cost of packaging material. Pepsi-Cola announced that the hike of 3 to 4 cents per bottle will go into effect Feb. 3. Not to be left out the Ontario Marketing Board have also incurred higher production cost and consequently must let the consumer share in the problem. The price of a dozen eggs will increase 2 to 3 cents, depending upon the area in which you reside. A pound of butter will cost five cents more as well.

OSHAWA—Canada will feel the pressure of the decline of sales in the United States' auto industry. General Motors of Canada has announced that in Oshawa alone about 5,000 hourly-rated personnel will be laid off. General Motors had planned the layoffs for later in February however parts shortages due to the railway disruptions have made it necessary to advance it to this week.

In the United States more auto-workers are being laid off daily. The Ford Motor Company has announced the closing of five of 14 car assembly plants, four of 9 truck plants and eight of 46 manufacturing plants leaving 77,675 workers or 44 per cent of its blue collar work force without jobs. The further layoffs will mean that one-third of the U.S. auto industry work force will be jobless.

TORONTO—The Canadian National Railways will sue the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers for damages which will be incurred as a result of the engineer's illegal strike. The engineers have signed a contract which will give them an average wage increase of 15 per cent, however the contract does not come into effect until May 1, 1975. The union members are demanding that the wage increase take effect as of Jan. 1. The other rail workers received the increase beginning Jan. 1 but the engineers are not eligible for the increase until their present contract expires May 1.

The wildcat walkouts of about 2,000 engineers has caused severe interruptions in both the passenger and freight services across the country. In the Toronto area CN has had to replace the GO trains with buses. CN has issued several writs in Toronto and Vancouver and fear that if a settlement is not soon reached the strike may cause layoffs of other CN employees.

MONTREAL—In a north-end Montreal night club 10 men and 3 women were murdered last week. The firemen found the bodies heaped inside a storage cupboard when they were fighting what they thought was a routine fire. All of the people had died of asphyxiation except one who had been shot in the back. The police later confirmed that the fire had indeed been started deliberately. It is thought that the killings were associated with an underworld crime syndicate. The night club was reputed to have been an underworld hangout.

The 13 deaths brought the Montreal homicide total to 23 for the new year.

Broom-Hilda

Starvation Day: 1,111 take part

At lunch on Thursday a total of 1,111 members of the Queen's Community partook of the milk and rice fare that was offered at various places around campus.

Of these participants 973 ate at Ban Righ, (where an average of 1,150 usually suffer), 106 ate at the Union Coffee Shop, and 32 in West Campus Cafeteria. All food for the meal having been donated, a total of approximately 60 cents per participant will be sent to Oxfam.

It was noted that of those who went through the cash operation some were seen to have stuck $5 bills in the Oxfam box, however, only a bare total sum was collected.

Marv Bloos, one of the organizers of the operation, expressed his disappointment in the overall turnout. He claimed that "most people simply didn't know what was going on or else were sadly misinformed." Consequently they "stayed away for all the wrong reasons."

He vehemently stressed that students have again shown their lack of concern for anything else but their immediate environment at Queen's. He commented "it's a symbolic thing...a concerted effort in starting to become aware of the world situation."

Brian Hunt, manager of Beaver Foods, was however, quite pleased with the results. He felt that those that went through the Ban Righ line were "sincere" in their support. He mentioned that of the some 2,000 students on the residence meal plan, only 620 ate the regular meal at Leonard Hall and stated that this number was "a lot less" than he had anticipated.

City alderman

Norton seeks PC nomination

Keith Norton, Alderman in student populated Sydenham ward and Kingston's deputy-mayor, will seek the Progressive Conservative nomination for Kingston and the Islands, at the P.C. nomination meeting March 19.

Norton's announcement of candidacy came after notification of the nomination meeting was made public, Wed., Jan. 29. The nomination meeting (to be held at city hall) is open to the public but all those wishing to vote must produce a valid 1975 membership card of the Progressive Conservative associations of the Kingston area. Card-carrying members of the Queen's University Student Progressive Conservative Association may vote.

Norton, 34, is a graduate of Queen's and is a lawyer. He commented that his decision to seek the nomination was based on a desire to serve the people of Kingston on a provincial level. Norton will continue as alderman at least until the provincial election, but will resign his municipal post if he wins.

When questioned about his stand on housing, student assistance and government funding of universities, Norton claimed that he was not ready to comment, but that he is beginning to consider the issues.

Girls lined up outside Ban Righ as early as 2 a.m. in order to submit their applications for women's residence. These two were among the many who, faced with Kingston's housing shortage, spent the entire night in fur coats and sleeping bags in order to secure accommodation for next year.

Auld cancels talks with student reps

Special to the Queen's Journal—The Ministry of Colleges and Universities will not meet with student representatives to discuss the crisis in University financing in Ontario.

The Ministry informed the Ontario Federation of Students (OFS) of the decision Monday. The meeting was to take place between the Minister and student representatives from colleges and Universities across the province, and was to be held on Friday Jan. 31.

Over the past week there has been a campaign on most university campuses to attempt to inform students of the implications of cutbacks in university financing. In addition, it was hoped that tangible support for the OFS opposition to the cutbacks could be produced so that the Minister might be prevailed upon to give the universities more money.

With the announcement that the meeting has been cancelled however, there will be no opportunity for the students to present their position to the minister. According to the Ministry a two week notice for the meeting with the students was not ample time for the minister to prepare himself, and so he cancelled the event. Queen's OFS Chief delegate Terry MacLi rejects this reasoning saying that "OFS has been trying to get a meeting with him (the minister) for months."

MacLi went on to say that he considered the Ministry's move as "bush league politics over an issue which shouldn't be political at all the quality of our education." MacLi had been preparing a petition on the question of university financing and he had intended to present the petition at the Friday meeting.

With that meeting now shelved MacLi intends to present the petition to the Minister personally should the Minister come to Queen's in late February as is now tentatively scheduled. He rejected the Minister's offer to meet with students after the January 8 recess of the Ontario legislature "By the time the legislature rises" MacLi said, "the budget will have been approved in the Conservative caucus and there will be no hope for altering it. This whole situation is disgusting."

Some universities will be sending delegates to Toronto today to protest the Ministry's decision but Queen's will not. MacLi claimed that if students "lose their tempers, they'll be playing right into the hands of the minister." MacLi hopes that students will act "more responsibly than the Ministry has over this matter and that won't be too difficult."

Engineering:

Failure rate zero for women students

by Jennifer Conkle
The failure rate for women in the Faculty of Applied Science at Queen's is zero.

The Associate Dean of the faculty, Mr. H. M. Edwards, believes that this is because the barriers imposed by society are so difficult to overcome that those women who do make it into Engineering "have to be pretty bright and pretty determined."

These girls have managed to penetrate a highly sex-typed field, traditionally felt by society to be for men only. Many of the girls have had to face disapproval and attempts at dissuasion by family, friends and counsellors. "the awareness of the possibilities for women in engineering has to come earlier than Grade 13", commented Edwards, and the best way to do this is send representatives to the schools.

The percentage of women in Engineering has been rapidly increasing in recent years, from

Continued on Page 3

Queen's
Journal
Volume 102, Number 34
Friday, January 31, 1975

wat's
hapnin'?

Friday, January 31

11:00 a.m. - Stephen Lewis, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party will be on campus in Room 517 Watson to talk with students informally about political issues in education or in any other area of the provincial government scene.

1:00 p.m. - Diplomacy and Wargames Club meeting in a new improved location - the Student Affairs Centre the gray house across from Stirling. New members welcome.

7:00 p.m. - Improvisation Workshop in the Ban Righ Fireside.

8:00 p.m. - Robin Mathews will discuss the Canadian Identity and Canadian Future in Stirling B. Coffee and donuts will be served.

The McArthur Theatre Arts students under the auspices of the Education '75 Drama Trust Fund and A.M.S. will present a combined performance of Harold Pinter's The Room and Arthur Kopit's Chamber Music. Working from the theme of confinement, performances of the two one-act plays will be separated by experimental anthologies designed to reinforce the underlying dramatic theme. To be held in McArthur Theatre. Tickets are $1.00 for students, $1.50 for the public. Tickets are available at McArthur Theatre Box Office and at Agnes Etherington.

Saturday, February 1

8:00 p.m. - A.M.S. Concerts and Martin Onor Inc. presents The Straws and Man in Jock Hartly Arena. Tickets are $3.00 students, $4.00 regular, $5.00 door.

8:00 p.m. - Bitter Grounds Coffee House and Good Times Emporium presents Michael Myers. Tickets available Thursday and Friday, 10:30 to 4:30 in the John Orr Room and at the door. Admission is $1.50.

Sunday, February 2

10:30 a.m. - Morning Worship at Chalmers United Church.

10:30 a.m. - Folk Mass in Dunning Hall followed by coffee and donuts at Newman House, 164 University Ave.

8:00 p.m. - S.C.M. Supper in the International Centre followed by a short talk by Prof. John on "World Federalists" - is the idea of a World Federation the solution to our growing world problems? All welcome.

9:30 p.m. - Galerie Victoria presents the music of Haydn, Faure, and Vaughan-Williams sung by Michael Bristow and Shelley McAlear, accompanied by June Richards. In the common room at Victoria Hall.

Monday, February 3

2:30 p.m. - The Psychophysics of High Fidelity Sound. This is the second lecture of a weekly series on the scientific basis for high fidelity sound. The speakers will demonstrate by actual experiment the psychophysical and engineering factors which are important in sound reproduction Dupuis Auditorium.

7:00 p.m. - The Circle K Club of Queen's is having an extra special, very important, imperative meeting (!) at the Grey House (51 Queen's Crescent, right beside Vic.). The delegates to the Eastern Canada and Caribbean Convention in Toronto will be elected Past K-Clubbers and all friends are more than welcome!!

8:00 p.m. - Rape Symposium in lower Vic.
8:00 p.m. - Third World Films: Borom Sarat and Black Girl. Dunning Auditorium. Free admission; coffee and donuts afterwards. All welcome.

Pubs and Theatres

Manor - Lyle
Commodore - Modspop
4th Inn - Body and Soul
Frontenac - Finnegan's - Henry Hughes
Frontenac - Muldoon's - The Cobblers Awl
Townhouse - Big Mac's Band

Capitol 1 - Return of the Dragon
Capitol 11 - Towering Inferno
Odeon - Jugernaut
Hyland - Law and Disorder

Upcoming Events

Tuesday, February 4 - 12:15 p.m. - Principal Watts will speak to support staff on the financial constraints affecting the university. He will be prepared to answer any questions. This is an excellent opportunity for support staff to find out how the constraints affect them. In Dunning Hall.

Tuesday, February 4 - 7:30 p.m. - Spectrum Lecture Series will present Dr. Breslow, Department of Drama, speaking on "The Performing Arts in the University - Yes or No?" and Keith Norton, Alderman speaking on "Queen's and Kingston". In the Ban Righ Common Room with coffee and doughnuts to follow.

Tuesday, February 4 - 8:00 p.m. - A Public Lecture with speaker Professor Joseph Burke. The topic for tonight's talk is "The Revival of History Painting. In Stirling D and admission is free.

Tuesday, February 4 - 8:30 p.m. - Canadian actor John Stark will give a one-man show entitled "Stephen Leacock, Master Humorist" at Queen's. The show is sponsored by the English and Drama Departments and will take place in Convocation Hall. Admission is free.

Tuesday, February 4 - 9:00 p.m. - Department of Film Studies will present Warrendale in Ellis Auditorium. Admission is $1.00 at the door.

Thursday, February 6 - Campus Movies will present They Shoot Horses Don't They plus part four of Indians. In Dunning Hall Auditorium at 7:00 and 9:30 p.m. Admission is $1.00.

Friday, February 7 - 8:00 p.m. - Sha-Na-Na will perform in the Memorial Centre. Tickets are $4.00 student; $4.50 regular; or $5.00 at the door. Tickets on sale now at the John Orr Room, House of Sounds, Vern Napier's, and the Division of Concerts Box Office.

Sunday, February 9 - 8:00 p.m. - Queen's University Italian Club and the Department of Spanish and Italian will present Carnevale Italiano. Tonight: The Garden of Finzi-Continis by Vittorio De Sica (English Sub-titles). In Ellis Hall and admission is $1.50 and tickets will be sold in the Secretary's Office of the Department of Spanish and Italian (Rm 416) or at the La Casa, 90 Queen's Crescent.

Phys. Ed. Centre

The Arena at Queen's will be closed from January 30 until approximately February 5. (See web site for details).

The Swimming Pool will be closed on February 1, 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m., 4:30 to 6:00 p.m.

Queen's University
Performing Arts Office
presents
VAGHY STRING QUARTET
with PHYLLIS MAILING soprano
and WILLIAM AIDE piano
SATURDAY 8 FEBRUARY
Dunning Hall 8:30p.m.
Works by Schonberg and Bartok
Tickets: $2.50 general,
$1.50 discount
Box Office: 547-6194

Queen's Engineering Society
Sponsored

BLOOD DONOR CLINIC

Tuesday - Wednesday - Thursday
Feb. 4-5-6
LOWER VICTORIA HALL
11:00-2:00 5:00-8:00

The Canadian Identity
And Canadian Future, Literary and Political

ROBIN MATHEWS

- Co-editor of "The Struggle
for Canadian Universities"

FRIDAY JAN. 31 8 P.M.
Stirling B
Refreshments

St. Lawrence Parks Commission
Summer Employment
at

Old Fort Henry Kingston, Ontario.

as a member of the
Fort Henry Guard

Successful applicants will earn in excess of 4 dollars
per hour!

Application forms available at the placement office, corner of University and Union.
Sign-ups for interviews begin on January 20 and campus interviews are being held on February 20 to 24.

Failure rate zero

Continued from Page 1

8 percent in 1967 to just under 10 percent this year. There are 32 young women in this year's class, as opposed to approximately 382 men.

While there is possibly still some discrimination on the job market, Edwards pointed out there is none whatsoever at Queens. The sex of the applicant is not considered.

The students generally seem to agree with this contention, although Joyce Richardson, a student in second year Applied Math, remarked doubtfully that she does not know any girl with an average under 75 percent, but does know boys with 63 percent.

Marjory Powell, a student in second year Chemical Engineering, has run into discrimination trying to get summer jobs, but says that being a girl in "Applied Science" doesn't make any difference at all.

The girls all agree that the guys in their classes are the "best friends you could have", "like having 300 big brothers". Several women Engineering students commented that, although sometimes they have felt left out, they find strength in their growing numbers and are a very close group, getting strong support from their male colleagues. They are chums, who do their assignments together and go to the pub together. According to Richardson, the girls have more spirit than the guys, and may soon be running all the important events. She was one of the first female science constables, and would like to be chief science constable. Richardson mentioned her work with Applied Science student Kim Sturgess, to give this year's new women engineering students a more female-oriented Frosh Week.

The only complaints the girls have are of discrimination from men and women in other faculties. "Some guys are condescending, we're just here to get married," Powell said, and many girls from other faculties can't understand why a member of the fairer sex would want to be an engineer. Also, the guys may not mind being categorized as dishevelled rowdies, clutching a bottle of beer in one hand and female flesh in the other, but the girls do.

Be liberated but stay free

AN OPINION

by Dave Merrilees

For those of you who would call me a chauvinist, I suggest you first define what you mean by the term. It seems that it has never been redefined by the literary society, but rather has been loosely abused by many people who should know better. Therefore, before pronouncing such a judgement upon me, think about this. The true meaning, according to Oxford Dictionary, is one of exaggerated patriotism of a warlike sort (hence, one who brags of his country's preparation for fight is a chauvinist). The closest I could come to an updated definition was one in the Dictionary of Social Sciences (1964), which states that it was used in a derogatory manner by French politicians at the turn of the century to denounce ideas and attitudes of an extremist minority. Apparently, in the twentieth century, it is still used in this manner, but no longer to denounce minority attitudes. However, its definition still remains more political than sociological.

More and more nowadays, women feel that they can do a man's job as well as he can. This is, in almost every case, the absolute truth, as women have been so admirably proving over the past few years. The basic problem is that after these women have been in the particular job for awhile, they too often become the image of the "type" of man they displaced (both in appearance and personality). I would call this the female identity crisis, and it is a very serious flaw in the present day concept of the humanization of women. Audrey F. Ebersole, in her article, "Reflections on Woman's Identity" (Georgia Review, 1972), says that envy of the male role is found to be apparent in the "rap sessions" of radical feminists. She goes on to say that this leads to a female identity which strives to assimilate both sexes. In a minor sense, this assimilation is reflected in the replacement of the suffix "man" with that of "person". If it were not for the fact that, in the case of women, "man" is part of the origin of the word (rather than just a suffix), it would be all too easy to create an unfortunate non-entity, by the obvious substitution. To do so would certainly cloud the identity of women even further.

My main reason, though, for writing this article is that I am terribly concerned for our culture as it exists today. Because of the misguided approach of the liberation movement, the woman in society is in grave danger of losing her identity altogether. As a result, it is getting to the point where one will no longer be able to say "Ladies and Gentlemen" because the type of people possessing the social graces involved will have virtually disappeared. I think they started to fade away upon the dissolution of the aristocracies, which were the last bastions of true civility. Indeed there are few aristocrats in existence today (more's the pity). To be chivalrous was not (and is not) a put down of women, but rather, if one honestly thinks about it, was a demonstration of the high esteem man held for all that was woman. To the true gentleman, it was always an honour, and never a chore. I, for one, will be very sad if the world loses something so truly noble.

This image of a delicate, beautiful, yet breezy being is highly resented by "women libbers", but I fail to see their justification. I suggest to all women that it is this image alone which is one cornerstone of our culture (and an important one, at that). After all, it has been an inspiration to the world's greatest artists (and who would dare say that they degraded women). It is this image which dominates many of their works, and no man could give to this image such immortality unless he truly adored it. I'm also fairly sure that, for the most part, men fall in love more readily with the type of woman herein described than with the dominant, emasculating kind that arises today from the lack of any identity that is concrete. I must stress though that what I have laid down is ONLY an image and does not have to be an indicator of woman's physical ability, which is the unfortunate interpretation given it by some women. So please, by all means, make your life style more free, but I implore you, don't stop being women in the process.

Budget Committee

Applications to fill vacancies on the Senate Budget Committee should be submitted by 5 p.m. today. There are two student and three faculty positions open.

Conference at Elrond

A conference to discuss the problems of "Physical Maintenance and Plant Management" in student housing will be held at Elrond College this weekend, February 1 and 2. Recognizing the effects of inflation on budgets, the inefficiencies of student done maintenance, and the problems of professional plant management and physical maintenance, Science '44 Co-op and Elrond have organized the conference to review the situation. All Queen's people are invited.

Pinball anyone?

Know any pinball wizards? Peter Druxerman (AMS Vice-Pres.) is checking out a plan to install pinball and other game machines in the House of Lord's. He is trying to locate between six and twelve units including pinball machines, arcade machines (shooting galleries, car races) and air hockey games, to make use of the room which was formerly part of the Queen's pub in the Student's Union.

ASUS

Nominations are open for the following positions:

President and Vice President
of ASUS (slate)

Treasurer of ASUS

Secretary of ASUS

6 one-year ASUS representatives
to the AMS

1 two-year ASUS representative
to the AMS

2 one-year Senators

1 two-year Senator

All nominations should include 25 signatures of members of ASUS, position nominated for and the name and telephone number of the nominee.

All nominations must be submitted to the ASUS Box in the AMS office
by February 4 at 4:00 pm

ASUS

Notice of election for:

President and Vice-President
of ASUS (slate)

Treasurer of ASUS

Secretary of ASUS

6 one-year Representatives
to the AMS

1 two-year Representative
to the AMS

2 one-year Senators

1 two-year Senator

Election Day

Wednesday, February 12

Thursday February 13,

MacIntosh-Corry Hall

10:30am - 3:30pm

at all AMS Poll Stations

Rico

Johnny

Screamin Scott Simon

Chico

Denny Greene

AMS Concerts and Concert Productions present

SHA NA NA

Friday, February 7, Memorial Center
8 P.M.

John Orr Room, House of Sounds, Vern Napiers, Division of Concerts Box
TICKETS: $4.00 Student, $4.50 Regular, $5.00 Door

Donny

Lennie

Jocko

Bowzer

Tony Santini

Elrond College Open House

Come Join Us!
Sunday, 1:00-5:30

Free coffee and doughnuts

One Man's Politics

by Doug Bonnell

July 8, 1974 was not what most members of Canada's New Democratic Party would deem a "good" day. By twelve midnight the voting public had devastated the NDP, cut their federal caucus in half, virtually wiped out the NDP's crucial British Columbia wing, and personally defeated federal leader David Lewis in Toronto's York South. This summer the NDP will meet in convention to elect a successor to Lewis, and the task could prove more difficult than one might first imagine.

The natural choice was Ed Broadbent, the member of Parliament for Oshawa-Whitby and, since last August, the parliamentary leader of the NDP. Broadbent's chances were excellent. A member of the federal caucus since 1968, he holds a high and favourable recognition factor with the public, he's young, he's aggressive and he has the aura and image of a national leader. Two weeks ago Broadbent withdrew his name from contention citing family reasons for his decision. Now the race is wide open.

The two most politically successful men in the NDP are Premier's Ed Schreyer and Allan Blakeney but both are unwilling to run. Their reasoning is logical. The strength of the NDP is pitted in the provinces. With Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia in their pockets the immediate plans of the party are clearly to strengthen and expand that base. To remove good men from provincial politics and dump them on the federal scene, where electoral prospects are less than rosy, would be politically unwise.

Thus the vectors of the search have shortened. The purpose is to find yet another interim leader to maintain and strengthen that foothold—and the leader should preferably come from the federal caucus.

Emerging from this complicated political web is Lorne Nystrom, the young, ambitious, and bilingual member from Yorkton-Melville, who despite his experience in the House (he has been there since 1968), has not yet reached the age of thirty. Nystrom, who has accepted speaking engagements across the country in an attempt to test the political waters fills one other condition. With the party membership seeking a shift in leadership away from Ontario labour Nystrom represents the agrarian west.

There are other possibilities. Rosemary Brown, a black MLA in the British Columbia legislature has also declared an interest claiming backing from the women and left-wing sectors of the party.

Then there is Max Saltzman from Waterloo-Cambridge whose career highlight has been a proposal to take over the Turks and Caicos Islands in the Atlantic for the eleventh Canadian province.

Other candidates could include former Liberal cabinet minister Eric Kierans and former Quebec leader and McGill professor Charles Taylor. Taylor could undoubtedly win the leadership and he is under intense pressure to run but his personal feelings appear centred around his home province. As a result his candidacy is far from certain.

The summer convention will be a chance for the NDP to not only select a new and hopefully strong leader but to realign policy, redesign organization and boost morale in an attempt to make that federal political breakthrough that has so long eluded them.

classifieds

More on Page 4

ENGINEERING SOCIETY ELECTIONS: Nominations will be accepted until 5:00 Monday Feb. 3 for president, treasurer, secretary, development committee chairman, services commissioner and senator (2 year term).

MEOW, MEOW: We need a home. My brother (Jesse) and I (Frankie) are nine month old male neutered kittens. We have all our shots and we're very clean. We'd really like to live with you. Please call 549-5034.

LOST: one silver cross on Tuesday. If found, please call Eleanor at 544-8718 Reward.

PARTY TONIGHT: 229 University Ave., BYOB or 4 $1.00. We guarantee a GOOD TIME.

LOST: One gold and pearl bracelet. If found please call 544-8767.

THE I.R.C. won't get stuck, it's the chairman who's OVERCHUCK! WELCOME L.I.L. ALEX (travelling companions aussy). Here's hoping that your weekend is just part of Whiplash!!! Not from the mountain.

LEONARDO FIELDO RESIDENTS: Get a strong voice on next year's men's residence board. Vote Andrew Overchuk for I.R.C. Chairman.

70 BARRACUDA, FOR SALE, 318 YB. Automatic, radio, vinyl roof, air shocks, very good gas mileage, in excellent condition. Asking $1900. Phone 544-7443 and ask for Hugh.

DONT JUST TALK, act to get things done. On Tues. Feb. 4 Vote Overchuk for I.R.C. Chairman. TUTOR NEEDED for Grade 11 student. He needs a systematic review of all courses with special attention to English. If you would like to help please come to the SVB Office (in the Union) call 547-5746.

RESIDENCE LIFE GOT YOU DOWN? Pick yourself up. Vote Overchuk for IRC chairman.

NEO PASSPORT OR JOB APPLICATION PHOTOGRAPHS? At Photo Image we have a student rate of $4.00 for six prints. For an appointment call us at 544-7770 or visit our studio at 33 Brock St. PHOTO IMAGE 33 Ltd. Specializes in 24 hour black and white Ektachrome slide film processing. For further information, call 546-7770.

7770, or visit our studio at 33 Brock St.

PLANNING A SPRING WEDDING? Photo Image offers complete photographic coverage, tailored to your individual needs, from as little as $90. For further information call us at 546-7770 or visit our studio at 33 Brock St. and see the photographs we have done for others.

RECYCLE YOUR BOOKS OR RECORDS. We sell records on consignment, that is, you get $1.50 for every one of your records that sell. Needless to say, good rock, blues, jazz, folk records sell-out quickly. We also have unpleen used books for sale.

OIO YOU BLEEO YET? Queen's annual winter Blood Drive is now in progress. Go to Victoria Hall on Tues., Wed., or Thurs., from 11-2 or 3-8 and bring friends. More beds this time. No waiting! Refreshments, Feb. 4, 5, 6.

ASUS VISITORSHIP COMMITTEE: Interested in bringing famous speakers to Queen's? Know someone who would be a controversial educational speaker? Apply for one of three student positions on the ASUS Visitorship Committee. With a budget of $2000 you can bring almost anyone. For further details contact Nina Mohan at 547-3048, or drop by the ASUS Office B105 MacCorry during normal office hours.

CLIP THIS AD AND KEEP IT HANDY or note the number 542-8911 for the next time you want efficient, friendly, moving, reasonable rates, no waiting, student operated service.

STEREO FOR SALE: Electro voice Royal 100A amp $125, BSR 510 turntable with Shure M75 cartridge $100; Criterion A speakers $50. All in perfect condition call 549-3261.

BLOOD WANTED: The Red Cross urgently requires blood. Clinic at Lower Vic Lounge Tues., Wed., Thurs. Sessions from 11:2 and 5-8. Expanded facilities - no waiting. Refreshments Feb. 4, 5, 6.

WE REALLY NEED TO borrow or rent an electric bass guitar for a folksinging party we're having

Feb. 1. If you can help, please phone Bill 549-5214. Thank you FOR SALE: One SR 50 calculator (used) case adaptor, booklet, $155. Phone 544-9219.

LOST: a brown book carrier in arena on Thursday 23 between 3:30 and 4:30. Texts and library books are needed. If you know anything about it please call 544-8553.

QUEBEC WINTER CARNIVAL: If you are planning to drive to the carnival Feb. 13 or 14 and would like two females for company and to help pay gas. Phone 544-7861.

STEREO EQUIPMENT: Toshiba amp $8-100, 17 RMS; Sansui SP 2000 speakers, 3 way Sansui 7 receiver, 36 RMS, $44-998. SPECIAL THANKS ARE IN ORDER: First to Melite for making my evening possible, next to Oot and her friends for making the popcorn, and last of all to Cookleman, Cup'n Space, Meshahli, Skerk, Oavy, Chickenman, 'My good buddy Robin', and Nick the Prick for replacing my winnings. See you all at the next Bingo Chimp.

STAMPS FOR COLLECTORS: The Queen's Philatelic Society will be holding its second meeting of the term in Watson Hall Rm 517, Monday Feb. 3 at 8:00. Something for everyone.

WINTER SALE: huge selection of cloth and paper editions at savings up to 75 percent. Starts today at the Campus Bookstore.

WIDGETS

INDUSTRY II FIRM

SEE: DON OR ERIC OR IKE OR RICHARD

"The quality goes in before the name goes on."

All Elrond College Members for 1974-75

are hereby given notice

of a general meeting to be held on Sunday evening

February 9, 1975

at 9 p.m.

in the Elrond Cafeteria

Notice Of Referenda

Wed. & Thurs., Feb. 12 & 13,
1975

Honoraria: Bus-It, Journal:
MBA: Project Green:

A.M.S. Presidential Election Advance Poll

Thurs., Feb. 6, 1975

McArthur West Campus

A.M.S. Presidential Election Candidates Night

Time: 8:00 pm Place: Stirling C
Tuesday, Feb. 4, 1975

SLEIGH RIDES

Want to go on a real horse drawn sleigh ride? It's possible at Valhalla!

Make up a party and have some winter fun. You will ride in a 2 horse sleigh around Valhalla's BUFFALO PARK, so you will see the buffalo herd as well. So get together with your friends, phone for reservations, and come on out to Valhalla Riding School Hwy No. 2, Gananoque (on Hwy 2, 13 mi. east of Kingston)

Valhalla Riding School
Hwy No. 2, Gananoque
(on Hwy. 2, 13 mi. east of Kingston)

PHONE: 382-3337

where the hell is our Hasselblad
love Journal/Tricolor

classifieds

Housingwise

SUBLET May-August 1975. Modern split-level two bedroom apartment in Elrod parking available. Large kitchen, fridge and stove included. Probable option for 1975-76. Rent negotiable. $48-550.

AVAILABLE IMMEDIATELY—vacancy in double room in a 4-person house in Elrod College. With or without meal plan. If interested, please call 549-4082.

TO SUBLET: May to Sept 4-bedroom apartment with kitchen, live minutes from campus. Rent negotiable. If interested call 549-558 after 6pm.

TWO OR THREE MAN HOUSE WANTED. Close to campus. Please phone Wayne at 544-8934 or Geoff at 544-8919.

FREE COFFEE AND DONUTS at Elrod College-Open House on Sunday from 1:30-3pm.

$100 REWARD for your single bedroom apartment for 75-76. Must be close to campus. Will take over lease in Sept. only. Call Hugh at 388-0887.

WANTED IMMEDIATELY 3-4 bedroom house or apartment. Call 544-7792, 7793, 7788 or 7417.

IS YOUR 2-bedroom apartment not coming across as it used to? If you are planning to give it up in May or Sept., call Karen 544-8185, Sigrid 549-1055, anytime after 7pm.

5th and 3rd Brock welcome all girls to the Brockington Common Room Friday Jan 31 at 8:30 pm free drinks and dancing.

THIRD WORLD ARE WE RESPONSIBLE? See films on developing African countries and then give your opinions over coffee and donuts. Feb 5, 7:30-10:30 at Ellis.

INTERNATIONAL WEEK Feb 5-8. A chance for students to learn and participate in many aspects of our Global Village. Look for our ad in this paper for more details.

TO ALL MALES: $100 cash reward for 2-3 man dwelling close to campus. Too all gorgeous females the same reward or a free ski trip to Sugarloaf Maine (minus taxes and food) for reading work with two other expert skiers. This you can't beat. 544-7888, 544-8973.

WE HAVE a 5-man house available for next year and need 3 close to campus. Phone 544-6022.

HARK! 3 damels in distress looking for knight in shining armour with 2 or 3 bedroom castle. Desperately needed for 75-76. Pyone Guinevere at 544-8746 or Rapunzel at 544-8275.

WANTED: 1 house for 75-76, 3 to 8 rooms. Close to campus. Call 546-584 anytime. Reward offered.

WHAT TO DO: re the Housing Situation. 1) all graduating students we would still like your Housing Questionnaire. If you have misplaced it (burned, ripped-up, stomped on etc.) please pick up another form at the Housing office (25 Union St.). If you have already leased your house, please fill out the form and indicate your rent 21 students looking for places to lease. The advanced students housing list will be parked in the Housing office as of Feb. 3.

$5,000.000 Dollar Reward? Not quite, but phone 544-7729, 7728, or 7727 if you have a three or four bedroom apt. to spare for next year.

ONE BEDROOM apt. to sublet. Available May 1st, in Married Students Complex. 542-8115 after 5 pm.

LARGEST ELROD apartment, six rooms, 10 sublet May to Aug. inclusive, 2 spacious bedrooms, balcony, sauna, underground parking, fully furnished, carpeted, dishwasher, telephone, rent negotiable, call 546-2026.

$75 REWARD for anyone who can find us a 3-4 man house or apt. for next year. Phone Mark 544-7154 or Bruce 544-7493.

TO SUBLET: 4 bedroom apt. with kitchen, 5 minutes from campus. Rent negotiable. If interested call 549-5338 after 6:00 pm.

HEY? TIRED OF BEZ? or your roommate? Live cooperatively in Elrod College. Hall a double room open until Feb. 2 only so hurry. Come with roommate supplied. Its cheaper than residence and its co-ed. Call 548-7439 or come to Elrod House 910.

SUMMER SUBLET rooms available for summer in a very nice large house. It's blocks from campus. For information call 548-4623.

ROOM MATE NEEDED to share large two bedroom on campus on or after 25 January 1975. For information call 542-6403 or see him in Watson 105.

TO RENT: May 1 modern air-conditioned one bedroom apartment, central location close to Queen's and hospitals. Laundry facilities in building. Very reasonable rent.

LOOKING FOR PERSON TO SHARE bright, 2-bedroom apartment near West Campus. Easy transportation to school. Rent to be $86.50, including utilities and parking. Prefer graduate student. Phone Andy, 542-4465.

PERSON REQUIRED TO SHARE HOUSE: reasonable rent. Call 546-9975.

WANTED: Three fourth-year males for a 4-bedroom house close to campus and downtown. Rent about $68 monthly, lease begins Sept. 75. Call 544-5457.

SUMMER SUBLET a beautiful and large 2-bedroom apartment, just about 10 minutes from campus and close to all shopping etc. Very reasonable rent. Available May 1, Sept. 1. Phone 546-7104 almost any old time.

ONE MALE wanted to share apartment until end of term. Call 546-7196.

SUMMER SUBLET 197 Kings St. E-3 bedroom mansion, available May 1-Aug. 31. Call 544-2198. We have a bar room and moose head and the entire house is torpede-proof. Can you beat that?

ONE BEDROOM APARTMENT available May 1. Suitable for married couple. Will help pay summer rent with $75.00 bonus. Phone 546-3032.

HOUSE very pleasant house to sublet. May to Sept. ideal quiet location. 4-5 bedrooms. 542-4227.

TO SUBLET two bedroom apartment in Elrod. Large kitchen, living room, balcony with view, underground parking. Close to campus and downtown. Rent negotiable cheap. Available May. Aug. Phone 544-2656.

SINGLE ROOM: Earl Street Residence Available immediately. Phone 549-1304 and ask for Ted.

HAPPINESS 15-house or apartment of our own for four or more. Willing to lease either May or September. Phone 544-7861 or 544-7728.

ONE-BEDROOM apartment to rent on West Campus. Fridge and stove included balcony, sound-proof walls. Available May 1. Rent negotiable. Phone 549-5536.

TO SUBLET One bedroom apartment for any summer months. May through August. Both are suitable for two people, furnished and close to campus. Call 549-4354 or 544-8134.

STUDENT HEALTH SERVICE

MEDICAL CLINIC — 547-6106 — 24 hours daily (Answering service contacts a duty physician when the Health Service is closed.)

CLINIC HOURS — 9:00 am - 11:30 am
1:00 pm - 4:00 pm
Monday to Friday inclusive

PSYCHIATRY & COUNSELLING — By appointment
9:00 am - 5:00 pm phone 547-2889 or come to Health Service to make an appointment.

Otherwise

INFORMATION BANK is implementing another new service which we hope will help keep students informed of major campus events. Campus Comp, pass-a-weekly calendar of events compiled by Information Bank Staff and distributed around campus. You may pick up your personal copy in Info Bank beginning at noon on Mondays.

FOR SALE: 1962 Envoy. Body and engine in good shape low mileage, snow tires, good racing mobile. Excellent as a student house car. Large trunk for beer and groceries. As is... for best offer... what a deal! 549-2219.

PARTY at the Aberdeen Hilton No. 8, Friday 11's Les's 21st. All friends are invited.

WUH? Seacows Incorporated (1973) take pleasure in announcing the winter installment of the fat cow invasion, as Dave (Brutus) Languedoc returns once more, this weekend only, (titanic included) to ravage the means of the defended and the defenseless. Serious seacows may make enquiries at 544-7995 or 546-0741. PS: a replay of the cookie test Bonanza Sweetstakes may occur: it is going to be all right! Ha, Ha, Ha! You bet, dear friends!

THE 55 CRETIN celebrates onigin Halupka's birthday tonight, Friday 31st at 344 Brock. All associates of Bubba, Jimmers, Lee the dream, Christopher, and Cousy are expected. Special invitation to Science 76, 75, 304 and 404 Albert, Susie F. and Co., Big Teeth and Co., Golden Words staff, 294 Barrie, and all other friends and Lovers. The lridges are stocked!

CANADIAN IDENTITY and Canadian future: Literary and political Tonight Jan. 31 at 8:00 in Stirling B. The talk will be given by Robin Mathews, Co-editor of "The Struggle for Canadian Universities" at our meeting. Please note, all members interested in going on trips through the remainder of the winter, are urged to show up as we will be making plans for day and weekend cross-country ski and hiking trips, as well as for over reading week. Be there and find out what's available for you.

WIN A FREE all expense paid trip to Florida for two during reading week! If you can find us a suitable 2 bedroom luxury dreamhouse, complete with sauna, poolroom, dining hall and hot and cold running malds. Call Bruno at 544-7291.

MIDDLE EAST: Who is Right? Come and participate at the Grad Qay Symposium on the Middle East. Feb. 6, Ellis Hall 8:00 pm.

SOMETHING DIFFERENT Spend next Sat. afternoon Feb. 8 at Dunning Hall listening to indie Classical Music at 2:00 pm.

LOST: one 12 ringed gold puzzle ring with tape around it. If found please call Cathy, 544-8373. Reward.

WE CAN GET you your refund faster! Income tax preparation fast service, guaranteed correct. We charge 1/2 what it costs anywhere else. 549-3907.

WOULD THE KIND PERSON WHO found my nice warm ski gloves in Macintosh-Corry on Monday please return them. It's getting cold and they're my only gloves. Please phone 549-1527.

BOTTOMLEY to the top! Victory to the victor!

WHO NEEDS SNOW? the outing club has decided to pursue winter activities regardless of weather. Monday night in Jettley Hall Rm 101 at 7:30, we will be showing a very good CBC documentary on outdoor activities called "The Outers" at our meeting. Please note, all members interested in going on trips through the remainder of the winter, are urged to show up as we will be making plans for day and weekend cross-country ski and hiking trips, as well as for over reading week. Be there and find out what's available for you.

FROM THE HOUSE OF GREAT SPAGHETTI DINNERS to the home of top notch parties: 4E thanks 3rd Leonard (the most superb tent makers) for a very enjoyable evening last Friday night.

FOR SALE: Second-hand calculators, SR 50, 1 month old plus case, box, adapter, $170. SR 50 $50. Call Hugh 548-8305.

letters to the editor

Suzie-Q defined

Dear Editor,

This is in support of the true meaning of what has been called Suzie-Q week.

I have listened to the outbursts of many adamant young females who claim they are being mocked at by the male species of this campus. A temporary ceasefire, and reversal of male-female roles with regards to dating, has been construed by some "activated women" as more of a "take-the-leash-off-and-let-them-run-in-the-backyard" policy. They won't go far, in other words. Others are defending their democratic, and might I add, misguided rights to act and act when they goddamn well feel like it. —Fine, sounds great.

Males are acting up to par, as usual. Cuts, Games, Nothing serious. Some of it was kind of humorous.

Everyone, in general, played down the idea. Apathy best describes the response by some. Others just could not give in to the artificial social legalization of female initiative. OK, there shouldn't have to be the necessity for giving women the "go-ahead" signal. It is indeed the true spirit of this year, especially, to recognize in women the equality and then do something about it is another question.

Above and beyond all this sexual conflict, and whilst sitting by a pillar in the House of Commons? last Friday afternoon, I think I found a kind of special interpretation of last week's activities.—I was invited out for a beer (or two) and then a skating party at Jock Hartly (yes girls, I'm male). The girl was very honest in her reasons why she had asked me out, to show her appreciation for the good company and good times we had had in the past, and to show that she cared for me as a person, and as a friend. Very simple. Nothing sexual. Nothing suggestive she was "after me" as a lot of people think of such situations.

I was not the only male she asked out that week. I only hope they were rewarded as much as I was by a simple gesture given by one person to another. Last week was a time to renew old acquaintances, break the ice between old boy-girl friends, show someone you appreciate them or even make new acquaintances. Of course, this process is happening all the time on campus. Girls shouldn't have to be given the chance to "clear the air" of their inner feelings. (ie: phone up some guy and tell him to get the hell down to the pub pronto, 'cause she's got something to say). Unfortunately, many still feel the pressure of social restrictions. This is changing.

Last week should have been taken positively, by both sides. If sincere, an invite by a girl to go drinking, skating, dancing, etc. can be flattering in a way. It's different and I enjoy the feeling.

And when I sat in that pub, and listened to someone I like and appreciate tell me how she enjoyed my company, all I could do was smile warmly, sit back, and let that woman buy exactly 50 percent of the beer.

Signed,
An appreciative male.

Sunrise mayhem

Dear Editor,

On Tuesday morning at 5:40, we were awakened to the sound of an Oil Thigh beneath our windows. It was not the weary song of some students returning from an all-night bender, but the sound of droves of girls trying to keep warm as they stood in line for three hours waiting to submit their residence applications.

Once again women's residence admissions has adhered to a first-come, first-serve policy, causing the applicants to go to truly desperate lengths to get back in. There is no point in complaining at length about what happened Tuesday morning. That is over, and it was necessary because women in residence were given a choice between the first-come method and the lottery method. Incredibly, most girls chose the one which involved lining up during the small hours in the cold, waking up anybody in Ban Righ who was not already involved in the rush. The only calm people on our residential floor were those not applying and those who had applied in the lottery at Morris Hall. We will not be here for the sunrise scene next year, but we ask that those 200 or so who are accepted back into residence remember the cold line-up outside Ban Righ, and for the sake of your own health and dignity, vote for a lottery next year (signed) the vacating residents of Ban Righ

P.S. We hope you like our rooms, girls

Idiocy run wild

Dear Editor,

I would like to comment on the apparent overabundance of school spirit at Queen's. Coming from a rather apathetic high school, I may be overly sensitive to any amount of "the old rah rah" but I would consider the noise of the "Oil Thighs" and "Old Queen's Sweaters" outside Ban Righ Hall a first-rate illustration of the immaturity and idiocy of the Queen's women.

I realize that those girls who had to line up outside Ban Righ at four am. Tuesday in order to get a crack at being reaccepted into residence were standing in the cold so a certain amount of bouncing and shuffling was only to be expected. Personally, I put up two signs asking the assembled to please try to keep it down in consideration for those trying to sleep above. I now wonder what my original goal in doing this was. Am I really so naive and idealistic to expect people to read the signs in front of them and to try to show a little compassion for their fellow residence dwellers? Maybe it was all a subconscious desire to show off my printing skills brought about by an urge to show a demanding grade one teacher that I can get letters onto paper with my left hand.

Possibly I'm being totally unreasonable in writing this letter, but I among others don't enjoy being woken up at 4:45 am. by a mass of screaming girls standing immediately below me and I hope that in future years some other method of application acceptance will be devised. I will not be living in Women's Residence again but I hope that at this time next year all those involved and not involved with residence applications will be enjoying the good night's sleep we all have come to take for granted.

Karen Willes

Dance results

Dear Editor,

Though Camp Outlook held its Marathon Dance a fortnight ago, it's really not over yet. The dancing lasted 12 hours, but the purpose of the event was to raise money and pledges are still being collected. The total amount pledged reached $400 but that figure is about as tenuous as 38-24-36—it doesn't mean much until you're holding on to it. Marathon participants can help out by turning in their pledges to the Outlook Office in the N.W. corner, main floor of the Union. It's the room overlooking that lovely hole they're blasting on University Ave.

Aside from prizes awarded for jiving, jello eating and various other activities, awards were made to the top pledge earners and a draw made from finishers from the radio. Top money earner was Anne Clarkson with $202, with Dave McPherson, Jeff Peters, Marv Bloos, Jim Pennington, and Sieve Aut placing in that order. Marv Bloos was notable in having the highest pledge per half hour $21. Jellybean Jarrell placed second in total pledge earnings but did not receive a prize because he was co-ordinator for the dance.....and because he's such a doorknob anyway.

The winner of the draw for the digital clock radio was Norman Blackhurst, a regular camper with Outlook who stayed all night. Upon hearing the big news his comment was, "Great! Now if I can just learn how to tell the time."

Many thanks to all those who helped out: to Arts '77; to the notables who judged the jiving, to the bands-OfTen, The Queen's Jazz Ensemble, Easy Company, Rick LeSueur and Jamie Bastedo, Chris George and Jim Gillis; to 3D for the sandwiches; and the Kingston merchants for the prizes. All in all, they made the evening a total success...if you don't count the sticky-fingered kid who walked off with a garbage bag full of donuts at 3:30 a.m.

The Marathon Outlook Committee

Housing rip-offs

Dear Editor,

The recent fad of 'selling' houses and 'paying' people to rent them their house is both disgusting and selfish. I was always under the impression that this was a relatively friendly, considerate university, where people tended to take the time to help other students with their problems. What a disillusionment! Now we're trying to rip each other off in the attempt to find a place to live next year. If all this nonsense doesn't stop now, it never will. I find it a bit ironic that some students bitch about a small raise in tuition, yet offer to pay $100 for someone to find them a place to live. I realize that we have a housing shortage, but we're all in this together, so let's stop all this rip-off bawling and start helping each other find a place to live next year.

Willa Henry

Cubs need help

Dear Editor,

Over three years ago two Queen's students initiated bilingual (French and English) scouting in the city of Kingston. The idea caught on and there is presently a successful bilingual cub pack which holds its 1 1/2 hour meetings every week in St. Mary's elementary school.

We are searching for a male or female who is fluent in both French and English, and who has experience in working with kids of the 9-11 age bracket. The present cubmaster, a fourth year Queen's student, is graduating this year and the kids need someone to help out for the rest of the year and take over next year.

If you are interested phone 542-7671 between 5:30 and 7:00 pm and ask for Don. It's a chance to share yourself and have a good time. join us!

Don Lalonde

Withdrawal day

Dear Editor,

Instead of campus giving up Beaver Foods for a day - hardly much of a sacrifice at the best of times - I suggest we all give up six for a night and send the money saved on prophylactic pills, prayers and post mortems to India. I think this would be a much better means of bringing the situation in the third world home to us all.

Yours Sincerely,
Lawrence McFarlane

Something to "cheers" about:

Now the glorious beer of Copenhagen is brewed right here in Canada. It comes to you fresh from the brewery. So it tastes even better than ever. And Carlsberg is sold at regular prices.

So let's hear it, Carlsberg lovers. "One, two, three... Cheers!"

Queens Journal

Vol. 102, No. 34
Fri., Jan. 31, 1975
Queen's University
at Kingston, Ontario.

Comment: Suz is under the impression that Dr. Morgentaler for however the hell you spell his name) snuck in and did a quick job on us, out I don't think so 'cause he doesn't work for free, maybe it was good of Frank the Mering to show the Meds peeps that he's their boy.

I'm reminded, at this time of, the now immortal words of our editor-in-chief, "there's not a hell of a lot of people here." Suz's famous for her ability to clearly express herself, but no one knows it yet.

All the biggies get to go to the Gnome home tomorrow and watch this roll off the presses. They don't know why they have to, they've seen it before and it only makes them dizzy besides there's even less night life in Prescott than here.

Sweetie Pie this is .000 get well love and kisses.

Founded in 1873 and published on Tuesdays and Fridays during the academic year by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University, Incorporated, Kingston, Ontario. Founding member of Canadian University Press. Editorial opinions expressed are those of the editor and not necessarily those of the AMS nor the University. Telephone (613) 547-2408. Printed by Shomes at the St. Lawrence Printing Co. Ltd., Prescott, Ontario. Lithographed in USA on Canadian newsprint.

Queen's Musical Theatre presents

GYPSY

at the grand theatre

February 5,6

7,8

8:30 P.M.

Tickets: $2.50
$3.00 (reserve seats only)

John Orr Room
Grand Theatre

IN THE SPIRIT OF GENESIS...
SATURDAY FEB. 1

FROM GREAT BRITAIN

THE STRAWBS AND MAN

HELP US HAVE MORE SHOWS. SUPPORT QUEEN'S CONCERTS.

QUEEN'S CONCERTS
PRESENTS

JOCK HARDY ARENA

TICKETS $3.00 student
$4.00 regular
$5.00 door

Commentary by

AMS President

Some food for thought

by Tony Wolman

The Problem: It seems there is not enough food to feed all those people who are hungry in the world.

The Other Problem: The situation is not getting any better and the concern of the people of the world is only superficial.

What Caused the Problem and the Other Problem: There exists a great number of works written on the topic of food and the related difficulties of producing it, if you want to know details go to your nearest library, you won't be disappointed through lack of material. You might start by reading the book, Limits to Growth: Meadows, and The Greening of America: Charles Reich.

The General Situation: The Earth and all that exists on this tremendously big ball is finite. Like a bag of popcorn, there is only so much to be had before you run out. And, while it is always possible to grow more food, it will not be possible to produce enough for the exponentially growing population.

money of which could be funneled into the desperately needed educational programs so that they stand a chance of self help.

The time is quickly approaching when the United States will not physically be able to help anyone. There will be no more mothering for any needy country; the feeding period will end and like a baby at a mother's breast, if it is unable to "feed itself" when the mammarys are dry, it will die of starvation, so too will be the fate of the poor, weak countries of the Third World.

Reason Why-not 3: MOTHER NATURE IS WAITING TO TAKE WHAT IS HERS. For many years now, man has prolonged his life through the use of drugs. Diseases that kill human life now have cures, but only so long as medicine exists. As the population grows and crowding increases, disease takes hold, and eventually there just won't be enough medicine to go around. People will die, lots of them.

Reason Why-not 4: In order to avert the above population reducing phenomena, the values of people in all countries will have to change. But if history holds any lesson, it is that changing of values is a slow, multi-generation process. And the simple fact is, there is not the luxury of time. From the moment the people of the world realize that the increasing population cannot be fed by projected food supplies and finally decide to limit any further population growth, there will be a time lag of about 50 years before the population in the world will tend towards stability in numbers.

population
of 6.2
billion by year 2000

If we go by the best optimistic estimates science has produced, there will be 6.2 Billion people on the surface of the Earth, in 2000 A.D. and this applies only if in 1975 all the people of the world have only two (2) children to replace themselves. Only if zero population growth is achieved by this year can we limit the number of people on the earth to 6.2 Billion. At present there are approximately 4 billion human beings on this planet. But, if we go by the best realistic estimates, and this assumes there is no world wide military conflict to intervene in this growth process, the population will be between 10 and 12 Billion early in the 21st century.

Well enough of the gloom and doom, because the chances that the world will ever see a population close to 10 billion are slim.

Reason Why-not 1: Population may grow exponentially it is unlikely food production can keep pace. (For details why, refer to Limits to Growth).

Reason Why-not 2: It seems that man will limit his numbers by embarking on a course of war. Why else would even the most poor countries be spending untold millions on defense, instead of development. India, with its fair share of the world's starving is exploding nuclear devices, the Reason Why-not 4: In order to avert the above population reducing phenomena, the values of people in all countries will have to change. But if history holds any lesson, it is that changing of values is a slow, multi-generation process. And the simple fact is, there is not the luxury of time. From the moment the people of the world realize that the increasing population cannot be fed by projected food supplies and finally decide to limit any further population growth, there will be a time lag of about 50 years before the population in the world will tend towards stability in numbers.

Reason Why-not 5: The values of people in all countries will have to change. But if history holds any lesson, it is that changing of values is a slow, multi-generation process. And the simple fact is, there is not the luxury of time. From the moment the people of the world realize that the increasing population cannot be fed by projected food supplies and finally decide to limit any further population growth, there will be a time lag of about 50 years before the population in the world will tend towards stability in numbers.

Reason Why-not 6: The values of people in all countries will have to change. But if history holds any lesson, it is that changing of values is a slow, multi-generation process. And the simple fact is, there is not the luxury of time. From the moment the people of the world realize that the increasing population cannot be fed by projected food supplies and finally decide to limit any further population growth, there will be a time lag of about 50 years before the population in the world will tend towards stability in numbers.

Reason Why-not 7: The values of people in all countries will have to change. But if history holds any lesson, it is that changing of values is a slow, multi-generation process. And the simple fact is, there is not the luxury of time. From the moment the people of the world realize that the increasing population cannot be fed by projected food supplies and finally decide to limit any further population growth, there will be a time lag of about 50 years before the population in the world will tend towards stability in numbers.

Reason Why-not 8: The values of people in all countries will have to change. But if history holds any lesson, it is that changing of values is a slow, multi-generation process. And the simple fact is, there is not the luxury of time. From the moment the people of the world realize that the increasing population cannot be fed by projected food supplies and finally decide to limit any further population growth, there will be a time lag of about 50 years before the population in the world will tend towards stability in numbers.

Reason Why-not 9: The values of people in all countries will have to change. But if history holds any lesson, it is that changing of values is a slow, multi-generation process. And the simple fact is, there is not the luxury of time. From the moment the people of the world realize that the increasing population cannot be fed by projected food supplies and finally decide to limit any further population growth, there will be a time lag of about 50 years before the population in the world will tend towards stability in numbers.

Reason Why-not 10: The values of people in all countries will have to change. But if history holds any lesson, it is that changing of values is a slow, multi-generation process. And the simple fact is, there is not the luxury of time. From the moment the people of the world realize that the increasing population cannot be fed by projected food supplies and finally decide to limit any further population growth, there will be a time lag of about 50 years before the population in the world will tend towards stability in numbers.

Reason Why-not 11: The values of people in all countries will have to change. But if history holds any lesson, it is that changing of values is a slow, multi-generation process. And the simple fact is, there is not the luxury of time. From the moment the people of the world realize that the increasing population cannot be fed by projected food supplies and finally decide to limit any further population growth, there will be a time lag of about 50 years before the population in the world will tend towards stability in numbers.

Reason Why-not 12: The values of people in all countries will have to change. But if history holds any lesson, it is that changing of values is a slow, multi-generation process. And the simple fact is, there is not the luxury of time. From the moment the people of the world realize that the increasing population cannot be fed by projected food supplies and finally decide to limit any further population growth, there will be a time lag of about 50 years before the population in the world will tend towards stability in numbers.

Reason Why-not 13: The values of people in all countries will have to change. But if history holds any lesson, it is that changing of values is a slow, multi-generation process. And the simple fact is, there is not the luxury of time. From the moment the people of the world realize that the increasing population cannot be fed by projected food supplies and finally decide to limit any further population growth, there will be a time lag of about 50 years before the population in the world will tend towards stability in numbers.

Reason Why-not 14: The values of people in all countries will have to change. But if history holds any lesson, it is that changing of values is a slow, multi-generation process. And the simple fact is, there is not the luxury of time. From the moment the people of the world realize that the increasing population cannot be fed by projected food supplies and finally decide to limit any further population growth, there will be a time lag of about 50 years before the population in the world will tend towards stability in numbers.

Reason Why-not 15: The values of people in all countries will have to change. But if history holds any lesson, it is that changing of values is a slow, multi-generation process. And the simple fact is, there is not the luxury of time. From the moment the people of the world realize that the increasing population cannot be fed by projected food supplies and finally decide to limit any further population growth, there will be a time lag of about 50 years before the population in the world will tend towards stability in numbers.

Reason Why-not 16: The values of people in all countries will have to change. But if history holds any lesson, it is that changing of values is a slow, multi-generation process. And the simple fact is, there is not the luxury of time. From the moment the people of the world realize that the increasing population cannot be fed by projected food supplies and finally decide to limit any further population growth, there will be a time lag of about 50 years before the population in the world will tend towards stability in numbers.

Reason Why-not 17: The values of people in all countries will have to change. But if history holds any lesson, it is that changing of values is a slow, multi-generation process. And the simple fact is, there is not the luxury of time. From the moment the people of the world realize that the increasing population cannot be fed by projected food supplies and finally decide to limit any further population growth, there will be a time lag of about 50 years before the population in the world will tend towards stability in numbers.

Reason Why-not 18: The values of people in all countries will have to change. But if history holds any lesson, it is that changing of values is a slow, multi-generation process. And the simple fact is, there is not the luxury of time. From the moment the people of the world realize that the increasing population cannot be fed by projected food supplies and finally decide to limit any further population growth, there will be a time lag of about 50 years before the population in the world will tend towards stability in numbers.

Reason Why-not 19: The values of people in all countries will have to change. But if history holds any lesson, it is that changing of values is a slow, multi-generation process. And the simple fact is, there is not the luxury of time. From the moment the people of the world realize that the increasing population cannot be fed by projected food supplies and finally decide to limit any further population growth, there will be a time lag of about 50 years before the population in the world will tend towards stability in numbers.

Reason Why-not 20: The values of people in all countries will have to change. But if history holds any lesson, it is that changing of values is a slow, multi-generation process. And the simple fact is, there is not the luxury of time. From the moment the people of the world realize that the increasing population cannot be fed by projected food supplies and finally decide to limit any further population growth, there will be a time lag of about 50 years before the population in the world will tend towards stability in numbers.

iv) the Arabs will have to share their oil, and the "have countries" must do with less G.N.P. (gross national product), and share their resources of advanced knowledge with the other countries around the world.

If alien beings from space wanted to make the Earth their own, there would be no question that the world would pull together, but why should this be the only call to battle. In both cases the extinction of the human race, as we conceive it today is at stake.

increased fuel costs are cutting into Uganda's thriving "safari" business for example. And when all the problems of these countries continue to rise in the future, again it should be pointed out that the United States will no longer be a place of refuge for the Third World governments to turn to.

Of all the food commodities that moved in world trade last year, the U.S. accounted for 89 percent of the soybeans, nearly 2/3 of all the corn, and more than 1/2 of all wheat and flour.

Technology, Is It The Answer? There is no doubt that technology has and can continue to provide us with many important instruments of need to help solve our problems.

But in spite of all the advances technology will provide, it will all be for not if the resources of the Earth are either totally consumed by the phenomenally large world population or else the remaining resources are polluted to death by the industry designed to provide this ever improved technology.

"miracle grains" halt Indian seed imports

India's Dilemma: Paul Knedel writer for the Plain Truth magazine states the dilemma of India as a case in point of what could happen. This vast nation has battled for many years to become self-sufficient and improve the lot of its 575 million people. Progress has been made in some areas-notably food production. The introduction of new high-yield strains of seed allowed India to halt grain imports for a time. But the bounty from the "miracle grains" is completely dependant upon heavy doses of fertilizers, herbicides and other chemical control products.

Now India faces a two-fold problem. First, the cost of these materials-nearly all of which are by products of petroleum or natural gas-has skyrocketed. India has little in currency reserves to meet the higher costs. Secondly, there is a severe fertilizer shortage in the world as a consequence of the energy crisis.

India's inflation rate was 24 per cent in 1974, and in some sections of the country riots over food costs, and labour wages were not uncommon. These may well be only the first of more serious disruptions as the energy crisis bites severely into India. But India is Not Alone: The fact of the matter is that there are 80 countries most of which are poorer than India, and many of which are at the mercy of the weather. Remember back in 1972 when 500,000 people were killed in a Monsoon tidal wave? The country was Bangladesh.

Some Third World countries whose only source of revenue is tourism are suffering from a slump. Rising air fares due to

RAPE: "The only crime in which the victim is doubly violated; first of all by the attacker, and secondly by society."

Compiled by Janet Ritchie

"Once in a Cabinet meeting we had to deal with the fact that there had been an outbreak of assaults on women at night. One minister suggested a curfew, women should stay home after dark, I said, 'but it's the men who are attacking the women. If there's to be a curfew, let the men stay home, not the women.'"

—Golda Meir, quoted in Against Rape, by Andrea Medea and Kathleen Thompson.

"Current confusions over rape are the logical outgrowth of a moral code that teaches that there are two kinds of women - bad women, who enjoy sex, and good women, who don't, and have to be overpowered. To believe this is also to believe that women enjoy being 'conquered', and that any woman who leads a man on 'deserves what she gets'. Unfortunately, many men and women do believe this, which is why the rapist, in our imaginations, is always a slaving sex fiend, never the man next door. But the truth is that he is the man next door, moved by drink, frustration, rage, accident, or propinquity, plus some misinterpretation of signals to move along the continuum too far."

—Shana Alexander, "A Simple Question of Rape", in Newsweek, Oct. 28, 1974.

"... the issue is distorted to one of female morality and feminine rectitude. Instead of limiting man's sexual aggression, it is easier for men to limit women's freedom."

—from "Do Women Make Men Violent?" Ms.

"Rape was an insurrectionary act. It delighted me that I was defying and trampling upon the white man's law, upon his system of values, and that I was defying his women - and this point, I believe, was the most satisfying to me because I was very resentful over the historical fact of how the white man had used the black woman. I felt I was getting revenge."

—Eldridge Cleaver, quoted in "Victimology and Rape", by Kurt Weiss and Sandra S. Borges, in Issues in Criminology.

"Rape is a redundant legal concept. It is an act already defined as illegal in the definition of assault, sexual abuse, and coercion. The redundancy is necessary only to single out female sexual organs and female sexual behaviour. The rape law consequently reinforces traditional sex roles, restricts the options available to women in defining their personal and sexual careers, and reinforces the notion that a woman's sexuality is more important than her own person or self. Studies in the sociology of knowledge and a Marxist framework suggest that the rape law is not intended to protect women per se but rather that such a law is to protect male sexual property. The law and court process following a rape charge serve to mortify, denigrate, and transfer guilt to the victim. Removing rape as a special crime is the legal status and exploring the implications of this for liberated consciousness would (a) increase the options available to women in defining who they are and in determining their sexual careers, (b) decrease the greater 'sacredness' of female sexual organs relative to male sexual organs and thereby decrease the influence of the double standard, (c) remove the stigma and guilt producing procedures women undergo when taking court action against rapists, and (d) possibly increase the likelihood of successful convictions under other laws."

—synopsis from Author's Abstract of Baril, Cecile, and Iain Couchman, Rape as a False Issue in the Liberation Movement.

If someone grabs your wrist, use leverage to pry up against his thumb. React quickly before he can get a proper grip.

"Each day reveals new tales of the horrors committed by West Pakistan soldiers, drunk with power, hate, malice, and perhaps a sense of impending defeat. Bodies of large numbers of women have been found buried in university grounds and mango groves - women kept for the pleasure of the soldiers and murdered when they conceived. Sources put the number of pregnant women at 50,000 to over 80,000; in nine out of ten cases their families refused to accept them. Some will be taken back, but hardly any of the babies will. So the women try to abort, with many dying in the process. The Bangladesh Government has set up camps where pregnant women are taken care of or can have their babies aborted if they want. Dr. Harvey Karman of Los Angeles trained about a hundred doctors and paramedics who will be able to go into the villages and teach midwives abortion methods, safe even in seven-month pregnancies. To the effort to restore these women to society should be added a campaign to teach people to give them sympathetic understanding."

—synopsis by S. Whaley of Bachi J. Karkari, Raped Women of Bangladesh.

"Little was reported at the time of the war between East and West Pakistan about the 200,000 Bengali women who were victims of rape by West Pakistani soldiers. In spite of the plea by Prime Minister Rahman that the women be considered 'Heroines' and applauded by the nation, the cultural abhorrence of sexual violation is so great that the woman is not only ostracized, but somehow blamed for her plight. The concept of the raped woman as 'damaged' is a morbid exaggeration of the idea of woman as object with only one possessor. Women, even children were herded into barracks that were then used as brothels, with some of the girls used until they died. The luckiest were those who survived well enough to conceal their rapes and thus not 'dishonour' their husbands. Abortions have helped some, although abortions were illegal except to save a woman's life before this. One gets the feeling that the babies born of the rapes will be killed. According to news reports the government is setting up a system of international adoption; it is also helping some women in job-training programs."

—synopsis by S. Whaley of Joyce Goldman, "The Women of Bangladesh", Ms. August, 1972.

Of a rapist with fourteen victims: "His modus operandi, Detective Pastore says, was the same in every case. He would present himself as a delivery man with a package 'downstairs in the truck'. The package was too large to fit through the door: Might he use the telephone to call his boss for instructions? Having gained entrance and established that the victim was alone, he would grab her and threaten to use a knife if she didn't submit. None put up a fight."

"It's amazing how every one of the women bought his story," Detective Pastore says, "and I think they would again today. People are so stupid about this sort of thing. There's this psychological appeal...." "Oh, a package for me?" She says that several of the victims still believed, after having been raped, that he was a delivery man. As he was leaving, one asked: "But how about my package?"

—M.W. Lear in New York Times Magazine, Jan. 30, 1972.

"Western capitalist society... stresses competition and achievement. Losers are not held in high regard; one avoids identifying with them. They are stigmatized for not winning in a competitive society. The general cultural dislike and disregard even extends to the point of blaming the victim for being victimized. In general, victims are thought to 'have asked for it' and deserved whatever they got. In cases of severe victimization, in order to construct elaborate rationalizations and justifications, it is often necessary both publicly and personally to 'prove' why the victim is still worthy of blame and get just what he deserved. The study of cognitive dissonance shows that attempts are often made to find information that puts the victim in a bad light so that, in effect, his misfortune was deserved and therefore it was reasonable for him to become a victim and proper for him to suffer. This need for consonance and harmony can compel normal people to fabricate victim-damning stories that would justify the victimization and diminish any guilt feelings they have for the lack of compassion or public action to stop or prevent the victimization, as the following example indicates:

"After the National Guard killed four students at Kent State, several rumours quickly spread: the slain girls were pregnant, so their deaths spared their families from shame; the students were filthy and had lice on them. These rumours were totally untrue, but the townspeople were eager to believe them (Aronson, 1973: 4a).... Fairness forbids that nasty things happen to nice people."

Weiss, R., and Borges S.S., "Victimology and Rape", in Issues in Criminology.

"Of all the violent crimes that scar city life today, rape is the most squalid and least tractable. The pain and humiliation of reciting details mean that victims do not even report the offense. The victim's testimony alone (is often) insufficient for conviction - and the very nature of the offense means that there are rarely cooperating witnesses. But worst of all, a woman faced with a rapist faces a harrowing dilemma: resist, and thus risk the possibility of injury, or to submit docilely, and thus skeptical lawmen and juries to assume may have consented."

—"The Least Punishable Crime", Newsweek, December 18, 1971.

"Authors hasten and time has told us that every victim resists to a certain degree and the must be the aggressor. When the defilee says, 'That is the gentleman who did me', we need corroboration. If jaw is broken, for example, that is of force. Otherwise, how do we know was raped? The difference between rape and romance is a very thin line and we need to be careful. When a man is charged rape, he loses a tremendous amount of respect in the community."

—State Assembly Joseph F. Lisa, quoted by M.W. Lear in New York Times Magazine, January 30, 1972.

Bring your heel over his kneecap, scrape down his leg and slam into his instep.

"... the effect, gives greater protection to go... up a woman, don't stop until you've... her: then they can't get you on the... be a woman, don't rob... on the theft... a woman, you might... rape is free."

—M.W. Lear, New York Times Magazine, January 30, 1972.

"We've been looking for this guy for a long time. Two... we picked him up for attempted rape... was a throw-out in court: no corroboration. Now we have this poor woman, who got raped. The... like hell and didn't... been indicted for assault in the... She's scarred for life and you know she says now? She says she wishes she hadn't fought, and maybe he wouldn't have cut her up the horrible way he did."

"A lot of officers, especially the old-timers, believe that unless a woman comes in bruised, there's no rape. They also say, 'Unless a woman's a virgin, what's the big deal?' But I wonder: If one of those guys was suddenly jumped and forced to commit sodomy at gunpoint, wouldn't he be pretty upset? wouldn't he submit?"

"These women have no reason to lie. Sometimes there's a love triangle, where a woman yells 'rape' to get even with a guy, but you can screen those cases out easily enough. But, for God's sake, when the woman never saw the guy before in her life, and she tells you he raped her in the park or in the hallway, and she identifies him... what more corroboration should a judge need? Why isn't this woman's word good enough?"

—Detective Al Simon, Central Park Precinct, quoted by M.W. Lear in New York Times Magazine, January 30, 1972.

"Though corroboration is not required in any category of crimes other than sex offenses, it is required in certain other criminal situations. In a bribery case, for example, Accomplice A cannot be the sole witness against accomplice B, since accomplices are held to be untrustworthy as witnesses. The analogy to rape cases is instructive."

—M.W. Lear in the New York Times Magazine, January 30, 1972.

"The criminal rapist is a hero in prison, idolized as a highly masculine figure. It's the child molester who's at the bottom of the prison hierarchy. He's the guy they really hate, the guy they call 'baby-f---er', and if they had a chance, they'd kill him. But the rapist is a very popular fellow. He knows that society sees his act as evil, but he doesn't see it as evil. He has all kinds of denial mechanisms: He was drunk, the woman really wanted it... that kind of thing. He is a sociopath, of course, but he's not necessarily 'sick' in the psychiatric sense - especially if he's young and was involved in some gang-bang and was afraid to chicken out. His whole background is one in which the man is king of his castle and women are tolerated as slaves - and he simply takes what he wants."

"It's not because he doesn't have available sex - I've never met a rapist who doesn't have available sex - but simply because he feels tremendous contempt and hostility for women, and this is his way of expressing it."

—W. Prendergast, psychologist at Rahway, New Jersey State Prison, quoted by M.W. Lear in New York Times Magazine, January 30, 1972.

"In one-third of the cases, victim and offender had known one another prior to the rape."

"Three-quarters of the rapes - particularly the group rapes, which made up 43 per cent of the total - had been planned."

Most were committed indoors, a third in the victim's homes; the legendary dark-alley rape was rare."

—Most rapes were committed on weekends, the peak time being Fridays between 8 p.m. and midnight.

—In two-thirds of the cases, there was no alcohol factor."

—from M. Amir, Patterns in Forcible Rape, based on his investigation of 616 rape cases in Philadelphia.

Stay back and kick instead of punching. Kick from your knee instead of straight-legged.

"For a phenomenon so stringently fixed by law, rape has been astonishingly little understood and little written about, and remains the most myth-ridden of all crimes. In various times and places, the rapist has been seen as a monster, a mental retardate, a gay blade. The crime was punishable in Saxon law by death; under William the Conqueror by castration and loss of eyes. The punishment a society metes out to rape is an index to its sexual attitudes, of course; in fifteenth century England, offenders might escape sentence by marrying their victims, which presupposes the rapist as a kind of redeemable sport."

"Victorian attitudes were predictably harsh. In one of the earliest (1892) psychiatric evaluations, Krafft-Ebing, in his monumental 'Psychopathia Sexualis'... writes: 'The crime of rape presumes a temporary, powerful excitation of sexual desire, induced by excess in alcohol or by some other conditions... rape is very often the act of degenerate male imbeciles.'"

NOTE: before the beginning of the paragraph "For a phenomenon there is a BREAKER."

"Contemporary evaluations are less baroque and much of the literature is singularly casual about the crime. Thus, psychologist Bernard Oliver Jr. notes: 'The rapist tend to be emotionally immature, have deep feelings of insecurity and inferiority, are social pariahs, and seem to have considerable difficulty in having adequate social relations... In summary, we may say that victims can usually escape from any prolonged effects... if they are able to develop a sound emotional attitude about it.'"

—from M.W. Lear in New York Times Magazine, Jan. 30, 1972.

"John M. is twenty-eight years old, five feet eleven inches tall, white, unmarried, weighs 172 pounds. Between February and August of 1969, he raped thirteen women and attempted to rape twelve more. He grew up in a city slum. When he was eight, he was sexually assaulted by his mother, stepfather, and three of his stepfather's male friends, an incident he blocked from his mind for nineteen years. By a special court order, he spent most of his early childhood living with his grandparents, who he was told were his real parents. When he was twelve his grandmother died and his grandfather sent him away to rejoin his mother and eleven stepisters and brothers. John has red hair that hangs to his shoulders, a quiet, gentle voice, and an innocent boyish face. In February, 1970, he was sentenced to an indeterminate prison term (up to thirty years) on one count of rape. This was part of his account of how, and why, it happened."

"The women I raped weren't suggestive kinds of people, they didn't give you come-ons. My victims were people who wouldn't hurt a fly, who dug life, who didn't have to be cruel or cold to survive. I knew something about the personalities of all the women I raped. I saw them first at parties or movies, observed their interactions, their being. They were always gentle and petite. They were people who walked past you on the street and smiled and meant that smile, people who had a happiness about them. I really hated these types - the innocent, passive, warm ones I never went near women that acted like sluts. I knew they were just as phony as I was. If a woman I was trying to rape had shrugged and said, 'Okay, go ahead, you son of a bitch,' I probably would have stopped. I wanted to be in control, just for once, and that would have taken it away from me."

"Some girls can't do anything to avoid being victims: it's not them per se that's being attacked. The trigger could be their physical shape or the length of their hair - one of 10,000 things."

—from "Rape File: A Special Report", Viva, November, 1974.

In 1973, two rapes were reported to the Kingston Police Department. In 1974, two rapes were reported as well - one of these was cleared by arrest.

If he attempts to choke you with his forearm, turn your throat into the crook of his elbow.

Canadian tale of nationalism

Exxoneration
by Richard Rohmer
McClelland & Stewart Ltd.

by Peter Haworth

To possess the gift of story telling is a great craft. But telling an improbable story in a convincing manner is a still greater craft. Richard Rohmer's sequel to his best-selling Ultimatum tells an intriguing story of Canadian and American politics in the near future. While Rohmer manages to convince us of two surprising world events, he would have done better to develop Exxoneration more fully.

The story contains a serious flaw in that Rohmer wrote the most exciting chapters first, and then constructed his main plot from the ruins of the first. His main character, de Gasse, an intellectual superhero straddles the two plots of the Americans' bungled attempt to annex Canada and the Canadians' successful bid to control Exxon, the world's largest oil corporation. The first plot is handled masterfully, as Rohmer accounts for Canadian and world reaction to stop the Americans' invasion, but the second plot seems unlikely, especially considering Canada's tenuous relations with the United States that follow from the first plot.

Rohmer founds the future situations by referring to present world problems, from which he extrapolates his story. He sketches the two most surprising events in the book quite well, but since he glosses over descriptions of minor characters, we have difficulty in accepting the actions of certain characters. (How could the Americans overlook the Russians' reaction to an invasion of Canada?) The most absurd story can assume a disguise of reality when the author develops his characters; in Exxoneration Rohmer's bare outlines leave us with puzzling questions.

Both Ultimatum and Exxoneration evoke strong Canadian nationalism in the reader - a nationalism that Americans naturally regard with distrust. In his efforts to convince us of the Canadian victories, Rohmer depicts a contrived picture of Americans as imbeciles if they oppose Canada and as intelligent people if they sympathize with Canada. As an essay on events of the near future, Rohmer uses suspicious tactics. On the surface, a reader will find Exxoneration gratifying, and Rohmer has counted on such sympathies to draw the reader in. His smooth style allows for quick reading, although his frequent sticky moments cause disconcerting jolts. As a piece of Canadian nationalism, Exxoneration is interesting reading, but beware of the traps, and hold at arms length.

Many thanks to Smith-Hill bookstore, 193 Princess St., for the generous donation of this book for review.

Candidates

All Candidates for AMS Outer Council and Faculty Society executives please submit campaign blurbs to the Journal Office in the Union no later than Tues. Feb. 4 for publication in Election issue.

Blurbs should not exceed 250 words and will be arbitrarily shortened if in excess of the prescribed limit. Candidates should be at Journal Office 7 pm Tues. for photos.

Strawbs' flaw disguised

by Paul Luke

These two albums have a similar problem, although it is manifested in a diametrically opposed form in each. That problem is, in a word, style. Man, in slow motion have a dismally inadequate conception of what it takes to create a distinctive sound, while, in their album, Strawbs often endeavour to create grandiose sound mansions on top of feeble foundations. In other words, Man lacks almost any sense of style, while Strawbs have a stifling, almost over-developed sense of the same, and tend to compensate for musical infirmity with a deluge of musical ornament.

Cliches, when they are manipulated and transcended in imaginative sound settings, are a large part of what successful mainstream rock draws upon. Slow Motion is an example of the withering tediousness of the naked cliché, utterly bereft of originality of treatment. It is an album of hackneyed, warmed-over chords and choruses served up with a drooling, cretinous exuberance. Man's idea of balance and dynamics is to alternate fast gussy songs which appeal to the crotch in all of us with slow, sipping descriptions of female beauty ("Rainbow Eyes"). Their idea of variety is to combat monotony with over-worked production touches: a horn section here, a maudlin string section there, and wherever else there is room, some real macho slide and double-tracked lead guitars. This album is the kind of earnest hack work that would make ideal warm-up music for Bachman-Turner Overdrive records at a drunken teenage petting orgy and it's a sure bet that the kids would either weep or throw-up after listening to "Rainbow-Eyes".

At least in Bursting at the Seams Strawbs have the good sense to disguise their weaker material under artful arrangements.

Strawbs base their sound upon shimmering guitar textures, multiple vocal overdubs, restrained keyboard accompaniment and thoughtful orchestration. Their relative mastery of the latter is heard with telling effect in the record's highpoint, "Down By the Sea" where a vaguely fugal brass and a string arrangement is overdubbed on top of the track's concluding hook.

Strawbs' forte is clearly production rather than songwriting. The entire album is rather arid as far as memorable choruses go and no amount of studio cosmetics can save a song like "Lay Down" from insipid chorus and lyrics. In songs such as "Flying" the angelic quality of the vocals is undercut by the less than cherubic nature of the inexpressive lyrics. When Strawbs do master their inclinations towards slick, brylcream productions the results are pleasing, such as in "The Winter and the Summer" and "Pavan," the companion piece to "Tears" which utilizes a spritely harpsichord introduction with delicious mandolin harmonies and hand-claps on the offbeats.

Crystal Restaurant
TASTY FOODS
COURTEOUS SERVICE
"THE PLACE WHERE ALL GOOD PEOPLE MEET & EAT"

STEAKS - CHOPS - CHICKEN - SEAFOOD
SPAGHETTI - SHISH-KEBAB
SOUVLAKI - STROGANOFF

OPEN 7 DAYS
Try our Delicious Shish Kebab
240 PRINCESS

TAKE-OUT SERVICE
Free Delivery
Over $3.00

KGTV 542-8515

Greb Kodiak Boots
Sizes 4 to 13
Lee style stripe Bib Overalls
14 oz. jeans - Bootleg or flares

Your largest selection of denims and casual wear.

Larry's Men's Wear
354 King St. E.
Just three doors from Princess.

Symposium Rape!

Monday
February 3
at 8pm
Lower Common Room
Victoria Hall

Ms. Anne Ferguson - Chairperson
Queen's Law School

Detective - Sergeant Michael Breen
Kingston Police Force

Dr. Hugh Gorwill
Gynecologist, KGH

Mr. John Bett
Assistant Crown Attorney, Kingston

Ms. Debra Lewis
Toronto Rape Crisis Centre
Sponsored by the Women's Office and the Women's Law Caucus. For information call 547-6921

Queen's Musical Theatre presents "Gypsy"

Pamela Robinson as Louise in "Gypsy"

"Gypsy" in rehearsal in Grant Hall

This year Queen's Musical Theatre presents Gypsy, a musical fable based on the memoirs of Gypsy Rose Lee. The show is scheduled to open at the Grand Theatre, Wednesday to Saturday, February 5th to 8th.

Director Ron Arnold, a new face in the Kingston area, has managed to gather a fine group of University performers. Karen Skidmore, a fourth year music major, stars as Rose the stage mother whose main concern is to get her daughters in show business. Her main interest is in June, played by Fay Harper. She is one who supposedly has all the talent, and her mother tends to push Louise, Pamela Robinson, into the background. Gordon Ritchie, who plays Herbie the manager, rounds out the lead roles and will add much to the performance.

Tickets are available at the Grand Theatre and in the John Orr Room in the Students' Union. Admission is $2.50 for Wednesday and Thursday night shows and $3.00 on Friday and Saturday.

Bite the one you love

STEAK & STUFF
LICENCED DINING ROOM 1399 Princess (near the station)
AUNT LUCY'S RESTAURANTS

George Bailey
sporting goods
40 Princess Street Kingston, Ontario K7L 1A4
Tel. 534-2323

You make the deal -
Volk and Atomic skis
Nordica and Henke Boots
Woods, Topher & Actra clothing
plus accessories
Put together a package for yourself,
we're reasonable people.

BUY A 'Houseful' of Chicken and KEEP THE HOUSE

Bucket No. 1 15 pieces $6.15
Bucket No. 2 12 Pieces, French Fries, for 4-5, Gravy $6.15
Barrel - 18 Pieces $7.35

Delivery (in Kingston) - 50c orders $8.00 or Over
FREE DELIVERY
CALL 542-4255 any day of the week

"HOWICKS" Just arrived. Original HOWICK Jeans in chambray and 14 oz. denim, cords, and stars. Many others.

GREB KODIAK BOOTS
A-1 CLOTHING
359 King St. (Corner of Princess)

WHAT WOULD YOU
SAY?

IF IT WERE YOUR LAST OPPORTUNITY TO ADDRESS MANKIND
WHAT WOULD YOU SAY?

"THE LAST LECTURE SERIES"

is a series of informal evenings combining listening and discussion

Wed. Feb. 5

Mr. Jim Courtright

Vice-Principal

Everyone Welcome

TIME: 7:15 p.m. - McNEIL COMMON HOUSE
CO-SPONSORED BY AMS ED. COMM. AND I.R.C.

PRICELESS... WITHIN REASON

Precious diamonds do not have to cost a fortune. We can help you to select a fine diamond that you can afford. Regardless of your financial status, we can offer a superb diamond that will thrill you... and never leave you flat.

KINNEAR D'ESTERRE
JEWELLERS
168 PRINCESS STREET
KINGSTON, ONTARIO

Moe Koffman in concert

- Fred van driel

Rich and striking music

by Paul Luke

Tuesday evening's excellent concert proved that Canada, in the persons of David Bradstreet and Moe Koffman, has a folk artist and a jazz artist of the first rank. Bradstreet is a uniformly superb vocalist and guitarist and his best songs stand shoulder to shoulder with anything that Canadian folk music has produced within the last few years. Koffman's strength lies in his unsurpassed flute technique and his ground-breaking fusions and interpretations of different musical idioms.

Bradstreet's set was all too brief, giving the audience but a tantalizing taste of what the man is capable of. Bradstreet owns a ringing, baritone which many folksingers would be glad to have, and its easy resonance was heard to best advantage in songs such as "Old Dance" and the untitled last song of his set. The former is set in waltz time and although, as Bradstreet took some pains to explain, it is of dubious dancing value, it has an unforgettable, lilting melody which Bradstreet swung effortlessly into. So beguiling was this performance that one almost forgot to notice the song's lyrical dimension, its affirmation of life and vitality in the midst of old age. Bradstreet's closing number, more a mini-epic than a song, was a compact exploration of imagination, memory, and the encroaching cares of adult life. Even after this brief exposure to his music one can see that Bradstreet is a richly deserving artist who has at this point, very few peers among up and coming Canadian folksingers.

Moe Koffman appeared onstage resplendent in a green velvet suit with a modified love-child shirt and medallion. Somehow this get-up seemed to bear a resemblance to his music itself which is rich and striking without being tastelessly extravagant. The band with which Koffman surrounded himself was superior to the ensemble which jazz-flautist Paul Horn brought with him last fall in both flexibility and individual competence. The one exception to this was Koffman's drummer whose indiscriminate and heavy-handed fondness for his cymbals was more distracting than emphatic Horn's concert tended to stress interpretations of contemporary rock-based material, whereas Koffman only once edged towards a bit of polite funk in his version of "Feel Like Making Love," the only unworthy number of the whole performance. However, two pieces, Koffman's adaptation of Bartok's "Piano Concerto for Orchestra" and "Anetra's Dance" boiled with all the energy and excitement of the best rock music.

The feature of the concert which may have disappointed some was his studious avoidance of those works which have recently brought him some notoriety, namely the Bach and Vivaldi albums. This deliberate omission can best be seen in the light of Koffman's continuing capacity for innovation and his refusal to let proven formulas of success hinder the development of his music. When Koffman did rework "Two Bourees" from the Bach album the finished song owed far more to the atonality of the twentieth century than it did to Bach himself. Koffman injected an element of violence into the middle section of this work which had pianist Don Thompson raging up and down the keyboard in frantic chromatic charges, while Koffman himself offered pungent, atonal bursts from his flute, curiously mixed with fragments of blues fills. After the whole band had swelled into a screaming climax the music gradually relaxed and modulated back into its original hard rock rhythms and a recapitulation of Bach's theme. Altogether an impressively eclectic accomplishment from the man who used to be known only for "Golden Shephard Blues."

In recent years Moe Koffman has won a large measure of the respect to which he is entitled but what is significant is that his new audience has been a stimulus and a challenge to him and he has refused to become snug and complacent. Success has been for Koffman that which one heartily wishes it might prove for other musicians, not an end in itself, but rather the soil for even greater musical growth.

- Fred van driel

- Peter Ca

- Chris Woods

David Bradstreet played to responsive audience last Tuesday evening.

Commerce Society Executive

NOMINATIONS FOR THE FOLLOWING POSITIONS

President (FROM 76 or 77)

Vice President (FROM 76 or 77)

Secretary

Treasurer

Bews Athletic Stick

WIC Representative (NEW POSITION)

Social Convenor

Junior AMS Rep.

Senior AMS Rep.

Must be submitted by

Wed. Feb. 5

IN ROOM 120 OUNNING HALL.
INQUIRIES SHOULD BE MADE TO

B. KOSH PRESIDENT

Nominations must be accompanied by 25 signatures from members of the Commerce Society.

Are women smarter than men?

This week we are going to find out

HOW? By seeing if more women than men buy records in our store.

WHY? Because our prices on 85 to 90 per cent of all albums are much cheaper.

WHEN? We find out the answer, we'll let you know.

Sincerely,

Tremblay's Music Store

356 PRINCESS ST.

P.S. Don't be a Dummy

Molson Export Ale.
Great.
Because it keeps on
tasting great.

From the Sports Desk

Home Action

Friday—Indoor Archery (W) OWIAA championships at Queen's 1:30 - 6:00 Bart.

Basketball: (W) Ottawa Bartlett 8:00

Saturday—Archery (W) OWIAA Championships 9:30 - 1:00 Bart.

Basketball: (W) Carleton 1:30 Bartlett

Swimming: (M & W) 1st Queen's Co-Ed Invitational all day in the pool.

Away Action

Alpine Skiing: (M & W) RMC Invitational at Calabogie

Badminton: (M) FE (Divisionals) RMC

Basketball: (M) at York and Laurentian

(W) at Ryerson

Curling: East (Divisionals) at Trent

Fencing: (M) FE (Divisionals) at Trent

(W) OWIAA Championship at Toronto

Gymnastics: McMaster Invitational

Hockey: (W) at Guelph

(M) at Laurentian

Volleyball: (M) at Ryerson

(W) Challenge Cup II at Laurier

(W) at Ryerson

OWIAA Stats

Basketball: Eastern Standings

	GP	W	L	Pts
Laurentian	6	6	0	12
Queen's	6	4	2	8
Ottawa	6	4	2	8
Toronto	7	3	4	6
York	5	1	4	2
Carleton	6	0	6	0

Fencing

	1st place	2nd place	3rd place	4th place
McGill
Queen's
Ottawa

Figure Skating

	1st place	2nd place	3rd place	4th place
Queen's
Toronto
York
McMaster

OCAA Stats

Basketball: Eastern Standings

	GP	W	L	TP
Laurentian	9	8	1	16
Ottawa	6	6	0	12
Carleton	7	4	3	8
Queen's	8	4	4	8
Toronto	6	3	3	6
York	5	2	3	4
Ryerson	9	2	7	4
RMC	8	0	8	0

Hockey: Eastern Division

	GP	W	L	T	TP
Ottawa	10	7	2	1	15
Toronto	8	6	1	1	13
York	8	5	2	1	11
Queen's	8	5	3	0	10
Laurentian	9	4	4	1	9
RMC	9	2	6	1	5

the MARKET
BARBER SHOP & hairstyling salon
Peter Smits invites you
to his new hair care shop
45 BROCK ST., 549-2110 KINGSTON ONT.

CHUNG WAH CHOP SUEY
CHINESE & CANADIAN FOOD
TAKE OUT AND DELIVERY DIAL 544-6128
217 UNIVERSITY (CORNER OF WILLIAMS)
OPEN 8 AM TO MIDNIGHT
SUNDAY 10 AM TO 8 PM

Having difficulty finding books for study or research in local bookshops? Order from us!

ADADEMIC BOOK CLUB,
P.O. Box 1507,
Kingston, K7L 5C7.

Wrestlers take to ice

by Alex Faseruk
Journal Sports Writer

On Tuesday, January 28, the Wrestling Gals displayed their versatility by taking to the ice in Jock Hardy Arena, taking on the Hockey Gals. Although the Gals won 4-1, the score was indeed no indication of the generally close checking game. The Gals were extremely lucky that goalie Jack MacPhee held the Gals to a single goal, scored by Barb Fee and assisted by Janean Gerow and the goalie Wanda Gyde. Other outstanding Gals included Karen Scully and Margie Bartlett.

Curling

This weekend the Queen's curling team will be travelling to Lakefield in order to participate in the East Sectionals. The two day event, hosted by Trent University, will see the Queen's rink play the other seven teams in the East. The top two teams will take part in the finals being held next week at the Cataract Golf and Country Club.

This is Mark McDonald's second year of skipping the Queen's rink, with Scott Kitching (vice) and Tom Bryce (lead) also back again this year. A newcomer to Queen's, Phil Tomsett, plays the second position.

Last year Queen's won the East Section play-downs and just missed winning the Ontario finals. Good curling guys!

The Gals were led by Seiji Ohlala who scored two goals. Both Randy White and Don Johnston each scored a goal and assisted on two more. Del DeMonte and Hugh Johnston each received a single assist.

The game proved to be mutually advantageous to both teams. For the Hockey Gals it was a change of pace and warm-up game for this weekend's encounter against Guelph. This will prove to be a tough game for the Gals since it will decide first place in the standings. In their last game Queen's and Guelph played to a 3-3 tie, just before December exams. The Gals held a 3-1 lead late in the game but had to settle for the 3-3 tie. With the Gals increased experience and conditioning, they may hopefully be able to beat Guelph and clinch first place.

For the Wrestlers, it broke up some of the monotony of an extended training period. The Wrestling team is idle for the weekend and only have two tournaments left in their season. On February 8, the team will compete in a triangle meet being held in Canton N.Y. against St. Lawrence U. and Syracuse U. As mentioned in a previous article, St. Lawrence U. is one of the best wrestling schools in New York State and Syracuse U. is ranked within the top ten schools in the United States. After competing in this inevitably tough tournament, the Gals will face the OCAA championships being held this year on February 14 and 15 at McMaster.

THE BOOK BIN

225 Princess
(next to the Capital Theatre)

WE
BUY and SELL
Paperbacks, Textbooks
and Antiquarian Books
USED RECORDS
Sold on Consignment

ART REPRODUCTIONS
POSTERS

Please Bring US Your Books and Records

COME SKI THE MAJESTIC WEST

Banff
FROM TORONTO $168-RT

Prices quoted include:
• Accommodation standard 126 - based on double occupancy.
• Motorcoach transportation from Calgary Airport to accommodation and return.
• Motorcoach transfers between accommodation and ski areas.
• Ski Lifts: TICKETS & night-7 day packages include ski lift tickets for 5 days. Ski lift tickets for Banff, Jasper and Lake Louise are interchangeable.

$294<sup>00</sup>

DAILEY'S TRAVEL 212 Princess St. 544-5755

Dept. of Film Studies Presents:
A Sergio Leone Film Festival

The Good, The Bad and The Ugly
Friday, 8 P.M.

Duck You Sucker (Fistful of Dynamite)
Saturday, 3 P.M.

Once Upon A Time In The West
Saturday, 8 P.M.

JANUARY 31, FEBRUARY 1

All In ELLIS HALL $1.00 Each Film

Badminton....

Not for the birds

by Diana Edwards

Journal Sports Writer

The Queen's Intercollegiate Women's Badminton team made an excellent showing at their East Sectional tournament held in Toronto last weekend. They managed to accumulate a grand total of 30 points. Unfortunately they lost to Toronto by just one heartbreaking point, but are gradually closing the gap in total points between themselves and T.O. Other schools competing last weekend at Ryerson were Ottawa, Ryerson and York.

Individually the girls were outstanding in their singles matches. First singles player Daphne Meredith, 4th singles, Sandy Koerner and 6th singles Laurie Preston, were all stars of the day by crushing their opponents in every one of their singles matches. As of yet, Laurie Preston has not lost any singles or doubles matches this season. The other team players, 3rd singles Betsy Carey and 5th singles Sandy McFarlane, contributed only one loss apiece while 2nd singles Diana Edwards lost a total of only 2 games.

The Badminton Gals literally shone in their doubles matches with 3rd doubles team Sandy Koerner and Laurie Preston, on another one of their winning streaks, not losing any matches. First doubles Daphne Meredith and Diana Edwards, and 2nd doubles Betsy Carey and Sandy McFarlane, dazzled and defeated all of their opposition except for that infamous foe, University of Toronto.

In one week's time the Badminton girls will travel down to Waterloo to face their West Section opponents and attempt to defeat them in the OWIAA

Combined finals. Coach Bernie Houghton has the girls with their noses to the grindstone in order to whip them into shape so they are ready to meet their tough competition on February 7th and 8th. If they can, the Badminton Gals will try and raise their present OWIAA team standing from third place to a prestigious first. Best of luck for the upcoming meet.

lyn alwood

Murphy's Sea Food Restaurant

Lobster
Shrimp
Oysters

Clam Chowder
Fish and Chips

70 Brock St.
548-7753

Show Her The Way You Feel

with a Petite Diamond Ring
from

Brock Jewellers

Love diamond ring
Set in 10k yellow
gold

$42.00

THE DIAMOND PEOPLE
BROCK

JEWELLERS

161 Princess St.

THE ALMOST EVERYTHING STORE

Famous Brand
Names at Discount Prices

Jeans

Jeans

Jeans

Ladies famous Canadian maker jeans
in cords, denims and brushed denim
lots of colours and styles
sizes 6 to 20
values to 13.99

6.99

International Week, Feb. 5-8

A chance for Queen's students to participate in various aspects of our Global Village

Prospectives on Africa today -

Films from Zambia, Nigeria, Ghana and Guinea Bissau

Followed by discussion over coffee and donuts

Wed., Feb. 5, Dunning Hall 7:30 to 10:30 p.m.

Prospectives For Peace

Grad Day symposium on the Middle East with representatives invited from...
PALESTINE LIBERATION ORGANIZATION (New York)
ZIONIST LEAGUE (Toronto)
JOE FLEXER, Former Zionist Member of RMG

Thurs., Feb. 6, Ellis Hall, 8:00 p.m.

Afternoon of Indian classical dance and music

FEATURING MME RANGANATHAN ON VINA
REFRESHMENTS AND DISCUSSION AFTERWARDS
SAT. FEB. 8, ELLIS HALL, 2 P.M.

WIC-ly News

CURLING starts this Sunday Feb. 2 and continues Sundays Feb. 9 & 23. The sheets of ice are reserved at the Kingston Curling Club (just behind the Phys. Ed Centre) from 12-2 p.m. on all three days. All those wishing to come out should meet at the Curling Club at 11:45 a.m. Remember that NO STREET SHOES are allowed, so bring some clean sneakers with you.

SNOWSHOEING The 2nd outing will take place tomorrow, Sat. Feb. 1 from 10-12 in the morning. Please meet in front of the Phys. Ed Centre at 9:45 a.m. If the snow appears to be lacking, give Christa Craig a call at 549-4649 and check to see if the outing is still on.

SQUASH The Squash Tournament, started last week, will continue this Monday night at 7:30 p.m.

JOGATHON So far this year, the turnout for Jogathon has been tremendous. Keep on running and don't forget to mark your total number of laps on the sheet up at the indoor track. Jogathon continues until ARCHERY Clinic will be held Monday, Feb. 3 from 7-8 p.m. The tournament will be held Thursday Feb. 5 and Friday Feb. 6, 7-9 p.m. Equipment is supplied and no experience is necessary. For further details call Betty Dickie 544-0247.

X-COUNTRY SKIING The snow came just in time for the first outing last Monday. Thanks to the 2 guest instructors—Jan Rawes and Alice Anne Turnbull. Hill climbing and some downhill running are in store for the upcoming Monday Feb. 3 outing. Everyone interested is asked to pick up skis, boot, poles at 6:30 p.m. on Monday Feb. 3. The bus for West Campus leaves at 7 p.m. sharp. THINK SNOW! For further info, contact Barb McKernott at 542-8080.

VOLLEYBALL Why is everyone so APATHETIC? Come on out for scheduled inter-faculty games on Tuesday nights and Recreational Volleyball on Thursdays. The schedule for this Tuesday night is: 7:15 p.m.

PHYS. ARTS '77
ENG VS MEDS

Robin Hood would be proud

by Larry Woods
Journal Sports Writer

Contrary to popular belief, there is an intercollegiate archer team at Queen's. There is no men's team, but there is a women's team, whose six members will be competing in the OWIAA archery championships here at Queen's today and tomorrow (Friday afternoon and Saturday morning).

Archery is treated as a team sport by Ontario universities, and the Queen's team will be competing against U of T, Guelph, and Western. Each team's point total for the meet is made up of the best four individual scores from each day, and there is also an award for the top individual score of the meet.

The equipment used in archery is fairly expensive, although the only equipment used includes a bow, some arrows, and a few accessories. The bows which the team provides cost from $130 to $200, and some team members pay up to $400 for their own bows. The standard shooting distance for indoor archery is twenty yards, and the target's twenty inch diameter is divided into ten rings. (Consequently, considerable practice is required in order to hit the centre ring, which is two inches in diameter.)

The archery team practices in the projectile range at the P.E. centre four nights a week. They are coached by Mr. Keith Kiell, a Kingston resident who comes in two or three nights a week. There is always room for people to try out for the team, and Kiell says that some individuals can develop a good shooting technique in a short period of time, although others find it a difficult sport. The best training for archery is practice, since much strength is required to keep a steady grip on a 25 pound bow in the drawn position.

This weekend will provide an excellent opportunity to watch practiced archers in action. There will be plenty of room for spectators in the Bartlett Gym this weekend, and the team would certainly benefit from spectator support.

Editors note: Apparently at last years OWIAA Archery Tournament, Toronto was so sure that it was going to win the champagne was brought out by the U. of T. team before Queen's had even finished shooting. Queens came 2nd in a close finish. Come out and cheer the Gals on against the Blues (Toronto has won the OWIAA Archery for the past 9 years).

photos by
lyn atwood

Cerre leads the way

by Peter Watts
Journal Sports Writer

The return of John Cerre to the hockey Gaels lineup could mean the difference between fifth place and a shot at second place in the east division of the OUA. That fact became abundantly clear on Wednesday night when Cerre led the tricolor to a 9-1 trouncing of the RMC Redmen at the Jock Hartly Arena. Number 16 got 3 goals and generally added considerable spark to what had been the Gaels' top line before Cerre was hurt in the first Queen's - RMC contest late in November. Single markers went to Frank Coffey, Bill White, Bill Van Camp, Craig Shannon, Doug Carty, and Dave Hadden, who played his best home game in the last month. Larry Russell got the lone goal for the Redmen midway through the third period as he deflected in a shot past netminder Clyde Harris. Other than that, Harris played flawlessly, blocking 24 shots. At the other end of the rink, RMC goalie Chris Amos was pelted with 41 drives and had little chance on all but a couple of the Gaels' markers.

Redmen coach Roy Weatherbee accepted the defeat philosophically. "Our goalie has to come up with a superb effort each time if we are to have a chance," he said after the game. "Tonight he got beat 9 times on 41 chances. In November, he stopped 65 shots against the Blues. But he didn't have a lot of help out there tonight."

Coupled with York's 10-2 trouncing of the University of Western Ontario Mustangs on Monday night, the Gaels victory over RMC creates a major traffic jam at the top of the east division. York, Toronto, and Ottawa are now tied for first spot, each with 15 points. Queens is right behind with 14 and Laurentian are in fifth spot with 10 points. But don't let that 4 point margin over Laurentian lull you into thinking that the tricolor have clinched a playoff spot. The Gaels still have to play Laurentian and Toronto on the road and Western at home. We can assume that if they do make it into the playoffs it will be on the basis of merit.

What would be really nice is if the Gaels could finish either first or second. Two weeks ago, no one would have thought that possible. But the idea is not as far-fetched today. It will be a tough job but it is by no means impossible.

The first step will be taken on Sunday when the Gaels meet the Voyageurs in Sudbury. You will recall that the tricolor defeated the Voyageurs 2-1 in the first match between the two clubs a couple of weeks ago. There is no doubt that the Voyageurs will be much tougher in their own rink. Queen's has a long history of poor performances in the northland. This would be a good weekend to correct that.

Hockey Gaels skated over Redmen 9-1. Good luck this weekend!!

Gaels sock it to redmen . . . Final score 83-74 in game Wednesday.

Aesculapian Society Election

Nominations for the following positions (75-76)

- PRESIDENT (3rd or 4th Yr.)
- INTERNAL V.P. (any yr.)
- EXTERNAL V.P. (any yr.)
- SECRETARY (any yr.)
- TREASURER (any yr.)
- ATHLETIC STICKS (1 Male, 1 Female) (2nd Yr.)
- JR. AND SR. AMS REPS (2nd and 3rd yrs. respectively)

Nominations to be signed by
2 Society Members.

Hand in to Bob Kraus, Nicole Leroche, or Greg Thompson by February 5 (closing date).

*****
McArthur Student Theatre Presents:
The original uncut version of

ONLY
99¢
For all 3 shows

Sunday February 2nd 7:20 p.m.
— On The Same Bill —

ONLY
99¢

Count Vorga, Vampire
plus Abominal Doctor Phibes

McArthur Auditorium

More arms for Egypt

PARIS: Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has completed his three day visit to France. The purpose of the trip was to seek out a new source of arms supply to replace the losses incurred during the 1973 Arab-Israeli war. The visit coincided with the lifting by France of its seven year old embargo on arms to Middle-East frontline countries and the Soviet Union's refusal to send new weapons.

Sadat negotiated the purchase of up to 120 French Mirage fighter-bombers. He also hoped to recruit French technological assistance in building a nuclear power plant. The United States and the Soviet Union had pledged to assist Egypt in constructing such a plant but Egyptian officials fear that they will not stand behind their pledges.

In the Middle-East President Sadat has called for an Israeli withdrawal within 90 days on three fronts. Israeli Premier Yitzhak Rabin has rejected the demand stating that deadlines have "no validity whatsoever for Israel." Although Rabin and Sadat are talking tough publicly, in private their conversation is reported to be of a more conciliatory nature. The Israeli Foreign Minister Abban Eban stated that he felt that Israel would be ready to make very massive territorial concessions if the Arab states were ready to make "total peace".

U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger will be travelling to the Middle-East next month to investigate "what the real possibilities of a solution might be".

WASHINGTON: The second anniversary of the Paris peace agreement was celebrated on Tuesday here. The mood was certainly not exuberant as U.S. officials reported that due to fuel shortages one-third of South Viet Nam's air force was grounded. The South Vietnamese are also suffering from severe weapon shortages as well as a short supply of artillery and air-to-ground missiles.

In Cambodia the anniversary was not noticed as fighting broke out a mile from the capital of Phnom Penh.

The "ceasefire" last month was producing up to 6,000 casualties a week.

MANILA: Moslem rebels have recently taken control of three Philippine towns. The new upsurge in rebel activity has been attributed to the influx of about 1,500 young rebels who have recently completed training outside the country. The group is reported to be equipped with sophisticated rifles, machine guns, and rocket launchers.

President Ferdinand Marcos has stated the insurgency on Mindanao Island have become serious. Marcos has sent a Cabinet-level delegation to meet representatives of the rebel group in Saudi Arabia. Meanwhile 30 battalions of the Philippine Armed Forces are posted on the island supported by more than 20 jet fighters, helicopters and other U.S. made weapons.

LONDON: The Irish Republican Army renewed its campaign in Britain this week with an all-day bomb blitz. Bombs were planted in stores and industrial sites in London and Manchester. There were at least 13 explosions in the two cities throughout the day. The blitz is reported by IRA sources to indicate the growing anger in the organization concerning the 17 Republican prisoners in the Portlaoise jail who are on a hunger strike. Three of the hunger strikers are reported to be near to death. The prisoners are demanding recognition as political prisoners but the government has rejected any concessions.

LONDON: The British House of Commons has abandoned the project to construct a 32 mile train tunnel under the English Channel. The main reason for the cancellation was the rising cost of the construction. In 1973 the tunnel was estimated to cost $2 billion. Today the price has risen to $4.5 billion. The building of the tunnel was being financed by private French and British consortiums however, the two governments had agreed to guarantee all loans obtained by the two companies. On completion of the tunnel, Britain would have had to finance the building of a high-speed rail connection between the tunnel and London costing $855 million. Currently Britain is struggling with a 19 percent inflation rate making the project economically infeasible.

The pull-out has been interpreted by some individuals as an anti-European gesture. Some members of the Labor government viewed the channel as an undesirable link to the continent. The comments against the tunnel sound very similar to those made by Sir Garnet Wolsey in 1882, who warned that the "tunnel would be a constant inducement to the unscrupulous foreigner to make war upon us."

Nixon, Lewis challenge Davis

TORONTO—Ontario Liberal leader Robert Nixon and New Democratic leader Stephen Lewis have called for a public inquiry into the government purchase of 100 acres of Oakville land for $1.5 million in 1973. Patronage charges have been flung at the Conservative Party and consequently Premier Davis. Apparently correspondence between former Sudbury real estate agent Ross Shouldice and William Kelly, chief Conservative Party fundraiser show that Shouldice offered Kelly

$30,000 for the party if Kelly could arrange for the government to purchase the property. Kelly denies receiving such an offer and Shouldice is at present refusing the answer questions by the press. Premier Davis has flatly refused to have a public inquiry into the matter. At the annual dinner of the Metro Board of Trade Davis shocked the 1600 guests present by angrily stating that the alleged patronage charge was nothing but "sordid, sinister, baseless rumor".

OTTAWA—The recent rash of murders and of armed crime has prompted the federal government to consider enforcing the registration of all guns. Under the current laws ordinary rifles and shotguns and required that hand guns be licensed and registered.

The rash of murders which spurred Allmand to confront the House of Commons was last week's massacre of 13 people in Montreal, the shooting of a policeman in Moncton and Calgany, near misses when an Oshawa sniper pinned down 75 policeman for 90 minutes and the abduction of four children at gunpoint at Thamesford.

TORONTO—Robert Nixon, Ontario Liberal leader, introduced a private member's bill that would cut Cabinet Minister's salaries by 5 percent. Following this the Ontario government has outlined the salary reduction which apply for only one year.

Eric Winkler, chairman of the Cabinet Board of Management stated the voluntary pay cut would "assist in curbing the rate of inflation which is a major concern to all of us". The five percent cut would save about $52,000.

Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party has severely criticized the project stating that a one year reduction did not really prove anything or help the people in a constructive manner. Lewis charged that it was more likely to represent a bid for election in the fall. The payment of the 5 percent is due Oct. 12. The election is tentatively scheduled for Oct. 13.

OTTAWA—Quebec and France are considering launching a project to construct a uranium enrichment plant at James Bay. The project would cost at least $6 billion - including about $3 billion to enlarge the $12 billion James Bay hydro-electric development. The remaining $3 billion would cover the cost of building a gaseous diffusion plant to enrich the uranium for export.

The federal government has not yet received an application for the construction of the plant and for the exporting of the uranium. Energy Minister Donald Macdonald stated that if the proposal came before the government it would have to balance the economic benefit to be gained from upgrading the projects use of vast amounts of electricity and its competition for funds and material needed for other energy investment. This is not to mention the consequences such a plan would have upon the environment.

backpage

ACCLAMATION

AMS exec 1975-'76 meet no opposition

For the first time since the AMS instituted campus-wide elections for its executive the AMS executive has taken office through acclamation.

Without the struggle of overcoming opposition, John Gray, Ian Nordheimer, and John Wilson will take their positions as President, Vice President (Operations) and Vice President (University Affairs) respectively, in the coming '75-'76 term.

It was noted that in the spring of 1988 the AMS was threatened with its executive positions being won through acclamation. However, the team withdrew their nominations, encouraging more applications and re-entered the race.

John Gray, presently V.P., University Affairs claims that "people's self interests are academics. They're not interested in getting involved in any official capacity". In their intended campaign, Gray had hoped to explain the executive's "new direction".

"This", he went on to say "implied strong leadership, an attitude of controversy and a cutting down of the business approach of this year's executive."

Ian Nordheimer, Speaker of the AMS and Junior Law rep. commented with regards to their acclamation, that "it shows the lack of interest the AMS has generated in the student body."

John Wilson, ASUS rep and senior constable, reasoned that "no one's interested and everyone was scared off". He stated further that "I think this is the strongest team that Queen's has seen in a long time!"

(from left to right) John Wilson, John Gray and Ian Nordheimer are acclaimed into the new executive positions, as V.P. (University Affairs), President and V.P. (Operations), respectively.

Queens
Journal
Volume 102, Number 35
Tuesday, Feb. 4, 1975

wat's hapnin'?

Tuesday, February 4

12:15 p.m. - Principal Watts will speak to support staff on the financial constraints affecting the university. He will be prepared to answer any questions. This is an excellent opportunity for support staff to find out how the constraints affect them. In Dunning Hall Auditorium.

6:00 p.m. - Ban Righ Fireside in the Ban Righ Common Room. Sylvia Fraser and David Stein will read from their novels. Coffee and dessert served at 5:45 p.m.

7:30 p.m. - Spectrum Lecture Series presents Dr. Breslow, Department of Drama speaking on "The Performing Arts in the University - Yes or No?" and Keith Norton, Alderman speaking on "Queen's and Kingston". In the Ban Righ Common Room with coffee and doughnuts after.

7:30 p.m. - Queen's Bridge Club meets in MacLaughlin Room. Phone Pieter Geerens at 544-7509 for information.

8:00 p.m. - Professor Joseph Burke will give a lecture in Stirling Hall D on "The Revival of History Painting". Admission is free.

8:30 p.m. - John Stark will give a one-man show entitled "Stephen Leacock, Master Humorist". The show is sponsored jointly by the English and Drama Departments and will take place in Convocation Hall. Admission is free.

9:00 p.m. - Department of Film Studies presents Warrendale in Ellis Auditorium. Admission is $1.00 at the door.

Wednesday, February 5

9:00 - 11:00 a.m. - The Rev. Eric Howes, Anglican chaplain on campus, will be present at the Student Affairs Centre, 51 Queen's Crescent for counselling and conversation.

11:00 a.m. - 2:00 p.m. - Rev. Bill Duikstra (Christian Reform) will be at the Student Affairs Centre.

2:00 - 3:00 p.m. - Rev. Ed. Shea Roman Catholic chaplain on campus, will be present at the Student Affairs Centre for conversation or counselling.

6:30-8:30 p.m. - Mr. Ken Gies the Lutheran chaplain on campus will be at the Student Affairs Centre.

6:30 p.m. - 10:30 p.m. - West Campus Recreational Badminton. Also held on Thursdays.

8:30 - 10:00 p.m. - Heart Fund Open House: Films and displays about heart research in Canada. Free refreshments. In Eltherington Hall, KGH. Sponsored by Departments of Cardiology, Physiology and Pharmacology and the Aesculapian Society and Kingston Chapter of Ontario Heart Foundation.

9:00 p.m. - Queen's Ski Club ticket sales for this weekend's trip to Mt. Ste. Marie. Tickets are $14.00 and will be sold in the John Orr Room.

7:00-8:00 p.m. - Free esperanto classes in Room 202 Kingston Hall.

7:15 p.m. - Last Lecture Series will present Mr. J. Courtwright, Vice-Principal, Information and Development in McNeil House Common Room. Everyone welcome and refreshments will be served.

7:30 p.m. - Queen's Debating Union General Meeting featuring RMC results and special guest judge. Upper meeting room of International Centre. All welcome.

8:00 p.m. - History and Politics D.S.C.'s and other interested persons will want to be sure to attend a forthcoming lecture by the distinguished Marxist-separatist intellectual, Dr. Leonie Bergeron. The address will centre on the theme "Quebec and Canada: Partners in a Common Struggle". In Stirling D.

8:00 p.m. - Canadian Filmmakers Series: 1st of four different programs of experimental films organized by the National Gallery of Canada and the Canadian Filmmakers Distribution Centre. In

Ellis Hall.

8:15 p.m. - Queen's Basketball Gaels vs. St. Lawrence College.

8:30 p.m. - Henry Beissel will be at Queen's reading from his own work. In John Watson Hall (Room 517).

8:30 p.m. - Queen's Musical Theatre Production of Gypsy in the Grand Theatre.

Thursday, February 6

7:00 & 9:30 p.m. Campus Movies presents They Shoot Horses Don't They? Plus part 4 of Indians. In Dunning Hall Auditorium and admission is $1.00.

7:30 p.m. - Eucharist at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Eric Howes, (Anglican chaplain on campus) 148 Barrie St. Apt. No. 1.

8:00 p.m. - 11:00 p.m. - Coffee Hour at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Eric Howes. All Welcome.

7:30 p.m. - Queen's Skydivers will hold their Annual General Meeting in Brockington Common Room. All members whether you have jumped recently or not are urged to attend this very important meeting. Special guest star will be "Hop-along Chris" with his super-slides from Florida. See y'all there.

8:00 p.m. - Romeo Malone, brilliant orator formerly connected with Canadian Labour Congress and now with External Affairs, will lecture on "World Development - Canada at the Crossroads". In Stirling D.

8:30 p.m. - Chhau, The Masked Dance of Bengal - This ritualistic dance-drama is performed on the occasion of the annual sun-festival. Scenes from the Ramayana and the Mahabharata are danced to the drums. For additional information call Agnes Eltherington Art Centre Box Office at 547-6194.

Pubs and Theatres

Commodore - Scamp
101 Inn - Ray Smith
Frontenac - Finnegan's - Nigel
Frontenac - Muldoon's - Allan Rhody and Friends
Townhouse - Tranquility Base

Ocean - House on Skull Mountain
Hyland - Law and Disorder

Upcoming Events

Friday, February 7 - 3:00 p.m. - Classics Department will show No. 5 of Odyssey series entitled Clee. In Room 114, Earl Hall.

Friday, February 7 - 8:00 p.m. - Sha-Na-Na at the Memorial Centre. Tickets at the John Orr Room for $4.00 students; $4.50 regular; or $5.00 at the door. Tickets also available at the House of Sounds, Vern Napiers and the Division of Concerts Box Office.

Saturday and Sunday, February 8 & 9 - 2 - 4 p.m. - Auditions for Gilbert and Sullivan's The Gondoliers at Central Public School, Sydenham Street, 2 blocks north of Princess St. Needed are a large cast of singers and dancers including 9 principal roles. Previous experience not required. Please bring some music to sing, an accompanist is provided. The show will be presented by the Meistersingers from May 6 - 10, 1975. For further information call 389-3676.

Saturday, February 8 - 8:00 - 1:00 p.m. - Bitter Grounds and Good Times Emporium presents Colleen Peterson in Clark Hall. Tickets are available Thursday and Friday, 10:30 - 4:30 in the John Orr Room and at the door.

Sunday, February 9 - 1:00 - 5:00 p.m. - Heart Fund Blitz Canvass in Leonard Hall Dining Room. Free refreshments and transportation.

Sunday, February 9 - 8:00 p.m. - The Garden of Finzi-Continis in Ellis Auditorium for $1.50.

Info cus

This is the first of a series of columns to be presented by INFORMATION BANK, a volunteer student organization which provides up-to-date information on daily events on an off campus as well as general facts that may interest Queen's students.

INFORMATION BANK is located in the JOHN ORR ROOM, (the first door to your right as you enter the Students' Memorial Union) and is at your service weekdays 9:30 am to 5:30 pm. You can also reach us by telephone (547-5722) during the same hours.

A suggestion box has been placed in the John Orr Room to allow students to supply valuable feedback on all Info Bank services. Your comments would be welcomed.

SPRING AND SUMMER COURSE SCHEDULES

Students wanting to take spring or summer courses for the 1975 term are invited to drop in to the John Orr Room to see the lecture timetable. Copies can also be picked up in the Department of Extension in B wing of MacIntosh-Corry complex.

AOSC Applications

Applications for international student cards from the Association of Student Councils are available upon request at INFO BANK. If you are thinking of travelling abroad this year, why not stop in?

Broken or Lost Student Cards

You can get your student card repaired for free if you still retain the broken portions of the card. Take them to Douglas Library or Richardson Hall and ask for a replacement. You will have to give up your card for about 24 hours to obtain a new one but the library will make arrangements for you to sign out books. If you have a tote storage and laundry service sticker on your card, make sure you are given back the portion of your old card with the sticker on it so that when you get your new card, the Administration Office in the Phys. Ed. centre can bring your new card up-to-date.

If you have lost your card altogether, Richardson Hall will still replace it for you but at a cost of $3.00. In this case, it will take about a week to get your new card during which time, Richardson staff will issue you a permit to use at the library.

Rent Cross-Country Skis

Did you know that you can rent cross-country skis any day from the Phys. Ed. Complex? The charge is $3.00 per day with a 3 day maximum) for one set of boots, skis and poles or the same price for any of above set. A $10.00 deposit is necessary for damage insurance but will be refunded.

Your student or staff card is held with the deposit and equipment slip until return of the skis. The rental office is beside the stairs on the main floor near the entrance to the Women's Locker Room. Rental hours are as follows.

Monday	9:30 - 10:30 am	and	8:00 - 9:00 pm
Tuesday	9:30 - 10:30 am	and	8:00 - 9:00 pm
Wednesday	9:30 - 10:30 am	and	8:00 - 9:00 pm
Thursday	8:30 - 9:30 am	and	8:00 - 9:00 pm
Friday	9:30 - 10:30 am	and	8:00 - 9:00 pm
Saturday	8:00 - 9:30 am	and	8:00 - 9:00 pm
Sunday	2:00 - 3:00 pm	and	8:00 - 9:00 pm

Reduced Train Fares on CN

Did you know that CN trains have reduced fares for people under 22 years of age? You can get substantial reductions on your train fare merely by presenting a CN YOUTH CARD when you buy your ticket. There is no minimum time in advance that you must buy your ticket before departure - you can get the reduced rate five minutes before the train pulls out!

An application form for the CN YOUTH PLAN CARD together with the AIR CANADA SWINGAIR CARD can be picked up at any train station or you may write to:

Swing Air Club

Air Canada

1 Place Ville Marie

Montreal 113, P.Q.

Canada

Proof of age is required.

The card will cost you $3.00 but the sample regular and reduced rates listed below will show you the amount you save.

From Kingston to	Type of Day	Regular Cost	CN Reduced Youth
Toronto	Red+	$ 8.50	$ 6.80
	White+	$ 9.75	$ 8.30
	Blue+	$10.75	$ 9.70
Ottawa	Red	$ 7.00	$ 5.60
	White	$ 7.50	$ 6.40
	Blue	$ 8.25	$ 7.45
Montreal	Red	$ 9.00	$ 7.20
	White	$10.50	$8.95
	Blue	$11.50	$10.95

+ Red days are Monday to Thursday
White days - weekends

Blue days - days near holidays

-Susan Meech
-Kathy Wood

Queen's hosts "Under Attack"

Ed Broadbent comes under attack

Picard: CBC cannot afford to make good shows for long time

by Larry Woods

Mr. Laurent Picard, president of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation was one of the three guests at Thursday night's taping of "Under Attack". Picard responded almost apologetically to accusations that the CBC doesn't carry enough good Canadian programmes, and only appeared uneasy when John Gray of the AMS Executive challenged him regarding the CBC bureaucracy.

Panelist John Gray, of the AMS Executive, asked Picard if it would not be possible to fire close to 30 percent of the employees without reducing the quality of the programming. Picard defended the CBC by saying that it is the most decentralized broadcasting networks in the world, and it would be practically impossible to reduce the number of employees working for the corporation. The show did not centre about any particular argument, (other than Picard's discussion of the CBC's financial difficulties) but was more like an open forum discussion since there was no controversy at hand. Picard was asked why there is only one CBC programme (The Irish Rovers) rated in the top ten television shows in Canada, and why the CBC continues to broadcast so many American programmes in prime time. He was also asked why the CBC has cancelled its good Canadian serial shows such as Wojek. Picard's answer to these questions was that the CBC simply cannot afford to make good programmes for a very long time because they require such a lot of human and financial resources.

He claimed that it costs

$200,000 to $300,000 per hour to make good serials but it only costs $4000 to $5000 dollars per hour to buy American shows. Also, the popular American programmes act as good leads to some more austere Canadian programmes which people might otherwise ignore.

In answer to the question of why there aren't more British shows in Canada, Picard explained that other than shows such as Monty Python's Flying Circus and Forsythe Saga, there aren't really too many British shows which would be popular in Canada.

Picard responded to several other criticisms of the CBC, such as the cancellation of a CFL football game in favour of an American World Series Baseball game last fall, by admitting that mistakes have been made, but then saying that the CBC could "try to improve" in the future.

Lubbock claims nest-building is a woman's chief function

by Larry Woods

When Mr. Richard Lubbock (writer, broadcaster, journalist and male chauvinist) was introduced at "Under Attack" on Thursday evening, he was met by a barrage of cheers from the males in the audience and hisses, and boos from the females. Lubbock has written that men are more intelligent and better equipped to reason than women and that the women's lib movement is dangerous. He claims to believe that women want to be dominated by men, and that the main function of women is the "nest-building" function. He also purports to believe that men have the "divine right to rule". Lubbock seemed to have an answer to almost every question which challenged his position, but the answers usually consisted of vague generalizations or evasive witticisms. When presented with examples of women who have held positions of leadership, such as Golda Meir, he asserted that "women can emerge in situations of emergency". When asked why women want to be dominated by men, he replied that there seems to be a "female masochism" which is common to all females.

It is doubtful that anyone in the audience could have agreed with Lubbock's point of view, various students believe that he contradicted himself numerous times throughout the show. He was called a "male chauvinist bore", a "sexist" and a "racist" during the show but he kept the audience interested by such comments as (in answer to the question "why do you say that men are superior to women?"), "Is there any evidence to the contrary?"

Attack on Broadbent lacks central issue

by Paul Steep

A small crowd and uninspired questioning marked the return of Under Attack to the Queen's campus last Wednesday evening. Although guest Ed Broadbent, Parliamentary leader of the New Democratic Party, tried hard to inject some controversy into the program, the lack of any central issue for which he could be "attacked" prevented the show from ever getting off of the ground.

In an opening quiz of his political beliefs Broadbent asserted that the July 8th election had not been a rejection of the N.D.P., by Canadians despite their huge losses. He said that the election had degenerated into a huge referendum on wage and price controls and that the N.D.P. were caught in the middle as the electorate decided between the two big parties.

At this time he also stated that he felt the supporters of the New Democratic Party were more consciously "principled" than the supporters of the other major parties.

He concluded that the reason he was a socialist was because he wanted to do something about the fundamental inequalities he saw in society.

Admittedly there was little in this opening dialogue for which Broadbent could be attacked and it is perhaps this that set the unfortunate tone for the rest of the evening.

The introduction of the student panel was somewhat of a surprise since there was only one student on it. The other two members, Hugh Thorburn and Philip Goldman, were both professors from the Department of Political Studies and both had been asked by the organizers of the show to appear on it.

Their questioning also failed to point up any position of Mr. Broadbent's that was open to attack. He handled all their questions convincingly, with perhaps the most interesting debate arising over the lack of N.D.P. support in Quebec. Broadbent agreed with his questioner that the N.D.P. could never form a government, nor would it be desirable for them to form a government, without support from Quebec. In what he described as a candid statement Broadbent said that support won't come until the Parti Quebecois socialists give up on Separatism and realize that with that one exception, their social demands can be met through the N.D.P. He feels that there is a very real chance of the N.D.P. winning up to fifty or sixty seats in the rest of Canada, and that when they do there will be a better chance of Quebecers' considering the N.D.P. as a viable alternative. Out of the audience came questions that ranged from party financing to the personality of party leaders. Again very little controversy emerged from his dialogue with students and at one point he was even defending his political opponent, Bob Stanfield. The one possible exception was a question about the N.D.P.'s position concerning the province of Quebec's Bill 22. It was the only time he was asked to take a stand on an issue all night. He described their position as one of "grudging acceptance". Broadbent said that if the Quebec government really felt the French language was in such jeopardy that it needed the kind of protection offered by the bill, then the minimal infringement it has on other linguistic groups is warranted. However he qualified this by saying that there was little doubt in his mind that the bill was unconstitutional and that if taken to the supreme court it could be repealed.

The format of Under Attack is best suited to those with obvious and unpopular positions. Mr. Broadbent made his position clear whenever he was asked but questions with insight were so few and far between that those who went to see the show did not get much of a chance to hear what those positions were much less to discover if any of those positions were unpopular. Upon leaving the show there was agreement among students that the show just hadn't worked.

Operation Starvation Diet:

Interviews and story by N. Flood

Photos by M. Bloos

an appraisal

Operation Starvation Diet, consisting of a rice-and-milk meal offered in various locations around campus and of several presentations by speakers on Thursday and Friday has now become a past event and like all such history, the subject of intense debate.

Only 1,111 members of the 10,000 strong Queen's community partook of the extra-ordinary lunch. The Thursday speakers as well, suffered from meagre audiences while Stephen Lewis, on Friday, spoke to a slightly better 100-120 person crowd.

Described by John Gray an AMS Vice-Pres. and one of the organizers of the event, as the first in a series to be planned by the A.M.S., Operation Starvation Diet focussed on international affairs. (The next event will be planned with a more national theme.) Gray described the day as "an important exercise that stimulated both negative and positive thought but at least got people thinking about the problems. The intention was to educate people by the speakers and to communicate problems of Third World countries."

Reaction to the event was indeed varied. Many were enthusiastic, seeing it as a chance to contribute in a tangible way to the food shortage. Others participated with perhaps less dedication; the atmosphere at many tables in Ban Righ during the rice meal was one of reluctant compliance or embarrassment. Still others were openly against the idea and evidence their feelings by eating at Leonard Cafeteria where a normal lunch was being served, or avoiding lunch altogether. One of the most prevalent comments heard was that the event was not well enough publicized - that people did not understand the actual workings of the contribution mechanism (each rice meal eaten was worth 60c) and so skipped lunch simply through lack of knowledge.

The 60c sum was suggested by Brian Hunt, Manager of Beaver Foods after having been asked to arrive at an estimate of the raw food costs for one lunch on the meal plan. This does not include the labour costs, cooking costs, or indirect costs (heat, lighting etc.) which are evident in the $1.35 paid for one normal lunch at Ban Righ.

Oxfam-Canada is a federally chartered charitable organization with goals directed towards long range development rather than one-shot money donations. It does not directly administer projects overseas but rather helps to expand or reinforce local and native groups already in operation.

John Gray attributed the failure of many to participate to "poor communication, apathy and lack of interest." Hunt felt it was a worthwhile exercise and was surprised in the poor turnout. "It was not a great success financially, but it must have achieved something... who can tell?"

Question: "Why are you eating in Ban Righ?"

Ian Little, Artsci '77
Why am I eating in Ban Righ? Ask the people in the underdeveloped countries what they are learning. Will they learn to stop overpopulating the world for 60c a person from Queen's?

Jennifer Franklin, Artsci '77
Why am I eating in Ban Righ? Because I believe in what Oxfam is doing. They have a worthwhile cause. The only thing I don't like is that we were told to do this - then there was to be a picket line enforcing it. I think that's what turned a lot of people off. I'd like to think I would have volunteered more than 60c.

Reid Drury, Commerce '78
It seems a good idea. Operation Starvation Diet has some worth though I would like to have seen Beaver Food give more money. I don't think Leonard should be serving normal food; you miss lunch sometimes anyway, surely you could eat rice just once. I don't think there was enough publicity - people just didn't understand what was going on so they didn't eat.

Question: "Why are you eating in Leonard?"

Mike Farrell, Artsci '78
I really don't think it's going to help that much. Everybody's going to forget about it in a couple of days. It would be better to do something about birth control over there. Shipping a little food over won't help.

Peter Strahlendorf, Artsci '77
Why am I eating in Leonard? Because I will not support such an immoral, inhuman, unthinking, unholistic approach to the present world food shortage. It is harmful in the sense that it appeases consciences and promotes the short-term, one-approach solution which is totally unacceptable.

Lisa Lloyd, Artsci '78
I don't think this exercise is worthwhile. I think the people around here were just looking for a cause; this is not an unorthodox one but the whole idea of such an insular institution as a university sending a couple of thousand dollars is ludicrous. The situation obviously calls for something more drastic and even if this saves people's lives for a couple of weeks, is that what we really want?

Canadian Filmmakers Series

Recent Canadian Experimental Films

Wednesday February 5
Ellis Hall 8 p.m.

Admission Free

Sponsored by Agnes Etherington Art Centre and the Gallery Association

St. Lawrence Parks Commission

Summer Employment

at

Old Fort Henry Kingston, Ontario.

as a member of the Fort Henry Guard

Successful applicants will earn in excess of 4 dollars per hour!

Application forms available at the placement office, corner of University and Union. Sign-ups for interviews begin on January 20 and campus interviews are being held on February 10 to 14.

The Navigators present a film of Christ's return.

A Thief In The Night

Dunning Hall $1.00

Wed. Feb. 26 8:00 P.M.

CONGRATULATIONS to the winners of the Student Film Festival

1st prize: Polevault, by John Thomas.
2nd prize: Trains, by Tamas McDonald, Bob Serighi.
2-3rd prizes: Dementia, by Mike MacMillan, & George Pothos.
Phasing, by J.K. West.

Honourable mentions:
Cosmic Nightmare, by Dave Edwards.
Waves, by Cyndra MacDowall.
Where do the Children Play? by Stephen Gareau.

Special Thanks To Our Judges:
Nicholas Kendall,
Bill Nichols,
Rod Robertson.
Thanks to all who entered their films.

Problem:

Sub-standard housing

Tenant's duty vs landlord's duty

by Larry Pick
Many students renting off-campus accommodation run into the problem of sub-standard housing. Buildings in Sydenham Ward are almost all old and increasingly tend to show the signs of their age. The experience of the Queen's Law Students Legal Aid Society is that there are some landlords in this city who make a practice of leasing premises which do not comply with housing standards prescribed by law. In the immediate vicinity of the university there are buildings that have become dilapidated, seemingly due to a deliberate policy of neglect on the part of the owners. Because of high demand they can always be leased to students.

In renting accommodation students should be aware that they have certain rights and responsibilities with regard to the condition of the premises. Section 96 of the Landlord and Tenant Act indicates the following:

1) A landlord is responsible for providing and maintaining the rented premises in a good state of repair and fit for habitation during the tenancy and for complying with health and safety standards required by law and notwithstanding that any state of non-repair existed to the knowledge of the tenant before the tenancy agreement was entered into.

2) The tenant is responsible for ordinary cleanliness of the rented premises and for the repairs of damage caused by his willful or negligent conduct or that of persons who are permitted on the premises by him.

The provisions of section 96 are imposed by law on landlord and tenant. It is not possible to contract out of them, to waive them or to alter them in any way. This is important. There are some standard form leases being used in Kingston which impose on the tenant a duty to keep his rented premises in a state of good repair. A clause in a lease which attempts to deny or waive any provision under Part IV of the Landlord and Tenant Act (including section 96) is not valid and enforceable. Likewise, if the tenant was aware of sub-standard conditions before he entered his lease the landlord is not relieved of his duty because of that knowledge. The statutory provisions always prevail.

The Tenant's Duty: The structure of section 96 should be noted: It imposes a responsibility on the tenant as well as the landlord. The nature of the tenant's obligation is less onerous, however. His responsibility for cleanliness would include sweeping up, scrubbing bathrooms and, possibly, minor maintenance, such as changing fuses and light bulbs. Students should be aware that they are responsible not only for any damage they may cause but also for damage brought about by their guests. So if you throw a beer party and your friends break some windows and put holes in the walls you can be sued for the cost of the damage.

The Landlord's Duty: Before the recent amendments to the act a landlord could rent out any building no matter what condition it was in. This included firetraps and houses with unsafe stairways and flooring. The changes in the Act have been introduced for the benefit of the tenant to provide a certain minimum standard of decency and safety. The courts have construed the landlord's duties set out in section 96 in favour of the tenant. These duties can be divided into several categories. First, the premises must be maintained in a "good state of repair." This has been judicially interpreted as meaning premises that may be used not only in safety but with reasonable comfort by the class of persons by whom the premises were intended to be occupied. The duty to repair should cover loose steps on stairways, leaking rooves, holes and cracks in plaster and shabby bannisters. It probably does not cover repainting interior rooms and halls.

Second, the dwelling must be "fit for habitation." Depending on the circumstances this could mean a variety of things. If an apartment is infested with rats or lice (both of which problems have occurred recently in Kingston), the premises are probably not fit. The courts have gone so far as to suggest that an apartment, located above a laundromat which gave off heat was unfit for habitation as long as the air conditioning did not function.

Third, there must be compliance with health, safety and housing standards imposed by law. Some of these may be found in the Ontario Public Health Act. The Department of Health has inspectors with the power to enter buildings to determine whether there is threat to public health. In Kingston, the city has passed a Property Standards By-Law which regulates the maintenance and occupancy of property in the city. This By-Law, which will be dealt with at length in another of these articles, can be enforced by the city, or by a tenant, through the procedures laid out in Section 96.

Remedies: No right or duty is of much value unless it can be enforced. The Landlord and Tenant Act provides that the obligations imposed under Section 96 can be enforced by summary application to a county court judge in the county where the dwelling is situated. This procedure can be undertaken in a matter of days and is not unduly complicated. The Queen's Law Students Legal Aid Society is available to assist tenants with forms and to provide representation in court. The judge is given the power to:

a) terminate the tenancy (break the lease). This order is rarely given, possibly only when a landlord has demonstrated his unwillingness to repair or when the condition of the premises is beyond repair.

b) authorize any repair that has been made or is to be made. The cost of this is then charged to the party in fault. This order contemplates a situation where a tenant does the repairs himself and then demands a set-off against the rent. It is wiser, however, to first get the court order and avoid a situation where a judge feels that the repairs were unnecessary or excessive.

c) make such further order as the judge considers appropriate. The courts have frequently ordered a landlord to return to the tenant for the period during which the premises were in disrepair.

Rent Withholding: In certain circumstances a tenant may be able to withhold rent when the landlord breaches his Section 96 duties. The legal ramifications are complicated so it is advisable that a tenant consult a lawyer or Legal Aid Society before attempting this approach.

Next Week: The City By-Laws as they concern housing.

Murphy's Sea Food Restaurant

Lobster
Shrimp
Oysters

Clam Chowder
Fish and Chips

70 Brock St.
548-7753

WIDGETS

INDUSTRY II
FIRM I

SEE: DON OR ERIC
OR IKE OR RICHARD

"The quality goes in before the name goes on."

the MARKET
BARBER SHOP & hairstyling salon

Peter Smits invites you
to his new hair care shop
43 BROCK ST. 549-2110 KINGSTON, ONT.

VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S
GIFTS and
BOOKS
282 Princess St.
KINGSTON 542-6676

Special gift on Valentines Day for her.
Canadian handcrafted jewellery in beautiful designs.
Pewter, silver and golden bracelets, necklaces, rings, letter openers, cufflinks, chokers. 35 different crosses with line chains and brooches in a very good variety.
Top grade handcrafted and carved leather wallets and large assortment of men's and ladies' belts. Buy Canadian goods from Canadians to keep Canadians and Universities open to total welfare of humanity.

STORE Mon.-Fri. 9:30 am - 10 pm
HOURS Saturday 9:30 am - 9 pm
OPEN Sunday 12:00 noon - 9 pm

VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S

International Auto Service

Specializing in European cars
419 Regent St.
Barryfield
546-9921

Queen's Engineering Society
Sponsored

BLOOD DONOR CLINIC

Tuesday - Wednesday - Thursday

Feb. 4-5-6

LOWER VICTORIA HALL

11:00-2:00

5:00-8:00

Vests reg. $22.50
now $9.95

Shirts 20% TO
50% OFF

Sweaters 30% OFF

Pants 1/2 price
SPECIAL SELECTION

ABRAMSKY'S

259 Princess St. 546-5555
SINCE 1891 - THERE'S A REASON FOR THAT!

PUBLIC NOTICE

The annual General Meeting of the Alma Mater Society, Inc. will be held on March 3, 1975 at 7:15 p.m. in Stirling D. Any member of the AMS Inc. may attend, speak to motions, and vote. Any member wishing to discuss a specific item of business must provide the secretary of the Corporation (c/o AMS office) with the exact wording of any motions to be proposed at the annual meeting, prior to 5:00 p.m., Friday, Feb. 14, 1975.

Rico

Johnny

Screamin Scott Simon

Chico

Denny Greene

AMS Concerts and Concert Productions present

SHA NA NA
Friday, February 7, Memorial Center
8 P.M.

John Orr Room, House of Sounds, Vern Napiers, Division of Concerts Box
TICKETS: $4.00 Student, $4.50 Regular, $5.00 Door

Donny

Lennie

Jocko

Bowzer

Tony Santini

Commerce Society Executive

NOMINATIONS FOR THE FOLLOWING POSITIONS

President (FROM 76 or 77)

Vice President (FROM 76 or 77)

Secretary

Treasurer from 77

Bews Athletic Stick

WIC Representative (NEW POSITION)

Social Convenor

Junior AMS Rep. from 78

Senior AMS Rep.

Must be submitted by
Wed. Feb. 5

IN ROOM 120 DUNNING HALL.
INQUIRIES SHOULD BE MADE TO

B. KOCH President

Nominations must be accompanied by 25 signatures from members of the Commerce Society.

Candidates please note: Journal platform deadline is today

classifieds

More on Page 9

Housingwise

2-3 PERSON APT. WANTED. We are tired of university residences. Any information? Call Pat Jackson 544-7872 or Terry Winsor 544-7059.

We wish to trade our 6-man house (good location) University Ave. (reasonable rent) for a 2,3 or 4 man apartment for 75% Call Mary Lou or Sheila at 549-1523.

1 Bedroom available in 3-bedroom apt. Hill May 1. Cheap & close to campus. Call 546-5400.

We need one more to share our 4 man house on Macdonnell. Great room - great house - available immediately Call 549-2650.

Wanted one or two persons to share three bedroom apt. with kitchen, near Frontenac Mall (cheap), present occupant has car. To start Feb 15 approx. till end of term. Call 389-2108.

Summer sublet. West Campus. Apt. 11C 244 Sir John A. MacDonald Blvd. May 1st - August 31st. One bedroom. Facing northwest. Beautiful view Rent $152 Phone 544-4278.

QUICK. Phone 544-7737: 544-7738: or 544-7739, if you have a three or four bedroom apartment to get rid of. NAME YOUR REWARD! (Then we'll name ours.)

WANTED 2 females to share 4 bedroom house - good location, very reasonable rent. For information call Bill 544-7495.

LUXURY APARTMENT Available from May to September, in Elfrond. This 12th floor hideaway with a panoramic view of Eastern Ontario's heartland is fully furnished and includes a large kitchen with refrigerator and stove.

A spacious living room and balcony and red hot sauna augment this 2-bedroom penthouse making it a must for the discriminating summer resident. Rent is negotiable. Call 549-4142.

WANTED a 1-bedroom apartment (unfurnished) for immediate occupancy. Call Jan or Greg at 544-4864.

TO SUBLET - two bedroom apartment in Elfrond. Large kitchen, living room, balcony with view, underground parking. Close to campus and downtown. Rent negotiable cheap. Available May-Aug. Phone 544-2658.

WANTED: Three fourth-year males for a 4-bedroom house, close to campus and downtown. Rent about $40, monthly, lease begins Sept. '75. Call 544-0457.

ONE BEDROOM APARTMENT available May 1. Suitable for married couple. Will help pay summer rent with $75.00 bonus. Phone 546-3022.

SUMMER SUBLET. 199 Kings St. E. - 5 bedroom mansion, available May 1-Aug. 31. Call 546-2198. We have a bar room and mouse head and the entire house is torpedoo-proof. Can you beat that?

TO SUBLET: 4 bedroom apt. with kitchen, 5 minutes from campus. Rent negotiable. If interested call 549-5359 after 6:00 pm.

HOUSE very pleasant house to sublet May - Sept. ideal quiet location 4-5 bedrooms. 542-4227.

AVAILABLE IMMEDIATELY - vacancy in double room in a 4-person house in Elfrond College. With or without meal plan. If interested, please call 549-4083.

SUBLET MAY - August 1975. Modern split-level two bedroom apartment in Elfrond parking available. Large kitchen, fridge and stove included. Probable option for 1975. 76. Rent negotiable. 544-8358.

LARGEST ELFROND apartment, six rooms, to sublet May to Aug. inclusive 2 spacious bedrooms, balcony, sauna underground parking, fully furnished, carpeted, dishwasher, telephone, rent.

IS YOUR 2-bedroom apartment not coming across as it used to? If you are planning to give it up in May or Sept. call Karen 544-8185. Sigrid 549-1905, anytime after 7pm.

TWO OR THREE MAN HOUSE WANTED. Close to campus. Please phone Wayne at 544-8934 or Geoff at 544-8919.

$100 REWARD for your single bedroom apartment for '75-76. Must be close to campus. Will take over lease in Sept. only. Call Hugh at 389-0649.

WANTED IMMEDIATELY 3-4 bedroom house or apartment. Call 544-7792, 7793, 7788 or 2617.

ONE BEDROOM apt. to sublet. Available May 1st, in Married Students Complex. 542-8115 after 5pm.

HAPPINESS IS - house or apartment of our own for four or more. Willing to lease either May or September. Phone 544-7861 or 544-7238.

Otherwise

SR 50's for $150 (plus tax). All other models of quality Texas instruments selling at new reduced prices. Phone Duncan between 5 and 7pm 549-4623.

Lost a pair of sheepskin gloves Tuesday either in Kingston Hall or Ounining. They were a gift from a special person and a reward will be given for their safe return. Please Call 544-0938.

DENING SOON Charlie D's trout farm. Further information will be found in the upcoming issues of the Journal. Charlie Tuna owner & operator.

The girls of 3 West Chown thank the boys of 4th Gordon for a great time last Saturday night. We hope to return the invitation soon.

Would the person who picked up my black leather mittens outside of Ban Ryn cafeteria last Thursday please take the trouble to put them back where you found them. Or better still, call me, Brian Green, at 544-485 any time. After all, there are better ways to keep your hands warm on cold nights.

GEOGRAPHY STUDENTS! The Geography OSC is holding a discussion on course evaluation. What are your opinions? We would like to hear from you. Come to MC - B 104. 7PM Tuesday Feb. 4, 1975.

The Kingston Community Ballet Association has a limited number of placements in the adult beginner to advanced winter term classes. For information call Mrs. Jarrett at 544-4860.

LOST: my wire-rimmed glasses, around the Phys Ed. Centre. If you found them I would appreciate a call. Chuck at 544-3778.

Two gymnastics instructors are needed by a local boys & girls club. Knowledge of gymnastics is necessary - the time is Monday evenings 5:30 - 6:30. Please contact the SVB if you can help.

Are you a shy chef or a bashful baker? If so, now is the time for your talents to be discovered. The West Kingston Boys & Girls Club is looking for volunteers to help with cooking classes Wednesday from 4:30 - 8:00 PM or Thursday from 5:30 - 8:30 PM. If you can help please contact the SVB at 547-5746.

Bite the one you love

STEAK & STUFF
LICENCED DINING ROOM 1399 Princess (near the station)
AUNT LUCY'S RESTAURANTS

Queen's University
Performing Arts Office
presents
VAGHY STRING QUARTET
with PHYLLIS MAILING soprano
and WILLIAM AIDE piano
SATURDAY 8 FEBRUARY
Dunning Hall 8:30p.m.
Works by Schonberg and Bartik
Tickets: $2.50 general,
$1.50 discount
Box Office: 547-6194

Brockington Visitorship Committee

A student position for a two year term is now available on this committee. Each year the Brockington Visitorship Committee arranges for a distinguished visitor to come to Queen's for a week during the Academic Year. Previous visitors have included Lester Pearson, Sir Bernard Lovell, Ganner Myrdal and Burkminster Fuller.

Interested applicants should leave their names and phone numbers with Gave Clemson c/o the AMS Office prior to 5 p.m. Friday, February 11, 1975.

Queen's Musical Theatre presents

GYPSY

At The Grand Theatre

Feb. 5, 6, 7, 8

8:30 P.M.

John Orr Room

Grand Theatre

Tickets: $2.50

$3.00 (Reserve Seats Only.
Available Fri. Sat. only)

PRICELESS... WITHIN REASON

Precious diamonds do not have to cost a fortune. We can help you to select a fine diamond that you can afford. Regardless of your financial status, we can offer a superb diamond that will thrill you... and never leave you flat.

KINNEAR d'ESTERRE
JEWELLERS
168 PRINCESS STREET
KINGSTON, ONTARIO

ALMA MATER SOCIETY OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY.

REFERENDA

Feb. 12 and 13, 1975

1 a) THAT THE QUEEN'S JOURNAL STUDENT LEVY OF THREE (3) DOLLARS BE INCREASED

YES ☐ NO ☐b) IF YES, BY ONE DOLLAR FIFTY CENTS ($1.50) ☐BY THREE DOLLARS ($3.00) ☐

2) SHALL THE MBA STUDENTS' SOCIETY BE RECOGNIZED AS A MEMBER SOCIETY OF THE A.M.S.

YES ☐ NO ☐

3) SHALL THE STUDENT PORTION FOR BUS-IT BE INCREASED FROM $3.00 TO $4.50

YES ☐ NO ☐

4 a) THAT BY LAW NO. 8, SECTION B, DEALING WITH THE HONOURARIA PAID TO VOLUNTEERS OF THE A.M.S. REMAIN AS FORMALLY STATED IN THE CONSTITUTION EFFECTIVE SEPT. 1, 1974.

YES ☐ NO ☐

b) THAT ANY CHANGES TO THIS BY-LAW MUST BE EFFECTED THROUGH ANOTHER REFERENDUM

YES ☐ NO ☐

5) SHALL PROJECT GREEN BE GRANTED A STUDENT LEVY OF $1.00 FOR THE NEXT 5 YEARS

YES ☐ NO ☐

NOTICE OF ACCLAMATION

John Gray (President)

Ian Nordheimer (V.P. Operations)

John Wilson (V.P. University Affairs)

Have won by acclamation the above Executive positions of the A.M.S.

AMS PRESIDENTIAL ELECTIONS 1975

MEET THE CANDIDATES NIGHT

TONIGHT, TUESDAY FEB. 4, 1975

STIRLING C

8 P.M.

classifieds

More on page 7

Otherwise

KEY CLUBBERS

OF YESTERYEAR: Come and find out what Circle K, the university branch of the Kiwanis Family, is up to. We're busy organizing our danceathon for the Canadian Cancer Society, helping with the Heart Fund, and a host of other projects. We would also like to send 10 delegates to the Eastern Canada and Caribbean convention in Toronto February 14-16, but at present only have about five going. How about it people? There's a meeting Monday, February 3 at 7pm in the Grey House 151 Queen's Cres. (beside VIC) to finalize plans. If you can't make it to the meeting, please phone Harry at 542-5361. We really need people to come "n' find out about Queen's Circle K." P.S. Poppa and Little Brother are going to be there (bethered too). Jeep for sale, '64 Willys. Rebuilt 124 CIO Engine 4 wheel drive. Call Jim with serious enquiries only at 549-1535.

SK115 - Fischer Impulse with Tyrola bindings. 190CM Excellent condition. $65. Phone Peter at 546-9329 after 6PM.

Cold fire, you've got everything but cold fire. Happy Valentine's Day. Bryn - much love from Angela.

ASUS VISITORSHIP: Get Involved! Help bring famous speakers to Queen's. Apply for one of three student positions on the ASUS VISITORSHIP committee. For further details drop by the ASUS office B 103 Macintosh Corry, or Phone Nina at 547-3069, during normal office hours.

WANTED (Last Saturday in April): Strippers for buddies stag: fees negotiable; must be clean, female and under thirty. This is not a joke! For interviews, please call 544-7337, or 544-2013 or 544-4786.

As the cocke rises here it comes again! Coke, the Bear and Hartley announce the second coming Feb. 20th. A big birthday bash celebrating Hartley's and our personal physician, Dr. Chates' (our penicillin supplier) birthdays. Or, Chates may have his first delivery soon. The Mother's name is Lynn, who is the Father? (T.C.) Dear Nicotine Addicts: When the smoke cleared we realized the excellence of the dinner and the warmth of the company. Merci Beaucoup. Cock-a-doodle-doo! Now the whole world knows, that last Sat. in a city far away (T.O.), high atop a towering edifice (the TD building), amidst the brilliance of the sun, that a knight in shining armour, Paul E. McGraith placed upon the finger of his fair princess, Heather M. Kean, a band of gold and glitter, announcing for all to hear his intentions of marriage. (Oh well, another one bites the dust) Bert.

Lost: 1 brown leather glasses case. Saturday Feb. 1 309 Earl St. If found please phone 549-4623.

Beer Brewing contest: Friday Feb. 7 in Wallace Hall. 8PM. Advance tickets are available for 50c in the engineering society office in Clark Hall from now until Friday.

WHAT MAKES QUEEN'S WOR. TWILE? A Gael group 36 reunion. Come see Ron's new clock at Antonio's coca-cola palace. Sat. Feb. 8 after 8.30. Be there, we have ways of making you come.

REWARD PLEASE HELP! Have lost a gold mezuzah - bar on chain with inscription B.S. 26-771 and star of David. Please contact Tricia at 544-1649-546-3595.

INFLATION FIGHTER: Typing done

SOUTHERN COMFORT IS A NORTHERN DELIGHT.

And Southern Comfort is all you need - for everything from Comfort on the Rocks to an exotic Southern Julep. And Southern Comfort is sweet satisfaction all by itself. Southern Comfort.

the grand old drink of the South.

SOUTHERN COMFORT

for only 25 cents per page - one minute from Dunning Hall: Rush orders - considered Call 544-4725 anytime.

STUDENT LIBERAL MEETING. 501 Stirling Hall. 8 pm Wednesday, February 5. All members and anyone interested please attend.

HEY 831 In keeping with our tradition - we're late again. But at long last we're having a reunion. Thur. (4th) at 7.45 at Queen's pub. Be there. Sue and Oon.

FOR SALE: 1 leather engineering jacket (Science 741, Size 40-50 - not negotiable. Phone Mark at 544-9036 after 6.30 pm.

ARE YOU FREE TUESDAY and -or Thursday mornings between 9.30 and 11.30? If not, St. Paul's Anglican Church needs volunteers to help with their nursery school programme. Please contact the SVB if you can help.

DISABLED RESIDENT of St. Mary's would like someone to chat with as he's rather isolated. He takes two courses here - Economics and History. Please call the SVB at 547-5766 or come into the office if you can help.

THERE ONCE WERE THREE GIRLS from Vic Hall: Who needed a place for the tall? They wanted to see an apartment for three - if you have one please give us a call. Rita 444-8386 Val 544-8385, Janice 544-8500.

LOST: One pair brown suede gloves. New. If found please call 544-9678.

CLARK HALL PUB open Sat. Feb. 8 from noon till six. Warm up for the hockey that night. Gaels vs Western.

FAYE: Happy Anniversary. may our next one be together. Love Piston.

PLANNING A SPRING WEDDING? Photo image offers complete photographic coverage, tailored to your individual needs, from as little as $50. For further information call us at 544-7770 or visit our studio at 33 Brock St. and see the photographs we have done for others.

RECYCLE YOUR BOOKS OR RECORDS. We sell records on consignment; that is, you get $1.50 for every one of your records that sell. Needless to say, good rock, blues, jazz, folk records sell-out quickly. We also have unopened used books for sale.

WE REALLY NEED TO borrow or rent an electric bass guitar for a folksinging party we're having.

NEED PASSPORT OR JOB APPLICATION PHOTOGRAPHS? At Photo Image we have a student rate of $4.00 for six prints. For an appointment call us at 544-7770 or

Something to "cheers" about:

Now the glorious beer of Copenhagen is brewed right here in Canada. It comes to you fresh from the brewery. So it tastes even better than ever. And Carlsberg is sold at regular prices.

So let's hear it, Carlsberg lovers. "One, two, three... Cheers!"

Lewis:

by Michael Finley
Queen's University
Law Student

Ontario New Democratic Party leader Stephen Lewis almost didn't arrive in time to deliver a scheduled speech to Queen's students about the economic plight of the Third World.

Lewis was delayed in Toronto by debate in the Legislature raging around a more conventional provincial issue - evidence that the Davis Government approved speculative land deals in return for political contributions.

The New Democratic leader did manage to join the day of awareness sponsored by Queen's students on January 31, however. Speaking at Ellis Hall he suggested that the event was one he did not want to pass up lightly merely because things were getting hot at Queen's Park.

"The problems of the Third World are not usually part of the repertoire of a provincial politician", he said, but millions of people on the verge of starvation in Africa and Asia is something which should concern us all.

Lewis said that as a New Democrat he could not ignore the plight of the Third World Democratic Socialists, whether they operate in a provincial, national, or international arena, are committed to the idea that people everywhere deserve the opportunity to strive for a decent standard of living in a world which recognises the brotherhood of man in a practical and concrete way.

He also pointed out that the policy of national and provincial governments in Canada are not irrelevant to the problems of the underdeveloped countries, nor are their problems irrelevant to us, even in a narrow economic sense.

The idea that the world is getting smaller has been trivialised, but it is a truth which cannot be ignored.

"We must face up to the fact that the policies of the industrialised quarter of the world are at least partly responsible for the retarded economic development of the rest of the world", Lewis said.

Industrial nations use a disproportionately high percentage of the world's resources. A single North American family consumes more energy than thousands of people in Bangladesh or drought-ridden

Nigeria in West Africa. Lewis suggested that until developed nations learn how to plan the way in which they use resources in a more intelligent and less wasteful manner, the entire world will remain on the edge of disaster.

"The present pattern of unplanned growth cannot continue much longer", he said. We must change our policy or eventually face the consequences of our waste.

A concrete example brings the issue home to Eastern Ontario and incidentally, home to the issues which will loom large in the next provincial election.

It is both tragic and ironic that with drought and poor harvests destroying the means of livelihood of whole nations in the Third World, the Federal and Provincial governments are pushing for a $300 million project to build the Pickering Airport - a project which will distort the economic development of the province and take thousands of acres of prime agricultural land out of production.

That is just the kind of wasteful development which contributes to economic and social disaster at home and abroad, and proves Lewis' contention that the people of Ontario cannot avoid being concerned with the problems of a troubled and shrinking world.

Last Lecture Series- Dr. Elias Andrews

by John Gibson

"I believe that persons must find self-fulfillment." This was one of the conclusions that Dr. Elias Andrews, a recently retired Theology prof, made during the second talk of this year's Last Lecture Series, held Wednesday.

Dr. Andrews, in what may actually have been his last lecture at Queen's, chose for his topic "You and Your World". He began his lecture by describing the outstanding characteristic of the world today as plurality and diversity in lifestyles, political and economic organization, religions, and ideology. In this world which lack any essential order, many people are plagued by doubts, and often seek to escape the common reality in one way or another.

But escape is not the way to meet the challenge of Chaos. Instead, Dr. Andrews said, we must find an individual world view, a secure place to stand from which to look at life. We must each believe in our individual uniqueness.

In this search for ourselves, we are not to forget that we are an inseparable part of the world, its nature and history. First, "We are absolutely dependent on the world" for our existence, and cannot expect to exploit it indefinitely as a thing apart from us. Second, we are surrounded by history, both as a legacy of traditions and past deeds, and as an ongoing process within the community.

How, then, do we find self-fulfillment? By constructing a framework of authentic moral values we may assure our mental and spiritual well-being. Authentic values are love, kindness, or altruism, as opposed to "non-authentic values", such as greed or cruelty. Acceptance of the phony values is destructive of personality and can only lead to "spiritual sickness".

To achieve an identity, we must find a major passion round which to organize authentic values, perhaps by practising an enjoyable vocation. For Dr. Andrews, though, the only sure way to draw the various values into a whole is through religion. Whether it be Islam, Judaism, Christianity, or whatever, we require a religion to achieve self-fulfillment. God has made man capable of such "self-actualization", and when man of his free will chooses religion, the divine power backs him up and assists him.

The lecture, attended by about thirty people, was delivered in standard classroom manner, with anecdotes following profound quotation. While such a learned style had no great entertainment value, it suited the topic matter and the theme of the series. In his talk, Dr. Andrews put forth his personal outlook on life, a fitting revelation for a last lecture.

The next speech in the Last Lecture Series will be delivered next Wednesday by M.J. Courtwright, Vice-Principal for Information and Development.

Housing Housing Housing

All graduating students - We would still like your Housing Questionnaire. If you have misplaced it, (burned, ripped-up, stomped-on, etc.) or you are leaving your present residence at the end of this school year and did not receive the form, pick-up another one at the Housing Office (125 Union St.). If you have already leased your house, please fill out the form and indicate this fact in the 'other comments' at the bottom of the page.

If students looking for places to lease - The Advanced Students' Housing List is now posted in the Housing Office. As new listings come in they will be placed directly on the board.

Why wait for spring?

Do it now.

ASUS

Nominations are open for the following positions:

President and Vice President of ASUS (slate)

Treasurer of ASUS

Secretary of ASUS

6 one-year ASUS representatives to the AMS

1 two-year ASUS representative to the AMS

2 one-year Senators

1 two-year Senator

All nominations should include 25 signatures of members of ASUS, position nominated for and the name and telephone number of the nominee.

All nominations must be submitted to the ASUS Box in the AMS office by February 4 at 4:00 pm

ASUS

Notice of election for:

President and Vice-President of ASUS (slate)

Treasurer of ASUS

Secretary of ASUS

6 one-year Representatives to the AMS

1 two-year Representative to the AMS

2 one-year Senators

1 two-year Senator

Election Day

Wednesday, February 12

Thursday February 13,

MacIntosh-Corry Hall

10:30am - 3:30pm

at all AMS Poll Stations

editorial

Apathy equals acclamation

Students on this campus have gone too far in their apathetic attitudes. Throughout the year they have completely refused to become involved or even concerned in anything outside of their expressed disappointment that part of pub was to close. Recent efforts to bring a taste of world consciousness onto campus were fruitless in light of the many who so adamantly regretted being asked to forfeit a meal and the other 90 per cent who simply refused to note the situation.

Now we are being faced with the epitome of apathy! Last Friday at 5:00 pm saw the deadline for the AMS executive nominations pass with only one team submitting their papers. The team, an already 'AMS politically heave' team, consists of: John Gray, President-elect, previously Vice-President University Affairs; Ian Nordheimer, Vice-President-elect Operations previously Internal Affairs Commissioner turned Speaker; and John Wilson, Vice-President-elect University Affairs previously ASUS representative to Outer Council.

The result is...ACCLAMATION! ...no campaign, no possibility for even slight student involvement, no questions and no political security for the executive next year.

Aside from the obvious rip-off the campus is experiencing and the disadvantages the team is soon to face, there are even greater ills to this situation. If the team had any sort of political consciousness (ie. a want for democracy) and as well, were secure in their own strength as individuals and as an executive, they would have made the decision to extend the deadline so as to encourage at least another team for the running, (the team that would have undoubtedly come through in light of possible acclamation).

However, this was not the case. The decision for extension was not made and the result is that we now have three smug politicians on our hands expecting full support next year.

But the fault of the situation does not lie entirely with the three AMS politicians but with the structure and attitudes within the AMS itself. If it had proved itself to be a worthy organization, there might well have been more students vying for the positions on the governing body, attitudes might be stimulated and life would be different.

It is a difficult time when apathy reigns and those in power see the need for change. Our next student government might well be different than the one that was recently dismissed. They might be housing thoughts of leadership, credibility, efficiency and intelligence but taking office through acclamation is certainly no way to begin proving it.

Queens Journal

Vol. 102 No. 25
Tues., Feb. 4, 1975
Queen's University
at Kingston, Ont.

Editor in Chief Suzanne 'hopalong' Sherkin
Business Manager Terry Collins
Managing Editor Dan McClelland
News Editor Sarah Yarnell
Assistant News Editor Nancy Flood

Features Editors Wendy Reynolds, Laurie Gibson
Arts Editors Peter Kerry White, Haworth III
Sports Editors Lyn Alwood, Suzanne Jackson

Photo Editor Jan Willmer
Special Backpage Editor John Bottomley

Watts Haggini-Rosemary, Jennifer, and Mark

Contributors and camp followers Meg Bottomley, Anne Robertson (sorry about last weeks omission), Jan Wager (ditto), Larry Woods and his non-brother Chris.

The non-ex-candidates, Leslie Gaukrödger, Chuck 'speedy' Parker, Mike Kingsbury, Lois Lormer, Mary Ann Purdy, Peter Watts, Leslie Gaukrödger, marry me marry me, Louisiana Dave and Kelly, 0001 (I've been promoted).

PLUS a host of other non-existent people. The whole mess is made up by a talented chimpanzee who gets all these names out of Who's Nowhere OOPS I've let the secret out. Pass a bananaananananana

Founded in 1873 and published on Tuesdays and Fridays during the academic year by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University, Incorporated, Kingston, Ontario. Founding member of Canadian University Press. Editorial opinions expressed are those of the editor and not necessarily those of the AMS nor the University. Telephone (416) 547-2400. Printed by gnomes at the St. Lawrence Printing Co. Ltd., Prescott, Ontario. Lithographed in USA on Canadian newspaper.

Make your choice

A Functional Alma Mater Society

or

Honoraria makes AMS positions available to interested people

letters to the editor

Credit due

Dear Editor,

The last edition of the Journal carried a front page story naming myself as an organizer of the 'Day of Fasting', much as I am pleased to be associated with this day and its purpose I think it only fair to give credit to those who have done the work. The idea for the day was initiated by Lynn Whitam and the planning and organization was undertaken by John Gray. In the latter stages Beth Burden was pressed into service to help with the final preparations for Thursday's events.

Both John and Beth worked very hard to promote the purpose of the day, and its success is due in large part to their untiring efforts.

Marvin R. Bloos

Respect all life

Dear Editor,

How refreshing it was to hear a word from a 'Friend of the Fur' last week. Of course at an affluent University such as Queen's such unrealistic attitudes do not go unchallenged. It was therefore with the greatest relief that I read Ian McLean's letter reassuring me that 'most' of our furs are farm raised.

I find such an attitude as Mr. McLean's amusing, especially in a week when the student body will demonstrate their concern for the welfare of the world and their respect for the precious state of life by eating rice for Thursday's lunch. Mr. McLean's attitude, representative of the attitude of a great many in our arrogant society, shows a sad, lacking in respect for the lives of 'our furry friends'. Life, depressingly short for all of us is infinitely precious (and no less so for a ranch-raised mink than for yourself).

The saddest part is that Mr. McLean has raised the most important point in this entire issue without realizing the significance of it. That 'if the market didn't exist, neither would these animals' an unenlightened statement in itself, clearly points to a far more basic thought. If there was no demand for fur coats there would be no fur industry. The attitude of 'it's already dead, I might as well but it just doesn't go. If furs don't sell then animals don't die. It is, believe it or not, as simple as that.

The wolverine fisher and mink have all suffered due to the lure of the almighty dollar. That any creature from our vast and varied wildlands (which are becoming less vast and varied all the time) should die so that some ass-hole can have a fur coat to feel pampered in, and to shove up everybody's nose does little more than to turn my stomach. That these creatures should be raised with this one more so. I just can't help but feel that a muskrat mareso. I just can't help but feel that a muskrat needs his coat more than we do, and looks better in it to boot.

Perhaps Mr. McLean has managed with his literary masterpiece, to convince himself and reassure all the measure second degree fur-bearers on campus but he certainly doesn't convince me. Three cheers for the Friends of the Fur

Sincerely,
Gary P. Bell

sweven-insert

Poets, photographers ...

Artists of all persuasions are invited to contribute to sweven c/o the Journal

(this time for sure!)

STAN BRAKHAGE

The poet's vision in a film-maker's eye

by Sandra Bernstein
 "How many colors are there in a field of grass to the crawling baby unaware of 'green'". - Stan Brakhage

For over twenty years, Stan Brakhage has been one of the most important people in the movement he likes to call "personal cinema". Last week, as a guest of the Department of Film Studies, he spent a day at Queen's, teaching and screening some of his works.

Brakhage's films are very different from the usual Hollywood product. Most, for instance, are silent, as he believes this is the normal state for what is essentially a visual art form. Only rarely has he seen what he considers to be a great sound film, one in which the sound adds another dimension to the work rather than detract from it.

His films also make use of what might be called abstract forms. Effects of light, particularly closed-eye visions, fascinate him, and much of his efforts are directed toward creating a visual equivalent on film to the things he sees, some of which are too subtle to be photographed. His films are very carefully composed and constructed, and his most recent work "A Text of Light", is a film symphony in four movements. This film was screened last Wednesday night, along with "Star Garden", another recent work.

"A Text of Light", which most viewers find an astonishing visual experience, depicts for Brakhage the ordinary world as people would see it if not for social constraint. "Renaissance perspective is not the only form of sight", he says. "It allows us to function the way those who would enslave us want us to." Lighting effects in "A Text of Light" which seem to show cosmic bodies were actually photographed by passing light through a glass ashtray, and Brakhage hopes that after seeing the film, people will go home and concentrate on looking deep into the things around them. Here are some of the remarks he made during his visit to Queen's:

"Our eyes are trained to look any way but this relaxed, meditative way ... as a child I saw these things but was not permitted to say so, until later when I learned these things were allowed under a tent of religion or mysticism."

"You should use film as a crowbar for the world, to open up life as you would use the other arts. Many people experience light but find it necessary to forget what they have seen."

"For instance, I have always seen the aura around plants and people. I see the sparks plants shoot out at the ends of the veins and when I draw them, I find that those sparks were where the veins later grow. I was conscious mad, until recently when science developed a method for photographing these things. It's sad that things are believed over people."

Films are not mystic, fantastical outpourings, but documents of what I have seen and of the process of seeing. We have to see through well as with our eyes, as Brakhage.

I know that the brain is divided into two sides. The side that develops later can speak, read and write; the other side cannot. This right side is the one concerned with pattern recognition: with composition, gestalt, rhythm, music, dance. This is the side that dreams, that uses animal recognition. It sees body as rhythmic. It is little. When you watch my films, I see you feel yourself in this animal. Let the body have it."

I work I engage my whole nervous system in a state beyond conscious effort. I lose the capacity to speak, have learned to run a camera a stupor. I sweat profusely ... in an animal state our sight is morbid. Look deep into particles of light. Relax the muscles of your eyes. Don't take a machine's word; see the auras. Every kind of vision is possible."

In my films I explore the world of eye vision as well. In a reborn state, I can see this world with eyes open. The space an after floats in is real and can contain our own space. These images not shown in Hollywood films. Necessary, I paint or superimpose them on my own films."

People who have been dead and then revived say that in "A Text of Light" depicts what they saw when they died. I haven't had that experience, but I imagine the desire of optic feed-back at such a level to create such pictures ... to create a sort of visual music in my films. The work of Robert Rauschenberg, which the struck note of overtones and undertones, where the melody, comes part of the mind ...

Things get more and more complex. A relationship between persons from an interior to a figure like two mobiles. In my films I try to be at the service of the sub-conscious knows this degree of complexity we may be unaware of it."

There is so much we don't perceive ...

"Our eyes have filters in them. This is the origin of expressions like 'to see red'. They can be a key to what you're feeling, but most people don't want to see them ... They feel trapped and too lazy to do anything about it. Art is the only antidote - or else loving anyone who'll wake you up."

"Our hope is in individual visions. To me the work of other artists is not fantasy but something I can see too; it inspires my vision and life. People in power often call the personal sphere (perception, art, love) useless, but to me it is not. The self is finally all we have, and as Aristotle said, we have to move through particulars to get to generalizations. People tell us to be responsible, but to me that means 'able to respond' - a reaching out. Art is absolutely personal."

"My function as an artist is to open myself to experience, as an organ or instrument. I don't worry about style, which is as irreducible as handwriting. I am chosen, I did not choose to be who I am. The task is to make myself a sufficient instrument to be mastered by the accidents of life. The work itself comes through the artist. His only pride is survival, in having opened himself, lent himself to a scary process that is mentally fearsome, and in knowing what has been done in the arts. Anyone can do all of it. Often it is a tough life; the ugliness of normal life hurts. It's a painful life but a great one."

"The fact is that we need Renaissance perspective to drive a car, and to communicate with one another. But I won't give up art or Hollywood. We can make a living without stopping our first person lives."

"Verlaine said that the artist is a person who is shy, reticent and desires to have absolute control over the world ..."

"Turner is very important to me. Painting has inspired much in my work; in 'A Text of Light' the group of Seven and the Hudson River School were especially influential."

Brakhage is currently residing in Colorado. He supplements his income from film rentals by making frequent lecture tours and by teaching university. Every two weeks he commutes to Chicago, where he teaches a course in film. In the meantime, he continues "rummaging his planet" and producing a large number of movies. "I find the world a strangely exciting place", he says.

Udi Palasti in Chamber Music

AMEY'S
TAXI
546-1111

Any book directly from the publisher to your home with 10-35 percent discount.

ADADEMIC BOOK CLUB,
P.O. Box 1507,
Kingston, K7L 5C7.

Canvassers Needed
The Heart Fund requires 300 people to canvass Kingston door-to-door for donations to the Ontario Heart Foundation.

COME TO LEONARD HALL
DINING ROOM,
SUNDAY, FEB. 9.
BETWEEN 1 and 5 P.M.

Free transportation
Free refreshments
PLEASE HELP!

Room for improvement

by Donald Stephen

It is a peculiar review that must appear only after a series of performances is completed. If you have not seen the production, you cannot still be advised whether it is worth attending, and if you have seen it, you will certainly have made up your own mind. The following remarks, then, are addressed to evaluation-hungry members of the production company, and to readers with catholic interest in the state of the local art.

Last week McArthur Theatre Arts students presented a suite of three short plays, all variants on the theme of confinement. Pinter's The Room, directed by Joe Harwood; Kopit's Chamber Music, directed by Gordon Beattie; and The Other Thing, an original anthology, directed by Bill Murphy.

It ought to have been especially interesting to see what student teachers have to say, placed, as they are, in the peculiar dual role of captor and captive in our society's most embracing institution of confinement—the formal education system.

Unfortunately, it was not.

A play like Pinter's Room either sparkles brilliantly, or expires like a floundered flounder. It wasn't glittering when I saw it. Pinter's sheen is a product of precise and highly polished timing, an exacting orchestration of cadence, tone and articulate silences. Cast members were uniformly soporific in the stiff, unmodulated, apparently interpretationless delivery of their lines. Their lacklustre performances were complemented by a heavy-handed and unnecessarily monotonous brown-on-brown set. It was boring.

Perhaps thinking the play sufficiently mothering that no one would notice, Mr. Harwood even saw fit to substantially alter the ending of the play, and completely short-circuited the impact of Pinter's conclusion.

A great play was done a still greater injustice. Murphy's The Other Thing was a set of pseudo-pantomime pseudo-improvisations structured (?) around a boy's dreams and nightmares on the question, "What are you going to be when you grow up?" With a dozen or so players writhing, posturing and muttering in the aisles to an up-tempo cacophonous musical accompaniment, a good deal of laughter was provoked. In the ingeniously magical, bare-breasted, hairy-chested previous decade such pretentious cavortings may have been de rigueur, but not now.

I even made out one of those hold-overs from the sixties fervently intoning, "Do your own thing, man!" Now, while one may be sympathetic to the underlying idea, one must deplore such self-righteous, formulaic cant in word and in theatrical deed. Superficial fashions change (thank god!), and this one is passing by. Sadly, Mr. Murphy and players are out of touch with even the changing currents of trite and facile sentimentality.

Easily the most interesting of the three offerings was Beattie's production of Chamber Music. Kopit's play explores confinement through the petty rivalries and interlocking machinations of eight female asylum inmates, each of whom believes herself to be a famous historical figure. The play's comical, shimmering verbal surface masks a powerful undertow of tragically misdirected and ultimately self-destructive violence that glowers maniacally throughout. Although performances were generally shallow and lacked the vital, galvanizing edge of explosive desperation, creditable efforts were made by Mary-Lou Carrier, Elynn Henderson, Genevieve Leidinger and Udi Palasti.

In sum, it would appear that directors and players of last week's lacklustre triptych ill-appreciate the confinement of their modest technical skills. Hopefully, their next dramatic essay will be less demanding and more felicitous. Ambition overstepping ability is a good indication of enthusiasm, and enthusiasm prognosticates ultimate success.

Winter is just snow fun
without it.

Molson Golden
A good smooth ale
Do you know what you're missing?

Masked dance of Bengal

Chhau, the Masked Dance of Bengal, to be performed at Grant Hall Thursday evening.

Honour in combat

As the Kung-Fu movie cycle slowly fades away from the theatre chains, it is only fitting the master of them all makes his final appearance at the Capitol Theatre to reaffirm his stature.

Bruce Lee made four movies in the genre before his unexpected death, and Return of the Dragon is the third of the lot, but last to be released. Lee not only starred, but wrote and directed it as well and has done a fine job.

Return of the Dragon which takes place in Italy (of all places), is a simple tale of Lee coming to the protection of his countrymen who are threatened by agents of the underworld. This plot however is used only to provide a framework for Lee to perform his stuff, and as always, he's fun to watch.

It's the moment when Lee sheds his shirt to reveal his muscled torso that suddenly the quiet little Oriental is transformed into a small package of dynamite. Then the action starts.

In his first encounter with the gang, he systematically demolishes them one by one. Throughout the rest of the film, Lee continues to defeat lesser opponents until he finally faces the villains' hired champion, Chuck Norris, in Rome's Coliseum. These action sequences are fun to watch as they are neatly choreographed to emphasize Lee's grace and control of the martial arts techniques. The most important aspect of his fighting abilities is the amount of concentration he employs. His face registers the calculation and the ecstasy of each movement and blow, not one of which is wasted.

Poetry reading

From apple-packer to academic, from warehouse packer to poet—these are only two of the many transformations of Henry Beissel's life. He was born in Germany, studied in Germany and England, and came to Canada in 1951. Here he has settled down to become not only a poet. Witness the Heart, New Wings for Icarus, Face of the Dark but also a playwright (Salvador, Inook and the Sun), improvisations for Mr. X, and a university professor (University of Toronto, Alberta, and Sir George Williams).

The Montreal Star described him as "an elitist in a vulgar age". He admits to being an elitist, but regards his relationship to his times more paradoxically: "I am a man of my time simply because I am not a man of my time". He insists further that we cannot live entirely in the present, "confined in an iron lung linked to existence by a thin ration of oxygen."

Henry Beissel will be at Queen's, reading from his own work and answering questions, at 8:30 pm on Wednesday February 5th in John Watson Hall (room 517).

The climatic showdown between Lee and Chuck Norris is final testament to Lee's honour, and dedication the martial arts. The Coliseum defines the dynamics of personal confrontation, as it conjures up the atmosphere of an era when gladiators were engaged in one to one combat, and is a perfect location for this Lee-Norris showdown.

Lee's sense of honour, which one achieves through courage in confrontation with one's peer, is most eloquently expressed in his salute to his defeated opponent. No other opponent is so acknowledged but Norris receives this tribute as his only worthy challenger.

Return of the Dragon can serve as an epitaph for the Little Dragon who kicked, punched, and screamed his way through some of the most entertaining movies of our time. At the end, Lee wanders off having saved his friends. Knowing he has since passed away adds a touch of poetry to this ending, but one senses that Bruce Lee will always be around, remembered as one of the most fascinating screen personalities of the movies.

"Romeo Maione"

Former director of Canadian Labour Congress and Canadian International Development Agency.

Public Lecture

"World Development - Canada at the Crossroads"

Thursday February 6
Stirling D 8:00 p.m.

Sponsored by Canadian Group for Development and Peace, S.C.M.

cineguild presents

THEY SHOOT HORSES
DON'T THEY?

WITH JANE FONDA

PLUS: PART 4:

THE INDIANS ARE COMING!

THURSDAY DUNNING HALL
7 and 9:30 P.M. $1.00

Queen's Italian and Spanish Department

Sunday February 9

The Garden of the Finzi Continis, by DeSica, Ellis Auditorium, 8:00 pm

Monday February 10

La Notte by Antonioni,
International Centre, 8:00 p.m.

$1.50 for both films

Tuesday February 11

7:00 pm Play
Gli imbianchini non hanno ricordi
by Dario Fo

8:00 pm Masked Ball
drinks and food

$2.00 for play and masked ball

Tickets on sale at office of Dept. of Italian and Spanish or at La Casa, 90 Queen's Crescent.

WEEKEND FREE?

WHY NOT... IF YOU HAVE ONE

YOUR SCENIC KINGSTON, TAKE
A TRIP HOME OR
ENJOY A DRIVE IN THE COUNTRY!!

HOST
Rent-A-Car

We rent to Queen's University students under 25 years of age!
Special rates available for conferences, seminars, workshops, etc.
AVOID DISAPPOINTMENT! RESERVE NOW!!

CORNER OF QUEEN AND BAGOT
Phone 549-2348

A.M.S. PAGE

WHAT WOULD YOU
SAY?

IF IT WERE YOUR LAST OPPORTUNITY TO ADDRESS MANKIND
WHAT WOULD YOU SAY?

"THE LAST LECTURE SERIES"

is a series of informal evenings combining listening and discussion

Wed. Feb. 5

Mr. Jim Courtright

Vice-Principal

Topic: "The Human Condition"

Everyone Welcome

TIME: 7:15 p.m. - McNEIL COMMON HOUSE
CO-SPONSORED BY AMS ED. COMM. AND I.R.C.

Outer Council Meeting

Thursday Feb. 6th 6:30 p.m.

McLaughlin Room

A.M.S. Bus Service Save$

TORONTO: $6 one way $10 return

Depart Kingston: Friday 4:30 (Students' Union)
Arrive Toronto: 7:30 (Union station)
Depart Toronto: Sunday 8:30 (Union Station)
Arrive Kingston: 11:30 (Students' Union)

OTTAWA: $5 one way $8 return

Depart Kingston: Friday 4:30 (Students' Union)
Arrive Ottawa: 7:00 (Westgate Mall)
Depart Ottawa: Sunday 8:30 (Westgate Mall)
Arrive Kingston: 11:00 (Students' Union)

TICKETS:

MEAL LINES - Wednesday and Thursday
JOHN ORR ROOM - Wed. Thur. 11:00 - 1:00
Friday 10:00 - 2:30

APPLICATIONS FOR JOB BANK

Directors and/or

Co-Directors

Will be Accepted Until
FEB. 7

Applicants are reminded this is a full time summer job which will also include spring responsibilities. Any interested Queen's student is eligible. Applications should be addressed to the A.M.S. office and should include a resume and some of the applicant's plans for JOB BANK. For further information call John Beech 547-6165. Applicants will be interviewed at a future date.

The Legal Vistas Committee
Presents

A Panel and General Discussion on

The Consumer's 3 R's

Regulation, Retailing, Rip-offs

Thursday, Feb. 6th 3:30 p.m.

MacDonald Hall - Theatres D and E

Panel:

Barry Craig - on leave from Toronto
Globe and Mail

Donald Goudy - Formerly with Toronto
Star's Star Probe

Gordon Sanderson - London Free Press

All Welcome

Office of the Dean of Women
presents a

'Nutrition Series'

Dupuis Auditorium

Thursdays,
7-9 p.m.

Feb. 6th - "Nutrition - A Canadian Energy Crisis"

Guest: Donna Woolcott, Ontario Ministry of Health.

International Week

DANCE

Saturday, Feb. 8th

Leonard Cafeteria

8 p.m. - 1 a.m.

Afro-American Band
"Anubis"

$1.50/person

Strawbs:

excellent performance

by Wren

In spite of the long wait while the piano was being tuned, the icy temperature in the Jock Harry Arena, and the serious problems with the equipment, the Strawbs, on Saturday night, played to an audience who were "crackling and buzzing" (as group leader, Dave Cousins, so aptly put it) with appreciation. The group began with three selections ("Out in the Cold," "Round and Round," and "Autumn") from their album Hero and Heroine, which featured excellent keyboard work by John Hawken, and Chas. Cronk's strong, versatile bass.

With Dave Lambert on lead, the Strawbs then moved into some material from their latest album, Ghosts, the contrast between the bouncy "Lemon Pie" and the slower paced, soothing "You and I (When we were young)" demonstrating Cousins' versatility and originality as a composer and lyricist. His voice, both harsh and sinuous, chewed its way through "The Life Auction," from Ghosts, whose biting and somewhat macabre images reflected those in "New World", the only pre-Hero and Heroine song performed. It was unfortunate that the electronics tended to dominate the vocals, since Cousins' lyrics, at their best as in "Auction" are intriguing. Although he writes the majority of the material, and is obviously the groups' mainstay, Cousins tends not to dominate onstage, allowing the band to work as a well coordinated unit, as well as feature occasional solos from each of the more than competent members.

After a very uncharacteristic synthesized-drum experiment, resembling two 747's at take-off, the Strawbs broke into the title song from Hero and Heroine, varied by echoing vocals, and like a group of minstrels, rebounded into a repeat chorus of "Round and Round. At this point, Cousins informed the audience, the group usually finished, but due to the inordinate number of difficulties with the equipment, they were planning to extend the set. He rambled on amusingly about the background to "Grace Darling", a song from Ghosts, which may or may not concern the patron saint of life boat men. Returning to complete the concert with two new numbers, the Strawbs finished with an intricate lead solo by Lambert, and Hawken's flowing synthesizer.

Equipment problems aside, the Strawbs put on an excellent performance, flawed only by the difficulties involved in playing concept music in a one night concert format, and the lack of clarity in the vocals. The group balanced new material with selections from Hero and Heroine - a combination which was infinitely more appealing than a mere showcasing of their new album, Ghosts would have been. In being responsive to each other and to the audience, the Strawbs showed a great deal more musicianship and professionalism than did the warm-up act, Man. Although they seemed to have some kind of basic appeal as rockers, Man was often harsh and overloud. They tended to lean heavily on strong but repetitive rhythms and choruses, and not wisely kept their rather uninspired lyrics to a minimum. Man finished impressively but unoriginally and, unlike the Strawbs, sound even interesting on their albums than they do on stage.

Photos by

jon willmer

Vandalism runs amok in Student's Union. However, due to high radiation factor, the safe machines were protected. According to our usually reliable source (who is vacationing somewhere in Mexico, this sort of thing reflects the changing values of misguided youth in our tempestuous seventies. I mean, at four in the morning, who really gives a shit.

John Bottomley

Queen's International Week

African Film Night

Films from Zambia, Nigeria, Ghana and Guinea Bissau

Weds., Feb. 5, Dunning Hall, 7:30 p.m.

Middle East Symposium

Topic: Prospects for Peace in the Middle East

Thurs., Feb. 6, Ellis Hall, 8:00 P.M.

Afternoon of Classical Dance and Music

Featuring MME Ranganthan on Vina

Sat. Feb. 8, Ellis Hall, 2:00 p.m.

International Dance

Featuring "Anubis", 8 man Afro-American Soul

Admission $1.50

Sat. Feb. 8, 8:00 P.M.

Leonard Cafeteria

New Hours

Canada Manpower Job Information Centre

in

Queen's Career Planning and Placement Office

A Canada manpower career counsellor is now available

10 am - 1 pm

Monday - Wednesday - Friday

To assist graduating students with their career decisions

Summer applications also available

Aesculapian Society Election

Nominations for the following positions (75-76)

— PRESIDENT (3rd or 4th Yr.)

— INTERNAL V.P. (any yr.)

— EXTERNAL V.P. (any yr.)

— SECRETARY (any yr.)

— TREASURER (any yr.)

— ATHLETIC STICKS (1 Male, 1 Female) (2nd Yr.)

— JR. AND SR. AMS REPS (2nd and 3rd yrs. respectively)

Nominations to be signed by
2 Society Members.

Hand in to Bob Kraus, Nicole Leroche, or Greg Thompson
by February 5 (closing date).

Friday Film Series '75

Presented by G.S.S. Film Club

February 7

"Monkey Business"

"Horse Feathers"

Marx Brothers

Single admission $1.00 or series ticket

8:00 pm

Ellis Auditorium

Everyone welcome

"When You're Sixty-Five"

Come and discover that becoming 65 can be something to look forward to.

The SVB presents a Workshop on the Aged, Sun. Feb. 9, 1975, 1:00 to 4:30

P.M. in Watson 217, with panelists

Ed. Leeman of Parks and Rec.,

Betty Boyd, School of Rehab.,

and Mrs. Lang and Mr. Smith, from Rideaucrest.

coffee and donuts will be served.

Pegasus Ski Travel Club International

presents (to its members)

The Quebec Winter Carnival $39.95

your choice of two great weekends Feb. 6-9 and Feb. 13-16 includes:-

- return coach fare from Kingston

- 3 nights accommodation in the dormitory at the Centre Communautaire Limitou - 4th St.
Centre has a restaurant-cafeteria, bowling alley and is only a 15-20 minute walk from the old city.

Bus leaves Kingston Thursday evening and returns Sunday afternoon

Ski Week from $105.00 (based on triple)

Monte. Ste. Anne P.Q. Feb. 16-21 (reading week)

includes - 5 days skiing (all lifts)

- 5 lessons with the Ste. Anne Ski School

- 5 nights accommodation at the Hotel Laurentide TV, private bath and breakfasts

- return coach fare from Kingston

- all transfers from hotel to slopes

Membership and ticket sales at Cotton's Sporthouse

399 Princess St. in Elfrond College or phone at 549-4975 between 7:30 and 10:30 pm

Sports

Teams falling behind in bid for league titles; Individual sports at the fore

Curlers sweep up

by Brent Heatherington
Journal Sports Writer

Queen's came up with another winning team over the weekend, as the men's curling team participated in and won the East sectional playoffs at the Lakeland Curling Club last Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

This year's team of Mark
McDonald, Scott Kitchen, Phil Tomsett and Tom Bryce have been curling together the entire season in area Bonspiels and currently are in the running for Divisional Honours in an OCA event. The experience and practise they gained at this level competition has certainly put them in a good position as far as University curling is concerned.

During the three day event,
Queen's met and defeated all six of the other teams in the eastern division. The first day of competition saw them play Ryerson
(17-4), Toronto (9-2), and Laurentian (9-7). The match with Laurentian was the only game of the entire 10 ends with Queen's winning by two. On Saturday York and Trent were the victims of the Gaels 11-6 and 13-3 respectively as the Queen's rink continued to dominate the opposition.

Sunday morning the Queen's curlers easily swept the RMC boys aside in a decisive 10-4 victory. Howard Pearce in his first year as curling coach must be quite pleased with the Gaels fine showing. Let's hope Howard's game plan keeps on truckin'!

This coming Saturday and Sunday the top three teams from the West Section will meet Queen's, York and Laurentian from the east. The OCAA finals will be held at the Cataract Golf and Curling Club so come out and watch the Queen's curling Gaels in action!

Final Standings

	Wins	Losses
Queen's	6	0
York	5	1
Laurentian	4	2
RMC	3	3
U. of T.	2	3
Ryerson	1	5
Trent	0	5

Hockey and Basketball .....lose

by Peter Watts
Journal Sports Writer

This past weekend's jaunt to the north country was something of a disaster for both the basketball and hockey Gaels as they continue quests for berths in the east division playoffs. The basketball squad dropped a 67-58 decision to the Yeomen on Friday night in Toronto. A third quarter lapse in the tricolor performance contributed to the defeat as the Yeomen moved some twenty points in front at that point and time ran out before the Gaels could recover. Sam Brutto led all scorers with 19 points to pace the York attack. Romeo Callegaro had 14 and Ev Spence added 12.

For the Gaels Rob Smart pumped in 16 points and Norm Hagarty added 12 more. Division-leading scorer John Keck was held to 10 points.

Saturday morning, the basketball Gaels joined the tricolor hockey squad and both teams continued on to Sudbury for games against the Voyageurs.

The basketball Gaels ran into a red-hot Mike Visser and when the smoke had cleared the Voyageurs owned a 84-53 victory.
Visser collected 42 points to lead the Voyageurs' attack, 31 of them in the first half. The total came within 2 points of tying an OCAA record. Hagarty again led the Queen's offense with 18 points while John Keck added 9 and Lyn Cond contributed 8 points.

On Sunday afternoon it was the turn of the ice hockey Gaels as they met the Voyageurs at the Sudbury Arena. Unfortunately, the results were little different as the Voyageurs, led by the standout goaltending of Dave Tataryn, and the two goal performance of Maurice Martel, overpowered the Gaels 5-1. Jim Hanson, Tom Blake and Bill
Czerwinski added single markers for the Voyageurs. Dave Smith ruined Tataryn's bid for a shutout with just a minute and a half remaining in the game. The Gaels played the last two periods without the services of rookie centre Bill Van Camp who was thrown out of the game late in the first period. Van Camp was given a match penalty after being involved in an altercation; it's not known at this point whether he'll be able to play this weekend against Western.

The weekend's hockey
results throw the east division standings into a complete state of confusion. Ottawa, after 12 games, now lead the division with 17 points. They still have to play
Laurentian next weekend and Waterloo on Feb. 14. The Blues and the York Yeomen are tied for second spot with 15 points but the Blues have 4 games left while the Yeomen have only 3. The key match could be this Saturday when the two clubs clash at Varsity Arena. The Blues also meet Western on Thursday night and still have to play Laurentian and Queen's before the regular schedule is completed. In addition to Toronto, the Yeomen have 2 relatively easy contests against RMC and Windsor.

Then we come to the Gaels who have played 12 games and have 14 points. The Gaels have to meet Western this weekend and Toronto next weekend. The Voyageurs hold down 5th spot, two points behind the Gaels but the Voyageurs have 3 games left to play. RMC should be no problem but the Voyageurs will have their hands full with Ottawa and Toronto.

It makes for a very interesting windup to an unusual east division schedule as the five teams move into the final two weeks of play in the regular schedule. Mathematically no one is assured of a playoff spot and a look at the remaining games shows that each club has to meet at least one of the other con-

Sports Round-Up

Home Action

Archery: (W) Indoor Invitational. Toronto won the OW's for the 10th year running. Queen's placed a strong second.

Alpine Skiing: (W&S) Queen's came 2nd to Ottawa

Basketball: (W) Queen's lost to Ottawa on Friday 70-50

Defeated Carleton on Saturday 89-59

Swimming: (M&W) Queen's placed a strong 3rd in the 1st Coed

Swimming and Diving Meet

Away Action

Basketball: (M) Queen's lost to York 67-58 Queen's lost to

Laurentian 84-53

Basketball: (W11) Women won at Ryerson 40-29

Curling: (M) Queen's wiped up over six other teams

Ice Hockey: (W) Queen's failed to place

Ice Hockey: (W) Creamed Guelph 4-0. Now in 1st place in Div.

(M) Lost to Laurentian 5-1

Volleyball: (M) Placed 2nd to Laurentian, defeated TO, York and Ryerson.

(W) Placed 3rd to Western and Waterloo coming from Rod Klassen (15th) and Peter Kopp (8th). Rob Michlitsch and Richard Booth also skied for Queen's. In the 3x5 km relay on Sunday, Dyer, Klassen, and Kopp continued to win another first for Queen's.

The team is coached by Mr
"Jake" Edward, who has been a cross country skier since 1946.

There are few sports which require as much endurance as cross-country skiing, since a good pace must be kept up for long distances in races. Consequently the team began training on October 15, and they run about seven miles hillclimbing, four times a week. The team also gets out to ski as often as possible, whenever there is snow in
Kingston.

The team has competed in seven meets now since the beginning of the season, and has been very successful. The OCAA cross-country skiing championships will be hosted by RMC this year and will be held at the Garrison Golf Club near RMC (if there is enough snow).

The cross-country Ski Gaels have been in existence since 1968 but because they have been one of the few university teams in Ontario most of their competition has come from American colleges. The first OWIAA invitational meet is being held this year, and the OCAA is helping to coordinate the meet. Hopefully the budget for the women's team will increase next year, and perhaps there will be more Ontario teams competing (four teams are required in order to hold an OWIAA team championship).

The team's coach, Miss Anne Turnbull, says that with the great increase in the popularity of cross-country skiing there are some girls coming to Queen's from high school with some racing experience. Consequently, the quality of racing is improving, and cross-country skiing is likely to become much more of a sport in the next few years.

As far as the Gaels are concerned they are in a reasonably good spot; Laurentian must win at least one game and hope that Queen's loses its last two, otherwise the Voyageurs will be through on Feb. 17th. But Queen's could very possibly do better than fourth the way things have gone this year.

Queen's relays qualify for Star Games

In an attempt to qualify two relay teams for the premier Canadian track meet of the indoor season, sound performances were recorded by all members of the 4x800m relay squad. Jeff Giles once again improved on his personal best with a 1:56.5 leg while Rookie teammates Scott Ogilvie and Paul Spence recorded strong legs in the race, Ogilvie turning in a 1:57.5 split (a personal best). Vice-captain Bob McCormack rounded off the race with a sub two minute 800 as well. In the process of all these sub-two's the team also broke the old 4x800m record (7:57.5) set two years ago in Toronto. The 7:51 time placed the Gals fifth overall and an invitation to run at the Star Games.

In the 4x400 meter relay Vic Gooding anchored the team of MacAulay, Cochran and Kramer to a sixth place finish overall.

Goodings 50.8 was an excellent time for that track. The teams overall time of 3:25.5 is indeed a fine time for this point in the season especially considering Kramer was still suffering from a charlie horse suffered earlier this week and MacAulay had to contend with some heavy jostling during his leg, being knocked off stride with 150 meters to go.

As for individual attempts to qualify for the games Vic

Gooding and Mark MacAulay both placed in the top six in the 50 and 50 meter hurdles respectively. In the process Vic tied another Queen's record.

Preliminary indications are that the top six teams will be selected to compete the invitational evening meet. Final confirmation however will be received later this week. In the meantime the mens team will be travelling to Cortland, New York for the Cortland Invitational.

Team members wish to thank Curt Bolton for playing chauffeur and we hope that Paul got to Straws on time.

Earlier this weekend the women's team were in Toronto as well. Ann Brown turned in a 5:36 clocking in the 1500m event. This time also broke the old Queen's record of 5:41.1. Ann is the third runner to break this record this year. The 300m race saw Betsy Carey, Linda Kelman and Jan Pipe all record fine times with Betsy and Jan both winning their heats. Louise Bathurst and Sue 'Bumper-Thumper' Plummer both ran in the 600m with Sue placing 4th in her heat and 8th overall. Also travelling with the women was John Darlington who picked up a 2nd place spot in the men's long-jump. It is rumored that he had more than he could handle as the volleyball team also travelled with the lasses. The girls would like to thank the Metro Cab Co. for getting them to the meet all in one "piece" and on time, as the action on 370 Young St. was also rumored to be hot and heavy. This weekend will open for the women's team, in order that they can recover in preparation for another weekend in Toronto on the 14th.

Lid on basket

Disappointing loss - Gals 3rd

Well, the Basketball Gals have an extra road trip to look forward to after their remarkable defeat at the hands of the Ottawa Gee-Gees on Friday night. Not only were the Gals lacking life—the baskets in the Bartlett gym seemed to come to life and forcefully prevent the Gals shots from swishing through.

Balls were not only bouncing off the rim (approx. 85 percent of them) but they were actually rolling around the rim and into the hoop and coming back out again. That is not to say that there is an earthly excuse for the catastrophe that took place on that fateful night however, that could possibly be one of the things which turned the tide of the game completely in favour of the Ottawa team and star Colleen Dufresne.

Final score 70-50. Ottawa's shooting percentage was approximately 85.90 percent. You might say that they weren't missing. Queen's was a deplorable 15 percent. Given normal circumstances Queen's would have won. We didn't.

Queen's is now lodged solidly in third place in the Eastern section of the League.

Top scorers in that game were Pat Smith with 13 points and Pat Patterson with 12 points. Laney Marshall did not even score on one basket from the floor (a sure sign that there's something wrong somewhere.) It was a great disappointment in all involved (except the Ottawa squad.) Kathy Kingsbury of Ottawa scored 30 points. Colleen Dufresne scored 17.

In the game on Saturday afternoon Queen's showed that it still knew how to play basketball.

The Gals came out on the better end of an 89-50 score. (They played in Ross gym—no lids on the baskets.) Passing, checking, rebounding and shooting was just night and day better than the previous game. Patterson scored 18 points, Laney Marshall was good for 14, Kathy Keely and Pat Quigley shot for 12 and 11 respectively.

Granted the calibre of the Carleton Ravens is nothing to 'rave' about but it does show that Queen's Basketball has left their January slump behind!

Next weekend is free for the Gals as far as League action goes and the weekend after that (the one going into reading week) they will be on the road again for the Quarter-finals. Go get 'em you Gals!

Jeff Giles in the 4x800 metres in Track meet on the weekend

chris boone

Pat Patterson in layup—in Fridays fateful game against Ottawa.

Archery second

The Women's Archery team placed second in the OWIAA Indoor Championship which took place in Bartlett gymnasium this past weekend. The two-day tournament involved teams from Toronto, Western, Guelph and Queen's.

Toronto won the championship with a total of 2030 points over the two days. Queen's was second with 1790; two steps up from last year's fourth place finish. Third place was taken by Western with 1750 and Guelph finished with 1734.

The individual tournament champion was Kathryn Corcoran of Toronto who shot 527 out of a possible 1000 points. Ms. Corcoran shot a tournament record single round of 275 on Saturday, which broke the previous record of 264, held by Anne Chalmers of Toronto.

The top archer for Queen's was Marie Iwaniw with other team members including Joane Rutter, Ann Marie Zouhar, Isabella McTavish, Gail Jackson and Wendy Earl.

Lady Paramount was Ms. Marion Ross, former director of Women's Athletics at Queen's.

Many thanks go to coach Keith Kiell and manager Gail Jackson for their hours spent coaching the team and organizing the tournament.

Pictures show an overview of the archers shooting in Bartlett gymnasium and Kathryn Corcoran with her first of three perfect ends.

lyn atwood

lyn atwood

Hockey Gals at head of league

When the hockey Gals travelled in Guelph for their league contest Saturday afternoon—possession of 1st play was a little unsettled. Two hours later there was no doubt whatsoever as the Gals skated to an impressive 4-0 victory.

Queen's got off to a quick start when Sue Wright netted the first of her two goals just 34 seconds into the game. At this point it appeared as though the Gals would skate to an easy win but such was not to be the case. The rest of the first period was played in rather close-checking fashion with the usual free-wheeling style of the Gals considerably hampered by the small ice surface. Both goalies were exceptionally sharp and time and time again robbed the opposing forwards blindly.

The Queen's girls (notably Linda McEwan and Marg Bartlett) were left shaking their heads on several occasions.

The second period was probably the best hockey with the tempo of the game picking up considerably and an abundance of scoring chances occurring at both ends of the rink. The goalies however remained equal to the task and the teams remained locked in a tight defensive battle until the midway mark of the period when linemates Rhonda Leeman and Les Ferrari tallied within a minute of each other. Leeman's breakaway effort came as the result of a pretty three way passing play with M Bartlett and L. Ferrari.

Rookie defenseman Sue Wright enjoyed a particularly impressive period as she mesmerized the Guelph team with a spectacular display of stickhandling and puck control. More than once Sue left a trail of sprawled Guelph players as she fashioned one of her patented end to end rushes.

Also worthy of mention in light of her strong defensive effort is Carol Petty who played her usual steady game back of the blue line.

Trailing 3-0 at the end of the second period Guelph began the final stanza in a hustling manner and continued to press for most of the period. If they thought they had been robbed on scoring attempts in the first two periods the play of Wanda Gyde in the 3rd did nothing to soothe their deflated spirits. Wanda played her finest game of the year (and that's saying something!) blocking all 33 shots directed her way and registering her first shut-out of the campaign. Time and time again Wanda stymied the attackers, especially in the dying minutes of the game when she was forced to make half a dozen scintillating saves, most of them at point blank range. Her job was somewhat facilitated by the efforts of the defence who throughout the course of the game came up with some big saves of their own, sliding in front of close-in shots. This was an immensely satisfying victory for the Gals as it leaves them undefeated for the season and in sole possession of first place. It also sets the stage for the league

Int. B-ball

Friday, January 31 was another winning day for the Women's Intermediate Basketball, but it was played as never before.

At the end of the first half the team was winning with 23 points. It was slow watching and must have been worse playing. Thirteen foul shots were taken in the first half and eight in the last, as every rule in the book was called.

The team managed a 40-29 win over Ryerson. Top scorers were Kathy Shalay with 8 points, Joan Dawkins with 7 points and Sheri Mart with 7 points.

Queen's Gals 11 play their next game against Toronto here next Saturday. Let's see some support.

championships to be played at York February 21, 22 when it is quite feasible that these same two teams will meet in the finals.

This Friday's home game at 5:30 against Western should provide the Gals with an opportunity to fatten their scoring averages while finishing the season without a loss. It should be an exciting contest so come on out and see our Gals in action! P.S. you'll see some great hockey too.

dave decker

Hockey Gals undefeated this season. Number one in the league

Co-ed invitational

Swimmers take third

The combined efforts of Queen's Men's and Women's Swim teams captured third place in the first co-ed invitational on Saturday. McGill took first with a total of 129 points, with York a close second with 122 points. Queen's was next with 106 points, narrowly beating out John Abbott College from Quebec with 102. Other participating schools were McMaster, Ottawa, Guelph, Western, Ryerson and RMC.

Many of the Queen's men turned in best personal times for the season. Don McLean, John Scheulderman, Wayne Serebrin, Brian Dalziel and John Pearson are mentionable heroes. Dalziel broke two minutes for the 200 freestyle with a time of 1:59.2 and took 3rd place in that event. Scott Scheulderman placed 6th in the same event with 2:01.0. Pearson took 2nd in the 100 fly with 56.4, being beaten narrowly by his old rival Mike Pearson of Ottawa. John went on to handily win the 200 fly with a time of 2:09.1. Peter Strahlendorf came 3rd in the men's 100 yd breaststroke. The medley relay and freestyle relay "A" teams did well swimming to a 4th and 6th place finish, respectively.

Last but not least we must mention the fine efforts of our divers: John McBoyle, Fred Kallin and Kerry Powel, who placed 6th, 9th and 11th, respectively in the 1 metre diving, with point totals of 265.60, 216.05 and 170.45. Fred went to the 3 metre event in the afternoon and carried off 5th place.

The team would like to thank all those who helped work at the meet. It was a long day, but a successful one. The men travel to St. Lawrence University in New York state, Wednesday, February 5th for their last meet prior to the OUAA finals at McMaster, the end of reading week.

- gord taylor

Needed: 30 male volunteers for a Valentine Dance

Feb. 12, 1975, at the

Kingston Women's Penitentiary

If interested, please call AMS, and leave your name, before Wed. Feb. 5, 1975.

Q
queen's concerts
presents

leonard

cohen

thursday, february 13,

grant hall,

7 and 10 p.m.

tickets: $4.00 students

$4.50 regular

john orr room vern napier

house of sounds

Volleyball an OW contender

by Jane Petterson
Journal Sports Writer

This weekend saw the Women's 1 Volleyball Team travel to Sir Wilfred Laurier University in Waterloo to compete with 11 other university teams for the Challenge Cup II. This is the first tournament play for the Gals since the East Sectionals in early December. Their two month lay-off did not appear to have hurt the teams play, however, as they finished the weekend in third place.

The tournament began early Friday morning for Queen's with a fast moving, well played match against McMaster. The Gals came out hitting hard and hustling on defense to easily defeat a fairly tall Mac team in two straight games. It proved that Queen's is still a contender for the OWIAA championship this year.

After a short rest the women were once again on the courts, this time against Laurier. Although Laurier was weaker the Gals showed consistently their ability to 'play their own game' and easily won because of their strong fast defensive plays and quick transitions into offense. This match again was won in two straight games.

The next match proved to be one of the most exciting games of the weekend as it saw Queen's pitted against last year's OWIAA champs and 2nd place team at the National championships--Western. At the last meeting of Queen's and Western, Queen's managed to beat the Western squad in two games. This time however the roles were reversed and only Queen's excellent defense managed to keep them alive in the contest.

Coach Gallagher complimented the team for their excellent efforts and many people agreed that it was the best Volleyball that they had seen at the university level.

Queen's is looking forward to their next match against the Western Squad as it could go either way.

The team still had one more game to go Friday night and this was against a much improved Guelph team. However, Queen's had no problem winning in two. Saturday morning started with a 9:30 am match against Windsor. The Gals easily won the first game but had trouble in the second, however finally pulling ahead with a 15-11, 15-11 score. This game served as a warm-up for the stronger U. of Waterloo squad.

Queen's has had much trouble with the Athenas this year, as the match proved. Bad luck and the failure to get a consistent attack going led to a two game defeat at the hands of Waterloo. Queen's was therefore relegated to 3rd place.

In the tournament playoffs

Queen's again had to face Waterloo and won the first game 15-13 in a tremendously hard fought game. The Gals trouble with serving and blocking, however, led to defeat in the next two games.

The tournament was generally successful and the Gals hope to make a strong showing in the East Sectionals Part II next weekend at Laurentian. Queen's hopes to secure 2nd place in the East before hosting the OWIAA Championships Feb. 21, 22.

Badminton Gaels Out

Queen's badminton Gaels just didn't have it on Saturday as they were eliminated in the far eastern sectionals held at RMC. The team of Dave Howard, Stu Howard, Jim Stuart, N.F. Lee and Marvin Ens finished third behind the RMC Redmen and the University of Ottawa. Only the top two teams advance into the eastern sectionals to be held in Ottawa this coming weekend.

There was one consolation, though, for the Gaels as the team of Dave and Stu Howard finished second in the first double event. They'll go to the eastern sectionals this weekend to compete in that category.

- lyn alwood

BLOOD

Sports
implores:

Give so that others may live.

A student researcher named Sue,
While studying on-campus brew,
Says the trend is now clear
To a beer without peer,
Labatt's Blue is now 'in'
with 'Who's who'!

Labatt's Blue smiles along with you

Army slaps New York's patties

NEW YORK: The entire city of New York was placed under arrest on Tuesday, January 28 for "loitering with intent to hang around". A spokesman for the Armed forces, who made the arrest said "There is just no way that that many people could be gathered in one place as a coincidence. There was obviously something in the air, a definite threat to National Security. We know that the constitution guarantees the right to peaceful assembly, but these folks were hardly peaceful." It is estimated that a fair trial of each citizen would take over 243,000 years, much longer than any jury could be expected to sit. Therefore, according to official spokesmen, the right to trial by jury has been waived. Latest projections indicate that all residents will be shot before the end of March.

It was considered an interesting precedent by all involved. It is a case where the right to trial by jury violated the right to a speedy trial.

bod inflation sinks vietnam

BEN WICKS

"Wow! Who's the father?"

Viet Cong 1, South Vietnam 0

Body inflation sinks Vietnam

CAMBODIA: Vietnam disappeared today under a huge pile of bodies. They are a result of the United States trying to Prove the accuracy of their long inflated body counts. The exact number of bodies is not known, but it is expected to exceed the entire number of people in the world by a factor of 7.

Alexander Haig said, in a taped interview with the president, "That ought to satisfy those pinko liberals who are out to get you."

"But it seems that it might be wrong to do that!" emphasized the former president of a country whose name you would know in a moment if I mentioned it.

"Since when (inaudible) have you started (inaudible) getting upset about (inaudible) breaking the (expletive deleted) law?" was the reply from the urbane and witty General.

Nobody but Cambodia noticed the loss of the once proud state of Vietnam.

Shhhhhh!

See Bee See

LONDON: A deadline silence filled the air. "It's quiet" said Kirkly, "too quiet." "You're right, and I don't like it a bit" said his companion, the fair Rossetta Stone.

Suddenly the silence, the awful silence, was shattered by a lot of noise.

"I wonder what that is?" mused the befuddled Kirkly Smythe, third chief officer in charge of befuddlement "Its very strange. Perhaps I should go and investigate."

"But that would be dangerous, and besides that's not your department."

"That's true. I hadn't thought of that before. But after all, this is the army, after all."

"But it still isn't your department."

"That's true."

"Yes it is."

"I hadn't thought of that before."

"That's true."

"Maybe I had just better forget the whole thing, after all. It really isn't in the department of me Kirkly Smythe, third chief officer in charge of befuddlement."

And so ends another episode of "Cowardice Theatre", a production of the BBC. Tune in again next week when nobody will do anything to save the colony from being eaten by a giant ant.

Premier Davis admits shortness

TORONTO: Premier Billy Davis admitted today to having been very small when he was a child. "I don't really want to shatter the myth of my unity with God, but I feel it is time for the voters to know the truth. I would have made this disclosure earlier but I was afraid that it would have been misunderstood."

Political analysts interpret this as a move on Bill's part to counter charges of aloofness which had been circulating recently, and raises questions as to how far the Premier will go to protect his power. Some fear that strong arm men and other methods of cheating may be employed.

Flash

The closed shop sign was recently placed on the campaign headquarters of J. Quincy Bottomley, the not ex-candidate for the AMS executive and co-author of a current bestseller, "Deviates, I've known and loved."

Other Unrelated paraphernalia

Kingston Psychiatric Hospital: Our special correspondent here has informed us of a recently discovered plot by the typewriters of the world to take over from the pens and pencils of Canadian Society. Think about it, if you dare. Did you ever notice that the words "Typewriter Powe" are typed using the top line of letters only? This is an insidious example of the subliminal coercion to which the fiends subject us.

"I would say more but it's bloody hard to write with my arms all tied up this way, you know." These were the last words which we heard from him, and we can only assume that some Olivetti on a rampage is holding him hostage and forcing him to repeat the terrible typewriter slogan "Up with us Down with them!"

MOSCOW, RUSSIA: This is a special report from the front. "The Germans have reached the hallowed city of Leningrad and are in an extremely good tactical position. It is urged that all Patriotic Russians pray for snow."

We realize that it is now May, but who knows? With God, anything can happen."

MONTREAL: Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau said today that he was cancelling the '76 Olympics for lack of funds. "And just let them athletes try to interfere. I'm pretty strong too. Just feel that bicep. I've been working on it!" Lord Kilbarrack head of the IOC, had very little to say, which could be repeated.

KINGSTON: Mr. and Mrs. George Smithski were the proud mothers of a brand new baby boy today. The entire city was out to see the proud parents home. As one well wisher was heard to say, "This is a great event. Why I haven't seen so much excitement since the time I went into S&R to try on socks. Golly!"

It certainly is a momentous event for the couple, who had been trying to get it right for fourteen years before breaking the secret to the rhythm method.

IRAN: The Shah of Iran announced today that he had bought the entire continent of Europe. 'Lebenstraum' was his facetious remark when asked the reason for his purchase. It was not disclosed at this time what he had paid, but it is estimated to be in the four figure range.

VANCOUVER: The island of Vancouver sank into the Pacific Ocean yesterday. Nobody was available for comment, although Jeanne Dixon was heard to mutter, "Damn, How did I miss that one! The world-wide effects of the catastrophe are not yet known, but Prime Minister Trudeau has declared that the area, if not exactly a "disaster area" was at least "having a bit of a bad time of it".

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA: The results of a recent survey here indicated that most residents of Los Angeles did not realize that they lived in Los Angeles, most believing they were in "either Miami Beach or Hell". Some indicated that they would not be caught dead in Los Angeles, and many of the pollsters were physically attacked for impertinancy.

"Damn smog was so thick, I couldn't tell where I was now" seemed to be the common response among the ignorant. These totalled an amazing 83,759,362 per cent of the population, based on the survey.

VATICAN CITY: The Pope, speaking from his Papal chair announced today that, in keeping with the latest in Urban Planning trends he was razing the Vatican to put up a parking lot. A chair for the Pope would be placed in the ticket booth. As motorists entered they could be greeted with words just "dripping with Papal wisdom, like an uncooked pumpkin pie," in the words of one prominent spokesman.

The vast treasures owned by the church will be plowed under, the reasons being twofold. First, this would attract business by making the lot into a holy place. Second, the Vatican, which has long been among the richest nations in the world, feels that to give the treasures to anybody would violate the Christian ideal of poverty.

Campus elections '75

No race for most runners

Queen's

Journal

Volume 102, Number 36

Friday, Feb. 7, 1975

b
a c k
p a g
e

wat's hapnin'?

Pubs and Theatres

Munur-Lyle
Frontenac-Finnegan's Nigel
Frontenac-Alldoon's Alan Rhody and Friends
101 Inn-Ray Smith
Commodore-Scamp

Capitol 1-Return of the Dragon
Capitol 2-Towering Inferno
Hyland-Animal Crackers
Odium-Front Page

Friday, February 7

5.45 p.m.-Ban Righ Fireside presents John Helmers (cello) and Valery Lloyd Watts (piano) playing Bach, Brahms, Beethoven. This will be held in the Ban Righ Common Room. Coffee and dessert at 5.45, music at 6.00 p.m.
7.00 p.m.-Diplomacy and Wargames Club meeting in the Student Affairs Centre, the gray house opposite Stirling. New members welcome.
8.00 p.m.-Sha-Na-Na at the Memorial Centre. Tickets at the John Orr Room-$4.00 student, $4.50 regular, $5.00 at the door.
8.00 p.m.-The Classics Department presents episode No. 4 of the Odyssey series entitled Circe. Room 114 Earl Hall.
8.00 p.m.-Public Forum: Which road forward for women's liberation: Marxism or Feminism? At St. James Church.

Saturday, February 8

12.00-11.00 p.m. Baba's is on campus and will hold an open house in the second floor common room in the Union. Also on Sunday, 10.00 a.m. to 6.00 p.m.
2.00-4.00 p.m.-Auditions for Gilbert and Sullivan's The Gondoliers at Central Public School. For further information call 389-3676. Auditions will also be held on Tuesday, February 11 from 7.30 until 9.30 p.m.
2.00 p.m.-Afternoon of Indian classical music and dance in Ellis Hall.
8.00 p.m.-International Dance in Leonard Cafeteria. Featuring Anubis. Admission $1.50.
8.00 p.m.-Bitter Grounds and Good Times Emporium presents Colleen Peterson admission $1.50. Tickets available Friday till 4.30 in the John Orr Room and at the door.
8.00 p.m.-Hockey Game- Western at Queen's

Sunday, February 9

10.30 a.m.-Morning Worship at Chalmers United Church
10.30 a.m.-Folk Mass at Dunning Hall, followed by coffee and donuts at Newman House, 164 University Ave.
1.00-5.00 p.m.-Heart Fund Blitz Canvas- Give one to two hours of your time to support the heart fund. Leonard Hall Dining Room. Free refreshments and transportation.
6.00 p.m.-S.C.M. Dinner in the International Centre. Talk by Sebastian Kinyondo on the current situation in Tanzania.
9.30 p.m.-Galerie Victoria presents Joe Petric performing a piece by Bach and contemporary works for the accordion, in the common room at Victoria Hall.

8.00 p.m.-The Department of Italian and Spanish presents The Garden of Finzi-Continis. Tickets $1.50 for two movies (see Monday) sold in secretary's office of the Dept. of Italian and Spanish (Rm 416) or at LaCasa.

Monday, February 10

8.00 p.m.-Third World Films: In the Year of the Pig. Dunning Auditorium Coffee and donuts after. All welcome Admission free.
8.00 p.m.-The Department of Italian and Spanish presents La notte by Antonioni in the Lower Common Room of the International Centre.

Upcoming Events

The Department of Drama presents Chroniques XXVII. The Bond on Tuesday, Feb. 11 at 7.30 in the Studio Theatre (Room 102). The Bond runs during the week on Wednesday, Feb. 12 at 7.30 p.m., Thursday, Feb. 13 at 7.30 p.m. and Friday, Feb. 14 at 7.30 and 9.30 p.m.
Tuesday, February 11-Spectrum Dr. Taylor, Dept. of Mathematics "The Role of Research in the University". Dr. Franks-Dept. of Politics "Student Activism in the University". 7.30 p.m. in the Ban Righ Common Room. Coffee and donuts to follow.
Tuesday, February 11-Neo-Classicism and the Picturesque-a public illustrated lecture by Professor Burke at 8.00 p.m. in Stirling D. The lectures are open to the public and admission is free.
Thursday, February 11-Thursday, February 13-Three Days of Experiments in the Arts. Director: David R. Keane. 8.00 p.m. each evening in Grant Hall.
Tuesday, February 11 8.30 p.m. in Dunning Auditorium. Recital: John Helmers, Cello; Valerie Watts, piano.
Wednesday, February 12-Division of Concerts presents Mary Lou Fallis in Dunning Hall at 8.30 p.m. This young Canadian soprano has won the CBC Talent Festival and the regional auditions for the Metropolitan Opera.
Wednesday, February 12-Last Lecture Series Dr. A.M. Taylor, Political Science and Geog. Dept. McNeil House Common Room at 7.15 p.m.

Phys. Ed. Centre

Court Reservations-The book for the reservation of squash and handball-paddleball courts is available for bookings starting at the following times:

Mon., Fri., Wed., 7.45 a.m.
Tues., Thurs., Sat., 8.00 a.m.
Sun. 2.00 p.m.
The Arena will be closed from 4.30-5.20 p.m. on Saturday, February 8.

Snow Removal

From December 1st to March 31st inclusive, vehicles parked on surface lots between midnight and 8.00 a.m. will be towed away if they impede snow removal operations.
Upcoming

Save 15 percent on Textbooks
Directly from the Publisher
Delivery time 2-6 Weeks.
Academic Book Club
P.O. Box 1507, Kingston K7L 5C7

The Navigators present a film
of Christ's return.

A Thief In The Night

Dunning Hall $1.00

Wed. Feb. 26 8:00 P.M.

Cotton's Sporthouse 399 Princess 30% OFF

ON BOOTS,
SKIS
AND CLOTHING

All Elrond College Members for 1974-75

are hereby given notice of the Annual General Meeting
to be held on Sunday evening
February 9
9:00 pm.
in the Elrond Cafeteria

Applied Science:

This year's equipment budget hits new low of $20,000

by Paul Steep

Four years ago the budget for equipment in the Faculty of Applied Science was $150,000. Last year it had fallen to $25,000 and this year it will reach a new low of $20,000.

In the fall of this year the heads of all the Engineering Departments handed in estimates of the money they would need to maintain their areas over the next five years. Collectively those estimates totalled $400,000, but the allocation only came to $20,000 points out Dr. Robert Uffen, Dean of Applied Science. This amounts to only five percent of the money that these professors felt they needed. Money for engineering equipment, along with money that is allotted for almost any other area of the university, has been cut by the government. Over the past four years government support of higher education has consistently failed to keep pace with inflation. As a result Queen's will operate at a $1 million dollar deficit this year.

But though the causes of these cutbacks are well known the solutions to them aren't as easy to pin down. Uffen remarked that the equipment budget will barely be enough to cover emergencies. Machines are obviously going to wear out and in some cases become obsolete but the faculty will have enough trouble just meeting maintenance costs. For the Applied Science student this means that where there used to be two or three lab partners working on an experiment there will now be five or six. Uffen is convinced that this is far too many if students are going to learn properly. He said, "A couple of them may learn as they should, but the others will end up just being onlookers."

As labs become more crowded so do the classrooms. Over the past four years, though enrolment is up, the teaching staff is way down from 92 to 82. This 11 percent drop in staff has resulted in a student staff ratio of 16:1. This is the highest of such ratios since 1967. And, enrolment is expected to keep rising. Current estimates predict that the maximum number of first year students the faculty can handle, 1500, will be reached in about four or five years. This year they expected to hire four new professors but there will only be enough money to hire two.

The following example illustrates the severity of the problem. Recently Professor S.D. Lash, who taught a course in town-planning, left the university at the end of last year. His course was considered fundamental for civil engineering students. But, he can't be replaced because the budget only provides enough money for a part-time instructor. There is no one with the qualifications of Lash who would even consider taking a temporary post. As a result the course has been dropped completely. Dean Uffen termed this a "disaster".

This year there are about thirty of the staff who are eligible for sabbatical leave. There may be enough money to allow nine or ten to leave. Their teaching assignments have to be covered by others in the faculty who are already hard pressed due to the loss of staff. Also, the opportunity for travel to conferences, and visiting lectures, is fast disappearing. For one professor to attend a conference in Europe may take the funds that have been allocated for up to six of his colleagues.

Despite these financial hardships most members of the faculty are convinced that Queen's can still maintain its high standard in Applied Science. They sight the high quality of the professors as the best reason for their optimism. But, Uffen added that today those people who once might have aspired to a professorship are increasingly going into industry or government where salaries are noticeably higher.

Uffen had an interesting theory as to why the government has decided to cut back on universities instead of some other segment of the economy. "The government is reflecting public opinion. It is a reaction against the activism of the late 60's. The public hasn't forgotten that it was students who burned down the computing centre at Sir George Williams University and we're suffering for it."

There is also a strong consensus among the public that universities spend money extravagantly. If there ever was extravagance at Queen's, it certainly doesn't exist now. Uffen concluded, "I think we have been caught up in a policy which may have applied to other universities, but not Queen's. Queen's is the most frugal university I've seen in twenty years."

John Bottomley

Dumb grad?

New record

.0002 of population meet the candidates

Two Queen's students showed up at "Meet the Candidates" night held Tuesday in Stirling Hall. The small turnout is partially the result of the fact that there will be no election for the AMS Executive this year, the team of John Gray, John Wilson and Ian Nordheimer was the only one to seek the AMS Executive for the next year. Despite this acclamation, the team was on hand to present what would have been their campaign platform.

The new executive stressed that the most important objective will be to "educate the students" on issues which affect them such as cutbacks in university financing and an inadequate student awards system.

Natalie Solmers, a third year music student and one of two who attended the meeting remarked that her reasons for coming were basically based on financial concerns: "If it has anything to do with spending your money, I think you should be concerned."

Craig Shannon, the other person present, phrased his comments in terms of a response to John Wilson's previous remark about the "lack of interest the AMS has generated in the student body." Shannon stressed that he at least was indeed interested and sincerely hoped that in future more members of the Queen's community could be induced to show some concern.

The team will be spending this week and the next speaking to various groups in the residences on campus, making their platform clear to all those interested.

Representatives of the student government and the Journal were the only other students present at the meeting.

Even though Engineering professors insist that the quality of education offered by Queen's Applied Science is being maintained despite financial cutbacks, it should be understood by Engineering students that lab sizes are increasing, and equipment is not being replaced, and as a result, they risk becoming onlookers rather than participants. Will this "dumb frosh" receive sufficient attention to avoid becoming a "dumb" grad?

AMS Referenda: explained

The following is a brief discussion of the various referendum proposals. This is not a plug for any of the viewpoints, but we do urge people to go out and exercise their vote.

Journal

1a That The Queen's Journal Student Levy of Three (3) Dollars be increased.

b If Yes, by one dollar fifty cents ($1.50)

By Three dollars ($3.00)

The Journal, like everyone and everything else on campus, is hit by inflation in everything from printing costs to typewriter repairs and pencils. Since 1968 when the student levy for the paper was last raised, increased costs have been met by increasing both ad rates and percentage of ads in the newspaper. The rates are now comparable to those of the Whig Standard and cannot feasibly be raised again. In addition, it is becoming difficult to solicit ads and the situation is expected to worsen. A constitutional limit of 40 percent is set on the amount of advertising that can appear in any one Journal issue and this full amount would have to be met or exceeded in the future just to break even. In view of the fact that the general consensus is that too much advertising is already present in the paper, the Journal is soliciting this increase in the student levy.

Bus-it

1) Shall the Student Portion for Bus-It be increased from $2.00

to $4.50?

The Kingston Public Utilities Commission (PUC) has agreed to let Queen's students use Bus-It next year, but for an increased cost. The service, extending throughout the school year from 6 a.m. to 11 p.m. Monday through Saturday, will be available to students in '75-'76 for $1.20 more than they are paying at present. In addition, plans are being made to institute a night service from 11 p.m. to 1 a.m. running between West and Main campus. AMS officials have estimated that this will cost an additional 30c per student, bringing the total increase to $1.50. Final decisions on the proposed schemes hinge on the results of this referendum.

Honouraria

1a That by-law No. 8, Section B, dealing with the honoraria paid to volunteers of the AMS remain as stated in the constitution, effective September 1, 1974.

b That any changes to this by-law must be affected through another referendum.

According to the Honouraria Report, "the committee involved in studying the issue began its task by gathering information from various sources including a questionnaire circulated to all Canadian Universities. As well, submissions were requested from the university community and a list of faculty societies' honoraria was compiled.

The committee made a number of general observations about their subject to start. "The first, and probably most important, is that first rate jobs are only going to be done by students interested in the activity for its own sake, not for the money involved. It is to the credit of Queen's that almost every major accomplishment and most social events on campus are put on solely through the efforts of students, who volunteer their time and energy to see something get done."

The committee and the report defines Honouraria thusly: "In certain positions, a cash payment shall be given as compensation for time expended and benefits foregone, since neither of these factors can be evaluated adequately by set standards."

They realized that everyone suffers something when taking on AMS positions: compensation involved in honoraria is meant only to make jobs financially accessible to everyone-honoraria is purely compensation - it is not a reward or incentive. A summer salary is considered an honoraria because it is compensation for the loss of a summer job.

The honoraria report concludes that "it is the responsibility of the AMS to monitor this issue continually, to avoid being in the situation that it presently is, of asking individuals to handle increasingly complex jobs at their own expense. Student volunteerism is an important and desirable facet of this university's life but personal bankruptcy is not. As the AMS grows, if it wants to continue having students control its affairs, it must be willing to provide the necessary means to achieve that end."

The Honouraria report has officially been accepted and is now part of the AMS constitution, raising the amounts of the Honouraria paid to volunteers of the AMS. In response to petitions, the AMS courts have put a restraint on payment of these increased amounts until they have been submitted to the campus referendum. The results of question 4a, will determine whether the courts release their restraints on payment. If the results are negative, new policy will have to be formulated in this regard and either passed by the AMS councils or, if the results of question 4b are "yes" in a majority, resubmitted to referendum sometime in March. Until an amount is in some way approved, no honoraria will be provided for any of the AMS volunteer positions.

Amounts of Honouria in question: President -tuition and summer salary Vice-Presidents (each) -tuition and summer salary Commissioners (each) -tuition Journal Editor -tuition and summer salary Managing Editor -tuition Senior Editors -$700 (aggregate sum) R.E.A. Director -tuition Concert Committee: Chairman -tuition

Promotion Manager $225 Ticket Sales Manager $225 Stage Manager $250

Finance Manager $150 House Manager $125 Tricolor Editor -tuition Tricolor Staff (sum) $500 (aggregate sum) Housing Committee -tuition Director, Housing Bank -tuition Manager, Queen's Bands -tuition Clubs Manager -tuition

Trees

5) Shall Project Green be granted a student levy of $1.00 for the next five years

Project Green is an AMS chartered club which holds as its main objective the raising of money for the purpose of landscaping on Queen's campus in recognition of the fact that the tree population is presently being decimated by Dutch Elm disease, that the University's available funds for planting have been cut back, Project Green requests this $1.00 levy.

MBA

2) Shall the MBA Students' Society be recognized as a member society of the AMS

Earlier this year, the Masters of Business Administration Students withdrew from the Graduate Students' Society. They did so, basically because of their own feelings of solidarity, and now request formal status as a member society of the AMS. They are at present, an organized group seeking the representation on AMS Outer Council that they lost when they split from the GSS.

Rape!

by J. Carson

Monday, Feb. 3, people of all ages and both sexes crowded into Victoria Hall's Lower Lobby to attend a symposium on rape presented by the Dean of Women's Office and the Women's Law Caucus. The panel of speakers consisted of Ms. Debra Lewis from the Toronto Rape Crisis Centre, Detective-Sergeant Michael Breen of the Kingston Police Force, Dr. Hugh Gorwill, a KGH gynecologist, and the Assistant Crown Attorney for Kingston, Mr. John Bett. Ms. Anne Ferguson of Queen's Law School chaired the symposium.

Dr. Gorwill spoke first, establishing what happens when a rape victim arrives at the hospital. She has two options: to seek medical treatment, or to both seek medical treatment and to lodge a legal complaint. In either case the victim receives a detailed physical examination to determine the extent of injury. This examination seeks to detect exposure to gonorrhea and to risk of pregnancy - both difficult to determine. If the victim decides to lay charges, in addition to the physical examination she must submit a complete statement to the police and undergo a detailed investigation, because extremely solid evidence is needed to convict the rapist. All evidence of trauma must be recorded, clothes collected for examination, and specimens taken to document presence of semen and sperm. Physical evidence (i.e. bloodstains) is extremely important, since eyewitnesses are unusual. Whether the victim goes to the hospital first or to the authorities does not matter; however, the sooner the crime is reported (preferably within a few hours, the Doctor stressed) the better the chances for catching and convicting the rapist.

According to Detective-Sergeant Michael Breen, rape is recognized as a serious offense by all officers on the Kingston force, which, incidentally, includes two women, both completely capable of rape investigation. The detective-sergeant offered the following preventative advice: always drive with the car doors locked; be cautious in underground parking lots; never hitch-hike alone (preferably not at all); if you must walk at night keep to well-lit areas. If you are single, omit the "Miss" or "Ms" from your mailbox and substitute just your initials.

Assistant Crown Attorney John Bett dwelt on the difficulty of trying the marshmallow evidence. He said that the jury is cautioned in the case of rape of the danger in convicting a suspect solely on the evidence of the complainant, who always receives a "stringent going-over" by defence council.

According to Deb Lewis of the Rape Crisis Centre, rape is definitely on the rise, and the actual "rape rate" is probably 3 to 10 times the low number reported. (According to a study based on Toronto police files, 116 cases were reported a year ago.) Lewis was indignant that the rape victim is considered less trustworthy than other court cases and that her sexual past is considered relevant testimony and she is striving to change this. Lewis urges that rape be removed from the Criminal Code and put in a separate category of "indecent assault" to reduce stigma and sense of shame.

Because women are traditionally viewed as passive and sexually dominated, they are the natural targets for the hostile, frustrated male, says Lewis. In many cases, the rapist is not aware that he is committing a crime. According to Lewis, rape is just a small part of the sexual system in present need of a complete overhaul (regarding male-female roles).

The symposium ended with a question and answer period. The speakers here proved to be inadequately informed as to the Kingston situation, and also disappointingly non-committal in response to questions such as "Do you think the law should be changed concerning rape?" One member of the audience showed admirable courage in revealing that she has been a rape victim three times. She said that at first she thought she must have done something at some point to deserve such treatment. However, she learned that many women have similar experiences at some time in their lives. As she said, "I am by no means unique."

The symposium seems to indicate a deep concern for the crime most feared by women. Hopefully this concern will lead to renovation of the laws regarding, and treatment of rape.

Food for thought

Student interest sparks nutrition lecture series

by Leslie Gaukrodger

Signs of malnutrition are slow to appear, and often they manifest themselves only during final exam weeks or other times of stress. Are you sure that you are following the proper diet? Or have you succumbed to one of the new fads - eating only brown rice or vegetables, without really knowing what you are doing?

All students are encouraged to attend the series of lectures on nutrition, sponsored by the Dean of Women's Office, to be held from 7-9 p.m. every Thursday (starting last night and omitting Reading Week) in Dupuis Auditorium.

As a result of widespread interest on the part of students concerning nutrition and its relationship to lifespan, exercise, heart disease, obesity and other related topics, these four informative sessions have been scheduled.

The topics to be covered will include the relationship between physical fitness and eating habits as well as an expose of some common misbeliefs about the foods we eat.

Especially of interest to students living in houses, is the session planned for Feb. 27 which will deal with food budgeting. Perhaps, for the same expenditure you could be eating more nutritionally beneficial foods in place of the high calorie foods which consume so much of the food budget.

The final lecture will deal with heart problems and other diseases as they relate to the foods that we eat. Should students be watching their cholesterol level more closely?

Both Dilys Bowman, a second-year student, and Mrs. Eleanor Beach, assistant to the Dean of Women, were instrumental in engaging Ms. Woolcott, from the Ministry of Health in Toronto, as well as three local Kingston nutritionists, to conduct these evening lectures. If you are what you eat, perhaps you should be paying closer attention to what you do eat. Come out and see.

Pinball invades Union

As this paper went to press Wednesday night, it appeared certain that six pinball and arcade machines would be hooked up in the House of Lords by this afternoon at the earliest. AMS Vice-Pres Peter Druxer, the man behind the pinball plot, admitted that Outer Council has the power to reject the idea.

Druxer explained that as the House of Lords is no longer able to operate as a pub, it is not being used most of the time. The pinball arcade would provide a temporary use for the room until another use is found. Druxer remarked however that if the pinball arcade is a tremendous success, it would probably remain in the House of Lords.

The cost to the AMS for the six machines will be nothing, instead, the AMS stands to make a profit as it is entitled to keep half of the money students plug into the machines. The vending company which owns the machines takes in the other half.

Prior to following through on the pinball idea Druxer approached the organizers of Bitter Grounds to see if they would like to move their operation into the House of Lords. Jim Fenton, manager of Bitter Grounds, and so does not plan to move it into the House of Lords, which is unlicensed.

You See...

T. Collins
THE QUEEN'S JOURNAL

Ever since 1968 when the Journal's student levy was raised last, the way we've had to cover costs has been by increasing our ad rates and our percentage of advertising. Now our ad rates are comparable to the Whig-Standard's and can't be bumped again for a while and our percentage of advertising is at its constitutional limit. This is why we ask for the increased levy. The money will lessen the number of ads we have in The Journal and will give the articles a little room to breathe.

Please vote $3.00. We'd need about half the ads if you did. Queen's deserves a good newspaper.

Thank you.

Queen's

Journal
ONE HUNDRED AND ONE
YEARS ON CAMPUS.

'File 13'

Boomer was contemplating court action against the University. He was going to charge those gigabooks with false advertising. Here he was on a Saturday night watching Beemer twiddle his thumbs, some bloody life! What happened to the football games with all those other drunken, joyous sobs, he called friends? Why didn't they just all year? This university wasn't what that Tricolor depicted it to be. Instead of girls jumping out of cakes and happy times, there was boredom. Would Queen's Legal Aid take his case? He sure hoped so.

It was too late to see a flick, they didn't own a T.V. or a record player, nor even a piddly deck of cards. The only entertainer they owned was a radio and it was turned off. They didn't like hearing the same songs twice in an hour.

Since everyone was created equal, Beemer was contemplating too. He wished he had kept his tuition money and taken in Air Canada Sunflight Tour to Mexico. Maybe if he had they could have given him a half-credit in Geography. Beemer, being the Artist of the two, was more prone to contemplation than was Boomer and while Boomer's mind ran dry, Beemer's ran on.

Beemer, trying to inject just the right amount of enthusiasm.

"No thanks, that stuff is for kids", replied Boomer preferring to do nothing than play silly games.

Beemer not to be put off, switched to rhetoric to extol the virtues of Monopoly. Monopoly was a great game for Commerce students. It built capitalistic skills, it was endorsed by the Better Business Bureau of Canada and the Jaycees of America, Inc. The Peking Review had stated that Monopoly was a 'capitalistic contrivance' concerned solely with placating the proletariat with funny money. Anyway, what else would they do, turn on the radio and listen to the bubble-gummers again.

The last point persuaded Boomer and together they searched for the Monopoly game. They couldn't find it, in its place was one they had never seen, 'Balance the Budget'. Beemer hailed it down from the shelf, opened it up and reached for the instructions.

BALANCE THE BUDGET
The backdrop for this exciting Parker Brother's game of financial hickering, minority pressure and political maneuvering is the ivy halls and ivory towers of the university super complex.

There are five players, each with their own goal, the first to reach their goal wins.

Players:
the government
the students
the university administration the faculty the public

Goal:
balance their budget
if one at all, heinous and transitory

balance their budget increase their salary
balance their budget

That was enough for Boomer, "We don't have enough players," he stated flatly.

"Look Boomer, it's the only game in town, we either play this or turn on the radio."

After a little thought, Boomer spoke again. "Boomer, I've got it! We'll eliminate three of the players. Look, we'll play the government against the students. We drop the administration because they're paid to say what they say, right? We'll drop the faculty because they want more bucks in salary and drop the public because the government represents them anyway, right?"

Boomer, being more concerned with figures than ideas and not wanting to listen to CKWS again, agreed. He chose the government, the players with BIG BLUE written on it. Beemer, not unhappily, got the PINKO STUDENTS player. So they started, each throwing the dice

Students strike to protest cutbacks

OTTAWA (CUP)—Students across Ontario held study sessions, boycotted classes and held picket lines Jan. 29 in order to inform students of the effects the Ontario government cutbacks in education will have on them.

The government announced in November that it was raising support financing for universities by only 16.4 percent in 1975-76. This amount will not cover the expected 1975-76 inflation rate.

The Ontario Federation of Students (OFS) at a meeting earlier this month urged students to hold study sessions Jan. 29 to explain to students what the cutbacks will mean.

"We called the study sessions, which are being held not only by OFS institutions but also by other post-secondary institutions in Ontario, because it was our view that the ordinary student isn't acquainted with what effects the budget cutbacks will have," said OFS public relations officer Chris Harries. "We also want the government to know that students are aware of the problems and won't let the government get away with things like this," he said.

Many residence students are and moving their players around the board, skipping the squares that announced success and failure for the other three players.

Things went well until Boomer was forced to transfer his Health increases to Colleges and Universities after Beemer landed on the square "30,000 students' march to Parliament buildings and burn Davis in effigy." Big blue didn't even pass 60 and collect his $200. Boomer in anger at his defeat by crummy students, swept his hand across the board, missing PINKO STUDENTS but sending BIG BLUE across the room and into the toilet bowl with a splash. Beemer, still caught up in the spirit of the game, dove for the dumper and pulled in a fit of laughter. BIG BLUE swirled around the bowl defiantly, but was finally sucked into the vortex and drowned on the way down the drain.

holding coincidental meetings because universities have said residence fees will rise to help meet some of their deficits.

OFS has been trying for a month to get a meeting with Auld but he has constantly put them off saying his schedule cannot be changed. He has said that he might be able to meet with them at the end of February.

However, OFS says this is too late because by then the Ontario Government will have set its budget and the university financing arrangements will be locked in.

Student representatives from across the province will be meeting with members of the Liberal and NDP caucuses on Jan. 30. They will hold a concentrated day of lobbying with individual members from every party.

"The situation is rapidly changing. The government believes that student militancy is dead and a thing of the 60's. This isn't true but the Davis government is helping resuscitate militancy on campus because of their arrogant attitude. It took the Tory government to whip up controversy and they are doing it," said Harries.

by Bruce Trotter

George Bailey
sporting goods
40 Princess Street K7L 1A4
Kingston, Ontario Tel. 535-2432-2380

You make the deal -
Volk and Atomic skis
Nordica and Henke Boots
Woods, Tophet & Actra clothing
plus accessories
Put together a package for yourself,
we're reasonable people.

The Queen's Riding Club

is having a
Sleigh Ride and Gluhwein Party

Saturday afternoon

the bus will leave the Union at 3:30
$1.50 per person
25 people - first come first served.

Graduate Student Society Presents:

Ideas of March Festivities
Saturday March 15 '75
at Kingston Yacht Club
Maitland St.

Hot and cold buffet Dancing to
"Easy Company"
Tickets available soon

ROTARY FOUNDATION EDUCATIONAL AWARDS

Rotary International invites applications from outstanding students for the following Rotary Foundation educational awards for study abroad for one year in the academic year of 1976-77. An award may be used for almost any field of study.

GRADUATE FELLOWSHIP
An applicant, married or unmarried, must be 20-28 years of age on March 15th, 1975, and must hold a bachelor's degree prior to the commencement of the Fellowship year.

UNDERGRADUATE SCHOLARSHIP
An applicant must be unmarried, must be 18-24 years of age on March 15th, 1975, must not have a university degree and must have studied for at least two years prior to the beginning of the Scholarship year.

As the main objective of the awards is to increase international understanding, awardees are expected to serve as ambassadors of goodwill and to address Rotary Clubs and other organizations.

Relatives and dependants of Rotarians are ineligible for awards.

Application must be made through a Rotary Club not later than March 15th, 1975. Further information may be obtained from Mr. Trevor Dossett (Kingston Rotary Club), 131 Johnson Street, Kingston, telephone 542-2811, or from Dr. T.H. Kelly (Kingston Frontenac Rotary Club), 30 Florence Street, Kingston, telephone 544-1267.

Opinion:

I propose that Queen's University support the proposal to increase tuition fees, not by $100 but by $300.

A lot of people around here seem to think that society owes us an education. Why should it? We are the main beneficiaries of the university education. We get complete freedom to select whichever courses we desire and we can experience as much or as little as we care to, in whichever areas we choose. Besides these four years in Metro Kingston being The Best Years of Our Lives, we are perhaps even "finding ourselves". And of course our job opportunities after graduating are guaranteed to be more numerous and better paying than the average Joe's.

Economically speaking, it is in society's favour to push people through the primary and secondary systems at society's cost to ensure literacy and to control the socialization process. And admittedly a university education does make us more productive members of society. But a university education also brings about many more personal benefits than those found in grade school and high school. The university environment provides us with the security and freedom to discover whatever we wish.

Economically speaking, it is in society's favour to push people through primary and secondary systems at society's cost to ensure literacy and to control the socialization process. And admittedly a university education does make us more productive members of society. But a university education also brings about many more personal benefits than those found in grade school and high school. The university environment provides us with the security and freedom to discover whatever we wish.

In the face of our current financial problems, the only solution proposed by many is to DEMAND more money from the government, just like the civil servants, the school boards, the hospitals, firemen, policemen, ad infinitum. It must be recognized that in the present circumstances of scarce financial resources, priorities at the provincial level have been reassigned and that we have lost out. I agree with a disregard for university hardships and I agree with "more scholar for the dollar". Let's face it, we are in a RECESSION, and everybody must downgrade their lifestyles so why not universities?

As it now stands, the government has frozen tuition fees to less than 15 per cent of our education. Rather than whine and bitch, demanding more money from a limited source, might we not propose to help ourselves? A 50 per cent increase in our tuition fees to $900 with the same government support would result in our still paying less than 25 per cent of our education and would supply some financial relief to our floundering institution (actually less than $3 million). Across the province, this increase would mean much more to other universities since Queen's is probably in the best financial position with our $1.1 million deficit this year.

Admittedly some marginally financed students would be cut off if they were not assured assistance. And so here our proposition could depend upon one condition, that of providing loans to needy students (ie most students). The cost to the government of providing these loans would not be very great; it only has to make up the disparity in interest rates on the loans since the banks put up the cash.

If we truly desire an education, we should be prepared to make the necessary investment, even if it entails committing ourselves to a few years of loan-repayment or taking a couple of years off to raise the needed bucks. Everybody wants to go to university and share in the good times but nobody wants to make any sacrifices.

Since tuition fees plus government aid make up 97.1 per cent of this year's $41 million budget, I can't see much hope in increasing outside financial support in the proportions needed.

Don't give me the argument that you can't afford a fee increase—when you graduate it will only take a couple of years to recover all the costs of your education so in the meantime beg, borrow, and steal.

Creative Intelligence Symposium here

(CUP)—In over 50 major cities across Canada there will be special symposiums held on The Science of Creative Intelligence and Transcendental Meditation during the week of February 9th to 15th. The purpose of this week is to bring nation-wide attention to the beneficial effects of the technique of Transcendental Meditation and The Science of Creative Intelligence, practiced by over 50,000 Canadians.

Prominent citizens from all walks of life—businessmen, educators, scientists, and politicians will be involved in investigating and discussing the widely acclaimed results of Transcendental Meditation. The technique, presently stirring over 800,000 people around the world, was introduced 16 years ago by Maharishi Mahesh Yogi. It has been found to be a practical and simple method of dissolving tensions and stress, developing full potential, good health and harmonious social relations. Scientific research has validated the subjective claims of meditators and has sparked the interest of hundreds of researchers.

The National Institute for the Science of Creative Intelligence of Kingston is presenting a four-day symposium at Queen's University. The programme will include guest speakers on physiology, education and criminology. As well, special colour video-tapes of experts discussing the relation of these disciplines to The Science of Creative Intelligence will be followed by question and answer periods with local instructors of Transcendental Meditation.

The Symposium will be held from Monday, February 10th to Thursday, February 14 at 8:00 p.m. each evening, at Queen's University, Stirling Hall, Theatre B. Topics for the evenings will be:

Monday, February 10 "Health and Physiology" - a videotaped interview with world-renowned Dr. Hans Selye. Guest speaker will be a physiology graduate student of Queen's University.

Tuesday, Feb. 11 "The Science of Creative Intelligence as the First Science" - Dr. Lawrence Domash, Ph.D. physics of Maharishi International University giving a view on the application of S.C.I. to education.

Wednesday, Feb. 12 "To Develop the Full Potential of the Individual" - an in-depth presentation by Maharishi Mahesh Yogi on video-tape on the integrative effects of Transcendental Meditation on the individual. Speakers will include local teachers of Transcendental Meditation and a Queen's M.A. graduate in Physics, Ron Parker.

Thursday, Feb. 13 "The Science of Creative Intelligence and its Implications for Society"

the MARKET BARBER SHOP & hairstyling salon
Peter Smits invites you
to his new hair core shop
43 BROCK ST., 549-2110 KINGSTON, ONT.

CHUNG WAH CHOP SUEY
CHINESE & CANADIAN FOOD

TAKE OUT AND DELIVERY DIAL 544-6128
217 UNIVERSITY (CORNER OF WILLIAMS)

OPEN 8 AM TO MIDNIGHT
SUNDAY 10 AM TO 8 PM

Election

Elections for Block Chairman positions on the Women's Residence Council were held on Monday Night, the Executive posts having been already filled by acclamation. Next Year's council will be headed by Sue Pearson as President, with Cathy Treasurer, (Vice President) and Laura Croll (Secretary) completing the executive roster. In contrast to the acclamation of these people, stiff competition faced those running for block chairman. Those emerging successful from the elections were as follows:

Victoria A Block: Joanne Hayhoe
Victoria B Block: Donna Watterud
Victoria C Block: Mireille Lepage
Victoria D Block: Dianne Fenner
Adelaide-Ban High: Jodi Button
Chown: Nancy Spies

In the recent election for IRC chairman in Mens' Residence, Andrew Overhuck emerged as the victor and will take over from Brian Copeland, the present chairman.

Results

Londry's Drugs

Special Student rates

464-471 Princess St.

Delivery Available

546-3696

Open 7 am to 11 pm daily

Crystal Restaurant

TASTY FOODS
COURTEOUS SERVICE
"THE PLACE WHERE ALL GOOD PEOPLE MEET & EAT"

STEAKS - CHOPS - CHICKEN - SEAFOOD
SPAGHETTI - SHISH KEBAB
SUVIARI - TROGANOPI

OPEN 7 DAYS Try our Delicious Shish Kebab 210 PRINCESS TAKE OUT SERVICE Free Delivery Over $3.00

KGTN 542-8515

Greb Kodiak Boots

Sizes 4 to 13

Lee style stripe Bib Overalls

14 oz. jeans - Bootleg or flares

Your largest selection of denims and casual wear.

Larry's Men's Wear

354 King St. E.

Just three doors from Princess.

THE BOOK BIN

225 Princess
(next to the Capital Theatre)

WE
BUY and SELL
Paperbacks, Textbooks
and Antiquarian Books
USED RECORDS
Sold on Consignment

ART REPRODUCTIONS
POSTERS

Please Bring US Your Books and Records

ASUS Notice of election for: 6 one-year Representatives to the AMS

Election Days
Wednesday, February 12
Thursday, February 13,

Macintosh-Corry Hall
10.30 am - 3.30 pm
at all AMS Poll Stations

Queen's Italian and Spanish Department

Sunday February 9

The Garden of the Finzi Confinis, by DeSica, Ellis Auditorium, 7:00 pm

Monday February 10

La Notte by Antonioni,
International Centre, 8:00 p.m.

$1.50 for both films

Tuesday February 11

7:00 pm Play
Gli imbianchini non hanno ricordi
by Dario Fo

8:00 pm Masked Ball
drinks and food

$2.00 for play and masked ball

Tickets on sale at office of Dept. of Italian and Spanish or at La Casa, 90 Queen's Crescent.

CHOOSING THE RIGHT CAREER ISN'T EASY

We'd like to offer you a challenge — a career in dealing with professionals — a career in Life Insurance sales and/or sales management.

It's one of the few careers that offers you freedom of action and decision and an unusually high measure of security and personal satisfaction.

We know it isn't easy choosing the right career. Perhaps we at Metropolitan Life can help you make the right choice. Why not drop by and see us. We'll be on Campus on:

Tues., February 25, 1975

Metropolitan Life

Where the future is now

Pegasus Ski Travel Club International presents (to its members)

Carnaval de Quebec (last weekend)

Feb. 13-16 - Coach & 3 nights $49.95

Feb. 14-16 - Coach & 2 nights $46.95 (limited hotel space)

*****

Mont. Ste. Anne

Feb. 16-21 - ski week from $105.00

Includes - 5 days skiing (all lifts)

- 5 nights hotel accommodation

- return coach fare from Kingston

- all transfers from hotel to slopes

Student membership ($2) & ticket sales at Cotton's Sports House in Elfrond College (544-1066) or phone 549-4975, 7:30-10:30 pm.

Dons Wardens and Senior Residents for Women's Residences, 1975-76

Positions as dons, wardens, and senior residents are available to persons who are interested in helping to create the best possible environments in the men's, women's, and co-ed residences. Applications for these positions are now being accepted from senior students and teaching staff.

These persons will be expected to share their interests and the benefit of their experience on an individual level with students, and, as well, to contribute to the intellectual and cultural life of the residences, and to help new students familiarize themselves with the facilities of the campus. Queen's residences are regarded as an integral part of the University, and life within them as part of the educational process.

One or two persons familiar with French language and customs, and another one or two able to host musical and dramatic events will be especially welcomed.

Persons will be appointed to their positions by the residences boards, and will be accommodated in the residences. Initial inquiries should be directed to the Office of the Dean of Women, Victoria Hall, 547-6109.

WHAT WOULD YOU
SAY?

IF IT WERE YOUR LAST OPPORTUNITY TO ADDRESS MANKIND
WHAT WOULD YOU SAY?

"THE LAST LECTURE SERIES"

is a series of informal evenings combining listening and discussion

Wed., Feb. 12

A. M. Taylor
Political Science
Geography

Everyone Welcome

TIME: 7:15 p.m. - McNEIL COMMON HOUSE
CO-SPONSORED BY AMS ED. COMM. AND I.R.C.

Which Way Canada?

The NDP and that crucial election

by Wendy Hughes

The Tories have held power in Ontario for over 300 years and 1975 is probably the first election year in the province when it has been possible for the people of Ontario to imagine a Conservative defeat.

The Conservatives have lost four by-elections: in Huron a riding of solid farmers in southwestern Ontario, in St. George-entrepreneurs and radical chiefs in the heart of Toronto, Cornwall, the working classes in an eastern Ontario Tory stronghold, and Carleton East-middle to upper class civil servant country.

These defeats reflect a widespread disillusionment and even anger with the Tories in Ontario. It is also apparent that the dissatisfaction with the so-called "Davis Government" increased over the months in which these by-elections were held, if one can judge from the greater vocalization of opposition that seemed to grow with each one. In Stormont and Carleton East the electorate had been polarized to the point where they were articulating in no uncertain terms "It's time for a change!"

All this background leads me to predict that 1975 will be one of the most exciting election years yet for the Ontario electorate. For the New Democratic Party it is particularly exciting because many party members look upon it as the testing ground for continued growth of the federal party. As Gerry Caplan concludes in his book, The Dilemma of the CCF-NDP in Canada, if the NDP does not do well in Ontario it will fail as a major party.

Well the party has done well in Ontario to date. It began this government term with only one less seat than the official opposition and the press maintain that Stephen Lewis provides the only real opposition at Queen's Park. Certainly he has played a major opposition role in the important legislative debates of recent sessions. As examples consider the government's imposition of Education Ceilings, the 7 percent increase in Provincial Sales Tax, Tory policies that have resulted in the loss of important agricultural land, lumbering in Algonquin Park, the Elliott Lake Asbestos Controversy, and most recently the Sholdice Affair.

What most of the public does not know, but what cabinet ministers have come to respect, is the central role Stephen has played in public sector bargaining. He was instrumental in preventing the threatened C.S.A.A. strike and came close to a final settlement with T.T.C. employees before a court injunction forced the employees back to work.

The Tory government has shown incredible political insensitivity in its latest term of office. Consider the cabinet scandals of Dalton Bales and Darcy McKeough, the Fidinam Affair, the waffling on the Pickering Airport and the Spadina Expressway, and refusing to sit down with the

by Ross Drummond

The last four years have not been easy for William Davis and his Progressive Conservative administration. There have been direct attacks on the viability of government policy and on the personal integrity of numerous members and supporters of the party. There have been by-election losses and disastrous Gallup polls. Now more than ever before it is essential to objectively analyze Conservative policies and consider them in a broad political context.

The Davis Government is a government that has taken risks and strong stands. It lost out on the Ontario-Alberta Syncrude deal. But only a man or woman without vision would deny that these risks were worth taking. In education the government has disappointed a great many individuals, but the fact that they have set budgetary restraints, responded to our economic recession and redefined the role of education within the provincial context has taken guts. And guts are too often lacking in our politicians.

Would anyone deny that Ontario's performance in setting conflict of interest guidelines, in responding strongly to land speculators, in setting regional government policies aimed well into the future, and in achieving a triple-star credit rating for the handling of the provincial economy, has been anything less than exceptional?

The problem has been communication—in dissipating the poor image of the government engendered by a none-too-sympathetic press and a rather long stay in power.

But faced with an election, with a choice between a government that has never claimed perfection and a Nixon or Lewis administration the matter hits closer to home.

The Nixon Liberals, divided on policy, on Spadina, aid to Catholic schools, Pickering, led by a man re-elected by his party with slightly less than overwhelming support, are clearly no alternative at all.

And then there's the NDP, still searching for a breakthrough, still hurting from a federal election, stuck with a leader of great integrity and little electoral appeal, and offering little to the rural Ontario and the affluent Torontonians

But then—the choice is yours

but they may yet gather enough strength to topple the Conservatives and hand power to the Liberals.

Nixon's Liberals, however, might just snatch the prize. Standing centre-stage politically and with recent polls indicating large gains in popular support, the possibility is very real.

No matter how the election turns out, however, let us hope that the Ontario electorate will make the right choice, and elect a stable, honest government.

Focus on Ontario

Teacher's Federations for discussions. Instead they ran through legislation that made teacher's resignations illegal.

The scene is set for an election year. Seasoned reporters like Norman Webster believe that the 5 percent salary cut for cabinet ministers will be the kick-off of the Tory campaign. The Liberals have announced their election slogan will be "The Only Alternative". In face of the facts, their poor voting record, their indecisiveness on issues, and the increasing high electoral profile of the NDP both in the last provincial election, and the four recent by-elections, the Liberal slogan is surely in question.

Bill Davis spent 5 million dollars to get re-elected in 1971 and Nixon's party has announced it will spend 5 million this time around. We in the NDP can be morally self-righteous about the fact that the Tory's spent as much money in Peterborough and Oshawa in 1971 as the NDP spent on its whole provincial campaign. On the other hand the NDP-MPP's who lost their seats in those ridings (Walter Pitman—the Dean of Arts at Trent University and Cliff Pilkey of the United Auto Workers in Oshawa) know that that was one of the major reasons for their defeat.

The 1975 election will have more dynamics than any other Ontario provincial election since 1944—clearly the Tories are in trouble, and clearly the Liberals are not the only alternative.

Liberal Alternative

by Gus Itzek

Davis is on his way out. Nixon is on his way in. Now more than ever the possibility exists.

The trend towards a new government at Queen's Park has been growing since the 1971 provincial election. Davis has added greatly to the decline of his own government through lack of control over his own hierarchical bureaucracy through Mogg, Spadina, and most recently the Sholdice Affair; the man has not been able to offer the people of Ontario the type of government they both wanted and expected following the election. Clearly four successive by-election losses indicate this growing discontent.

The Ontario electorate has been used to an honest and stable government in Toronto. These conditions are no longer apparent. Alleged patronage and irrational spending procedures like Spadina and the Kraus-Maffei failure have plunged the Ontario government into deficit spending and off-base policy. The tightening of the education budget has also seriously damaged its credibility.

How long will the people of Ontario support a government with such a record? About as long as Davis waits before he finds the nerve to call an election.

Whether the government will fall will depend on the strength of the two opposition parties. The

People in Power

"First time, every time"! Tony Wolman uses his pen.

john cameron

letters to the editor

Not computers

Dear Editor,

This letter is in reference to the article which appeared in last Friday's Journal, regarding female engineers. It is a known fact that there are very few women in engineering; therefore the generalizations and averaging techniques attributed to the Associate Dean are inaccurate. Hence, the comments concerning failure rates are somewhat misleading. We are subject to the same standards and conditions as are male engineers.

At Queen's, the average entrance mark is well within the seventies and admittedly most women who come to Queen's graduate from secondary school with that average. The article implies that women engineers maintain that average, however, this is not true, as the majority of people do not have averages about seventy-five.

It is hoped that these comments will enlighten people regarding any misconceptions about female engineers. We are not computers, instead we are women who are interested in Applied Science and wish to make it our profession.

P. A. Simmonds, Science '76

Under Attack

Dear Editor,

It has often been said of the TV program "Under Attack" that it makes the students involved look silly. I am of the opinion that the people themselves are responsible for the showing they make. Thursday night Mr. Lubbock made a disastrous showing as a speaker. I admired the way that the young female law student handled herself despite the disaster that was occurring. I cannot say anything complimentary about the way the two sociology professors handled themselves. Indeed, it was a toss up between Lubbock and the professors as to who was worse. I lament the fact that when the program is aired the public will see a very uncomplimentary picture of Queen's, as painted by the performance of these two faculty members.

A. Winkelman
Politics '77

Honoraria

Dear Editor,

By the time this letter appears, I expect your paper will have come out with all the facts justifying the proposed increase in funds for the Journal, and honorarium for the Journal editor. The implications of these are significant to the future direction of your newspaper, and must be strongly considered by the committee in charge of selecting a new editor.

This honorarium provides the opportunity for an individual interest in Journalism as a profession, to take over the editorship on a semi-professional basis, devoting himself virtually full-time to the task of raising the standard of the Journal. This would of course require sacrificing his academics for the year.

The advantage of having an editor who is genuinely interested in Journalism as a profession, is that the desire to make the Journal a success is greatly increased by the fact that its success or failure directly affects his career opportunities.

If this honorarium is approved, and does not result in an editor of the above status, then the committee in charge of selecting an editor has failed to use valuable resources to their greatest advantage.

It should also be stressed that the responsibility of ensuring competent editorship, rests not only on the selection committee, but on inner council through their power of veto, and on the student body as a whole, through their right to petition for a referendum of non-confidence in the selected editor.

If an increase in Journal funding is approved, one must expect significant changes in the newspaper itself, reflecting the increased student support, and resulting in a higher calibre of output.

In voting on the fees increase, remember that a yes vote is a vote of confidence in the future of the Journal, and not an approval of the Journal in its present form, which many students seem to find unsatisfactory.

It is thus up to the selection committee to choose a person willing to serve the Journal full-time, and who has the ideas and energy to raise this paper to the standard it is capable of achieving.

Yours truly,
Brian Sawyer

The problem is...

Dear Editor,

The tenor of the views expressed by Tony Wolman in last Friday's Journal article "some food for thought" was far from the narrow problem-oriented approach of the university mind. This approach when viewing a "food problem" analysis the factors of grains, meat, energy, technical innovation etc. visa via the size of population; it becomes a matter of logistics of balancing competing factors - of cutting oil costs or cutting population or cutting meat consumption or eating sauered cows. India is held out as a prime example of the problem and of its possible solution through greater food efficiency and-or smaller population.

It appears that we do not understand or do not wish to understand the analysis and example of some third world countries. What huge country - what massive population has been able to drag itself out of starvation, disease and death following decades of exploitation and war but China. Without war or forced sterilization and basically without external aid or trade China has a well-fed, literate and stabilised population. China viewed the "food problem" or rather THE PROBLEM as that of one person - one groups - one nations dominance over another. The solution is not how to better balance the things within a system where dominance prevails but rather to understand the solution lies in a system which progressively frees the person to "do unto others etc."

Our real assistance to the rest of the World is through internal change - a changes dismissing the gratifications of dominance be it male to female, landlord to tenant, Gulf Oil to Angola or the U.S. to Canada. Without this realization our assistance may cause greater harm - greater dependence - greater dominance.

Our assistance by changing our consumption patterns or by the giving of technology can be useful - can be harmful but it is all meaningless without the realization of what the "food problem" is truly symptomatic of.

Yours sincerely,
Gerry Molloy

'Secretary of the Student Christian Movement'

Can't win em all

Dear Editor,

I was more than appalled, if not insulted, when once again your publication put the general intelligence of Queen's University on the line. It was bad enough that you broadcasted Queen's recent demonstration of apathy, the acclamation of the '75-'76 AMS executive; but then in the same issue to ask for an up to 100 per cent increase in funds (simply to see that garbage in two inch lettering?) was intolerable.

Why is it that the Globe and Mail, until very recently, was always ten cents? An international paper, with a more than famous reputation, would then cost us almost the same ($0.04 more) as the Journal per paper. The worst part is we have no choice in whether we pay for the Journal or not.

Then comes the question of whether we need two Journals a week. After all Golden Wards comes out once a week at a tenth of the price and some would argue that it is a better paper. Maybe the Editors of the Journal should take a week to compile enough really good material for one issue, rather than two overpriced issues, full of weak pages such as last Tuesday's Referendum.

Chuck Wood

Furious

Dear Editor,

Mr. Gary P. Bell - you missed the point of my first letter hopefully you can extract what I mean from this one. "If furs don't sell then animals don't die." Of course not - they are never born. How can they die if they don't exist?

Illustrating my point that domesticated fur bearers (i.e., mink, fox, martin) and other domesticated animals don't exist if a market doesn't exist is the following example - Colpitts Ranch, the second largest fox farm in the world folded in 1948 because the demand for fox furs dropped. Tens of thousands of breeding foxes were slaughtered to reduce overhead, because it was no longer profitable to keep them. Today there are no foxes on Colpitts Ranches. They do, however, have the largest herd of dairy cattle in Canada - Why? Because a market exists for dairy products. Do you understand my point Mr. Gary P. Bell?

My first article attempted to be objective. Yours was neither objective nor logical. If you have a reasonable reply to this letter I would like to hear it. Please don't reply if all you can produce is emotive garbage.

Ian McLean

ed note - Enough! Unless you can type and unless you have a NEW original point to make on this subject please don't bother to write. If you want to vent your spleen form a committee or something ridiculous. D.

Thumbs up

Dear Editor,

I can remember reading and hearing about the turmoil the Queen's Concert Committee was involved in all last year. It seems to be human nature always to talk and complain about what is being poorly handled. You never seem to hear how well something is working.

I have never seen an organization run so smoothly and efficiently as our Concert Committee has been this year. The selection of music and the presentation of the concerts has been excellent. Dave Finlay, Taras Kowalczyzyn, Roger Tabach, Don Christie and Betty Schiwickow are doing an extremely fine job bringing us good music.

Jim Sadler

Thumbs down

Dear Editor,

I fail to see how anyone who was not in league with the promoter (it could even be the promoter himself) could have actually liked the Strawbs concert last Saturday night. Who is this 'Wren', your phantom reviewer? (Feb. 4, Journal)

The Jock Hartly fiasco, coming on the heels of the Moe Koffmann concert in Grant Hall, in which the lights were shone deliberately in the eyes of opening performer Dave Bradstreet, (causing him to cut short an excellent set), has me wondering about the way in which concerts are handled at Queen's. First, the choice of performers. Take Koffmann, for instance. He can be seen any day of the week in Toronto, not to mention heard on any number of commercials, (which is not to say he isn't good). Surely there must be more interesting people coming to Montreal and Toronto, who would be willing to do a one-night stand here, than Leon Redbone, who bit the bag, in my opinion, or Strawbs and Man, a group of tenth-rate hacks (with the possible exception of Dave Cousins, (who might be an above-average folk singer on his own)). Second, there is the Jock Hartly arena, possibly the worst arena I have ever sat through a concert in. Third, I worry about such antics as shining the lights in the eyes of performers - to the point that when an artist that I would like to see, (Leonard Cohen), comes to town, I wonder if I wouldn't be better off seeing him somewhere else than Queen's.

Thanks,
Chris Probert
Law

editorial

sweven

It has become apparent that misunderstanding has arisen over sweven's not appearing this year. It seems important that we clear up any confusion.

Two things seem to be at issue here: The financial shape of the Journal, and the format of sweven. At the time that the former sweven editor requested a guarantee for a second term publication, the Journal was in a precarious cash flow situation and therefore could not satisfy this demand. More than $4000 in outstanding Campus accounts threatened the Journal with closure by the AMS. Since then, however, the situation has been rectified.

As for sweven's format, these are the facts. Sweven costs 25c per copy ($2500 per issue divided by 10,000 copies). In its present format sweven wasted money. The number of squandered issues last year numbered in the thousands, as an insert sweven would enjoy a circulation near 10,000 and would be economical to produce in a four to six page format appearing bi-monthly, which might encourage increased contributions.

Sweven is a part of the Journal, as much as the Sports pages, and as such deserves no special consideration. It exists at the will of the Editorial Board and the Editor. It was initiated by the Editorial Board of the Journal and can be killed or altered by the group.

The Journal finds the Sweven situation most regrettable: Sweven is a worthwhile endeavor. We welcome new contributions and hope that those who previously submitted material will re-submit it.

letters

all letters should be signed (legibly)
Names will be withheld on request.

sweven

Contributions gladly accepted anytime
anyday-soon
c/o the Journal

Queens
Journal
Vol 102, No. 36,
Fri., Feb. 7, 1975
Queen's University
at Kingston, Ontario.

Pumpkins: Suzanne Sherkin, Jerry Collins, Don McClelland, Radishes: Sarah Yarnell, Nancy Fildes
Chiel Tomatoes: Wendy Reynolds, Laurie Gibson
Chiel Lettuce: Kerry White, Peter Hewson
Peas and Beans: Lynn Alwood, Suzanne Jackson
Chiel Carrots: Jon Wilmer, John Boltomley, thanks to John Cameron for showing up in the snow to take pictures of people that never appeared. We love him any how.
Chiel Cucumbers: Rosemary, Jennifer, Mark
Small Potatoes: special thanks to Cienna Malher, Chris Woods, Peter Wallis, Uncle Woody, Dave Colburn, 002 (imipad) another promotion!, "Louisiana" Dave and Kelly, Anne Robertson, Leslie Gaukroder (Marry me Leslie love D.C.), Luzi, Meg Boltomley, and our dearest thanks to the Lilliputians

Comments: Quote of the week: "Don't ask me where you're head is at, you know it won't be missed, don't play with virgin Mary 'cause she's already been kissed." Anyways, looked at my watch, it was a little before five. (I'll be in to suit. 1. And now for something completely different. Take it away, 002)

Julre comment: I that doesn't translate does it? ... Shit what can I say. Would the girl I tell in love with at the blood donor clinic at about 2:00 Wed, please contact me. JDB III "Louisiana" I forgot you sorry but a lot of people seem to find that easy to do. p. LG mmmmm 002. P.S Jan 19 was Janis Joplin's birthday. Sorry we forgot it. "Louisiana"

Founded in 1873 and published on Tuesdays and Fridays during the academic year by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University, Incorporated, Kingston, Ontario. Founding member of Canadian University Press. Editorial opinions expressed are those of the editor and not necessarily those of the AMS nor the University. Telephone (613) 547-2606. Printed by gnomes at the St. Lawrence Printing Co. Ltd., Prescott, Ontario. Lithographed in USA on Canadian newsprint

Dance Anubis

Saturday Feb. 8

Leonard Cafeteria

8:00 P.M. - 1:00 A.M. $1.50 per person

AN INVITATION TO THIRD YEAR MEN TO LIVE IN McNeill House NEXT YEAR

Did you live in residence in your first year at Queen's? Did you find the experience disillusioning? Did you sometimes feel that it ought to be a slightly more interesting place to live? Well, here's your chance to do something about it.

Over the past year the Men's Residences Board has heard a lot of rather negative comments about life on Leonard Field. Some say it is boring; some say it is crude. Some say it lacks variety; that there are just too many people on Leonard Field all living the same way. Some point to the obvious scarcity of senior students as being both cause and effect of this monotonous existence.

As a means of trying to grapple with this problem, the Men's Residences Board has decided to mount an experiment in McNeill House next year. Here are the bare details. 46 fourth-year students will be selected to live in the 46 single rooms of McNeill House, and 138 freshmen will occupy the doubles. An interesting set-up. First-year students and final-year students, and nobody else.

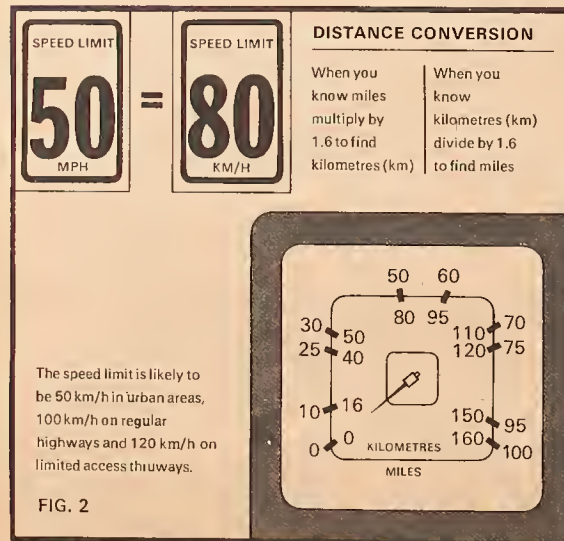

Some money has been provided to make life in McNeill House reasonably attractive. For example carpets have been installed everywhere and new desks will be put into the single rooms. A certain sum of money will remain over to provide an activities fund at the disposition of the senior students.

WHEN APPLYING FOR MCNEILL HOUSE, SPECIFY BY NAME PLEASE NAME ONE STAFF MEMBER AT QUEEN'S WHO COULD BE USED AS A REFERENCE

Metrication:

The hows, the whens, the whys of Canada's conversion to the SI System

Canada is committed to the adoption of a new set of units of measurement. Time will still be measured in seconds, minutes and hours, and electricity in amperes at stated voltages. Most Canadians, however, will need to become acquainted with a new way of describing distance, volume, mass (weight) and the other quantities. Distance will cease to be expressed in miles, yards, feet and inches and will instead be measured in metres and decimal multiples and sub-multiples of metres. Litres will take the place of the familiar pint, quart and gallon, and the many products now sold in ounces and pounds will be offered in grams and kilograms, again with the multiples and submultiples for larger and smaller volumes and weights.

The increasing ease of transportation and communication and the growing volume of world trade in recent years have served to focus attention of the desirability of a universal system of measurement. Canada in particular, is vitally dependent on foreign trade for the health of the national economy and must be prepared to supply its goods in the manner that importing countries desire. With the exception of the United States, Canada's leading trading partners are either long-established users of the metric system or are at present embarked on a changeover.

The new system is called the International System of Units and is known officially as the "SI System" (from the initial letters of the French title - Systeme International d'Unites). Besides providing a logical and interconnected framework for all measurements in science, industry and commerce SI boasts the attributes of coherence, precision, comprehensiveness and convenience.

Today, almost 95 per cent of the world's population uses or is converting to SI. Although it is not intended that compulsion to convert will be exerted officially on any sector of the economy, the Canadian government has adopted the principle that all facets of Canadian life will eventually conform to SI standards and is providing the necessary encouragement to enable the changeover to be substantially complete by 1980.

As already mentioned, the basis of the Canadian approach to metric conversion is that it is a voluntary process. A corollary of this is that each segment of the economy is expected to identify the opportunities for change and to bear its own changeover costs, just as it will reap the benefits arising from the change.

The initial cost of Canada's conversion to metric will undoubtedly be high and the main direct burden will be on industry. Tangible costs include motion of equipment and other physical assets; intangible costs cover such areas as retraining and education of workers. However, experience in other countries has demonstrated that these costs are not usually high as expected. In Britain, it has been shown that retraining is not as formidable as was generally feared to be and that time costs could be saved by teaching the work-the-job on a need-to-know basis. Size costs have also been avoided by establishing the policy of using the new standards in the case of new products and it is evident that the replacement of old can be determined by wear and obsolescence rather than by a planned mass swerve.

Regardless of the government feels that the resulting benefits will more than compensate for the capital outlay necessitated by the conversion metric. While the costs and inconveniences will be temporary, the benefits continue indefinitely.

In June, 1971, Commission for Metric Conversion was established. These steps have been followed by the Weights and Measures Act, which defines metric units to be used, and the Consumer Packaging and Labeling Act, under which users of pre-packaged foods are required to include a quantity marking in metric on the label.

The Metric Commission was given the responsibility of coordinating the development of a work plan for conversion to the metric system while simultaneously providing programs of information and education aimed at increasing awareness and understanding of the measurement and the reasons for its adoption in Canada.

The Commission has set itself a four-phase program: investigation, planning, scheduling and implementation. Investigation: Begun in 1971, this phase was to have been completed by the end of 1974. The Commission has initiated and undertaken studies, investigations and surveys to identify the opportunities and problems relating to metric conversion and the means of tackling them.

Planning: Involves the activities to be undertaken by each industry or field of endeavour - discussion and agreement on the units of measurement to be used, preparation of a program covering all necessary procedures and the timetable for the actual conversion. This phase should be substantially complete by the end of the year.

Scheduling: While no deadline has been set for Canada's full conversion, target dates for metric usage are being assigned so that each industry or field of endeavour can be coordinated with all other sectors. Commencing on April 1, the temperature may be given only in whole degrees Celsius and from the beginning of the following September, forecasts of rain and snow may be given in millimetres and metres. During September 1977, almost all the speed limit and distance signs on the main provincial highways will likely be changed to metric units.

Implementation: Some implementation has already occurred. For example, over 80 per cent of all hospitals have already adopted or are in the process of adopting the metric system. Implementation is expected to reach its peak in 1977 and 1978, and by 1980, most plans are expected to be in operation.

Metric conversion does not mean simply replacing Imperial measures with the metric equivalent. It means the adoption of metric standards which assign convenient round-off metric measurements to each unit. However, time for familiarization and assimilation is being allowed. Right now, the consumer is being gradually exposed to the transition process. The first stage can be seen by looking at the labels on packages of many household products, particularly foodstuffs, on retail shelves. The unrounded metric equivalent appears in brackets, after the familiar Imperial units.

In the second stage, the order of the two measures is simply reversed, the unrounded metric equivalent being quoted first with the rounded Imperial measure following, in brackets. Then comes the most important stage, that of the actual conversion to a logical metric rounded standard measure.

Finally after metric units come fully into use, there will be the compulsory stage, when the use of units other than metric will be prohibited.

Conversion to the metric system is happening in Canada. Its effects will touch almost every aspect of Canadian life but it will provide the advantages of a system that is both simple and almost universal.

Thanks to the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

A stylized M and maple leaf symbolize metric conversion in Canada and will be used extensively in the changeover.

SOME EVERYDAY CONVERSION UNITS CHART 3

METRIC MASS (WEIGHT) UNITS

Unit	Symbol	Value	Conversion
tonne*	t	1 t = 1 000 kg = 10 <sup>3</sup> kg	1 ton (short) = 0.91
kilogram	kg	1 kg = 1 000 g = 10 <sup>3</sup> g	1 pound = 0.45 kg
gram	g		1 ounce (avoird.) = 28.4 g
			1 ounce (troy) = 31.1 g

METRIC LINEAR UNITS

Unit	Symbol	Value	Conversion
kilometre	km	1 km = 1 000 m	1 mile = 1.6 km
metre	m	1 m = 100 cm	1 yard = 0.91 m
centimetre	cm	1 cm = 10 mm	1 foot = 30.5 cm
millimetre	mm		1 inch = 25.4 mm

METRIC AREA UNITS

Unit	Symbol	Value	Conversion
square kilometre	km <sup>2</sup>	1 km <sup>2</sup> = 100 ha	1 sq. mile = 2.6 km <sup>2</sup>
hectare	ha	1 ha = 10 000 m <sup>2</sup>	1 sq. yard = 0.84 m <sup>2</sup> square metre	m <sup>2</sup>	1 m <sup>2</sup> = 10 000 cm <sup>2</sup>	1 sq. inch = 6.5 cm <sup>2</sup>

METRIC VOLUME (LIQUID) UNITS

Unit	Symbol	Value	Conversion
kilolitre	kl	1 kl = 1 000 l = 1 m <sup>3</sup>	1 gal. = 4.55 l
litre	l	1 l = 1 000 ml = 1 dm <sup>3</sup>	1 qt. = 1.14 l
millilitre	ml	1 ml = 1 cm <sup>3</sup>	1 fl. oz. = 28.4 ml

*Non SI but universally permissible †Permissible for a limited time.

leonard
cohen

thursday, february 13,
grant hall,
7 and 10 p.m.

tickets: $4.00 students
$4.50 regular
john orr room vern napier
house of sounds

3 SUPER SYSTEMS SUPER SAVINGS

SANSUI 210 Receiver-10 Watts RMS Each Channel
ELECTRA BD-1000, Belt-Driven Turntable (with Mag. Cartridge)
ELECTRA EDS 80 Air Suspension 2-Way Speakers

SAVE $120.80 February Special
Manufacturer's Sugg. Price $499.80 Package Price $399

SANSUI 551 Receiver-16 Watts RMS Each Channel
ELECTRA BU-2000, Belt-Driven, Manual Turntable (with Mag. Cartridge)
ELECTRA EDS-120, 3-way Air Suspension Speakers.

SAVE $200.80 February Special
Manufacturer's Sugg. Price $789.80 Package Price $589

PRO-LINEAR Nine Receiver - 50 Watt RMS Each Channel
PRO-LINEAR Stage Five - 3 Way Speaker
PRO-LINEAR AT-1600 Belt-Driven Turntable (with Mag. Cartridge)

SAVE $429.80 February Special
Manufacturer's Sugg. Price $1,029.80 Package Price $600
$5 Deposit Holds Anything At Any Sale Price

KELLY'S

STEREO MART

110 PRINCESS ST. KINGSTON 544-4014

Check these buys! Check our prices!

ELTON JOHN-Greatest Hits - 7.98	SALE 3.97
JOHN OENVER-Back Home Again - 7.98	SALE 3.97
GEORGE HARRISON-Dark Horse - 7.29	SALE 3.97
LINDA RONSTAOT-Heart Like A Wheel - 7.29	SALE 3.97
AVERAGE WHITE BANO-7.29	SALE 3.97
JETHRO TULL-War Child - 7.29	SALE 3.97
HARRY CHAPIN-Verities & Balderdash - 7.29	SALE 3.97
LOGGINS & MESSINA-Mother Lode - 7.98	SALE 3.97
B.T. EXPRESS-Do It Till You're Satisfied - 7.29	SALE 3.97
THREE OOG NIGHT-Joy To The World - 7.29	SALE 3.97
GUESS WHO-Flavours - 7.98	SALE 3.97
JOE WALSH-So What - 7.29	SALE 3.97
ROLLING STONES-Hot Rocks 1964-71 - 10.98	SALE 6.54
GENESIS-The Lamb Lies Down - 10.58	SALE 6.54
MOOOY BLUES-This Is The Moody Blues-13.98	SALE 6.54
ELTON JOHN-Goodbye Yellow Brick Rd. - 13.98	SALE 6.54

$3.00 off list on all pre-recorded 8-track & Cassettes
HURRY!!!! TAPE SALE ENOS SATURDAY
ANGEL SLEEVES - PROTECT YOUR ALBUMS
ONLY $1.83 PKG.

Maria's Pizzeria and Spaghetti House
Pizza · Spaghetti · Lasagna · Ravioli
637 Princess Free delivery 549-4222

AFTER YOU PROMISE HER THE WORLD...
GIVE HER A DAZZLING DIAMOND
Even if you can't keep all the other promises you made... there's one you can.
Give her a diamond! One fiery jewel to express the love that is yours.
Symbol of love and devotion... and all that is yet to be... a brilliance to be cherished forever.

KINNEAR D'ESTIERRE
JEWELLERS
168 PRINCESS STREET
KINGSTON, ONTARIO

Commerce Society Executive notice of elections

President: Bob Butterill
Steve Loughheed
Vice President: Gail Slater
Geoff Davenport
Treasurer: Lynn Plummer
Clare Prendergast
Secretary: Diane Crause
Karen Croft

WIC Rep: Darlene Cater (acclaimed)
Bews Athletic Rep: no applications received
Social Convenor: no applications received Jr. AMS Rep: Katie Thompson
(acclaimed)

Sr. AMS Rep: Sue Bennett
Colin Sutherland
Bruce Hamilton
Mark Hayes

NOTE:
Candidate's night -

Mon. Feb. 10
Dunning, 14 8.00 p.m.

Elections - Feb. 12, 13

A By-Election for the positions of Social Convenor & Bews Rep will take place at a later date

PUBLIC NOTICE

The annual General Meeting of the Alma Mater Society, Inc. will be held on March 3, 1975 at 7:15 p.m. in Stirling D. Any member of the AMS Inc. may attend, speak to motions, and vote. Any member wishing to discuss a specific item of business must provide the secretary of the Corporation (c/o AMS office) with the exact wording of any motions to be proposed at the annual meeting, prior to 5:00 p.m.,
Friday, Feb. 14, 1975.

Touchdown at McDonald's

after the game.
You deserve a break today.

277 Bath Rd.

CAMPUS BOOKSTORE

Hewlett Packard Day
February 12th

New H.P. Calculator lines
New reduced prices on 35's and 45's.

HEWLETT PACKARD

Sales, service and support from 172 offices in 65 countries

A Hewlett-Packard pocket calculator
is a gift for a lifetime.

classifieds

Housingwise

WANTED: Two-bedroom (or large one-bedroom) apartment for 75-76. Close to either main or West campus. Will take it May 1. Please phone 549-4533.

FURNISHED BRIGHT: 2-bedroom apartment close to West Campus with easy transportation to all parts of Kingston. Available from May 1, 1975, with possible option to take over lease in September. Parking, laundry and all utilities included in rent. Call 544-6538.

FIRST CLASS: tenants need a 4-5 man house for 75-76. References available and a generous reward to boot. Phone 544-7307.

AVAILABLE MARCH: one-bedroom apartment. Large balcony, excellent view. Elfrond College, 12th floor. Phone 544-1800 days, 542-2301 evenings.

PERSON APARTMENT: wanted. We are hired at university residences. Any information? Call Pat Jackson 544-7872 or Terry Winsor 544-7359.

WANTED: one-bedroom apartment, close to campus, beginning May 1, 1975, suitable for 2 (we're married). Phone 544-894 please.

LUXURY APARTMENT: Available from May to September, in Elfrond. This 12th floor hideaway with a panoramic view of Eastern Ontario's heartland is fully furnished and includes a large kitchen with refrigerator and stove. A spacious living room and balcony and red hot sauna augment this 2-bedroom penthouse making it a must for the discriminating summer resident. Rent is negotiable. Call 549-4442.

LARGEST ELFROND: apartment, six rooms, to sublet May to Aug. inclusive. 2 spacious bedrooms, balcony, sauna, underground parking, fully furnished, carpeted, dishwasher, telephone, rent.

ONE BEDROOM: apt. to sublet. Available May 1st. In Married Students Complex. 542-8115 after 5pm.

QUICK: Phone 544-7737; 544-7738 or 544-7739. If you have a three or four bedroom apartment to get rid of, NAME YOUR REWARD! (Then we'll name ours.)

TO SUBLET: two bedroom apartment in Elfrond. Large kitchen, living room, balcony with view, underground parking. Close to campus and downtown. Rent negotiable. Call 544-2468.

LOOKING FOR PERSON TO SHARE: bright, 2-bedroom apartment near West Campus. Easy transportation to school. Rent to be $85.50, including utilities and parking. Prefer graduate student. Phone Andy, 542-6645.

WANTED: Three fourth-year males for a 4-bedroom house, close to campus and downtown. Rent about $60 monthly, lease begins Sept. '75. Call 544-9657.

Summer sublet: West Campus, Apt. 11C 244 Sir John A. Macdonald Blvd. May 1st August 31st One bedroom. Facing northwest. Beautiful view. Rent $152. Phone 544-4278.

We need one more to share our 4-man house on Macdonald. Great room - great house available immediately. Call 549-2450.

Wanted: one or two persons to share three bedroom apt. with kitchen, near Frontenac Mall (cheap), present occupant has car. To start Feb. 15 approx till end of term. B11 389-2108.

Otherwise

REWARD: Navy purse lost on AMS bus from Toronto, Sunday night. Anyone knowing whereabouts, please contact 544-5978 or take purse to AMS office. No questions asked. Need glasses and contents. PROJECT GREEN would like to thank the boys of 4th McKell for their generous donation from their "entertainment" profits.

SMALL STEREO FOR SALE: (suitable for residence etc.) New needle and cartridge. New $120, will sell for $45. Telephone 544-2907.

GOOD TIMES AT LEONARD CAFETERIA: The 8 man Black

Brockington Visitorship Committee

A student position for a two year term is now available on this committee. Each year the Brockington Visitorship Committee arranges for a distinguished visitor to come to Queen's for a week during the Academic Year.

Previous visitors have included Lester Pearson, Sir Bernard Lovell, Gunner Myrdal and Buckminster Fuller.

Interested applicants should leave their names and phone numbers with Gaye Clemson c-o the AMS Office prior to 5 p.m. Friday, February 14, 1975.

Molson Export Ale.

Great.

Because it keeps on tasting great.

American band 'Anubis' will be playing as part of International Week Saturday, 6pm. Feb. 8. Admission $1.50.

ANNOUNCEMENT: The residents of the 'Clergy Reserve' are celebrating the founding of the North American Social Hygiene Association by presenting a 'sociality' at '95 on Saturday, February 8, 1975 commencing at 1pm. All friends and relatives of 'The Flamer', 'Boy Lawyer', 'Haitone', 'The Kid', 'J.J.' and 'Hobs' are summoned to attend. BYOB.

RECYCLE YOUR BOOKS AND RECORDS: We sell records on consignment, that is, you get $1.50 for every one of your records that sell. Needless to say, good rock, blues, jazz, folk records sell out quickly. We also have unopened used books for sale. The Book Bin, 225 Princess, 548-4891.

FOR SALE: One Way ticket (charter) Toronto, London, England. Offers at $44.347 between 6 and 7 pm. SOUVENIR 252323 for furniture for sale. Very good condition. One half the original price at $50. Call 549-2799 after 6 pm.

NINETEEN: Nineteen what? Nineteen kisses? Wonder who will be the lucky one. Happy Birthday, Rita. How about at the graveyard. SR-50 calculator $145.00. Phone evening 544-4172.

FOUND: One contact lens at our party Sat. Feb. 1 at 309 Earl St. Phone 549-2452.

NOTICED ANY GREY HAIRS YET? When you're sixty five they will become noticeable as with changes in the way you live. The SVB workshop on the aged probes the plight of those over 65. You can pick up your free tickets for the workshop in the SVB office between 9.30 and 3.00 daily.

'When You're Sixty-five' a workshop on the aged is being held Sunday, February 9 in Watson 217 between 1-4.30 pm. Come and find out if growing old is something to look forward to.

DON'T MISS OUT ON ANUBIS? Dance to their music, as International Week comes to an end, at Leonard Cafeteria Saturday, Feb. 8, 8-1.

Q. WHY DID the Queen's student walk across the road?
A. To keep from getting involved.

DON'T FORGET TO PICK UP YOUR FREE TICKETS for the SVB workshop, 'When You're Sixty-five' to be held Sun, Feb. 9 in Watson 217. Tickets are available in the SVB office, 9.30-3.00 pm daily.

STEREO EQUIPMENT: Toshiba amp, $6.90, 17RMS1 Sansui $9.2500 speakers, 3 way, Sansui receiver, 3ARMS, $44.918.

INTERNATIONAL WEEK FINALE: Dance at Leonard Cafeteria featuring the Black American Group 'Anubis'. Admission $1.50 per person. Sat., Feb. 8 pm.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY GRANTS: May you live through another year without getting arrested.

HEY! HEY! HEY! LOOK AT WHAT YOU DONE: This is too much of this noncontrolled drinking. You are responsible for my present condition and you know who you are. Take heed, all ye ignorant and foolish youths, before it's too late. It really isn't any fun to pass out on Thursday and wake up on Sunday shakin' so bad that you can hardly hold a cigarette. Believe me.

NOBODY Loves me any more. Listen, I know that my mother threw me out when I was 10, and that my father died from drinking shoe polish strained through bread, but I got seven hundred dollars baby. So don't you mess with me.

REWARD PLEASE HELP! Have lost a gold mezuzah - bar on chain with inscription B.S. 26-7171 and star of David. Please contact Tricia at 544-6449-546-3595.

PLANNING A SPRING WEDDING? Photo Image offers complete photographic coverage, tailored to your individual needs, from as little as $50. For further information call us at 544-7779 or visit our studio at 33 Brock St. and see the photographs we have done for others.

NEED PASSPORT OR JOB APPLICATION PHOTOGRAPHS? At Photo Image we have a student rate of $4.00 for six prints. For an appointment call us at 544-7779.

Otherwise

KEY CLUBBERS OF YESTER

YEAR: Come and find out what Circle K, the university branch of the Kiwanis Family, is up to. We're busy organizing our dance for the Canadian Cancer Society, helping with the Heart Fund, and a host of other projects. We would also like to send 10 delegates to the Eastern Canada and Caribbean convention in Toronto February 14-16, but at present only have about five going. How about 11 people? There's a meeting Monday, February 3 at 7pm in the Grey House (St. Queen's Cres. beside VIC) to finalize plans. If you can't make it to the meeting, please phone Harry at 542-4361. We really need people to come 'n' find out about Queen's Circle K. (P.S. Pappa and Little Brother are going to be there too!)

WHAT MAKES QUEEN'S WOR-TWHILE? A gael group 36 reunion. Come see Ron's new clock at Antonio's coca cola palace. Sat. Feb. 8, after 8.30. Be there, we have ways of making you come.

PHOTO IMAGE 33 Ltd. Specializes in 24 hour black and white Ektachrome slide film processing. For further information, call 546-7770.

ASUS VISITORSHIP: Get involved! Help bring famous speakers to Queen's. Apply for one of three student positions on the ASUS VISITORSHIP committee. For further details drop by the ASUS office B 105 Macintosh-Corby, or phone Nina at 547-3049, during normal office hours.

SR 59's for $150 (plus tax). All other models of quality Texas Instruments selling at new reduced prices. Phone Duncan between 5 and 7pm 549-4622.

CLIP THIS AD AND KEEP IT HANDY: or note the number: 542-8911 for the next time you want efficient, friendly moving, reasonable rates, no waiting. Student operated service.

70 BARRACUDA FOR SALE: 318 V8, automatic, radio, vinyl roof, air shocks, very good gas mileage, in excellent condition. Asking $1900.

Phone 544-7443 and ask for Hugh. SKI MT. SUTTON and Mt. Orford in the same weekend! March 7, 8, 9, the Queen's Ski Club's going for its last BIG trip of the season. Transportation, tow, and condominium accommodation are included. For $35, on sale this Wednesday, Feb. 12th, 7pm in the John Orr room.

BITTER GROUNDS OFFERS the best in live entertainment. Sat. Feb. 8th will be the unique sound of Colleen Peterson. Admission is $1.50. Tickets available till 4:30 in the John Orr Room AND AT THE DOOR. Doors open around 8:00.

BLONDES OF THE WORLD - UNITE! Are your friends unapologetic of your steady bleached locks reflected in your sassy yellow ski-jacket? Let's get together and prove that bleached do have more lust than blonde. House of Commons over a brew to discuss the intricacies of the intrinsic convergence between the sexes.

WANTED: One witty jack-of-all-trade male species for one quiet, retiring, man-tolerant, lockette. Special skills: bedmaking, body-messaging, cooking (her specialty is banana bread). Interested applicants please phone 544-8216 and ask for Shari.

WE CAN GET YOUR REFUND FASTER! Two experienced Queen's students will prepare your income tax return - fast, guaranteed efficient service. We cost less than 1/2 what it costs anywhere else. 549-2922.

LOST: 1 Pair of gold rimmed glasses. If found, please phone Sandy, 549-1088, or Jerry 549-0447. Thanks - I'm blind without them.

BITTER GROUNDS COFFEE HOUSE and Good Times Emporium presents Colleen Peterson, Saturday, Feb. 8. Admission is $1.50 and tickets are available till 4:30 Friday in the John Orr room and at the door.

HEY ETH GOODMAN STUOS! That was one hell of a party. Many thanks from 28... but... next time WE'LL look after the punch! WANTED TO BUY: Full size baby crib in good condition. Phone 544-2522.

WANT TO GO SKIING one more time before settling down to studying? Come March 7, 8, 9, to Sutton and Orford, Quebec. It only costs $35 for 2 days of skiing, 2 nights accommodation and bus tickets on sale Wed. Feb. 12th at 7:00 pm in the John Orr room. One ticket per person.

SLEIGH RIDE TOMORROW at 7:00 pm. The bus will leave the Union at 2:30, cost $1.50 per person. If interested call 544-0928. Sponsored by the Queen's Hockey game with Western at the Clark Hall Pub. this Saturday, Feb. 8, from noon until six.

WARM-UP for the Queen's hockey game with Western at the Clark Hall Pub. this Saturday, Feb. 8, from noon until six.

SPONOR: HAPPY 21st! Just keep 'Rocking-On'. We plan to join you Love, the rest of the Girls.

WANTED (LAST SATURDAY IN APRIL): Stripper for buddies slay. Fees negotiable. Must be clean, female and under thirty. This is not a joke! For interviews, please call 544-7337, 544-2013, 542-4796.

BITTER GROUNDS COFFEE HOUSE and Good Times Emporium is the only source of weekly live entertainment on the campus. This weekend it is the incomparable Colleen Peterson. Admission is $1.50 and tickets are available till 4:30 Friday in the John Orr room and at the door. THERE WILL BE NO BANANAS let me reiterate this. NO BANANAS for Brooks Wilson.

J.T. O'FLANAGAN, ON behalf of Queen's University, extends a heartfelt thank-you to Miss Marnie Marsh, for the services she so graciously bestowed upon the campus, the weekend of Jan 31st - Feb. 2nd. Nice Face!

LOST ONE ICE CUBE Sunday night it found contact Susan Rapp. Also looking for one right baby toe to aid anthropologists, send donations to ignore c-o Or Camblingski.

LOST: One lady's silver Enicar wristwatch in the vicinity of Princess St. between Sydenham and University on Fri Jan 31. Reward. Call 544-7750.

LECTURE SERIES RESUME again at Kingston Women's Centre on Tuesday February 4. Topic "International Women's Year is Here. What can you do?" All women welcome. Daycare will be provided.

SOMEONE STOLE my white Whopper squash racket from 2nd slacks on Monday morning. It was in a blue slazenger case. Any information please call Andrea Davison, 549-5251. Reward for its return.

FOUND: One pair of gloves in Mac-Corby near vending machines. Call 544-7044.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! SMOOKS!!! A SPECIAL THANKS TO Al, Brenda, Harry and Jane for a great dinner, to Steve, Ross and Bob for the 'Break-in', and to all those who were there Saturday night. I was well ushered from my teens.

ENGINEERING SOCIETY is looking for interested people to operate a lunch counter in Clark Hall live days a week for from 10-3pm, phones 547-3079 during day or 544-1221 evenings.

TO THE MEN OF QUEEN'S: A grammar school test paper asked students to give an account of the creation of man. One little girl answered, "First God created Adam. He looked at him and said, 'If I tried I could do a better job.' Then he created Eve."

COME SPEND WITH US AN afternoon of Indian classical dance and music. Ellis Hall, 2pm. Saturday Feb. 8.

20" black and white Toshiba 1 year old. $100 or best offer. Phone after 5:30 544-7321.

MEN'S 10 speed "Mercier" Bicycle complete with accessories. 8 months old. 21" frame. $140 or best offer. 544-4408.

BARGAIN FOR A TALL SKIER: Fischer AluSteel 210 cm. combination downhill-skiing skis (RS series) without bindings. Used only six times, $40. Call 546-7834 between 5:30 and 7:00 pm.

Queen's NDP

Sponsored winter seminars

Seminar 1: The Ideological Foundation of the CCF

A discussion of the Ideals which motivated the founders of the CCF in Western Canada, and their attempts to apply these ideals to the political and social issues of the day.

Tues., Feb. 11

Heart Fund Needs You!

Heart Sunday is February 9
Help Support the Heart Fund by canvassing for 1-2 hours

Free Transportation
Free Refreshments

Come out on Sunday, February 9
To Leonard Hall Dining Room
Between 1pm and 5pm.

Please Help!

Something to "cheers" about:

Now the glorious beer of Copenhagen is brewed right here in Canada. It comes to you fresh from the brewery. So it tastes even better than ever. And Carlsberg is sold at regular prices.

So let's hear it, Carlsberg lovers. "One, two, three... Cheers!"

applications for A.M.S. Commissioners

should be submitted to the AMS Office by 5.00 p.m., Friday, Feb. 14, 1975.
All applications should be accompanied by a brief outline of the applicant's ideas for the commission.
(Interviews will be held the week of February 24, 1975)

Internal affairs

with responsibility for

- AMS Constables
- Outer Council material
- AMS advertising
- AMS clubs

Campus activities

with responsibility for

- Queen's Entertainment Agency
- AMS concerts
- Homecoming
- Room reservations

External affairs

with responsibility for

- Ontario Federation of Students
- Alumni relations
- City relations
- Conferences

Services

with responsibility for

- Journal
- Tricolor
- Who's where
- New service proposals

Education

with responsibility for

- Arts Festival
- AMS Speakers Committee
- AMS Orientation
- Short Course Series

Q.S.A. Director

with responsibility for

- Housing Service
- Pub
- Typing Service
- Printing Service

How To Hold A Sha Na Na Concert

1. Get a hall large enough to hold everyone and his uncle.
2. Make sure you bolt down all chairs, tables, hubcaps, uncles and other valuables.
3. If you're a fella, work out with weights for two weeks prior to the concert.
4. Get enough beer to float a 600-ton tanker (male).
5. Invite your civics teacher.
6. Invite a girl, stand her up and go by yourself.
7. If you're a girl, accept a guy's invitation, stand him up and go stag.
8. Change your name to one of the following: Sal, Rocco, Gino, Vanigliano.
9. Cancel classes for a week after the concert (law, make it two weeks).
10. Hold Sha Na Na concerts every two weeks.

Friday, February 7, Memorial Center, 8:00 P.M.

TICKETS:

$4.00 Student; $4.50 Regular;
$5.00 Door.

John Orr Room, Division of Concerts Box Office, House of Sounds, Vern Napier,

S
H
A N
A N
A

Rock 'n' roll is here to stay

Shaaaaa-na-na

Sha Na Na are the best things in rock'n'roll. They may seem a bit of a mystery to those too young to have had acne in the fifties, but to those of us who were tuning into Luxembourg in 1955 after 'lights out', trying to look mean in the streets, and hanging around the record stores listening to the latest bit of high-school hype, they are a very funny, very accurate reincarnation of an era. Street corners in Canada are rarely quite what they are in the States, but the image is easily recognisable. These cats are really nasty. They chew gum, run sticky combs through their greasy hair, clear their cigarette choked lungs whether there's someone between them and the gutter or not, and always seem to be loving with the idea of beating you to a pulp.

They wear gold lame jenkins, sweatshirts, dirty denims. Their trousers show a good length of flamboyant sock. They hide their faces behind a pair of dark glasses and a drooping cigarette. They look incapable of doing an honest day's work.

But as soon as they get on stage they assume the precision of the Rockettes. They never let on just how far their tongues are pushing into their cheeks, the essence of the best parody. And they have the other two vital elements: they can recreate their material with the authentic spirit of the original, and however much they send it up, they know that they love it. Rock'n'roll is all that counts and the music world has gone off centre since 1960: they're doing their best to regain the correct equilibrium.

Sha Na Na are a group of twelve: their names are JoJo Bruno, Jol, Screamin', Scenter, The Kid, Bauser, Lenny, Donny, Chris, Gino and Denny. But they move so fast it's difficult to tell which is which. If they can't prove to you that rock'n'roll is here to stay, no one can.

Sha-na-na, appearing Friday Evening at the Kingston Memorial Centre

Domino to renovate historic building

With the decision by City Council to lease the former Treasury Building to Domino Theatre, the organization embarks on a new phase in the development of the 22-year old community theatre.

Under the terms of the agreement, which received final reading at the January 27 meeting of Council, Domino will completely renovate the historic building at 370 King Street West.

"The ground floor location will make the theatre more accessible to many patrons who found the stairs at our present quarters an obstacle," said John Hirschfeld, Chairman of Domino. "and in addition we are providing facilities for persons in wheel chairs, so that residents of neighbouring Centennial Lodge and other handicapped theatre-lovers will be able to attend performances easily."

Estimates indicate that the cost of converting the building into a 120-seat theatre will be about $56,000, a portion of which is covered by an LIP grant which Domino received for this purpose.

"We expect to do a great deal of the work ourselves," said Mr. Hirschfeld, pointing out that the group's nearly 200 members possess a variety of skills and trades, "but we certainly welcome help of any kind—financial, technical or material. We hope that citizens will recognize that any help they provide will not only aid Domino, but will be a lasting contribution to the community as a whole, since the City will retain ownership of the building."

"The building has been vacant for some time," Mr. Hirschfeld continued, "and it is in poor condition. By converting it into a comfortable and attractive theatre we will be adding to the physical assets of the City of Kingston, as well as continuing to contribute to its cultural life."

Perry Henniger, who has had many years of experience in the construction business, has agreed to assist in the overall supervision of the project. "We are extremely fortunate that Mr.

Henniger, who has retired to Kingston from Smiths Falls where he was active in the Little Theatre, is available to help us," Mr. Hirschfeld announced. "His knowledge and experience are invaluable."

Work will begin immediately, with plans for the opening of the new building to coincide with the opening of the 1975-76 theatre season in September.

The current programme will not be curtailed in any way. The final presentation for this season, Canterbury Tales, will be presented in the Grand Theatre in late May, when it is expected that Domino's old home will be in the throes of being dismantled for the move to the Treasury Building.

Books.

Whole dam gang in swamp sequel

The Day of the Glorious Revolution
by S. Burke & R. Peterson

by Lizbeth Haworth

Stanley Burke and Roy Peterson have done it again! The whole dam gang is back in The Day of the Glorious Revolution, a sequel to the classic of Sampian History Frog Fables and Beaver Tales. Read more about wonderful creatures such as Chief Minister Peter Waterhole, the frog who talks Beaver, and meet also the special group of Communicators.

The Day of the Glorious Revolution is mostly about the Communicators, whose talents were wasting in a Swamp where everything was going wrong. Among the members of this elite are Pierre Bullion (author of The Great Swampian Dream, the Last Dike, etc.) Rene Terrique, who broke the Sacred Rule of the Communicators; and Judy La Swamp who once called Waterhole a loaf of bread. Also disgruntled, and willing to put the country back on its paws were ABC-TV Communicators Adrienne Flowersong of Lake 60, and Lloyd Blanderson of the Gnatland.

The master-beaver of the whole take-over was successful but miserable Charles Gryvich from the Depressed Gallery. Enlisting the aid of Major General Louis Quatorze Napoleon Jeanne D'Arc, they planned the revolution. Follow the exciting epic as the quick-witted Communicators put their plan into action, and how it affected the entire Swamp. Alas, the best laid plans of Beavers and Frogs....

Each Beaver, Frog and Muskrat is portrayed by Roy Peterson in living black and white: each whisker and lilypad exactly in its place. Even photographs in the Globe and Mail or Mapleleaf Magazine were never so revealing.

In few other history books of The Swamp are the Big Beavers and Frogs so enlighteningly drawn up. A background in modern Swampian politics is not necessary to appreciate most of the subtleties.

Frog Fables and Beaver Tales deserves to be followed by such an entertaining sequel.

Many thanks to Smith-Hill bookstore, 193 Princess St., for the generous donation of this book for review.

Easy reading in Rabbinical logic

Tuesday the Rabbi Saw Red
by Harry Kemelman
Fawcett Books

by Tony Davis

Tuesday the Rabbi Saw Red is the fifth book in Harry Kemelman's successful Rabbi series. Rabbi David Small is a pseudo detective who employs Talmudic logic to extricate himself from the unusual circumstances he often gets involved with.

In this particular case, Rabbi Small is teaching a college in Jewish thought and Philosophy. A bomb explodes: a professor is killed. The whodunnit formula is unravelled slowly by Kemelman who introduces numerous suspects, motives, and questions which need to be solved. Everyone is suspect, even the FBI have a hand in the whole affair. Personal and political motives confuse the murder for the police, and only the Rabbi with his logical mind can see through the clouds.

Tuesday the Rabbi Saw Red is fast paced and easy to read. The intermingling of murder, suspects, police, and, of course, the indomitable Rabbi Small provide the reader with a break from heavy reading.

Many thanks to Smith-Hill bookstore, 193 Princess St., for the generous donation of this book for review.

Books.

Experiments in the arts

February 10th to 12th are days to remember, because they mark the fifth annual "Three days of experiments in the arts" performed by Queen's Improvisation Group. If you took part in last year's "Environmental Opera" by the lakeshore you are well prepared for the fresh and unique experience this upcoming event will provide.

For those of you who aren't familiar with previous performances, the Experiment will consist of three performances, each one different. These will take place in Grant Hall at 8:00 p.m. each night. The staging of the performances is somewhat that of "theatre-in-the-round-and-above", because the audience will be seated in the balconies observing the stage and ground floor.

Don't expect a musical concert in the traditional sense. What you will see, hear, feel, and become a part of will be a festival of experimental film, art, drama, and music in combination with applications of technology. It has been stressed by Mr. Keane, director of the group and a professor in the music department, that nowhere else in Kingston, or in many other places in Canada will one have the opportunity to witness a festival of this sort. Its purpose is to involve everyone in a make-believe world, a fantasy, and to make each person become a part of the world that exists within a piece of music.

The festival is a combined effort of the improvisation group, Queen's Modern Dance Company, Queen's Choral Ensemble, and the Film Department. Appreciation for donations is expressed to the Richardson Fund for the Performing Arts, the Film Department, Physical Plant and the Physical Education Department. All films are from the Film Department's permanent collection of experimental films. Nearly everything else has been created by Queen's staff and students. Queen's Choral Ensemble will perform the debut of "A Night Among the Pines", composed by Professor Cliff Crawley of the music department. Joe Petric will perform "Dinosaurous", a piece for accordion, electric tape and microphone, composed by Aren Nordheim. It is an experiment you'll never forget.

Soft core truth

by Mike Cragan

If this Thursday's screening of Reefer Madness in Dunning Hall will save even one person from the horrors of marijuana, then Cineguild's efforts to show the film will not be in vain.

This '30s classic exposes to the general public the real truth about the stuff you're smoking -- that marijuana is "the real public enemy number one!" Why, everyday someone is being introduced to this path of evil. With one toke, innocent victims are being chained to "the weed from the devil's garden." By releasing the movie Cineguild reveals the inside dope about grass in hopes of saving someone you know.

A poster used for advertising sums it all up: "Open your eyes and prepare yourself for a Shock! Tell them a harmless puff may make you a killer. Kill this Menacing Scourge! Delinquent youth gone berserk with Reefer Madness -- Deadlier than the most dangerous criminal!" As if not enough, accompanying photos of anguished victims provide real proof of these prophetic words.

"Wake Up America! Here's a roadside weed that's fast becoming a national high-way!" Let's hope Reefer Madness prevents that from happening here on campus.

the Queen's Album

Jan Wallmer

Sports

From the Sports Desk

Home Action

Friday
Ice Hockey (W) - Western at Queen's - 5:30 in Arena.
Saturday
Curling (M) - OUA A finals at Catarqui Curling Club 10:00 2:00 and 4:00.
Gymnastics (M) - Queen's hosting East Sectionals at 12:00 in Bartlett gym.
Ice Hockey (M) - Western at Queen's - 7:00 pm. in Arena
Sunday
Curling at Catarqui - 8:00 and 11:00 am.

Away Action

Alpine Skiing (M&W) - OWIAA finals at Collingwood
Badminton (W) - OWIAA combined final at Waterloo
(M) - OUA A sectional finals at Ottawa
Curling (M) - East Sectionals at Toronto
Gymnastics (W) - York Invitational
Squash (M) - East Sectionals at York
Swimming (M) - St. Lawrence U. Triangular
Volleyball (W) - East Section II at Laurentian
(M) - Finals in Ottawa
Wrestling (M) - St. Lawrence U. Triangular
X-Country Skiing (M) - OUA A finals at RMC

Sports Editorial

It is with great sadness that I have come to realize that the humanitarian philosophies with which we are endeavouring to carry out this section of the Journal have not been reflected by the University at large.

By this point in time the entire University (or at least those vaguely interested) have some clues as to what is 'coming off' in sports. Some teams are riding high while others have blown it for the nth consecutive year. This sports editor is not trying to push anything down anybody's throat but for God's sake would the University sports fans at large please stop for one second and consider the fact that they are patronizing less than one half of the athletes and completely ignoring the rest.

As I overheard a girl saying last week in Stirling 'if they can go and watch the Gaels lose, why can't they come and see us win'. The girl was a hockey player and their LAST HOME GAME IS THIS FRIDAY. They are one of the few Queen's teams who managed to go through the entire season without a loss. They are in No. 1 spot and I think they deserve a tribute.

Well so much for the hockey scene. The Gaels are still in the picture as long as they stay ahead of Laurentian in the rest of the league games. Laurentian has 3 more and we have two more (one at home on Saturday night -- note the time change -- it's at 7:00 now) and one away.

In the basketball line-up the Queen's Gaels are out of the playoffs (but like the farmers they're looking for a better season next year). The Gaels on the other hand are in a secure 3rd place position and have a very decent chance of winning the whole bundle. The playoffs start next weekend in Guelph.

As far as other sports to watch this weekend go, the place to be is Bartlett gym on Saturday afternoon for the men's gymnastics meet and Catarqui Curling club on Saturday and Sunday for the men's curling matches. The Gaels are in first place so see if you can pile in a car and go out to cheer them on.

Enjoy the Sha-na-na concert and as Max Jackson says 'If you don't play a sport... be one'.

1974-75 Three BIG Weekends to go !!! An Open Letter to the Queen's Hockey Gaels

Dear fellows:

Once again it's playoff time in the east division of the OUA. And once again the Queen's Golden Gaels find themselves in their accustomed scramble for the fourth and final playoff spot. Admittedly you still have a shot at third place but that is more because of the closer balance of the league than because of your own efforts. By the admission of several of the players and both of the coaches, Sunday's effort in Sudbury against the Voyageurs was something less than in spring. Why was that? Injuries? Only Chris Clark did not make the trip. John Cerre and Ron Shepherd, both of whom have been hurt for part of the year, are now back in the lineup. So we can't very well use that as an excuse, can we? What other reason? The loss of Dave McDowall? Certainly his departure will have an adverse effect on morale and on ice performance. But some of us remember a situation three years ago when the Gaels lost the services of Morris Mott because of academic requirements. The very first game after Mott left was against the University of Toronto Blues in Toronto. Those of us who were privileged to see that game still remember it as one of the finest displays ever put on by ANY Queen's team in a long, long time.

No, there has to be another reason. Even if one member of the team is injured or departs from the team, there is still no excuse whatever for anything less than a 100 percent effort out of every other team member. The team with "class" will demonstrate its real ability even when because each of its members will work that much harder to take up the slack. Witness the Gaels' performance against Toronto three years ago. That was a team with "class".

Suffice it to say that you have yet to prove to us and to your selves that you deserve to be in the east division playoffs. If you rules out the game against the RMC Redmen, you have accumulated only 4 goals in the five games since second term began. You have given up a total of 17 goals in the same five games (again excluding the RMC contest). And you have acquired only 4 points out of a possible ten in only one game since Christmas.

In the last four years there has been considerable improvement in the fortunes of the Queen's Golden Gaels hockey program. The team, which for years had the most dismal record in Ontario intercollegiate hockey, has indeed come a long way since Morris Mott came here a few years ago. But that progression has been stalled the last couple of years by a lack of something. It is not a matter of lack of support. Queen's students have gotten behind you in an extremely fine manner. Memories of the 2,500 fans at the Toronto game a few weeks ago are still fresh in everyone's mind. That they were let down by your play is fresh in my mind but not is it the lack of support and encouragement from coaches Dave Field, Bob Canegre, managers Bob Mossman and Wray Hunsley, and trainer Al Allmark. All of these people have put in a considerable amount of time on behalf of the Queen's hockey program this season. They only think they get is seeing 1 guys do well on the ice. But when those guys let them down, it's no easy to keep giving up work at family to keep coming out to practice every day.

And so, you have two more chances to prove to us that you are indeed worthy of a playoff berth in the east division. The first one is tomorrow night at 7 p.m. at the Jack Hartley Arena, when you meet the Western Mustangs. The second chance will be next Friday night when you meet the Blues in Toronto. On both occasions you will get good support from the Queen's fans who have been coming out faithfully all year. All they ask is one thing: that each of you make a conscious effort to play the very best you can every shift you get on the ice. All of us will applaud a good effort. But you'll find little sympathy among any of us for a half-hearted performance.

By the way, the feelings expressed here are my own. And if you want to take issue with any of them, I'll sign my name.

Peter Watts

A team on the beam

Gymnastics

Queen's is hosting the East Sectional gymnastics finals this Saturday, with Queen's, R.M.C., York, Ottawa, and Carleton all competing. The top two teams will be able to go to the finals in Ottawa on the 22nd of February. Coach Don Masse does not want to make a prediction of how Queen's will do as he is having eligibility problems with a few of the gymnasts. If things turn out for the better Queen's should place fairly well. In any case the meet will be interesting and exciting to watch. Hope everyone can make it to support Queen's gymnastics, as this is the last home meet this year.

John Bottomley

Watts my line

by Peter Watts

Seldom is it that the Journal has the space or the inclination to reflect upon sporting issues outside the University. Since there seems to be an abundance of both today, let's take a moment to reflect upon the upcoming Olympic Games to be held next summer in Montreal. These thoughts were inspired by this reporter's attendance at a press conference held on Monday at City Hall in which press coverage for radio and television and newspapers was outlined by Barry McQuordale, Assistant Manager of ORTO, the Olympic Radio Television Organization. In listening to the impressive array of facilities being constructed to enable the games to be carried to some 130 countries around the world, I got to thinking about the magnitude of such an event, not only in terms of the people who are involved directly in the Games, but of what they mean to athletes, spectators and the general public in all parts of the world.

For athletes, the Olympic games represent a goal: a chance to prove oneself against the best in the world in athletic competition. For the fans, the Games offer a unique opportunity to watch some of the greatest names in particular sports in head-to-head competition.

But the magnitude of the Games and the whole philosophy behind them is something which is becoming increasingly controversial. A couple of years ago Queen's played host to a very interesting symposium on track and field. Two of the participating panelists, Abby Hoffman and Bruce Kidd - both former members of the Canadian Olympic Track and Field Team - were deeply critical of the conduct of recent Olympic Games. They had just come back from Munich, where, as everyone remembers, the competitions were interrupted by the Arab attacks on the Israeli Olympic team. Both of the panelists felt that the whole concept of the Games had been removed from the realm of competitive athletics and shoved into the political spotlight. Now, the flag meant more than the act of competing. To lose was not merely a personal disappointment: it was a national disgrace. Listening to them, I could not help but be impressed with the sincerity of their words.

Now, though, Canada is gearing up to act as official host for several hundred athletes and many thousands of officials, news media reporters and broadcasters, and spectators from all over the world. And make no mistake about it: despite the fact that the Olympic Games to this point appear to have been the personal property of Jean Drapeau, the Games are really a Canadian undertaking. No one outside of Canada is aware of the problems that the organizing committee is having in reconciling a rapidly increasing budget with inadequate revenues. Few people are aware of the fact that the Canadian government has refused to participate directly in the financing of the Games. The only thing that many people around the world do know is that next summer their athletes will be coming to Canada and they will expect everything necessary for the completion of the Games will have been done on time.

Under the circumstances, there seems to be no alternative. The Canadian government (and possibly the Ontario government as well, since part of the Games will be held here in Kingston) will have to give serious consideration to pitching in financially to make the Games a success. It is too late to pull out now. And while the tendency will be to blame everything on Drapeau, we should try and look for the positive benefits that the Olympics will provide for Canada. The Olympics are too big for one man and it's time the rest of the country started to act like the hosts that they are.

Bews - Top Ten

1. PHE	35,438
2. Civil Math	33,879
3. Medicine	30,614
4. Arts '76	30,598
5. Commerce '76	29,380
6. Arts '77	28,880
7. Commerce '77	28,441
8. Mechanical	27,618
9. Business Grads	27,208
10. Law '77	25,884

Violence in hockey

This will serve as an early reminder to keep the date Thursday, February 27th open for a very interesting event. The event is a symposium to be held that evening at 8 p.m. in Grant Hall. Entitled "Violence in Hockey: Condemn it or Condone it?", and sponsored jointly by the Arts and Science Undergraduate Society and the Phys Ed Students Association, the symposium will feature three well known figures from the area of professional hockey. One is Clarence Campbell, President of the National Hockey League. Another is Carl Brewer, a former defenseman with Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings of the NHL and Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association. The third member is William McMurtrey, author of a recently released report on violence in hockey.

The McMurtrey Report was critical of the amount of violence in professional hockey and concluded that such attitudes were being passed along to youngsters, encouraging them that violence is an acceptable and, indeed, vital part of hockey.

It promises to be an interesting evening and both of the sponsoring groups expect that a good crowd will be in attendance.

Bite the one you love

STEAK & STUFF
LICENCED DINING ROOM 1399 Princess (near the station)
AUNT LUCY'S RESTAURANTS

Unwanted hair
removed from any part of the body

All work done by skilled well-trained graduate electrologists. Eyebrow arching done with guaranteed artistic perfection.

Graduate Electrolysis Salon
183 Princess St.
544-6905

SLEIGH RIDES

Want to go on a real horse drawn sleigh ride? It's possible at Valhalla!

Make up a party and have some winter fun. You will ride in a 2 horse sleigh around Valhalla's BUFFALO PARK, so you will see the buffalo herd as well. So get together with your friends, phone for reservations, and come on out to Valhalla Riding School Hwy No. 2, Gananoque (on Hwy 2, 13 mi. east of Kingston)

Valhalla Riding School
Hwy No. 2, Gananoque
(on Hwy. 2, 13 mi. east of Kingston)

PHONE: 382-3337

Dr. J.S. Boggs

Director of the National Gallery, Ottawa will lecture on

Degas and the Nude

Fri., Feb. 7
8:00 P.M.
Stirling D Auditorium

3 DAYS OF EXPERIMENTS
IN THE ARTS
FEBRUARY 10-12
MON.-WED. 8.00 P.M.
GRANT HALL
AUDITORIUM
ADMISSION FREE

WIC-ly News

by Floss
Journal Sports Writer

ARCHERY TOURNAMENT: was held Wednesday and Thursday of this week, but no final results to report yet.

BROOMBALL: started this past Wednesday night and attracted a lot of keen supporters. This new sport continues Wednesday Feb. 12 from 7.00 to 8.20 p.m., and Wed. Feb. 26 from 7.00 to 8.20 p.m. For further information contact Deb Streton. at 549-1640.

VOLLEYBALL: seems to be suffering from lack of participation these days. Everyone can forget all their work, worries, troubles, etc. for one hour each Tuesday night and come out to the V-ball courts! This Tuesday, Feb. 11, finds these games scheduled:
7.15 p.m. Nursing vs. Engineering
7.15 p.m. Commerce vs. Arts '78

8.15 PHE vs. Meds
8.15 Arts '77 vs. Rehab

Thursday night are Co-ed volleyball nights. Bring all male and female friends to Bews gym for some fun and games.

SQUASH: the tournament continues in search of the squishiest person on campus. Those still left in the tournament will play off to determine the final winner.

SNOWSHOEING: Due to wonderfully poor snow conditions, the snowshoe outing has been tentatively postponed. Keep watching the Bulletin board in the Women's Jocker room.

X-COUNTRY SKIING: This outing to West Campus had to be cancelled last Monday, but there is a new date for all you eager X-country skiers. This next outing will hopefully take place Monday Feb. 10. Pick up your skis, boots, and poles at 6.30 pm - the bus leaves at 7 pm sharp for West Campus. Please pray for lots and lots of FLUFFIES! More information can be gotten from informative Barb McDermott at 542-8080.

TO ALL ATHLETIC STICKS AND CONVENORS! The next WIC meeting will be this Monday, Feb. 10 at 5.30 pm. See you all then.

Fenced In

Last weekend the Queen's men's sabre team travelled to York University for Part I of the OUA A fencing competition. Fencing for Queen's were Ron Fitzgerald, Steve Bishop, and Peter Kingsman. The team unfortunately did not qualify for advancement to Part II. In individual results, however, Ron Fitzgerald from Queen's placed second. The top six fencers will compete in the provincial semifinals this weekend. The finals will be held at R.M.C. the next weekend.

Two fencers from the women's team - Erika Cook and Rosemary Knight were also competing in the individual provincial finals last weekend. They were eliminated before making it to the finals in this event. First place went to Luba Taguchi, an excellent fencer from MacMaster University. Second place was claimed by Carleton and third by University of Toronto. The high calibre of fencing made it a very worthwhile competition for both competitors and spectators.

S'port Sports

Love Mother

50¢
OFF

This coupon entitles you to 50¢ off the price of any pizza at Mother's Pizza Parlour, 455 Princess Street, just above Driveway. Simply present the coupon when you visit Mother's, or when the Mother's delivery boy calls at your door.

Please, just one coupon per pizza

50¢
OFF

50¢
OFF

MOTHER'S

50¢
OFF

Compliments of Mother. Expiry Date, Feb. 28, '75
Good any day of the week

Mother's Pizza Parlour and Spaghetti House

"More than just a place to eat"

455 Princess

549-0006

Queen's University
Performing Arts Office
presents
VAGHY STRING QUARTET
with PHYLLIS MAILING soprano
and WILLIAM AIDE piano
SATURDAY 8 FEBRUARY
Dunning Hall 8:30p.m.
Works by Schonberg and Bartik
Tickets: $2.50 general,
$1.50 discount
Box Office: 547-6194

Graduate Student Society PLEBISCITE

The G.S.S. Council has called a non-binding plebiscite for February 12, 13 on the following question:

"Are you in favour of replacing the present system of numerical grading in graduate courses with an honours-pass-fail system?"

Voting at AMS Polling stations.

Volunteers Needed

We urgently require volunteers to work with counsellors on a vocational rehabilitation program. You should enjoy working with groups and planning activities for young people with physical or mental disabilities. 1 or 2 hours per week required. Contact Alan at 547-3339 for appointments.

St. Lawrence Parks Commission Summer Employment at Old Fort Henry Kingston, Ontario.

as a member of the
Fort Henry Guard
Successful applicants will earn in excess of 4 dollars
per hour!

Application forms available at the placement office, corner of University and Union. Sign-ups for interviews begin on January 20 and campus interviews are being held on February 10 to 14.

ALMA MATER SOCIETY OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

REFERENDA

Feb. 12 and 13, 1975

1 a) THAT THE QUEEN'S JOURNAL STUOENT LEVY OF THREE (3) OOLLARS BE INCREASED

YES ☐ NO ☐b) IF YES, BY ONE OOLLAR FIFTY CENTS ($1.50) ☐BY THREE DOLLARS ($3.00) ☐

2) SHALL THE MBA STUOENTS' SOCIETY BE RECOGNIZEO AS A MEMBER SOCIETY OF THE A.M.S.

YES ☐ NO ☐

3) SHALL THE STUOENT PORTION FOR BUS-IT BE INCREASED FROM $3.00 to $4.50

YES ☐ NO ☐

4 a) THAT BY LAW NO. 8, SECTION B, DEALING WITH THE HONOURARIA PAIO TO VOLUNTEERS OF THE A.M.S. REMAIN AS FORMALLY STATED IN THE CONSTITUTION EFFECTIVE SEPT. 1, 1974.

YES ☐ NO ☐

b) THAT ANY CHANGES TO THIS BY-LAW MUST BE EFFECTEO THROUGH ANOTHER REFERENOM

YES ☐ NO ☐

5) SHALL PROJECT GREEN BE GRANTEO A STUOENT LEVY OF $1.00 FOR THE NEXT 5 YEARS

YES ☐ NO ☐

POLLING STATIONS

Douglas Library
Student's Union
Phys. Ed. Center

Feb. 12, 13

9:00 A.M.

5:00 P.M.

Queen's Journal

Volume 102, Number 37

Tuesday, Feb. 11, 1975

OFS urges students to write to their MPPs

WATERLOO (CUP) — An Ontario Federation of Students (OFS) executive member at the University of Waterloo is urging students on his campus and across Ontario to write to their local members of provincial Parliament protesting the Ontario government's financial cutbacks and to urge their parents to do the same.

Sahen Roberts, the executive member, says that mass street demonstrations, like those urged by Brock University students are not the best or only way to protest the cuts.

"It's far more effective to write your MPP's than to spend a few noisy hours outside Queen's Park demonstrating," he said.

Roberts asked the University of Waterloo (UW) Federation of Students' Council Feb. 2 to send a telegram to the Minister of Colleges and Universities, James Auld, saying that "the cutbacks, with one abstention, passed the motion."

"We must stand up now," he urged, "or the government will mount up more cutbacks." The current cutbacks are just the "beginning of a trend," Roberts stated.

He also called on the student newspaper, the Chevron, to produce a special issue, as well as placing ads in the local newspaper, the Kitchener-Waterloo Record, to publicly explain the effects the cutbacks will have on the universities.

But Roberts alerted student councillors to the possible negative reaction from the community to the university's financial plight, by quoting a Feb. 1 editorial from the Record that condemned students and professors at Carleton University for protesting the provincial cutbacks.

The Record editorial charged students and faculty with disrespect for the average taxpayer by staging strikes to debate reduced government spending in education, Roberts said.

The cutbacks in education were triggered Nov. 18 when Auld said that overall grants to the university college system for 1975-76 would be increased by about 16 percent. Ontario university presidents were unanimous in condemning the increase as being in effect. With raging inflation, a cutback, they argued that on a per student basis the provincial grants increased by only 7.4 percent.

OFS spokespersons in Toronto say that while the letter writing isn't really official as it has only been talked about at several meetings they have held, they think it is a good idea and that students should write the letters.

Elrond elections

Officials of Elrond College were elected at the Annual Meeting of Elrond College, held Sunday.

The college membership of the Board of Directors of Elrond College now includes: Katie Bielecki, Brent Arnold, and Dave Edwards.

The Education Committee Chairman was acclaimed; he is Gordon Hobbs. Also acclaimed were the Membership Committee Chairman: Mark Edwards; and the Kitchen Committee Chairman, Craig Parks. Patrick Chance, spokesman for Elrond, attributed the number of acclamations to the date of the Annual Meeting which was held earlier this year, a time when many people have not decided their plans for next year.

The Work Schedule Manager for next year is John Monroe. Elected to the Judicial Committee were Ernie Durling, Dave Osmars, and Ken Langford.

Are Canadians well nourished? And if not, why not? These were two of the questions raised Thursday by Donna Woolcott in her lecture, "Nutrition: A Canadian Energy Crisis."

Woolcott, a community nutritionist who spent eighteen months going from coast to coast with the Nutrition Canada survey team, pointed out that the single greatest nutrition problem in Canada today, is obesity. She remarked that up to forty percent of the population in the 20-39 year old group are obese, and that the proportion increases with age to eighty percent in women over 65.

AMS Outer Council still have to decide whether to ratify Don Altman, Pat Delany and Bill Young as the AMS appointed Directors of Elrond College.

Woolcott pointed out that the problem is largely one of our lifestyle (sedentary occupations and too many labour-saving devices) and of our eating habits (social drinking, eating many meals away from home, and continual snacking—often on non-nutritive foods).

Essentially, most Canadians can afford to live well, eating sensibly and leading fairly active lives; Woolcott made it clear to the audience that the problem is one of insufficient public

In Commerce, slow squeeze turns to crunch

Mostly by B. Nyland

"Society is not getting the returns it should from business schools", stated Dean R. J. Hand of Queen's School of Business. The slow financial squeeze which has been affecting the School for the past five or six years has reached a "crunch", according to Hand, and as a result, course variety has been stifled, classes loom larger every year, and time constraints have harmed the quality of teaching.

Business schools are relatively new to academic life. They were able to mature in the Sixties when government financial support was abundant. But since then, their growth has been slowed. Hand remarked, "We had just reached a stage when we could make a first class contribution to society, and our resources were cut down."

The School of Business has achieved its long range plan of having from 600 to 700 undergrads and 200 M.B.A. students. When this enrolment was planned for in the Sixties, close to 50 Faculty members were called for to handle this number of students; currently, however the School employs only 44.

Because of the sizeable staff-student ratio, professors have voluntarily subdivided classes of more than 100 students, in order to offer students more personal attention. However, there is still room for improvement: for instance in the case of some of the upper year seminars, which often contain up to 75 students.

Also suffering from over large staff-student ratios are the fine points of instruction and communication between teacher and student. Hand pointed out that students are interested in working within the institutional system to bridge the gap between traditional practices and new ideas, but are unable to, as teaching quality declines.

The School of Business had also planned to institute a Ph. D. program. This has been postponed indefinitely due to lack of financing. "We require special financial assistance to high quality Canadian graduates in this field or they will go to the prestigious competitors in the United States," commented education.

Next in the Nutrition lecture series is "Nutrition Misconceptions" by Kingston nutritionist Ellen McCarthy.

Hand.

Two years ago the entire field of international business was eliminated from the program of the School. Last year from eight to ten half year courses and fifteen graduate courses were eliminated according to Hand. Other courses are now staffed by part-time lecturers who may be "less qualified or less available to the students."

Constraints have forced the professors to put aside research because their first priority is teaching. This neglect also affects the quality of teaching since the faculty is forced to rely to a great extent on literature and teaching materials from the United States and Britain. We are "perpetuating our immaturity and dependence as a nation."

Research facilities are also not being used to the fullest extent. Mackintosh Corry now houses a management simulation laboratory. The finances are just not available to perform the possible investigations into the decision making and teaching processes.

Protests pour in

Protests from students in Applied Science were aimed at the Journal after publication of the article in last Tuesday's paper which stated that the failure rate for women in Engineering was zero. Several female students in the golden faculty claimed that this was not true, that they knew of several girls who had failed out of Engineering, despite the statistics released from the office of the Dean of Applied Science.

A little investigation revealed the cause for confusion to be a question of terminology. In the Faculty of Applied Science, a distinction is made between failure with permission to repeat, and failure with request to withdraw. Dean Uffen explained. He remarked that within the past four years, there have been three girls who have failed but have been allowed to repeat, however, there have been no girls who failed and who have been required to withdraw.

Still, the Dean commented, three women out of sixty-eight is not bad!

Election fever issue

wat's hapnin'?

Tuesday, February 11

5.15 p.m. - Ban Righ Fireside presents Kathryn Cernauskas (flautist) performing works from Telemann, Bach, Varese, Debussy and Poul. Everyone welcome.

7.00 p.m. - Queen's University Italian Club and the Department of Spanish and Italian presents Carnevale Italiano. Tonight: Comedy Gli imbianchini non hanno ricordi. In the International Centre (Lower Common Room). No one allowed in after curtain time. Followed at 8.00 p.m. by a Masked Ball $2.00 for the play and the Ball. Tickets sold in the Secretary's office of the Department of Spanish and Italian (Rm 416) at La Casa, 90 Queen's Crescent or at the door. Refreshments and food with a prize for the best costume.

7.30 p.m. - Spectrum Lecture Series presents Dr. Taylor Department of Mathematics "The Role of Research in the University". In the Ban Righ Common Room. Coffee and donuts to follow.

7.30 p.m. - Queen's Bridge Club meets in McLaughlin Room of Students Union. Everyone welcome.

7.30 p.m. - Program on Meditation every Tuesday in Dunning Hall Room 16. Free admission.

7.30 - 9.30 p.m. - Auditions for Gilbert and Sullivan's The Gondoliers at Central Public School, Sydenham Street 2 blocks north of Princess St. Needed are a large cast of singers and dancers including 9 principal roles. Previous experience is not required. Please bring some music to sing, an accompanist is provided. The show will be presented by the Meistersingers from May 6-10. For further information phone 389-3676.

8.00 p.m. - Professor Joseph Burke will give a lecture on Neo-Classicism and the Picturesque in Stirling D Hall. Admission is free.

8.00 p.m. - Queen's Music Department will present Three Days of Experiments in the Arts directed by David R. Keane. In Grant Hall. The event will end on Feb. 13.

8.00 p.m. - The Science of Creative Intelligence as the First Science by Dr. L. Domash, a Ph.D. in Physics of Maharishi International University giving a view on the application of SCI to education. Guest speaker: R.J.D. Parker, M.A. in physics. In Stirling Hall B.

8.00 p.m. - Queen's NDP Sponsored Winter Seminars: The Ideological Foundations of the CCF. A discussion of the ideals which motivated the founders of the CCF in Western Canada, and their attempts to apply these ideals to the relevance of the ideals for contemporary Canadian socialism. In Ellis Hall Room 218.

8.00 p.m. - Philosophy Club meeting and informal discussion on Nietzsche. Rm. 341, Watson Hall.

8.15 p.m. - Queen's Basketball Girls vs. Ottawa.

9.00 p.m. - Department of Film Studies will present King of Marvin Gardens in Ellis Auditorium for $1.00.

Wednesday, February 12

6.30 - 10.30 p.m. - Recreational badminton every Wednesday and Thursday at West Campus.

7.00 p.m. - Tickets go on sale in the John Orr Room for the Ski Club trip to Sullon and Orford $35.00 One ticket per person.

7.00 - 8.00 p.m. - Free esperanto classes every Wednesday Room 202 Kingston Hall.

7.00 p.m. - Ash Wednesday Service in Morgan Chapel, Queen's Theological Hall All are welcome. Sponsored by the Lutheran, Anglican, Roman Catholic, Christian Reformed and Inter-Varsity groups on campus.

7.15 - Last Lecture Series Dr. A.M. Taylor from the Political Studies and Geography Depts. In McNeil House Common Room.

8.00 p.m. - To Develop the Full Potential of the individual an in depth presentation by Maharishi Mahesh Yogi on videotape on the interpretive effects on Transcendental Meditation on the individual. Speakers will include local teachers of TM. Stirling Hall Theatre B.

8.00 p.m. - Wozzeck a filmed version in color of Alan's Berg's opera, sung in German will be shown in Room 128, Jeffery Hall. No admission will be charged.

8.30 p.m. - Queen's Debating Union presents its first pub debate in Wallace Hall. "Resolved that you haven't had enough until you've had too much." Audience participation welcome. Get there early and stock up.

8.30 p.m. - Mary Lou Fallis in Dunning Hall.

Thursday, February 13

7.00 and 9.30 p.m. - Reefer Madness and Martian Space Party plus Part 5 of Indians. Dunning Hall Auditorium Admission $1.00 per person.

7.00 - 9.00 p.m. - Nutrition Misconceptions This is the second lecture in the Nutrition Series given in Dupuis Auditorium. The speaker is Ellen McCarthy, Queen's School of Nursing.

8.00 p.m. - The Science of Creative Intelligence and its Implications for Society with a guest speaker on criminology and the need for an effective rehabilitation programme. Stirling Hall Theatre B.

8.30 - 1.00 a.m. - MacArthur Pub. Admission 50c.

Pubs and Theatres

Frontenac - Finnegan's: Nigel Frontenac - Muldoon's: Alan Rhody and Friends 101 Inn: Ray Smith and Company Townhouse: Daniel

Capitol I - Return of the Dragon Capitol II - Towering Inferno Hyland: Animal Crackers Odeon: Front Page

The Department of Drama presents Chronicles XXVII. The Road on Tuesday Feb. 11 at 7.30 pm in the Studio Theatre (Room 12) The Road runs during the week on Wed., Thurs., at 7.30 pm and Friday at 7.30 and 9.30 p.m.

Agnes Etherington

Wednesday, February 12: Canadian Film makers Series: Experimental films, Program 2. Ellis Hall at 8.00 p.m.

Thursday, February 13 - Diamonds Tomorrow Competition 1974 collection of winning designs and jewellery. Ten of the thirty awards went to students studying under Neil Aird at St. Lawrence College. Continues to February 27.

Thursday, February 13: Picture Rental Day at the Calvin Park Public Library, Wright's Crescent, 1.00 to 8.00 p.m.

Upcoming Events

February 14: The Classics Department presents episode No. 8 of Odyssey series entitled Sirens and Isle of Sun in Room 114 Earl Hall at 3 p.m.

February 17: Films by women in Canada The National Film Board of Canada is having a women's film presentation at 7.30 p.m. at the Kingston Public Library (Bagot & Brock) Free admission - everyone is welcome.

February 20: Second Bi-annual Hen Party. BYOB. C.U. there.

February 26: He's coming again. See Thief in the Night a film of the things that could happen when Christ returns. In Dunning Hall at 5 p.m. Admission $1.00. Sponsored by the Navigators.

Science '78 Smoker

Clark Hall
Monday, Feb. 24, 1975
at
8:00 p.m.

All welcome; Admission free.
Beers: 50 each or 5/$2.00

Ban Righ Fireside
Tues. February 11

Katherine Cernauskas
(Vancouver Flautist)

Program will include works of Telemann, C.P.E., Bach, Varese,
Debussy and Park

Coffee, Dessert at 5:45 p.m.
Music at 6:00 p.m.

Artsci '78
Crests
now available at
The Campus
Bookstore

Office of the Dean of Women
presents

Nutrition Series

This week: Nutrition misconceptions
Ellen McCarthy
Queen's School of Nursing

All welcome.

Courtwright

Human beings are human

by John Gibson

"Human beings are human. We're not pure spirits. . . and we're not mere animals with instinct as the main guide to activity. . . We have the power to choose and the spirit will to see our choices through." With these words Mr. Jim Courtwright began his "last lecture" presented to an audience of about 35 last Wednesday evening. The title of this third lecture in the Last Lecture Series was "The Human Condition."

Mr. Courtwright, Vice-Principal for Information and Development at Queen's, spoke in general terms on what he sees as "typifying human existence."

People on the whole make decisions and act in neither completely rational nor completely emotional ways. Instead, both reason and emotion are combined in every choice we make. We may analyze impartially what we hear, but we only hear what we want to hear.

This filtering out of unwanted information is partly the result of the uniqueness of each individual. Each of us has special aptitudes and skills which guide our interests and which coincide exactly in no two individuals because "the physical talents are not shared equally." It is because our interests vary so much that each of us looks at and looks for different things in life, and draws different lessons from experience. We are precisely equal, only in sharing a twenty-four day.

There are things we share besides time, though, one in particular being the human condition. We may be unique and individual, but we are all part of a huge group of individuals with the result that a single person can do very little on his or her own. Other shared characteristics include a common positive response to deadlines and constant tension in our lives.

Trust also plays a large part in our existence. The whole experience of living with others is based on trust, as are most business deals. The number of telephoned contracts, the success of cheques and charge cards as forms of payment all illustrate this point. Mr. Courtwright believes that we need more trust between the public and private sectors of the nation: "neither side is more holy or more evil than the other." "Our greatest need is to understand each other."

The key to personal satisfaction in our world is to "do our own thing the best way we know how," and to believe that what we are doing is important. A formal education and life experience also help, for they make us more adaptable to the rapidly changing conditions of our environment and allow us to pursue our individual interests in that environment.

Mr. Courtwright's talk was delivered in an informal, conversational tone, and did not present any profound philosophical or abstract ideas. It was a collection of notions, anecdotes and aphorisms developed from his varied experiences as Olympic athlete, oil company executive and university administrator. The audience was vitally interested in the speaker's comments, discussion occupying a longer time than the lecture itself. The question sparking the most controversy was whether advertising was good or bad and whether it controlled consumer behaviour or not.

Next Wednesday's "Last Lecture" will be delivered in MacNeil House Common Room at 7.15 pm by Dr. A.M. Taylor of Political Studies and Geographies.

Nursing nominations

President: Linda Eagleson
Vice President: Marg Reid
Secretary: Anne Skerl
Treasurer: Debbie Mills
Social Convenor: Barb MacNaughton

Kathy Paul
Jane Keane
Laurel Hawden
Susan MacDonald
Jenniffer Allan
Mary Nollis

VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S

VAN'S GIFTS and BOOKS

282 Princess St.
KINGSTON 542-6676

Van's Fabulous February Super Specials
Original Handcut grade "A" leather belts which will last you a life time!
Regular $20.00 AT VAN'S $14.95
Handcrafted Turkish Meerchaum Pipes Regular $35.00 AT VAN'S $11.95
15 Flavours in 2 - 4 - 8 oz. size "McBaren's" Mild tobacco's ALL SPECIAL PRICED AT VAN'S

STORE HOURS OPEN	Mon.-Fri. 9:30 am - 10 pm Saturday 9:30 am - 9 pm Sunday 12:00 noon - 9 pm
------------------	--

VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S VAN'S

A-Mess

by M. D. McClelland

Feb. 6

This meeting of the AMS Outer Council began at 6:30 and finally was adjourned at midnight. During the meeting, 22 motions crossed the Speaker's table and once more the more vocal members were given the chance to spout, and the drowsy were lulled into silence.

The report of the committee to study the position of the AMS and the Housing Committee was presented to Council. The report recommended that the "Housing Committee retains its present status and formation"; however, unless certain measures are taken to reduce risk, the Housing Agreement may not be renewed.

In the agreement, the AMS leases houses from the university and then in turn leases them to the student. One recommendation was of main concern to Council: it recommended changing the budgeting policy to a break-even policy, and establishing a "permanent contingency of half a month's total rents." Although Council approved this measure, it frowned on the measure to investigate the "possibility of including a clause in the tenant's lease for increased rents in the event of unexpected increases in the cost of oil. Law Society Pres. Joe Cornacchia, insisted that such action would make the AMS look like "slum landlords". Council overruled the inclusion of this clause in the lease.

Alderman Keith Norton, who attended the meeting, cast some light on the housing crisis which now menaces Queen's. Norton said that an area north of the main campus has been designated for building. "The city is willing to co-operate in terms of changing zoning in certain areas and approaching different levels of government for financial support", asserted Norton. His statements were part of a debate centering on another type of housing report presented to Council. This particular report was the result of an AMS committee's investigations into the Kingston housing squeeze. It was criticized for failing to suggest both long term and short term solutions to the shortage. Campus Activities Commissioner Bob Wood condemned the report as "myopic" while ASUS Pres. Sue Harper, accused it of failing to answer the immediate question of "what are we going to do next fall." The report was sent back for renovations by the committee.

Considerable debate arose over a hike in wage for the Chief Constable to $3.25, per hour from $3.15 per hour for the Deputy Chief, and from $3.00 for the sergeants. The wages were raised approximately 25c. When Council split their decision on whether to raise the salaries, "conflict of interest" was suggested as Speaker Ian Nordheimer exercised his tie-breaking vote to decide the issue. The wages were raised, and Nordheimer, former Chief constable, denied any conflict of interest.

A motion by Marv Bloos to adopt "four children in a developing country under one of the reputable adoption schemes" was passed by Council. The cost per child cited by Bloos was $204 each year. Rector Bruce Trotter warned that adopting these children was "a long term commitment and that you just can't opt out one year and opt in again the next."

Also highlighting the meeting was the presentation of the not yet infamous P.E.D. report. Peter Eric Druxer's "potential solution to the AMS political decline". In the report, he advocates several actions including the positioning of the Vice-President, Operations as the President of the AMS Board of Directors, and abolition of Outer Council from any financial duties. "Ego trip" was IRC Chairman Brian Copeland's only comment.

Vote NO on Referenda 4a and 4b

Faculty of Arts and Science Spring Convocation

If you expect to graduate on May 31, 1975, please make sure that your name is included on the degree list in the Arts and Science Faculty Office.

Unless this is done you run the risk of having your name omitted from the final official list.

A.M.S. PAGE

A.M.S. Bus Service SAVES

Go Home For Reading Week!

Toronto - $6

Leave: Thurs. Feb. 13, Fri. Feb. 14

Montreal - $7

(Dorval, Downtown) Leave: Fri., Feb. 14

Ottawa - $5

Leave: Fri., Feb. 14

One Way Tickets Only

Return:

Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa - Sun., Feb. 23
7:30 p.m.

Prices same as above.

Tickets:

John Orr Room - Wed. 11:30-1:00

Thur., Fri. 10:30-4:00

Meal Lines - Wed., Thur. 4:30-6:00

WHAT WOULD YOU
SAY?

IF IT WERE YOUR LAST OPPORTUNITY TO ADDRESS MANKIND
WHAT WOULD YOU SAY?

"THE LAST LECTURE SERIES"

is a series of informal evenings combining listening and discussion

Wed., Feb. 12

A. M. Taylor

Political Science
Geography

Topic: From Turbulence to Tranquility

Everyone Welcome

TIME: 7:15 p.m. - McNEIL COMMON HOUSE
CO-SPONSORED BY AMS ED. COMM. AND I.R.C.

Take Part in Canada's "PARTICIPATION" Fitness Program

Jog To The Gym And Vote

WANTED

A Member-At-Large
2 Student Appointees.

Women's

Intercollegiate Athletics Committee

Anyone (student or faculty) interested in participating in an athletic committee in an administrative way is asked to submit applications to:

Mrs. Joan Knight, Secretary,
Athletics Office,
Physical Education Centre.

Prerequisites: Student appointees must have had one year (or season) experience as a member of an intercollegiate team.

Term of office: 2 years starting in Sept. '75.

Meetings: 1 monthly.

Applications should include name, faculty, year, intercollegiate sport experience and reason for desiring a position on the W.I.A.C.

Last date to apply: Friday, February 14, 1975

The Queen's Debating Union Presents

The First Pub Debate

"Resolved that you haven't had enough until you've had too much."

Wed. Feb. 12

8:30 p.m.

Wallace Hall

Audience Participation Welcome

Alternative Information

On social and political concerns:

Native Rights, Women's groups,
Socialist Alternatives, China,
Environment, etc.

S.C.M. Book/Magazine Room

Weekday Afternoons

(Student's Union Basement)

Notice

To all campus groups who have been allocated funds by the A.M.S. Education Commission:

All invoices to be paid must be submitted to the Commissioner prior to March 1, 1975. Written notice of expenditures to occur after March 1st must also be submitted by this date, otherwise these payments cannot be made.

The Greening of Queen's

by Jim Dawson

In these days of spiralling costs and threats of even further cuts in government spending, it might seem difficult to justify fund-raising projects such as Project Green. Fears of larger classes, less equipment and poorer quality teaching are very justifiably higher up on the list of students' priorities.

However Project Green is attempting to raise funds to supplement the landscape budget which comes under the government's university building budget not related to the funds supplied to the University to maintain and equip the buildings and pay salaries. Therefore Project Green cannot be looked at as being in competition for funds in any way.

More importantly Project Green is waging a battle for the aesthetic value of the old, traditional style Queen's Campus. Building costs have forced even us here at Queen's to abandon the beloved limestone structures for the sombre concrete building materials. This dull grey is spreading over campus and has become alarmingly noticeable with the absence of trees. Of the 120 elm trees which were planted in the early 1900's (by a major student campaign) lining University Ave., Campus Drive, and Union St., only 4 are left standing!

These trees made Queen's campus famous for its beauty and was very much in keeping with its old style setting. We can see that every dollar spent now is simply priceless in the future, and to future generations of Queensmen. It is the traditional aspects of Queen's which set it apart from other universities, actions taken by earlier students affect us and actions we take now are very important to the future students. In this way, it is these unselfish traditions which help keep Queen's vital; no student on this campus today will ever use the University Centre and yet we are spending a great deal on completing it for future needs. In the same way, it is very important that we think of the future and initiate a large-scale replanting effort.

New Plan for Kingston-Grant Hall

There is a magnificent new plan which has been drawn up for the open space behind Kingston and Grant Halls. The plan calls for the elimination of the parking lot and the installation of an outdoor amphitheatre in its place. In addition to this a quadrangle is to be formed by a ring of trees surrounding the area bounded by University Ave., Grant Hall, Ontario Hall and the playing field. To accomplish this, the large concrete blocks now covering the area will be removed in an alternating pattern to make way for clumps of trees and grassy areas. Attractive benches and lighting will complete the new look.

Some of the trees funded by Project Green will be used in this quadrangle while other areas for which the trees are slated are MacIntosh-Corry and University Ave. While individual donations will be placed according to plans by landscape architect Emil Van der Meulen and the donors choice of location.

ABOVE: The latest plan from Project Green, showing the new look for the road from Union St. to the back of Theology. An eyesore since the death of its trees, the corridor is to be re-treed and landscaped.

RIGHT: This innovative plan for the Grant-Ontario courtyard is the first of a series of student projects envisioned by Project Green. Two groves of trees are to be planted by removing the concrete squares in an alternating fashion, and the removal of a parking lot, to form an amphitheatre.

Morio's Pizzeria and Spaghetti House
Pizza · Spaghetti · Lasagna · Ravioli
637 Princess Free delivery 549-4222

Artsci '76 Elections

position open for

President
Vice-President

Secretary
Treasurer

Athletic Stick
Publicity
Social Convenor

Nominations to be submitted before midnight Feb. 26th to the ASUS Office

Vote:

Thursday, Feb. 27th,
7:00 pm
Stirling Hall D.

AN ENGAGEMENT INVESTMENT IN BRILLIANCE

Popping that all important question leads to her all important diamond. Our staff of experts is ready to help you find the right diamond at the right price. Wisely you'll choose the finest engagement diamond - a dazzling investment that brings huge dividends - "happiness" for all her tomorrows.

KINNEAR D'ESTERRE
JEWELLERS
168 PRINCESS STREET
KINGSTON, ONTARIO

classifieds

More on Page 8

Housingwise

TO SUBLET - two bedroom apartment in Elfrond. Large kitchen, living room, balcony with view, underground parking. Close to campus and downtown. Rent negotiable. Available May-Aug. Phone 544-2618.

QUICK - Phone 544-7737; 544-7738 or 544-7739. If you have a three or four bedroom apartment to get rid of, NAME YOUR REWARD! (Then we'll name ours.)

First Class tenants need a 4.5 man house for 75-76. References available and a generous reward to boot. Phone 544-7047.

Furnished Bright 2-bedroom apartment close to West Campus with easy transportation to all parts of Kingston. Available from May 1, 1975 with possible option to take over lease in September. Parking, Laundry and all utilities included in rent. 544-6528.

TO SUBLET - One bedroom furnished

apl near Queen's May - Sept. Option on lease for Sept. Phone 542-4532 after 6:00.

We need a one-bedroom apartment for the summer, start May 1, 1975, and next year, very close to campus. If you can help please call 544-6896.

Available March 1: One bedroom apartment. Large balcony, excellent view, Elfrond College - 12th floor. Phone 542-2301, evenings.

Skeesh's sister is looking for a 2-bedroom apt. house for next year. Phone Susan at 544-4651 or Anne at 542-7533 if you can help.

Large modern two bedroom apartment with spacious livingroom and kitchen in complex on Markland Street to sublet May - Sept. Near bus routes. Phone Sue

2.3 man house, one block from campus in trade for 6 (Or more) man house. 544-2650.

Help! Residence life's a downer. A 2, 3, or bedroom place would pick us up greatly. If you're not needing it come May or Sept. Phone Kathy, 544-7238 or Carol 544-7859. Reward.

Engineering Society Elections

Candidates:

Vice President - Dave Boone
Dave Turnbull

Treasurer - Hadley Leipziger
Kim Sturgess

Secretary - Paula Luck
Charlie Murdoch

Development Committee Chairman
- Chris McNally
Tom Taylor

Services Control Comm. Chairman
- John Moreland
Jack Russell

Acclamations: President - Bruce Blair
Senator - Bob Turner

February 12 &amp; 13

9.00-5.00

Library

Union

Phys. Ed. Centre

9.30-2.30

Dupuis

Ellis

McLaughlin

Stirling

St. Lawrence Parks Commission
Summer Employment
at
Old Fort Henry
Kingston, Ontario.

as a member of the
Fort Henry Guard

Successful applicants will earn in excess of 4 dollars
per hour!

Application forms available at the placement office, corner of University and Union. Sign-ups for interviews begin on January 20 and campus interviews are being held on February 10 to 14.

Night class.

Black & White.
Enjoyed in over 168 countries.

Reach Out and Touch Her

Send the FTD

LOVEBUNDLE™

This Valentine's Week...
Reach Out and Touch
Her with flowers. A red satin heart. And a vial of FTD's exclusive Joie
de Fleur™ Perfume.
What could please her more? We'll send the LoveBundle almost anywhere by wire. But do hurry...

Valentine's Day is almost here. Call or visit us today.

The FTD LoveBundle $15.00

FLOWERS & THINGS

• 176 Ontario St. • Kingston • 544-2234

editorial

Referenda

made clear

On Wednesday and Thursday, students will be voting on two issues which will determine the future characters of both the AMS and the Queen's Journal. The decisions centre on increasing honoraria and the Journal levy.

A very serious problem is developing at the AMS and at the Journal in that the key positions are becoming too expensive for the average student to afford. In order to maintain a continuity in the running of services and governmental duties from one year to the next, it has become necessary that these officers devote their time during the summer months. The cost of residing in Kingston for the summer is roughly $500 due to food, housing and living expenses. Foregone job opportunity is but an additional setback.

The campus cannot expect the dedication of these few individuals to continue for much longer without some recognition of these personal costs. Indeed, an end to this dedication is foreseeable within three or four years given the current rate of inflation.

It must be understood that these positions, regardless of the worth of the persons occupying them, are time consuming almost to the point where they become full time jobs. We would venture opinion that at least 35-40 hours per week are devoted. Perhaps we have begun to take for granted the services we have created for ourselves. Typing, printing, photocopying, Journal, Who's Where, Tri-color, Bus-it, lectures, buildings, symposiums, clubs, concerts, dances, and constables are but a few of the aspects of campus life which could not function without the centralized direction of the AMS. These functions may run the pot in jeopardy by neglecting the students who will be the corporation.

Considering an increase in the Journal levy is a further issue up for vote which will affect the staff's working ability as well as the campus at large. Very simply, if the levy is not raised, the paper will be forced to carry a percentage of advertising in excess of the constitutional limit set by the AMS of 40 per cent. The general consensus has proven that too much advertising is already evident in the paper. The $1.50 increase would enable the paper to eliminate about 25 per cent of the ads presently carried while an increased levy to the $3 figure would enable an approximate 50 per cent reduction of ads.

A vote 'YES' on the referendum 1a which reads: "That the Queen's Journal student levy of $3.00 be increased", will enable this reduction of ads and thus allowing more room for written copy; - news, features, sports, etc.

Essentially, these referenda present an opportunity for students to determine not only whether they want an improved AMS and Journal, but whether they want an AMS and Journal at all.

A "YES" vote for referendum 1a and votes "NO" for referenda 4a and 4b will constitute support for the continued existence of the AMS and Journal. The Journal has not asked for an increase in the levy for 7 years nor has it asked for an increase in the honoraria for 33 years.

This year we ask for your support!

Queens Journal

Vol. 102, No. 37
Tues., Feb. 11, 1975
Queen's University

Editor-in-Chief - Suzanne Sherkin
Managing Editor - Dan McClelland
Business Manager - Terry Collins
News Editor - Sarah Yarnell
Assistant News Editor - Nancy Flood

Features Editors - Wendy Rey

Commentary - Laurie

W.R. ps. I love John Bortolomeo too. He's a sweetie.

Here's a helpful hint for all you jet setters and Irish Sellers:

Whenever (heaven forbid) you get bored, tired, or just plain

Fed up, jump hop over to MacCorry for a fun time. Word has it that

Sunday nights are especially fun and shill and once the excitement of the loam chairs passes you can always sit around and watch all sorts of people pretend to be keen. Of special interest to anyone making a tour of the place are the food machines with the neat and keen red sign that light

up and say "you lose sold out!" whenever, you put money or shill into the slot. Peter Drux should be so lucky to get machines like that in the 'House of Lords Pinball Emporium and Donal Slane.

Founded in 1873 and published on Tuesdays and Fridays during the academic year by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University, Inc.

incorporated, Kingston, Ontario. Founding member of Canadian University Press. Editorial opinions expressed are those of the editor and not necessarily those of the AMS nor the University. Telephone (613) 547

2606. Printed by printers of the St. Lawrence Printing Co. Ltd., Prescott, Ontario. Lithographed in USA on Canadian newsprint.

Notes: Laurie Gibson
Arts Editors - Kerry White, Peter
Haworth
Sports Editors and mascots - Lyn
Alwood, Suzanne Jackson
Photo Editor - Jon Willmer
Election Coverage - Bob Wood
Letters and stuff - Dave Colburn
Resident Genius - John Bortolomeo
Contributors and other down-
trodden, ill paid, unappreciated,
hard working, honest, loyal, and
generally all-round nice peoples
Leslie Gaukroger, Meg Boffin
Ivy, Anne Robertson, Jan Wager,
Fud, Alan Mann, Peter Watts
Commentary - Laurie: I love you and I miss you. have fun in Brockville
W.R. ps. I love John Bortolomeo too. He's a sweetie.

Here's a helpful hint for all you jet setters and Irish Sellers:

Whenever (heaven forbid) you get bored, tired, or just plain

Fed up, jump hop over to MacCorry for a fun time. Word has it that

Sunday nights are especially fun and shill and once the excitement of the

loam chairs passes you can always sit around and watch all sorts of people pretend to be keen. Of special interest to anyone making a tour of the place are the food machines with the neat and keen red sign that light

up and say "you lose sold out!" whenever, you put money or shill into the slot. Peter Drux should be so lucky to get machines like that in the 'House of Lords Pinball Emporium and Donal Slane.

Notes: Laurie Gibson
Arts Editors - Kerry White, Peter
Haworth
Sports Editors and mascots - Lyn
Alwood, Suzanne Jackson
Photo Editor - Jon Willmer
Election Coverage - Bob Wood
Letters and stuff - Dave Colburn
Resident Genius - John Bortolomeo
Contributors and other down-
trodden, ill paid, unappreciated,
hard working, honest, loyal, and
generally all-round nice peoples
Leslie Gaukroger, Meg Boffin
Ivy, Anne Robertson, Jan Wager,
Fud, Alan Mann, Peter Watts
Commentary - Laurie: I love you and I miss you. have fun in Brockville
W.R. ps. I love John Bortolomeo too. He's a sweetie.

Here's a helpful hint for all you jet setters and Irish Sellers:

Whenever (heaven forbid) you get bored, tired, or just plain

Fed up, jump hop over to MacCorry for a fun time. Word has it that

Sunday nights are especially fun and shill and once the excitement of the

loam chairs passes you can always sit around and watch all sorts of people pretend to be keen. Of special interest to anyone making a tour of the place are the food machines with the neat and keen red sign that light

up and say "you lose sold out!" whenever, you put money or shill into the slot. Peter Drux should be so lucky to get machines like that in the 'House of Lords Pinball Emporium and Donal Slane.

Notes: Laurie Gibson
Arts Editors - Kerry White, Peter
Haworth
Sports Editors and mascots - Lyn
Alwood, Suzanne Jackson
Photo Editor - Jon Willmer
Election Coverage - Bob Wood
Letters and stuff - Dave Colburn
Resident Genius - John Bortolomeo
Contributors and other down-
trodden, ill paid, unappreciated,
hard working, honest, loyal, and
generally all-round nice peoples
Leslie Gaukroger, Meg Boffin
Ivy, Anne Robertson, Jan Wager,
Fud, Alan Mann, Peter Watts
Commentary - Laurie: I love you and I miss you. have fun in Brockville
W.R. ps. I love John Bortolomeo too. He's a sweetie.

Here's a helpful hint for all you jet setters and Irish Sellers:

Whenever (heaven forbid) you get bored, tired, or just plain

Fed up, jump hop over to MacCorry for a fun time. Word has it that

Sunday nights are especially fun and shill and once the excitement of the

loam chairs passes you can always sit around and watch all sorts of people pretend to be keen. Of special interest to anyone making a tour of the place are the food machines with the neat and keen red sign that light

up and say "you lose sold out!" whenever, you put money or shill into the slot. Peter Drux should be so lucky to get machines like that in the 'House of Lords Pinball Emporium and Donal Slane.

Notes: Laurie Gibson
Arts Editors - Kerry White, Peter
Haworth
Sports Editors and mascots - Lyn
Alwood, Suzanne Jackson
Photo Editor - Jon Willmer
Election Coverage - Bob Wood
Letters and stuff - Dave Colburn
Resident Genius - John Bortolomeo
Contributors and other down-
trodden, ill paid, unappreciated,
hard working, honest, loyal, and
generally all-round nice peoples
Leslie Gaukroger, Meg Boffin
Ivy, Anne Robertson, Jan Wager,
Fud, Alan Mann, Peter Watts
Commentary - Laurie: I love you and I miss you. have fun in Brockville
W.R. ps. I love John Bortolomeo too. He's a sweetie.

Here's a helpful hint for all you jet setters and Irish Sellers:

Whenever (heaven forbid) you get bored, tired, or just plain

Fed up, jump hop over to MacCorry for a fun time. Word has it that

Sunday nights are especially fun and shill and once the excitement of the

loam chairs passes you can always sit around and watch all sorts of people pretend to be keen. Of special interest to anyone making a tour of the place are the food machines with the neat and keen red sign that light

up and say "you lose sold out!" whenever, you put money or shill into the slot. Peter Drux should be so lucky to get machines like that in the 'House of Lords Pinball Emporium and Donal Slane.

Notes: Laurie Gibson
Arts Editors - Kerry White, Peter
Haworth
Sports Editors and mascots - Lyn
Alwood, Suzanne Jackson
Photo Editor - Jon Willmer
Election Coverage - Bob Wood
Letters and stuff - Dave Colburn
Resident Genius - John Bortolomeo
Contributors and other down-
trodden, ill paid, unappreciated,
hard working, honest, loyal, and
generally all-round nice peoples
Leslie Gaukroger, Meg Boffin
Ivy, Anne Robertson, Jan Wager,
Fud, Alan Mann, Peter Watts
Commentary - Laurie: I love you and I miss you. have fun in Brockville
W.R. ps. I love John Bortolomeo too. He's a sweetie.

Here's a helpful hint for all you jet setters and Irish Sellers:

Whenever (heaven forbid) you get bored, tired, or just plain

Fed up, jump hop over to MacCorry for a fun time. Word has it that

Sunday nights are especially fun and shill and once the excitement of the

loam chairs passes you can always sit around and watch all sorts of people pretend to be keen. Of special interest to anyone making a tour of the place are the food machines with the neat and keen red sign that light

up and say "you lose sold out!" whenever, you put money or shill into the slot. Peter Drux should be so lucky to get machines like that in the 'House of Lords Pinball Emporium and Donal Slane.

Notes: Laurie Gibson
Arts Editors - Kerry White, Peter
Haworth
Sports Editors and mascots - Lyn
Alwood, Suzanne Jackson
Photo Editor - Jon Willmer
Election Coverage - Bob Wood
Letters and stuff - Dave Colburn
Resident Genius - John Bortolomeo
Contributors and other down-
trodden, ill paid, unappreciated,
hard working, honest, loyal, and
generally all-round nice peoples
Leslie Gaukroger, Meg Boffin
Ivy, Anne Robertson, Jan Wager,
Fud, Alan Mann, Peter Watts
Commentary - Laurie: I love you and I miss you. have fun in Brockville
W.R. ps. I love John Bortolomeo too. He's a sweetie.

Here's a helpful hint for all you jet setters and Irish Sellers:

Whenever (heaven forbid) you get bored, tired, or just plain

Fed up, jump hop over to MacCorry for a fun time. Word has it that

Sunday nights are especially fun and shill and once the excitement of the

loam chairs passes you can always sit around and watch all sorts of people pretend to be keen. Of special interest to anyone making a tour of the place are the food machines with the neat and keen red sign that light

up and say "you lose sold out!" whenever, you put money or shill into the slot. Peter Drux should be so lucky to get machines like that in the 'House of Lords Pinball Emporium and Donal Slane.

Notes: Laurie Gibson
Arts Editors - Kerry White, Peter
Haworth
Sports Editors and mascots - Lyn
Alwood, Suzanne Jackson
Photo Editor - Jon Willmer
Election Coverage - Bob Wood
Letters and stuff - Dave Colburn
Resident Genius - John Bortolomeo
Contributors and other down-
trodden, ill paid, unappreciated,
hard working, honest, loyal, and
generally all-round nice peoples
Leslie Gaukroger, Meg Boffin
Ivy, Anne Robertson, Jan Wager,
Fud, Alan Mann, Peter Watts
Commentary - Laurie: I love you and I miss you. have fun in Brockville
W.R. ps. I love John Bortolomeo too. He's a sweetie.

Here's a helpful hint for all you jet setters and Irish Sellers:

Whenever (heaven forbid) you get bored, tired, or just plain

Fed up, jump hop over to MacCorry for a fun time. Word has it that

Sunday nights are especially fun and shill and once the excitement of the

loam chairs passes you can always sit around and watch all sorts of people pretend to be keen. Of special interest to anyone making a tour of the place are the food machines with the neat and keen red sign that light

up and say "you lose sold out!" whenever, you put money or shill into the slot. Peter Drux should be so lucky to get machines like that in the 'House of Lords Pinball Emporium and Donal Slane.

Notes: Laurie Gibson
Arts Editors - Kerry White, Peter
Haworth
Sports Editors and mascots - Lyn
Alwood, Suzanne Jackson
Photo Editor - Jon Willmer
Election Coverage - Bob Wood
Letters and stuff - Dave Colburn
Resident Genius - John Bortolomeo
Contributors and other down-
trodden, ill paid, unappreciated,
hard working, honest, loyal, and
generally all-round nice peoples
Leslie Gaukroger, Meg Boffin
Ivy, Anne Robertson, Jan Wager,
Fud, Alan Mann, Peter Watts
Commentary - Laurie: I love you and I miss you. have fun in Brockville
W.R. ps. I love John Bortolomeo too. He's a sweetie.

Here's a helpful hint for all you jet setters and Irish Sellers:

Whenever (heaven forbid) you get bored, tired, or just plain

Fed up, jump hop over to MacCorry for a fun time. Word has it that

Sunday nights are especially fun and shill and once the excitement of the

loam chairs passes you can always sit around and watch all sorts of people pretend to be keen. Of special interest to anyone making a tour of the place are the food machines with the neat and keen red sign that light

up and say "you lose sold out!" whenever, you put money or shill into the slot. Peter Drux should be so lucky to get machines like that in the 'House of Lords Pinball Emporium and Donal Slane.

Notes: Laurie Gibson
Arts Editors - Kerry White, Peter
Haworth
Sports Editors and mascots - Lyn
Alwood, Suzanne Jackson
Photo Editor - Jon Willmer
Election Coverage - Bob Wood
Letters and stuff - Dave Colburn
Resident Genius - John Bortolomeo
Contributors and other down-
trodden, ill paid, unappreciated,
hard working, honest, loyal, and
generally all-round nice peoples
Leslie Gaukroger, Meg Boffin
Ivy, Anne Robertson, Jan Wager,
Fud, Alan Mann, Peter Watts
Commentary - Laurie: I love you and I miss you. have fun in Brockville
W.R. ps. I love John Bortolomeo too. He's a sweetie.

Here's a helpful hint for all you jet setters and Irish Sellers:

Whenever (heaven forbid) you get bored, tired, or just plain

Fed up, jump hop over to MacCorry for a fun time. Word has it that

Sunday nights are especially fun and shill and once the excitement of the

loam chairs passes you can always sit around and watch all sorts of people pretend to be keen. Of special interest to anyone making a tour of the place are the food machines with the neat and keen red sign that light

up and say "you lose sold out!" whenever, you put money or shill into the slot. Peter Drux should be so lucky to get machines like that in the 'House of Lords Pinball Emporium and Donal Slane.

Notes: Laurie Gibson
Arts Editors - Kerry White, Peter
Haworth
Sports Editors and mascots - Lyn
Alwood, Suzanne Jackson
Photo Editor - Jon Willmer
Election Coverage - Bob Wood
Letters and stuff - Dave Colburn
Resident Genius - John Bortolomeo
Contributors and other down-
trodden, ill paid, unappreciated,
hard working, honest, loyal, and
generally all-round nice peoples
Leslie Gaukroger, Meg Boffin
Ivy, Anne Robertson, Jan Wager,
Fud, Alan Mann, Peter Watts
Commentary - Laurie: I love you and I miss you. have fun in Brockville
W.R. ps. I love John Bortolomeo too. He's a sweetie.

Here's a helpful hint for all you jet setters and Irish Sellers:

Whenever (heaven forbid) you get bored, tired, or just plain

Fed up, jump hop over to MacCorry for a fun time. Word has it that

Sunday nights are especially fun and shill and once the excitement of the

loam chairs passes you can always sit around and watch all sorts of people pretend to be keen. Of special interest to anyone making a tour of the place are the food machines with the neat and keen red sign that light

up and say "you lose sold out!" whenever, you put money or shill into the slot. Peter Drux should be so lucky to get machines like that in the 'House of Lords Pinball Emporium and Donal Slane.

Notes: Laurie Gibson
Arts Editors - Kerry White, Peter
Haworth
Sports Editors and mascots - Lyn
Alwood, Suzanne Jackson
Photo Editor - Jon Willmer
Election Coverage - Bob Wood
Letters and stuff - Dave Colburn
Resident Genius - John Bortolomeo
Contributors and other down-
trodden, ill paid, unappreciated,
hard working, honest, loyal, and
generally all-round nice peoples
Leslie Gaukroger, Meg Boffin
Ivy, Anne Robertson, Jan Wager,
Fud, Alan Mann, Peter Watts
Commentary - Laurie: I love you and I miss you. have fun in Brockville
W.R. ps. I love John Bortolomeo too. He's a sweetie.

Here's a helpful

classifieds

More on Page 6

Otherwise

WANTED: One witty, jack-talented & understanding member of the male species for one quiet, retiring, man-tolerant, jockette. Special skills: a) bed-making b) body-massaging c) cooking (her specialty is banana bread). Interested applicants phone 544-8016 and ask for Shirli.

BITTER GROUND offers the best in live entertainment. Saturday Feb. 8. It will be the unique sound of Colleen Peterson. Admission is $1.50. Tickets available till 4:30 in the John Orr Room and at the door. Doors open around 8:00.

DEAR JDANNA W. (No. 9). We cannot hold back our emotions any longer. You are the candlelight and wine of Leonard Cafeteria and we are madly in love with you. Till death do us part. Second Leonard.

GUITAR FOR SALE: Immaculate condition Gibson Hollowbody ES335TD. List Price, with hard shell case, is $850 new. Must sell $350. Call 544-6490.

GAIL GROUP 52 - It's reunion time again, this Thursday evening in the Pub (Wallace). Bring a friend too. Contact Richard, Rena or Broek. We still love you. See you there!

Graduating from Engineering and want to sell your size 40-44 leather jacket? I would like to buy it by the end of this term. Phone Geoff at 544-7094.

LDST: A ring of 7 keys with a red plastic identifier advertising Stage Coach Inn.

"Friend of the Fur", please call 544-7423 after 4:30. The Kingston Humane Society would like to contact you.

Brooks Wilson Baby: you've got a good body and a banana bread recipe. Why not bake some for ME?

PUBLIC NOTICE: All points bulletin: Taylor alias the "Gronk" comes of age today. Will somebody please wish him a "Happy Birthday", and buy him his first drink. His friends.

Those interested in trying out for the Queen's Intercollegiate Table Tennis Team, please leave your name and phone number in the recreational office of PHE complex.

PRISONERS working on a research project on youthful offenders need volunteers to be their arms and legs in the community; also needed are two typists for one afternoon a week for letters, bulletins and reports. For more information call 542-9151. Or write John D. Prince CYP Collins Bay Institution, Box 190, Kingston. WE NEED YOU.

Bitler Grounds Collee House and Good Times Emporium presents Colleen Peterson, Saturday Feb. 8. Admission is $1.50 and tickets are available till 4:30 Friday in the John Orr room and at the door.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY GRANT. Mala W. The consciously beautiful woman of Vic Hall is celebrating a birthday today. Her natal hour was 4 AM but call her now. ALL best wishes from sundry and/or assorted well wishers, friends & acquaintances.

WANTED (Last Saturday in April): Strippers for buddies stag fees negotiable; must be clean, female and under thirty. This is not a joke! For interviews please call 544-7337, 544-2013, 542-6796.

Sleigh Rides: Make up a party & have some winter fun. You will ride in a 2 horse sleigh around Valhalla's BUFFALO PARK. phone for reservations 392-2327. Valhalla Riding School, HWY. 3, Gananoque, Ont.

Lost last Thursday night in Wallace Hall Queen's pinkie ring. If found, please call 544-8405 or 544-8320. I can't write my exams without it. Friday night my boyfriend and I were walking past Ellis and someone stopped us and gave us their tickets to Shanana WITHOUT ANY CHARGE. We don't know who you are but thank you, thank you very much.

Bitler Grounds Collee House and Good Times Emporium is the only source of weekly live entertainment on campus. This weekend it is the incomparable Colleen Peterson. Admission is $1.50 and tickets are available till 4:30 Friday in the John Orr Room and at the door.

RECYCLE YOUR BOOKS AND RECORDS: We sell records on consignment; that is, you get $1.50 for every one of your records that sell. Needless to say, good rock, blues, jazz, folk records sell-out quickly. We also have unpleen used books for sale. The Book Bin, 223 Princess, 548-4871.

NEED PASSPORT DR JDB APPLICATION PHOTOGRAPHS? Photo image offers complete photographic coverage tailored to your individual needs, from as little as $90. For further information call us at 544-7779 or visit our studio at 33 Brock St. and see the photographs we have done for others.

There will be no bananas for me. I reiterate that is, NO BANANAS for ... Brooks Wilson.

SKI MT. SUTTON AND MT. DREFOUD in the same weekend: March 7, 8, 9. The Queen's Ski Club's going for its last BIG trip of the season. Transportation, Tows and Condominium Accommodation are included for $25, on sale this Wednesday, Feb. 12th, 1PM, in the John Orr Room.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY SMOOKS! To the person who stole my watch from my locker in the PHE centre, Wed. Feb. 5 anonymity and $50 for its return. Phone 544-0487 to give your choice of exchange.

SPDNER: HAPPY 21st. Just keep Rocking on! We plan to join you, Love the rest of the girls.

Housingwise

Wanted a 1-bedroom apartment for '75-76 school year, for May 1st. Call Jan or Greg at 544-4864.

Roommate needed for a large 2 bedroom apartment on campus, preferably a grad student. Call Michael J. Carley at 542-4403 or see in John Watson Hall office no. 105.

Summer Sublet: extra large 2 bedroom, (suitable for 3), extra low rent, clean, modern and near all conveniences including campus. Possible takeover in the future; and no lease for the next year. Call Gerry 544-7104.

Sublet - May 1 to Aug. 1. Option to lease, 2 bedroom Apt. close to campus. Phone 546-2108.

Needed: 2 bedroom apartment near campus if you have any please contact 544-8343 or 544-8345.

Summer sublet starting May with option to rent starting September 1, 1975. One bedroom. Rent $150. Phone 544-4379. Fantastic view!

CHEAP: Room for rent in a 5-man house one block from main campus. Now till end of May. Call Steve 549-4252.

Find us a house. We will pay 15 dollars per bedroom for a 5 to 7 man house. Call Mike 544-7392 or Rob 544-7390.

Need a place to stay this summer? Rent our apartment. May to August. Best view in Kingston, 15th floor. Fully furnished with piano. Rent negotiable. Call 542-2518 after 4:30 PM.

Houses and Apartments available to Queen's students through the AMS Housing Lottery Wed Feb 26. See details page 201.

THE BEARCAT HIMSELF and all the rest of the boys at CARL'S CHEVY CITY agree that there is no better deal in town than the 12th floor apartment in Elfrond. In fact, he's willing to personally endorse a $200 rebate to the smart buyer who is willing to rent a spacious 2 bedroom apt. with stove, refrigerator, 2 tone TV, balcony and easy access to a tropical sauna during the summer. Don't delay. Call 549-4142.

sweven is coming . . .

with a little help from our friends please

Dons Warden and Senior Residents for University Residences, 1975-76

Positions as dons, wardens, and senior residents are available to persons who are interested in helping to create the best possible environments in the men's, women's, and co-ed residences. Applications for these positions are now being accepted from senior students and teaching staff.

These persons will be expected to share their interests and the benefit of their experience on an individual level with students, and, as well, to contribute to the intellectual and cultural life of the residences, and to help new students familiarize themselves with the facilities of the campus. Queen's residences are regarded as an integral part of the University, and life within them as part of the educational process.

One or two persons familiar with French language and customs, and another one or two able to host musical and dramatic events will be especially welcomed.

Persons will be appointed to their positions by the residences boards, and will be accommodated in the residences. Initial inquiries should be directed to the Office of the Dean of Women, Victoria Hall, 547-6109.

Molson Export Ale.

Great.

Because it keeps on tasting great.

That extra cup of coffee may be doing you in

...Drug Counselling Centre deals with the problem of a vicious circle of drug after drug during the day

by Azim Mohamed

It's a small office in the attic of the "grey house". Sparsely furnished, it takes on a clinical look, sporting a large bulletin board holding yellowing cut outs and notices. Leaning on a wall is a small shelf exhibiting an array of meticulously aligned pamphlets of various colours.

Ian McCloud, a small man sporting a heavy East European mustache, runs the office. The office is the Drug Counselling Centre located in the Student Affairs Centre in the "grey house", 51 Queen's Crescent.

Although drug addiction has become a prominent problem in society, Queen's did not have a drug counselling centre as such. Various counselling services on campus handled many of the chronic addiction problems. However there did exist a Drug Centre in Kingston on Wellington St. The Centre was funded by an L.I.P. grant and when the grant was not renewed, the Centre closed. "It was introduced as a drop-in centre for students who were working there for the last nine months of its operation. McCloud was interested in bringing a centre on campus, having worked at centres in the west, particularly one at the University of Manitoba.

Presently he is working on a very tight budget and in "a disadvantageous location." He would very much like his centre to be in the Student Union Building where he says a lot of people pass in pursuing their daily activities. Funding the centre is one of his major problems. Since the centre is running on a $300 budget, which is obviously not sufficient. He is in the process of trying to attain a more reliable source of funding the centre so that he would be instrumental in improving his centre.

Despite the handicap of location and crippled finances, the centre is very active, with the help of a handful of volunteers. The centre deals basically with the so-called "heavy" drugs. In a recent survey, it was found that the most used drugs in this country were, in order, alcohol, pills and marijuana.

"Our attitudes to drinking alcohol are compounded of absurd puritanism and orgiastic over-indulgence. By the use of the word 'absurd', I am not necessarily implying that alcohol is a good thing. Although considered a stimulant, it is in fact a depressant and it is well-known that even in mild excess, it may cause people to behave aggressively or even savage manners. It is also a major contributing cause of a variety of accidents," contends McCloud.

Restriiction of its use by having "licensing laws" is a farce, for it is counter-balanced by a giant industry, tremendous advertising campaigns and of course, large government revenues. However, the concern of the centre is not with the rights and wrongs of this situation, but with the resulting social mores. So extensively have our social lives been constructed around alcohol, says McCloud, that "it is a sad comment that a habit that is not one of man's biological needs has become so seemingly natural that it takes courage to reject it."

Most parties are geared to alcohol; nearly all "smokers" are inundated with it. Tentacles of misinformation about alcohol and its effects have clung to us. It is increasingly difficult to refuse to conform to what is certainly not necessary nor beneficial. It is sad to think that so many people are introduced to alcohol by group pressure, and such is particularly true in the high school group. One of the many after-effects of the lowering of the legal drinking age to 18, has been that many people who are younger have a better chance of getting their hands on alcohol. Also the senior students to high schools are about 18 years old and are looked up to by the younger group. Peer group pressure has been instrumental in introducing the younger high school group to alcohol.

A recent survey out of Toronto indicates that 2 percent of 16 year olds surveyed are already alcoholics, and that 75 percent of those surveyed had been drinking alcohol in some form or another. The result of this of course is that many of the students at universities have been addicted to alcohol and are in fact, alcoholics, although they refuse to see it this way. So many of us are branded with the image of a rubby in a gutter with a bottle of cheap wine being an alcoholic. Not so these days. Alcoholics are defined as people whose personality and daily activities are interfered with by alcohol in some way.

Then there are those people that drink alcohol because of pressures other than that of peer groups. They indulge apparently to drown their sorrows. Like many drugs, alcohol can seem to be a necessity. "I can't unwind at the end of the day's work until I have a couple of drinks." Although it may not necessarily be true, it can quickly become so through psychological accustoming. The social position of alcohol will do the rest. People then begin to find it difficult to meet and talk to other people except over a drink. If a protest is made over the dangers of alcohol to the body, the answer normally is something like, "I know, but if I have to choose between being a nervous wreck and cirrhosis of the liver, I choose the latter."

The example cited above does not necessarily apply directly to students at university but surely it is an indication of the inevitable problems that one might have to face later if a dependence of alcohol develops now. With that in mind, McCloud and his crew of volunteers deliver lectures and talks about the problems of drugs to school children in the community, going as low as the sixth grade.

We as the consumer are constantly being bombarded with a barrage of ads that seem to solve all our problems. "Take product A for this and product B for that" is very common, so much so that without even the slightest thought one reaches for the pills because one detects a slight pain in the head or back. Lately many ads, especially on television have little flash-on titles indicating, "take only as directed." Too late however for the many who have already addicted themselves to Alka-Seltzer, Bufferin, 22's, and so on. The caution on the realization that these drugs are potent, and only if used properly, add the problem for which they were intended. Abuse results in the alteration of body chemistry, and unnecessary use altogether is extremely dangerous.

The misuse of pills is mainly in the field in the so-called "uppers" and "downers." A lot of students use them carelessly. Examine a daily occurrence. One gets up in the morning, and drinks coffee to wake up, and continues to drink coffee at lunch, between classes, and again at dinner. The potency of coffee is inherent in the caffeine which has by now built up in the body hampering body chemistry from normal functioning. With this build-up, one may feel dizzy or nervous and so in the evening, one chugs down a beer or two to calm down and relax. With the caffeine in the body, sleep is very difficult and so out comes a "downer" or sleeping pill. The result is that one is riding a vicious circle of drug after drug during the course of a day. Next morning, recovering from the effect of the sleeping pill, one, to the great North American tradition, brews a cup of coffee, which has just started the wheel rolling once more. The situation may not be so extreme for many students, but it presents a rather grim picture of what is already happening to many people in our society.

With these drugs, many rely on the attitude that admits some harm but which pretends that greater suffering would result from abstinence. When we come to the narcotics, a different and more emotional state reigns in both sides. Many believe that drugs, especially hard drugs, would result in the destruction of our society. Others believe that soft drugs are actually less harmful than tobacco or alcohol. The case here is that there are a lot of opinions in a field where so very little research has been done.

Basically all drugs, from tranquilizers to heroin, are bad in the sense that they only provide a temporary escape from a given situation and by the nature of their effects, ever-increasing doses are required to remain effective. To encourage or persuade people to start on them is almost criminal since a normal person has no need for them, at least based on present medical knowledge. To conform to the habit of smoking simply because it is favourable to do so among the people one associates with, must surely be admitted rather stupid.

The Drug Centre looks at the over-use and abuse of these drugs as a symptom of an underlying problem and is normally successful in determining the problem, thus considerably reducing the use of that drug, in the individual.

Because people are referred to the Centre from the Family Court, Children's Aid Society and other social agencies, the counselling is done over a long period of time and thus requires the presence of professional people to carry out the work effectively. This is limited because of the lack of adequate finances. Nonetheless Centre representatives still go out and lecture the community regarding the ill-effects of various drugs, particularly alcohol. Hopefully, the Centre will be able to hire some professional people after the improvement in their financial situation so that active counselling can be made more available.

In conclusion one has to admit that a majority of people divulge their interests to various drugs especially alcohol and marijuana because of social pressures. "They threaten to form our tastes for us and with a sense of being deprived if we resist or cannot afford them. We can only resist these pressures by acknowledging that they exist and that they are dangerous."

John Bottomley

ALMA MATER SOCIETY OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY,

REFERENDA

Feb. 12 and 13, 1975

1 a) THAT THE QUEEN'S JOURNAL STUDENT LEVY OF THREE (3) DOLLARS BE INCREASED

YES ☐ NO ☐b) IF YES, BY ONE DOLLAR FIFTY CENTS ($1.50) ☐BY THREE DOLLARS ($3.00) ☐

2) SHALL THE MBA STUDENTS' SOCIETY BE RECOGNIZED AS A MEMBER SOCIETY OF THE A.M.S.

YES ☐ NO ☐

3) SHALL THE STUDENT PORTION FOR BUS-IT BE INCREASED FROM $3.00 TO $4.50

YES ☐ NO ☐

4 a) THAT BY LAW NO. 8, SECTION B, DEALING WITH THE HONOURARIA PAID TO VOLUNTEERS OF THE A.M.S. REMAIN AS FORMALLY STATED IN THE CONSTITUTION EFFECTIVE SEPT. 1, 1974.

YES ☐ NO ☐

b) THAT ANY CHANGES TO THIS BY-LAW MUST BE EFFECTED THROUGH ANOTHER REFERENDUM

YES ☐ NO ☐

5) SHALL PROJECT GREEN BE GRANTED A STUDENT LEVY OF $1.00 FOR THE NEXT 5 YEARS

YES ☐ NO ☐

POLLING STATIONS

Douglas Library

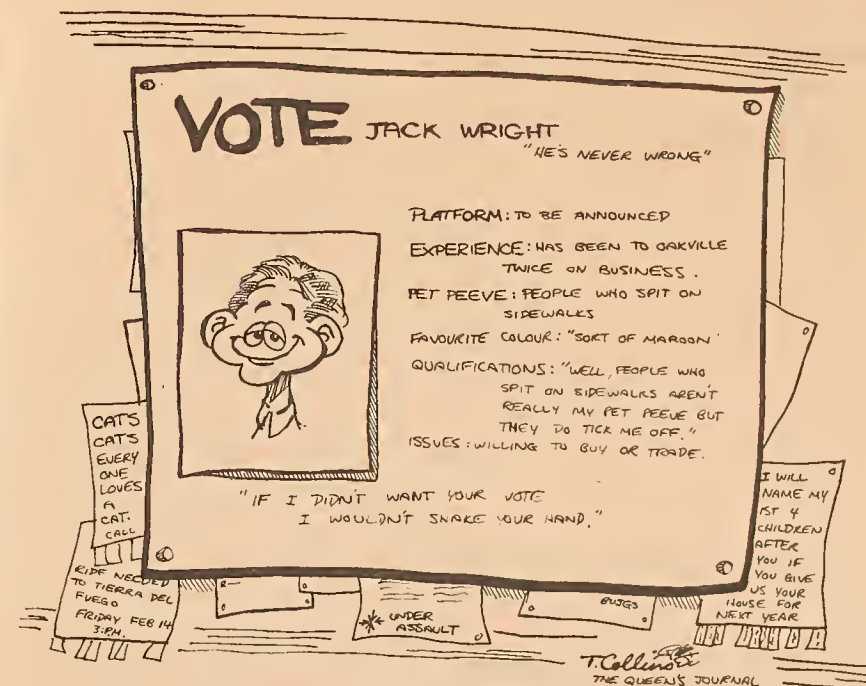

Student's Union

Phys. Ed. Center

Feb. 12, 13

9:00 A.M.

5:00 P.M.

The
"election fever"
issue

GSS

all posts filled in Graduate Student Society

Peter McVetty
Graduate Students' Society
Secretary (Acclaimed)

I would first of all like to thank my nominator, Miss Katy Bindon, for my nomination, and the graduate students present at the annual general meeting of the G.S.S. for my acclamation as secretary of the Society for 1975. I look forward with pleasure to working with my fellow members of the Graduate Students Society Executive, the Graduate Students Council, and the graduate students at Queen's. I will make every attempt to fulfill the responsibilities and duties of my position in a manner which will justify the faith and trust placed in me by my fellow graduate students. I sincerely hope that my fellow graduate students, as members of the Graduate Students Society, will also fulfill their responsibilities and duties, and in so doing make my job meaningful and rewarding.

Arthur Whetstone
Graduate Students Society
Vice-President

Next year, the main issue will be whether or not there will be an increase in tuition fees in 1976-77. Principal Watts has expended great energy to reduce the present AMS government (and anyone else who would listen) to support such increases. Watts speaks of "budgeted" deficit, what will the real "deficit" be? He claims that the quality of education will decline unless there is more money. If the quality of education does decline it is because of a misdirection of funds and not because of a lack of funds. I am not convinced by Principal Watts' oft repeated arguments; don't you be sucked in either. Support myself and the Graduate Students Society in our attempt to prevent an increase in tuition fees. Vote only for those candidates who are opposed to increased fees.

Andy Daugulis

Ph. D. student in Chemical Engineering
Yes, even university students have the potential to lead in the re-examination of our present social, political and economic structures. The passive role of students as absorbers of information must be re-evaluated in terms of the active responsibilities which they can assume. Active non-participation in an "ivory tower" environment inevitably leads to complacency rather than to concerned awareness. This situation can be changed.

Doug Bates
Treasurer, G.S.S.

I agreed to stand for this position, not because I felt that I had original insights into future fiscal directions for the G.S.S., but more so that I could become actively involved in the G.S.S. I do feel, however, that I can perform the duties of Treasurer competently. At present, the G.S.S. is financially capable of becoming less conservative in spending and I hope that I can be a creative force in establishing a new direction.

Brian Barry GSS AMS Rep

Let me first mention by way of introduction that I am in the second year of a Master's program in mathematics. I should also point out that my nomination for Graduate Student's AMS representative was unfortunately unopposed. I say "unfortunately" since I find this indicative of the lack of general interest which has plagued the GSS in recent years.

But what does this have to do with the AMS or my nomination for AMS rep? Simply this - without feedback, either through GSS Council or by personal contact, it will be impossible for me to adequately represent the viewpoint of the

A bit on the referenda

GSS plebiscite - 'Yay' and 'Nay'

The Graduate Student Society Council has called a non-binding plebiscite for Feb. 12 and 13 on the following question. All GSS members are urged to vote at any AMS polling booth.

"Are you in favour of replacing the present system of numerical grading in graduate courses with a 'honours-pass-fail' system?"

The reasons for favouring an honours-pass-fail system are many and have been acknowledged already within the School since two of the three components of the Doctoral programme are already judged on a pass-fail basis: the thesis and the comprehensive examination. Only coursework continues to be graded on a numerical basis. A "pass" designation on a comprehensive or thesis is sufficient for future employers or admissions committees and yet marks continue to be assigned for courses.

Numerical grades in graduate courses are particularly arbitrary ones to the nature of the courses. Classes are usually small (seven or 12 students) making score normalization impossible.

Indeed little more than a relative ranking of students is justifiable. Also many graduate courses are conducted as seminars sometimes without a single written paper required. Seminars narrow the basis for evaluation to little more than performance in the presentations and discussions which can only be judged in a qualitative way. Numerical grading is arbitrary at best but is exclusively so in graduate courses.

Honours, pass or fail are the fairest designations for performance in graduate courses and so I am voting yes in the plebiscite.

Voting No - Peter McVetty

This argument against the H.P. and F. evaluation system will be in two parts; part one will point out the advantages of the percentage system; part two will point out some of the disadvantages of the H.P. and F. evaluation system.

The percentage marking system has as its main advantage precision. Students, staff, prospective employers and admissions officers are provided with the precise and recognizable estimate of the student's accomplishments in academic endeavors. As well, the percentage system of evaluation provides the instructor with a system of evaluation which is both logical and objective. Finally, the percentage system provides precise information on the student's overall academic achievement relative to all other students, thus making the awarding of scholarships, awards and prizes easier for those people that are responsible for awarding them.

The H.P. and F. system, on the other hand, has as its main disadvantage, imprecision. Under this system, students are lumped together into one of three broad categories which will tend to obscure both the better and the poorer students in a given category. This imprecision will create problems for both prospective employers and admissions officers since it will be difficult to decide which graduate is best qualified for a job, or which student should be granted admission to a particular program.

As well, the awarding of scholarships, prizes and awards become difficult if not impossible because of imprecision of the H.P. and F. system.

It can be argued that any system of evaluation is artificial, and that the best system is one with the greatest information content. Based on this criteria, the percentage evaluation system is far superior to the H.P. and F. evaluation system, and should therefore be retained.

Project Green

Queen's University used to be known for its great lawns, trees and ivy-covered buildings but times have changed. Unfortunately, just as the university has finished its physical expansion, there are no means available to clean up the mess. It has finally occurred to Queen's students that the process of deterioration can be reversed - the campus can be made into a beautiful place to work, study, or just live. Project Green is dedicated to achieving this aim.

graduate student at Queen's. I solicit your ideas. I hope you will have the interest to communicate them.

As for my own thoughts with respect to the AMS, I entertain no preconceived notions. My experience with student government at Queen's to date has been limited to GSS Council. Looking ahead, though, I confess I find myself approaching my term as AMS rep with some reservations. Nevertheless, I am also intrigued by the opportunities and challenge presented and am genuinely looking forward to the experience.

There are large problems involved as no significant landscaping has been done since the boom began and buildings, concrete and lockstone have sprung up everywhere. To make matters worse, over 90 percent of the great trees which lived in 1970 will be dead within 5 years, victims of the Dutch elm disease. Over this period of time, Project Green hopes to make a significant contribution to the re-greening of Queen's. For this reason, we are asking for your support.

We wish to emphasize that the organization that is set up now is a permanent structure, as the job will be a lengthy one. We will be mounting a publicity drive each year to keep the student body informed and to get them involved. Any funds generated from students will be used in large schemes, in order to make your contribution more visible. The plans for the Grant-Ontario courtyard, Mackintosh-Corry Hall, and the road in front of the Bookstore are good examples of projects which have been drawn up by our consulting landscape architect. If Project Green receives your support, we hope to have one of these major projects completed next fall, and to continue from there.

It is a massive task - far beyond student means. The estimates for the total re-landscaping of the campus run into hundreds of thousands of dollars and so Project Green is actively soliciting funds from other members of the Queen's community. BUT - the students must continue to set an example for others to follow as 10,000 of us live here. After all, if we don't care, who should?

Busit

Busit as a service has been in existence for the past three years. This arrangement is made by the students through the A.M.S., with the Public Utilities Commission (P.U.C.) of the City of Kingston.

The amount of the Busit fee is based on full fare. In other words each time a student gets on the bus and shows his card it is as though he contributed the regular 20c fare. When a survey was conducted the A.M.S. and the P.U.C. calculated the total Busit cost based on 14,700 rides per week for about 28 weeks at the amount of 20c per ride.

The amount each full time student is required to pay is no. rides-yr. (8 months) no. full time students x 20c x 60 per cent. The students only pay 60 per cent of this amount, the university pays the other 40 per cent.

The last time the students voted on Busit they paid 60 per cent x $5.00 equals $3.00.

On the referenda on February 12 and 13 students are asked to pay 60 per cent of $7.50 equals $4.50. For this extra $1.50 per student, students will be able to use any and all city buses for the whole 8 month academic year with charter bus service between Main and West Campus during the hours of 11:00pm until 1:00am six days a week.

It is a known fact that students in residence don't make much use of the service, and may feel that BUSIT is money poorly spent. But it is worthwhile to remember that residence students will not want to remain in residence for more than one or two years and Busit will be appreciated once the students move into the Kingston community at large.

It is also important to keep in mind that while some students are obviously subsidizing others for Busit, there are students that use the physical education complex that are being subsidized by students that don't use it. Hence the overall affect tends to result in the greatest degree of fairness for the most number of students.

Busit will also help alleviate the housing problem, by enabling students to find places to live that are beyond walking distance to main campus.

Busit is a unique service that benefits students and Kingston. Give Busit your support on February 12 and 13. VOTE YES.

MBA

The quest for societal recognition on the part of the MBA student body is largely a reflection of the size (recently enlarged to 200) and cohesiveness of the class itself. This uniqueness created a situation whereby membership in the Graduate Student Society did not constitute a satisfactory relationship in the sense that our interests and needs did not complement each other. The explanation behind this statement is as follows.

To refer to an MBA as a graduate student is a misnomer as we are not eligible for Graduate Student Fellowships, nor do we pay graduate student fees, our MBA fees being channeled separately over at the accounting office in Richardson Hall. Similar to most other student bodies on campus, our school year runs from September to April, unlike that of graduate students. Combining these facts with our cohesive characteristics, it stands to reason that our membership to the Graduate Student Society, an effectively useful body for its graduate student members, was not terribly representative for the MBA's to invest an annual fee of $7.50.

The issue for the MBA's is that we desire recognition on campus as a distinct unit having an identity of our own. This would provide us with means to channel our activities and financial resources to support such 'in house' endeavours as a newspaper, smokers (Happy Hour), our annual formal, and our ever-threatening entrants into BEWS, to name a few.

The object of the above exposition is to explain to you why MBA's are requesting your vote in the referendum. Basically, it is the same reason why every other recognized society has appealed for campus recognition in the past. Our growth has led us to desire our formation of an MBA Society as a member society of the AMS. We feel that this will enhance the advancement of the interests of the MBA's on campus. It serves as a vehicle of communication between MBA and other student organizations. Lastly, it will enable us to utilize our resources in the organization and co-ordination of social, athletic, and academic events of interest to MBA students. We would appreciate your support concerning the referendum.

Honoraria

THE HONORARIA QUESTION?

YES... OR NO...

In the fall of 1974 Outer Council received and approved a report from the Honoraria Review Committee which had been set up by Outer Council the previous spring. As a result of this approval, some students on campus felt that changes in the Honoraria were not justified and was a matter that should be decided by the campus at large. A petition was circulated. Hence on February 12th and 13th students have been asked to make their opinions known on this subject.

The Honoraria referendum is composed of two parts.

(1) Whether or not students believe that Honoraria should be raised.

(2) Whether or not any further changes should be decided through a campus wide referendum.

The relevant sections of By-Law No. 8 Section 8 are found in the following table. Column I lists the Honoraria that has been paid up until September 1, 1974. Column II lists Honoraria payments that were approved by Outer Council in the Honoraria Report which are at present being disputed.

Position	Column I	Column II
A.M.S. President	$750	tuition and summer salary
A.M.S. Vice-Presidents (each)	500	tuition and summer salary
Commissioners (each)	250	tuition
Journal Editor	200	tuition and summer salary
Senior Editors (aggregate sum)	250	$100
Managing Editor	100	1/2 tuition
Tricolor Editor	200	tuition
Assistant Editors (aggregate sum)	225	500
Queen's Bands Manager	150	100
Queen's Entertainment Agency Director	150	tuition
Director Information Bank	0	100
Clubs Manager	0	100

Position (Concert Committee)	Column I	Column II
Promotion Manager	sliding scale	$225
Ticket Sales Manager	varying yearly	225
Stage Manager	none	250
Finance Manager	greater	150
House Manager	than $100	125

Tokens may also be given as payment for services rendered in appreciation for work done. These are also changes occurring as a result of the Honoraria Review Committee Report.

Position
Secretary
Speaker
Chief Justice
Associate Chief Justice

Amount $150
100
75
150

Junior Justices (3x50)

The following points should also be noted:
1) No individual shall be paid more than $100 and $150 respectively for Assistant Editor (Tricolor) and Senior Editor (Journal) positions.
2) Concert Committee and Journal Honoraria are paid out of their own student levy hence not a part of the A.M.S. budget allocations.

The Journal

The Journal has not increased its levy for seven years and therefore is not in step with the rocketing level of inflation. During the past few years, the Journal's budgeting to meet the ever increasing cost of publication has necessitated an increase in the number of ads as well as a substantial hike in the price of advertising.

Because we are a campus newspaper, the decision was made to set up a lower rate for campus ads in relation to the near Whig-Standard prices of our local city advertising. In this way, a priority of space is given to the promotion of student organizations and events. However, this higher volume of campus advertising has resulted in a lower return on our overall advertising revenue. This problem, although not acute, has resulted in precarious financial difficulties.

The advertising forecasts gathered from experts in Toronto is far from positive in the upcoming year. What with inflation and an overall shortage of personal finances, advertising has already proven to be among the lowest priorities of company expenditures.

Without the increase in the levy, the Journal will find itself in a position where it will be forced to further increase the level of advertising already present. In deed, the most frequent gripe concerning the paper has been the large number of advertising, creating unattractive layout and a reduced amount of printed copy.

The increased levy would allow the Journal to rely less heavily on advertising for its financial well being. The increase to the $1.50 figure would enable the Journal to cut down its ad volume by about 25 per cent while the $3.00 figure would allow an approximate 50 per cent reduction.

The Journal need not and should not be a commercial newspaper. We have to begin taking the paper back to its original purpose; a medium for Queen's students to express their views and a news service essential to the cohesiveness of the Queen's community.

A vote "YES" on 1a of the referenda will prove that students are in agreement with the raising of this levy. A vote "YES" to either one of the proposed figures ($1.50 and $3.00) in part 1b will determine the extent of this increase.

Vote "YES" and help the Journal serve the campus.

Arts

None seek presidency; ten seek AMS posts

Karen Alison: Arts '77 - one year ASUS rep. to the AMS

One of the basic problems with the AMS is communication with the student body. Judging from the number of acclamations in this election, it seems like most of campus isn't even aware the AMS exists, or just aren't interested in it. It is the responsibility of an AMS rep. to be available to answer student's questions and to take suggestions. This could be partially accomplished through attending residence floor meetings at intervals, and by setting up some kind of program during Orientation Week to inform first year students about the function and capacities of the AMS. The ASUS rep to the AMS has a primary obligation to represent the interests of the Arts and Science students as the largest single body on campus.

I am particularly interested in the External Affairs Commission, and feel that the possibilities of organizing a student movement to pressure the city of Kingston into forming a rental control board, should be explored, in light of the inequalities between housing standards and living costs.

I have worked in connection with both the AMS and ASUS in several capacities: as music co-ordinator of Festival '74, as co-director of the academic problem center during Orientation Week '74, and on the staff of Information Bank. As well, I have participated in the OFS referendum campaign, have staffed for WUSC, and am presently tutoring in the SVB tutorial program.

If you'd like to have some active representation, please use your vote wisely.

Bob Atkinson 1 Year ASUS rep to AMS

Representatives to the AMS have the potential to make lasting contributions to student government. However, recent years have seen many hopeful representatives become frustrated and disillusioned, swept along on the tide of Executive oriented decisions and programs. There are several areas where representatives can leave their mark in a major way.

No doubt many students will vote 'no' for the increase in Bus-II fees for 75-76. I believe efforts should be made to negotiate some viable form of optional transportation fees for Queen's students. OFS is very important to Queen's. I think AMS should work closer with OFS and publicize its actions more visibly. The recent problems over financial constraints is a great chance for the AMS to assert itself, to cooperate with OFS and Queen's in their attempts to prove the university's worth in our society. I propose that a greater portion of the budget be allotted to donations to worthwhile charities outside the Kingston Community. These contributions should not emphasize a greater concentration in one area but rather moderate amounts dispersed among the various worthy causes.

It is the responsibility of the rep to keep on top of Executive activities, to give support where it is due, and more importantly, not to be pushed around in the attempt to see one's own ideas materialize. As an ASUS rep, I will work hard to fulfill these obligations and believe my previous involvement in ASUS and Arts 77 will aid me in this cause. In any case, try to vote on Thursday: regardless of your opinions on AMS - its the most we have and it can be made better.

Candidate for 1 Year term as ASUS Rep. on AMS.

PAUL BENNETT History and Politics '77

The AMS is frequently attacked as being petty, irrelevant or time consuming. I don't believe these attacks are entirely justified. Obviously the AMS does not make many of the crucial decisions involving the future of the university; many of these decisions are taken by the senior administration and the Senate. At the same time the AMS does waste a certain amount of time with less important matters and red tape. But so do all institutions of this nature. We must work together, attempting to correct some of these problems but more importantly occasionally overlook some of the difficulties and collectively work to tackle some of the major issues facing the student and the university: the financial squeeze, student housing and BUS-IT. As far as the squeeze is concerned it is only through co-operative effort among the students, university and provincial government that we are going to trim unnecessary expenditures on all levels, find more money and not simply refuse to rehire qualified faculty members. The AMS has an important role to play in helping to convince the public that university is a vital link in the community and in fact should be supported. At the same time we must look at our AMS budget. Judging by student interest, a second look must be taken at subsidizing such events as Winter Frolic or Arts Festival in their present formats.

The AMS plays a key role in co-ordinating and supervising student affairs, from housing to the Journal, to Bus-II, to the concerts and to clubs. I believe I am qualified to serve as an ASUS rep on the AMS. Since coming to Queen's I have been involved in a number of activities, including being an orientation gael, the Arts Festival Committee, the Queen's Journal, CFRC, the Artsci '77 executive, the Politics DSC and a program sponsored by the Student Volunteer Bureau. As a result of these activities I feel I know some of what goes on in the University. I am willing to devote the time to ensure that I am aware of the issues as they occur and their consequences. I encourage you to contact me so that we may discuss things. I am anxious to be your representative on the AMS.

Thanks. Have a good day!

George Gregory AMS rep. 1 year

My name is George Gregory. I am a second year philosophy student. I am running as an ASUS representative to the AMS because I feel that over the last year the AMS has defaulted its responsibility to the students, in that it has failed to interest them in its activities. Whenever the AMS plans anything which it feels does not receive adequate student support, it excuses its own poor leadership by accusing the students of being apathetic.

A case in point is the recent day of fasting. The AMS decided that the money earned through the fast should go to Oxfam. Considering that it is common knowledge that Oxfam spends something approaching 70 percent of the revenue it collects on administration costs it is surprising that the turn out was as large as it was. Furthermore the AMS lessened the participation the "fast" would have had by threatening to put up picket lines outside the Leonard cafeteria. It is a fact that many of the students ate at Leonard of sheer spite. Obviously the AMS was not being responsive to the students and was thereby showing bad leadership.

I cannot promise to create student interest in AMS affairs if I am elected. However, I do promise to do my best to do so, and I promise that I will NEVER blame my bad leadership on student apathy.

Kent Hay Glass

Running for ASUS - 1 year rep. on AMS

Lately there has been a lot said about our attitude. I heard all through high school and now again, here at Queen's, how students have no interest in anything not directly affecting them. I don't agree. I think we are willing to make ourselves heard but don't know how or where.

To most, the AMS is an office in the basement of the Union - little more. It's communication with us is so weak that we haven't a clue what they are doing.

An organization on a budget of over $70,000 (next year) has an obligation to make itself heard. That is why I ask for your vote. I probably have no more experiences with the AMS than you. I probably understand why it is the way it is as little as you - and I want to change that. I want to let you know what our government is doing. That can only be done from inside the AMS. Thank you.

David Honey AMS Rep ASUS

It is vital for the successful, intelligent operation of the AMS that there be competent well informed representation on the Outer Council.

The job of AMS Rep entails two essential features: an ability to transmit ideas both to from the student body and the Outer Council and an energetic participation in the AMS. In my current capacity as ASUS Orientation Committee member I have become familiar with student government and the concerns of the student.

I have encouraged two way communication of ideas in the development of the Orientation program and will continue to do so in the AMS. It isn't enough for students to just know what happens. They must know why and also have a say in what happens.

Effective representation requires experience, ability interest and an understanding of the situation. You can count on a complete effort. Please Vote!

Joan Ratelle ASUS rep. 1 year

I am running for the position of one year ASUS rep to the AMS because I want to be involved. I want to see the representatives from the faculties strongly represent the students on the various issues. Even with all the apathy at Queen's, some students are definitely interested in the activities. I am one of those students. I take a stand on the issues that concern us, the students. The insufficient government grants to the universities are a serious blow to Queen's. The faculty of Arts and Science is being hit very seriously, perhaps the most seriously, by the lack of funds and the cutbacks. The yearly budget for library books has been cut drastically, the subscriptions for quite a few journals have been cancelled, and the reserve room privileges may be withdrawn for classes with enrollment of less than twenty next year! Yet most Arts and Science students

Brian Young

Bill Burgess

Virginia Morse

Jane Toller

either are not aware of this problem or refuse to let it bother them. Why worry about next year now?

The ASUS reps are members of the AMS Outer Council. They vote on the actions to be taken by this body. They are representatives of the Arts and Science students and they should be worried about next year. If you, as an Arts and Science student, want to see yourself well represented in the AMS get out and vote. Vote for someone who has the drive to get things done. Vote RATELLE.

Activities: volunteer at Queen's Information Bank, volunteer at Queen's Birth Control Centre.

Greg Turnbull

1 year ASUS rep to AMS

The AMS needs to redefine its place and role in the Queen's community. At present, the AMS is primarily seen as the provider of certain services - social and cultural and as the chief policing force on campus. However, the third objective of the AMS which is "to represent students in their formal dealings with the University" is a rather nebulous statement in need of clarification. Is the AMS to represent the students only on matters relating to social and cultural events or should the AMS play a larger role in defining and demanding the educational needs and desires of Queen's students? Obviously I feel that the latter role should become the major focus of AMS activities. We are now in a period of financial crisis. The flood of money which occurred in the 60's is now no more than a trickle. The AMS needs to take a leadership role in directing where the money should be spent and where it should be cut back. Do we need more equipment or more teachers? Should the wide variety of courses now offered be reduced? It is questions like these which the AMS needs to answer.

The AMS also needs to take a more active part in the municipal affairs of the City of Kingston. The community-city liaison needs to be more than a token position. The potential for visible interaction between Queen's and Kingston does exist. It is up to the AMS and the representatives you elect to actualize this potential.

Kathy Wood Artsci '77

Less than one year ago, out-going AMS

Paul Bennett

Peter Meech

Vice-President Bruce Trotter said "for the AMS to find its role on this campus, it must first decide what the role of the university in society is. Only in this way can it hope to have the right direction and discover its place within the Queen's community." (Journal, March 8, 1974)

By expanding on this statement, I hope to give you valid reason for supporting me in my bid for election to the AMS Outer Council.

I would say that one general goal for the university should be to provide society with the tools with which to attain a high quality of life for all - a phrase which can be interpreted in many ways. To that end, the AMS should strive to mold Queen's into a shape conducive to the "high quality" value. Here the philosophy mushrooms into dozens of avenues for involvement - enrolment, OFS, housing, and honouraria, for example.

In order to work towards this goal, Outer Council must be revitalized, because here exists the manpower, ideas and forum for consensus that have been sadly neglected in past years. I propose that ASUS Reps lead the way in "shoring up" this vital part of the AMS.

Why? - because ASUS has roughly 1/4 of the voting power. We have resigned ourselves to the disadvantages of being the largest faculty on campus but we haven't exploited the advantages.

How? - by acting cohesively and lobbying with other faculties

- by doing our "AMS homework" and learning how to debate properly.

- by voting for ASUS Reps to the AMS people who you feel can and will fulfill the conditions above.

When? - in the ASUS elections on February 13th. I respectfully request your support.

Brian Young

Arts '77

ASUS Treasurer

ASUS is the largest faculty society on campus and as such possesses the largest budget in addition. Any decision concerning the allocation of money must be a collective one and as Treasurer, I would aid the President and Vice-President in this decision. Funding in ASUS, like most of the activities of the society, can only be a co-operative effort. With a budget of approximately $20,000 to work with, there are many opportunities to direct the majority of funds toward academic and cultural events, both within the university community and outside it. Above all, I would advocate the utilization of all the funds at the executive's disposal, for money lying fallow is of little use to the student body from which it is solicited.

George Gregory

Joan Ratell

Transcending the treasurer's monetary responsibility is his opportunity to work with the other members of the executive in the formulation and execution of ASUS policies, as they affect the departmental student councils, orientation, Artsci council and other organizations connected with the society. His responsibility in this area is paramount.

ASUS, like any other form of student government, simply cannot be treated as a joke. To be successful, it must be headed by people who are prepared to offer a little imagination and a little diligence. Bringing with me any experience that I have had in previous campus activities, as social convener ('73-'74) and President ('74-'75) of Artsci '77 and a member of the ASUS Interyear Council, I should like to offer both.

Jane Toller ASUS Senate

The first principle of Senate membership is "participation" as opposed to "Representation".

To represent Arts and Science effectively when decisions regarding various academic policies are being made requires a truly active participant.

I realize that in the past the contact between the Students and Senate has been minimal. I hope that I can be thought of as an approachable representative and a definite link to the Senate.

Brief Biography: Athletic Stick (Artsci '76) 1972-3, WIC Rep '72-73, Sociology DSC rep., Psychology DSC rep., Gael in Orientation 1973, Snowball Executive 1974, 1975, Head of Canvassing for United Way, Faculty Board rep. (Nominating Committee).

Karen Alison

Kent Hay Glass

Greg Turnbull

I am very interested efficiency in the Senate procedures is proportional to the interest held by its members.

I am very interested in Senate and concerned with the quality of education at this university. If there are changes to be made, I will give them my best effort and consideration.

If the necessary communication lines to the Senate are made easily accessible for the students, the Senate can actively reveal the impact that it has on several campus policies.

I feel that during my three years at Queen's I have accumulated a well rounded background in the various faculties under Arts and Science. This has given me an open perspective concerning what Queen's offers. I will not be representing Arts and Science from one narrow discipline.

During my two year term on the Senate I look forward to personal involvement in the core network of this university.

I realize that in the past the contact between the Students and Senate has been minimal. I hope that I can be thought of as an approachable representative and a definite link to the Senate.

Brief Biography: Athletic Stick (Artsci '76) 1972-3, WIC Rep '72-73, Sociology DSC rep., Psychology DSC rep., Gael in Orientation 1973, Snowball Executive 1974, 1975, Head of Canvassing for United Way, Faculty Board rep. (Nominating Committee).

Bob Atkinson

David Honey

Kathy Wood

Commerce

Butterill, Loughheed try for president

Robert Butterill
Pres. Comm.

In my year as President of Commerce '77 I have had many people approach me to explain exactly what the job of a year president entails. To many in the society this vagueness also clouds the job of the President of the Commerce Society.

Having sat on the executive for a year I feel there are three main areas of responsibility that go with this job. First of all there is the co-ordination of the other members of the executive towards the smooth running of activities which are sponsored by the Commerce Society (the formal, the banquet and the speaker series). The second responsibility is as a student voice in the academic affairs of Commerce (the student-faculty meetings). Finally, the President acts as a representative of the Commerce Society on matters which are run by the AMS but directly affect the Society.

It is with these responsibilities in mind and in consideration of the man suited best to carrying them out that you should use as the criterion upon which to make your choice.

I feel that I am capable of serving these responsibilities, and will do so to the best of my ability.

Steve Loughheed.

President, Commerce Society.

The Commerce faculty, with its people and resources has the capacity to have one of the most beneficial, productive, and active Societies on campus. This, however, is not the case, mainly due to a lack of an opportunity for involvement in the Society.

I believe much can be done to encourage involvement by all years; such as a competition for a Commerce song and motto; a scheduled publication of a Newsletter; more events run by the Commerce Society, but organized and run by the individual years with the help of the Society as a whole. I would also like to encourage, through these events, more co-operation by all years to make Commerce more of a Society.

I also believe that some long term objectives such as a Commerce House, Pub or Coffee House would help to give the Society something to cooperatively work forward to, and would in the future give the Society a heritage to work from.

To do this, I would like to ensure an open and responsive executive, willing to extend itself to all the years. This executive would be responsible to see that the previously mentioned objectives are explored and carried out with a maximum of involvement by all willing members of the Society.

Geoff Davenport.

Vice-president, Commerce Society.

Commerce has the people and the resources to be one of the most active faculties at Queen's, but it is apparent that in order to realize our potential as a faculty, we must have a strong, cohesive Commerce Society.

The enthusiasm for the Commerce Society that is built up during the orientation program would be more strongly reinforced after Fresh Week if the Society were engaged in more activities. The presence of the Society must be felt; you have to know what it is and what it is doing in order for it to build the character to which all students in the School of Business can relate.

I want the Commerce Society to be regarded as an active tangible body, whether it is introduced through a Commerce song or motto, or longer term goals such as a Pub or a Coffee House, or even the previously promised Commerce House. Although some of these plans are long-term in nature, they, along with the short-term, more immediate plans, can serve as a base upon which a Commerce togetherness and tradition can be built.

I am interested in and concerned with the direction of the Commerce Society, and with the support of the students in the School of Business, I am confident that I can spur the Society along the path to realizing its potential.

Gail Slater (76)

Commerce Society

Vice-president.

Having been involved with the Commerce Society for one year already as Social Convenor I can see possibilities for the Commerce Society to become an effective governing body. The school is still small and the executives should be easily approachable. The Vice-President traditionally undertakes one project for the year. I hope to help organize the student-faculty committee to make it operative and efficient.

It is all too often that we have 4 mid-terms and 3 assignments due in a two day period - surely this could be avoided. I hope you'll give me the chance to try out these ideas.

Diane Crause
Commerce '76
Secretary.

Firstly, I would like to let everyone know what the position "Secretary" of the Commerce Society entails. Basically one is responsible for recording the minutes at each meeting, also one has a vote in the financial considerations that come before the committee.

I realize that this job is hardly exhaustive so I would be willing and enthusiastic to help the Social Convenor organize some major events in the coming year. One aspect that craves attention and I feel that the Commerce Society should work upon, is more inter-year events together with other faculties. Much is said about this above point and little is done. Together with the Social Convenor I want a chance to "do" something.

Well, in wrapping it all up I'll just say that I want to make it your year and my class-mates last year a good one.

Karen Croft
Commerce '78
Secretary

It is difficult to submit a campaign platform for the position of Secretary because superficially, its image involves informing people of meetings, taking minutes and correspondence.

During the past year, I have enjoyed holding the position of Social Convenor for Commerce '78 and working on the Commerce '75 Orientation Committee, both of which have given me the experience in dealing with other people and responsibility. The positions have also made me realize how much Commerce and Queen's have to offer, and even moreso, how uninformed some people have been.

I see this position of key importance in communications and by attending the Society's meetings and participating in their decisions and activities, I hope to contribute as much as possible to the coming year.

Sue Bennett
Commerce Society
Senior A.M.S. Rep.

Being an A.M.S. rep doesn't just mean long meetings every second Thursday - it means responsibility, action, communication and concern. The first responsibility is to the Society one is representing, and in my case, it's Commerce. Communication is necessary with the Society, letting its members know what happens at the meetings and making them aware of their rights and privileges. For instance, did you know that any Queen's student may go to the Outer Council meetings and voice his or her opinion? Students must be made aware of what is going on around them, and this awareness has to be created by the A.M.S.

As social convenor for Commerce '77 during 1973-74, I learned a great deal about running events, procedures, hassles and apathy. This led me to a position on the Winter Frolic Committee this year, and although it wasn't a successful event, it created for me an awareness of this campus. I am presently working with the Education Commission for an event in March, widening my scope of Queen's.

No, those A.M.S. meetings aren't all delightful, the two I chose to attend turned out to be the longest ones this year. Some crucial issues have come up for discussion and with the housing and financial situations the way they are, more will be forthcoming.

So, on Feb. 12 and 13, I urge you to make an effort to get to one of the three polling stations and vote! It's your responsibility too.

Robert Butterill

Steve Loughheed

Diane Crause

Karen Croft

Geoff Davenport

Gail Slater

Mark Hayes: Candidate for Senior AMS Representative for Commerce: from Commerce '77.

Apathy is running rampant at Queen's. The recent acclamation of the AMS top executive will only serve to undermine the already shaky confidence Queen's students have in the AMS. I believe that stronger voices are needed from the individual AMS representatives if Outer Council is to have credibility with the students, and I believe that I can supply that voice for Commerce. I am not afraid to stand up and say what I think is important, whether for Commerce students or for the University as a whole, and this is the kind of representation you are going to need if you want our faculty to stand as an integral part of Queen's student government. For too long our representatives have sat half-asleep at marathon Outer Council meetings (when they were there!) while various politics and ASUS representatives have done all the talking - I believe that Commerce should be heard! And I believe that I am someone who can make people listen. A vote for me is a vote for responsible, accessible and hardworking representation of your interests.

The AMS is no joke! This has been a year of apathy and criticism directed towards our student government. Although these feelings are not totally unwarranted, I believe that the major problem is a feeling of detachment from the AMS on the part of most students. The Society should be of vital interest to all of us. There are many things around this university which need attention: the Journal and housing for example.

The Commerce Society has been silent lately. It needs some life and publicity so that it can better serve the people in commerce. The governing body of the faculties students also needs a vocal, responsible and accessible Representative on Outer Council. I feel I can fulfill these requirements. I certainly have no great list of past experience to present for this experience is limited. I do however have an awareness of what the situation is, a fact which I feel to be more meaningful. I want to get involved as a concerned student not as anything. Be responsible! Vote Feb. 12

Thank You
Mark Hayes.

Bruce Hamilton Commerce '77 Senior Rep AMS

Streaking. My first appearance in the Journal pictured me scampering across campus sporting only a pair of Greb Kodiaks. Then, as now I have only my best to offer. This time my best turns to a serious approach as a candidate for Commerce AMS Senior Rep representative, and I only wish to make one point. Whether you regard this enigma known as the Alma Mater Society as a joke or not, it's success depends on the abilities and seriousness of those who are elected. I

Sue Bennett

Mark Hayes

Bruce Hamilton

Colin Sutherland

Lynn Plummer

Clare Prendergast

Katie Thompson

Darlene Cater

when each sport was being played. I'm sure we could have a team out for every sport if people knew about them. Since we will have a Girls Athletic representative from each year, I will work along with them to make next year's sports program really enjoyable.

Katie Thompson

Commerce '78

Running for Junior AMS Rep. for Commerce Society

The Junior A.M.S. Representative for the Commerce Society sits on the A.M.S. Outer Council as well as on the Commerce Society Executive, representing the views of the members of the Society.

As President of Commerce '78, I enjoyed working for my year on the Society Executive. I am interested in broadening my scope through the Outer Council position of Junior Commerce Representative.

Through Project Green and Commerce Orientation '75, I've found it interesting and informative to be working with other faculties, and I would like to see the Commerce faculty more involved with Queen's as a whole. Concern for Queen's campus and its people is of prime importance.

It is through the A.M.S. structure that any effective action concerning us can be initiated. I feel I am qualified to do such a job and I am keen to be involved and to work for the Commerce Society. Both my past experience and my present involvement are assets which I would like to be able to contribute to the Society Executive and to the Outer Council, through the position of Junior A.M.S. Representative.

Lynn Plummer

Commerce Society

Running for Treasurer for Commerce Society

The Commerce Society is one of the smallest and newest faculties on campus, and it is for this reason we should be trying twice as hard to prove to the other faculties we are together. Too often in a society, the members are together only in their own year, and there is not a cohesiveness with the years above. This is not at all necessary, for I feel if there were Commerce activities where each year could take part - whether it is helping with a dance or participating in inter-faculty sports as a society - the younger years could mix with those older than themselves. There seems to be a lack of communication between the years, and possibly better advertising or a suggestion box would help.

This year I was a "boss" in frosh week and have worked with the Commerce executive when I organized and distributed Commerce '77 T-shirts. Also, I have helped doing various jobs in organizing dances and events for Commerce. In high school I was a school prefect, a job of responsibility.

Working as an accountant trainee and teller this summer at a bank has given me an insight into handling money and bookkeeping. As treasurer, I would like to be a little more "involved" in the Commerce Society and would like to see the Society more together and hope I can aid in putting forth my suggestions.

Clare Prendergast

Commerce

Commerce Society Treasurer

The position of Treasurer of the Commerce Society is an interesting and important one, and I have both the qualifications and the desire to do the job. The person elected must have the ability to do the job well, as well as the time and interest to do it. With two years of bookkeeping experience behind me, I believe that I have the knowledge necessary to do the work involved and I would also like to have the opportunity to continue my participation in Commerce activities.

Engineering

Strong contenders for Science positions

David Turnbull
Eng. Physics '76
Vice-President Eng. Society
EXPERIENCE:
Treasurer of Eng. Soc. 1974-75
Two years on QUESSI Board of Directors
Science '76 Social Conveher
Delegate to A.P.E.O. and CCES Conferences on behalf of Eng. Soc.

The Vice-Presidency of the Engineering Society demands that the candidate have experience with the affairs of the society, and a knowledge of the workings of both Inner and Outer Councils.

Criticisms have been levelled at the Society this year that too much time was spent with establishing the procedures concerning our new lounges and the services using it. The services of a new Engineering Society Pub and the re-establishment of Bitter Grounds have been well received. Admittedly the past executive spent a lot of effort and time in this area but now the problems have been resolved and the Society has a strong base to build on and expand. Evidence of the consolidation of the Society's operation can be seen in the establishment of a new executive position, Services Control Chairman, to oversee the Society's services.

The Society, with its operations consolidated, now has the opportunity to expand their services to the members of the Society by establishing contact with professional engineering organizations, and other Engineering Societies. Upon graduation every engineer will need to know what each professional society has to offer, e.g. the A.P.E.O. and the C.I.C. It would be valuable to have that knowledge before leaving Queen's.

The internal communications channels of the Society should be improved by having each person organizing a service for the Society such as the pub, Bitter Grounds, Orientation, Beer Brewing, etc. will be required to write a report outlining their operating procedure of the service. The intent is to gain continuity within the Society to enable successors to carry on the services with much more ease of transition.

Golden Words must be more fully utilized by the Society as a means of communication between the executive and the general members of the Engineering Society. We must also utilize the representative structure of the years and clubs to inform their members of matters that concern them. A little thought and work in this area should show a good improvement in the cohesiveness of the Society.

Science '77 (Civil)
Vice-President Eng. Soc.

The Engineering students of '75-'76 will have an excellent Engineering Society to pilot the development of their next University year. The candidates are, without exception, capable and willing. Each is able to quote past experiences such as I have had in the Outer Council of the Society, which will assist them in their prospective duties.

In seeking the position of vice-president, I am looking for more than something to practice organizational talents on. I feel that I can further contribute such qualities as imagination, flexibility, aggressiveness tempered with tact and diplomacy and, perhaps most importantly, an ability to communicate easily, which will add to the successful operation of the Inner and Outer Councils as well as the Engineering Society Corporation (QUESSI).

Communication is a crucial factor in the success of the Society, especially with regards to the "orientation" of new engineering students to the council which represents them to the university community. It is necessary that all members of the Engineering Society be able to exchange ideas effectively not only with other Society members, but also with officials of Queen's and assorted businesses and organizations, and most importantly, with the 1200 plus students in the Engineering faculty on as personal a basis as possible.

In conclusion, the position for which I have been nominated is a demanding one, yet I am prepared to meet these demands with enthusiasm and a desire to contribute not only to engineering at Queen's but to the university in general.

Chris McNally
Eng. Society
Development Committee Chairmen
EXPERIENCE:
Member of Engineering Society Outer Council

Member of A.M.S. Outer Council
Member of Science '77 Executive
Member of Q.U.E.S.S.I. Board of Directors
Tricolour Selection Committee (Eng. Soc.)
Stage Manager of Applied Science Variety Night
Audio Visual Director of Beer Brewing Contest

In the coming year the Engineering Society should complete the improvements made to Clark Hall and the services offered there. This will include the establishment of a trust fund for the long term maintenance of the lounge and its furnishings. Also the present reservation procedure and policy should be reworked to simplify and streamline it and ensure proper safe guards for the Society.

The Outer Council must be drawn further into the decision-making procedure modifying its present role. Relations with the A.M.S. must be improved and a more active role played by the Engineering Society in its operation. Communications with the Engineering Student associations (such as C.C.E.S. and A.P.E.O.) must be improved and used to our better advantage.

As Development Committee Chairman I will re-establish the Development Committee, to assist in the organization of events (such as Beer Brewing), to assist in the creative and routine roles of the D.C.C.C. Also it will be at the disposal of the Inner and Outer Councils to investigate matters of interest, and to aid in revising the Society Constitution.

Tom Taylor
Eng. Soc. '78
Development Committee Chairman
Unless I have had the good fortune of having my expose placed at the top of the page and if you haven't dozed off by now, this is probably the fourth or fifth set of campaign promises you are reading.

Well, you're in for a bit of a surprise. I do not believe the position of Development Committee Chairman allows me to make any declarative statements of policy. Aside from sitting on QUESSI Board of Directors, the position is of such a nature that it must respond to, rather than set, the priorities and directions of the Engineering Society. Since I am not proficient enough at fortune-telling that I can predict those goals, I can make no promise.

I do however, believe the job is one of "getting things done". This inevitably means knowing the method by which things are done on campus and also dealing with large numbers of people, sometimes not entirely agreeable. Along these lines I feel myself to be well suited and experienced to some small degree after having just served as the Chief Free for Science '78. The position of a much maligned AMS constable has also been instruction in the act of dealing with people.

Space is at a premium here so please look for more from me in Golden Words.

John F. Moreland
Engineering Society '76
Position: Services Control Committee Chairman

The position for which I am asking you to elect me is Service Control Committee Chairman (S.C.C.C.). This is a newly created position in the Engineering Society. In general terms I would be responsible for supervising all activities taking place in Clark Hall. This does not require the S.C.C.C. to become deeply involved in these activities but rather allows the head of each operation to organize and execute policies which have been agreed upon by himself and the S.C.C.C.

This past year I have been one of the sophomore reps of Engsoc. on the A.M.S. As well, I have been a member of Engsoc. Outer Council and the executive of Science '76. I am also the author of a weekly column in "Golden Words" entitled As the Stomach Turns by Ronch. My involvement with the A.M.S. has provided me with a good picture of how things can be accomplished on this campus, the necessary procedures that have to be followed and the people one needs to know. I do not feel that the person in the S.C.C.C. position needs to have run Bitter Grounds, Golden Words, etc. in order to do an effective job, but he should be familiar with these operations. I think from my position on Engsoc. and Golden Words that I have the experience and I could oversee these operations quite well.

Clark Hall is a place that every Engineer should be proud of. At the moment it is fairly new, but if not managed properly it could disintegrate very quickly. It would be my intention to maintain its present decor and make improvements where feasible.

I would like very much to represent you on the Inner Council of Engsoc. and I would endeavour to do a responsible job as S.C.C.C.

Jack Russell
Science '76
Services Control Committee Chairman

In running for the position of S.C.C.C. it is difficult to put forth a platform describing my goals and/or changes which I would like to implement. However, my past experience in Eng. Soc. (both inner and outer councils) has shown me what the person who fills this position is expected to do, and what qualifications he should have to fulfill his duties.

Management experience and a capability to communicate effectively with co-workers and others is a definite prerequisite. Co-ordinating several different bodies into one unit (Pub, Golden Words, Bitter Grounds, Science Constable and Lounge Activities) is no easy task. The minor problems which have arisen in this first year after restructuring have been ironed out quite well, but a greater sense of unity is still required between the different bodies operating in Clark Hall.

This election special includes all campaign articles submitted by candidates up to press deadlines.

As manager of the Engineering Pub, I feel I have acquired the necessary experience to do a good job as S.C.C.C. and I also look forward to remaining a member of Inner Council. In addition to being Pub Manager, I have sat on Outer Council for two years, being President of Science '76 last year and I have also been on the Board of Trustees of the Bookstore.

In conclusion I feel that I know what the position requires, and that I have the necessary experience to do a good job. I ask for your support.

Platform of Hadley Leipziger
Position of - Treasurer
- Engineering Society

The Engineering Society has long been known as the faculty that will get up and do something when something needs doing. It is in this spirit that I am running for the position of Treasurer of the Society. My name is Hadley Leipziger and I am a member of Se '77 in Geology, and I am presently a member of the Morris Hall Residence Council, also in the position of Treasurer. My main reason for running in this election is for myself to become personally involved in the Engineering Society, and I feel that I can contribute to the best of my ability in the position of Treasurer. Also in the light of previous elections turnouts at Queen's, I feel that all engineers should make a decent effort to get out and vote in this election. Judging from the dismal percent turnouts for elections in the past two years, I think it should be the engineers who show that they give a damn about who is on their Executive Council. In conclusion I would like to ask you on election day, to vote for me, Hadley Leipziger, as Treasurer, and short of that, at least get out and VOTE! Thanx.

Kim Sturgess (Eng. Physics '77)
Treasurer Engineering Society

The Treasurer of the Engineering Society must be able to relate to people as well as to money. His duties extend much farther than bookkeeping; as a member of Inner Council, he (or she) is expected to contribute to all areas of the Society's business. The Treasurer sits as a member of the QUESSI Board of Directors, QUESSI being the governing body of the bookstore; he acts as Chairman of the Budget and Finance Committee, and also is responsible for proposing a budget for the Society. All these duties involve cooperation with others.

The role of the Society on campus is changing, due to the rapid rise in popularity of the Clark Hall Pub, the success of the Bookstore, and for other reasons, and every position on the Council is an important one. As a member of the Engineering Orientation Committee last year, and as Treasurer of Science '77 year executive, the Queen's Physics Club, and Project Green, I feel that I have had the experience to adequately prepare me for these responsibilities: experience both in working with finances, and in working with people. I am willing to devote all the time necessary to fulfill the Treasurer's duties, and I am confident that I can handle this position successfully.

As an engineer, I am eager to work for the Society, and I ask for your support.

Paula Luck
Engineering Society
Secretary of the Engineering Society

For the past two years I have been a member of the Outer Council of the Engineering Society. I was a representative for Sections E and F as they will remember and this past year I was the Assistant Secretary for the Engineering Society.

I have thus become acquainted with the activities of the society and have learnt the responsibilities of the Secretary. I see this position as of key importance for the Society's communication with other University's Engineering Societies.

Dave Boone

Dave Turnbull

Chris McNally

Tom Taylor

John Moreland

Hadley Leipziger

Kim Sturgess

Jack Russell

Paula Luck

Charlie Murdoch

President, Senator acclaimed

President of the Engineering Society - Acclaimed - Bruce Blair
Although this position has been filled by acclamation I would like to make the point that this is not indicative of an apathetic attitude in the Faculty of Applied Science. I'm certain that our faculty will indicate their interest by voting in the election.

Bruce Blair

During the past few months I have thought over what direction I would like to see the Engineering Society take. This has been a year of rebuilding for us and the expanding of our facilities took a lot of effort. Because of a lack of manpower, time and funds the executive had to leave a few things unattended. Next year we must involve ourselves in these temporarily neglected concerns so that the following years of engineers are aware of them. In particular, I'm concerned with Eng Soc's involvement in academics - such as design competitions - engineering society conferences, and other external affairs. These activities of course should not be undertaken at the expense of internal operations that we are committed to.

Since my space here is limited I will wait until after the election before commenting further but I have one comment on the elections. Take your vote seriously, there is a lot at stake. The engineering society executive is not a social club, the work to be done requires not only hard work and interest but experience and knowledge as well.

Bob Turner
Applied Science '77
Senator (Acclaimed)
The Senate is the primary force in determining the direction taken by Queen's in all aspects of campus life, whether it be academic development, admissions, service operations, campus planning or finances - to be an involved and active part of this planning body is my objective.

With a background including being Treasurer of Science '77 (1973-74), President of Science '77 (1974-75), Outer Council member (1974-75) and a PREC on this year's orientation, I think I have an insight into the moods, feelings and personalities of not only Outer Council but of the Engineering student body as a whole. Working with this, I feel I have the capabilities and the desire to be an active working representative for you.

Regardless of the internal strength of our faculty, we are in no way an autonomous entity with respect to the remainder of the campus. Whether one takes it as a P.R. job or an honest effort to establish common grounds and interests with the rest of Queen's, there is a real need to present ourselves as an active and integrated working part of campus and not a smug, or at least indifferent minority.

Also involved in this position is a seat on the Applied Science Faculty Board, which among other things, has a very strong finger on the quality of education you receive. This, ironically, tends to be an area of little student input, largely because channels have yet to be developed to move ideas from those receiving the education to those transmitting it. Allied with this is the development of a respect for the student viewpoint by faculty and administration which will only come with our own competent performance a part of which I hope to be.

Bob Turner

Nursing

Late nominations . . .

See details page 3, this edition

Linda Eagleson

Margaret Reid

Anne Skerl

Jennifer Allan

Linda Eagleson
I'd like to be the Nursing Science Society president next year. I'm interested in getting involved, too many people use the old excuse of not having enough time. Well I have.

I'm in second year nursing and I was chairman of the Fund Raising Committee this year. I am fully aware of the duties and responsibilities that the position entails.

Basically I'd like to carry on in the same way as this year's executive. I plan to improve communication between all four years in the programme as well as to maintain the committee system. Most importantly I'd like all the nurses to become more involved in their society.

Margaret Reid
I'd like to be vice-president of the Nursing Society. As a member of the executive this year, I'm familiar with the responsibilities involved. I'd like to try and do my best.

The Nursing Society has a definite role in our 4 years of university life. I do not feel we have taken full advantage of this role in the past.

I'm interested in contributing and feel I can help to make "our" Society more representative of all four years.

Anne Skerl, Secretary (Nursing)
To work with and for the nurses as Secretary on the Nursing Society - that's why I'm running for this position.

Jennifer Allan (77)
Nursing Science
AMS rep.

I think that the job of AMS representative is an extremely important one. It is one of the most important links between the nursing faculty and the rest of the university. In this position I will attempt to improve the communications between the Nursing Society and the AMS. I will try and implement some of the wishes of the students I represent. Finally I will attempt to be an active member of the AMS for the university as a whole, and the Nursing Society.

Barb MacNaughton
Social Convenor (Nursing)
I have taken an active role in the Nursing Science Society in the past as President. I still want to remain involved with the society and this year would like to be Social Convenor. I have had much experience in organization and I have a lot of enthusiasm.

Kathy Paul 3rd year Nursing Science
Having spent a year on the nursing science executive, I have found that the position of social convenor is of interest to me.

Many improvements have been made in organizing social activities this year and I would like to see these carried on next year.

I would enjoy working with year reps to provide more social events for nursing science students.

Barb MacNaughton

Kathy Paul

Medicine

All in by acclamation

Roy Kirkpatrick

Mike Loughlan

John Davidson

Michael Loughlan Aesculapian Society
VP external
Decisions made at OMA, ACME, and Faculty Board meeting affect us all. I am eager to participate in these meetings, and to convey our feeling as issues arise. Cheers!

John Davidson
Medicine
Senior AMS Rep.
All my previous drafts look pretty wishy-washy, so I'll put it to you straight. I want the job! I'll try to do it well. I'll go to meetings, listen to what people say and think before I say anything. Hell, I'll even think before I vote. Promise.

Strong leadership - New direction

Gray politics '76

- 1) VP University Affairs
- 2) Floor Chairman Brockington
- 3) Gael
- 5) DSC rep
- 6) AMS senate rep

Nordheimer law '76

- 1) Speaker Outer Council
- 2) Internal Affairs Commissioners
- 3) Junior Law Rep.
- 4) QSA director
- 5) Chief Constable
- 6) IRC Chairman

Wilson economics '76

- 1) ASUS rep to AMS
- 2) AMS Senior constable
- 3) DSC rep (econ)
- 4) Gael

Our primary objective as the AMS executive for 1975-6 will be to re-evaluate and possibly reorganize students for the purpose of making these bodies a more effective instrument in challenging our fellow students to increase awareness about their role in the university community.

In the past the AMS has too often neglected its primary responsibility as a strong voice as the government of the students. The AMS must involve itself in controversial issues of a political nature with long-term effects on students.

We must be responsible in assuming an objective but critical role in our relations with all administrative levels and governing bodies both within and outside the university.

Some particular areas of concentration are:

University Budget constraints

We believe that Queen's must adhere to the concept of steady state enrolment because we feel that departure from this policy is only a short-term problem. It is of greatest importance that the university protects those aspects that directly affect students (ie: student-prof ratios, lab equipment, library materials etc)

OSAP

The OFS should be putting forward a publicity campaign designed to change the government's attitude towards student aid. We maintain that present levels are completely unreasonable.

Housing

We fully support the recommendations of the Senate Committee on Student Affairs for short-term housing solutions. We believe that any plans for future housing construction undertaken by the university must be geared towards student living requirements.

OFS

The AMS must increase the Queen's input into the OFS in order to improve their methods and policies in dealing with the provincial government

Services

Our intention is to study the possibility of establishing a food co-op on campus to decrease costs to the student.

We will continue the positive direction of the existing services offered through the AMS.

Tenure

The basic philosophy behind tenure must be revitalized in order for that institution to fulfill its role as a viable vehicle of social criticism

Communications

Increased communication between the member societies and the executive is a requisite. Regular meeting can accomplish this. As well the President and VP University Affairs will undertake to write weekly articles for the Journal.

Brel film heavy-handed

by John Frizzell

The popular American Film Theatre series opened in Kingston Thursday at the Capitol Theatre with a production of Jacques Brel is Alive and Well and Living in Paris. It was a poor production of an excellent show.

Denis Heroux, director, has drastically changed the traditional cabaret concept of the piece to put it on film. Brel's musical is normally performed by four people on a stark set in an intimate atmosphere where the performers' emotions are easily transferred to the audience, and nothing detracts from Brel's beautiful and provoking words and music. Heroux however added a troupe of twelve tame and stereotypical hippies, who followed the performers about and added some nauseating scenic interplay. They smoked up on a hillside during the rendition of Brel's poignant "Desperate Ones". They performed pseudo-coital dances during almost everything and generally got in the way of the talented performers.

Heroux displayed a rather immature idea of surreal theatre. He constantly barraged us with heavy and ominous symbols which were both obvious and out of context: a plaster finger pointing, crashed the floor in slow motion, and ravens flowing out, all accompanied by song. Heroux insisted on graphically expressing all of Brel's images and analogies, in an expensive and tasteless attempt to elucidate the lyrics. The movie succeeded only in dating and limiting Brel's music.

The entire film was annoyingly heavy-handed. At several exciting points we caught a glimpse of the success of putting Brel on film; when the pace slowed down and allowed us to simply watch the performers sing, it was very moving.

The four singers: Mort

Shuman, Elly Stone Joe Massiel and Jacques Brel, were without exception marvellous. Each added his own strong personality to the songs he performed and each understood only too well the pessimism of Brel's music. Elly Stone shone as the production's only female singer and often proved exceptional moving in her performance.

However, the weakening of the score was due to the film medium. In his visit to Kingston last week Stan Brachage said that he felt music to be relatively unnecessary to film. It is to him, essentially a visual art and music often acts as a detractor. Here the converse was certainly true; the visual worked only to the detriment of the music.

Animal Crackers

Classic nonsense

by Sandra Bernstein

Marx Brothers fans will be glad to hear that "Animal Crackers" is currently being shown at the Hyland theatre.

This time, Groucho is an explorer, recently returned from Africa. He is a guest of the wealthy Mrs. Rittenhouse (played by Lillian Roth, of bosom fame), who is about to unveil a painting by a famous artist, Bogart.

As usual, the surroundings are opulent, private property is in a state of flux thanks to Chico and Harpo, and there is no attempt whatever at realism.

One of the collaborators on the script was George S. Kaulmann, who also worked on both "You Can't Take It With You" and "The Man Who Came to Dinner." His hand is visible in much of the dialogue, which is indeed very funny. The pace of "Animal Crackers" however, is not as fast as that of, say "Duck Soup". Director Heerman, (who seems at times to have come out of a tradition of Gilbert and Sullivan), has not controlled the film tightly enough to maintain a barrage of punch lines.

The film has several classic moments however: Groucho's dance near the beginning; a scene in which Harpo helps open a bridge table; a "strange interlude" as Groucho parodies plays by Eugene O'Neill, alternating these speeches with his own mercenary propositions to the society women; and the immortal line, "What this country needs is a good seven cent nickel".

There are a few curious similarities to baroque dramas; this is probably appropriate to the type of movie the Marx Brothers made. The ending seems a take-off on that of Fielding's Tragedy of Tragedies, itself a parody. Also, Fielding's heroine was named Huncamunca, and Groucho's lawyers are "Hungadunga, Hungadunga, Hungadunga and McCormick". Even the fact that a young artist in "Animal Crackers" is played by a Zeppo look-alike (or maybe Zeppo), for no other apparent reason than to confuse us, seems straight from Dryden.

Its main interest, however, is of course the Marx Brothers with their flawless timing and nonsensical world. Unfortunately, the Hyland has been sent a rather bad print, and the sound track in particular is worn enough to prove distracting. Nonetheless, it is a film worth seeing.

Bite the one you love

STEAK & STUFF

LICENCED DINING ROOM 1399 Princess (near the station)

AUNT LUCY'S RESTAURANTS

Ladies Electrolysis

Established in business for 40 years with physicians' recommendations

Avoid shaving, tweezing, or the use of depilatories. Have your eyebrows styled and unwanted hair removed permanently and safely by electrolysis. Physicians recommend our work. For a Free consultation and information call

Harrison Salon
542-5595

Cineguild
presents

The Evils of Marijuana
Reefer Madness
plus
Martian Space Party

Thursday Dunning Hall
7 and 9:30 $1.00

CAMPUS BOOKSTORE

Hewlett Packard Day
February 12th

New H.P. Calculator lines
New reduced prices on 35's and 45's.

HEWLETT PACKARD

Sales, service and support from 172 outlets in 22 countries

A Hewlett-Packard pocket calculator is a gift for a lifetime.

Gypsy soared through evening

by Banata Rubess

The Queen's Musical Theatre production of Gypsy, the story of stripper Gypsy Rose Lee and her pushy stage mother Rose, was packed with potential that was never completely released.

Director Ron Arnold had a promising cast. Karen Skidmore, as Rose, had a powerful voice and a strong sense of character. With good direction, she might have been awe-inspiring. As it was, the uninspired blocking hampered her performance; she excelled mostly when allowed to move. Her weaker moments were in scenes with her wishful lover, Herbie (Gord Ritchie), who was close to non-existent on stage. Pam Robinson's sensitive transformation was a delight to watch, as she unravelled from the untalented Louise to emerge as star Gypsy.

The most irritating aspect of the production was that most songs were delivered without focus, although the lyrics went with stage directions. This caused a lot of discomfort for the singers, and even verged on the ridiculous. When Rose sang to Louise "You'll be swell...", she aimed her gaze at the upper balcony, while ignored Louise and Herbie stared at Rose as if she had suddenly lost her mind. Daughter June's (Fay Harper) and dancer Tulsa's (Eric Hughes) scenes worked beautifully, for they meshed acting, song and dance. The strippers act was the slickest sequence in the show - special thanks to choreographer Joseph Riha. Suzy Harrington, as raucous Mazeppa, nearly stole the show, as the children did.

Technically, Gypsy was often lacking in style. The sets were rudimentary, bordering on the tacky side. The lighting was equally unimaginative. In Rose's finale, the enormous stage remained fully lit, without any focus on Rose. It is a special tribute to Skidmore's talent that her energy alone filled the empty space. Costumes, designed by Anne Carleton, were mostly adequate. However, I winced when the ladylike Gypsy, at the peak of her career, performed at Minsky's surrounded by amemic chorus girls clad in ill-fitting bikinis. Certainly the music was superbly executed, directed by Dr. Duane Bates.

With the help of cast and music, technical flaws and poor direction were submerged, and Gypsy soared through the evening. A good time was had by all!

J. Tull's latest

War Child
Jethro Tull

by Fred Glover

Disappointing is the word to describe Jethro Tull's latest effort, War Child. Ian Anderson, leader, songwriter, and lyricist for the group, is very talented, some of the group's earlier music, especially the albums Benefit and Aqualung, are certain proof of that. Since then, however Anderson has changed the style of his music, and this change has been for the worse.

In War Child, the lyrics dominate the music. The album becomes a show of Anderson's skill as a poet, with music taking second place. This is a disappointment, because Anderson is far more talented as a musician than as a poet. His lyrics are superficial, and very cynical. On the second cut of the album, "Queen and Country", he says, "They build schools and they build factories-With the spoils of battles won-And we remain their pretty sailor boys-Hold our heads up to the gun." Anderson is harsh and relentless in his attack on the upperclass and religious establishment in England to the point of distastefulness.

The music is subordinate to the lyrics, and is consequently uninspiring and repetitive. Technically, the album is flawless. Anderson easily rates with Frank Zappa as a producer. Background sounds such as accordians and bagpipes are well done, and the sounds of battle in the title song "War Child" are very effective.

The album is not completely without good music. The openings to the songs "Ladies" and "Only Solitaire" Away on the Thin Ice of the New Day", probably the best song of the album, has some life and direction, and is reminiscent of some of Tull's earlier music. There are flashes of good music throughout the album, showing Anderson's skill as a composer and the group's skill as performers. On the whole, though, the music is a disappointment.

Looking back over this review perhaps I have been too critical. Perhaps my love for Jethro Tull's earlier music has stubbornly refused to accept anything different. Granted that is possible. However it seems that Anderson is using too many words to send his message, when he should be using his music for which he has more talent.

This record was provided courtesy of Kelly's Stereo Mart, 110 Princess St.

RECORDS

Leonard Cohen

"Can't I live in poems?"

by Robert Billings

Photograph 1: After a party. In a dark room a girl leans back into a wall of pillows, listening to Songs From a Room. She says, "That man is insane."

Photograph 2: The Jock Hartly Arena late on October 15, 1970. During Leonard Cohen's encore, everyone is standing, clapping in time, stamping feet, dancing.

Irving Layton has written that "desire, without reverence, is lust." In his quiet moments of stillness, Leonard Cohen would agree. That is, the audience, know might say something very different. For whatever he does to "Leonard Cohen" be it in poem, song or novel, he is perfectly and precisely aware of what is happening. He is an actor; his ironic tone saves him turns the journal of his sex life into art. He studies to describe the lover he cannot become failing the widest dreams of the mind & settling for visions of God.

Cohen has been called many things: an immoral moralist, a beautiful creep, a hero in a moralist, and even once called himself "as magnificent as Othello." This person is dangerous. In his first novel, The Favorite Game, the cohenistic protagonist runs away from a "hot room where he couldn't make things happen," but sinks back while the woman is still asleep because "the thought of fleshloneliness" was worse than the oppression of commitment. Later after a day of walking around Montreal, he says that the women he has seen "tonight would have to comb his eyeballs out of all their hair."

In Beautiful Losers, his insane and gorgeous novel, part of which was written while he was cloistered in a hole underground on the Greek island of Hydra he notes that "it is good to have among us such men, such balancing monsters of love." He is one of these monsters. He demands the fidelity of his women, but insists on his own freedom. But he is also a slave; a slave to beauty and a gentle touching of flesh, who "will have an unborn woman when I am only print."

This is the Cohen people listen to in dark rooms. But what about the man himself? We know that he wrote "Suzanne" and that he has published several books of verse and two novels, that he has recorded five albums. We also know that two seasons ago the Shaw Festival put on his spiritual biography, Sisters Of Mercy which received mixed reviews from the critics. (The night I was there the house was packed and there were three encores.) In addition we know he has been in a bad way: his last book, The Energy of Slaves was soundly trounced by the critics who brought all their professional objectivity to bear on a book that was intensely personal, a cry of anguish and confession. He has retreated to a monastery in the California hills "in a fit of religious fervour and fraternity." And now he has released a new album, New Skin For The Old Ceremony. On it we find the usual Cohen theme: I know you need your sleep now I know your life's been hard, But many men are falling Where you promised to stand guard

But there is more humour, more consciousness of the ironic posture which has created L. Cohen the actor in a holy comedy about razor blades and eyes. Field Commander Cohen. He was a most important spy. Wounded in the line of duty

He'll be here on Thursday-both the man and the actor. When he sings Take this longing from my tongue, All the useless things my hands have done, Let me see your beauty broken down, Like you would do for one you love, remember that part of him means it because the other part knows that the Sisters of Mercy can only be visited on a raid

- Fred van driel

The Queen's album

CHRONICLES XXVI

Strindberg's The Bond

The bond of marriage and the child are the targets of Strindberg's searing examination of the Scene from Strindberg's The Bond

nuclear family in The Bond, presented February 11 through 14 by Queen's Drama Department in the Chronicles series.

The play is based on Strindberg's own divorce from his first wife, Siri, and dramatizes the intensity and emotional range of that relationship. Written in 1897, its insight is as penetrating as any we have come to understand some seventy years later. The play covers many of the ideas and feelings expressed in Getting Married, considered so revolutionary in its attitude towards complete freedom and equality of men and women, that its author was prosecuted and the book banned.

The love-hate relationship of the central characters is corrosive: they come into court grimly resolved not to show personal animosity in public; within fifteen minutes they are at one another's throats, and by the end of the play they are clinging together, fearful of the loneliness that faces them in separation. The Bond is a cry against both natural and social laws that can turn passion between two people into pettiness.

Performances are Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday at 7.30, Friday at 7.30 and 9.30. Admission is free with a programme, which should be obtained in advance from the Drama Desk.

Judith Thompson and Chris Cunningham

applications for

A.M.S. Commissioners

should be submitted to the AMS Office by 5.00 p.m., Friday, Feb. 14, 1975. All applications should be accompanied by a brief outline of the applicant's ideas for the commission.

(Interviews will be held the week of February 24, 1975)

Internal affairs

with responsibility for

- AMS Constables
- Outer Council material
- AMS advertising
- AMS clubs

Campus activities

with responsibility for

- Queen's Entertainment Agency
- AMS concerts
- Homecoming
- Room reservations

External affairs

with responsibility for

- Ontario Federation of Students
- Alumni relations
- City relations
- Conferences

Services

with responsibility for

- Journal
- Tricolor
- Who's where
- New service proposals

Education

with responsibility for

- Arts Festival
- AMS Speakers Committee
- AMS Orientation
- Short Course Series

Q.S.A. Director

with responsibility for

- Housing Service
- Pub
- Typing Service
- Printing Service

Masked dance

Indian ritual

by Joseph Petric

Discovered by Professor Asutosh Bhattacharyya of the University of Calcutta in 1961, the Chhau Dancers from Purulia, have performed extensively in India and Europe. Last Thursday evening, the Chhau Dancers performed five dances in Grant Hall as part of their first North American tour. The Chhau is a popular form of masked dance-drama in Northeastern India, the plots of which are based on dramatic segments of Hindu epics, conveyed by dance accompanied by music.

The Chhau ensemble consisted of eleven men: eight dancers and three musicians. One of the vital aspects of Asian music is that it is totally functional, whether it be ritualistic (as the Chhau dance is), or festive in nature. In these dances the members of the ensemble performed their respective functions appropriate to their social status in the Hindu caste system.

The most exciting thing that happened was the anticipation of the music by the dancers and the rhythmic accompaniment of the various dance movements. The instrumental section of the ensemble consisted of a shenai (a seven-holed double reed instrument) and two drums. The 'dhamsa' is a drum three feet in diameter which is set on the ground and played with two heavy sticks. The 'dholak' is a drum that is hung across the shoulders and played by a stick in the left hand, and an open hand on the top drum head.

It was difficult to believe that each member of the ensemble was a farmer in India, since the musical proficiency and dramatic portrayals were of a high order. Each of the dancers had a repertoire of stylized movements which represented a multitude of gods, animals, and various other characters. Similarly, the musicians had a number of melodic and rhythmic motives which they used interchangeably to introduce a new character into the drama. One of the outstanding musical features of the evening was the smoothness of the percussionist's rhythmic modulations from one metre to another.

The close affinity between music, dance, and literature is common to a great deal of Asian music. This was evident in the close co-ordination of the musical motives to the dance-drama.

That each movement portrayed by the dancers had a symbolic meaning was probably not appreciated as well as it might have been. The entire masked dance is a drama of considerable length, and the five episodes performed out of context did not allow the viewer full appreciation of the functional, musical, and dramatic qualities. Perhaps that was why there were too many empty seats in Grant Hall after the intermission.

Chhau dancer, in a ritual dance presented on Thursday evening in Grant Hall queen's concerts

presents

leonard

cohen

thursday, february 13,

grant hall,

7 and 10 p.m.

tickets: $4.00 students

$4.50 regular

john*orr room vern napier

house of sounds

Busy weekend proves .....

Individual teams strong!

Cross-country ski sweeps finals

Gaels...

This past weekend the members of the Queen's Cross Country Ski Team coached by Mr. Jake Edwards were successful in defending their OUAA Championship.

The event, hosted by RMC and situated just outside of Kingston consisted of two events. On Saturday was the relay, a 3x5 km race. A team is composed of 3 racers, each of whom skis 5 km consecutively. The Queen's A Team formed by Mike Dyer, Rod Klassen, and Peter Kopp skied to a narrow victory defeating the second place Guelph team by 16 seconds in a very exciting race. Toronto placed third. Rob MacIntosh, Richard Booth, and Phil Twardawa for the Queen's B team placed 6th. Thus after the first day, Queen's held a 220-216 edge over Guelph in the only points race. Toronto and RMC were well back from the lead.

The Individual 15 km race was held on Sunday. In this event the top three skiers from each school contribute to their teams score. All six Queen's skiers performed well. Dyer, Klassen, Kopp who placed 1st, 4th, and 7th respectively led Queen's to another victory.

Dyer picked up the gold medal for his first place finish. This boosted Queen's to a 509-405 point lead over second place Guelph in the final score. Toronto was third and RMC fourth.

The victory was a happy culmination of an undefeated season for the Queen's team.

Badminton shuttles to 3rd

by Diana Edwards

Once again the Women's Intercollegiate Badminton team showed they are made of some pretty hot stuff, as they emerged from the OWIAA Combined Final tournament in 2nd place. The two day tournament held at Waterloo on Friday and Saturday was the last of 4 meets making up a double round-robin tournament. Total accumulated points from the previous meets were added on to last weekend's results in order to determine the leading schools and individual singles and doubles winners. Queen's captured 3rd place with a total of 133 points while that inevitable foe, Toronto placed first with 157 points and was followed by Western with 143 points.

The badminton Gaels had a very good showing at Waterloo. First singles player Daphne Meredith and 6th singles Laurie Preston took top honours by each winning their singles divisions by consistently beating all opposition from ten other universities. Third doubles team Sandy Koerner and Laurie Preston triumphed in their doubles category by claiming the winners title, only after soundly defeating Waterloo third doubles team in a grueling and tense playoff held at the end of the 2 day tournament. Congratulations to these winners for the very fine effort put out this season.

The results of the 2 day Waterloo meet were successful in spite of the fact that Toronto managed to pull ahead and beat our Gaels but at least Queen's managed to triumph over their other equally dreaded opponent, Western, who ended up in third place at the end of the weekend.

First singles player Daphne Meredith was the star of the day as she made a clean winning sweep of all her singles matches. Second singles Diana Edwards and sixth singles Laurie Preston almost matched Daphne's record by emerging triumphant with only 1 singles loss each to their names. Excellent efforts were made by fourth singles Sandy Koerner who accumulated four wins and by third singles Betsy Carey and 5th singles Sandy McFarlane who had three wins apiece. Each singles player competed against the 6 schools in the West division. Western, Waterloo, McMaster, Laurier, Brock and Guelph.

Although the badminton Gaels doubles play was not as successful as their singles, they still proved that they can form some dynamic teams on the court. The successful third doubles team of Sandy Koerner and Laurie Preston swept through their opponents losing only to Waterloo, but revenge was taken the same day as the two teams competed in a play off situation for the OWIAA 3rd team doubles title. Queen's emerged finally as the winner. The dynamic 1st team of Daphne Meredith and Di Edwards fought hard and achieved a total of four wins out of six matches, while 2nd doubles Betsy Carey and Sandy Mac-

Gals....

by Barbara McDermott

Journal Sports Writer
The Queen's Gals were golden this weekend taking all three top positions in the O.W.I.A.A.X.C. FINALS which were held in conjunction with the Men's OUAA Finals.
Place: R.M.C. X-Country Ski Course (Garrison Golf Course)
Time: Saturday, Feb. 8, 1:30 pm.

Overnight a fresh blanket of snow was left on the course and by race time the skies were clear and sun was shining although a stiff wind was starting to pick up. The Women's Cross-Country Ski Team members entered in the O.W.I.A.A. Finals even, a 5 kilometer (3 mile) race, were Carolyn Broadhurst, Lauren Gallagher, Jackie Lachance, Barbara McDermott, Vivian Stacey and Heather Wilson. The other team member, Dorcas Kennedy, was away at a conference and therefore unable to compete in the finals.

This was the first year of intercollegiate Cross-Country racing for all but one of the team members. The season was started with the Queen's invitational held at Knowlton Lake on Saturday, January 25th. There under adverse conditions - rain and tracks slippery with ice - the Queen's Gals placed 2nd and 3rd. These spots were taken by Vive Stacey and Dorcas Kennedy respectively.

Practices were then hampered by Kingston's balmy January weather. The weekend before last the Gals had to travel to Ottawa to find snow. The coach, Miss Anne Turnbull, gave the team a day of thorough training and lots of encouragement. With this and the blessing of last Friday night's snow fall the Gals headed into the O.W.I.A.A. Finals.

Spirit and determination, combined with some newly acquired skill, carried the Golden Girls over the course - around sharp skate turns and squeeking through between trees. (Only one ski was caught and broken, but in true Queen's spirit our competitor Carolyn Broadhurst completed the 5 kilometers.) The Gals also had to deal with some short but tricky climbs and several downhill including one with a hairpin bend at the bottom testing the Gals' ability to perform the classic Telemark turn - without leaving skizmarks! The final stretch was a long haul across open fields facing head-on into the wind.

Results were announced and presentations made in the Lounge of R.M.C.'s Anderson Gym. First place was taken by Vive Stacey with a time of 35 min. 32 sec.; second Lauren Gallagher at 39:14; third, Barbara McDermott at 39:29. Honorable mention also goes to U of T's sole competitor who placed fifth.

Although this meet marked the official ending of the Women's Intercollegiate Cross-Country Ski Season the team hopes to compete in upcoming Ontario open competitions.

— Lyn Atwood

Farlane put forth a fine effort and added two more victories to the Queen's score.

Overall the Queen's badminton Gals have had a very successful and enjoyable season. Thanks to the efforts of their coach Bernie Houghton, and player-manager Liz Ramesbottom, the girls have been moulded into a true championship team - at least those are the hopes for next year!

Sports Round-up

Home Action

Curling: (M) Won OUAA's. Completed season 18-0 (without a loss)
Gymnastics: (M) Came 2nd in East Finals to York. Barry Brooker came top all around.
Ice Hockey: (W) Won Final League game against Western 4-3 (M) Men out of play-off position with 5-3 loss to Western.

Away Action

Alpine Skiing: Men and Women placed 2nd to Carleton at Collingwood in OUAA-OWIAA Championships.
Badminton: (W) Placed 3rd in total points in OWIAA finals. Placed 2nd in last Tournament this past weekend.
(M) Where are you?????
Cross-Country Skiing: (M) Won OUAA championship
(W) Won OWIAA Championship
Fencing: (M) Where are you?????????
Gymnastics: (W) Queen's came 2nd to York overall.
Squash: (M) Where are you?????????
Swimming: (M) Dropped to 2nd in dual meet at Canton, N.Y.
Track and Field: (M) Came 2nd at Cortland State College Volleyball: (W) Came 3rd in East Section II at Laurentian
(M) Joe - I'll see your article Wednesday night, right??
Wrestling: (M) Could not field a full team. Were defeated by St. Lawrence U. and Syracuse U.

OUAA - OWIAA Stats

OUAA BASKETBALL
Eastern Standings
Laurentian								8	8
Queen's								7	3
Ottawa								8	5
Toronto								9	4
York								7	1
Carleton								8	0

OUAA BASKETBALL
Eastern Division
Laurentian	12	10	2	1016	833	20
Ottawa	10	9	1	843	621	18
York	10	6	4	700	660	12
Carleton	11	6	5	773	744	12
Toronto	10	5	5	753	675	10
Queen's	12	5	7	802	918	10
Ryerson	10	2	8	671	794	4
RMC	11	0	11	600	913	0

OWIAA ICE HOCKEY
Queen's	8	6	0	2	14
McMaster	9	5	1	3	13
Guelph	7	3	0	4	10
Toronto	8	4	4	0	8
Western	7	0	5	2	2
York	9	0	8	1	1

OUAA ICE HOCKEY
Eastern Division
Ottawa	13	8	4	1	52	52	17
Toronto	12	8	3	1	57	33	17
York	12	7	2	3	72	35	17
Queen's	13	6	5	2	57	37	14
Laurentian	13	7	4	2	59	48	16
RMC	12	2	4	1	36	69	5

Ed. Note: Stats are as of Feb. 5. They are slightly out of date.

Ired vandriel

Gals end undefeated

When the Hockey Gals took to the ice Friday afternoon for their contest against Western their sole intent was to end the season on a winning note and undefeated in their 10 league contests. They once again got off to their characteristic fast start with Rhonda Leeman scoring just 24 seconds into the game. The rest of the match however was the epitome of frustration for Queen's, for although outshooting their opponents 31-15, the Gals had to come from behind in the third period to defeat Western and keep their undefeated streak intact. After a rather scrappy period of play Western tied the score in the dying minutes of the frame and the teams were deadlocked going into the second.

Sue Wright scored a

powerplay goal to open the 2nd period after one minute and 10 seconds of play but Western soon retaliated with two goals within a three minute span. The rest of the period was dominated by a steady procession of players to the penalty box with each side assessed three. This necessitated continual line juggling on the part of both coaches, hampering the offensive attack of the teams. The Gals found themselves in an unfamiliar role as the 2nd period drew to a close, and for the first time this season had to play catch up hockey in the final stanza. The Gals came out flying and proceeded to play hockey like they can. Les Ferrari knotted the tying marker with one twelve gone in the period, and from that point on the game belonged to Queen's. The Gals checked tenaciously and completely stymied the Western attack allowing their opponents only 4 shots on net. Les scored the winning goal (her second of the game) on a powerplay with less than 5 minutes to go and although Western mounted one last scoring drive they came up on the short end of the score. The Gals ended the game with a 4-3 victory over Western. The Gals are idle now until Feb. 21, 22 when they participate in the final tournament at York. The prospects of a championship look pretty good at present and so if you happen to be in Toronto the last weekend of Reading Week come on out and cheer your team on. The hockey should be exciting and the Gals would greatly appreciate any fan support.

Hockey Gaels out

by Jim LeMESURIER
Journal Sports Writer

The visiting University of Western Ontario Mustangs netted three early goals and then held on to take a 3-1 decision from the Golden Gaels Saturday night.

The win snaps a 4-game winless streak for Western who are now comfortably in 2nd place in the OUAA east, but more important eliminates the Gaels from post season activity. Queen's are now 2 points behind the fourth place Laurentian Voyageurs but even if they beat Toronto in their lone remaining game, they will forfeit a playoff position on the basis of goals scored between the clubs in their two earlier encounters.

The hard hitting contest played before 2,000 fans at the Harry Arena saw Queen's collect a crippling 15 minor penalties, which led to two Western power play goals, and not surprisingly, was a major factor in the Gaels inability to sustain prolonged pressure around the Mustang goal.

Bob Trevaill, filling in for one of six regular Mustangs who did not make the trip to Kingston, put Western on the board at 5:29 with a screen drive from the point and minutes later Mike O'Neil took advantage of a 2 on 1 break to beat Clyde Harris for a two goal lead. Dave Roy then made it 3-0 on a great individual effort, after intercepting a pass at his own blue line while Bill Van Camp's perfect flip pass set up Earl Moulton's goal from close range to cut the Western lead to 3-1 after twenty minutes.

Like much of the first, the second period was characterized by close checking as most of the action was between the blue lines. Steve Gross and Chris Clark were strong on defense for the Gaels while Dave Smith was the forward with the most hustle and had the best scoring opportunity when he swept around two Mustang rearguards only to be beaten by netminder Bruce Steffen.

Dave Roy picked up his second marker with just 22 seconds remaining in the period on a quick drive from the point and the 'Stangs had a 4-1 lead.

The final stanza was marred by Dave Hadden's collision with Steffen which left the Western goaltender with a broken nose and several chipped teeth which later prompted the Mustangs to leave the ice without shaking hands after the game in protest. Minutes after serving a minor penalty for the incident Hadden did some nifty stickhandling to get in front of the net and let go a shot which rebounded to an alert Ron Shepard who narrowed the margin to 4-2 at 9:36. The ten remaining minutes might have been enough for a successful Queen's rally but the penalties kept coming and the Gaels never found the chances they needed.

Peter Frazer led it for the Mustangs with his goal at 17:10 while Ted Grant replied for Queen's with 5 seconds left.

The Gaels will finish their season against the powerful University of Toronto Blues next Friday in Toronto.

Volleyball

Gals in Championships

The Women's Senior Volleyball Team travelled to Laurentian this past weekend for their final league tournament in OWIAA competition. Although the scoreboard does not indicate the level of success expected, the Gals established their playoff spot for the OWIAA championships to be held at Queen's on February 21 and 22.

The Queen's team is unique in the Ontario Universities league for three reasons. It is the only team using a specialists system which allows for each player to capitalize on her strengths (such as height, defensive or offensive skills, etc.) While clearing two rather six playing positions. As well, the Queen's team this year has been voted the strongest overall hitting, attack blocks and offensive serves. Finally, the team as a 10 woman squad, each player contributing to the strength of the team provides the third reason why Queen's has been pointed to as a top contender in the province this year and has in fact defeated every team in the league.

For the past six weeks, however, Coach Gallagher has been concentrating on developing the team's defence for it is an area that has been particularly weak with Tricolour teams of the past. This weekend it was clearly demonstrated that this work had been worthwhile. Queen's opponents had a difficult time twice putting the ball on the floor. In fact when the Tricolour got their offence rolling as well, some opponents had difficulty doing anything at all. Laurentian, a hustling "never-say-die" team, was victorious 15-4, 15-0 and the Gals, who have had little tournament play this term, had a few problems to sort out before this happened.

The first match of the weekend was scheduled for Friday evening against the University of Toronto. The tall Blues team appeared ominous when lined up across from the more diminutive Gals squads. Toronto's inexperience was evident, as they watched hits and serves, most notably from Anita Stouckers and Kathy Jeffries; bounce at their feet. Queen's took the match easily 15-7, 11-15, and 15-3.

Saturday morning was a little more challenging with Queen's facing York and Ottawa in back to back matches. The York game showed the result of a little confusion in a highly competitive game. Although Queen's played well and has York on the run with a score of 10-4, a few crucial and costly errors gave York the match 15-12, 15-7. Pat Johnson, however left the York defence standing with a few of the "free ball" hits.

Within ten minutes the Queen's squad was facing Ottawa in what turned out to be a close, hard-fought but bitterly disappointing match. The Gals team controlled the first game, winning 15-5. Jane Petterson set a well-balanced offense, spraying Ottawa with power hits from all positions. The Queen's attack lost its edge, however, losing the next two games 9-15 and 14-16.

The Carleton match was enlivened by Barbara Morreson's debut as a centre spiler, with the aplomb of an old hand and the aid of beginner's luck, she roamed the centre court lacing Carleton with hits and attack blocks. Then she served a few aces to lead the Queen's squad to a 15-7, 15-10 victory. In the meantime everyone was wondering where she was going to appear next.

Dorothy Cosgrove had a very good weekend, playing heads up throughout with a conspicuous loss of her 'fish' hand. As well, Jan Middleton's drop serve pulled in some crucial points. Support the Gals at the OWIAA Finals Feb. 21, 22.

Queen's scores first:
Laurentian 15-4, 15-0
Carleton 15-7, 15-10
York 12-15, 7-15
Toronto 15-7, 11-15, 15-3
Ottawa 15-5, 9-15, 14-16

Applications for '75-'76

Journal Editor

Journal Business Manager

Tricolour Editor

Are open until Feb. 28 '75.

Selections on March 4.

AMS Office

Dunning Hall
8:30 p.m.

MARY LOU FALLIS soprano

WEDNESDAY 12 FEBRUARY

Works by Scarlatti, Rossini, Strauss, and premiere of commissioned work by Alex Pauk

Ticket information: 547-6194

a Division of Concerts
event.

Brockington
Visitorship
Committee

A student position for a two year term is now available on this committee.

Each year the Brockington Visitorship Committee arranges for a distinguished visitor to come to Queen's for a week during the Academic Year.

Previous visitors have included Lester Pearson, Sir Bernard Lovell, Gunner Myrdal and Buckminster Fuller.

Interested applicants should leave their names and phone numbers with Gaye Clemson c/o the AMS Office prior to 5 p.m. Friday, February 14, 1975.

Londry's Drugs

Special Student rates

464-471 Princess St.

Delivery Available

546-3696

Open 7 am to 11 pm daily

The Navigators present a film
of Christ's return.

A Thief
In The Night

Dunning Hall $1.00

Wed. Feb. 26

8:00 P.M.

Study Group On Sexuality

The Counselling Service is offering a series of four study sessions on human sexuality. These sessions will include lectures and discussions on the following topics:

- 1) Physiology of human sexuality
- 2) Attitudes, expectations and sex roles
- 3) Arousal and stimulation techniques
- 4) Special topics - including dealing with sexual problems

If you are interested, contact the secretary at the Student Counselling Service. The sessions will be held weekly for four weeks starting Wed. Feb. 26th, 8:00 pm at the Counselling Service, 32 Queen's Crescent. Enrollment limited to first 25 applicants.

Queen's University

Music
Department

Graduating Recital

John Helmerts CELLO

Valerie Watts, piano

. Boccherini
. Bach
. Brahms

Dunning Auditorium: 8:30 pm Tues. February 11
Admission Free

Out of print books and reprints from around the world!

Academic Book Club,

P.O. Box 1507, Kingston, Ontario, K7L 5C7.

International Auto
Service

Specializing in European cars

419 Regent St.

Barryfield

546-9921

Perfect end to a perfect season

by Brent Heatherington
Journal Sports Writer

The Cataragui Golf and Country Club is definitely a good luck playground for Queen's teams. Last fall, it was the site of the OUAA golf championships which was captured by Queen's University. Now, less than four months later, the Men's Curling team swept to the Ontario Universities' curling title at the same club.

Over the weekend, the top three teams from the east, Queen's, York and Laurentian along with the western rinks, Waterloo, Western and Laurier competed in the round robin series. The team with the best overall record in the five games was to be declared the winner.

The action started at ten o'clock Saturday morning with each of the east teams meeting one of the rinks from the west. Queen's faced the University of Waterloo and started the ball rolling by winning 9-4 over the Warriors. The Gals next test came in the afternoon when they played the Laurentian team. The score was 13-3 in favour of the Queen's rink which made it quite obvious that the Gals were curling well and were definite contenders for the title. The tricolor squad now had a won-loss record of 2-0 but while they had been shooting down their opposition the University of Western Ontario had also come through the first two rounds with an unblemished record.

Friday night the Queen's team played Laurier in another game that failed to go the entire 10 ends. The Gals scored three in the first and third ends while Laurier took two in the second and fourth ends to make it 6-4. The Sir Wilfred Laurier rink then stole one in the fifth to find themselves only one point away from catching the Queen's foursome. This proved to be the tightest situation that Queen's were in during the whole tournament and as always Howard's boys pushed ahead of their opponents. The skip for Queen's, Mark McDonald capped off the eight ends played in this match by curling around three guards through a very narrow port to make a take-out and as a result went up two more points at the end of 10 frames. At this time, with the score 13-7, the Laurier team called it quits. The squad from Queen's had just won their third game while on the next sheet of ice York had defeated the previously unbeaten team from Western. The Gals were now all alone in first place after the first day of play.

On Sunday, York and Western had yet to meet the Queen's machine. Although it was a very early eight o'clock in the morning the Gals shut out the York rink in a full 9-0 contest in only 6 ends. Since Western had won their morning game, the UWO Mustangs were now in a position to force a play off between themselves and the Gals if they could hand the Queen's rink their first loss.

The Mustangs and the Gals now hit the ice for their second Sunday morning game. The Queen's squad scored one in each of the first three ends, two more points in the fourth and stole another marker in the next end. The score was now 7-0 in favour of the Kingston curlers and it was not until the sixth end that Western finally hit the board with a double counter. This was as close as they came to the Gals as Queen's just kept on scoring. After eight ends, losing by 9 points, the Western Mustangs conceded the game to the Queen's rink with the final score being 11-2.

The Queen's curling team had won their five games, making this a completely undefeated season, 18 wins no losses, at the university level. With scores of 9-4, 13-3, 13-7, 9-0 and 11-2 the Gals definitely proved they were the OUAA champions.

The rink of Mark McDonald (skip), Scott Kitching (vice), Phil Tomsett (second) and Tom Bryce (lead) were presented with the Ontario Universities Athletic Association trophy and crests after their fine showing. The consistently made their shots and forced their opponents to attempt tough shots which paid off royally for the Queen's team.

After the presentation, Mark McDonald thanked the rink's supporters and also the team coach Howard Pearce for organizing the curling finals. Mark said they would be back next year and so, if 1975 is any indication of the 1976 season, the other university teams may as well stay at home. Only one member of the rink, their lead Tom Bryce will be lost through graduation for whom they will have picked up a replacement by the beginning of next season. That should be said to a team that has finished the season victorious in every match except, "good curling!" Next year may we see more of the same.

photos by
Lyn Atwood

Skiers rock to second place

by Journal Sportswriter, Bert
The OUA and OWIAA championships were held at Blue Mountain near Collingwood last Thursday and Friday and unfortunately, neither the men's nor women's team were able to win the affair. The men's team was second in the slalom, 3rd in the giant slalom, and second overall while the girls were second in all events. For the men, the Carleton team skied really well to win and Rick Hunter of Carleton picked up all the individual hardware. This means that Carleton now leads Queen's for the overall Molson team title; a situation which should not exist too much longer. The winning women's team was Western while Carolyn Oughton of Waterloo won the individual title.

In the women's giant slalom, Ginny (Suckle) Honeyman blazed her way to a second place finish behind Carolyn Oughton of Waterloo. Margie (Butch) Chaput maintained her award-winning GS form by scoring a fourth while Margie (Floss) Bartlett shattered all the so-called "experts" predictions by finishing an astounding 12th. Rounding out the Queen's complement were Mary (Hustler) Chaput, Robin (Red Breast) McLeod and Stephanie (Fanny) Currie.

In the slalom event, the skiers were forced to swoop and swerve through 2 courses containing 42 gates each; one of which was set by Ernie McCulloch of "Bend Ze Knees" fame. In this race "Suckle" Honeyman was again second as she continued to provide leadership and inspiration for both the men's and women's teams. Suckle's last words before attacking the first run were "I'm a real team girl, I'm going to go for the team." Certainly a praiseworthy attitude. Butch continued to amaze as she placed 5th, "Red Breast" and "Floss" had a few difficulties but did finish the race. There are unconfirmed reports that "Hustler" Chaput also moseyed through parts of the course.

As for the men, the team was hampered at the outset by the absence of Marc Knowles, a real GS threat, who incurred two injuries at practice Monday, 1 of which left him out of action. In the GS, the best Queen's result was Ian (Burt) Neilson's 6th as he rocketed to a fantastic time of 64.00. Close on his tail was Jamie (Burly) Neilson who was 7th in 64.17 seconds. The other Queen's skiers wisely decided to make smooth, round turns and follow the advice of a coach who said "don't worry about speed and whatever you do don't fall". Thus, Bruce (Capt. Morgan the animal) Cummings strolled to 14th in 66.33, Peter (Bert) Tolnai trudged to 15th in 66.66 and Bill (Big Wally) Hartman sauntered to 17th with a 66.78. Your're a groove a Jerome.

The slalom was a totally different story however, as the team, totally relaxed, rested and refreshed headed to the hill under the inspired direction of the Bert brothers (Bert & Burt-Slalom Jocks). Things went downhill from there unfortunately as Burt hooked a tip 3 gates from the finish on his (foolishly taken) rerun to spoil his hardware aspirations. Burly Neilson also ale it so it was up to the last seeded rut runners to retain the respectable reputation of the Queen's team. As it turned out, they did just that as Bert, regaining his previous form streaked to 8th place in 78.79. Rob, (Bob) Beattie (pronounced Bee-At-Tee) charged to 9th in 79.01 and the Big Wally did his Stein Erikson imitation to 10th in 79.26.

Overall, the competition at the meet was very intense and for the first time, the competition between the Bert brothers (Burt and Bert) was restricted almost exclusively to the race. This was due in part to the unexpected arrival of Kathleen early Friday morning, at 108 pounds, healthy but a little tired. Many thanks to Burly for his presence of mind in the extended and complicated delivery. The triangle will likely be resurrected however, and rumours have it that the big Wally is sure to be involved. Thanks are also in order for Judy Cotton for a fantastic meal and a nice chalet; the big Wally for the big Wally; Molson's for running and sponsoring a great circuit; the university of Guelph gatekeepers for responding to cries of "gatekeeper, gatekeeper...bring me more beer"; Butch for her lessons in interdigitation; Red Breast for her lessons in whatever; and Suckle for really thinking of the team.

The teams will be appearing in person, for 1 day only at Mansfield (near Barrie) next Friday for another Molson series race so if you think you can take it, get out and see how much support the team really has to offer.

Through the eyes of a child Queen's future looks promising.

John Bottomley

AMS Housing Lottery

Tuesday March 4

Grant Hall

FEB. 26 DATE CANCELLED DUE TO IMPORTANT FINANCIAL CONSTRAINTS FORUM

Rules and procedure

1. The lottery establishes only a position on the waiting list. The number of units available of any size depends on the number of renewals. There is usually a 50 percent turnover. We will know which apartments and houses will be available on March 1, at which time you will be informed if you have a unit.
2. The lottery is open only to Queen's students who will be registered for the academic year 1975-1976. Blue cards must be presented at the lottery or at the AMS office by 5 pm Fri. Feb. 28 if a place on the list is obtained. You don't have to stay for the draw, but it is up to you to find out if your name is selected.
3. Each student is entitled to only one ballot which can be applied to only one type of dwelling unit. If two ballots are found in the same name both will be destroyed. However, if you are applying for a five-man house, for example, all five prospective tenants may apply.
4. An individual whose name is drawn and who chooses to accept the dwelling must be a tenant of the unit, and must have his name on the lease (and be legally bound by the terms of the lease).
5. Units leased through AMS Housing based on number of single bedrooms.

3 bed-sitting
4 large bachelor
11 one bedroom
7 two bedroom
1 three bedroom

3 four bedroom
10 five bedroom
8 six bedroom
1 seven bedroom
1 eight bedroom

Barry Brooker of Queen's takes top all-round honours with three 1st and one 3rd.

John Bottomley

Wrestling ....

Has tough luck

This past weekend the Queen's Wrestling Gaels encountered some extremely powerful competition and unfortunately lost very badly to St. Lawrence U. and Syracuse U. at a triangular meet in Canton, N.Y. The team was beset by two major problems which it could not overcome and can be used to explain the poor results. The team has recently been decimated by injuries, so the active squad of the team consisting of only seven wrestlers, was not able to field a full team for the meet on Saturday, even though three competitors from R.M.C. competed along with the Queen's team. The second reason for the poor showing was that the team had to compete under the archaic N.C.A.A. rules which vary significantly from the Olympic Freestyle rules which are utilized in Canada. N.C.A.A. rules were abandoned five years ago in Canada so that consequently only one member of the Queen's team had competed under them.

Only five members of the team made the trip. Of these, only Randy White 167 lbs. was able to win a match over SLU. The other competitors for Queen's, Del Demonte 177 lbs., Al Stewart 126 lbs., Ron Daddon 142 lbs., and Ed David 190 lbs. all failed to overcome the handicap of the rules and consequently lost. The competition was extremely tough considering that Syracuse is ranked as the number one team in New York State and also possesses a national ranking. St. Lawrence U. has an extremely tough team, usually finishing high in their divisional championships.

Next weekend the team will travel to McMaster where they will compete in the OUA championships. The remnants of the team still have much spirit and confidence and should do well at the championship.

Chris Woods

Swimming Gaels 2nd

Last Wednesday night, Queen's Swim Gaels met St. Lawrence University at Canton, N.Y. for a dual meet competition. For a small university, SLU boasts a few very good swimmers, whose efforts managed to keep Queen's from coming out on top overall. However, the men swam well. Several best personal times were recorded. John Scheulderman, Joe Schmittler and Don McLean all dropped seconds off their previous best times, set on Feb. 1st at the Queen's Invitational. Brian Dalziel took 3rd in the 500 freestyle and 2nd in the 1000 (making his best time this year at 11:39.0) John Pearson took 1st in the 200 fly with a seasons best of 2:09.3 and a 3rd in the 200 freestyle. Leo Hwozdyk took a 3rd in the 50 free and a 2nd in the 100 free, being touched out in the latter by teammate Al Cameron. The men's free style relay team swam to first place over SLU. In diving, coach Bill Kirkpatrick decided to give himself a workout and pulled off a 3rd place on the 1 metre and 2nd on the 3 metre. Good efforts were shown by Fred Kallin and Kerry Powell.

The men start a 2 week taper this week in preparation for the OUA finals Feb. 20-22 at McMaster.

THE OLD GALS ARE COMING !

editors note: stay tuned

PUBLIC NOTICE

The annual General Meeting of the Alma Mater Society, Inc. will be held on March 3, 1975 at 7:15 p.m. in Stirling D. Any member of the AMS Inc. may attend, speak to motions, and vote. Any member wishing to discuss a specific item of business must provide the secretary of the Corporation (c/o AMS office) with the exact wording of any motions to be proposed at the annual meeting, prior to 5:00 p.m., Friday, Feb. 14, 1975.

Something to "cheers" about:

Now the glorious beer of Copenhagen is brewed right here in Canada. It comes to you fresh from the brewery. So it tastes even better than ever. And Carlsberg is sold at regular prices. So let's hear it, Carlsberg lovers. "One, two, three... Cheers!"

BEFORE ANYONE VOTES

TOMMORROW, WE FEEL THAT IT'S IMPORTANT THAT A COUPLE OF THINGS BE SAID ON BEHALF OF THE PAPER.

THE STUDENT LEVY FOR THE JOURNAL WAS LAST RAISED IN 1968. EVER SINCE THEN WE HAVE HAD TWO WAYS OF INCREASING REVENUES TO MEET RISING PUBLISHING COSTS. ONE HAS BEEN TO RAISE THE AD RATE, THE OTHER HAS BEEN TO INCREASE THE PERCENTAGE OF ADVERTISING CONTAINED IN THE JOURNAL.

WE ARE NOW IN A SITUATION WHERE OUR AD RATE IS COMPARABLE TO THE WIG-STANDARD'S AND OUR PERCENTAGE OF ADVERTISING IS AT ITS CONSTITUTIONAL LIMIT OF 40% (AS SET BY THE AMS.). GIVEN THE GLOOMY ADVERTISING FORECAST AND WITHOUT THE LARGER JOURNAL FEE, THE SITUATION COULD WORSEN TO A POINT WHERE WE MAY NOT HAVE A PAPER.

IN ADDITION TO THIS WE HAVE A PROBLEM IN THAT THE POSITION OF EDITOR IS LUDICROUSLY UNDERPAID. THE HONORARIA WAS SET IN 1938 AND HASN'T BEEN RAISED SINCE ($200.00 PER YEAR). THE COST OF DOING THE JOB IN TERMS OF EXTRA EXPENSES AND LOST SUMMER REVENUE IS BETWEEN $1500.00 AND $2000.00.

WHEN YOU CALCULATE IN THE RISING COST OF LIVING, THERE IS A VERY GOOD CHANCE THAT PEOPLE WILL NOT DO THIS JOB 3 OR 4 YEARS FROM NOW. THEY WILL NOT BE ABLE TO AFFORD IT.

AND THAT'S THE WEATHER.

WE HOPE THAT YOU WILL SUPPORT THE JOURNAL.

PLEASE VOTE.

THANK YOU.

T. Collinson
THE QUEEN'S JOURNAL

Queen's
Journal
ONE HUNDRED AND ONE
YEARS ON CAMPUS.

PLEASE NOTE: IN ORDER NOT TO INVALIDATE YOUR BALLOT, IF YOU VOTE YES TO PART A OF THE JOURNAL LEVY QUESTION—PLEASE VOTE YES TO ONE AMOUNT AND NO TO THE OTHER IN PART B. DO NOT VOTE YES TO BOTH.

BUS-IT...YES—1724; No—1194.

PROJECT GREEN...YES—2266; No—519

HONORARIA...(a) YES—1608; No—1024; (b) YES—2131; No—488;

MBA...YES—2458; No—690

JOURNAL LEVY...YES—1634; No—1346 (increased by $1.50; 1235; by $3.00; 385).

Gray reconsiders OFS as mass rally is planned

by Ian Jarvis
Last weekend's province-wide "emergency conference" of OFS delegates, held in Toronto, has left very serious doubts in the minds of Queen's representatives about future OFS support.

It was decided at this meeting that a mass rally of students be held on the steps of the Parliament Buildings, sometime near the end of March, in order to vocalize the interests of the federation, as the representative voice of the Ontario student.

"I feel they're living in the late 60's. At this point I'm seriously re-evaluating our $1.50 per student levy," John Gray, President-elect, expressed his sentiments of OFS.

The direct outcome of the meeting was the construction of a four-point program to be given to Education Minister James Auld when he will meet with OFS within the next two weeks. It was explained at the conference that the reason for the minister's decline from the meeting set up by OFS prior to this was due to his being totally consumed by legislative responsibilities. The minister, however, did consent to a future meeting with the OFS.

Gray felt this delay on the part of the minister was a reflection of the government's disrespect for OFS. One reason for his re-evaluation of OFS is, Gray says, "They don't have the ear of the people at Queen's Park. The politicians are treating them like a bad joke."

Among the strongest of the OFS recommendations was the renewed demand for free tuition and the establishment of living stipends for students. They emphasized that this should be implemented without reduction in the faculty or other staff of universities in Ontario, an obvious reaction to fears that if free tuition were ever implemented the province would cut down on faculty in order to reduce costs.

The major criticism of the discussion at the meeting was that the idea of free tuition seems to have become a fetish with OFS organizers at the expense of coming up with effective short-term solutions to many students' problems such as housing and food costs. Gray also suggested the creation of a concert committee through OFS which would be able to organize tours from a province-wide level.

Another observer at the conference, Bruce Trotter, made the point that it is almost impossible to negotiate for increased B.I.U.'s when at the same time you are demanding free tuition.

The OFS problem as he sees it is that they've left themselves with no room to bargain. Trotter saw this conference as an opportunity "for all the old beefs to be brought to the forefront instead of looking at the immediate problems which were the catalyst to this meeting."

Trotter added that he felt the entire mood of the OFS had shifted quite radically from the business orientation he saw in it two years ago to the present issue-oriented political consciousness.

Open forum on cutbacks

Are budget cuts lowering the quality of education at Queen's? Is there really a crisis in university funding? How is society being affected? Should the government take any action?

Queen's people will have the opportunity to debate the pros and cons of increased support to universities with a group of experts, to take place after Reading Week.

The occasion is an Open forum on Financial Constraint in the University, sponsored by the student Senators and the AMS, which is scheduled for Wednesday, February 26 in Grant Hall, 8pm. Six panelists, representing the Ontario government, the University, and the community at large, will explain the situation as they see it and outline their positions on what should be done.

Members of the audience will then be given a chance to state their own opinions and to challenge the views of the speakers.

The panelists will be Ben Wilson, assistant deputy Minister of Colleges and Universities, John Grace, editor of the Ottawa Journal and chairman of the board of the University of Ottawa, Queen's Principal Ronald Watts, Doug Tousignant, president of the Alcan steelworkers' union, Arts and Science Dean D.G. Sinclair, and Medicine student senator Peter Lane. Dr. G.A. Harrower will be moderator of the discussion.

Election results

there may be a recount.
Next year's president of the Engineering Society will be Dave Turnbull with 421 votes; opponent Dave Boone received 270 votes. For treasurer Kim Sturgess—554 votes, (Hadley Leipziger—113 votes). For secretary Paula Luck—355 votes; (Charley Murdoch—325 votes). For Development Committee, Chris McNally—451 votes, (Tom Taylor—196 votes). For Services Control Committee Chairman, John Moreland—378 votes; (Jack Russell—283 votes).
It was estimated that 55 percent of the Commerce Society voted in the society elections which found Bob Butterill with 197 votes, voted in as the new president, (Steve Loughheed—161 votes). For vice pres, Geoff Davenport—203 votes; (Gail Slater—154 votes). For treasurer, Lynn Plumber with 273 votes; (Clare Prendergast—70 votes). For secretary, Diane Crause with 161 votes; (Karen Croft—104 votes). For senior AMS Rep, Sue Bennett won with 161 votes.

Queen's
Journal
Volume 102, Number 38
Friday, Feb. 14, 1975

wat's hapnin'?

Pubs and Theatres

Manor - The Platters
Commodore - Oz
Townhouse - Daniel
101 Inn - Ray Smith
Frontenac - Finnegan's - Nigel
Frontenac - Muldoon's - Allan Rgody and Friends

Capitol 1 - The Groove Tube
Capitol 2 - Robinson Crusoe
Odéon - Front Page
Hyland - Young Frankenstein

Friday, February 14

10:00 a.m. - Department of English lecture with Prof. Morton W. Bloomfield, Arthur Kingsley Porter Prof. of English, Harvard University. The subject will be language-oriented literary criticism. In Watson Hall Rm. 517.

11:00 a.m. - Department of Psychiatry Conference: "Psychoanalysis Comes to Canada. Dr. Ernest Jones, Toronto, 1908-1913" with Mr. Thomas Brown, Department of History. In Etherington Auditorium.

3:40 p.m. - Classics Department presents episode No. 6 of the Odyssey series entitled Sirens and Isle of Sun. Rm. 114 Earl Hall.

5:30 - 5:20 p.m. - The Arena at Queen's will be closed.

7:30 & 9:00 p.m. - Department of Drama presents Chronicles XXVII "The Bond" in Studio Theatre Room 102.

8:00 p.m. - Department of Film Studies and Division of Concerts: "Wild Child". Close study of the "civilizing" process as it touches the life of a young child found living in the wilds. Admission $1.50 at the door. In Ellis Auditorium.

8:15 p.m. - Queen's Basketball Gaels vs. Toronto.

Saturday, February 15

10:00 - 12:00 noon & 4:30 - 5:20 p.m. - The arena at Queen's will be closed.

8:00 p.m. - Bitter Grounds and Good Times Emporium is the only source of weekly live entertainment on campus. This weekend is the incomparable Colleen Peterson. Admission is $1.50 and tickets are available till 4:30 Friday in the John Orr Room and at the door.

At Agnes Etherington Art Centre the recent acquisitions of "Old Master Drawings" in the National Gallery of Canada: circulated by the National Program. Continues to March 15.

Sunday, February 16

10:30 a.m. - Morning Worship at Chalmers United Church

10:30 a.m. - Folk Mass, Dunning Hall, followed by coffee and donuts at Newman House, 164 University Ave.

PICK UP A PIZZA

1/2 PRICE

UPON PRESENTATION OF STUDENT'S CARD

MONDAYS and TUESDAYS
BONNUCCHI'S

PIZZA 546-1444 546-2050

Re:opening of Nominations for:

ASUS
President & Vice President (slate)

ASUS Secretary

All nominations must be submitted by noon, February 27th in the ASUS office (Macintosh-Corry, B105) and must include signatures of 25 members of the society.

Cotton's
Sporthouse 399 Princess

30% OFF

ON BOOTS,
SKIS
AND CLOTHING

Students should pay, not plead: Kingstonian

by Paul Bennett

"The University should be an asset to the city-not a liability. The modern students can have their liquor, cars, and immorality while attending school, why haven't they learned to pay for what they want and can afford as most taxpayers have to, instead of pleading to the public for their support." These lines are taken from a letter written by an anonymous Kingstonian in response to a letter written to the Minister of Colleges and Universities, James Auld, by AMS External Affairs Commissioner Alan Huehn.

Huehn's letter regarding the financial squeeze was sent on behalf of the AMS to the Minister on January 27, and was published in the Globe and Mail and the Whig-Standard. In it Huehn emphasized the importance of the university to society:

"Universities provide the foundation which enables an individual to design a bridge, analyse a political situation, understand the course of a medical disease, and comprehend the principles underlying any other area of specific interest."

In order to provide the necessary atmosphere conducive to education, he emphasized that a low prof-student ratio must be maintained. Under current pressures this would be impossible:

"It is becoming increasingly difficult to retain our high quality faculty when substantially more attractive offers are being made by universities in other provinces, in the United States, and indeed even by our own governments. Obviously the quality of our education will decline."

Huehn pointed to other areas where we are being hit. Our library budget for the acquisition of books is 50 per cent of what it was 3 years ago; some of our lab equipment will have to wait 80 years before being replaced in light of the 12 per cent inflation rate, the increase in the Basic Income Unit of 74 per cent for 1975-76 is hardly adequate. Huehn concluded his letter with a plea to the government for a re-evaluation of priorities.

The letter from the anonymous Kingstonian was read to the members of Outer Council at the last AMS meeting. Despite frequent snickers of various members of Outer Council, Huehn felt the letter was well received. Huehn concluded that the author of the letter was probably elderly and probably had a limited amount of education. Throughout his (her) life, he (she) had witnessed the growth of the university.

"Have you never looked around the university grounds and realized how many houses have been torn down to make way for all those elaborate buildings? Houses that were putting tax money into city funds, but when Queen's obtained those houses, the taxes were passed on to people who were already taxed for their own property. People who had worked for a lot less money than the students are demanding from their employers today. People who had put their sons or daughters through school long before student loans were available." The author of the letter cautioned students not to be pushy and demand better employment simply because of a university education. Why should they bypass a man who has worked years to gain seniority?

Huehn expressed respect for the author of the letter and suggested that we should re-evaluate our position as students. How much are we willing to sacrifice for an education? How much should we expect the government to do? According to Huehn we should not expect the government to do everything. However, as his original letter to Auld stated, he feels that at the present time they are certainly not providing enough financial support.

One man's politics

by Doug Bonnell

Her name is Margaret Hilda Thatcher. She is 49 years of age, a barrister and a research chemist. As of Tuesday, February 11, she is also the leader of Britain's Conservative Party. For the first time in modern history, a woman heads a major political party in an industrialized western society.

Her victory was by no means luck. The daughter of a grocer, Mrs. Thatcher worked her way through school on scholarships, conducted successful careers in both law and chemistry and came to the British House of Commons in 1959 representing the London suburb of Finchley. Following the Conservative upset victory in 1970 she was named Minister of Education and Science, training both departments through her tough and highly conservative ideological filter. Because of her approach, and because she cut off free milk rations to primary school children, she became known as Margaret Thatcher, the milk snatcher. Following up on such an honour she was dubbed by the London Sun, "the most unpopular woman in England."

By challenging and defeating Edward Heath, and by overwhelming her competition on the second ballot with 146 of the 273 votes cast, Margaret Thatcher has achieved two things, one good, the other bad.

First the good news. She has made a major political breakthrough for women ironically enough at the start of International Women's Year. As Flora Macdonald, member of parliament for Kingston and the Islands, remarked: "She has established the credibility of women as candidates and once it has been established it cannot be denied." Miss Macdonald herself is rumored to be considering a run for the leadership of the Canadian Conservative Party and Mrs. Thatcher's win does wonders for increasing Flora's chances for success.

And now for the bad news. On her own admission Mrs. Thatcher's win symbolizes a move to the right for Britain's Conservative Party. Her leadership could mean a deal with both maverick Enoch Powell who favours restricted immigration into Britain on the basis of colour and a cabinet post for Sir Keith Joseph who wants larger families limited to the British upper class. Nice, eh? Mrs. Thatcher's win was at the expense of moderate conservative William Whitelaw who condemned her approach arguing instead that, "we can achieve unity only through moderation, breadth of vision, and generosity."

There is no doubt that as a result of Mrs. Thatcher's win the Conservative Party will attempt to galvanize the radical, right-wing streak in the British electorate. Hopefully they will not succeed, and chances are they won't. As one MP commented on his new leader, "She is not only a woman. She's the wrong sort of woman. She might be acceptable in the suburbs and seaside resort areas. I cannot see her making much of an impact in the industrial northeast and Scotland."

It's unfortunate that in a time when women are smashing political barriers and offering people of the calibre of Flora Macdonald for leadership positions, that the first major breakthrough should come in the form of Margaret Thatcher, milk snatcher.

Stirling Hall

Fewer janitors; damage feared

by Ian Jarvis

The Physics Department at Queen's, which resides in Stirling Hall, is presently in a quandary as to how to safely keep the building open on weekends in light of the recent decision by Physical Plant to cut back janitorial staff during this period.

The department, explained Dr. G.T. Ewan, wants the building to remain open in order to provide students access to its library on the weekend. However he is concerned about the custodial problem since Stirling houses a great deal of valuable scientific equipment. To have the building open but unsupervised would only invite vandalism, Ewan pointed out.

The department's present solution has been to hire a commissionaire who is on duty at the building's main entrance and whose job it is to check that people moving in and out are Queen's students. Ewan does not look upon this as a permanent solution and has been trying to negotiate another arrangement with the physical plant through Arts and Science Dean Duncan Sinclair. One of Ewan's proposals is to have less janitorial staff during the week so that services could be extended over the weekend.

In response to this, Mr. G. R. McNeill, the head of Physical Plant, said this has already been happening over the last two or three years. It has now reached the point where the services cannot be stretched out any further. McNeill said the Stirling situation is being faced by most departmental buildings on campus since in an effort to reduce costs the janitorial services were cut by 10 per cent about two weeks ago. McNeill felt that if they want to keep the building open the hiring of commissionaires for the weekend periods was the most reasonable way to handle the problem.

classifieds

Otherwise

BIG DAY Happy Birthday and VD Day. May the golden rod forever quiver at your door. Hope holdings in Whistful Company pay off. May our Brachioradialis interlock forever. Love DJ.

LOST - a pair of glasses, Tues. night at Wallace Hall. If found please phone 542-0794.

LOST IN MEN'S LOCKER ROOM Thurs. Feb. 9, one pair sheepskin gloves, Reward. They're the only ones I've got and it's cold out. Call Colin 549-4284, Please.

GUITAR FOR SALE. Immaculate condition Gibson hollow body ES335 TD. List price, with case is $850.00. Must sell for $350.00. Call 546-0490.

LOST - One Slatenger squash racket in the reserve room of the library on Tuesday, Feb. 11. Reward offered. If found please call 546-2317.

PULL OUT SOFA BED, full size, reasonable condition, $65. Frontenac and Earl, 544-1873 after 5pm.

TO THE PERSON in the blue coat crossing University at Union at 1pm, Tuesday Feb. 11. Sincere apologies from the driver of the white car.

HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY to the 7 boys who join us in rocking on Purple Room Pandemonium and ales of all kinds. Love, "The girls".

eastern Canada's snow-cloud scraper

- Skiing from November to May.
- 31 miles of superbly groomed trails.
- 4 new runs.
- New base chalet.
- 12 lifts.
- Over 8,000 skiers hourly.
- 2050' vertical drop.
- Trails for novice to expert.
- The only gondola lift in Eastern Canada.
- 5-day ski week: use of lifts $27.50, lifts & lessons $40.00.

Snow reports:
Toronto: (416) 483-4510
Montreal: (514) 861-6670
Quebec: (418) 827-4579

Parc du Mont Sainte-Anne
P.O. Box 400, Beaugre
Quebec, G0A 1E0
(418) 827-4561

GOVERNEMENT DU QUÉBEC
MINISTÈRE DU TOURISME
DE LA CHASSE ET DE LA PÊCHE
DIRECTION GÉNÉRALE DES PARCS

EXTRAS NEEDED FOR A FILM, male and female, 18-25. Call 542-0742 or Elfrond College Room 1590. Ask for Fernando Monte.

I.R.C. BANQUET - Wednesday, March 5 at 8pm in Leonard Cafeteria. Guest speaker is Mr. David Lewis, federal N.D.P. leader. Tickets available in meal lines Feb. 24-26, in John Orr Room Feb. 25 and by mail from Business Office.

NEED PASSPORT OR JOB APPLICATION PHOTOGRAPHS? at Photo Image we have a student rate of $4.00 for six prints. For an appointment call us at 546-7770.

PLANNING A SPRING WEDDING? Photo Image offers complete photographic coverage tailored to your individual needs, from as little as $90. For further information call us at 546-7770 or visit our studio at 33 Brock St. and see the photographs we have done for others.

To the person who stole my watch from my locker in the PHE centre, Wed. Feb. 5 anonymity and $50 for its return. Phone 544-0687 to give your choice of exchange.

PRISONERS working on a research project on youthful offenders need volunteers to be their arms and legs in the community; also needed are two typists for one afternoon a week for letters, bulletins and reports. For more information call 542-9151. Or write John D. Prince CYP Collins Bay Institution, Box 190, Kingston. WE NEED YOU.

RECYCLE YOUR BOOKS AND RECORDS: We sell records on consignment; that is, you get $1.50 for every one of your records that sell. Needless to say, good rock, blues, jazz, folk records sell-out quickly. We also have umpteen used books for sale. The Book Bin,

225 Princess, 548-4871.

TO ALL LOVERS OF BANANA BREAD: Brooks Wilson will be holding a symposium on this subject in the Pub on the afternoon and evening of Friday Feb. 14.

TO THE AGING ELECTRICAL ENGINEER WITH THE PAPER AIRPLANE and the grandfather from nowhere in particular. Greelings. Remember, in 1974 Kojak was voted the sexiest man of the year.

IF WE COULD JUST this one time (we don't want to offend you or anything) send our love to the sweethearts of 2nd Gordon. Chubb

DAVE B. I doubt your intentions, but not your potential. Admiring from afar.

VROO Panda wants to be your little VALENTINE. Happy A. and Happy V. Love L.T.

Yes Virginia, there is a campaign blurb

by Virginia Morse

In the wake of acclamation for the AMS presidential team, it appears that a few people are being taken in by a very large joke or alternatively, that the majority of students at Queen's are unaware of the potential for personal growth that is inherent in participation in the internal politics of the university. As a former part-time student, involved politically on campus since 1971, I continue to find administration and planning at Queen's a highly stimulating alternative to straight academics, and similarly a rewarding channel for community service. In presenting my Senate platform, I urge all students to consider at least familiarizing themselves with the different political bodies on campus, ranging from Senate to Faculty Boards and School Councils to the AMS and individual year societies.

As incumbent Senator for a period of one year, representing undergrad Arts & Science students, I am currently seeking re-election for a second one-year term, terminating in August 1976. As a second year Honours Psych hopeful, I intend to complete the last three years of my degree program by May 1976. My qualifications for Senate membership include a determined willingness to serve the university in the area of long range planning, specifically with attention to preserving the unique quality of education currently available at Queen's. With increasingly oppressive financial constraints, attention to the detailed ways in which cutbacks affect the educational experience of the individual student becomes of paramount importance. Likewise, it is necessary to exercise shrewdness and insight in establishing academic policy.

As one of three student members of the Senate Committee on Academic Development (SCAD) I have, since November, enjoyed exposure to the financial, political and from among our own ranks, human pressures which need be taken into consideration in planning the annual operating budget, enrollment projections, and principles of academic expansion. In 1968, under the leadership of Principal Deutsch, a policy of Steady State enrollment was adopted for implementation in 1975. Here we are, brushing our fixed ceiling of 10,000 students, severely short of finances, and in the hands of a government whose policy of university funding (the inimitable BIU) is based on per capita enrollment according to faculty or school. The incentive, as it now stands, is to expand an already unwieldy student body, further exhausting capital resources (libraries, lab equipment, food services, residential and social accommodations, academic buildings, grounds) and systematically undercutting the calibre of instruction. The challenge before us now is to check the undesirable consequences of a shrinking budget, preserving in the meantime, an educational environment that is conducive to relaxed, personal inquiry. Certain key assets must be preserved: low student-staff ratios, small classes (with all due apologies to Economics) in senior year courses, flexible and extensive library hours and materials, accessible faculty office hours, curricular variety and most essentially, an atmosphere of eager exploration that incorporates individual diligence and cooperation in the

See VIRGINIA Page 15

Pub debate

by Andrew Douglas

Last Wednesday night in Wallace Hall the Queen's Debating Union held its first pub debate. The resolution was 'that you haven't had enough until you've had too much', and the audience ended the evening by voting in favour of the government. Needless to say, most of those who battled the work load, term paper marathon and mid-term inflation on the eve of reading week were more disposed towards agreeing with this resolution in the first place.

Pub debating is a new form of debate for most students at Queen's since it calls for much audience participation and a witty rather than rationalistic approach to argument. Certainly this issue under discussion was not intended to change the state of the world - much less the state of anyone's mind.

Now that the ice has been broken by the efforts of Messrs. George Gregory, Allen Austin, Graham Sellers, and Monte McMurchy - not to mention the vivacious presence of speaker Alan Frizel - the Debating Union is hopeful of hosting similar pub debates against teams from RMC and Western.

It is hoped that by making use of this format which has proved very successful on other campuses, that many will be attracted to the merits of debating as an art which can only be improved through experience.

For those who believe they have some debating skill which can be displayed outside the bar room as well, the Debating Union will be holding an intermural tournament in March open to every undergraduate on campus.

AN ENGAGEMENT INVESTMENT IN BRILLIANCE

Popping that all important question... leads to her all important diamond. Our staff of experts is ready to help you find the right diamond at the right price. Wisely you'll choose the finest engagement diamond... a dazzling investment that brings huge dividends... "happiness" for all her tomorrows.

KINNEAR D'ESTERRE
JEWELLERS
168 PRINCESS STREET
KINGSTON, ONTARIO

Something to "cheers" about:

Now the glorious beer of Copenhagen is brewed right here in Canada. It comes to you fresh from the brewery. So it tastes even better than ever. And Carlsberg is sold at regular prices. So let's hear it, Carlsberg lovers. "One, two, three... Cheers!"

THE BIG ONE

Big taste, big satisfaction

EXPORT A
THE BIG ONE

Canada's most popular cigarette.

Warning: The Department of National Health and Welfare advises that danger to health increases with amount smoked.

ALMA MATER SOCIETY OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY,

HOUSING LOTTERY

Rules and procedure

1. The lottery establishes only a position on the waiting list. The number of units available of any size depends on the number of renewals. There is usually a 50 percent turnover. We will know which apartments and houses will be available on March 1, at which time you will be informed if you have a unit.
2. The lottery is open only to Queen's students who will be registered for the academic year 1975-1976. Blue cards must be presented at the lottery or at the AMS office by 5 pm Fri. Feb. 28 if a place on the list is obtained. You don't have to stay for the draw, but it is up to you to find out if your name is selected.
3. Each student is entitled to only one ballot which can be applied to only one type of dwelling unit. If two ballots are found in the same name both will be destroyed. However, if you are applying for a five-man house, for example, all five prospective tenants may apply.
4. An individual whose name is drawn and who chooses to accept the dwelling must be a tenant of the unit, and must have his name on the lease (and be legally bound by the terms of the lease).
5. Units leased through AMS Housing based on number of single bedrooms.

3 bed-sitting	3 four bedroom
4 large bachelor	10 five bedroom
11 one bedroom	8 six bedroom
7 two bedroom	1 seven bedroom
1 three bedroom	1 eight bedroom

FRIDAY
FEB. 26

(Final and for sure date)

GRANT
HALL

Doors open
6-7

Draw at 7:15

applications for

A.M.S. Commissioners

should be submitted to the AMS Office by 5.00 p.m., Friday, Feb. 14, 1975. All applications should be accompanied by a brief outline of the applicant's ideas for the commission. (Interviews will be held the week of February 24, 1975)

Internal affairs

with responsibility for

- AMS Constables
- Outer Council material
- AMS advertising
- AMS clubs

Campus activities

with responsibility for

- Queen's Entertainment Agency
- AMS concerts
- Homecoming
- Room reservations

External affairs

with responsibility for

- Ontario Federation of Students
- Alumni relations
- City relations
- Conferences

Services

with responsibility for

- Journal
- Tricolor
- Who's where
- New service proposals

Education

with responsibility for

- Arts Festival
- AMS Speakers Committee
- AMS Orientation
- Short Course Series

Q.S.A. Director

with responsibility for

- Housing Service
- Pub
- Typing Service
- Printing Service

An opinion

Think of shackles as bracelets

ED. NOTE: In his article "Be Liberated But Stay Free", published in the Queen's Journal, Fri. January 31, Dave Merrilees expressed his opinion of the Women's Liberation Movement. Though he acknowledged the equality of women in so far as ability was concerned he felt that their own recognition of this status gained a bit too far. He described the image of woman as a "delicate, beautiful yet breezy being" so resented by the women's libbers, as being one of the "Corsetones of our culture." In short, he expressed his fear of what might be coming: "I am terribly concerned for our culture as it exists today. Because of the misguided approach of the liberation movement, the woman in society is in grave danger of losing her identity altogether."

In closing he admonished women to recognize their capabilities but not to the extent of undergoing an identity crisis while doing it. "So please, by all means, make your life style more free, but I implore you, don't stop being women in the process."

by Ken Shuji Ohtake
A counter-opinion to Dave Merrilees'

"Be Liberated But Stay Free"
Notwithstanding dictionaries, Mr. Merrilees is a male chauvinist. His denial of this label on the basis of a formal meaning of chauvinism in the face of its popular interpretation, is a device of intellectual obstructionism which denies the vitality of a living, peoples language. At any rate, semantics may have placed their "ladies" on pedestals but did they do the same for women of the peasant or working class? Aristocracies may have placed their "ladies" on pedestals but did they do the same for women of the peasant or working class?

Mr. Merrilees concludes with the glorification of "the image of the delicate, beautiful and breezy being" (breezy being?) which he considers woman. It is exactly what he calls it: an image, an idealization which for women in general, never was and never shall be, short of genetic mutation. Certainly, many artists portrayed women according to this image. But who were the artists whom our culture has deemed as the world's greatest and who were their patrons? In both cases, they were predominantly men. Therefore, their portraits of women were reflections of the idealized male roles. That women envy these roles? Yet, it is not the role itself but the power and prestige that the role represents which is envied.

Mr. Merrilees continues by saying, "I am terribly concerned for our culture as it exists today." His concern is well founded for a culture which is based on self-deceiving prejudice and discrimination, and the subjugation of half its people will probably die trying to justify its myths.

He laments the "dissolution of the aristocracies, which were the bastions of true chivalry." Which aristocracies and what chivalry? Many Knights of the Round Table were so depraved that they failed to achieve a vision of the Holy Grail. The chivalry of Henry VIII was well known by each of his wives. Louis XV was chivalrous enough to pay-off his debauched and disfigured mistresses then had them married-off to some discreet courtiers. In a more modern perspective, what chivalry was shown by the industrial aristocracy to women of the working class? Aristocracies may have placed their "ladies" on pedestals but did they do the same for women of the peasant or working class?

Mr. Merrilees concludes with the glorification of "the image of the delicate, beautiful and breezy being" (breezy being?) which he considers woman. It is exactly what he calls it: an image, an idealization which for women in general, never was and never shall be, short of genetic mutation. Certainly, many artists portrayed women according to this image. But who were the artists whom our culture has deemed as the world's greatest and who were their patrons? In both cases, they were predominantly men. Therefore, their portraits of women were reflections of the idealized male

Working mothers films

Last Spring, the NFB released a group of 8 films, which focused on the problems and issues faced by working mothers. These films were directed, produced, and edited by Kathleen Shannon and five of the nine people who worked on the films were women. Because of the success of these films, a women-in-film unit has been established in Montreal.

The Introductory film ITS NOT ENOUGH (16 minutes) gives an overview into the working situations of women and the many problems they experience; inadequate day care, unequal pay, poor job opportunities, and the difficulties of raising a family while working. Canadian Working Mothers Statistics . . .

1. The median annual income for working women in Canada from all sources is $4,800.00; for working men $9,700.00.
2. Women represent more than 1-3 of the labour force in Canada. More than 1-3 of married women work outside their homes. 75 per cent of them work full time.

Queens
Journal
Vol. 102, No. 38
Fri., Feb. 14, 1975
Queen's University
at Kingston, Ontario

Editor: In Chief Suzanne Sherkin
Business Manager: Terry Collins
Managing Editor: Dan McClelland
News Editor: Sarah Yarnell

Assistant News Editor: Nancy Flood
Features Editors: Wendy Rey, holds, Laurie Gibson
Arts Editors: Kerry White, Peter Haworth
Sports Editors: Lyn Atwood, Suzanne Jackson
Photo Editor: Jon Willmer
Walt's Happenings: Rosemary, Jennifer
Which Way Canada: Doug Bonnell
Letters and stuff (that don't appear): David Colburn (at this point) comment Re. last press night before READING WEEK (YEAH). We had a whole bunch of real good fun talking about what to say about the two BODS on BACKPAGE (IN CASE YOU MISSED IT), and whether we should try harder to be like GOLDEN WORDS when we GRDW UP, and howcome SARAH never saw my bad side, which is FILTHY. 'Cause she was too busy lookin' at the BODS on the BACKPAGE, and howcome QUEEN'S PEEPS hate us so much (or is it just a plot by GOLDEN WORDS and the AMS). 'Cause we really are good and nice and our MOMMIES LOVE US SO.

Founded in 1873 and published on Tuesdays and Fridays during the academic year by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University, Incorporated, Kingston, Ontario. Founding member of Canadian University Press. Editorial opinions expressed are those of the editor and not necessarily those of the AMS nor the University. Telephone (613) 547-2486. Printed by gnomes at the St. Lawrence Printing Co. Ltd., Prescott, Ontario. Lithographed in USA on Canadian newsprint.

THE BOOK BIN

225 Princess
(next to the Capital Theatre)

WE
BUY and SELL
Paperbacks, Textbooks
and Antiquarian Books
USED RECORDS
Sold on Consignment

ART REPRODUCTIONS POSTERS

Please Bring US Your Books and Records

George Budy
sporting goods
40 Princess Street
Kingston, Ontario
K7L 1A4
Tel. 613-542-2263

You make the deal -
Volk and Atomic skis
Nordica and Henke Boots
Woods, Topher & Actra clothing
plus accessories
Put together a package for yourself,
we're reasonable people.

Artsci '78 Crests

now available at
The Campus
Bookstore

Applications for '75-'76

Journal Editor

Journal Business Manager

Tricolour Editor

Are open until Feb. 28 '75.
Selections on March 4.
AMS Office

it's a dog's life

- photos by jon willmer

classifieds

More on Page 4

Otherwise

FOR SALE: MEN'S 10 speed bicycle complete with accessories: 8 months old. Pioneer Electrostatic headphones, 6 months old. Pentax Spotmatic - F complete with accessories $44.40.

THE WILD WOMEN OF 6D would like to wish our brother floors: 2nd, Brockington, 2nd Gordon, and 4th McNeill (that's you Sandy). A Happy Valentines Day Love and kisses (you ain't seen nothing yet) from Puck Bunny, Sue, Easy, Don Jane, Lynne, Bugs, Brew, Mimi, Leslie, Miss D. Pepsi, Lori, Sue and Al, Marg, Mom No. 1 B, Gwen, Donna-engineer, Janet and Jane, Lili Nurse, Sheila, Toots, Maureen, Freshie caps, Heather, Jockette Red, Vickie, Mom No. 1 A, Sandy, Barb, Nurse, Newb and Freshie Free-Raper. MOHAMMED ALLI - HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY!!!

BO DIDDLEY wishes you a HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY! Better tan a phone call, eh?

HI HEINIS! Are you reading this - Happy Valentine's Day! Mark, where are you?? That's Mark Gabinet - G-A-B-I-N-E-T - (He really does have a last name).

For sale: Panasonic 4-track reel-to-reel stereo tape recorder with 10 tapes. $159.00. Phone Tom at 544-8912.

A KISS AND A HUG to Lovebuddy - the cute little man about to be my Valentine. From your own little liddle lart.

THE PAGE IS TERRIFIC Mike. Thanks a lot. Happy Valentine's Day, and hopes of hugs and kisses. Jen and Rosemary.

HAPPY VALENTINE'S to Kerr and Laur and Bird; the 3 boys think your dum sugar and lloee and a really nice piece. XXX.

HAPPY Valentine day peened JUDY FROM TORONTO, Wendy from Sudbury, Red and Patrick welcome to thee. We're glad that you've come, since we dig the fun of winning, dining and loving you.

LOST: A ladies watch, with black strap, call Donna 549-5350, if you find it, I need it a whole bunch.

IF C. BANQUET - Wed. March 5 at 8pm in Leonard Cafeteria. Guest speaker is Mr. David Lewis, federal N.D.P. leader. Tickets available in mail lines Feb. 24-26.

In John Orr Room Feb. 25 and by mail from Business Office.

RIDE WANTED TO CORNELL UNIVERSITY in Ithaca, New York or any place along Route 81 (Syracuse or Cortland) on Fri. Feb. 14. Please call Carolyn at 549-4129.

CROSS COUNTRY "TOURING" SKIS FOR SALE. Excellent condition. "Askiem Elite" 215 cm. Boots as well. Size 43. Willing to negotiate price. Will be here for weekend only. Call Paul 544-4417.

FOR SALE: TEXAS INSTRUMENTS (TI-2510) Electronic Calculator in excellent condition. Performs chain and mixed calculations. Reasonable price. Please call 544-0144.

ROOMMATE NEEDED FOR A LARGE 2 bedroom apartment on campus, preferably a grad student. Call Michael Carley at 542-4403 or see in John Watson Hall office number 105.

SPOIL YOURSELF with a good book for reading week. Get lost in a novel, learn a relaxing hobby, or catch up on the new poets. All at the CAMPUS BOOKSTORE.

K2 COMPETITION SKIS for sale, 205cm. Original cost $210. Will sell them for $95, or best offer. Also Aris down-filled ski gloves, best offer over $8. 544-7717.

TO MY TWO THIRDS HOSTS (Harry and Chris) of Sunday evening. I extend my most sincere thanks for the lovely dining and entertaining. A la guitar. Humbly, your last third, Ann.

HAPPY VALENTINES DAY, QUICK-DRAW!

FOR SALE: A Yamaha CLARINET in excellent condition. Includes Selmer HS 2-star mouthpiece and collapsible music stand. Asking $100, but willing to negotiate. Phone 544-4481.

Housingwise

Needed: 2 bedroom apartment near campus if you have any please contact 544-8243 or 544-8345

TO SUBLET: two bedroom apartment in Elrond. Large kitchen, living room, balcony with view, underground parking. Close to campus and downtown. Rent negotiable. Call 542-2518, after 6:00 pm.

QUICK, Phone 544-7737: 544-7738 or 544-7739, if you have a three or four bedroom apartment to get rid of. NAME YOUR REWARD! (Then we'll name ours.)

Need a place to stay this summer? Rent our apartment! May to August. Best view in Kingston, 15th floor. Fully furnished with piano. Rent negotiable. Call 542-2518, after 6:00 pm.

AVAILABLE MARCH 1 - one-bedroom apartment. Large balcony, excellent view. Elrond College - 12th floor. Phone 544-1842 days, 542-2310 evenings.

5-MAN HOUSE to sublet. May-Aug. inclusive. Close to campus. Completely furnished. Will rent as a house or individual rooms. Rent negotiable. Call 549-4926.

SUMMER SUBLET: Rooms in a 6 person house completely furnished, close to campus. Rent negotiable. Call 549-2614.

SUBLET: May through August. Of special interest to nursing students. Spacious three-bedroom, fully furnished apartment near Victoria Park. Close to two bus routes. Rent very reasonable. Phone 549-4839 or 542-4462.

Roommate needed to share large two bedroom apartment on campus. Preferably grad student. Call Michael Carley at 542-4403 or see in Watson Hall No. 105.

TO SUBLET: for May, June and July. Large 2 bedroom apartment, modern equipped kitchen. Large spacious living room, close to campus and downtown. Rent negotiable. Phone 542-8835 after 5:30.

ROOM AVAILABLE for the summer - completely furnished kitchen, bedroom, stereo and TV - right near a laundromat, campus and downtown. Applicants phone 544-2885. Rent around $50/month.

TO RENT: air-conditioned one-bedroom apartment close to downtown and campus. Laundry facilities in building. Must take over May 1. Rent $135. Phone 542-1379.

TWO ROOMS AVAILABLE for upper-year males in a six bedroom house, close to campus and downtown. Lease begins Sept. '75. Rent about $60 monthly plus utilities. Phone 544-0457.

WE ARE LOOKING for two intelligent women to share our 4 bedroom, 2 bathroom and livingroom apartment, starting May or September. Call Norm at 544-0401 or John Bottomley at 542-3178.

Valentine
For My Love - GA

HOW DO I LOVE THEE
LET ME COUNT THE WAYS

I LOVE THEE TO THE DEPTH AND BREADTH AND HEIGHT MY SOUL
CAN REACH WHEN FEELING OUT OF SIGHT

Happy
Valentine's
Love, Bob

WE FILL STOMACHS
WITHOUT EMPTYING
WALLETS.

277 Bath Rd.

Faculty of Arts and Science
Spring Convocation

If you expect to graduate on May 31, 1975, please make sure that your name is included on the degree list in the Arts and Science Faculty Office.

Unless this is done you run the risk of having your name omitted from the final official list.

Artsci '77 Elections

FOR

President
Vice-President
Secretary
Treasurer

Social Convenor
Publicity Convenor
Mens and Womens
Athletic Sticks

for the 1975-1976 term

Tuesday Feb. 25TH
7:30 P.M.
Stirling "B"

Bob Dylan's new album richer, more gentle sound

Blood on the Tracks
Bob Dylan

by Dave Card and Tim Runge
Bob Dylan's newest album reaffirms his position as one of the most prolific artists of our decade. It presents ten of his most recent compositions, all creations of individual merit which demonstrate conclusively Dylan's continued refusal of the complacent mediocrity that so often infects those who have reached the top of their field.

Blood on the Tracks features a new combination of musicians, who do complete justice to their task, and the traditional and innovative lyrics that have always been the mark of Dylan's individuality.

Reviewers are invariably tempted to use a new Dylan album as proof of a patrician analysis of the course of his artistic development, but such judgements tend to obscure their appreciation of the individual album. It is enough to say that Dylan's voice and instrumentals are becoming richer and less erratic as his artistry turns inward.

Old Dylan fans should not listen to Blood on the Tracks expecting Dylan's characteristic vocals such as those in "Just Like a Woman" or "The Mighty Quinn". The entire atmosphere of this album seems suppressed, more toned down than some of his earlier recordings. His voice seems richer and quieter, and in many instances the fight seems to have left him. Much of his bitterness has subsided and no longer is he preoccupied with protest, he sings of love, and of the love that was but no longer is.

Dylan still maintains his brilliant lyrics, and sings them with that characteristic feeling that makes him one of the most mesmerizing poet-singers of modern times. As always, he writes using detail and description that add a dimension of emotion found in so very few contemporary artists.

"A Simple Twist of Fate" is an outstanding example of the toned down atmosphere of the album. It is a haunting tune full of richness, beauty and tranquility. "Lilly, Rosemary, and the Jack of Hearts" is a successful attempt at balladeering. "Shelter from the Storm" is another of several commendable compositions.

Blood on the Tracks is an excellent example of Bob Dylan's immortal talent for seeing and feeling, for writing and singing about life in a way that almost hurts, because of the sheer impact and power of his simple, almost blunt style. We recommend that you listen to this album, and accept the man for his sheer genius as an interpreter of life.

This record was provided courtesy of Kelly's Stereo Mart, 111 Princess St.

Seductive ads

Subliminal Seduction
by Wilson Bryan Key

by Tony Davis

The sub-title for this revealing work, "Ad Media's Manipulation of which advertisers will go to sell their products. This 'media rape', as Key describes it, is immoral and devious, in that the forms of advertising involved are aimed at our subliminal consciousness; we are not aware of what is being perpetrated, but the message is still received.

In our conscious minds, we may see a simple ad for some variety of alcohol, but buried within the ad are often sexual suggestions that we subliminally register in our subconscious. Nearly everyone in North America has heard of some American Movie theatres that would flash stills of "Buy Pepsi" or "Buy Popcorn" on the screens, and concessions would boom. Most people believe that such methods have been made illegal. Such is not the case, states Key. Although legislation was introduced during the late 1950's and early 60's advocating a ban on subliminal advertising techniques, no such laws have ever been passed. The advertisers simply went underground, and devised new techniques.

In 1962, a machine called the tachistoscope was marketed. This film projector could flash messages every five seconds at 1-3000 of a second - not long enough for the message to be consciously viewed, but long enough for it to be received subliminally. These insidious mind-programmers have come a long way from the tachistoscope. Now a projector hooked up to a rheostat can project light intensity with messages more subtly than the tachistoscope ever could.

Particularly revealing in Key's Subliminal Seduction is a number of colour advertisements with descriptive interpretations throughout the text. Magazines, liquor, and cigarette ads are the greatest perpetrators of subliminal advertising. From Camel cigarettes' family motifs to Benson and Hedges' virility messages, all are carefully implanted in our minds. Not that subjects like virility are implied in ads, they are broadcasted. Key sees such techniques as being immoral, since the readers are being deceived, and, in some cases, programmed to buy certain products.

Liquor ads are the most blatant subliminal advertisements. One of the most obvious is the ad for Gilbey's gin. A frosted, moist bottle of gin stands next to a glass of gin with four ice cubes and a slice of lime. Careful inspection of the bottom three ice cubes will reveal the letters S-E-X formed in the white crystals in the cubes. You will find yourself unable to look at the ad without seeing the word sex.

Key goes into much greater depths of interpretations on the subliminal techniques in the Gilbey's ad - such pornography! Another popular area in the media for subliminal advertising is in magazines. Cosmopolitan has its male castrating image; Playboy has developed profound means of selling copy. Since a certain number of reading public will buy an issue on its cover alone, a great deal of money is spent by Playboy to insert subliminal messages into the cover picture. It is not the nude that necessarily sells the cover, but what she is holding or doing. Often the image of a mother suckling is displayed, and other such homey formulas are common.

In all, Subliminal Seduction is a work worth buying so that the reader can see and defend himself against this "media rape". A weakness of Key is his near paranoia of ads: he cannot see an advertisement without envisioning a host of symbols to be subliminally communicated to the public. While this is the case to a certain extent, the image-conscious Key does argue too strongly. Nevertheless, this is an excellent book, one that should be read by all.

Many thanks to Smith-Hill Bookstore, 193 Princess St., for their generous donation of this book for review.

BOOKS

Greb Kodiak Boots
Sizes 4 to 13
Lee style stripe Bib Overalls
14 oz. jeans - Bootleg or flares

Your largest selection of denims and casual wear.

Larry's Men's Wear

354 King St. E.
Just three doors from Princess.

BOOKS

WITH 10 - 35% DISCOUNT

from the retail price - your own selection from the titles available in North America, Europe or Soviet Union. No shipping or any other charges. Send order or write for details to

ACADEMIC BOOK CLUB,

P.D. Box 1507, Kingston, Ontario, K7L 5C7.

CHOOSING THE RIGHT
CAREER ISN'T EASY

We'd like to offer you a challenge - a career in dealing with professionals - a career in Life insurance sales and/or sales management.

It's one of the few careers that offers you freedom of action and decision and an unusually high measure of security and personal satisfaction.

We know it isn't easy choosing the right career. Perhaps we at Metropolitan Life can help you make the right choice. Why not drop by and see us. We'll be on Campus on:

Tues., February 25, 1975

Metropolitan Life
Where the future is now

Artsci Formal

Saturday March 8, 1975.

9:00 pm - 2:00 am

at the 401 Inn

$8.00 per couple

Two Bands - Cold Buffet
drinks purchased at the Bar

Tickets on Sale for Artsci 76'ers
Mon. Feb. 24 and Tues. Feb. 25

Ticket sales open to campus starting Wed. Feb. 26.
All ticket sales in John Orr Room - 10:30 - 1:30.

Judith Thompson and Peter Palmer

Careful acting but lacking theme

by Donald Stephen

Strindberg's The Bond is the one-act tragedy of a man and woman who are ineluctably bound together by their child, even as they sue each other for divorce with all the venom and acrimony of sadistic carnivores.

Strindberg, himself was a rabid anti-feminist, ever pessimistic about relations between the sexes, and ever warning of the dangers of predatory females. While our present times are witnessing many careful re-evaluations and proposed reformulations of the basic relationships between woman and man, animadversions on feminism, such as Strindberg's, are now unfashionable, to say the least.

This, I think, is the basis of the problem with Brian Meeson's production of The Bond. The most economical and forceful interpretation of the play has been shied away from by Meeson and company, and the production has been left blunted and without the organizing, acerbic core that the misogynistic and misogynistic Strindberg intended.

And that is a pity, because the component parts — the set, the costumes, the performances of the players — reach a reasonably high standard. Without the centre of gravity that a solid central theme gives, they are good instruments out of concert.

Judith Thompson's performance as the Baroness is a well-controlled, finely calibrated portrayal that even achieves electrifying results in the final scene. As the Baron, Chris Cunningham has the confident, disdainful, aristocratic manner that one might expect of the character, even if he is frequently conspicuously overly "theatrical". Wes Lack, as the Judge in the court proceedings, does a fine job as the young rookie jurist, though more careful attention to cadence and modulation would improve his performance.

Peter Palmer, David Dietrich, Brian Beattie and John Frizell have obviously given thought and care to the preparation of their secondary roles as minor functionaries and observers of the suit of the Baron and Baroness. And although the players in the roles of the jury members tend to automatically jump up to give their lines and just as quickly sit down again, like so many pieces of bread in an out of phase pop up toaster, their lines are spoken credibly and with conviction.

For all these reasons and more, Brian Meeson's Drama Department production of The Bond is worth seeing. By all means, go. It is only too bad that the players are not all working together around an adequately defined central theme.

Soprano in her element

by Hugh Agnew

Mary Lou Fallis in concert was truly splendid. A powerful soprano voice, mastery of vocal idiom, and an unflappable stage presence combined to make Wednesday evening's performance a pleasure for the too-sparse Dunning Hall audience. In style and presence Ms. Fallis is reminiscent of two other great Canadian vocalists, Lois Marshall and Maureen Forrester; all three seem most at home in the operatic, bel canto style.

Although the concert got off to a slow start, the rest of the evening went from strength to strength. The four pieces by Scarlatti which opened the programme seemed out of place somehow, and Ms. Fallis appeared uncomfortable in the style required for their performance. As an added handicap, the sound of the Queen's harpsichord is un-Italian and uninspiring.

The next selections, four Brentano Lieder by Richard Strauss, were very well done, on the other hand Ms. Fallis seemed more at home with Strauss's music, the emotional vocal lines and sometimes startling sonorities bringing out the involvement which was lacking in the Scarlatti works.

The three Rossini songs which ended the first half of the evening were somewhat lighter than the Strauss, but still full of Rossini's tunefulness and life. Especially fun, if today rather "cutesy", was the last song which had a yodeling figure in the vocal part.

The second half of the programme was composed of twentieth-century music, much of it by Canadian composers. The first group of songs included two delightful works by John Beckwith, a setting of the poem "Springtime" by e.e. cummings, and a hilarious nonsense song, "L'Habitant de St. Roche."

Following this group of four songs was the premiere of a work by Canadian Alex Pauk, composed especially for this concert. "Underneath the Afternoon" was not an easy work, for the performer or the audience; but it was well-performed by both Ms. Fallis and her accompanist, Eleanor May, who was called upon to play the piano both from the keyboard and from inside in this work.

The concert ended with three songs by the Spanish composer J. Turina, which were more traditional, and yet surprising at times. But the real show-stopper came with Ms. Fallis's encore, an aria from Rossini's The Barber of Seville. Here Mary Lou Fallis showed all facets of her talent: her lilting, expressive voice coupled with a real stage presence that conveyed much of the action that would be going on in the opera. Surely opera such as this is Ms. Fallis's element.

Happy Chinese New Year!
May the Year of the Rabbit bring you Happiness and Prosperity!
Queen's Chinese Club
This Year - Feb. 11

the MARKET BARBER SHOP & hairstyling salon
Peter Smits invites you to his new hair care shop
43 BROCK ST., 549-2110 KINGSTON ONT.

Bite the one you love

STEAK & STUFF
LICENCED DINING ROOM 1399 Princess (near the station)
AUNT LUCY'S RESTAURANTS

Open Forum (6 panelists, audience participation)

Financial Constraint
Weds. Feb. 26th
8 P.M. Grant Hall

Is Queen's Internal Collapse Intimate

vs.

Is University The Taxpayer's Dinosaur

Bev Wilson - Ontario Ministry of Colleges and Universities
Peter Lane - Senate Committee on Academic Development
Doug Tousignant - President, Alcan Steel Workers Union
Duncan Sinclair - Dean of Arts and Science
John Grace - Editor, Ottawa Journal, Chairman of the Board, Ottawa University
Principal Watts - Queen's University

Doors open at 7:30 P.M., Microphones Provided.

From the sports desk....

Home Action

Friday: Basketball: (M) Toronto at Queen's 8:15
Friday: Squash: (M) OUAA Finals at Queen's
Saturday: Intermediate Basketball 3:00
Saturday: Intermediate Volleyball 3:00

Away Action

Friday: Curling (W) OWIAA Championships at Western Friday: Figure Skating: (W) OWIAA Championships at Mac
Friday: Hockey (M) Queen's at Toronto
Friday: Speed Swim: (W) OWIAA Championships at Waterloo
Friday: Synchro Swim (W) : OWIAA Championships at Windsor
Friday: Wrestling: (M) OUAA Finals at Mac
Saturday: Gymnastics: (W) OWIAA Championships at Toronto
Saturday: Skiing: (M&W) at Mansfield (sorry—it's FRIDAY!)
Saturday: Track and Field: Toronto-CNE

Sports Editors note—Have a great weekend, and remember, if you don't play a sport—be an athletic supporter!

Hard fight—bitter end

Last weekend in Sudbury the volleyball Gals finished the University season at the OUAA finals. It was a slightly disappointing day for all as the boys had to take 3rd in Ontario behind Waterloo and Laurentian.

The day started off with Queen's meeting Waterloo who were to become the eventual winners. We won the first game but then stumbled to 2 losses leaving the Warriors victorious in the best of three matches. Immediately afterwards the Gals fought Laurentian and again were on the winning end of the first game. The second was a monumental battle with Laurentian having an early 12-2 lead. The Gals fought back to even the score at 14-14! From there, long volleys, great digs and good spikes saw the score and tension rise until finally the Voyageurs took the win 19-17. After this upset Queen's fell easily in the third game.

Queen's then took a break and came back to dominate Western with two straight wins. Unfortunately it was too late and the outcome was Queen's third. We have a relatively young and inexperienced team and the coach felt that it was this inconsistency that was our downfall this year. Only two of the players are in 4th year and both of these showed their prowess throughout the day.

Two rookies that will certainly help to lead the team in years to come are Ted Searf and Peter Wood. Both of these players showed some fine work blocking at the net.

Although the University play is over Queen's is also entered in the OWA league in mens Sr. 'A'. The Team will be travelling to Montreal just after reading week to play in the Quebec Invitational. Later in the year there is a qualification tournament for the National championships to be held in Quebec City. Hopefully the team can bring itself together and do well at these tournaments.

B-Ball-Gals in city league

After a 10-game schedule in the Kingston Women's Basketball League the teams participating in the play-offs were easily decided; however who would play who remained to be settled. The top four teams—Queen's, OBG's, Misfits, and Instructors—all finished on top in a 4-way tie for first place. After comparing points for and against the 4 teams, the standings were decided.

1st Misfits
2nd Instructors

3rd Queen's
4th OBG's
Queen's and the Instructors are scheduled to play a two game total point series, with the winners meeting the winners of 1st place vs 4th place in the finals. Last Sunday the Queen's Basketball team played the best game of the season, despite a 38-47 loss in the first game of the semi-finals. They are definitely not out of things, because being down by one point is like playing a sudden-death game.

With Coach Bolton behind the bench and league scoring leader Eva Stewart on the floor, the girls plan to demolish any ideas the Instructors may have about advancing to the finals. The second game of the semi-final series will be played this Sunday, Feb. 16th at 8:15 pm at Frontenac Secondary School. The girls would greatly appreciate some supporters to cheer them on to victory.

Letters to the Sports Editor

Letter to the Sports Editor.

It is a unique pleasure indeed to watch the Golden Gals play hockey. As against Western on February 8, for example.

The apparent object of the game is to crush noses with elbows, slash ears off with sticks and cripple opponents against the boards.

RIM, RAM

Many among the fans approve of, applaud, and even imitate the aggressive efforts of their icy-blooded heroes. Those not stupefied by drink dedicate their presence to invective.

The referee is, of course, thoroughly well-fed. No more stupid, blind, and worthless being could possibly crawl upon the surface of the earth, unless it is a linesman, or a number of the other team displaying ability or savoir-faire.

SON-OF-A-BITCH.
This is intercollegiate hockey at Queen's. Good Sportsmanship is exemplified, because the University and the students expect it. Play is hard but clean, and the event has an atmosphere of wholesome fun.

SHT.

Andrew Page - Arts '69

Letter to the Sports Editor.

Once again Women's Fencing has gotten a raw deal. This year right from the beginning things started off on the wrong foot with the first tournament — Queen's Women's (Fourth) Fencing Invitational, being scheduled for October 26th, while practices were not supposed to begin until October 28th! Needless to say practices began early, the team was chosen and the women fencers pulled off a first in the tournament. Things were looking good, but that was when they had a coach! The Canadian Technical Fencing Director John Andru, was to drive down from Ottawa, at least once a week to coach not only the women's and men's inter-collegiate team but a host of 32 beginners — all in a three hour period.

This would not have been so bad had not half of the dance studio, at the same time, been booked to the highland dancers. It was a real bang fencing to the bagpipes! Meanwhile, to top matters off, around the same time, a supposedly knowledgeable advisor had been appointed to baby-sit the other two practices that John Andru could not make. Inevitably, the problem of too many chiefs and too many confused Indians resulted.

However, during the time that John Andru was coaching, progress on the teams as well as with the novices was most obvious. Unfortunately the once a week appearance turned into a once a month, then not at all, and the very enthusiastic novices, as well as some team members became discouraged and hung up their foils forever. And so did the advisor at Christmas.

With such a situation, little wonder that the women's team who in October were number one — placed fourth in Part I of the Sectional Finals.

After Christmas with no coach and no advisor, a group of very determined team members practised on, coaching each other and pulled up their socks to place third in Part II of the Sectional Finals. And out of these Sectionals two of the team members, each having accumulated sufficient individual points, qualified for the all-Ontario Provincial Championships. Does this not indicate some potential? Yet the two champions had not even an advisor nor a coach to accompany them to the tournament.

Presently the team is attempting to raise sufficient money to take them to the Can Am Games in Winnipeg where they have been invited to defend their cup and championship title from the previous year. Since the WIAA will only fund a small portion of the trip, the team is trying to come up with $500. (Whether this trip will ever occur is still to be determined.)

The point of this article is that there is the interest, the enthusiasm, the determination, and most of all the potential for the sport of fencing at Queen's. Yet nothing is done by the administration. This year in the School of Physical and Health Education, 93 students signed up to be taught the basic fencing skills by one of the team members. Dozens of other students, not in Phys Ed, inquired in the fall about a recreational fencing program. Since none of the other team members, with their own academic and team commitments had the time to run the rec program — nothing came of it.

Certainly this is an indication that more of an effort should be made by the athletic department to obtain a permanent qualified fencing master. Unless things are done now, what interest there is at present will soon be abandoned as a result of the continual disappointment — and another Queen's sport will bite the dust.

Signed Erika Cook

Dear Editor,

I have followed the Gals' hockey team closely for four years. In that time I have read many of Peter Watts' articles. Some were very insulting to the players; however his "Open letter to Queen's Hockey Gals" was the last straw.

Peter is very critical of the 1974-75 Gals team but he leaves coaches Carnegie and Fields on a pedestal. Why is it that every year Queen's gets excellent intercollegiate players from other teams and by mid-season those players play in a mediocre fashion? A notable example of this was all-star Rick Leroy's performance of last year. One player who is commendable in maintaining his spirit is Ron Swan. I suggest that a large part of the problem with Queen's Hockey lies in the coaching.

Bob Carnegie's public apology to the people of Kingston in a recent issue of the Whig-Standard about Queen's rough play against Toronto couldn't have done anything positive for team spirit. I don't imagine that they were being so rough without encouragement from the bench. Perhaps this encouragement could be more profitably directed towards expressing confidence in the players and respecting their talents.

I think it is time that Peter Watts stopped using cheap psychology on the team and quit talking like a disappointed parent. He might better report the games objectively and if criticism is necessary try to give an overall perspective.

unsigned

Undefeated Game this weekend

For those of you who are interested in the Queen's Intermediate Basketball team is Undefeated in seven games this season and intends to maintain this record Saturday, Feb. 15 when they will host the University of Toronto. The University of Toronto team has only lost one game, that being the first game of the season which they lost to Queen's.

Presently the Queen's team is ranked first in Offense for the league but second for defense. This weekend's game should prove interesting because the University of Toronto is first in Defense but third Offensively. Queen's has also placed three girls in the League's top ten scorers.

Saturday is the last home game and the end of regular season play for the girls. The finals are to be held Feb. 21st and 22nd in To.

Come on out and support our Gals — Feb. 15th, 3:00 in Bartlett. They're winning!

Bews News

by Carl Fitzpatrick

Hockey: This week sees the end of regular season play in Bews Hockey. Looking at the League standings in Division I Artsci '76 is one game from its second undefeated season and has wrapped up first place. However, the battle for second place and a berth in playoff action depends on if PHE defeats Artsci Grads on Thurs. and if Artsci '78 can defeat or tie Arts '76 PHE has 14 points and Artsci 15. Division II saw Commerce '77 take first place by defeating Civil-Math Wed 5-3. Civil-Math however did manage to hold on to second and a spot in the playoffs. Division III, Artsci '77 defeated Science '78 4-2 Tuesday to clinch first place. Comm '76 losing to Law '76 4-2 has given Comm '75 a new lease on life. Each team has 12 points, however Comm '75 with a game in hand can squeeze by for second and last playoff spot. Division IX at press time, the stats not yet finalized. Bus Grads finishing the season with a loss to Science '78 6-4, have managed to accumulate 11 points, however Science '78 with 10 points; Meds and Mechanical with 9 points - and a game each to play, can certainly change the image of the final standings. Play-offs begin on Tuesday Feb. 25 at 9:30 pm with Arts '76 meeting Civil Math. Complete playoff schedule in Men's Locker Room.

BROOMBALL: Broomball saw the end of its regular season schedule today. The playoffs are to begin today and resume after reading week Monday Feb. 24.

Final standings for Division I saw Comm '76 finish in first place followed by Electrical Engineering. Division II Arts '76 survived a late season slump to retain first place; PHE took second by defeating Mining in a sudden death overtime game 1-0. Division III Bus Grads and Comm '77 had to play a sudden-death game to determine who would finish in first place. As it is not uncommon in broomball play - the game ended in a no score tie. Bus Grads were awarded first place by virtue of goals for during the season. Comm '77 however did finish in second and will meet Comm '75 in 1/2 final play on Tues. Feb. 25. Division IV Comm '75 took first place followed closely by Arts '77. Playoff schedule is posted in Men's Locker Room.

CROSS COUNTRY SKIING: West Campus Stadium was the sight of this year's Bews Cross Country Ski Race. Individual results were: P. Morrison (PHE) covered the course in 29 min 14 sec. to capture first place. Second place was awarded to P. Hamilton (Meds) with a time of 30 min 27 sec. in third place with a time of 30 min 50 sec was M. Wilson (Meds). I. Rawes (PHE) took fourth place with a time of 30 min 46 sec. Fifth place was taken by T. Scates (Civil-Math), his time was 41 min 54 sec.

Team Championship was won by Civil-Math with a combined time of 136 mins 41 sec. The Meds team were able to capture second with their combined time of 142 min 33 sec.

CURLING: In curling, this week also saw the closing of regular season play. Playoff one schedule to being this week with championship game to be played Thurs. Feb 13th. League standing saw Civil-Math and Science '78 make the playoffs with a 1-2 finish. League B Law '75 and Comm '76 were able to finish 1-2 to reach the playoffs. League C Comm '75 finished first followed by Arts '77. Each were able to reach the playoffs. Playoff action saw Civil-Math defeat Arts '77 11-2. Law '75 outpoint Science '78 7-4, and Comm '75 outscore Comm '76 9-1.

chris woods

Convenors '75-'76

How well will men's Intramurals (BEWS) be run in 1975-1976? The only way you'll know is to get involved in the administering of the units and/or the convening of the sports. Applications for convenors can be picked up in the Recreation-Intramural office (102 A of the PEC) anytime. The following twenty-five to thirty sports must be looked after: Badminton, Ball Hockey, Basketball, Relays, Bowling, Broomball, Curling, Football, Free Throw, Golf, Handball, Harrier, Hockey, Horseshoes, Innertube, Waterpolo, Monsterball, Paddleball, Rugby, Soccer, Indoor Softball, Nordic Skiing, Squash, Swimming, Table Tennis, Track and Field, Tug-of-War, Volleyball, Waterpolo - and an honorarium will be discussed when you're hired!!!

The elections for athletic stick will be coming up shortly. If you're interested in athletics and men's Intramurals in particular, then get yourself nominated, or nominate someone YOU know will do a good job!!! THINK ABOUT IT!!!

VANDERMEERS MEAT MARKET
Custom Cut Meats
Freezer Orders
Groceries

171
WELLINGTON ST.
542-1134

Crystal Restaurant
TASTY FOODS
COURTEOUS SERVICE
"THE PLACE WHERE ALL GOOD PEOPLE MEET & EAT"
STEAKS - CHOPS - CHICKEN - SEAFOOD
SPAGHETTI - SHISH-KEBAB
SUVLAKI - STROGANOFF
OPEN 7 DAYS
Try our Delicious
Shish Kebab
240 PRINCESS
TAKE-OUT SERVICE
Free Delivery
Over $3.00
KGTN 542-8515

Artsci '78 Elections

Positions open for

President
Vice-President

Secretary
Treasurer

Bews Athletic Stick
WIC Athletic Stick
Publicity Manager
Social Convenor

Nominations to be submitted by 5:00 p.m. - February 26th
to the ASUS Office.

Love Mother

50¢ OFF

This coupon entitles you to 50¢ off the price of any pizza at Mother's Pizza Parlour, 455 Princess Street, just above Division. Simply present the coupon when you visit Mother's, or when the Mother's delivery boy calls at your door.

Please, just one coupon per pizza

50¢ OFF

MOTHER'S

50¢ OFF

50¢ OFF

Compliments of Mother. Expiry Date, Feb. 28, '75
Good any day of the week

Mother's Pizza Parlour and Spaghetti House
"More than just a place to eat"

455 Princess

549-0006

Queen's takes 8 of 14 events at American track meet

In a meet held Saturday at the Gaels took it on themselves to Cortland State College New York tangle with four American anastassios orates

WIC-ly News

(Women's Intramurals)

CURLING: Two sessions have already been held and Only One more remains for You! The 3rd date is Sun. Feb. 23 from 12-2p.m. No outdoor shoes are allowed, so remember your clean sneakers.

ARCHERY TOURNAMENT RESULTS shows that Betty Dickie ended up in 1st place with 131 points.
2nd place-Suzanne Jackson-121 points
3rd place-Pam Bradley-105 points
4th place-Susan Loube-78 points
5th place-Bev Watson-75 points

BOAT RACING RESULTS: Rehab has captured 1st place with 2136 laps with Phys. Ed. finishing 2nd with 2068 laps.
3rd-Grads
4th-Arts '77
5th-Law

BOWLING: (CO-ED) This will be held on two consecutive Sundays-March 2 and March 9 from 7-9. Further details to be announced after reading week.

VOLLEYBALL: Rec volleyball continues each Thursday night while scheduled games are played EACH AND EVERY TUESDAY. Keep in mind that on Tuesday February 25 (ie after reading week), the following matches will be played:

7:15 PHE vs COMMERCE
7:15 Nursing vs Meds
8:15 PHE vs MEDS
8:15 ARTS vs REHAB

BROOMBALL: The 3rd and final broomball night is to be Wed. Feb. 26 from 7-8:20 pm. There's no work to be done, so give yourself a break! No experience necessary and all equipment is supplied.

CONVENOR APPLICATIONS: For fall and winter sports for the 1975-76 season are now being accepted. These forms can be obtained from Mo Bouris in Room 215 of PHE Complex. Deadline for applications is Friday March 21, 1975.

WIC BANQUET: Sunday March 23. The annual WIC Banquet for everyone!!! Details after reading week.

WIC ATHLETIC COMMITTEE: Nominations accepted until Friday March 7, 1975. Positions for next year are: (1) Chairman, (2) Publicity, (3) Officials, (4) Awards. Submit nomination with 10 signatures to Judy Riggins - place it in green suggestion box.

Virginia

Continued from Page 5

absence of the eminently unscrupulous competition that seems to be infiltrating the campus.

My past experience: Artsci 74 year executive & ASUS rep. Soc DSC 70-71; Eng DSC. Psych DSC & Curriculum Comm. 71-72; Psych DSC & Undergrad Comm. 72-73; Arts & Science Faculty Board (Social Sciences rep), Curriculum Comm. 73-74, Senate

(ASUS), Faculty Board, SCAD 74-75 Tricolor Selection Comm. Proposed: Senate (ASUS) 75-

I solicit your vote (in the unlikely event of an election) with the understanding that I shall continue to strive for enlightened decision-making that will benefit the entire Queen's community, and I urge everyone to take an active interest in the political developments on campus. (P.S. If there aren't enough for you, make some!) colleges: Cortland Oneonta Orweto and Hartwick. When the last tape had been broken, Queen's found it had won 8 of the 14 events on the schedule.

The Queen's weight men John Ongarato and Kevin Thompson started the meet off on the right foot by finishing first and second in the shot put with tosses of 46'10" and 45'7" respectively. Rounding out the field events were John Darlington's 2nd in both the long jump (20'8") and triple jump (43'11") Mike Forsyth's 2nd in the high jump (6'2") and Gary Tetslaff's 3rd in the pole vault (12'6").

Meanwhile on the track Queen's was easily in command. Vic Gooding broke the tape in the 60 yds (6.4 sec) with teammate Stan Woodman a close 3rd (6.6 sec). It was almost an instant replay in the 300 yds as Gooding took his second gold of the day (32.8) with Cal Cockrane 4th (34.2 sec).

In the 600 yd run Marc Macauley and Paul Spence finished 1st and 3rd with clockings of 1:16 and 1:16.7 sec respectively. Macauley also went on to take the 60 yds high hurdles. Jeff Giles star is still rising as he topped 1st place in the 1000 yds when he kicked past the field with 100 yds to go to finish in a comfortable 2:21.7 sec. In the mile run: Bob MacCormack placed 2nd (4:25.7) Scott Ogilvie was 3rd (4:31.9) and Art Stelpstra was 4th (4:34.8). In the two mile Mike DeGuda, Ted Metcalfe and Frank Okah placed 2nd, 4th, and 5th respectively.

The Relays were a fitting conclusion as Queen's outclassed the American squads. The 4x400 yd team (Spence, Cockrane, Macauley, Gooding) and the 4x880 team (MacCormack, Stelpstra, Ogilvie, Giles) both came 1st with times of 3:34.5 and 8:22.7 respectively.

Next meet is Friday at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Vests reg. $22.50 now $9.95
Shirts 20% TO 50% OFF
Sweaters 30% OFF
Pants 1/2 price SPECIAL SELECTION

ABRAMSKY'S

259 Princess St.

546-5555

SINCE 1891 - THERE'S A REASON FOR THAT!

Winter is just snow fun without it.

Molson Golden
A good smooth ale
Do you know what you're missing?

Happy Valentine's Day

- from two guys
with a heart on human circus

Queen's

Journal

Volume 102, Number 39

Tuesday, February 25, 1975

Future concerts cancelled- Finlay

It is very doubtful that Queen's students will be seeing any more concerts this year. The Queen's Entertainment Agency (QEA) recently received a letter from Joyce Roe, Business Manager of the AMS which "temporarily and finally" restricted the QEA's signing of any more contracts, for more shows this year, in the words of Dave Finlay, Manager of QEA.

The letter, sent on February 14, after the Cohen concert, came as a result of Roe's assertion that the QEA was overspent in their budget, and in light of no financial statement from the QEA to date, Roe has no assurance that further concerts can be afforded.

According to Finlay, the problems behind the lateness with his financial statement is a result of the difficulty in working with so many financial variables, what with advertising, taxi fares, and complimentary beers for the band.

Finlay also pointed out that because of the failure of the honoraria, his staff is not as enthusiastic to overwork themselves to the same capacity as before.

Although Finlay plans to have the financial statement prepared for the end of this week, he feels it is too late to make plans for concerts for the rest of the year.

Dates had been set with Van Morrison, John Mayall and Chlöwak but because of Finlay's restriction in being able to sign the final contract negotiations were called off and the concerts were cancelled. Plans for a science event early in March which was to be a formal and a variety of events also had to be called off for the same reason.

"If outside promoters come through", stated Finlay, "I'd be willing to do more concerts". He believes that the QEA is "still in a fairly decent financial position" so that things could be worked out.

In looking back over the year's concerts, he mentioned that there were more concerts this year than there has been in a number of years. So far the QEA has put on 14 concerts where only 12-14 had been the number of concerts credited to the QEA for the entire last year.

Finlay also commented that "it's too bad the AMS Business Manager's letter and the failure of the honoraria came at the same time". He had been getting better prices than most schools for most of the concerts because of his connections with the booking agents.

If he has to be his own agency, Finlay is determined to have at least one more concert this year, probably Van Morrison.

Financial cutbacks

Education squeezed

It is becoming increasingly difficult for the Faculty of Education to keep up with recent developments in education. Financial constraints are hampering the development of the Master of Education program and are restricting changes in curriculum.

Vernon Ready, head of the Faculty said that if something new is instituted something old almost invariably has to be eliminated.

Restrictions are now being placed on the growth of the Master of Education program because of an insufficient number of professors. It was originally projected that enrolment in this program would peak at about 500. There are now 300 students working part-time in the winter and full time in the summer. The Faculty has made commitments to carry part of the courses for this program off campus but according to Dean Ready it is impossible to do this as much as they would like. Because of the pressures to offer these courses in other centres Ready feels that they will have to take at least one course to Brockville next year.

"A tight budget makes it very difficult to make changes which correspond to new practices in education," said Ready. It has been decided by the Faculty Board that McArthur will offer a course in community education next year. Dean Ready did not yet know what area would be cut back in order to make this course possible.

It is becoming increasingly difficult for the Faculty of Education to provide services to the teachers in Ontario schools who take McArthur students during their practice teaching sessions. These teachers are paid an honorarium of two dollars per day and Dean Ready feels that the Faculty is obligated to operate workshops and teacher development days as a further recognition of the services which the teachers have provided.

Sabbatical leaves create a special problem at McArthur, according to Ready, because many of the staff are uniquely qualified in their field. There is, for instance only one geographer. It is impossible to replace everybody who goes on leave and often there is nobody to take over the workload of the departing staff member, says Ready.

It ain't all that bad!

wat's
hapnin'?

Tuesday, February 25

- 1:10 p.m. - Canadian Association of Physicians Annual Lecture. Guest Lecturer: Dr. Takeshi Oka. Topic: Laser Spectroscopy. Theatre A, Stirling Hall. Coffee and cookies will be served in the west lobby at 4:00 p.m.
- 3:30 p.m. - Ian Righ Fireside presents the Vaghy String Quartet. Coffee and dessert at 5:30. Music begins at 6:00 p.m.
- 7:30 p.m. - ARTS 17 will hold their year elections in Stirling B.
- 8:30 p.m. - Painters II and Nakamura. This open lecture, illustrated with slides will be given by Joan Murray in the Agnes Etherington Art Centre. Admission is free.
- 9:30 p.m. - Program on Meditation every Tuesday in Room 10, Dunning Hall. Free admission.
- 8:00 p.m. - The Continuity of Socialist Thought in Canada. This seminar sponsored by the Queen's NDP will be held in Room 218, Ellis Hall. An attempt to demonstrate the contemporary vitality of the ideal which inspired the founders of the CCF, showing how these ideas have been modified and adapted to confront present-day problems, while remaining an inspiration to NDP governments and parties across Canada.
- 10:00 p.m. - Diary of a Mad Housewife - Ellis Auditorium. Admission $1.00 at the door.

Wednesday, February 26

- 7:00 - 8:00 p.m. - Free Esperanto Classes every Wednesday in room 202, Kingston Hall.
- 7:15 p.m. - Last Lecture Series - Mr. J. Whyte from the Faculty of Law, McNeil House Common Room.
- 8:00 p.m. - Communist Meeting. Subject: Depression yesterday, depression today - time for a real change. Speaker followed by discussion. Place: Back of Kingstonian (formerly Robin Hood) Restaurant, 71 Brock. For enquiries phone 542-5097.
- 8:00 p.m. - Thief in the Night - a film of the things that could happen when Christ returns. Dunning

Infocus...

Things to do for $2.00 or less at Queen's

- Lunch - buy your lunch in cafeteria or in House of Lords (11:30 - 2:30 pm)
- eat in the newly redecorated lounge "The Merv Market" in Clark Hall
- eat in Wallace Hall for a change

- Films - Campus Movies - 7:00 and 9:30 pm
- Thursdays for $1.00 in Dunning Hall
- Graduate Student Society Films - $5.00 for season ticket
- individual prices also - Fridays in Ellis at 8:00 p.m.
- Film Department Films - Tuesday and Thursday in Dunning - 8 p.m. - $1.00 - (buy series tickets at the beginning of next year - also individual admission)
- Kingston Film Society - $8.00 for the season information. Mrs. Kathy Rogers 131 Notch Hill Road Apt 301

- Entertainment - Bitter Grounds - Saturday 8:00 pm - admission ranges from $1.50 - $2.50 - Clark Hall lounge

- Division of Concerts (now called Performing Arts) Program

Hall Admission $1.00. Sponsored by the Navigators.

8:00 p.m. - A lecture will be given on the art of rejuvenating mind and body through the simple natural technique of Transcendental Meditation. Stirling Hall, 412A

8:30 p.m. - Moscow Chamber Orchestra in Grant Hall. Tickets available at Divisions of Concerts Box Office, Agnes Etherington.

8:30 p.m. - Queen's Astronomy Club and Kingston Chapter of the R.A.S.C. are having their regular meeting in Room 323, Ellis Hall. Special guest speaker will be Mr. Ken Chilton, from the Hamilton Branch of the R.A.S.C.

Thursday, February 27

- 7:00 p.m. - Psyc. Smoker. Jack Harty; 8p.m. Humphrey Hall, Grad Lounge
- 7:00 - 9:00 p.m. - Food Budgeting - Lecture by Elizabeth Randall, nutritionist in Dupuis Auditorium.
- 7:00 and 9:30 p.m. - High Plains Drifter and Part 6 of Indians. Dunning Hall Auditorium. Admission $1.00.
- 7:30 p.m. - Modern Printmaking - Open lecture given by Michael Rothenstein in Agnes Etherington Art Centre. Admission is free.
- 8:30 p.m. - Recital. Jennifer Peace, trumpet; Joyce Newman, French Horn; June Richards piano. Harrison-Le Caine room 120.

Pubs and Theatres

Frontenac - Finnegan's - Paul Ketner
Frontenac - Muldoon's - Rodney's Glory
Commodore - East End Brigade
1011 - Major Hoople's Boarding House
Town House - Canon

Hyland - Life and Times of Grizzly Adams
Oleum - Front Page
Capitol 1 - Groove Tube
Capitol 2 - Longest Yard

- pick up information folders at Info Bank
- tickets available at Agnes Etherington Art Centre

AMS Concerts - run throughout the winter season and admissions are usually over $2.00

Grand Theatre Productions

Chronicles - Drama Department - watch for announcements

Ban Righ Firesides - see announcements.

Galerie Victoria - see announcements

Galerie Victoria - held in Victoria Hall Common Room

Museums on Campus:

Geological Science Museum - in Miller Hall - 9:00 am to 5:00 pm weekdays

Biology Museum in Earl Hall

Anatomy Museum in the Old Medical Building

The Optical Observatory on the roof of Ellis Hall is open at no cost for specially arranged public demonstrations - arrangements should be made with the Astronomy Group, Stirling Hall (547-6271)

Queen's University Music Department

Graduating Recital

JOYCE NEWMAN French Horn
JENNIFER PEACE Trumpet
Accompanist: June Richards

Harrison-LeCaine Room 120 8:30 Thursday 27 February Admission Free

Cineguild presents

Clint Eastwood
HIGH PLAINS
DRIFTER

Thursday Dunning Hall
7 and 9:30 $1.00

Hockey Specials

Limit one per customer

CCM Hockey Gloves
Reg. 84.95 Now $39.95

CCM Hockey Gloves
Reg. 74.95 Now $34.95

CCM Hockey Gloves
Reg. 49.95 Now $19.95

CCM Shin Pads 16 1/2"
Reg. 34.95 Now $19.95

CCM Elbow Pads
Reg. 30.00 Now $19.95

All Ski Clothing by Anba, David S. Reed, Innsbruck
Up To 30% off

Nylon Mini Rucksack
Assorted Colours
Reg. 4.95 Now $3.79

FINLAY'S SPORTS

93 Princess St.
Phone 548-8255

An open letter to Auld, and Auld's reply

In late January, AMS External Affairs Commissioner Alan Huehn wrote a letter on behalf of Queen's students, to Minister of Colleges and Universities James Auld. The letter was published in both the Globe and Mail and the Whig-Standard. Auld's reply to the letter was received by the AMS just recently. Both letters are printed here.

January 27, 1975

Dear Mr. Auld:

On behalf of the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University I express our deep-felt concern over the Provincial Government's decision not to provide sufficient funds to offset rising costs imposed by the present inflationary economic trends. University expenditure per student as represented by the value of the Basic Income Unit will increase only 7.4 percent in 1975-76. This is hardly adequate when considered in the light of a projected 12 percent increase in costs due to inflation. The lack of revenues for necessary expenditures has resulted in such drastic measures as deficit financing, a measure which can only be temporary and in the long run can only compound the problem.

As students we recognize that increasing costs affect all segments of society and that we must show responsibility in meeting the economic challenge. Over the past number of years, because revenues have not kept pace with inflation, Queen's has had to slash its operating costs repeatedly. For example, our budgets for the acquisition of books for the library are now 50 percent of what they were three years ago, and at the present rate of replacement lab equipment in some of our faculties would have to last eighty years before it could be replaced.

However, our primary concern has to do with the quality of our education. The function of a university is to impart knowledge so that students may learn to think for themselves and cope with problems they will encounter in our future society. Universities provide the foundation which enables an individual to design a bridge, analyse a political situation, understand the course of medical disease, and comprehend the principles underlying any other area of specific interests.

In order to provide an atmosphere which is conducive to this form of education, students must be able to interact with their professors on a personal basis. This is essential to the entire philosophy of obtaining a university education. Queen's has done its utmost to protect his relationship and has attempted to maintain a relatively low student to staff ratio.

Nevertheless, under current pressures the situation is changing and it is evident that cutbacks in staff will have to be made in order to pare the budget. It is becoming increasingly difficult to retain our high quality faculty when substantially more attractive offers are being made by universities in other provinces, in the United States, and indeed even by our own governments. Obviously the quality of our education will decline

It is for this reason that we wish to inform you, the Minister, and the public of our immediate concern, in the hope that the Government will re-evaluate their priorities. I would most appreciate a reply which would indicate those measures that the Ontario Government may consider in order to alleviate the financial constraints placed on this university.

Sincerely,

Alan Huehn
AMS External Affairs
Commissioner

February 10, 1975

Dear Mr. Huehn:

Thank you for your letter concerning the allocation of funds to universities in 1975-76.

Initially, I should like to point out that whereas expenditure on universities will rise by 16.9 percent, provincial revenues for the same period are forecast to rise by only 12 percent. This is certainly proof that we are attempting to maintain the viability of our universities. University support is the fourth largest Government program. The Government believes that the $568 million provided for 1975-76 will be sufficient.

The primary concern of all Governments today is to maintain social and economic stability in the face of inflation. Clearly, this is incompatible with meeting everyone's expectations. Universities, like all other sectors of society, must bear some of the brunt of inflation. However, I can assure you that their load is no heavier than anyone else's.

Some further information might be of interest to you. Canada spends more of its gross national product on higher education than the United States, France, Germany, Japan and the Scandinavian Countries, according to the latest O.E.C.D. reports. Ontario's expenditure on higher education, in turn, rose 20 percent faster than the rest of Canada in the last decade. Ontario also spends more per capita. It can be fairly said that Ontario is the most favoured jurisdiction in the world concerning expenditure on higher education.

Concerning the quality of education, the faculty/student ratio in 1964-65 was 13.8 to 1. In 1974-75 it is a fraction below that. If quality is suffering it is not related to increases in class size. I hope I have answered your concerns and demonstrated our good intentions in relation to the universities.

Yours sincerely,

James A.C. Auld
Minister

Forum on finances

Queen's students and members of the Kingston community will have a chance tomorrow night to voice their views on what should be done to deal with the financial crisis facing the university so the quality of education at Queen's can be maintained.

The occasion is an Open Forum on the Implications of Financial Constraint in the University sponsored by the student senators and the AMS, which will be held tomorrow at 8 p.m. in Grant Hall.

Six speakers representing the university, the provincial government, and the rest of society will examine the problems facing universities and will make suggestions as to what action, if any, should be taken to solve them. The speakers will be

Ben Wilson, Assistant Deputy Minister of Colleges and Universities; John Grace, editor of the Ottawa Journal and Chairman of the Board of the University of Ottawa; Doug Tossignant, president of the Alcan Steelworker's Union; Queen's Principal Ronald Watts; Arts and Science Dean D.G. Sinclair; and Peter Lane, student senator for Meds and Rehab.

Since the forum's emphasis is on audience participation, each panelist will be limited to ten minutes speaking time, allowing ample time for questions and proposals from the floor. All students and members of the university community concerned with the future of Queen's are urged to come, state their opinions and grill the speakers.

Second term sex

The Birth Control Center continues the Human Sexuality series this term with four more sessions:

Pregnancy and Childbirth - Feb. 26
Sexuality and the Law Mar. 5

Homosexuality Mar. 12
Morals and Ethics Mar. 19 (tentative)

Feature speakers, films and discussion are the format. This is the fourth year this informal program has been offered and the selection of themes reflects the most popular sessions of the past as well as the interests of this year's coordinators.

Pregnancy and Childbirth will focus on "natural childbirth" with a guest speaker from the local Lamaze chapter and a film. Family Court Judge George Thompson is taking time from his busy schedule to help us present Sexuality and the Law, a review of special cases in the courts that will be of interest to all members of the Queen's community.

For the homophile discussion we are expecting guest speakers from campus groups in addition to one from Montreal or Toronto. George Hislop, a well known spokesman from Toronto, sparked a controversial session last year.

Morals and Ethics is a very tentative title for the last presentation which we hope will be a meaningful conclusion to the series. Topics for consideration are the myth of the sexual revolution, the current swing back to traditional marital, familial and sexual values, the impact of women's lib, and the too often undefined issues of religious faith and chastity.

Please note the new times and dates. All these sessions are being held on consecutive Wednesday evenings at 7:30 pm in Dupuis Hall auditorium.

Rehab Executive

Rehabilitation Therapy Society Executive 1975-76

President: Mary Bradford P.T. '77

Vice President: Sheila Conway O.T. '77

Sec. Treas.: Sandra Hobson O.T. '76

Social Convenors: Linda Connors P.T. '77

Hedy Cirincione O.T. '76

WIC Representatives: Sue Henrie O.T. '77

Ruth Vandstone P.T. '77

External Affairs Ministers: Karen O'Shaughnessy P.T. '76

Mary Lou Mackey O.T. '76

A.M.S. Rep: Jenny Bognall P.T. '76

WHAT WOULD YOU
SAY?

IF IT WERE YOUR LAST OPPORTUNITY TO ADDRESS MANKIND, WHAT WOULD YOU SAY?

"THE LAST LECTURE SERIES"

is a series of informal evenings combining listening and discussion

TONIGHT

Dr. T.C. Willett

HEAD OF THE
SOCIOLOGY DEPARTMENT

Topic: From Soldiering to Sociology

Everyone Welcome

TIME: 7:15 p.m. - McNEIL COMMON HOUSE
CO-SPONSORED BY AMS ED. COMM. AND I.R.C.

Drop outs find future

During the early seventies, universities experienced a sudden drop-off in attendance. Some of this was attributed to high school graduates' disillusionment with the educational system and their desire to experience the 'real world'. After dropping out and spending a few years travelling or working returning back to school seemed out of the question, for 'who wants to return to grade 12 at the age of 19 or 20'?

In 1973, the University initiated a Special Admissions Project. The program is designed to give those students, too young to meet the mature students requirements and those without the required grade 13 credentials.

Following their initial application and the completion of a social survey, the applicant is asked to write a battery of tests, extending over a day and a half. These tests give the admissions officer an indication of the knowledge and potential of the individual.

The tests are admittedly loaded towards academics and the 'establishment' (WASP) culture and so applicants from other backgrounds could conceivably experience difficulty on the tests.

This problem of educational discrimination became apparent to Marilyn Hood, project research assistant. In setting up the tests she allowed only 3 to be "academically loaded" while the others concentrated on abstract reasoning. A high score on any 2 of the 8 tests will allow admission. "The program is set up to be a measure of ability rather than past achievement and is viable enough to be integrated into the regular university program", were the comments of Gerald Wilde, chairman of the special admissions panel. His attitude in working with the program is the hope of salvaging those intellectually capable.

With basic requirements of a grade 10 education and the applicant being between the ages of 18-20 years, there is a total number of 80 S.A.P. students enrolled presently, a relatively modest number in light of it being the only long-term, thorough special admissions project in Canada.

Once admitted the applicants receive no special treatment, although their progress is closely recorded by the program directors.

In a Journal interview with four of these S.A.P. students, the attitude of total integration into the university community was apparent. Although each dropped out for different reasons, the feeling of boredom in the high-school environment seemed to be the instigating factor for their dropping out.

"Learning how to learn" was the problem which seemed to present itself most to these students so that orientation was perhaps longer for them than for most students.

Having returned to the university after two or three years in the 'working world' they agreed that taking this break proved to be "the most educational years" they had spent.

This program is merely one of the many 'further educational' programs offered here. Donald Gordon Centre for Continuing Education, Helen Mathers program for women and the proposed senior citizen program are but a few illustrating Queen's concern for 'higher' and 'further' education in an attempt to accommodate as much of the community as possible.

Grant Hall
"The Night No One Yelled"
 -a play by Peter Madden performed by the Beggars Workshop
 Montreal
 "prison play intense and impressive"
 -Globe and Mail.
 Thurs., Mar. 6; Fri., Mar. 7;
 Sat., Mar. 8
 Tickets: $3.50 general, $2.50 discount
 Box Office: 547-6194
 -a Performing Arts
 event-

WANTED Queen's Students for the following positions

Internal Affairs:

AMS Court
 AMS Chief Constable
 AMS Clubs Manager
 Speaker for Outer Council
 AMS Page Editor

Chief Justice (2nd Year Law)
 Associate Chief Justice
 (1st Year Law)
 3 Junior Justices
 Prosecuting Attorney

Services:

University Centre Committee Members
 Union Programme Committee Members
 University Health Council Representatives

Queen's Student Agencies:

AMS Pub (summer & winter)
 Managers, Assistant Managers
 Bartenders, waiters
 Waitresses

Printing Service Manager
 AMS Housing Service Manager
 AMS Housing Service Committee Members

Campus Activities:

AMS Homecoming Convenor
 Open House Chairman
 Queen's Entertainment Agency Director
 University Council on Athletics Representatives AMS Concert Committee Chairman
 Convocation Committee Chairman

External Affairs:

OFS Chief Delegate
 Alumni Committee Chairman
 Community Liaison Committee Chairman
 High School Liaison Committee Chairman

Education:

2 members for Richardson Trust Fund Committee
 Long term Planning Committee Members
 Short Term Planning Committee Chairman
 AMS Festival '76 Committee Chairman
 Senate Library Committee Members

For further information on these positions see your Who's Where or Call AMS Office.

Leave your name in AMS Office before 5 pm, Fri., March 7.

Gray's Challenge to all Students

It is with a great deal of concern that I offer a challenge to the students of Queen's to become directly involved in university student affairs for next year. Having a difficult task in representing your interests for the following year we have just begun our work. I encourage you to seriously consider the positions available on AMS and AMS committees, commissions and publications etc.

It is important that you weigh your role in student government. Benefits derived from being actively involved outside the classroom give a great deal of satisfaction. What is now needed is a responsible attitude taken towards the AMS by the students.

It's one thing to sit back and appraise us (the new executive) but it's an entirely different matter to get yourself directly involved.

It's not only experience but energy and creative ideas that we are looking for. Don't allow a lack of working knowledge of these positions to discourage you. We have the information and are more than willing to discuss them with you. We urge you to get involved.

Home 549-2319

Office 547-6165 President Elect John Grey

OFS says OSAP won't raise loan ceilings

OTTAWA (CUP) - The Ontario Federation of Students recently claimed that the Ontario Student Assistance Program will not raise loan ceilings next year.

They also say that the Ontario government will recommend to the treasury board that living allowances go up from the present $32 a week and that lessened parental contributions be required next year.

OFS says they were told that the proposal and plans would be outlined by Minister of Colleges and Universities James Auld in a press conference to be held next week.

"They have indicated to us that the federal government is going to raise the loan ceiling to 1,800 but that the Ontario government will keep theirs at the present level. But I don't believe them for a minute," said Carolyn Kendrick, an OFS research-cher. Speculation remains that the Conservative government doesn't want to alienate the student population more than it already has, as it will probably be holding a provincial election this year. However, if they are re-elected they could raise the loan ceilings.

"The whole program totally ignores all the issues we and other students across the province have been raising," Kendrick said. "The whole program is unacceptable. The question of summer earnings has to be looked at, the grant portion of the loans should be increased and the loan ceiling even at the $800 level is still too high."

Students are just beginning to realize that the only way to have equality of education is to abolish tuition fees and establish living stipends," she said.

Alberta students ask for grievance committee

CALGARY (CUP) - Student input may be useful in getting rid of incompetent instructors according to Dave Wyer, president of the Faculty Association at the Southern Alberta Institute of Technology (SAIT).

The comment came in regard to a suggestion raised at a SAIT student council meeting calling for the creation of a committee to hear complaints about the competence of instructors.

The student grievance committee would be a "good idea" if a widely accepted evaluation form was used and was circulated to graduates as well as current students, Wyer said.

"Many times a graduate is more capable of commenting on the value in industry of the teaching he received from a particular instructor. I think by including the graduates' opinions, a good evaluation could be achieved."

Wyer added that the SAIT Faculty Association is not prepared to protect an incompetent instructor.

The association investigates incompetence grievances and acts towards dismissal if the evidence proves against an instructor, he said.

Pie in the face!

VICTORIA (CUP) - A popular University of Victoria physics lecturer Dr. Harb Sandhu was giving his class an unpopular mid-term exam one morning when there was a sharp rap at the door.

Sandhu opened the door to be confronted by a masked man who struck him in the face with a cream pie.

Members of the class agreed it couldn't have happened to a nicer fellow. It was later learned that the pie was lemon meringue.

The Listening Post
 A cosy corner ...
 Someone to listen ...
 Come and get acquainted
 Tuesdays, 2.30 - 5.30 pm
 Ban Righ ground floor, across from grandfather clock
 Wednesdays or Thursdays, 2.30 - 5.30 pm
 Victoria Hall, lobby floor, left at front desk

Artsci '77 Proudly Presents

Artsci 77 Elections
 Tonight
 7:30 P.M.
 Stirling 'D'

AMS celebrates International Women's Day

Saturday, March 8
 1-4 pm - Ellis Hall, 3rd floor an afternoon of film and workshops
 8 pm - Dunning Hall an evening of theatre

Public Notice:

The agenda for the Annual General Meeting of the Almo Muter Society to be held at 7:15 on Mon.
 March 3rd 1975 in Stirling 'D', will contain the following items

a) Routine Business

- 1) Acceptance of the minutes of the previous meeting
- 2) Acceptance of the auditors report
- 3) Approval of the auditors for 1975
- 4) Election of New Members to the Board of Directors

b) Executive and Commissions Reports

c) Special Business

- 1) CFRC Sports Trust Fund Levy
- 2) The Don Krestel Memorial Award
- 3) Financing four foster children to be adopted by the AMS

Queen's Chinese Club

'75 Graduation Dinner & Dance

(see posters for details)

Steak Dinner With

- Live Entertainment
- Lottery
- Dance

DATE: Sat., March 8th
 TIME: 8.00 PM LOWER BAN RIGH CAF.

Last
 Lecture Series

TONIGHT

See Details
 Page 3

There's still time

THERE IS STILL TIME TO FILL IN THAT HOUSING FORM!

In fact we will make it easy for you

There will be the FORMS in the John Orr Room. Just fill the thing in and drop it in the box beside the pile.

Who should fill the form in?

All students, 1. presently in a house who may have room to take in a student next year, 2. who will be leaving their residence and could pass it on to a student, 3.
 who have no openings in their house (fill the thing in anyway and tell us at the bottom its not vacant, we would like it for our files).

Thanks from SCOSA

classifieds

Housingwise

1 Bedroom apt. 379 Princess Street
 Apt 4 $160 monthly May 10 May lease. Available May 1 dial 542-5494.

Summer Sublet - May 10 Sept 85
 William St. 4-bedroom apartment
 fully furnished. 5 minutes walk from campus. Rent negotiable. If interested, call 549-5358 after 6pm.

CHEAP, best offer. Room for rent in 5-man house one block from main campus, new till May. Must be Queen's student. Call Steve 549-
 4233 at 4.30pm

HOUSING LOTTERY TOMORROW
 (Wed Feb 26) 6-7pm in Grant
 Hall.

ONE BEDROOM APARTMENT available May 1st for a married couple or a couple who are both students living together. The John Orr Tower is closer than you think.
 Call 546-3932.

Room available in comfortable shared house. Rent $40-month $46-9975.

classifieds

Otherwise

CONGRATULATIONS GREY. We knew one day, You had reached your peak. Thank God for you there was Frosh Week.

Artsc 77 proudly presents their annual elections tonight at 7:30 in Stirling B.

In the Spring a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of... motor-cycles?? Happy 21st. May your bixing days go on ad infinitum. Brown wallet lost around Student Union or north edge of campus Friday evening Feb. 21st. Property of Paul Zondrowski, of Ottawa. Return to Chris Porter, 15 Sydenham, 549-5241. Reward offered.

For sale: Quality Texas Instruments at reasonable prices. SR-50's selling at $150 + tax. Introducing the SR-51 (super statistics machine) for $249.95 + tax. All basic models for sale also. Phone Ouncan at 549-4823 between 5-7 pm.

One day Oung-boy went sking, and twenty questions later is seeing is believing is he a pick-up hater?

V.W. Beetle - needs some body and engine work. Suitable as car or for dune buggy. Will take best offer. Phone 542-4445.

Whoever removed a navy purse from Documents on Wednesday night Feb. 12, please return the contents. Keep the money.

For a Honeymoon Holiday Package, contact Linda, Sylvia or Sharon. Thanks for the B & B. It was great. LF & CC.

STUDENT TICKETS for the Orana Guild's 75th Anniversary Banquet, March 1, Wallace Hall, are $5.50 from Alumni Office, Student's Union. Cash bar 5:30, dinner 6:30. Guest speaker, actor Sandy Webster, Arts 49.

HAPPY 21st Famine Boy, alias Artful Dodger, Love Fats.

New U.S. Divers SCUBA equipment with LIFETIME Warranty for sale. Phone 549-1887, after 5pm.

WILL The Real Mr. Right Please Stand Up!

To the person who picked up my ring in the men's washroom in Frost-Gord on last Thursday. A reward is offered for its return. Phone 549-4821. Ask for Oave or leave message.

M. Hollis. We've found your figure skates, please collect them at Career Planning & Placement.

Photo Image 33 Ltd. specializes in 24 hour black and white and ekachrome slide film processing. For further information, call 546-7770 or visit our studio at 33 Brock St.

McLelland & Stewart 3 for 2 sale now on at the CAMPUS BOOKSTORE. Choose from our display, or order all the titles you want from the special M&S sale order form.

Commerce 77 year crest for leather jacket wanted to buy. Perfectly inelastic demand curve for desired commodity. If you can make a deal call Larry at 546-2196.

CAMERA FOR SALE.

ASAHI PENTAX SPOTMATIC F (3 months old warranty included) with carrying case 1:1.8-55mm $230.00

SMC TAKUMAR TELEPHOTO LENS with carrying case 1:3.5-135mm $80.00

YASHICA wideangle lens with carrying case 1:2.8-28mm $100.00

YASHICA closeup tubes (36mm, 18mm, 11mm) $10.00 Call Richard at 542-4185, before 9am or after 11pm.

NEEO PASSPORT OR JOB APPLICATION PHOTOGRAPHS? at Photo Image we have a student rate of $4.00 for six prints. For an appointment call us at 546-7770.

RECYCLE YOUR BOOKS AND RECORDS. We sell records on consignment, that is, you get $1.50 for every one of your records that sell. Needless to say, good rock, blues jazz, folk records sell-out quickly. We also have unopened used books for sale. The Book Bin.

I.R.C. BANQUET Wednesday, March 5 at 8pm in Leonard Cafeteria. Guest speaker is Mr. David Lewis, federal N.O.P.

ROOMMATE needed to share large two bedroom apartment on campus. Preferably grad student. Call Michael Carley at 545-4403 or Office.

PLANNING A SPRING WEDDING? Photo Image offers complete photographic coverage tailored to your individual needs from as little as $90. For further information call us at 546-7770 or visit our studio at 33 Brock St. and see the photographs we have done.

FISH. Thanks for a super time. Shall we make it an annual Valentine's celebration? Love from a Fellow Frosh Failure.

WANTED - Lone or two females to take pictures of 1 guys for Playboy magazine. Must be able to appreciate true beauty in nude poses. Must have their own camera. Fringe benefits Call Ted after 6:00 at 544-7484. Please no crank calls. This is serious.

Can Sassie come out to play?

LAST Lecture Series is tonight rather than Wed. Or, Willet, 7:15 pm McNeill common room see page 3 for details.

For Sale: Top of the line ELAS 740 base and cover. Only six weeks old. List $320 new, asking $195. Phone 549-3870.

HOUSING LOTTERY. Grant Hall Tomorrow (Wed) 6:7 pm.

SUMMER SUBLET our 15th floor Apartment in the John Orr Tower, West Campus. Rent Negotiable. Call Rob or Oave, 542-3871 anytime.

HOUSING LOTTERY. For all those who have become grossly confused the final scoop is that the lottery is tomorrow (Wed) in Grant Hall from 6-7pm.

Summer Sublet: two bedroom apartment, modern, spacious, furnished. Downtown Kingston. Room available in pleasant house close to campus. Call 546-9266.

Rent negotiable. Call 544-9845. (Berni or Ted).

AMS HOUSING LOTTERY IS TOMORROW NIGHT.

Large, modern 2-bedroom apartment in complex on Markland street to sublet May to September. Spacious living room & kitchen. Near bus, routes Phone Sue or Eric at 549-4269.

FOR RENT - One bedroom apartment Brock Street at University Ave. Completely furnished, everything (Heat, Utilities) Paid. Available from March 1st, onwards. Rent $155 Monthly Call 544-5735 10pm to 11:30pm.

HOUSING LOTTERY New final and for sure date is TOMORROW (Wed. Feb. 26) in Grant Hall from 6:7 pm.

4 Bedrooms Kitchen, Bathroom, Living Room: partly furnished located at 375 King St. E. between Princess St. and Queen St. Phone 549-1887 after 5pm.

To Occupy May 1-75: Sublet one Bedroom Apt. May 1st-Aug. 1st, option to new lease. No. 228 Barrie St. between Brock & Johnson, Large rooms, Utilities included, $150.

Room available in pleasant house close to campus. Call 546-9266.

Housingwise

QUICK. Phone 544-7737, 544-7738 or 544-7739, if you have a three or four bedroom apartment to get rid of. NAME YOUR REWARD! (Then we'll name ours.)

Murphy's Sea Food Restaurant

Lobster
Shrimp
Oysters

Clam Chowder
Fish and Chips

70 Brock St.
548-7753

from slavery to ... migrant workers "the original sins of capitalism"

Radical French Priest
Placide Blazoché

examines the position of migrant labour in Europe and North America

Stirling D -
Fri., Feb. 28 - 8 pm

Sponsored by S.C.M. and A.M.S.

ALMA MATER SOCIETY OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY.

HOUSING LOTTERY

Rules and procedure

- The lottery establishes only a position on the waiting list. The number of units available of any size depends on the number of renewals. There is usually a 50 percent turnover. We will know which apartments and houses will be available on March 1, at which time you will be informed if you have a unit.
- The lottery is open only to Queen's students who will be registered for the academic year 1975-1976. Blue cards must be presented at the lottery or at the AMS office by 5 pm Fri. Feb. 28 if a place on the list is obtained. You don't have to stay for the draw, but it is up to you to find out if your name is selected.
- Each student is entitled to only one ballot which can be applied to only one type of dwelling unit. If two ballots are found in the same name both will be destroyed. However, if you are applying for a five-man house, for example, all five prospective tenants may apply. Bring your own pencil to sign ballot.
- An individual whose name is drawn and who chooses to accept the dwelling must be a tenant of the unit, and must have his name on the lease (and be legally bound by the terms of the lease).
- Units leased through AMS Housing based on number of single bedrooms.

3 bed-sitting	3 four bedroom
4 large bachelor	10 five bedroom
11 one bedroom	8 six bedroom
7 two bedroom	1 seven bedroom
1 three bedroom	1 eight bedroom

Wednesday
FEB. 26

(Final and for sure date)

GRANT
HALL

Doors open
6-7
Draw at 7:15

letters to the editor

N.O. O.F.S.

Dear Editor,

I think it time for a critical review of the activities of the Ontario Federation of Students. This organization has quite evidently lost its credibility with the provincial government, rendering it unable to perform its first major function as the representative of Ontario university students, and, judging by its performance over the "campus pub" question last fall, can no longer perform its second major function of disseminating accurate and truthful information to its member students.

The statements of the O.F.S. on the pub question made no mention of the main points of the proposed legislation, these being the safety of pub patrons, by requiring adequate fire exits and equipment; and eliminating the necessity of pub managers purchasing new liquor licences every day, by issuing permanent licences. The O.F.S. also failed to mention that over half the campus pubs already met the requirements, and that most of the others could do so at reasonable cost.

Is this a typical illustration of how the O.F.S. keeps its members informed?

The education minister indicated, when he cancelled his recent meeting with the O.F.S. that he had more important business. This is a clear indication of the loss of stature of the O.F.S., that the minister considers the supposed representatives of the Ontario university students unimportant.

The O.F.S. has done considerable damage to the public image of the university student, and when one considers who it is that foots the bill for universities, and who tells the provincial government what the spending priorities are, it is apparent that we must be concerned with keeping the best public image possible.

The inability to represent, the inability to inform, and the damage done to the public image have been demonstrated. The O.F.S. must be informed of the students dissatisfaction.

Michael Walker

Busit

Dear Editor,

Contrary to published reports and letters, Peter Druxerman and myself tried our damndest to represent the financial interests of the entire student body in the Bus-It negotiations.

The Kingston PUC refused to renew the contract for the same fee as last year which was five dollars more per student, a 40 percent increase, to seven dollars per student. We became alarmed because in real terms this means that Queen's students would be asked to pay nearly $20,000 more for exactly the same service.

Many students would still think of this as merely as drop in the bucket, providing they received the transportation they desired. In representing the entire student body however, we attempted to balance the interests of both those students who use Bus-It rarely, with those who find it as a valuable service on a daily basis.

This was the arrangement in which we studied in detail the present Bus-It contract. Was the 7 dollars actually a realistic figure considering the fact that so many students subsidized so few? For this reason and that a 40 percent increase in one year is inflationary we decided 7 dollars per student was just too much to pay.

Therefore the compromise of six dollars per student was submitted to the Public Utilities Commission (P.U.C.) who objected that this was not negotiable because the city would not subsidize students. Unfortunately they forgot to consider that Queen's students only spend some 5 million dollars up town on records and clothes, etc.

Then we decided to explore the possibilities of our own busing program strictly for Queen's students and with the prime objective of saving money but yet providing a service to students.

Realizing the legal implications of running our own bus plan as outlined by Mayor Speil (who by the way was against the plan at 6 dollars per student), we decided to stick with the P.U.C. plan which we recognized all along as being the most comprehensive Bus-It program.

In closing, I feel confident that Peter and I acted in good faith attempting to get the fairest contract for providing a bus-it service. In holding firm to our decision of six dollars per student (no additional money was available anyway) many students were inconvenienced, which I apologize for. The fact is however, we attempted to look at the situation realizing that many students never used the Bus-It service but yet paid into the program anyway. For the interests of these students whom we also represent we could not justify the Bus-It service at 7 dollars per student.

If further information on Bus-It or other AMS affairs concern you please don't hesitate to call me for further details.

truly
John L. Gray
547-6165

2nd coming

Dear Editor,

This is an open letter to the people of the University community.

Have you ever wondered where the world is heading? Have you any thoughts on what the purpose of Jesus Christ was and why He has had such a penetrating effect on the world for 2000 years?

You know, the Bible has the answer to all these questions as well as many others. But before you start scoffing and discrediting the Bible, you should consider its track record, the Bible has never fallen short of any of its hundreds of predictions in its 3500 year history. That is one of the reasons why a considerable number of people on campus, including myself, have chosen to make this Book the Standard to live by.

One of the most encouraging promises that a Christian has is the return of Jesus Christ as He Himself vowed in John 14:3. Christ didn't reveal the exact hour of His return but He said that it would be as surprising to many people as is a "thief in the night". However, He did disclose many signs and world conditions to watch for. There has never been a period in history like today, when so many theologians and scholars of the Bible have felt that the world conditions are so unquestionably suitable for the return of Jesus Christ.

What does all this mean to people like you and me? The Bible says that this event will mark the beginning of a 7-year Period of Great Tribulation, which will be make anything the earth has ever experienced and will be terrifying and calamitous that if Jesus Christ doesn't put an end to it no human being would survive.

A meritorious movie has been produced concerning the return of Jesus Christ. It has been aptly titled, "A Thief in the Night". This movie will be presented Wednesday evening Feb. 26, at 8 p.m. in Dunning Auditorium. If you are interested in these Bible predictions go to the movie. Someone will be in the John Orr Room Tues. and Wed. between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. to give you more information. Or, simply show up at the Dunning doors on Wednesday night.

Gary Drouillard

In Kingston This Summer? Live In Science '44 Co-op. 19 Houses.

Close to Campus, Fully Furnished, common rooms & kitchen facilities

Rent A Room.

Single rooms $55/month,
$15/week.

Double rooms $70/month,
$20/week

Rent A House.

complete houses rented to reliable groups for two or four month periods at reasonable rates.

For further information

Science 44 Co-op office
397 Brock St. 544-4506
Mon. to Fri. 9:30-12:30 or Ruth Stiles 542-1904

summer rental period runs
April 28 to September 5

Queens
Journal
Vol. 102, No. 39
Tues., Feb. 25, 1975
Queen's University
at Kingston, Ontario.

Editor-in-Chief: Suzanne Sherkin
Business Manager: Terry Collins
Managing Editor: Dan McClelland
News Editor: Sarah Yarnell
Assistant News Editor: Nancy 'Seagull' Flood
Features Editors: Wendy Reynolds, Laurie Gibson
Arts Editors: Kerry White, Peter Haworth
Sports Editors: Lyn Atwood, Suzanne Jackson
Photo Editor: Jon Willmer
Watts Happin: Jennifer, Rosemary, Mark
Letters: Oave Colburn
Resident Genius: John Bottomley
Staff: Peter Watts, Mary Ann Purdy, Anne Robertson, Alan Mann, Leslie Gaukrodger, Peter Case, John Cameron, Meg Boltonley, Chris Woods
Comment: There are only six more forevermore weeks of classes. Let me out!

Founded in 1873 and published on Tuesdays and Fridays during the academic year by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University, Incorporated, Kingston, Ontario. Founding member of Canadian University Press. Editorial opinions expressed are those of the editor and not necessarily those of the AMS nor the University. Telephone (613) 547-2666. Printed by Animes at the St. Lawrence Printing Co. Ltd., Prescott, Ontario. Lithographed in USA on Canadian newspaper.

LAST LECTURE SERIES

TONIGHT

SEE DETAILS
PAGE 3

ALMA MATER SOCIETY OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY.

PAGE

Open Forum:

6 panelists: audience participation
Doors open at 7:30 pm

"Financial Constraint"

Wednesday, February 26

8 p.m. Grant Hall

IS QUEEN'S INTERNAL COLLAPSE IMMINENT?

VS.

IS UNIVERSITY THE
TAXPAYERS' DINOSAUR?

BEN WILSON

Ontario Minister of Colleges and Universities

PETER LANE

Senate Committee on Academic Development

DOUG TOUSIGNANT

President, Alcan Steelworkers Union

DUNCAN SINCLAIR

Dean of Arts and Science

JOHN GRACE

Editor, Ottawa Journal, Chairman of the Board, Ottawa U.

PRINCIPAL WATTS

Queen's University

IN THE CHAIR:

VICE PRINCIPAL HARROWER

I.R.C. BANQUET

Guest Speaker: David Lewis - National NDP Leader

Leonard Cafeteria

Wed. Mar. 5

8:00 p.m.

Tickets:

Meal Lines: Today and Tomorrow

John Orr Room: Today

Brockington Business Office

Residents: .50c Non Residents: $4.25

Last Lecture Series

TONIGHT - 7:15 p.m.

McNeil House
Common Room

A Symposium on Politics in Northern Ireland

Friday, Feb. 28

3.30 pm - "The Catholic Community:
Grievances, Divisions, Leadership"

8.00 pm - Discrimination and the Political Mobilization of Minorities

Saturday, Mar. 1

9.30 a.m. - "The Protestants: Political Role, Responses to British Policy."

11.00 a.m. - "Prospects for Conflict Resolution"

All Sessions in Dupuis Auditorium

Lois Marshall to sing in chamber concert

The St. Paul Chamber Orchestra, conducted by Dennis Russell Davies, will perform in the last Grant Hall concert of this year's International Concert series on Tuesday, February 25. This twenty-three piece ensemble will be joined by the renowned Canadian soprano Lois Marshall.

This concert is a replacement for the originally scheduled Moscow Chamber Orchestra concert on February 26. The North America tour of this group "has been postponed indefinitely due to concern for the health of Rudolph Barshai (the conductor)", according to the Soviet Concert Agency, Gosconcert. Tickets for the February 26th concert will be honoured on February 25.

The Performing Arts Office, formerly the Division of Concerts, was able to obtain the St. Paul Orchestra due to their proximity during a north-eastern United States. During the orchestra's Eastern European tour, this past fall, the conductor of the State Philharmonic of Ploesti Romania said: "The last time I heard chamber music played this well was in 1964, by the Moscow Chamber Orchestra, and your group is better."

Soprano Lois Marshall fortunately was able to join the Orchestra for this concert as guest artist. She has just finished a U.S. tour with the famed Bach Aria group.

Miss Marshall was last in Kingston in January, 1974 for a sold out concert in Dunning Hall. Queen's has another opportunity to hear this "artist of the most exquisite musicianship, equipped with a vocal technique of extraordinary perfection (The Washington Star)".

Lois Marshall, appearing with the St. Paul Chamber Orchestra on Tuesday, February 25th at 8.30 p.m. at Grant Hall.

Tonight's programme will include Maderna's "Music of Gaiety from Fitzwilliam's Virginal Book"; Ballard's "Incident at Wounded Knee"; Haydn's Symphony No. 87; and J.

S. Bach's Cantata No. 202. Some tickets are still available from the Performing Arts Box Office at the desk in Agnes Etherington Art Centre 547-6194, or at the door. Student prices are $3 for reserved seats or $2 for unreserved side balcony seats.

AN ENGAGEMENT INVESTMENT IN BRILLIANCE

Popping that all important question... leads to her all important diamond. Our staff of experts is ready to help you find the right diamond at the right price. Wisely you'll choose the finest engagement diamond... a dazzling investment that brings huge dividends... "happiness" for all her tomorrows.

JEWELLERS

168 PRINCESS STREET
KINGSTON, ONTARIO

All Outerwear 1/2 Price

ABRAMSKY'S

MEN'S WEAR SINCE 1894 THERE'S A REASON FOR THAT! 259 PRINCESS ST.

Commerce Society By-Elections

For the positions of;
Social Convenor
Athletic Stick

Nominations require 25 signatures

Submit to:

Bob Buttarill

Bernie Koch

or Carl Lawrence's Office

Must be submitted by
Fri., February 28, 5 pm

Arts and Science D.S.C.'s

Notice of elections

Three persons are needed to fill the positions of Divisional Councillor of the Social Sciences

Natural Sciences
Humanities

These positions will be elected by the D.S.C.'s of each respective field on

Tuesday March 4

For further information contact the ASUS office Room B-105
in McIntosh Corry Hall, 547-3069

Anyone may run All present D.S.C.'s must attend.

In concert: Leonard Cohen

chris woods

Powerful narratives and inviting melodies

by Paul L.

In a poem "One of the Nights" "I Kill Myself" Leonard Cohen describes himself as a "sweet singer whose death (in the fog your new leached boots) have ground into cigarette butts." It is his capacity to assume many different persons, render them in convincing, insightful ways which give him his poetic stature. It is his ability to combine psychological power of his narratives with vivid melodies and bizarre arrangements which lends him a huge resonance as a songwriter.

Cohen's onstage presence at the Grant Hall was remarkable; his flat singing and restricted range somehow managed to suggest vulnerability and detachment in the same instant, poignant and icy, sardonic, third-person description in a word. Cohen both managed to rejuvenate his older material and display half a dozen new songs which suggest he has resisted that tendency of many aging songwriters towards a kind of graduated artistic emasculation, or at least euphemism would have it, "mellowing out." Easily characteristic of the former half of this dual success the performance of "Famous Blue Raincoat" from Love and Hate, Cohen and his group presented them to promiscuity with a neat mixture of text-book and perfection and skin-book vividness. "Love Calls Your Name" from the same album combined a compulsory arrangement (suitable whines and snarls from the organ) with one of Cohen's more common occupations, that of the weakness which is a pose: "When the bandage pulls away (Was I only lying) Was I really lame?"

The selections from the most recent album, New Skin for the Old Ceremony, included bits of the droll perversity and coarse delicacy which have been a feature of Cohen's previous work. Cohen is one of the few songwriters around with the imagination to let loose spiritual reverence against black, worldly pessimism, as in the song "Who By Fire," and to contrast his veneration of a departed lover with his exasperation at the irresolution of others as in "Chelsea Hotel No. 2", one of his most graphic and unguarded songs.

Cohen was much beholden to his band for varied and intelligent musical settings. The two pastel beauties who acted as background vocalists added an appropriately delicate and child-like surrounding to the atonal edge of Cohen's singing. Cohen gave the group a chance for some improvisational dicking with his impromptu reading of the poem "It's Good to sit with People," a Kerouac derivative of caffeine-soaked late-night reminiscing. Some of the most enjoyable moments occurred however, when Cohen accompanied himself alone with his trademark mosquito-hum guitar. If Wordsworth could have attended the concert he certainly would have been glad to hear that although Cohen is not much interested in nature, he is preserving the art of hand-blowing, as he ably proved in "One of Us Cannot be Wrong."

This review seems somehow superfluous because among Cohen's considerations at the concert was a review of his own continuing performance in the song "A Singer Must Die;" "... the judge has no choice (a singer must die for the lie in his voice) And I thank you, I thank you for doing your duty (You keepers of truth, you guardians of beauty) Your vision is right, my vision is wrong (I'm sorry for smudging the air with my song.)" Even here when he is striking one of his most ironic poses, that of the martyr for his audience, there is a strong suggestion of isolation, a state of being with which Cohen is always concerned. Whatever kind of distance he puts between himself and his material, Cohen is forever forcing his audience to share that isolation with him and it is by no means always a pleasant experience. Leonard Cohen is, and was, so good that it hurts.

chris woods

It's true that all men you knew
Were dealers who said they were through
With dealing every time you gave them shelter
I know that kind of man
It's hard to hold the hand of anyone
Who's reaching for the sky just to surrender.

And then sweeping up the jokers that he left behind
You find he did not leave you very much
Not even laughter
Like any dealer, he was watching for the card that is so high and wild
He'll never need to deal another
He was just some Joseph looking for a manger.

Let's meet tomorrow, if you choose,
Upon the shore, beneath the bridge
That they are building on some endless river
Then he leaves the platform
For the sleeping car that's warm, you realize
He's only advertising one more shelter
And it comes to you, he never was a stranger
And you say, "OK, the bridge or someplace later."

And then leaning on your window sill
He'll say one day you caused his will
To weaken with your love and warmth and shelter
And then taking from his wallet an old schedule of trains, he'll say
"I told you when I came I was a stranger
I told you when I came I was a stranger."

alan mann

Parody of horror film is choice entertainment

by Sandra Bernstein
Choice entertainment this weekend is Mel Brooks' film, Young Frankenstein which opens Thursday at the Hyland.

In making this film, Brooks (who also made "Blazing Saddles") has employed every comic device he can: puns, slapstick, good one liners, bad jokes, non-jokes (there something funny about people getting a knee in the groin?), sometimes he surprises us with some hilarious gag, and sometimes he keeps us dangling as we wait for a line we have seen coming.

The major source of humour in the film, however, is the parody of earlier versions of the story. Brooks draws on the original novel by Mary Shelley more than did James Whale in his 1931 horror classic, but the main target of Brooks' satire is this film. This is made obvious by the style of the film itself; it is in black and white, employs some of the same sets as were used in the Whale production, the same camera work, suspense devices and even the Gothic titles.

Many scenes are specific parodies: for instance, the one in which a little girl was killed in the Boris Karloff version, which is brilliantly satirized in the newer movie.

Similarly, Brooks has fun with the townspeople, who were English Bavarians in the Whale film, and who here have trouble understanding the local constable (who resembles Dr. Strangelove) because of his heavy German accent.

Another source of comedy in the film is the archaic editing, which is obtrusive and accomplished with a good deal of wit by editor Howard. (There is even an iris in the shape of a heart.) Similarly, any special effects are phoney, and the make-up deliberately obvious.

Brooks throws in moments from most of the horror classics such as Dracula and The Bride of Frankenstein. He also throws in an extra female role, played by Teri Garr, who is predictably empty-headed and decollete.

The acting is terrific: Gene Wilder, who, with Brooks, wrote the screenplay, is suitably flamboyant as the grandson of the famous Dr. Frankenstein. Peter Boyle, in the largely-mute role of the monster, is quite endearing - particularly when he rolls his eyes in despair at the idiocy around him. Brooks' version is the first to consider the sexual possibilities implicit in the story of a creature whose limbs are all larger than those of the average person. ("He's going to be very popular," remarks Dr. Frankenstein).

Marty Feldman, however, steals the show with his performance as Igor (grandson of the original Igor). A Cockney hunchback whose hump keeps switching from one side of his back to the other, Igor has some of the best lines in the film - and Feldman doesn't throw any away. It is Igor who, you recall, steals the brain for the monster by robbing a medical school - here a brain depository with a sign outside that reads "After 5:00 slip brains through the slot in the door".

It should be stressed however, that it is not necessary to have seen any earlier versions of the film to appreciate Young Frankenstein. Brooks' gags are riotous enough in themselves.

Lenny Bruce and his needs

Ladies and Gentlemen: Lenny Bruce!! by Albert Goldman, from the Journalism of Lawrence Schiller Ballantine Books, 1974

by Tony Davis

This massive eight hundred-odd page book is the best to appear about this controversial comic. Goldman bombards the reader with telling, graphic facts. Lenny Bruce's life is laid bare, and the sight is not a pretty one. But you can't hate Lenny; rather, you pity him. Many of those who came into contact with Lenny saw him as a child, a mischievous, disobedient child. Any many felt the urge to "father" or "mother" him.

Lenny wasn't a loner, he needed people. He needed an audience, especially an appreciative one. Lenny would resort to tantrums when people ignored or misunderstood him. He needed other things. He needed his meth, his dilaudid, the heroin. He'd poke his veins full of the stuff, cover his arms in scars, and have to shoot the veins in the back of his hands. Lenny needed Honey, his wife. One-time stripper, mother of his child Kitty (the one being Lenny truly loved) sometime prison inmate and constant dope addict. Even though Honey was often unfaithful, Lenny always yearned for her.

Lenny wanted friends, but he was good at making enemies. He broke out of a dead pan come out by declaring war against the strip pers he "M.C'd" for. Lenny insulted them, and finally, one night, he walked onto the stage naked. "What's the matter? You came here to see naked bodies, didn't you?" That made the headlines. And that made Lenny happy; publicity, good or bad, would always compel night club owners to hire him.

Lenny's material was always varied; he'd improvise in the last second. He would put on his audience try to shake them out of their drab middle class consciences. He'd curse at them, scream at them, laugh at them. Some would walk out; some would titter, embarrassed at the lines, but some loved it.

Lenny talked at a rapid pace, sending barrage after barrage of times at the audience. But, again, he was bound to make enemies. Obscenity, and the punishment for uttering it, in the early sixties, seemed to rest with the prerogative of the judge. And Lenny's religious satires and other such blasphemies never seemed to go over well with the more puritanical judges. Lenny wanted the respect of the judges but many didn't seem to respect him.

Lenny was an off-time addict and thus gained the attention of the narcs. After a while, Lenny was constantly being "shaken down" in every city he travelled to. Lenny never did well in court. Refusing to listen to his counsel, he would alternately harangue the judge and jury. The cost of court cases, lawyers was making him a poor man. He'd study law books and dictate massive, rambling tracts to friends. He felt he was being persecuted - and so he was.

The methedrine would keep him awake. Lenny never seemed to get much sleep. He always thought ill of getting older, so good times were always in demand.

Thrown out of England a few times, out of Australia, out of Vancouver, Lenny moved from town to town - he needed money and the audiences and the cheap thrills.

His acts eventually became dominated by readings or tapes from his trials. Though interspersed with Lenny's quick wit and acid tongue, much of the spontaneity and magic was gone. The crowds knew it, and sometimes Lenny knew it too. When he O.D.'d on July 22nd, 1966, it appeared an end to hard times. His death marked the end of already troubled life. Goldman attributes Lenny's death to suicide.

Many thanks to Smith-Hill bookstore, 193 Princess St., for their generous donation of this book for review.

The Navigators Present
A film of Christ's Return

A Thief in the Night

Dunning Hall $1.00

Wed., Feb. 26, 8 pm

UNIVERSITY OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

JOINT MEETING

Outer Council '74-'75
and '75-'76
Thursday, February 27th

7:30 P.M.
McLaughlin Room
Students Union

an alternative lifestyle that may satisfy you

Queen's Homophile

Phone 547-2836
Tues. - Thurs., 8 - 9 pm

or

Write c/o Terry Watson,
Student Affairs Centre

5 Queen's teams 1st in Ont.

Gals sweep OW finals in Hockey, Skating, Curling, Synchro, and Intermediate V-Ball

Hockey

by Marg Bartlett

This past weekend saw the OWIAA hockey finals played at York, and out of it all emerged a victorious Queen's team. (Queen's Once, Queen's twice...) It was only two years ago that Queen's took the Ontario championship. Last year, though, things were reversed and the hockey team experienced a few problems throughout the season. As a result, it was Guelph who captured 1st place last year. This year the Queen's nucleus was formed by a number of outstanding rookies (including Sue Wright, Janean Gerow, Jan "Yuk" Atkinson, Sandy "Mover" Statten, Kathy "Woody" Wood, June "Bug" Watson, Sue "Vision" Hall, Marg "Flossie" Bartlett) combined with consistent "vets" Les "Hood" Ferrari, Rhonda "Hot Dog" Leeman, Barb "Beef" Fee, Linda "Gypsy" McEwen, Carol "Quincey" Pettey, Karen "Tiny" Sculley, Virginia "Polack" Pollack. The team finished the season undefeated - but faced 2 much improved teams this past Friday and Saturday in the final games of the year.

The first game found Queen's playing Toronto (1st place vs. 4th place) at 2:30 on Friday afternoon. Any game in which Queen's takes on Toronto features a close-checking, tight 1st period; this game was no exception as was shown by the 1-0 score at the end of the 1st period. This goal was scored by high scoring Janean Gerow (assisted by Sandy Statten and Virginia Pollack).

The second period proved to be a very rough physical battle - especially for Sue Wright who was tripped and hauled down more than once. A lot of penalties were handed out to both teams but the overall winner in this department was the famous moron (Toronto's No. 9) who, according to reliable sources, has "nothing between her ears but a lot of air".

Janean Gerow made it 2-0 for Queen's on a 'hot' slapshot from the point that she thought she was "going to have to blow over the goal line". Toronto came back with a goal at the 7 minute mark. This goal was the only one that Toronto was able to put past steady Wanda Gyde. Queen's third goal was scored by Marg Bartlett (Assisted by Sue Wright, Gerow). The score stood at 3-1 for the Gals at the end of the second period. The third period was wide open and 3 more goals were pothed by Queen's. These were scored by Wright, Ferrari, and Linda McEwen. It should be noted that the refs did a very good job of handling the tempo of the game in this important playoff series. Queen's returned to the Westbury after this 6-1 win knowing that they would have to skate, shoot and check harder and faster if they were to beat Mac in the championship game the next day.

Continued on Page 2

Figure Skating

February 14th, 1975 marked a special day for the Queen's Figure Skating Team, as they strongly skated away with their third consecutive championship win. This win is to be added on to their win back on January 18th, 1975 at the Queen's Annual Figure Skating Invitational.

This year's championships were held in a very cold McMaster University arena. Other universities competing were Western, York, Toronto and McMaster.

Due to motor trouble of the team's bus, they were unable to make the early morning practice prior to the competition, however this evidently had no effect on their performance. The team put in a combined effort in all categories to win the overall championship. Throughout the day it was a continuous fight between the University of Toronto and Queen's. Final results show us team points:

Queen's	111 points
Toronto	104 points
York	80 points
McMaster	47 points
Western	27 points

Continued on Page 2

Inter. V-Ball

by Brian Skinner
Coach

It's been a long season for the Women's Intermediate Volleyball team. They finished half the season at Christmas in 3rd place behind Brock and Ryerson, but were determined to finish the '75 season in a finer manner. After Christmas matches against Trent and McMaster were won by Queen's, closing the gap on 1st place. In a game in January against Ryerson, Queen's lost to the league leaders in what could be labelled as an A-1 choke!

It seemed for a short while that there was no hope for finishing better than third, until Mac (in 5th place) upset Ryerson and again Queen's were back in contention.

The last home game against Toronto saw the Tricolour put it all together and take T.O. three games straight.

Now the work began! Queen's had 14 points going into the tournament, just 2 points behind league leaders Brock and Ryerson. The Gals came back early in reading week to prepare for the tournament to be held at Ryerson. To finish first they had to win every match, a task not easily accomplished.

Friday noon saw Queen's square off against Brock U. in the tournament opener. The match went to 4 games with Queen's ending on top with scores of 15-9, 10-15 15-13 15-12. The scores were close and the games were exciting to watch.

The second and last contest on Friday had Queen's pitted against Ryerson. This was to be the biggest and most exciting

Continued from page 3

Rhonda Leaman confronting goalie in hard-fought Mac game over the weekend in OW finals which Queen's won.

Chris Boon

Queen's Journal
Volume 102, No. 39
Wednesday, February 25, 1975

-Chris Woods

The Figure Skating Gals successfully became the champions for third time in OWIAA

Skating Continued from page 1

Captain Gail Hiron and manager Carol Farqueson are to be commended for their time and devotion they spent preparing and organizing the team for the championships.

The team's synchronized number, which is comprised of the 12 girls on the team, was set to Carol King's powerful tune "I Feel the Earth Move". And "move" on the ice the girls did as they skated away with a strong and unbeatable first place ranking by all three judges.

The following are the team's standings in each event:

Event	Placing	Participants
Novice Similar Dance	1st	Janet Cox Debbie Johnson
Junior Similar Dance	2nd	Marilyn Snell Patti Shirokoff
Open Dance	3rd	Patti Shirokoff
Novice Singles	2nd	Debbie Johnson
Junior Singles	1st	Johanna Flipsen
Intermediate Singles	1st	Marilyn Snell
Senior Singles	3rd	Kathy Martin
Novice Mixed Dance	3rd	Janet Cox Ken Frost
Junior Mixed Dance	3rd	Mary Bythell Larry Benze
Junior Ladies Pairs	1st	Janet Cox Debbie Milliken
Senior Ladies Pairs	2nd	Sue Drowley Kathy Martin
Junior Interpretive Singles	1st	Mary Bythell
Senior Interpretive Singles	4th	Marion Spence
Formation Fourteenstep	2nd	Betty McQuay Sue Drowley Marion Spence Jeannine Bourgon
Synchronized Number	1st	Patti Shirokoff Kathy Martin Sue Drowley Mary Bythell Marion Spence Debbie Johnson Betty McQuay Debbie Milliken Marilyn Snell Johanna Flipsen Janet Cox Jeannine Bourgon

Hockey Continued from Page 1

York hosted a well-organized banquet Friday night. Unfortunately, the Gals were slightly late for the 6pm start due to heavy traffic on the road and in the showers. The Banquet itself was highlighted by the various "team songs" which formed the highly amusing entertainment. Guelph's little number was especially memorable with Queen's Sue Wright named to "have more moves than Ex Lax". After a quick dinner Queen's ended the evening with the traditionally popular "Oil Thigh".

Various members of the team had their own ways of preparing themselves for the BIG game against Mac Saturday afternoon. Wanda 'W.G.' Gyde, Hot dog Leeman, Beef and Quincey got up a little early (2am) to start to get nervous for the game. Other members chose to divert their attention and headed off on a shopping spree. The prize possessions brought back by "Mover" Statten, "Woody" Wood, Polac Pollack, and Flossie Bartlett were 4 World War I flying hats. As well, some suitable pairs of sunglasses (from the "Special Sale" section of Kresge's) were hoarded by these loonies. The complete outfit was modelled while stepping on the bus to head out to play Mac.

The Mac team was really up for this game and were out to revenge their previous 8-5 loss to Queen's. The early part of the first period started off very poorly for the Gals. Mac appeared to be skating at top speed while Queen's seemed to be moving in reverse. Mac was quick to capitalize on Queen's lethargic play. The Gals decided it was time to "move their buns" and Gerow, the new Swedish Fly Girl, scored her 1st goal of the game. The score remained as 1-1 at the end of the first period. Very close fore checking and back-checking were carried out by both teams throughout the second period. Each team had ample opportunity to use their power plays, but effective penalty killing prevailed. Once again, Mac took the lead and held it for several minutes before hot Gerow scored again (assisted by Flossie and Pettley). The score remained 2-2 at the end of the second period. Excellent hockey was enjoyed by the numerous spectators during the third period. Many end-to-end rushes ended in fantastic saves, particularly by Queen's goalie Gyde.

Lois Cole, top scorer of the league and Mac's captain was very aggressive in leading the Mac offence. With strong back-checking Queen's was able to hold "Lo Lo" to only one goal. No scoring was done in the third period, but both teams came VERY close many times. Tension was felt by players on and off the ice, coaches and the cheering spectators. Several untimely penalties were called against both teams but, again penalty killing units were dominant. Suspense mounted further when the clock refused to work properly for the whole game. No one was aware of how much time remained in this action-packed cliffhanger. This major difficulty added to the anxiety and blood pressure of all who were present. The buzzer finally sounded to end regulation play. After a heart-thumping 2 minute intermission, the 2 teams took to the ice for a 5 minute overtime period. If the score were to remain tied at the end of this 5 minutes then a ten minute SUDDEN DEATH overtime would be staged.

Both teams played the same hustling backchecking style: only to be interrupted at the 2:33 mark on a patented rush by persistent Sue Wright.

She charged in from the line and swept by several Mac players before displaying a beautiful deke on the goalie. Actually, more than 1 move was put on the goalie, who was completely at Sue's mercy. The ecstasy and utter jubilation felt by Queen's was just impossible to imagine (You really HAD to be there). But, 2:27 still remained in this thriller and everyone knew that the possibility of Mac scoring was still threatening.

Tough play defensively ensued and Queen's did their very best to hold off the Mac attack. With 1 minute to go Mac lifted their goalie in favour of a sixth attacker. Fortunately, Mac did not have a good scoring opportunity. Queen's even came close to scoring in the empty net. The greatest tension of the afternoon came with 1 second left in the overtime when Wanda Gyde came up with her biggest clutch save. Pandemonium broke loose and the Queen's bench emptied to congratulate Gyde and each other on the outstanding game played by all. Once again, the traditional Oil Thigh on skates was carried out in fine style after the trophy presentation to captain Les Ferarri.

Of special mention was the play of Janean Gerow in the final weekend of play. She took her regular shift on the ice, killed penalties and took part in the power play. The "Swedish Fly Girl" was also tied with team-mate Rhonda Leeman for 5th in the OWIAA scoring for the season. Sue Wright was second in league scoring, followed by Les Ferarri. Overall Queen's had 4 players in the top eight positions in the OWIAA league scoring race.

Nothing more can be said of the fantastic effort put forth by all members and the 2 coaches, Annabelle Twiddy and Cookie Cartwright. Finally, all members of the hockey team would like to thank the coaches, Cookie and Annabelle, and manager Eira 'Elviera' Mills for their support and dedication over the season.

The earth moves!!! Schmultz!

Sue Wright, the Gals incredible hockey star on offensive drive in Mac Game

The two boys on the team, Ken Frost and Larry Benze are to be congratulated for their performance at the championship. Without them, the final results could have been different.

This year, more than half of the team is graduating, therefore next year the remaining team members will be looking for new members, male and female. It is most important to stress that become a member of the team. So next fall take those skates out and come and skate for Queen's. It's an experience never to be forgotten. And to all the team, remember:

Intermediate V-ball Continued from Page 1

game of the tournament. During the season the Gals had only managed to win one game in two matches against the blue and gold. To say the least, the games were exciting with rallies lasting

4 and 5 minutes. Queen's came back from a 10-1 lead by Ryerson in the first game to win. Queen's played superbly and won the match in four games with scores of 15-13 11-15 15-6 and 15-6. The whole team played well, but as coach Skinner put it, "we've had the potential all year long with our bunch strength and unity it had to come together." Rookies Marjoire Bausfield, Julie

The Intermediate Volleyball team managed to sweep 1st place in OW's.

WIC-Iy

VOLLEYBALL: Games to be played today are:

7:15pm PHE vs. COMMERCE 8:15pm REHAB vs. ENG.

7:15pm NURSING vs. MEDS 8:15 ARTS '77 vs. ARTS '78 Rec. V-Ball continues Thursday at 7:15-9:15 pm.

BROOKMILL: The final night is tomorrow Wednesday Feb. 26 from 7-8:20 pm. Come on out and have some fun! All equipment is supplied.

WIC T-SHIRTS: to be sold Tues. Feb. 25 and Wed. Feb. 26 from 7-10pm. The sale of the shirts will take place in the lobby of the Phys. Ed. Centre and the cost of each shirt is $3.

The Old Gals are coming March 1st

International Auto Service
Specializing in European cars
419 Regent St.
Barryfield
546-9921

Notice

To all campus groups who have been allocated funds by the A.M.S. Education Commission:

All invoices to be paid must be submitted to the Commissioner prior to March 1, 1975. Written notice of expenditures to occur after March 1st must also be submitted by this date, otherwise these payments cannot be made.

Applications for '75-'76

Journal Editor

Journal Business Manager

Tricolour Editor

Are open until Feb. 28 '75.

Selections on March 4.

AMS Office

Robinson, Carrie Dustin and Kathy Jackson played outstanding ball. Captain Kim Chiquin, a second year player came up with the two best performances of her career at Queen's.

Saturday it was up early and back to the courts for a match with last place Trent. It was an easy match, with some exciting play giving Queen's a good warm-up for later matches. Tricolour won in three straight matches.

The next match saw Queen's against U of T a very tall and much improved team. The match went four games until Queen's put on an excellent demonstration of power offence and tight defence. Final scores were 12-15, 15-3, 16-14 and 15-11.

The last regular scheduled game was with Mac. It was a good match, with Queen's winning three straight games 15-13, 15-7 and 15-2.

Regular play ended Saturday afternoon with Queen's undefeated in tournament play, but still tied with Brock for first place.

The playoff was set, with Queen's a very happy but tired squad running low on energy, but showing more guts and desire than all other teams in the league put together.

The first game was a long tough battle, with Queen's ending on top 15-8. Brock put up a good fight, but Queen's simply overpowered them and won the match in 3 straight games 15-8 15-5 15-7.

It was now time to collect the loot! One trophy for league champions, and a bonus, a Molson trophy for being tournament champs as well.

Everyone played well, it was a team effort, with everyone on the team having at least one outstanding game. Sue (burp) Taylor, Carol (Howard) Wallingford and Marg (pitter pater) Reid were outstanding in the playoff match.

Every team has its stars, but Queen's found out, this weekend it takes more than 3 or 4 players to do this kind of job. And when its over everyone's a star in their own way. Congratulations on one hell of a fine job.

Grant Hall
St. Paul Chamber Orchestra with Lois Marshall soprano
Tuesday 25 February
Works by Mazerna, Bach
Ballard and Hadyn
Ticket information 547-6194
a Performing Arts event.

Artsci '77 Elections

FOR

President
Vice-President
Secretary
Treasurer

Social Convenor
Publicity Convenor
Mens and Womens
Athletic Sticks

for the 1975-1976 term

Nominations to be submitted to the ASUS Office

Today

Another OWIAA Trophy

Queen's Women's Curling team became the undefeated champs in OWIAA action at Western on February 14 and 15. The team members of skip Helen MacRae, vice Ronda Sullivan, second Brenda Grant and lead Sheila Hart managed to capture first place and the OWIAA championship in six undefeated games.

Queen's ended their season in second place to McGill. On February 14 Queen's played their first game against Guelph winning with a score of 9-4. The second game saw the Gals defeat first place McGill 11-5 and then go on to take over Waterloo by a slim margin of 1 point, final score being 4-3.

The second day of the tournament was run on a straight knockout system. On Friday, the championship round included teams from Queen's, Guelph, Waterloo and McGill. On Saturday, the bottom team of these four moves into the consolation round, and the top team from consolation moves into the championship round. McGill unfortunately dropped out of championship play, with Western moving up Queen's 1st game was against Western, whom they defeated 8-3. Waterloo came out over Guelph 9-6. The final game saw Queen's take top position by a score of 9-6, giving them the championship spot.

poler case

For Queen's Synchro swim team became champions for the 3rd time in OW competition.

Synchro 3rd time winner

The OWIAA Synchronized Swimming Championships, held Windsor Feb. 14-15th, Queen's swam in a first place finish for the third year in a row despite sound difficulties and less than superb judging, the women took 1st place in the overall standings with McMaster 1st, second and Toronto third. Some universities took part in the competition.

Marion Malone and Heather Demerz placed 1st and 3rd respectively in the figures competition, the Friday night Anne Morowetz claimed 4th spot, although her points were not counted toward the team totals. Only the first two swimmers count from any one university.

Saturday morning saw the performance of the duets and solos. Marion and Anne swam very well and captured 1st place. After a great many difficulties with their music, Elaine Prosynak and Sue Hill, despite less than ideal sound, managed to take 2nd place.

The solo competition began late and was again riddled with technical problems. Fortunately both Marion Malone and Anne Morowetz both had good above water sound, although like all competitors throughout the day, they lacked the underwater sound required at a championship meet. Malone swam beautifully, but missed out on 1st place by about 20 points. First went to Joan Manwaring of McMaster and Marion's former duet partner in their days of club competition. Morowetz picked up third place with the smoothest of all jobs at a routine I've ever seen. No one ever would have known it wasn't entirely the routine we've been seeing in the Queen's pool for 5 months!

Coming into the team competition points were very close. Queen's needed to do well if the Championship was to be ours. The music seemed to be fine and clear and loud. With the lack of underwater sound we were dependent more than ever on counting through the routine. It saved the day. Apparently the record skipped slightly during the routine but went unnoticed by the team. However, just prior to about the last 30 seconds of the routine the record stuck. Queen's carried on regardless and finished the routine in almost perfect time. Marks were not as high as we had hoped and McMaster's team posed a distinct threat. Fortunately, what began as an excellently performed routine for that university deteriorated somewhat as a few swimmers found themselves badly out of position on some of their patterns. The top three in this event were Queen's, U. of T. (our old rival) and Mac.

A tired but happy Queen's team faced a long, long bus ride back to Kingston and points in between. Roads were in less than ideal condition and a drawn-out coaches meeting gave us a late start back. Despite the hassles during the competition we were all very glad to bring our "Victory" back to Queen's.

the MARKET BARBER SHOP & hairstyling, salon
Peter Smits invites you to his new hair care shop
43 BROCK ST. 549-2110 KINGSTON ONT.

SR-51 Super Slide-rule Calculator from Texas Instruments
$269.95 plus tax

Simple Arithmetic
Addition, subtraction, multiplication, division,
percentages, square roots,
and many other functions.

Functions of a slide-rule type calculator and a standard calculator.

Constant Calculations
Repeat over and over again
the same calculation by pressing a single key.

Percentages - 10, 20, 30, 40, 50, 60, 70, 80, 90, 100, and percentages in per cent. They can be added, subtracted, multiplied, and divided.

Logarithmic Functions
Natural and common logarithms, and their antilogarithms, and their reciprocals and squares.

Trigonometric Functions
Sine, cosine, and tangent and their reciprocals, and their squares and squares of angles.

Hyperbolic Functions
Hyperbolic sine, cosine, and tangent, and their reciprocals, and their squares and squares
of angles.

Linear Regression
Find the equation of a line from a set of data points, and find the correlation coefficient.

Statistical Functions
Calculate standard deviation, variance, and standard error, and many other statistical functions.

Three Memories
Memory for numbers, and memory for angles, and memory for results.

20 Conversions
Convert between 20 different units of measurement, including length, area, volume, weight, and temperature.

Fixed at Floating Decimal Option - Results may be displayed with full floating decimal, or fixed decimal,
from zero to eight places.
Scientific notation is available with either decimal option.

For further information Phone 549-4623 between 5 & 7 p.m.
Ask for Duncan

Love Mother

50¢
OFF

This coupon entitles you to 50¢ off the price of any pizza at Mother's Pizza Parlour, 455 Princess Street, just above Division. Simply present the coupon when you visit Mother's or when the Mother's delivery boys call at your door.

Please, just one coupon per pizza

50¢
OFF

MOTHER'S

50¢
OFF

Compliments of Mother. Expiry Date, Feb. 28, '75
Good any day of the week

Mother's Pizza Parlour and Spaghetti House

"More than just a place to eat"

455 Princess

549-0006

A Basketball Blunder

by Lyn Atwood
Journal Sports Editor

Well so much for Basketball at Queen's in 1975! Both the men and women seem to have gone the way of their predecessors from last year.

The women arrived home from Guelph early Sunday afternoon in the rain and trudged off the bus-losers in a sudden death quarter final game against the Gryphons. This was the final year for many of the players, and the year that victory should have been Queen's. Unfortunately, many blunders on the court and on the bench added up to a very tragic and catastrophic end. The final score of the game was a heartbreaking 54-53. Queen's Gals hovered behind the Guelph Gryphons on the scoreboard (by 2 to 6 points) the entire game, and in the end Queen's could not pull it out of the bag.

One of the questions that will haunt the Gals collectively and individually for many moons to come is "WHY?" Why did we lose? why the zone defense? why the sudden lack of boardwork? why after coming all this way, (time and distance wise) with all of the super individuals on the team, did Queen's come out on the losing end of the score after combat with an inferior team???

Queen's started out with a zone (2-1-2) defense and continued this well into the third quarter. The Guelph team consistently came down the floor without so much as a minor shuffle to stop them and shot-and-out. Queen's seemed to forget for an entire half that rebounding is in fact a part of basketball at all and stood around in the key (defensively) while M. Proc and J. Finlin of Guelph pulled down the rebounds and proceeded to shoot two and three times.

The high scorers in the first half of a fairly low scoring game were J. Finlin of Guelph with 10 pts, Pat Smith of Queen's with 9, M. Proc of Guelph with 8 and

chris boon

Pat Smith of Queen's going for lay-up in Guelph game.

Kathy Keely who hooped 6 pts. In the second half after returning to the court down 28-25, Laney Marshall scored 10 and Pat Smith scored another 8 pts while the top dogs for Guelph were M. Uhling 12 pts and M. Proc with 6. It turned out to be a less than spectacular game, however one thing can be said—the refereeing was superb (unlike last year).

The point scoring was distributed among all playing members of the Queen's squad.

The fouls that occurred totalled 19 for Queen's and 10 for Guelph—and (ta-ta) nobody (not even Laney Marshall) got fouled out!

In the opinion of the Guelph coach Queen's should have won by 20 points. In the opinion of all players Queen's should have won. And like the farmers say—there's always next year to look forward to.

Open Forum

Doors open at 7:30, microphones provided audience participation

Financial Constraint

Weds. Feb. 26th, 8:00 p.m. Grant Hall

Is Queen's Internal Collapse Imminent?

vs.

Is University The Taxpayer's Dinosaur?

6 PANELISTS

(see AMS page)

Co-sponsored by:

AMS: Education Commission
Internal Affairs Commission.
Faculty Student Societies: Applied Science,
Arts and Science (ASUS), Commerce, Education, Law, Medicine.

Queen's 3rd, in Toronto Star Games

While the rest of the campus was taking it easy for reading week the Track Gaels were involved in two meets. In the Star Games Queen's finished 3rd over eighteen teams, many from the States. Led by Vic 'Quik' Gooding and 'Kuddles' Kramer, team members recorded several fine performances. Gooding placed 1st in a record tying time of 5.4 sec. in the 50 yd. dash, and added a 2nd in the 300 yd. run. Don Kramer took a 1st in the pole vault with a jump of 4.0 m. Also in the vault Gary Tetzlaff placed 3rd, clearing 12'6". Bob MacFarquhar and Marc Macaulay both finished 5th in the mile run and 50yd Hll respectively. Mark Henry and Paul Spence placed 4th and 10th in a strong field in the 600 yd. run which was dominated by American runners. In the 1000 yd. Run Jeff Giles and Scott Ogilvie placed 8th and 10th just 3 sec. off the winning pace.

In the women's events the Gaels were led by Sue Plummer who set a new Queen's record in the 100 yd. (1:29.4) to finish 4th. In the 500 yd. Jan Pipe and Marj Bonfield placed 6th and 8th respectively. Betsy Carey finished 7th in the 50 yd. in a time of 6.6 sec.

A week later the Gaels were in Toronto again to compete in the Ontario Sr. Championships. At stake in this meet was a trip to Edmonton for the Canadian Championships. Pam Seathorn took the gold in the women's shotput with a record toss of 12.35 m. Rookie Kevin Thompson placed 2nd in the men's shotput (13.2m). As a result Pam and possibly Kevin will be at the Can. in two weeks' time. Vic Gooding and Don Kramer both took third in their events. Gooding recorded a 5.9 in the 50m and a 35.6 in the non-championship 300m for a 2nd place finish. Kramer's 4.20m jump broke the old Queen's record in the mens Pole-vault which Gary Tetzlaff tied with his 4th leap to personal best.

Paul Spence and Mark Henry represented Queen's in the 800m event with Spence finishing with an impressive 1:56.4 time, the fastest time this year for the Queen's team. John Darlington and Dave Bronson both did well in the long jump, (6.31m and 5.9m respectively). Darlington placed eighth and in the triple he placed 5th with a 13.67m performance.

In the 3000m Queen's was represented by Frank Okoh and Mike DeGuda with Mike turning in a 9:03 time and a personal best.

Former Queen's students were also prominent in the championships with the likes of Dave Jarvis (2nd - 50mHH, 4th-300m), George Neeland (4th-50mHH) and Brian MacDonald with a respectable 1:57.3 800m time (with only three weeks training). Also present were Tony Verhoeven and Bob Warner. Two major records fell at the meet, with Abby Hoffman's 4:13.3 performance to set a Canadian record in the women's 1500m and Joe Sax's 3:46.7 set the record for the mens event.

Next week sees the Queen's team in Toronto for the Ontario University Championships. Coaches Rolf Lund and Sue Bolton are confident that the team will prove to be strong and perform well. Those that traveled with the team this past week wish to thank Walter Eadie alias the "FLYING SCOT" and "LEAD FOOT" Lund for the fastest trip to and from Toronto ever (safe too).

Swim Gaels of higher calibre

The Gaels have placed higher in the overall standing in past years, but the calibre of the swimming by individuals was as high as ever, as they competed at the OUA finals at McMaster this past weekend. The strong Toronto Blues captured 1st, with Waterloo 2nd and Western 3rd. In the scramble for 4th place Ottawa managed to edge out McMaster and Guelph.

Some highlights of the Queen's effort may be mentioned. John Pearson swam into the consolation finals in the 200 fly with a 2:08.7 and placed 3rd in that event. On Saturday he went on to the finals in 100 fly, coming 3th on a judges' decision with a 36.5. Brian Dalziel made it to the consolations and placed 6th with a 5:32.6. Scott Scheuermann made 2nd alternate to the same event with a time in the heats of 3:38.6.

The 400-yard medley relay team of Serebrin, Strahlendorf, Pearson and Hwozdyk pulled out the stops Saturday afternoon and got into the consolations with 4:09.7. Times were a shade slower that night, but the guys took 4th (tied with Mae) with a 4:10.4. The 800 freestyle relay team of Cameron, Scheuermann, Carson and Dalziel stroked into the finals with a time of 8:10.9 with just about everyone breaking 2 minutes on each 200 leg of the race. Saturday night saw the team take 5th in the event with 8:12.5. In both the relay events season's bests were recorded for some of the fellas on their personal efforts.

Many personal best times were recorded for those not making the finals or consolations. Serebrin swam 2:33.0 in the 200 back, while Don McLean brought his time down to 3:53.8 in the 200 breaststroke. In a neck-and-neck race in another heat of the 200 breast, Joe Schnittker and John Scheuermann swam to finish times of 2:43.0 and 2:44.8. Peter Strahlendorf, another breast-stroker, pulled his way to a personal best of 2:32.8 in the 200.

The efforts of our divers should not go unnoticed. Queen's had no entries in the 3 Metre event, but Fred Kallin placed 13th and Kerry Powell 15th in the preliminaries of the 1 metre diving.

One of the big highlights of the weekend has to have been the final evening's boat race in which the veteran's team of Coach Stoddart, Pearson, Dalziel and former Queen's swimmer Jim Easto soundly won out over the rookie team of McLean, Serebrin, Scheuermann and Schnittker. A fine end to a good season. The guys will remember the "Holy Stone" and Joe! The next big event for the men will be the Colour night presentations of the G.Q., G.M.T. and G.D. awards.

Notice:

Gaels '75

There will be a general meeting of all Gaels in Stirling "D" on

Tuesday
February 25
8:30 p.m.

Something to "cheers" about:

Now the glorious beer of Copenhagen is brewed right here in Canada. It comes to you fresh from the brewery. So it tastes even better than ever. And Carlsberg is sold at regular prices. So let's hear it, Carlsberg lovers. "One, two, three... Cheers!"

Panelists viewpoints' clash at financial constraint forum

Held two days after the Ontario government's announcement not to increase the funds already allocated to universities for 1975-76, the student-sponsored forum on financial constraint held Wed. attracted only 250 students and faculty.

Both empathized discourse on the role of the university and vehement criticism of the university life-style emerged during the panel discussion. Comprising the panel were Ben Wilson, Deputy Minister of Colleges and Universities; Peter Lane, 3rd year Meds student at Queen's; Doug Tousignant, Pres. Alcan Steelworkers' Union; Principal Ron Watts; and Arts and Science Dean Duncan Sinclair.

Monday, Minister of Colleges and Universities James Auld announced that the government had rejected the suggestion of the Ontario Council on University Affairs (a body set up to advise the government) to distribute 16.2 million dollars among the universities to help offset their inflationary costs.

Wilson's main point was that financing can be looked at both from the perspective of the B.I.U. which has increased by 7.8 percent (below the rate of inflation) and the other form the viewpoint of the financing of universities, the 16.9 percent figure, one which has supported the inflationary trend.

Lane's comments were directed mainly towards examination of student discontent with government methods. He emphasized his dislike of the formula of government financing, based as it is, on enrolment. He sees this system as an inflexible one, offering growth as the only solution to inflation. Feeling the number of university graduates to be already too large, he described the situation as cheating both the tax-payers and the graduates. He called for the government to provide incentives for universities to hold their enrolments at justifiable levels that perhaps they could then benefit from increased funding. In this light he sees a global budgeting formula one based on the "scope and nature" of operations rather than on the number of students as a solution, and sought an explanation for the continued use of the detrimental B.I.U. formula.

Doug Tousignant, President, Alcan Steel Workers Union, was the panel's representative of the tax payers. He spoke of his respect for university students in so far as their academic achievements were concerned. Yet at the same time, he decried the selfishness inherent in the belief that attending University should be considered a privilege.

He stated his suspicion that it wasn't the students who were complaining but more likely the "elders in the temple" complaining that a full days work would drive them crazy.

Sinclair held his discussion on both a practical and philosophical plane, stressing his concern about the lack of appreciation shown by the public for the role of higher education. A

See CONSTRAINTS Page 3

Auld suggests to OFS: increase size of classes

TORONTO (CUP). After delaying for over three months Ontario Minister of Colleges and Universities, James Auld, finally met with the Ontario Federation of Students (OFS) Wed. Feb. 26.

OFS representatives told Auld that provincial financing policies could only lead to the deterioration of the quality of education received by students and in living standards.

Auld replied that students shouldn't be surprised about the cutbacks adding that the government had been planning to trim college and university budgets for a number of years.

He also said students should expect no relief from the cutbacks for another five years. Students and educational institutions "must learn to tighten their belts."

Auld cited a student-teacher ratio of 24:1 as one target in the belt tightening campaign suggesting that economies could be made by increasing class sizes.

OFS executive member Barb Cameron said the 24:1 ratio was only an average and invited the minister to attend the University of Toronto classes where up to 1,000 students are packed into a lecture auditorium.

Auld's response was to blame university administrators, saying that students should pressure them to stop misallocating funds intended for teaching.

OFS also presented demands for a better deal in student aid calling for an abolition of tuition payments, a reduction in the student loan ceiling to $600 dollars, abolition of tuition payments, a reduction in the use of parental salaries in determining aid for students and an increase in student living allowances from the current $32 to $45 per week. Auld said institution of the OFS program would cost Ontario taxpayers $300 million annually and that his government would not consider such a change in student finances.

According to Auld the Ontario Student Aid program is more generous than any other

See AULD Page 3

"incompetence"

AMS fires Pub manager and assistant

by Sue Sherkin

Because of "incompetence" in the management of the pub finances, Pub Assistant Manager, Cathy Simpson was fired on Tuesday by the Personnel Manager, Business Administrator of the AMS, Joyce Roe. That same afternoon, Brian Sterling, Manager of the Pub was also fired because of his refusal to follow Roe's directive to dismiss Simpson from his staff.

Roe explained to the Journal that because of "various incidences which have not been satisfactory", suspicion has arisen over the financial handling of the operation.

It was noted that a number of balance sheets throughout the year did not tally with the amount of cash realized. A particular balance sheet from Monday showing a 50 dollar inconsistency, according to Roe, resulted in a personal investigation into the pub's safe.

Sterling was contacted and informed of the situation, at which time he, too, did an investigation, successfully producing the 'lost' money. Roe, however, in light of her investigation, was suspicious of this finding.

She informed Sterling through an official directive that Simpson's handling of the financial tabulations were unsatisfactory and that her dismissal was in order.

Sterling refused to follow this directive and upheld that "there was not enough justification" for the action. This, in turn resulted in his own dismissal.

In a short interview with the Journal, Sterling commented that he had been working hard at the pub for six months, "they don't know how hard".

With venom, he commented that "if the AMS really thinks its employees are that expendable, then that's fine".

Peter Druxerman, former Pub Manager has temporarily taken over the position. He had "no comment" on the situation.

AMS general meeting Mar. 3

A quorum of twenty-five members will set the wheels turning at the Alma Mater Society's annual general meeting in Stirling D next Monday. The meeting, rivalled only in legislative power by a campus wide referendum, has been severely neglected by the students on campus for the last few years.

Highlighting the motion sheet this year is the Don Krestel Memorial Award, the CFRC Sports Trust Fund Levy and the financing of the four foster children to be adopted by the AMS.

Money to set up the Krestel Award, in memory of former Physical Education student Donald Krestel, will be attained from the AMS reserve fund into which each student contributes $25. A student levy of $25 will enable CFRC radio to increase out of town sports broadcasting. In the discussion of the AMS foster parents plan, it will be proposed the $816 be allocated from the AMS capitol fund this year and from the AMS specific fee in future.

A regular feature of the annual meeting includes the election of new members to the AMS board of directors. Attend if you give a damn!

New Commissioners

Appointed AMS Commissioners for '75-'76

External Affairs - Peter Lane
Education - David Honey
Services - Peter Meech
Campus Activities - Graham Findlay Internal Affairs - Brian Copeland

wat's hapnin'?

Pubs and Theatres

Frontenac - Finnegan's - Paul Ketner
Frontenac - Muldoon's - Rodney Glory
Townhouse - Cannon
401 Inn - Major Hoople's Boarding House
Commodore - West End Brigade
Manor - Robby and Cheryl Capitol I - Groove Tube
Capitol II - Longest Yard
Odeon - Grizzly Adams
Italand - Texas Chainsaw Massacre

The Department of Drama presents Purgatory, a play by William Butler Yeats, from Tuesday March 4th until Friday March 7th. The play will be prefaced by a short and selected reading of Yeats poetry that traces his development from the 1890's until his death. This production is part of the Drama Depts Chronicle series and tickets are free from the Drama Desk in the Old Arts Building.

Friday, February 28

7:30 p.m. - Beethoven - His Life and Times - Queen's Radio CFRC-FM (91.9) presents a 2 1/2 hour programme of music and the spoken word.
2:30 p.m. - Plackick Blazoché speaks on Theology and Material Affluence - are they compatible? in the Andrews Room of Theological College.
8:00 p.m. - Plackick Blazoché speaks on 'From slavery to migrant workers - the original sins of Capitalism'. Stirling D.
7:00 p.m. - Diplomacy and Wargames Club in the Student Affairs Center, the gray house opposite Stirling. New members welcome.

Saturday, March 1

8:00 p.m. - Bitter Grounds Coffee House and Good Times Emporium presents The String Band, A fiddle, a banjo and a guitar that are guaranteed to provide a good time. Tickets are available Thursday and Friday 10:30 to 4:30 in the John Orr Room and at the door. Admission is $2.00 and doors open around 8:00 p.m.
8:00 p.m. - Morris Reunion Pub. All ex, present and future co-ed Morris residents and friends invited for a fun evening. Bar opens at 8:00 p.m. In the Morris Coffee Shop (basement common room).

Sunday, March 2

10:30 a.m. - Morning Worship at Chalmers United Church.
10:30 a.m. - Folk Mass, Dunning Hall, followed by coffee and donuts at Newman House, 164 University Ave.
11:00 a.m. - University Service, Morgan Memorial Chapel University Chaplain officiating. Subject: The Choice Before Us.
6:00 p.m. - International Centre, S.C.M. Sunday Supper $1.00 Followed by Canadian Native Films. All welcome.
9:30 p.m. - Galerie Victory presents Karen Keen, flute and Tom Davidson, piano playing works by Beethoven, Chopin, and Hindemith in the Common Room, Victoria Hall. Hot cider will be served and everyone is welcome.

Monday, March 3

7:00 - 9:00 p.m. - Films by Women in the National Film Board of Canada. Experimental, documentary and animated films. 2nd floor Kingston Public Library. Free admission. Everyone welcome.
8:30 p.m. - Robert Aitken and Erica Goodman - flute and harp. As soloists and as a duo these musicians have been recognized in many different parts of the world. Dunning Hall. Tickets available at

Division of Concerts Box Office, Agnes Etherington.

Upcoming Events

March 4 - The Kingston group of Amnesty International will hold its next meeting at 7:00 pm in the International Centre. All are welcome.
March 4 - The History of Painting in Canada, open lecture by Barry Lord, at 7:30 pm in the Agnes Etherington Art Centre. For more information phone 547-5747.

March 4 - Queen's University Amateur Radio Club has an important meeting in room 454, Goodwin Hall at 8:00 pm. All members please attend.
March 4 - The movie 'Singin' in the Rain' will be shown in Ellis Hall at 9:00 pm. Admission $1.00.
March 5 - Last Lecture series presents Dr. T. C. Willett from the Sociology Dept. To be held in the McNeil House Common Room at 7:15 pm.
March 6 - Nutrition Lecture series presents "Nutrition and Heart Disease" with Fran Walker, Ontario Dietetic Association. Dupuis Auditorium from 7 - 9 p.m.

March 6 - German Film Program presents Zar and Zimmerman at 8:00 pm in room 128 Jeffery Hall. No admission charge.

March 6 - Dept. of English presents Dr. David J. DeLaura Professor of English in the University of Pennsylvania - a talk on "The Future of Poetry" in Kingston Hall Room 200 at 8:00 pm.

March 7 - Dr. David J. DeLaura will continue his lecture series, focusing on "The Poetry of Thought". John Watson Hall, Rm. 517 at 3:00 pm.

March 7 - There is an open meeting on policy information with respect to usage of space in the Union. To be held at 3:30 pm on the 2nd floor of the Union in the common room.

March 11 - The English Department presents Canadian poets reading from their own work - at 8:30 pm. George Bowring, and at 9:30 pm Matt Cohen. Both in John Watson Hall, Room 517. Everybody welcome.

March 12 - Patent and Prescription Drugs - How safe and effective are they? - Dr. Murray Katz, noted Montreal physician will be guest speaker. To be held at the Council Chambers, City Hall, at 8:00 pm by the Consumers Association of Canada. Admission Free.

Agnes Etherington

Kazuo Nakamura: Exhibition continues to March 9 - Recent Acquisitions of Old Master Drawings, National Gallery of Canada, continues to March 15.

European Works: selections from the Permanent Collection, gifts of Dr. Alfred Bader. Continues to March 12.

Editions I: Continues at the Grand Theatre to March 15. Eskimo Ivory Objects from Alaska: selected from the gift of the Constantine Collection.

Picture of the Month: each Sunday during March and April, at 2:00 pm, a Gallery Guide will give a talk on a selected painting from the Permanent Collection, followed by a tour and discussion of the current exhibition. Open to all.

Phys. Ed. Center

Court Reservations - The book for the reservation of squash, handball-paddleball courts is available for bookings daily starting at the times listed:
Mon, Wed, Fri: 7:45 a.m.
Tues, Thurs, Sat.: 8:00 a.m.
Sun.: 2:00 p.m.

The Swimming Pool at Queen's will be closed on February 28, 9:00 to 10:00 p.m. and March 1, 4:30 to 6:00 p.m. and 9:00 to 10:00 p.m.

Science '44 open house

Saturday, March 1

397 Brock St.
1-4 pm.

SOUTHERN COMFORT

QEA Fund freeze off, concerts this spring

by Suzi
"Future Concerts Cancelled" is no longer the case, according to Dave Finlay, manager of Queen's Entertainment Agency (QEA).

This situation had arisen as a result of a letter sent to Finlay by the Business Manager of the AMS, Joyce Roe, on February 14, informing him that because of uncertainty of the QEA's financial position, their monies were to be frozen until such time when an up to date statement proved that they would continue operations with secure financial backing.

Tony Whitworth, the Finance Manager of the QEA claims that "there was no need at all to have the funds halted". Although he is aware that the AMS Business Manager was not given an up-to-date financial statement for the month of February, he upholds that there was enough money left in the budget to carry them through the rest of their concert schedule with no financial setback.

Roe pointed out that in light of the Concert Committee having had lost money in the past three years, she was hesitant to accept Whitworth's word that there was enough money in the QEA budget; the financial statement for February was incomplete as well as $1,000 loss prediction for the Leonard Cohen concert made by Whitworth, previous to the concert.

She expects the financial statement on the Cohen concert by Friday and after "further review of the situation" at that time, expects that council will approve of the lifting of the freeze.

Since last Tuesday's article, according to Finlay, a number of students had expressed dissatisfaction with the cancellation of future concerts for this year. Because of this increased interest, "We'll be going out of our way to deal with promoters" in order to bring in more concerts before the end of term, says Finlay.

Finlay anticipates a number of concerts to take place late March, early April, but, he says, "it's too late to begin negotiations for concerts to take place in the next few weeks."

Constraint forum

Continued from Page 1

university he said, "enables us to face the future with confidence...it is the one institution designed to help society cope with problems that are as yet unforeseen."

The next speaker, John Grace, Editor of the Ottawa Journal and Chairman of the Board of Ottawa U., was in some ways the surprise of the evening as he moved into a description of universities as having become too accustomed to easy living. He described the crunch as long-overdue and expressed his surprise that it had not come sooner. Deficit financing he called a cop-out, unfair to those schools who had dealt with their own shortages without it. He described the university community as essentially full of spoiled brats. Firstly, professors calling for tenure and sabbatical leaves as well as salary increases that some who work much harder, much longer and at jobs just as demanding don't get; and students who are just as pampered, offered too many courses and facilities at too many universities. He stressed his feelings that "there is fat to be trimmed and the trimming will not hurt the quality of education...the cries of anguish seem to me to be too much the cries of self-pity."

The roster of panelists ended with Principal Watts of Queen's, who first made it clear that the evenings' discussions applied to the situation in general - that Queen's was no better or worse off than other schools. The general theme of his discussion was double-barrelled: firstly that he recognized fully the right of the public to put a lid on spending in universities, but that then they needed to be warned that they couldn't still expect the universities to provide the same levels of service and standards of education.

"It's not Fair!" At Queen's, if you want to complain, there's only one way to do it

by Sarah Yarnell
Been wondering lately whether you are receiving fair treatment at this university? Or have you occasionally suspected a prof of using an illegitimate bias in marking your work, and when you protested this, has your plea for a higher mark been rejected? If you are like the little guy in the cartoon, you will soon realize that even violent anger is useless - a bit like ramming your head against a brick wall. At Queen's there are special grievance procedures which you can follow in order to come out the winner.

These grievance procedures were originally drawn up during the years 1970-72 by a Senate Committee on Grievance. Discipline and Related Matters, and were revised just recently and approved almost in total by the Board of Trustees. The reason for the grievance procedures was set out in 1972 Report: "Appropriate and effective machinery must be available to protect the rights of members of this University and to resolve real and imagined grievances, otherwise an acute sense of frustration may promote apathy or precipitate serious disruption."

Grievances may arise with respect to decisions made by the University and acts or omissions to act with respect to non-compliance with regulations and with respect to infringements of the rights of any member of the University community.

Types of student grievances are diverse. They could possibly include the situation in which a student is expelled but believes that there is inadequate reason for the expulsion; the situation in which a student has been penalized for exercising his freedom of expression; and the situation in which a student suspects a professor of incorporating an unfair bias into the grading of the student's work.

Once a student has received a decision from a professor which he chooses to protest, he must file an appeal within two weeks. Where there is no formally set up chain of authority to which the student must appeal his case, it is generally accepted that the student must pursue his case through the Department Head, Dean and Principal or Vice-Principal.

Once the student has exhausted all these appeals and remedies, he may take his case to the Grievance Board which will determine whether the grievance calls for reconsideration by the University or one of its constituent parts, which in the cases mentioned here would be the professor. The Grievance Board is responsible for investigating the grievance and then taking one or more courses of action in most cases it would either refer the matter with or without recommendation to the appropriate faculty board, council or deliberate body for reconsideration and a report; or report that no action should be taken with respect to the grievance, and dismiss the appeal.

This Grievance Board will be made up of a Senate appointed chairman, usually from the Faculty of Law, one student senator drawn by lot but excluding the AMS Pres. and law students, and one faculty senator drawn by lot but excluding senators from the Faculty of Law.

But in the case that the student is not satisfied with the action taken by the Grievance Board, he may always appeal his case to the Ultimate Tribunal. This body would consist of a legally trained outside arbitrator who would be selected for the particular hearing.

The revised report on Grievance Procedures states that the grievor in this case a student) must put up a $250 deposit as security for the payment of the arbitrator's fees and other costs of the Ultimate Tribunal hearing. If the student wins his case, or the University has not complied with the recommendations of the Grievance Board, then the University will reimburse the $250 and pay for costs of the hearing. If, on the other hand, the student loses his case, then he is responsible for half the costs of the hearing.

When the revised Grievance Report went to the Board of Trustees meeting earlier this month for financial approval, the two sections of the report concerning cost to the student and university were not accepted but referred for recommendations to a three-man committee of the Board. Several Board members expressed anxiety about the potentially high costs the university could run into (an arbitrator would charge $300 per day); while Rector Bruce Trotter and AMS Pres. Tony Wolman protested that the $250 deposit would deter too many students from taking their cases to the Ultimate Tribunal, and that the cost of legal counsel would be too large a financial burden for students.

At any rate, the whole system beyond the Grievance Board is an over-structured monstrosity. While it is generally accepted that the University would prefer to keep its internal disputes out of the civil courts, it is impractical to maintain that the ostentatious Ultimate Tribunal is necessary. A de-legated system of grievance procedures would be a lesser financial liability for the University and would certainly be more accessible for students.

Beaver trys hard

In an informal lunch meeting of the food service committee, Beaver Food representatives proved themselves to be most concerned about the satisfaction of its patrons. With a number of complaints thrown at them, Brian Hunt, Manager and his staff, considered everything from the temperature of the water to the amount of fat on the meats to the smile on the behind-the-counter girls. Even a brief consideration centered the possibility of putting that ever familiar Dominion kind sign of 'know your manager and talk to him'.

But the crux of the meeting centered around sentiments over the recent 5pm closing of the coffeeshop.

Robert Webb, Director of Purchasing and Food Services, accepts responsibility for closing the coffee shop and pointed out that the main reason behind the action was to save money. He claims that by closing of the operation at this time, costs can be limited by approximately "$1,000 per month".

It was stressed by Bruce Trotter, Rector, that the Union provides a viable service to the students, a meeting place and a food outlet. He mentioned too that if students using the Union in the evening are not allowed this casual coffee-donut atmosphere, it might, in effect, "drive them into the pub".

Much discussion continued over what Ian Nordheimer, V.P. Finances-elect, termed as a situation which is "becoming an issue," and plans were made to make appeals to Vice-President, Administration, Kennedy to remedy the situation.

Webb commented in passing, "what can I do, I only work here".

File 13

by Bruce Trotter

Boomer was sitting in the can... the third cubicle in the basement Union washroom. There was no latch on the door, consequently one leg was fully extended propping the door closed, as not to offend anyone. Maybe it was the tranquility, the privacy or the return to baser instincts that always made Boomer contemplate. He liked his cubicle with its walls covered with graffiti; his best ideas for essays had their origin here. Maybe some day when he was rich and famous it would be a national shrine.

Financial constraints. He had always wondered about those boys that ran the university. He firmly contended that they could never pin the tail on the donkey even without the blindfold. Now positive proof was coming to the forefront.

There were only three places that he needed in this concrete conglomerate being pawed off as a university, and yet they were being undermined by the gigabobs in Richardson Hall. His washroom cubicle door no longer had a latch; there was rarely toilet paper (commonly referred to by the 'washroom set' as engineering degrees) and the graffiti was not being removed to make room for the new material. It was down right unchristian not to wipe the slate clean. How was he to keep abreast of the greater issues without the graffiti?

He couldn't sit in his coffee shop seat because now the bloody place was being locked up from 5 o'clock on. How could he make any witty comments to half of his friends if the other half couldn't sit with him and feed him the lines. He wasn't particularly given to paranoia but he had a distinct feeling somebody was out to get him; to take out of his university life all that was pleasing and of value. Were students really acting out the educational equivalent of Catch-22?

If that wasn't sufficient cause to consider psychiatric help, the ruddy library was getting slashed too. His favourite stall in the bowels of Douglas was always occupied by some guy in an Arts '78 jacket. Fancy that, his own kind were turning on him too. He was a great believer in the written rather than the spoken word and truly treasured his stall. No other stall seemed to exhibit that Spartan, starving-student-image atmosphere that was, for him, so conclusive to masochistic mental strain.

He didn't ask for much, just a latch on the door and periodic cleaning of his cubicle walls, the coffee shop to be open so he could gain access to his chair and his stall in the library free of that turncoat in the red leather jacket. Was that so much? Everybody else could have the chalk, the triplicate forms, the profs with their foreign accents and the men behind the big desks in Richardson Hall.

He stood up, the door swung in and he flushed the toilet. He wondered whether we weren't all bozos on this bus.

Delicatesen of sorts...

Beaver Foods has recently opened near the reading room in Mack-Corry a delicatessen of sorts; featuring knackwurst, zierwurst, mortadella and salami sandwiches for around sixty cents each. For coffee breaks they offer danishes and pastries.

The Mac-Corry delicatessen operates as a sub-centre of the new university centre and is organized accordingly. It operates from 9:30 am to 3:00 pm in order to relieve the pressure on the Union cafeteria.

on the lighter side

Student paper routed

CALGARY (CUP)—Police evicted student newspaper workers from their office at Mount Royal College recently.

Staff members at the Reflector, Mount Royal's student-run fortnightly paper, were ordered at 10 p.m. by campus security to leave the office by 11 p.m. or police would be summoned.

The staff, holding its regular production night, said work on the paper would take until at least midnight.

Editor Nick Burton phoned assistant head of campus security Jim Cowan, who issued the order, and was told it was in accordance with college regulations. However, one observer commented it was unprecedented in Reflector history.

Burton also phoned MRC president Walter Pentz who said the order may have come as a result of a recent rash of fires on campus after regular hours.

But a former editor of the Reflector said it was "Likely Cowan's actions came as a result of an uncomplimentary article in the previous issue of the Reflector in which he was depicted as a purple plant-eating psychopath."

At 11 p.m. campus security warned staff members to leave quickly. Several of them did, including Burton who said, "This will accomplish nothing."

The six who stayed, including two members of the Gauntlet student newspaper at the University of Calgary, continued work until 11:40 when police arrived and demanded identification.

When asked what charges would be laid, one policeman, Constable Lust, said, "I'll find some and I'll make them as rough as possible."

Last phoned Cowan to clarify the situation and was told Mount Royal College is private property after 11 p.m. The staff decided to avert further confrontation in order to put the paper out and left the office.

President Prentz later denied the college is private property after 11 p.m. saying it was probably "an oversight on both the part of security and the Reflector," because there is in fact, a regulation which states anyone on campus after that hour must have authorization.

Singing Nun on the run

BRUSSELS (ZNS-CUP) - Do you remember Sister Sourire, the singing nun who in 1964 recorded the hit "Dominique"?

It turns out that the tax people are after her.

Belgian tax collectors have initiated proceedings against Sister Sourire's superior, claiming that the singing nun failed to pay "even the smallest installment" on her taxes due. The tax people claim the singing nun owes them at least 10,000 pounds.

In the meantime, the convent has refused to open its doors to the collectors. It says that Sister Sourire is no longer one of their charges—that she quit after recording her hit record—and that they don't know where she went.

Do bumblebees bumble?

SYDNEY (ZNS-CUP) - As if things weren't confusing enough these days, an Australian researcher is out with the word that bumblebees don't really bumble.

Doctor Graham Pyke, after spending two summers chasing through the Rocky Mountains after the insects, found that bees follow a straight "ongoing" course.

Pyke says the bees go directly to the heart of the flower, stopping only occasionally to make a left or right turn. They rarely bumble about, he says.

A boogeyman will get you!

LOS ANGELES (ZNS-CUP) - A study of fear has found that children are usually not afraid of the boogeyman or ghosts.

Instead, their greatest fears are of killers, dying and the atom bomb. A team of researchers from California State University told the Western Psychological Association Convention that they asked second-through-sixth grade children to rank their 94 greatest fears.

The top three were killer, dying and the atom bomb, followed by kidnappers, fourth, and dope peddlers, fifth. Others near the top on the list included war, plane crashes, earthquakes and snakes.

Teachers and fathers tied for 62nd place, while mothers were not mentioned.

The study has found that as children grow older their fear of the devil declines rapidly, while their fear of "funking" jumps sharply.

Garbage Coalition's Caravan to visit here

by Kelly

Well, the government may finally have to take some action on the problem of non-returnable pop containers.

For two weeks, starting March 1, a mobile "Caravan" will travel across Ontario, visiting 12 major centres. It is being organized by the Garbage Coalition, a coalition of 56 groups from across Ontario who are concerned about solid waste problems.

The Caravan will feature a walk through display which will graphically portray the social and environmental benefits of a ban on non-returnable containers. It will also trace 5 years of government inaction.

It will begin its journey in Ottawa and end in Toronto. The Caravan will be in Kingston on Thurs., Mar. 6. In the morning it will be downtown, in the afternoon it will be on campus and in the evening, it will be at the Kingston Shopping Centre.

The expected 8,000 visitors will be urged to send a nickel to Premier Davis, symbolizing their concern for the environment of Ontario. (5c being the deposit on a small pop bottle). On reaching Toronto the Caravan will present the nickels to Premier Davis. He will be urged to use the money to help pay for the cost of printing legislation banning the non-returnable soft drink container in Ontario.

For more information on this problem, write Action Against Non-returnables, P.O. Box 4421, Station E, Ottawa, Ontario.

Music Dep't.

Musicians feel the pinch too

by Paul Steep

University registration in music programs across Ontario has increased between 1970 and 1974 from 8,860 to 14,623. In the same period those enrolled in a professional music program, a Bachelor of Music Degree, has increased from 785 to 1,660. Despite this growing interest in the music discipline the Ontario government is cutting back on its support to universities and the Department of Music, like all other departments, will be faced with a serious financial squeeze.

With the completion of the new music building at Queen's, Harrison-Le Caine Hall, one might conclude that the Department of Music has little to fear from the reduced spending. But though they are in a healthy state as far as space is concerned, there are other considerations which make the future of the Music Department less bright than it might at first appear. Funds for the repair of instruments are very tight and money for the replacement of non-repairable equipment is no longer available. If this situation is allowed to continue for any length of time then instrumental resources would deteriorate to the point where it would seriously affect the work of the department. This was reported by Istvan Anhalt, the Head of the Music Department. He also added that staff resources are stretched to capacity. "If the present student staff ratio is allowed to increase further then our teaching standards would suffer."

Curriculum is also in danger if the cuts in financing are left unchecked. Anhalt recognises the need for renewal and diversification of the curriculum but he is afraid that in the future they may find themselves in a situation where a new and desirable course can only be introduced by discounting an equally important one already in the calendar.

Lastly, there is a ballooning

Last Lecture

Dr. Taylor speaks on future

by John Gibson

"If men and women derive their greatest satisfaction from the solving of problems, then I congratulate you. For your generation may be unprecedented in its great good fortune, for you are likely to be challenged as no other generation heretofore to find solutions to problems that are at once personal, national and international."

With this prediction Dr. A. M. Taylor of the departments of Geography and Political Studies prefaced his remarks in the fourth in the series of Last Lectures. His speech, delivered Wed. Feb. 12 before an audience of about forty persons, was entitled "From Turbulence to Tranquility?" In it, Dr. Taylor outlined what he thought will be the pattern of development of the future, our need for values, and what this will mean to us as Canadians and as individuals.

One of the outstanding features of the future world will be an enormous increase in population and in the problems and pressures associated with population growth. "Pill or no Pill, it seems certain that the world population will exceed six billion by the end of the century." But this prediction might prove invalid because of a second major problem—"dwindling food and other resources." Continuing the chain of problems is the dilemma of environmental exploitation and deterioration.

On the subject of values, Dr. Taylor pointed out that throughout our history as a race we have had to set goals and determine our values, to integrate the "is" and the "ought" in order to mold our environment and produce results acceptable. Danger lies in divorcing the empirical from the normative, for seeking to describe what is, we can divorce ourselves from reality. Pure observation is impossible, it must be directed to be fruitful.

Since we must have values, what should they be? Dr. Taylor suggests that those of the UN's Universal Declaration of Human Rights are satisfactory. Some of the provisions of the Declaration follow:

All human beings are born free and equal in dignity and rights.

Everyone is entitled to all rights and freedoms set forth in the Declaration.

Everyone is entitled to a social and economic order in which the rights and freedoms set forth in the Declaration can be fully realized.

How do these norms apply to us as Canadians? Dr. Taylor answers this question with a few of his own: "Are all Canadians equal, or are some more equal than others? How do we regard Canada's natural resources? Should we share our resources with the Americans? Am I my brother's keeper, in Somalia, in Upper Volta, in Bangla Desh?"

We live in a new, global society differing from the old in transportation, communication and military capabilities. Will we be able to adjust? Dr. Taylor's answer is "Of course. To assume otherwise makes purposeless either planning for tomorrow or waiting for Convocation at Queen's."

The hope, then is that a new and more tranquil social order will emerge from the turbulence of the past and present.

The blasting which has turned lunch hours into a game of steady your nerves, has also made this exit into a suicide route. The blasting is part of phase I in the new Student Centre construction.

Suggest a friend to Senate, today!

Vacancies will exist on Senate committees, starting September 1st, 1975; the terms of office are for two years unless otherwise stated.

Full-time members of faculty and full-time students in any year are invited to apply for positions, and members of the university community are invited to submit to the Secretary of the Senate the names of those whose interests, knowledge and experience seem to qualify them for such positions. Nominees need not be members of the Senate, but should have a special interest in the particular problems related to the responsibilities of the committee. It would be helpful to the Senate Nominating Committee, in selecting the most appropriate nominees, if the special interests and talents of applicants or prospective nominees were to be briefly described on the application form. The Nominating Committee would also be willing to interview any prospective nominee who might wish to appear before it.

Applications should be submitted to the Secretary of the Senate before Friday, March 7th, 1975.

For convenience, cut the form below.

Committee	Vacancies
	Faculty	Student
Academic Development	2	1
Academic Procedures	1	1
Agenda +	1	1
Appointment, Promotion, Tenure & Leave ++	2	1
Campus Planning	3	1
Computing	2	2
Fine Arts & Public Lectures	2	2
Library	2	2
Nominating + (1-yr. term)	4	3
Operations Review +	1	1
Residences Board ++	1	-
Men's Residences Board ++	1	-
Ban Right Board ++	1	-
Scholarships & Student Aid	2	2
Student Affairs	-	3
Tenure Appeal ++	2	-
McGill-Queen's Editorial Committee ++	1	-
University Council on Athletics	-	1

+ Must be a Senator
++ 3-year terms

classifieds

More on Pages 9 and 16

Otherwise

PLANNING A SPRING WEDDING?
Photo Image offers complete photographic coverage tailored to your individual needs from as little as $99. For further information call us at 546-7770 or visit our studio at 33 Brock St. and see the photographs we have done.

CAMERA FOR SALE ASAMI PEN. TAX SPOTMATIC F13 months old warranty included with carrying case 1:1.8-55mm $230.00
SMC TAKUMAR TELEPHOTO LENS with carrying case 1:3.5-135 mm $80.00
YASHICA Wideangle lens with carrying case 1:2.8-28mm $100.00

YASHICA closeup tubes (36mm, 18mm, 11mm) $10.00 each. Richard at 542-4185. Before 9 am or after 11 pm.

NEED PASSPORT OR JOB APPLICATION PHOTOGRAPH?
Photo Image has a student rate of $4.00 for six prints. For an appointment call us at 546-7770.
Photo Image 33 Ltd. specializes in 24 hour black and white and ekachrome slide film processing. For further information, call 546-7770 or visit our studio at 33 Brock St.

STUDENT TICKETS for the Orama Guide's 75th Anniversary Banquet, March 1, Wallace Hall, or $5.50 from Alumni Office, Student's Union. Cash bar 5:30, dinner 6:30. Guest speaker: actor Sandy Webster. Arts '74.

RECYCLE YOUR BOOKS AND RECORDS. We sell records on consignment; that is, you get $1.50 for every one of your records that sell. Needless to say, good rock, blues, jazz, folk records sell out quickly. We also have unopened used books for sale. The Book Bin, in the Spring a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of... motor-cycles??? Happy 21st. May your buns be good, go on ad infinitum.

VW Beetle - needs some body and engine work. Suitable as car or for dune buggy. Will take best offer. Phone 542-4445.

CLIP THIS AD AND KEEP IT HANDY or note the number: 542-8911 for the next time you need efficient, friendly, moving, reasonable rates, no waiting. Student operated service.

SAIL A LASER: Laser sales and servicing - anything you want to know about Lasers call Gord Crothers 544-4308.

FOR SALE: One BE 200 and two BS-100 1974 Yamaha amplifiers, ideal for P.A. or base or organ. Excellent condition. Also, one Texas Instruments TI-2510 calculator. Performs chain and mixed calculations. Phone 544-0144.

CAMP OUTLOOK still requires both male and female canoe tripping staff to volunteer for all or part of the summer. If interested, call 544-6444 or come to the office upstairs in the Union.

SKI BOOTS for sale $35. Lange competition 1971 model. Good condition. Call Shane 549-5734.

AS THE COCOUE RISES Coke and Bear remind all friends and relations of the gala birthday extravaganza planned for Harisly and Dr. Chates this Friday, at 195. Beer and mix available - BYOL. Cock a doodle doo.

THE UNION PROGRAM COMMITTEE invites all those interested to attend an open meeting on policy formulation with respect to usage of space in the Union on Friday, March 7 at 3:30 in the 2nd floor common room.

OO 20 year olds dribble? Yes and 12 very good ones (namely Mary, Barb, Cars, Jeannie, Drinks, Sue, Keel, Lane, Patti, Ouis, Big Momma, Pen (dumb rehab? & Mol) I say thanks for a great year - sorry about the bum article. (Remember, I had to write it upon coming back Sunday) Love the money grubber.

Several male singers are required to complete casting of "The Gondollers" to be presented by the Grand Theatre by the Kingston Meistersingers May 4-10. Phone Ernie Whyman 389-3474.

SKI SUTTON: Queen's Ski Club, March 8-9. Tickets for sale $35. Towels, accommodation and bus. Call Peter 544-5176.

you'll be needed

when you're a professional RIA Management Accountant.

There is a growing demand for men and women with the professional skills and insights of the RIA Management Accountant. And no wonder. Decisions are more crucial than ever in today's economy. Top management in business and government needs all the help it can get. RIA's are uniquely qualified to play a part.

Why? Because our study program goes beyond a thorough study of accounting, computers and data processing. It also includes such fields as report writing, organizational behaviour and management processes. So you will be that rarest of all people, a specialist with a broad point of view. Because you study while working, your career will move ahead faster from the very start of your RIA program. Even if you have not graduated, your post secondary studies will probably earn course exemptions to shorten your RIA program. Mail this coupon today for more information.

For information write:
R. J. Mattina, RIA, Registrar
The Society of Industrial Accountants of Ontario,
Box 176, Hamilton, Ontario L8N 3C3

Mr./Ms

Address

City

the professional management accountant

Player's filter cigarettes. A taste you can call your own.

Warning: Health and Welfare Canada advises that danger to health increases with amount smoked - avoid inhaling

Director of QEA - full time job?

Dear Editor,

Each year the Queen's Entertainment Agency undergoes a personnel change as the director and some of his staff realize that they cannot continue to perform what amounts to a 40 to 60 hour a week job and expect to maintain academic standards.

The director's job is simply too demanding for a full-time student to handle for long and consequently each year the AMS has to find a new director. This is not unusual as most AMS positions are taken, by new personnel each year, but the situation is especially upsetting to put the functioning of QEA since the agency's booking capacity and professional reputation depend almost entirely on the contacts built up between the QEA director and talent promoters and agents. The key to Queen's getting good bands and big-name stars rests on two things: Queen's reputation as a good musical market and the concert director's reputation in putting together a well organized and professional operation. The director has to have a close link with the musical grapevine, composed of professional musicians and their agents, record companies and other university concert committee directors. The better known and respected he is within the industry, the better bands he can book and the better prices he can get for those bands.

Usually the QEA director takes the better part of his year in office getting contacts and learning to organize concerts to professional standards. In consequence second term are usually better organized, more frequent and cheaper in terms of price paid for the artist with respect to the artist's value. Note also that the price paid for an artist is not fixed, it often depends on the artist's agent's opinion of Queen's as a market and his trust in the QEA director. Business practices in the music industry approach the aims of wheeler-dealership; the industry is fast and the people involved are entrepreneurs constantly driving bargains, making deals and doing each other favours.

Queen's is virtually the only major university without a full-time QEA director. All other Ontario universities have professional concert directors who, working together, represent considerable booking power and can often make block bookings, ie organize for a particular Canadian or US artist to do tour amongst the Ontario universities. Queen's sometimes has a harder time getting these artists since each year during the spring and early summer when long-term plans for winter tours are being laid down, the QEA director is just then taking over his position and hence lacks the market savoir-faire and recognition that full-time directors have.

Possibly then Queen's should have a full-time employee running QEA. However, it is difficult to justify such a position from a financial point of view. A full-time director would have to be paid in the vicinity of $7000 or $8000 or roughly 30 per cent of QEA's present $25,000 budget. This seems a rather large proportion of the budget to put into administration considering QEA's good record in the past with practically negligible administration costs. By comparison this amount is roughly equivalent to the total cost of a "decent" free concert, or it could make the difference of a $1.00 or so in ticket prices to students over several concerts. The supposed payoffs in hiring a pro come a year or so later when we start getting better bands at cheaper rates. Additional advantages would come in the booking of films for campus movies and guest speakers since many of the contacts needed are the same. Apparently we could get newly-released movies and renowned guest speakers for reasonable rates. But in terms of financial savings nobody can say that by paying a full-time concerts director $7,000 a year will result in a sum saved in better concerts. We cannot simply assign values to better concerts, movies or speakers to judge the merit of hiring a professional.

A full-time director might be good for Queen's, not necessarily now, but in five or six years when possibly QEA will take on a role great enough in campus entertainment to deserve a budget sizeable enough to justify a professional director. Graham Findley

"Bond" review needs binding

Dear Editor,

It is not the fashion to respond to newspaper reviewers; they are, after all, entitled to an opinion. However, the pseudonymous Donald Stephen in his (her?) assessment of Strindberg's The Bond (Journal, Friday, Feb. 14) ignored two fundamental principles of criticism. The first is one of fact: the review seriously distorted known facts about Strindberg's life and attitudes towards women. The second is one of open-mindedness: Mr. Stephen came to the play with a preconception of its theme and then found issue because the production failed to elicit that theme.

The critic states categorically that Strindberg was an anti-feminist, even a "rabid" one. Such is the popular view; and it satisfies those who find labels easier to handle than the complexities of life. The facts do not support this view; indeed, if a document has status as fact, Strindberg's text of The Bond completely refutes it, as the reviewer could have noticed had he listened.

One must assume from the authoritative statements of the critic that he is a Strindberg scholar. If so, he needs to look at the author's views on marriage in life. Strindberg was certainly tormented in his marriage, but to infer from this that he hated marriage is difficult to support from the text of his plays and even more difficult from the letters he wrote. Some examples from the period of The Bond, The Father, and Miss Julie: "J'aime les femmes et j'adore les enfants; quoique divorce je recommande le mariage comme la seule forme du commerce entre les sexes" (1892); "You know that as a creative writer I mix make-believe and reality together, and the whole of my 'misogyny' is theoretical, for I could not live without the company of a woman" (1897); "I suffer horribly at having to go to bed without saying good night to my young, and solitude without a woman saps all my energy." If letters are not adequate demonstrations of Strindberg's preference for marriage, possibly the fact that he married three times and on each occasion found it just as complex as a relationship as many married couples now seem free to acknowledge. Of course Strindberg did antedate Open Marriage by some seventy-five years in his writing. But such evidence appears to carry no weight with Mr. Stephen who knows the "misogamistic" author for what he really was.

A reviewer who comes to a play with such simplistic biases as Donald Stephen is bound to be disappointed if what he sees and hears fails to fit what he had a right to expect. In such a mind set, he is prone to forget the second principle of criticism, which is to accept the theme presented. Once this is done, he is free to fault the clarity of the production's unfolding of that theme and the manner in which director and players sought to make the play clear. The view presented in The Bond is that marriage is a complex matter. If it fails, it is "not the fault of one or the other partner"; rather it results from a lack of harmony between them. Neither the Baron nor the Baroness wanted the constrictive bond of marriage, but they found that freedom and independence do not come to a pair, even if they were utterly modern in their attempts to set up an open marriage. Theirs is a love-hate relationship in which they find it as difficult to declare their need of one another as they do to separate. Possibly Mr. Stephen should see Ingmar Bergman's "Scenes from a Marriage" and then re-read Strindberg. He might then discover that most of the "careful re-evaluations and reformations of the basic relationships between man and women" were formulated by Strindberg, but that, unfortunately, (or, as Strindberg might say, because of our very natures) we have not yet found the way to ensure that loving is a part of marriage.

I am truly sorry that we were unable to present the "acerbic" answer to the experience of a lifetime.

Yours truly,
Brian Meeson

Groove Tube in poor taste

Dear Editor,

It was my misfortune on Friday night to acquire the movie It, I thought it might be nice to take my girl to see the Groove Tube that was advertised as "1974's most hilarious wildest movie." If this is the best that 1974 can do in the field of comedy then the movie theatres are in serious trouble. Even though the movie was restricted, under this sort of heading one would expect to find something that could be viewed in mixed company. In actual fact the movie is in such poor taste that it manages to insult the intelligence of even the most open-minded sort of individual.

Queens Journal

Vol. 102, No. 40
Fri., February 28, 1975
Queen's University
at Kingston, Ontario

Spiritual Adviser - God
Editor-in-chief - Suzanne Sherkin
Business Editor - Terry Collins
Managing Editor - Dan'l Mc Clelland
News Editor - Sarah Yarnell

Assistant News Editor - Nancy "Seagull" Flood
Features Editors - Wendy Reynolds, Laurie Gibson
Arts Editors - Kerry White, Peter Haworth
Sports Editors - Lyn Alwood
Photo Editor - Jon Willmer
Business Staff - Anne Robertson, Meg Bottomley
Old Hands - John Mable
Wal's Hapnin - Jennifer, Rosemary, Mark
Wayward Boy - "Louisiana" Dave (and Kelly)
Other Phreaks - John Bottomley (resident Genius), Alan Mann, Peter Case, Cathi Corbelli, Cathi Corbelli, John Cameron, Suzanne Jackson, small leprechauns, and other turly creatures too numerous to mention

Founded in 1973 and published on Tuesdays and Fridays during the academic year by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University, Incorporated, Kingston, Ontario. Founding member of Canadian University Press. Editorial opinions expressed are those of the editor and not necessarily those of the AMS nor the University. Telephone (613) 547-2606. Printed by gnomes at the St. Lawrence Printing Co. Ltd., Prescott, Ontario. Lithographed in USA on Canadian newsprint.

To start with the movie cost $3.00, which seemed to be a bit steep even before you find out what you're getting. The movie in it's entirety is no more than an hour and ten minutes. In this short length of time the only real reason that I'm sure most people don't get up and walk out is that no-one can really believe their eyes. I don't think anyone really likes to go out for the evening with someone whose company they enjoy and then end the evening sorry they ever bothered.

In writing this I am admitting that I was completely fooled by the advertising, so I sincerely hope that if anyone really wants to go see this abortion that they spend a good couple of hours in the pub first, and then go alone. You'd probably have more fun staying at home and watching some paint dry.

The Masked Critic

Puzzled at QEA limiting

Dear Editor,

It was with great dismay that I read the article in the Journal of February 25 concerning the cancellation of future concerts. It was ironic that the demise of the QEA came on the eve of one of its greater achievements, a superb performance by Leonard Cohen.

I was puzzled by the reason for the restriction of the QEA. If Ms. Roe had not yet received a financial statement, on what did she base her claim that the budget had been overspent? Further investigation of this affair is warranted, and I hope the relevant facts and figures will be published so that the student body can see what, if any, justification there is to a very unpopular decision.

Even in the event that the QEA has overspent, the decision was handed down in an inconsiderate, arbitrary fashion. Dave Finlay and his colleagues have done an excellent job in arranging a lengthy and varied series of concerts, and they deserve both our thanks and our respect. The suddenness and lack of warning associated with this restriction, as well as its coming in the midst of negotiations for further concerts, was a callous and inconsiderate treatment of a highly commendable organization.

Finlay and his associates are owed a considerable debt of gratitude by this university. It saddens me, and it angers me to see them abused in this manner.

Rob McClung,
195 Collingwood St., 549-5162.

letters to the editor

Commerce Society By-Elections

For the positions of;
Social Convenor
Athletic Stick

Nominations require 25 signatures

Submit to:

Bob Butterill

Berni Koch

or Carl Lawrence's Office

Must be submitted by
Fri., February 28, 5 pm

Polish Club

Presents
A Dance With

Standing Room
Only

Tonight - Fri. Feb. 28

$1.50/person

Bar

ARE YOU IN FAVOUR OF COMPULSORY
PREGNANCY
?

WHY IS IT THAT
GALS WIN ALL THE TOURNAMENTS BUT THE GUYS GET THE BEST PRACTICE HOURS
?

THE AMS CELEBRATES
INTERNATIONAL WOMEN'S YEAR

MARCH 8th

FILM: WOMEN ON THE MARCH

ELLIS AUDITORIUM 1 P.M.

WORKSHOPS: 3RD FLOOR ELLIS

TOPICS RANGE FROM MEN'S LIBERATION TO WOMEN AND THE LAW

THEATRE: HOLIDAY THEATRE 5 INTERPRETS WOMEN AS THEY'RE SEEN THROUGH THE THEATRE
DUNNING HALL 8 P.M.

VOLUNTEERS ARE NEEDED FOR
DAY CARE 1-5 P.M.

PHONE SUE BENNETT 542-3002

CANADIAN
WOMEN ARE OWED
$7 BILLION IN BACK PAY EACH YEAR
?

THEY CAN'T DENY WE'RE WORTH IT BUT CAN THEY AFFORD TO PAY
?

Fish Netting
Measuring
12 Feet by 6 Feet

Available In
Orange
Black
Red and White

Reg. $2.75

Sale Price $1.95

DOMUS
68 Brock St.
between King and Wellington

A Symposium on Politics in Northern Ireland

Friday, Feb. 28

3.30 pm - "The Catholic Community:
Grievances, Divisions, Leadership"

8.00 pm - Discrimination and the Political Mobilization of Minorities

Saturday, Mar. 1

9.30 a.m. - "The Protestants: Political Role, Responses to British Policy."

11.00 a.m. - "Prospects for Conflict Resolution"

All Sessions in Dupuis Auditorium

Something to "cheers" about:

Now the glorious beer of Copenhagen is brewed right here in Canada.
It comes to you fresh from the brewery. So it tastes even better than ever.
And Carlsberg is sold at regular prices.
So let's hear it, Carlsberg lovers. "One, two, three... Cheers!"

unclassifieds

More on Pages 4 and 14

Otherwise

DAVE, DARLING. This is a formal apology for the "love pat" outside the pub. Just to be nice I am cancelling your bill for services rendered. Sensuously Yours. Sexy Sudie.

FOR SALE: Second hand calculators, HP-35 adapter and case $125, or best offer, SR-10 $30 or best offer.
Call Hugh at 548-8305. Leave number if I'm not home.

ASUS VICTORSHIP: Interested in bringing a famous speaker to Queen's. Apply for the ASUS Victorship Committee. For details contact Nina Mahon in the ASUS
Office B105 MacCormy or phone
547-3049 by Wednesday.

FOR SALE: Pioneer Electrostatic
Headphones with adapter. Six months old. $90, or best offer. 544-4608.

THE QUEEN'S CIRCLE K CLUB is having an extra-special, extra-special, extraordinary meeting at the Grey House at 51 Queen's Crescent (beside Vic) at 7:00
Monday March 3. We have: a lavish address, installation of the new officers and a laying-out of our program for 1975-76. Don't be surprised if you're surprised by our surprise.

GEOGRAPHY SMOKER. Take a break from the final crunch.
March 6, 9pm-1am. Brockington
Common Room.

Housingwise

QUICK. Phone 544-7737, 544-7738 or 544-7739. If you have a three or four bedroom apartment to get rid of.
NAME YOUR REWARD! (Then we'll name ours.)

Summer Sublet - May to Sept. 85
William St. 4-bedroom apartment
fully furnished. 5 minutes walk from campus. Rent negotiable. If interested, call 549-5358 after 4 pm.
CHEAP, best offer. Room for rent in 5-
man house one block from main campus, now 111 May. Must be Queen's student. Call Steve 349-
4253, at 6:30 pm.

SUMMER SUBLET our 15th floor
Apartment in the John Orr Tower,
West Campus. Rent Negotiable.
Call Rob or Dave, 542-3871
anytime.

FOR RENT: One bedroom apartment
Brock Street at University Ave.
Completely furnished, everything (Heat, utilities) paid. Available from March 1st onwards. Rent $155 monthly call 544-5735 10 pm to
11:30 p.m.

Summer Sublet: two bedroom apartment, modern, spacious furnished. Downtown Kingston.
Rent negotiable Call 544-9865 (Berni or Ted).

MAN HOUSE AVAILABLE: big individual bedrooms, ideal location, just trade us your 4 bedroom house. Phone 542-2681.

TWO PLACES IN A SIX MAN coed house available for two females - very close to campus - arrange to meet us by phoning 544-4651.

FOR $50 REWARD, A BRAND NEW
two-bedroom apartment is yours!
Rent $200 a month utilities included. Phone 549-2197 before 7
pm.

7-MAN HOUSE FULLY FURNISHED house to sublet May 1st to Aug.
31st. (Johnson St. between Alfred and Frontenac) Rent negotiable.
Call 542-4425.

BULLFIGHTER WANTED: staying in Kingston this summer? Why not sublet my two bedroom apt. partly furnished and real cheap. Dennis 544-7427.

SUBLET AVAILABLE MAY 1st, option to rent in Sept., 2 bedroom apt. unfurnished, 15 min. to campus, 1 year lease. Phone 544-3542.

TO SUBLET: large 2-bedroom apartment on Princess St., 10 minutes from campus. Available
May 1st Rent negotiable. Phone 549-3576.

APARTMENT FOR RENT starting
May 1st, 3 min. walk from campus.
Call 542-1124 after 3:00 pm.

ROOM AVAILABLE in 7 man house.
To take over May 1st. Call 546-2438, or drop by to 81 Clergy St. West.
(behind the arena)

CHANCE OF A LIFETIME! Four fantastic people looking for a fifth for next year in live bedroom house. Reasonable rent, close to campus. Male or Female only.
Phone Kathryn 546-5401.

1 BEDROOM APARTMENT available May 15, 15 minutes from campus. Princess and Wellington.
Rent $125 a month. Call 546-5947, or come to 105 Princess St.

UNFURNISHED APARTMENTS:
Students for intercession and summer session to sublet two bedroom unfurnished apartment
Apr. 1 to Aug. 31 with option to renew lease. $175 mo. 549-0144. 15
MacPherson, Apt. 13-104.

ONE BEDROOM APT. 379 Princess
St. apt. 4. $165 a month. Available
May 1st; two bedroom apt. 284
Queen St. Apt. 2. $195, all yearly lease. Phone 542-5944.

ONE BEDROOM APARTMENT to sublet May 1st with option to renew lease in September. Close to downtown, 10 minutes from campus. Call 549-5837.

FOR RENT One bedroom apartment

at 191 William St., Apt. B, furnished and heat and utilities included at $130. lease required, available
Apr. 1 or May 1st, Phone 548-7380.

5 MAN HOUSE to sublet. May-Aug. inclusive. Completely furnished.
will rent as a house or individual rooms. Rent negotiable Call 549-4935.

2 BEDROOM ELROND APT. with great view, to sublet for summer, rent negotiable. Now is the time to act! you are interested in having it next year. Call 549-9309.

TO SUBLET July and August: Quiet, small but comfortable 2-bedroom furnished apartment. Utilities included. Two blocks from campus on Johnson. Phone Nancy or Vicki at 542-4462. Rent negotiable.

TO RENT: Available May 1st, one bedroom basement apt., off-campus. Rent negotiable. Phone 544-1049.

TO SUBLET: large 2-bedroom apartment on Princess St., 10
minutes from campus. Available
May 1st. Rent negotiable. Phone 549-3576.

WANTED: 4-56 BEDROOM house.
Near campus and preferably with a fireplace. If we like it, we'll pay a reward Call 549-4750 after 6:00
p.m.

McGILL

School of Nursing

B.A. and B.Sc. Graduates

A Career in Nursing

Opportunity to play a leadership role in our rapidly developing health care service in Canada. A three-year program is offered to baccalaureate graduates of high standing, with majors in biological or social sciences, to earn a Master's degree as a clinical nurse specialist, or as a nurse researcher, in the broad field of health,
health care and health care delivery.

For information write: Research Unit
School of Nursing
McGill University
P.O. Box 6070, Station A
Montreal, Quebec H3C 3R6

Hoechst thinks ahead

Helping Build Canada

Products and ideas from Hoechst have touched and improved the quality of people's lives in every area around the world, in a hundred countries on six continents. As an affiliate of the worldwide Hoechst organizations Canadian Hoechst Limited has a full century of research and achievement to draw upon. In Canada Hoechst is an autonomous company employing Canadians to serve Canadian needs.

Hoechst in Canada concerns itself with supplying both the present and future needs of Canadians. The range of products and services covers the spectrum through industrial chemicals, dyestuffs, plastics, printing plates, human and veterinary medicines, pharmaceuticals and textile fibres. Hoechst products and services, Hoechst techniques and know-how in these fields, combined with a large international fund of experience, have given the company a reputation for expertise which takes constant striving to live up to Hoechst thinks ahead.

HOECHST

Canadian Hoechst Limited
4045 Côte Vertu
Montreal H3C 3R6

40 Lesmill Road
Don Mills Ontario

Ideas: The spark we run on

Hoechst develops a constant stream of new ideas to keep its research pointed in the right directions. Ideas about what is needed, ideas about what is wanted. Ideas about what is possible, ideas about what is probable in the light of a constantly changing, ever-increasing body of basic knowledge.

Imagination steers the ship

Imagination is a prime source of the new ideas Hoechst uses constantly in order to keep developing better products - more effective medicines, better chemical and industrial materials. Imagination is only half the battle, but when good ideas are properly teamed with the discipline of applied research, they constitute a formidable force in the search for improved products in every area of modern life.

Dean explains

The "mugging, bugging and prostitution of Watergate"

by Andrew Davies
"Mo, I can go to jail for my involvement in Watergate and I expect I will." Despite the validity of this prophetic statement to his wife Maureen, former White House counsel John W. Dean probably did not envisage that he would be a free man after having served only four months of his one to four year jail sentence for obstruction of justice in the Watergate affair. At present, Dean is on a lecture circuit to universities across North America that recently brought him to Canada to talk about his role and retrospect in Watergate.

Dean, who spoke at Carleton University on February 13, attracted a capacity audience of 1,700 people who listened intently while he spoke on Watergate and answered questions from the students and to whom they gave a standing ovation and paid $3,500 for an hour and a half lecture.

Released from prison on January 9, 1975 along with Jeb Stuart Magruder and Herbert Kalmbach, Dean's principle of telling the truth had done him justice in the end when Judge John Sirica reduced his sentence to four months for his co-operation with the Special Prosecutor's Office and Watergate Grand Jury.

Just before he began his formal lecture, there were some slight audio difficulties and Dean quipped that "even Nixon's tape recorders didn't make that much noise."

Outwardly, Dean apologized for his fee and "wished I were a man of means" so that he could visit the campuses and not charge a cent, however, he pointed out, he hadn't worked in twenty months and was very much in debt. During those twenty months, Dean said that he gave himself fully to the United States government so that they might get to the bottom of Watergate. Therefore, he turned down all job offers in the sixteen months before he went to prison while working with the Special Prosecutor and the Grand Jury.

When asked, "Is John Dean making crime pay?", he replied that he was willing to cancel the tour at a moment's notice. However, he hoped that perhaps we could learn from his mistakes and bad judgement so as not to repeat them in the future. But most of all, the students he has met and spoken with have encouraged him to continue the tour.

Watergate inevitable

"Talking about Watergate", he said, "we must make sure that we are talking about the same thing." Dean defines Watergate as being "the corrupt use of power by government officials for political purposes."

In his lecture, Dean posed some "why" questions for a better understanding of the events including: "Why did it occur? And why a cover-up?" "Watergate", he replied, "was inevitable." In the Nixon White House, Dean stressed that anything was possible; as long as you did it yourself, and made the rules, the sky was the limit.

Dean remembered his meeting in then Attorney-General John Mitchell's office listening to Liddy propose his plans for "mugging and prostitution". Surprised by these purported them to his superiors as was testified at the various inquiries, but no one made any to stop their illegal plans.

With regard to the "cover-up" furnished that it is human nature "not to test one's mistakes" and thus the great design cover-up ensued. Other reasons that he put forward the effects Watergate would have on the election, and the up-against-the-wall that left them with no viable alternative asked why no one attempted to tell the President. Dean replied, "No one thought it possible to accomplish the cover-up". The grandeur in the White House was that it would only fade away.

In his half-hour lecture on the balance of power, Dean shed some light on enormous powers and privileges in the White House and its staff. "The American people", he stated in the President more power than we deserve of. "Then, in a confessional tone, the counsel admitted "I was blinded by ambition and seduced by power". Minor examples that he supported the taste for and credibility of this were the telephone systems at their desks to call anywhere, and helicopters to fly the island for legitimate and illegitimate business then warned the audience that "it is hard to empathize with what he saw and using his tenure at the White House."

Explaining his own misuse of power, the cover-up Dean accounted for two main reasons when he said, "It would be a dismissal my answer as being to protect the President, but more important, I was by my own ambitions and wanted to use my superiors."

One of Dean's prescribed duties in the cover-up, was to find the "dirty linen" of past agencies and administrations. However, he concluded, that he could find no evidence of scandal that could compare with the breadth of Watergate.

Dean concluded his formal lecture saying that Executive power had culminated the Nixon administration in a way it had done before. Watergate, he warned, will pose some time, and the surrounding events will be unclear. "But there's still one man who did it all to rest, and that's if Richard Nixon would up and say I did this, this and this and this."

Following is a capsule summary of some questions and answers.

Q: In April of 1973, after your testimony on the "Presidency" conversation, did you suddenly turn an about face?

Dean: I tried to tell the President I was a captive on a sinking ship. In fact, the House was in the last life-boat - with a hole in the bottom. I had no sway or influence. I was continuing, and so I decided to tell the truth. I was concerned about my own ass too. I was in to lie - I wouldn't and I couldn't. There is in the Special Prosecutor's Office a tape conversation with the President in the White House (April 16, 1973) when I was asked to resign. The President said I would not resign until I was asked to. I and the President and Erlichman resigned too, and the President that the truth will always come out.

Q: Sir, what were the objectives of the Nixon administration, the operating values of the society? What was to be the new order in the States?

Dean: Many things occurred after the President's re-election that showed that the administration's attitude to government was not unrelated to the White House atmosphere. The President had sweeping plans to re-vamp and reorganize the bureaucracy (without the approval of Congress) which would have almost obliterated the Cabinet. (At this point an unidentified member from the audience shouted out, "It sounds like the Prime Minister's Office up here!") to which Dean smiled but did not reply.)

Winning's the thing

Q: Mr. Dean, would you care to comment on this - another Watergate would not occur because it symbolized the pluralistic power politics at the heart of America. To quote Vince Lombardi, "Winning isn't everything, it's the only thing."

Dean: Watergate has indeed changed many things in many ways. Take the classic example of the foolish man who thought he could change everything. No, the American people will never tolerate another Watergate or anything like it.

Q: Mr. Dean, would you care to comment on Charles Colson's statement that former President Nixon decided against resigning at an earlier date because he felt that Vice-President Ford would not be able to control Henry Kissinger?

Dean: I see no evidence that Henry Kissinger is out of control. (smiling)

Q: Sir, there was a strong feeling among the American people during the Watergate investigations in support of the government and the Nixon Administration despite all the evidence to the contrary. Did these people have their heads in the sand like ostriches, or did they simply refuse to say anything wrong or critical of government?

Dean: There were strong feelings that Dean was lying and that Nixon was telling the truth. However, I think their attitudes changed with the revelation of the tapes. The people soon realized then that their President was not everything they believed him to be.

Q: Mr. Dean, I too am from Los Angeles, but am studying here at Carleton. However, despite your pleas of poverty, I happen to know where you live, the neighborhood and the standard of living there.

Dean: Where do I live?

Woman: Pacific Palisades.
Dean: Well, that's entirely wrong. Maybe my wife should answer that question for you. At present, I live in the city of Los Angeles and I have $4,000 in my checking account. (Dean motions to show his bankbook.) I don't plan to get rich on Watergate by any means. I merely want to provide my wife and family with a good and decent life, but, as I said at the beginning, I am heavily in debt now.

Q: Mr. Dean, last Sunday's New York Times (February 9, 1975) reported that your lecture tour was well under way, but was adding little if any new information to the Watergate story. Was your debt incurred by your attempt to unravel Watergate or because of your involvement in it?

Dean: Since my release from prison, I have had numerous offers from various magazines to write my story. Although I could make much more money in only two weeks for them, I feel that there might be something that you could learn from my mistakes, and hoped that I would get more satisfaction from talking to students rather than writing to them.

Q: Sir, in April of 1973 it was reported that Patrick Gray, Acting Director of the F.B.I., destroyed certain files from Howard Hunt's safe that "should never see the light of day." Could you tell us what was in those files?

Dean: Yes, I took the files from Hunt's safe and turned them over to Pat Gray. They contained evidence of Hunt's political activities including his investigation of Edward Kennedy at Chappaquiddick Island, conversations between Egil Krogh and Charles Colson regarding the Plumbers' activities, and the volatile but bogus cable that Hunt had spliced together from two State Department cables trying to implicate the Kennedy administration with the assassination of Diem in South Vietnam.

Q: Will John Dean be remembered as the good-guy in Watergate in the history books to come?

Dean: I doubt that anyone will be remembered as a good-guy. There will be heroes of Watergate, for example, Archibald Cox and members of the Special Prosecutor's Office, members of the Ervin Senate Committee, and John Sirica who attempted to come to the truth. But I wouldn't include myself among them.

Q: Mr. Dean, the most important man in the world not only placed himself above the law, but also beyond the reach of it. How would you account for this?

